COOKING DEMONSTRATION AND FOOD DISPLAYS HERE

Enterprising Merchants Will Show Fine Wares to Crowds at School Auditorium at Cass City on April 28 and 29

BUSINESS MEN INVITE PUBLIC TO VIEW DISPLAYS

A free cooking demonstration together with appliance and food displays by Cass City merchants is scheduled for Tuesday evening and Wednesday afternoon and evening, April 28 and 29, at the school auditorium. The purpose of this exhibition is to acquaint people with the fine products carried by local business houses and to advertise Cass City as a good place to trade.

On page six of this number of the Chronicle is a large advertisement sponsored by Cass City merchants calling attention to some of the features which will be found at the demonstrations. The school auditorium will be open to the public on two evenings and one afternoon. Admission is free and the only restrictions are that children of less than high school age must be accompanied by their parents.

Entertainment features will be provided for each session and each cooking demonstration will be entirely different. A cash prize will be given for the local church or social organization having the largest total attendance at the three sessions, and other prizes will be given by local business men.

The cooking demonstration will be conducted by Mrs. Dorothy K. Harris, director of the home economics department of the A. B. Stove company of Battle Creek. She conducted a similar demonstration here last spring in which much interest was taken by housewives of the community.

Merchants will display their food products and household appliances in booths which will surround the school auditorium. Early this week, 14 booths had been arranged for and others may be added to this number.

Cass City merchants urge a large attendance at the demonstrations which will be educational and entertaining. The dates are Tuesday evening, April 28, and Wednesday afternoon and evening, April 29.

Dougald A. Krug is president and Erwin Wanner, secretary-treasurer of the merchants' group promoting this project. The following committees were appointed:

Advertising — Stanley Asher, Alex Henry and Dougald A. Krug.
Booths—Erwin Wanner, S. A. Striffler and G. B. Dupuis.
Program—M. E. Kenney, G. A. Tindale and Joe Diaz.

Thumb Educators Met Here Friday

Officers of the Huron, Sanilac and Tuscola units of the Michigan Education Association and school commissioners of the three counties attended a banquet and meeting at the Gordon Hotel Friday evening.

Harley W. Holmes, former superintendent of Cass City schools, was guest speaker and outlined the objects of the association in behalf of the schools and teachers. The Thatcher-Saur and teachers' retirement fund and the proposed teachers' tenure act were also discussed.

W. S. C. Guest of Ubyly Club Tuesday

Twenty-six members of the Cass City Woman's Study Club and twenty-two from the Bad Axe Woman's Club were delightfully entertained by the Ubyly Woman's Club in the Masonic hall at Ubyly Tuesday evening. Mrs. Gladys McTaggart of Owendale, president of the Huron County Federation of Women's Clubs, and Mrs. McNaughton of Argyle were also guests.

Mrs. McIntyre, president, graciously welcomed the visitors and then called upon Mrs. McTaggart; Mrs. A. J. Knapp, founder of Ubyly club; Mrs. R. A. McNamee, president of the Cass City club; and Mrs. Umphrey, president of the Bad Axe club, all of whom responded briefly.

The evening's entertainment consisted of the presentation of excerpts from the opera "Mikado" by Ubyly club women and high school girls under the direction of Miss Ward, their music teacher. The acting was performed in miniature by skillfully manipulated puppets.

The whole production was very cleverly done.

Between the two acts of the opera, Estella Lowe gave a humorous reading entitled, "The Girl Mother Used To Be."

Dainty refreshments followed the program served from a table prettily decorated in yellow, a bowl of daffodils, flanked by lighted yellow tapers, forming the centerpiece.

BIBLE TEACHER WILL SPEAK TO YOUNG FOLKS

Rev. I. M. Farnsworth of Owosso Bible school will speak to young people of Cass City at the Nazarene church Friday night, April 24, at eight o'clock.

Delegations of young people from Caro, Ellington, Colling and Gagetown Nazarene churches are expected.

A welcome is extended to all, especially to the young folk.

WILL ESTABLISH NEW STORE ON WEST MAIN ST.

Walter McIntyre, who recently sold his farm 2½ miles south of Cass City to Frank E. Hall, acquired Mr. Hall's property next to the town hall on West Main street in the real estate transaction. Mr. McIntyre says he expects to start a store in the West Main street building and also expects to rent a portion of the building to Frank Bliss, harness dealer. Mr. Bliss will be obliged to move from his present location because the building of which he occupies the west-end of the building has been sold to the Parrott Ice Cream Co. and they will use the entire store for their retail business here.

Must Pay Assessment Against a Vassar Bank Stock

A court order was issued on Wednesday by Judge Louis C. Cramton at Caro settling the suit brought by Lewis Walton, receiver of the State Savings Bank of Vassar, against Lee D. Harrison of Flint, administrator of the estate of W. J. Harrison, who died March 13, 1930, to collect an assessment of $1,500 worth of bank stock owned by the late Mr. Harrison.

The defendant in the suit denied ownership of the stock which consisted of 15 shares. A court order was issued by Judge George W. Sample of Ann Arbor, July 23, 1934, directing the stockholders to pay a 100 per cent stock assessment.

The decree issued by the court Wednesday calls for payment of the assessment of $1,500 and interest at the rate of five per cent dating from Sept. 1, 1934, to Mar. 1, 1936, bringing the total amount to be paid by Mr. Harrison to $1,612.50.

The order states that Mr. Harrison has received from the estate of his late father an amount greatly in excess of the claim against the estate made by the receiver. A writ of execution to force the collection of the money was also stipulated by the court in the court order made this week, which permits the receiver to levy against any assets of the estate of W. J. Harrison or against assets of Lee D. Harrison.

Leo Burgess of Mayville pleaded guilty in circuit court Wednesday to the theft of a 3 h. p. motor from the Mayville Creamery. He was sentenced to pay a $75 fine and $25 costs and was placed on probation for two years.

WILL MANAGE NEW OIL STATION AT MARLETTE

Bruce Holcomb, until Wednesday employed as salesman at the Economy Food Market, is now an attendant at the Country Oil and Gas Co.'s service station on North Leach street. There he is under the instruction of Robert Warner, the manager, for two weeks, when Mr. Holcomb will go to Marlette to have charge of a new gasoline service station for the same company.

O'HARA SPEAKS ON MICHIGAN'S FINANCES

Held Rapt Attention of Farmer and Rotarian Group Tuesday.

Prominent farmers of the Cass City community were hosts to members of the Rotary club at the Gordon Hotel on Tuesday evening when 65 people enjoyed an excellent dinner and program.

State Representative Audley Rawson and State Senator Samuel Pangborn, both farmers, were present. Mr. Rawson served as chairman and Mr. Pangborn introduced Hon. John J. O'Hara, auditor general, as the guest speaker.

Mr. O'Hara placed his audience in good humor with several stories and then held the rapt attention of his listeners with a fund of information regarding the activities of state. He had the faculty of making statistical figures regarding state finances interesting.

In Michigan today, said Mr. O'Hara, an important need is its building program. Its institutions, caring for wards of the state, are overcrowded and need renovation.

The estimated income of the state for the year is 123 millions of dollars, said the speaker, while the expenditures will reach a sum over $174,419,000. Of this amount $42,432,878 will be spent for educational purposes, $14,013,509 for welfare purposes, $6,117,222 for the care of the insane and mentally defective, $2,902,602 for the care of prisoners in penal institutions, $6,500,00 for the payment of bonds, and expenditures for the legislators, circuit judges, the delinquent tax sale campaign, building purposes, health, conservation, and agricultural departments, taxes on state lands and expenditures for commissions and boards and miscellaneous items will bring the total expenditures of the year to $174,419,668.

Mr. O'Hara is a member of the state sales tax commission, and while at every session of this board there are requests for exemptions of the state sales tax, he says it is a predominant fact that the average Michigan citizen is willing to pay his share of the tax. Mr. O'Hara believes this tax is a most equitable one, and while there is a sentiment expressed for a lowering of the rate, he does not deem such a course advisable at present since part of it is required to carry the relief load.

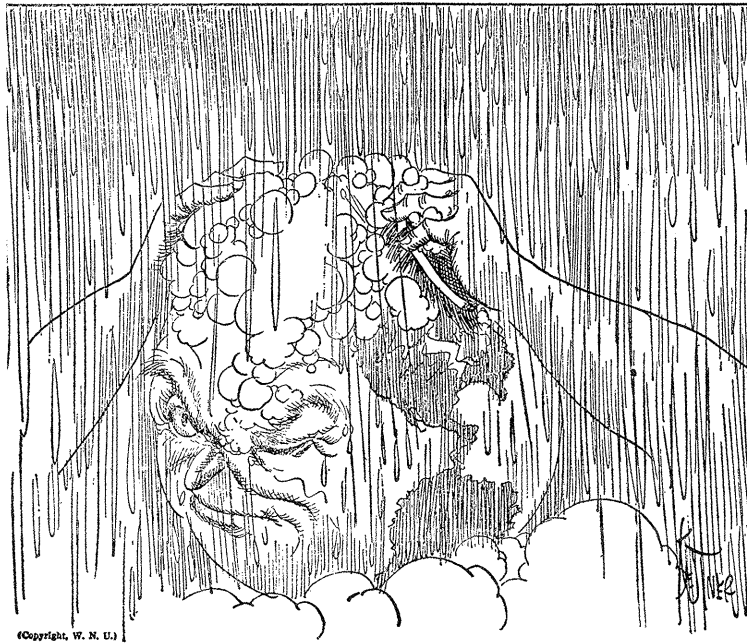

The estimated returns of the sales tax are 45 million dollars, and it has been advocated that part of this should be returned to the counties. The auditor general pointed out that counties have millions of dollars returned to them through various state funds already. Citing Tuscola county, he said it received $266,168 from the gas and weight tax, $123,400 from the primary school interest fund, $1,351 from the old age pension fund, $13,664 for the care of crippled children and afflicted citizens, and for other purposes various amounts which bring the total sum to $508,535.

Mr. O'Hara advocated a better salary for the governor position which would be commensurate with the responsibilities and exacting duties of this high office. Previous to the address, group singing was enjoyed. Tap dancing numbers by Carolyn Auten and Christina Graham, with Mrs. J. I. Niergarth as accompanist, drew hearty applause from the audience.

WEATHER CHANGES A BLESSING IN DISGUISE

Changing weather conditions this month are a blessing in disguise, according to C. B. Dibble, extension specialist in insect control at

April Showers

Michigan State College, East Lansing. Such insects as cutworms, grasshoppers, cucumber beetles, and squash bugs, which survived the winter because of the protection of deep snows, are now suffering severely from the rapid and frequent weather changes, he says.

STENBURGH—BULLOCK.

Arthur Bullock, son of Mrs. Ida Bullock, of Yale, formerly of Cass City, and Miss Faye Stenburgh, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Bert Stenburgh of Yale, were united in marriage in the Methodist Protestant parsonage Saturday afternoon. Rev. John McLucas read the ceremony.

The young couple were attended by Miss Ruth Stenburgh, sister of the bride, and Ira Bullock, brother of the groom. Mr. and Mrs. Bullock will make their home in Yale, where the groom is employed in the woolen mills.

METHODISTS INVITE PASTOR TO RETURN

Eight Hundred Dollars Expended to Improve Church at Cass City.

The fourth quarterly conference of the Methodist Episcopal church was held Monday evening in the church. Rev. Frank Field of Port Huron presided. Rev. Charles P. Bayless was given a unanimous vote to remain as their pastor for another year. Reports from the various departments indicated strong conditions in both the Cass City and Bethel churches. Mr. Bayless reported that over $800 will have been expended in improvement to church and parsonage property by June 1.

Herbert Maharg was named delegate and Dr. I. A. Fritz as reserve to the Layman's conference, which meets jointly with ministers in Royal Oak in June.

Mrs. John A. Sandham was appointed a member of the executive council of the Christian Citizenship League for the term expiring in 1939.

Dr. C. C. Hermann of India gave an interesting address. Dr. Hermann is in the United States as an official delegate to the General Conference of Methodism, meeting in Columbus, Ohio, during the month of May.

New Gas Station of White Tile

Metcalfe & Schrader, who purchased the lot on the corner of Main and Grant streets from William A. Bentley several months ago, expect to start next week in erecting their new gasoline service station at that point.

An office, 17x22 feet, will be located at the front of the station, while the greasing room will be approximately 13x35 feet in size.

LOCAL ITEMS

The store and implement warehouse on East Main street, occupied by E. Paul & Son, are receiving new roofs this week.

Miss Mary McWebb and Mrs. Harold Murphy attended a meeting of the Bay City and Saginaw Nurses District Association held at the Michigan Farm Colony at Wahjamega on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Kosanke and Donald Kosanke of Detroit spent Saturday night and Sunday in Cass City. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kosanke, who have spent the winter in Detroit, returned to their home here with them.

Bruce Brown, sons, Ray and Arthur, Miss Lucile Goodall and James Peddie visited Mrs. Brown in Ann Arbor Sunday. Mrs. Brown, who underwent a serious operation in University hospital there, is a little better, although still very ill.

Kenneth Zinnecker of Moore, Montana, is a guest at the home of his uncle, Solomon Striffler, and other relatives here. Mr. Zinnecker brought two carloads of horses from Montana to Wisconsin, coming on to visit relatives in Detroit and Cass City. He will take back to Montana two new 1936 Terraplanes, driving one and towing the other.

Forty-five members and friends of the South Novesta Farmers' club enjoyed a potluck dinner Friday noon when the club met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Douglas. Methods of soil improvement were discussed by Paul Rood, extension specialist of Michigan State College, East Lansing. E. L. Benton of Caro gave a short talk and a number of readings and musical selections were given by club members. The next gathering will be an evening meeting with a potluck supper and will be held with Mr. and Mrs. Elley.

Miss Alice Lammers, instructor of French in the Cass City school, had her lip cut and suffered from shock when her automobile crashed into a truck parked on the pavement on M-53, near Burnside, about 10:30 p. m. Saturday. Miss Lammers was returning from Detroit when the accident happened. The truck was also headed north and had stopped for want of gas. No flares or other warnings were visible. When Miss Lammers sighted the truck, another car was passing it going south and made the passing of the truck more difficult. Her car was badly damaged.

SHERIFF'S BOARDERS INCREASE IN NUMBER

Numerous Arrests Last Week-end Account for Extras at Sunday Dinner.

Sheriff George Jeffrey's jail boarders reached 14 by the time dinner was served on Sunday. This is about twice the average number and the increase was due to an unusual number of arrests last week-end, several of them on drunk and disorderly charges.

Earl Hartman of Owendale was arrested on a Caro street Saturday on a charge of driving while drunk. Justice St. Mary gave Hartman his choice between paying a $50 fine and $8 costs, and spending 90 days in jail.

Eugene Kissinger of Saginaw was arrested ½ mile west of Richville charged with driving while drunk. He appeared before Justice St. Mary and paid a $50 fine and $12.80 costs rather than spend 90 days in jail.

Nelson Miller of Fairgrove, Harold Abke of Unionville and Carl Sticken of Akron were arrested on Friday night at a dance at Akron, on disorderly charges. Miller paid a $25 fine and $9.50 costs; Abke, a $50.00 fine and $9.50 costs; and Sticken, a $10 fine and $9.50 costs. All three appeared in Justice St. Mary's court.

Burt Jobson and "Bill" Bherow, both of Millington, were arrested on drunk and disorderly charges on Saturday night. Justice St. Mary ordered each man to pay a $10 fine and $13.70 costs, or spend 60 days in jail.

Kenneth Heezig and Henry Geokey, both Indians from Quianicasee, were brought to jail on Friday on drunk and disorderly charges. Justice St. Mary ordered each man to spend 90 days in jail if he failed to pay $13.10 costs.

Fred Rosenberg and Harold Rosenberg, both of Caro, were arrested on Saturday for simple larceny, charged with the theft of tires from a junk dealer. Each one paid $7.50 costs and made settlement with the dealer for the tires.

Three men were placed under arrest for non-payment of alimony. Two made satisfactory arrangements for settlement and were released.

Large Number at Sacred Concert

The Presbyterian church here was well filled Sunday evening by music lovers who came to hear the sacred concert given by the choir of the First Presbyterian church of Saginaw.

The program as printed in the Chronicle last week was carried out. During the intermission of the program, Rev. H. W. Fischer, pastor of the Saginaw church, gave a brief message on music.

The chief features of the concert were the artistic finish of each number and the intelligent shadings and contrasts obtained. Solo parts were well executed. The dark robes worn during the singing of the sacred numbers added much to the impressiveness of the program. The concert drew many compliments from the large audience and was much appreciated by them.

COMING AUCTIONS.

Nelson Robertson has rented his farm near Greenleaf and expects to have an auction sale of horses, cattle, machinery and household goods, particulars of which will be printed in the Chronicle next week.

CRUISE SUITS ARE BRIGHT IN COLOR

Developed in Great Variety of Fabrics.

The trim little suit, short of jacket, snug of waistline, single-breasted and softly tailored, with the 10 to 12-inch nearly-straight line skirt is the oft repeated motif in suits that are developed in many different fabrics for cruise and travel clothes.

The suit might be in white doek-skin linen with a little stitied dot pocket, a green belt and a printed blouse worn with a shallow brim green linen sailor, or it might be a crepe suit in a bubble print with a fox collar, or the navy blue that every traveler loves. Whatever the fabric be, it is one of the glorified flannels or a dull pink linen with accents of wine in the blouse, gloves and sailor hat or a copper wool with brown; the general line of the suit is that of 1930 when waists were small, sleeves slightly full at the shoulder line, and pockets and belts were a trim, as well as an integral part of the costume.

The use of three colors in one ensemble, such as yellow with brown accessories and greenish yellow blouse and gloves is the tri-color note that takes new clothes of mid-season out of the ranks of winter apparel and sets chic women on the road that leads to spring.

CRUISE COSTUME

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

So you're going on a cruise? A costume such as the voguish model illustrated would do you credit for the first few hours at sea, and for a triumphant entry back in town. It is made of wool crepe in a soft smoke blue shade with a new variation of the cowl neckline and a smartly pleated skirt. The reversible jacket is plaid on one side in lovely Tahiti rose and smoke blue coloring. The shoes chosen for wear with this costume will give good service ashore when you reach home. They are suede in shades of gray and they have the new two-inch built-up square heels that are sturdy, comfortable and above all, smart.

Unique Fabrics Feature New Frocks for Daytime

All sorts of new fabrics fashion the new and practical daytime frocks. There are wools appliqued with little polished wool fagots, wools tufted with gay tassels or worked with metal braid and a new silk quilted in tubular strips.

A sports suit is made of "stained glass window wool" woven in a red, green and putty gray barred effect to suggest what its name implies. Over its slender skirt and under its box jacket go a blouse of forest green kidskin with a pleated kidskin ruffle edging the small collar and cuffs.

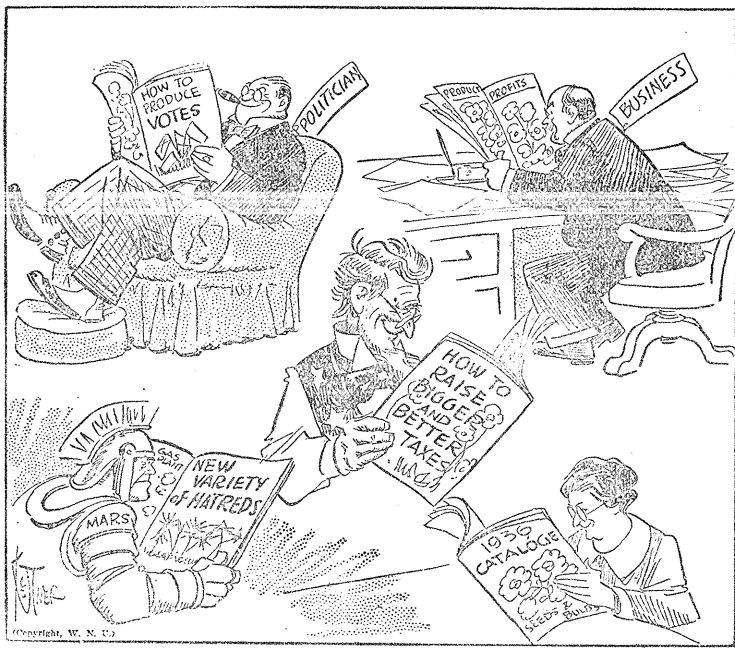

STYLE NOTES

Gray blue for hose is news. Now comes snap-on "extra" cuffs for gloves. Fitted lines feature for the spring coat or suit. Traveling and shopping bags are of petit point. New hats run gamut of out-of-the-usual "ideas." Mannish suitings are favored for spring tailleur. Braid frogs in bright contrasting color trim gay prints.

Jacket Is Smart

For dinner ensembles and tailleurs, the little close-fitted jacket is still the correct thing. There is a tendency, however, to adopt long coats for formal evenings. Long wide capes are intended to be draped over the evening dress and fall low enough at the back to follow the train movement of the gown.

Rural Electrification in the United States-1935

Prepared by Rural Electrification Administration

Too many American farms are behind the times. In the West, where electricity is used extensively for irrigation, and in thickly settled North Atlantic States, about one farm in three has electric service. In the South and throughout the Middle West rural electrification is very much rarer and in some States almost non-existent.

The Rural Electrification Administration believes that concerted action by farmers, private industry and the Government, using modern methods and modern practices, can change this condition radically. Line

Wrote the Doxology
The words of the doxology are by Thomas Ken, an English bishop. The tune, known as "Old Hundred," is from the Genevan "Psalter," 1551.

The Song of Success

Tune: "When Johnny Comes Marching Home"

I Never Raised Chicks Like These Before, Hooray

Novice or expert—hatcheryman or commercial poultryman—poultry folks of all kinds tell us this same story that we've set to music. Always it's unanimous—because all of them fed Farm Bureau Mermash. They tell us that even the cockerels, (knowing they are doomed to become broilers), are so happy getting Mermash, that they cheerfully, contentedly grow into the finest, full-feathered, weighty, red-combed, vigorous birds that top the market.

While the pullets—condemned to be mere wage slaves—always toiling to help produce the "daily dozen"; do so good-naturedly, with a song on their lips and ambition in their gizzards.

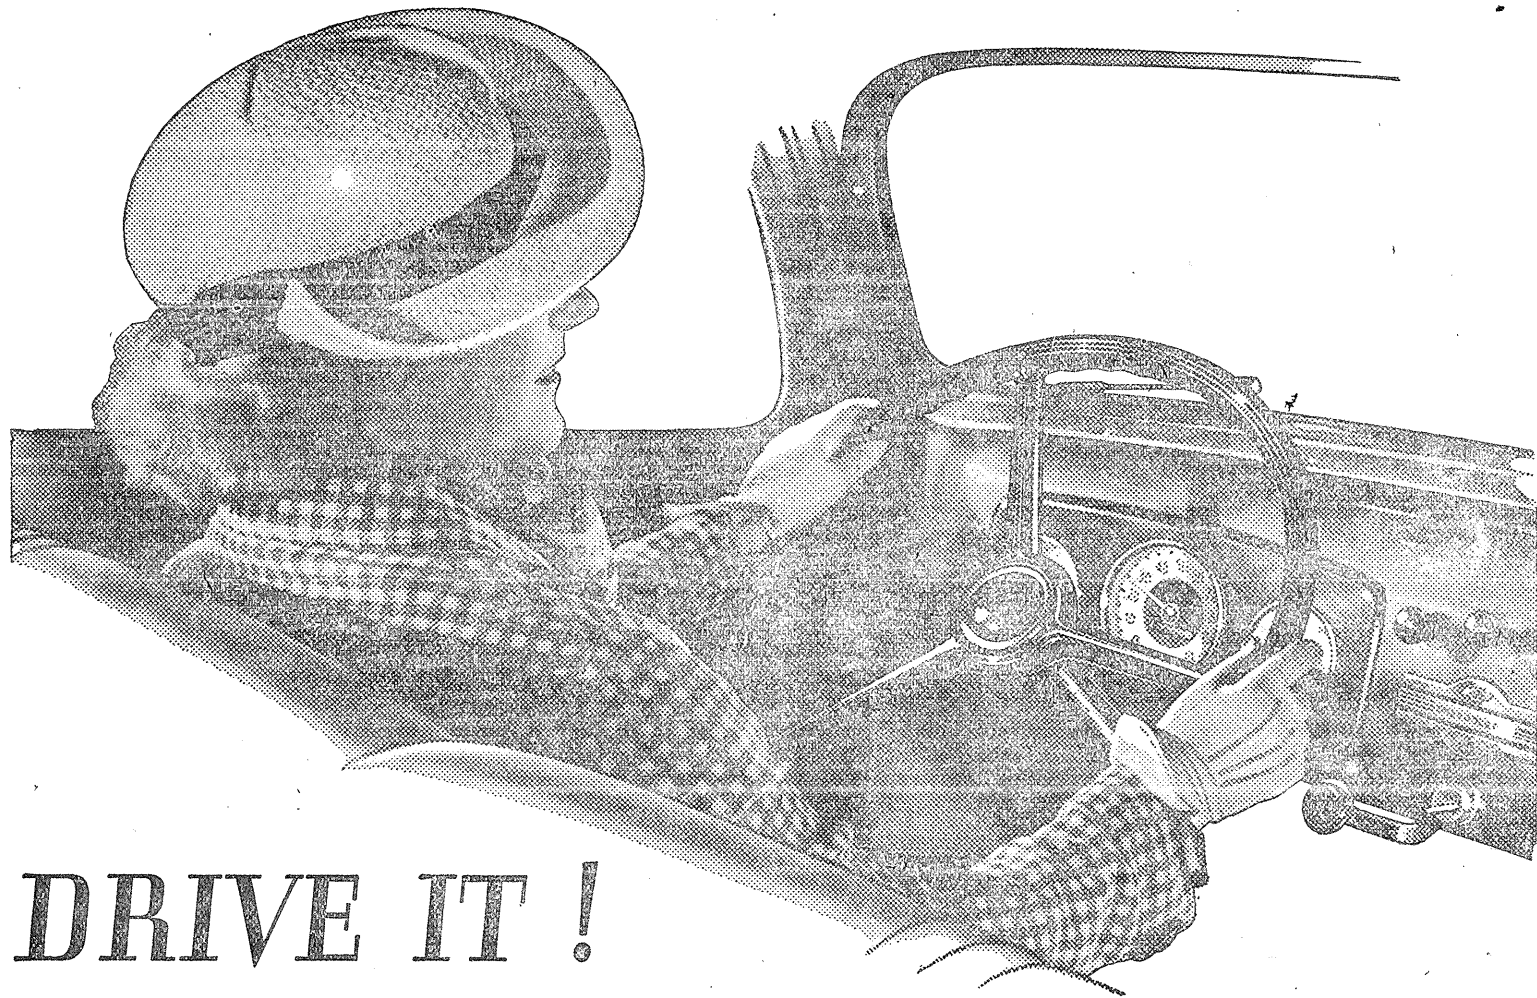

If you haven't used Mermash Chick Starter—go to the Farm Bureau distributor and price it! Then be prepared for a pleasant shock—because it's priced so low that it means real farm relief for YOU and your poultry problems. It's the unchallenged leader as a starter for chicks, turkeys or ducks.

For every stage of poultry life:
The Chant of the Chick, or
The Foem of the Pullet, or
The Lay of the Hen—Mermashes or
Egg maker bring harmony and profit.

Wholesale Dealer Died in Caro Tuesday

Robert Park, Sr., seventy-four-year-old retired wholesale produce merchant and a resident of Caro for 51 years, died Tuesday afternoon at his home. He became ill Monday night.

Born near Belfast, Ireland, he came to the United States in 1883. He returned to Ireland in 1885 to marry Mary Robinson, who died 13 months ago. They settled on a farm near Caro after their marriage.

Produce handling became a side-issue with him in connection with his farming operations, but like many side-issues, later became the principal occupation. He continued farming until 1920, when he moved to Caro. He was the active head of a wholesale egg business, and through the years was assisted by his sons. In 1929 he disposed of his interest to Robert Park, Jr., and James Park, and a year later the business was taken over entirely and is still operated by the latter. Mr. Park has always had a keen interest in community affairs. Many of the community's worthwhile projects have been benefited by his generosity.

Surviving are 10 children, Samuel R., president of Peoples State Bank, Caro; Robert, Jr., of St. Paul; William, of Philadelphia; James, David J. M., of Bimidi, Minn.; Joseph, of Benton Harbor; Mrs. Bert O. Purdy, Miss Margaret Park and Mrs. H. H. Purdy, of Caro, and Mrs. Ralph Smith, of Niles.

Mr. Park was active in the Presbyterian church.

Mr. Park's death came on the fifty-first anniversary of his marriage.

Colwood Merchant Died on Wednesday

George W. Miller of Colwood passed away at his home early Wednesday afternoon, following an illness of muscular meningitis. Although confined to his home for a long time, death came very unexpectedly. He was born at Allaben, New York, June 26, 1887, where he spent his early manhood, coming later to Saginaw where he made his home while employed as a druggist salesman.

In August, 1930, he was married to Katherine Muck of Colwood, who with her two daughters, Madeline, of Ypsilanti and Phyllis Jean, at home, mourn his departure. He also leaves his aged parents and two brothers of Shandagan, New York.

Mr. Miller had a kind and loving disposition and during his illness was very considerate of those about him.

Funeral services will be held from the home Saturday afternoon at two o'clock. Harry and Russell Miller of Shandagan, New York, arrived today to attend their brother's funeral.

What We Think

(By Frank Dixon).

The world is moving too fast for me. I have not yet been able to accept the practice of women smoking cigarettes in hotel lobbies with the men, and now comes the word that they are swaggering up to the bars in sections of the country and with one foot on the rail gulping down whiskey and gin.

I've often wondered if the heathen people and the savages gossip about each other as the so called Christian people do. I am inclined to think they don't. If some long tongued gossip would attempt to spread the poison about some of the heathens that they do about their Christian brothers and sisters, there would be some right up to now funerals in the tribe in short order.

I don't know but that I would recommend the heathen for the practice.

The fact that I have always been poor may have influenced that belief, but I have always felt that the poor people were more generous and less greedy than the well-to-do.

I've about changed my mind on it. I have seen so many poor people who, when circumstances became better, were more avaricious and greedy than many of the folks I have known who were always well-to-do.

My conclusion is that if they are greedy they are going to be greedy whether they have much or little. The folks with little who have greed in their souls are greedy on a small scale and the folks with plenty who are greedy in their souls are greedy on a big scale.

Neither wealth nor beauty are enduring enough to make a successful marriage.

Early Chamber of Commerce

The Hanseatic league was a great trading association of the Middle Ages, which included all the principal towns in northern Germany. The league protected merchants against pirates, thieves and hostile governments, and in return exacted perfect obedience from its members. A whole city would be held responsible for the offense of one of its citizens and obliged to punish the wrongdoer.

Early Time Machine

The earliest record of a time machine appears in the word of Greek origin, "clepsydra," which means "water thief." The device was really a water clock and simply consisted of a vessel into or out of which dripped water. By noting the ascent or descent of a float in the vessel, as the water dripped into or out of the container, you could make a rough guess as to the time.

In later years slaves were imported, but their descendants have not multiplied.

POULTRY

TOO MUCH HEAT IS FATAL TO CHICKS

Warmth of Brooder Must Be Closely Guarded.

By H. H. Alp, Poultry Specialist, College of Agriculture, University of Illinois.—WNU Service.

Dead or unhealthy chicks always mean financial losses for the poultryman, but they mean greater losses when feed prices are high and the outlook for poultry raising is favorable.

One of the common causes of unhealthy chicks is the overheated brooder house. It often leads to death of chicks through cannibalism, and lowers the vigor and health of the birds. The effect of a hot, stuffy room will be reflected in unthrifty chicks with poor appetites and ruffled feathers.

A general hover temperature of between 90 and 100 degrees Fahrenheit is recommended. However, the room temperature outside the hover should be about 70 degrees. Crowding of the chicks near the stove indicates too low a temperature, while their hovering at some distance indicates too much heat.

Not only is it important to handle the chicks so that they will utilize high-priced feeds to the best advantage, but it is also necessary to protect the feed to prevent losses before feeding.

Dampness reduces the value of feeds and, in some cases, introduces sickness among the birds. A waterproof covering should be spread over the poultry feeds while they are being transported from one place to another in the rain, and they should be stored in a dry, clean room.

Poultry diseases are often spread by feed that has been stored in the chicken house or brooder. If no separate room is available for storage, large-sized garbage cans with close fitting covers make good storage bins.

Darkened Nests Advised to Fool the Egg Eaters

Egg eating is a habit usually brought on by a lack of something in the diet, particularly the lack of shell forming material, says an authority in the Montreal Herald. Egg shells should not be given to hens unless they are dried and broken up fine. They should not resemble an egg in any way, shape or form. To offset this before it becomes a habit, the only thing to do is to arrange that the hens should lay in darkened nests. This can be arranged by having the hens go in at the end of the nest, and entering the laying compartment from the back. If they cannot see the eggs they will be less inclined to eat them, and care should be taken to have the eggs gathered three or four times daily, or oftener if convenient, until such time as the trouble has passed away.

Meat Spots in Eggs

Meat spots in eggs which later may develop into rots, are something over which the poultryman has little, if any, control. It is simply the rupture of a blood vessel somewhere from the time the egg leaves the ovary until it comes down the oviduct. It does not necessarily mean that the hen which laid them will repeat the laying of eggs with meat, or blood spots, and the only method of controlling the output is to have eggs candled before sending them to market.

Feeding Goslings

Use a covered coop—goslings cannot stand cold rain, and especially not the hot glaring sunshine. Sunstroke is a frequent cause of death in summer. Have coops so constructed that fronts close up at night, and open them in the morning if weather is fair. Feed plenty of greens—this is fully 50 per cent of their feed. They'll live on grass alone and grow, but chick starter should be before them exactly same as for chicks. Earthen water fountains keep water cool.

Time to Fight Lice

During warm weather one can easily rid the laying flock of lice by the use of sodium fluoride as a dip. The usual recommendation is to mix one ounce of sodium fluoride in one gallon of water. The dip should be lukewarm. The bird should be held in the solution until the water reaches the skin. Just before releasing the hen the head should be dipped. Allowing the bird to drain conserves the liquid. The solution should not remain in metal containers overnight.

Cheap Chicks Prove Loss

Chicks sold for less than the cost of producing them should be looked upon with suspicion, asserts a writer in Capper's Weekly. Certainly one loses much more than the cost of the chicks when he feeds a bunch of weak ones that finally turn up their toes. He loses time, feed, and the opportunity to get early chicks started. That period of growing is something one cannot estimate as to worth.

ORCHIDS POPULAR FOR EVENING WEAR

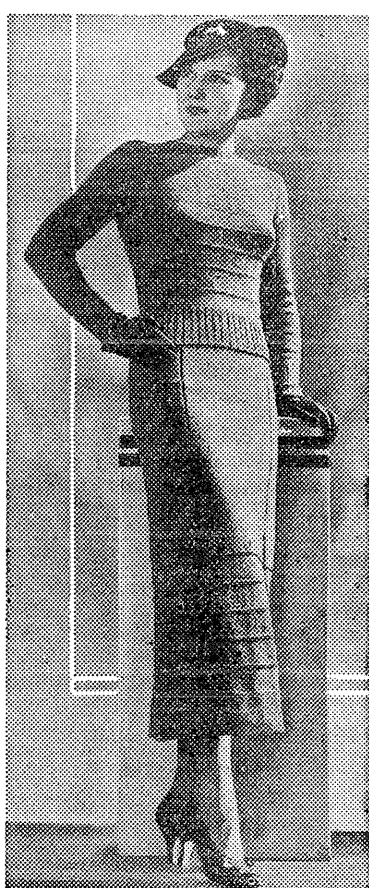

Real Flowers Worn by Young and Old Alike.

Not since the days of grandmother have fresh flowers—real flowers with real fragrance and true color—been worn by young and old alike. Orchids, which were just coming into our social picture in grandmother's day, hold the center of the stage.

This season the young Junior leaguers have set the fashion for originality in the manner best suited to their individual types for wearing orchids: on top of the head above a pompadour or clustered curls; in a spray tracking down behind the ear; one on each side of the head held in place by clips; two at the throat clipped to a band of velvet like a dog collar; two orchids with stems crossed held by clips to a high neckline; orchids used as a decoration on an orchid tulle muff; orchids used at the belt, and to fasten a fur cape. With high-throated slipper-satin evening coat, two orchids closed the little Peter Pan collar.

Orchids may be depended upon to come home as fresh as they went out if they have been properly worn. And this means right side up, or stems down.

GOOD-STYLE KNIT By CHERIE NICHOLAS

This unusually likable knit two-piece has just such details as distinguish a dress and its wearer in a crowd. The horizontal ridges add a conservative note of decoration. The closely knitted yoke and saddle sleeve tops lend to the attractiveness of this model. The skirt is perfectly fitted, its broad band at the bottom aiding in keeping it in good shape. It is made of washable knitting and crochet cotton.

Short Skirts Forecast by Survey of Studio Styles

Short skirts for American women—at least, shorter skirts—are on the way, a survey of Hollywood disclosed.

For American women, following the styles set by the screen stars, are sure to adopt the mode soon to be brought to the screen by Francis Langford in "Collegiate" and other actresses, including Carole Lombard, Marlene Dietrich, Norma Shearer, Claudette Colbert and Joan Crawford, according to Travis Banton, Paramount stylist.

"The new skirts will fall about three inches below the knee for an average of 11 inches from the floor," Banton explained.

"Some skirts may be 12 inches from the floor, but before a woman adopts that length she should have a pretty good idea of what her legs look like to other people."

FLASHES FROM PARIS

Fans are back and parasols coming. Braided lace is new and very lovely. Glazed flowers trim the spring chapeau. Fashion is turning very decidedly to Spanish themes. Narrow velvet ribbon trims taffetas and organdies. Exciting evening fashions bespeak Chinese influence. Net, marquisette and chiffon are posed over satin or taffeta.

Wraps Are Glamorous

For some seasons now, many women have been making a fur coat do when they did not full evening dress. But this season wraps are so glamorous, so handsome, so theatrical, that even she who only goes out once or twice a season can't resist them. A lovely affair is a full-skirted wrap of pale beige velvet with shirring and cordell detail. It has a big mink collar. Another wrap is of quilted white silk in a heavy weave.

CHAPTER X

"NOT a word to anybody," Harwood had said. "Dig in 'til I phone you. One little leak, and we're finished."

Barry saw that. But why should Harwood fear the leak coming from him? Pat? Nonsense! Winslow, of course, who was Morano's lawyer. But Ernie had said, "Winslow isn't that kind of a lawyer." And he had said, also, "If Winslow's shielding anyone, it's Judge Hambridge. Judge Hambridge, or someone else close to him." Except Winslow, who was close to Judge Hambridge, but Pat?

Into Barry's mind trickled slowly small, insistent recollections—one after another. Recollections that, in the beginning, seemed to have nothing to do with the case. Pat was in town the night of the murder. Naturally—with her father; what of it? "He wouldn't let me stay with him," she had said, at dinner the next evening in Southampton. What of it?

But the trickle was becoming a flood now. The afternoon Hambridge had confessed seeing Kelly, why did Pat keep checking the Judge? What did she fear his disclosing? And the confession itself; why did he make it?

"I'm off again," Barry raged at himself. "Just because Ernie said, 'Winslow may be shielding Hambridge, or someone close to him.' That might mean someone close to Winslow. But who's closer than the Hambridges?" And then he remembered declaring, the afternoon of the Judge's confession, "The man—or the woman—who killed Kelly knew what he—or she—was going to do."

"Why do you say 'she'?" Pat had asked emotionally. "This wasn't a woman's crime."

Winslow had asserted, too; only a few hours ago: "that man." Curious.

And motive? Well, you couldn't deny that. If Kelly was threatening Judge Hambridge, and Pat knew it. There was no doubt that she did. "I've got something in my pocket," the Judge had quoted Kelly as shouting, and Pat had intervened promptly. All those weeks, before the decision was filed, she had writhed under the newspaper attacks on her father. Suppose she had known what was compelling that decision, and undertaken to remove the compulsion. "Silly!" Barry fumed at himself. "Fantastic! Peter isn't shielding anyone. He's talking sense, that's all, and he's the only one of the lot of us who does. I told him I'd suspected almost everyone in New York, and now it's Long Island. And the only girl in the world I ever gave a damn about. I'm the champion catch-as-catch-can moron of the United States and Canada!"

The house of cards was a wreck now, and Barry turned to other self-questionings. "That paper in Kelly's pocket—the threat over Luis. But it seems to have been the threat over Hambridge, also. What's the connection?" "None," he finally decided, intermingling that idea, too, and turning in bed, determined that he must sleep. "Something between Morano and Kelly, yes, but between Morano and Judge Hambridge—well, that's just beat-tops!" With that he fell asleep.

The telephone awakened him. "Ten o'clock," the girl at the switchboard droned. "Call from Southampton?"

"Mr. Gilbert? This is the hospital at Southampton. Miss Hambridge asked me to tell you that Jack Rogers has been hurt. We don't know how badly yet. His horse threw him. She'd like to know if you can come at once."

"Certainly."

"Miss Hambridge says, if you'll go straight to her house, she'll be there."

Fortunately, he got Evans at once, and they were on the Merrick road less than an hour later. "Never mind the red lights," Barry ordered. "Keep going."

But Evans was wary, beating the lights when it seemed safe to do so; stopping when it didn't, and pushing the car to its limit on stretches of unpaved highway. Before two o'clock, Evans drew up in front of the Hambridges'. Pat was waiting. "I've just this minute got back from the hospital," she declared. "Peg's still there, of course. But Jack's arm's broken."

"Nothing worse?" Pat shook her head. "The whole thing's my fault," she said, tremulously. "Jack's too young for a pony. Although I had one at his age. My mother was brought up in a little town called Warrenton, where babies rode before they could walk."

She took him into the drawing-room, where they were joined by her father, who seemed terribly broken. "Poor kid," he kept saying. "And poor Peggy. With all her other worries." Between them, they told Barry what had happened. A bit of paper had blown across the pony's eyes, and he had bolted, with Pat after him. She got hold of the bridle, but the frantic little animal had dragged her out of her saddle. Still she had clung, until, maddened, the pony had bucked, and thrown his small rider. Pat had let go then; not without visible and invisible casualties to skin and clothes.

"They're nothing," she insisted, "but, if that wretched beast had got away—"

She left the sentence unfinished. "I think we'd all be better for a bite of something," the Judge suggested, and led the way into the dining room, where luncheon evidently had been ready for some time. Nobody ate much.

Pat's nerves were on edge, and Hambridge rambled on about the "poor kid," and this being "the last straw" for Peggy, and what were they going to do now, with the Riders coming to Southampton.

And, suddenly, Pat said, "This is Wednesday."

Barry conceded the point.

"We agreed to tell the truth if Jack wasn't free Wednesday."

The Judge's muscles stiffened. "What do you mean by the truth, Pat?"

"That you saw Kelly after Jack left him."

For answer, Hambridge turned squarely to Barry.

"You're pretty shrewd, Mr. Gilbert," he said, for the second time. "If you were the District Attorney, and heard what I told you here a few weeks ago, what would you ask?"

Barry replied, "I'd ask what was that paper in Kelly's pocket? What was in it to compel an honest man to write a crooked decision? I'd ask who else might have wanted that paper—and what became of it?"

Both Pat and her father were staring at Barry now, with wide, startled eyes in which lay something like terror.

For Answer, Hambridge Turned Squarely to Barry.

The Judge cried, "We can't face that."

"We've got to face it," Pat said. "We've got to. There's a woman with a sick boy—"

"There's another woman, too," the Judge interrupted. "A woman closer and dearer to me—" He checked himself, remembering suddenly that he and his daughter were not alone. Remembering, he turned back to Barry. "You know how I feel about all this," he pleaded. "I've said repeatedly that we must clear Rider at any cost. But now you've put my fear into words. They can't convict this boy. What's the difference whether he's free tomorrow or two weeks from tomorrow? If there were any possibility of convicting an innocent man—any innocent man—I'd have no choice. But now—"

The telephone rang in the hall. Pat said, "It's Peggy!" She had risen, and the Judge after her, when a servant appeared. "Mr. Winslow on the wire," the servant announced. "Very important, sir."

The Judge went out, closing the door after him. Pat excused herself. "I think I'd better go to my father." Barry waited, alone, but his anxiety was great, too, and at last, he parted the double doors and went into the drawing room.

As he did so, he heard the Judge's voice. Evidently, Hambridge had just hung up the phone, and was addressing his daughter.

"They've arrested Morano," he said. "For murdering Kelly. What are we going to do now?"

But the girl had seen Barry. An instant later, she came into the room, very white and shaken. Barry looked at her.

"Who killed Kelly?" he asked. "You know, don't you?"

But Pat did not answer him. Her hand closed over the back of a chair, and she swayed dizzily.

Barry caught her up in his arms. "It's no use. We've got to have the truth. Who murdered Mike Kelly?"

His grip tightened on her shoulders.

"For God's sake—Pat—darling—was it you?"

"Who murdered Mike Kelly?"

The question was being asked him from every news-stand in New York.

Beneath it, in huge headlines, the Globe answered, and accused. In journalistic circles, that story is still referred to as "the big beat": "Who murdered Mike Kelly?" "Do the police know?" "Have they always known?" "And has this knowledge been pigeon-holed, while an innocent man was held for the crime, because the real murderer knew too much about Tammany Hall?"

The Globe replied to these queries in a series of denunciatory statements, libel-proofed by a discreet sprinkling of the usual "it is alleged" and "who is said to be."

"Luis Morano owned the house at 24 Jefferson street. He bought it in 1929, and lived there alone, with two colored servants, until 1931, when he purchased a stock farm near Morristown, N. J. The house remained vacant, and, last January, Morano sold it to the Progressive Realty company for $12,000."

"In March, when the Progressive company transferred most of Jefferson street to the city for a so-called boulevard, the value of the Morano property was set at $55,000. "The Civic association alleged that the Progressive company was merely a stalking horse for Boss Kelly, and condemnation proceedings were instituted before Judge Curtis Hambridge, whose decision was filed only an hour after Kelly was found dead, his skull fractured by a blow from a heavy cut-glass decanter.

"On the day of the murder, a man, believed to be Morano, telephoned the Globe that he could and would establish Kelly's connection with the Progressive company. An appointment was made for 10:30 that night. The man did not appear."

"But at eight o'clock—two hours and a half earlier—Kelly went to the Cocoanut Bar. He is said to have had with him two henchmen, and a paper of some sort, with which he threatened Morano. Kelly alleged that an effort was made to pick his pocket of this document, but it was still in his possession when he left the Cocoanut Bar."

"When Kelly's body was found, the paper had vanished. All this is, and always has been known to the police. Kelly was killed between one and two o'clock in the morning."

"At one o'clock, Morano telephoned his attorney that he was hopping into his car to drive to Morristown. But the police know, and have always known that Morano's car was still in front of the Cocoanut Bar three hours later. They know, and have always known that a new traffic cop gave the chauffeur a summons at that time, and that the two men went into the Bar together to find Morano. He was not there, and the doorman said he had not been there since shortly after one o'clock."

"Where was Morano? The police know, or should know that he was the occupant of a taxicab that dashed out of Sixteenth street—where Kelly lived and was then lying dead—at two o'clock the morning of the murder. Half a block from Kelly's house, the taxi struck and killed a woman, Mrs. Theodore Jaxon, of 53 Washington square. The number of that taxi is, or should be known to the police. Its driver is, or should be known to the police. He is George Mundelein of 861 Cass street, the Bronx."

"Morano hired the cab at Sixteenth street and Sixth avenue, and told Mundelein to take him to the Cocoanut Bar. When the accident threatened to identify him, he changed his mind, and ordered the driver to 'keep on going.' He said that he had to catch a 2:12 train at the Pennsylvania station."

"Whether or not Morano caught that train, he was not seen again until late the next evening, when he reappeared at the Cocoanut Bar with his right wrist heavily bandaged. Morano told the doorman he had sprained the wrist playing with one of the horses on his stock farm. But Morano was not anywhere near that farm the night of the Kelly murder, or the day following."

"Most of these facts are, or should be known to the police. Morano is still at liberty. No effort has been made to detain him as a material witness. For more than two months, another man has been locked in the Tombs, under indictment for this murder. If the police haven't known of Morano's connection with the case, they have been grossly and criminally negligent. If they have known, they have been grossly and criminally corrupt."

"In either event, the public awaits their next move."

A considerable part of that public waited in the Cocoanut Bar, or in front of it.

And, at seven o'clock that night, Morano was "still at liberty." The police hadn't arrested him—in spite of the Globe, and Winslow's message to Hambridge—nor manifested the least interest in his whereabouts. The first show at the Bar was beginning when Tim Laugherty arrived with "Big Bill" Devine.

Both were in plain clothes, and attracted no attention.

"Where's the boss?" Tim asked one of the head waiters.

"Upstairs—on the balcony. He's having his dinner."

He was.

Whether Morano counted too much on his pull, or whether he realized the impossibility of escape, no one ever knew. The platinum blonde had urged him to clear out. "What for?" he asked.

"Then he said, 'Even in America, you can't get away with murder forever—not forever, you can't,' she testified later."

"I'm tired of the whole business," he said. "We might as well have it over."

What Morano meant by that was soon evident.

"He'd been drinkin' all afternoon," the platinum blonde testified. "First time I'd ever seen him squiffy."

It was buyers' night at the Cocoanut Bar. The street-floor was so crowded that the detectives had trouble reaching the stairs.

From what Morano called "the mezzanine," operators revolving multi-lined gelatine wheels in front of spot-lights, and gentlemen in paper caps emptied cornucopias. The din was incredible, and the air full of smoke, and confetti, and bright-colored streamers.

Tim walked into Morano's little dining room.

"Hello, Luis! They want to talk to you at headquarters," Tim said. Luis refilled his glass.

Directly beneath him, 20 brazen voices were bawling a chorus:

"Let me be—
That's all I'm askin' you.
Can't you see?
That's all I'm askin' you.
Take your hand from off'n my hips.
Take your mouth away from my lips.
Let me be,
That's what I'm tellin' you—"

"I guess you better come along, Luis."

Morano rose.

"I'm not going," he said.

"No?"

"No."

"Because why?"

"Because I don't like your boardin' house. I don't like that easy chair you got waitin' for me. If you're gonna croak me, you might as well do it right here."

"Nobody don't want to croak you," Tim argued. "What's the use making trouble, Luis?"

For answer, Morano gave him the contents of the glass of champagne in the eyes.

"Big Bill" Devine seized Morano's right arm.

And Morano struck with his left—a vicious jab that sent Devine back against an iron pillar.

Only for an instant, however. As Luis came forward, "Big Bill" caught him straight on the chin. It was a terrific blow. It sent Morano spinning against his own chair, and then, over that, through the filmy railing, and down among the dancers, 15 feet below.

"Let me be—that's all I'm askin' you," came voices, bawling the chorus.

And then a babel of voices. Screams, cries, shouts for help. The band was still playing when a "bouncer" lifted the boss' shoulders. He was bleeding at the mouth, and stone dead.

Stalks Harbor Borer Survivors

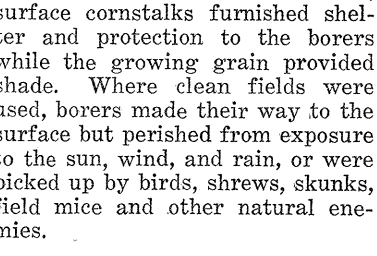

A few corn stalks in a field sown with small grain or other crops may lead to infestation of neighboring plantings by the corn borer.

The custom of discing the field before plowing may lead to a fifty-fold increase in the borer. Plowing the field before sowing decreases danger from the borer but is rendered less effective where refuse or a few corn stalks remain on the surface.

Studies at Michigan State College, East Lansing, by C. B. Dibble, extension specialist in insect control, reveal the importance of clean fields in exterminating the corn borer. Borer buried 18 inches beneath the ground have found their way to the surface and found protection in stray corn stalks and refuse.

"Pieces of refuse harbor and protect the corn borer larvae," Mr. Dibble says. "These borers later develop into moths to fly around and lay eggs in new cornfields. If two borers survive to become moths, they are sufficient to populate a cornfield with 100 borers."

In the experiments, cages were placed on cleanly plowed ground and on fields disced and planted to small grain. No moths were found in the first cage. In the second, surface cornstalks furnished shelter and protection to the borers while the growing grain provided shade. Where clean fields were used, borers made their way to the surface but perished from exposure to the sun, wind, and rain, or were picked up by birds, shrews, skunks, field mice and other natural enemies.

If two borers survive, the borer moths are sufficient to produce 100 new corn borers.

Lesson for April 26

JESUS LOOKS AT WEALTH AND POVERTY

LESSON TEXT—Luke 16:19-31.

GOLDEN TEXT—The rich and poor meet together; the Lord is the maker of them all.—Proverbs 22:2.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus' Story of a Beggar Man.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Which Was the Rich Man?

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Money Cannot Buy.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—How Can We Make Our Social Order Christian?

The topic as given by the lesson committee is hardly a fair statement. The supreme message is the presentation of contrasted lives and destinies as expressed through the accidents of wealth and poverty. Lazarus was not entitled to heaven because he was poor, neither did the rich man reach the place of torment because he was rich. In this lesson two worlds are unveiled before us, disclosing extremes of character and conditions of persons. In this world we see a rich man reveling in luxury and a poor man in sore affliction begging at the rich man's gate. In the other world we see the same men in reversed positions. These lives were intended to be representative. It is not a picture of two men in the remote past, but of men who live before us every day.

I. The Contrasted Lives (vv. 19-21).

1. The rich man (v. 19). He seems to have lived in a mansion secluded from the common people. He was clothed in costly raiment. He was served the richest food that could be provided. His sin was selfishly to indulge his appetites without consideration for others.

2. The beggar (vv. 20, 21). He was laid at the rich man's gate with the hope of getting at least the crumbs from his table. The rich man gave him no consideration. The dogs of the street were more kind to him than the rich man. Though destitute and helpless, the man's name is most suggestive. "Lazarus" means "God is a help."

Indicating that a godly life shone through his poverty. Worldly condition is not a sure test of a man's position in the sight of God. All rich men are not wicked and selfish, neither are all poor men godly.

II. Their Contrasted Deaths and Burials (v. 22).

1. The beggar. He was found dead and his body was hurried off to a pauper's grave. No notice was taken of his death by the world. Doubtless the only loss to the world was that he was no longer to be seen at the rich man's gate.

2. The rich man. He also died. His gold could not bribe the messenger of death. Doubtless a costly funeral was held, attended by those who "moved in his social class, the officiating priest pronouncing great eulogies over him."

III. Their Contrasted Destinies (v. 23).

1. The beggar. He was at once carried by the angels into Abraham's bosom. The souls of believers are especially cared for at the hour of death (Phil. 1:23). They go immediately to be with the Lord.

2. The rich man. Though he had an elaborate burial, he lifted up his eyes in hell, being in torment. When the veil of futurity is lifted, we see the positions of these men are reversed. The poor man is in the company of just men made perfect because of his life of godliness on earth, and the rich man is stripped of his purple and fine linen and cast into hell with all wicked men, because while on earth he lived only for selfish ends.

IV. The Reality and Fixedness of Life Beyond the Grave (vv. 24-31).

1. The cry for mercy (v. 24). Dives, which is the Latin name for "rich man," was now willing to claim relationship to Abraham. He was keenly conscious and the appetites which controlled him while on earth were still with him. Part of the torment of hell will be the cravings of appetite and lust with no means of their gratification.

2. Abraham's reply (v. 25). This reply cast the matter back upon the man's memory. He said, "Son, remember." The lashings of a guilty conscience will be most real in hell. Then will the lost remember the cause which led to their awful destiny.

3. Their fixedness. Human destinies are fixed during this life. When one passes out of this life he enters into a state and condition unchangeable.

4. God's Word is the all-sufficient light (vv. 27-31). Dives now requested that Lazarus go on an errand of mercy to his brethren. He regarded the testimony of a spirit of more value than the Word of God. Many today are more willing to trust the rappings of a ghost than the sure Word of God. Abraham declared that God's Word is sufficient, that those who rejected Moses and the prophets would not repent though visited by one who had risen from the dead.

Named "Old Glory"
Captain Driver of Salem in 1831 commanded the brig Charles Doggett, which sailed on its famous voyage which resulted in the rescue of the mutineers of the British ship Bounty. A letter acknowledging this service contains Driver's autograph dated November 16, 1880, and bears the words "My ship, my country, and my flag, Old Glory." It may be fairly assumed, therefore, that the phrase "Old Glory" originated with Captain Driver. The flag which was so designated by him was presented to him by a friend before starting on this voyage. It is still preserved in the Essex Institute, Salem, Mass.

"Aaron's Beard"
The name "Aaron's beard" is applied to several plants, including rose of Sharon, St. John's-wort, the smoke tree, and Chinese saxifrage.

THROUGH A Woman's Eyes

By JEAN NEWTON

WAIT—AND SEE

"IF THERE is one word in the dictionary that is invaluable in all the daily affairs of life," writes one of our readers, "it is the word 'wait.' And we might add 'and see!'"

And she proceeds to tell me of the most recent experience of her impulsive sister, in which she lost sleep, strength and a considerable amount of money by "going off the handle," by jumping at the most unfavorable conclusion in an important matter, and immediately acting on it. Not only, says our reader, was the experience a great practical loss, but her sister "lost face" to such an extent that it is doubtful if she can recover her standing in the community. That is all that I am permitted to publish about the matter. But it will serve the purpose our reader desires of making a point of what she calls "the absolutely tragic habit" of not being able to wait and see.

And we are grateful for the suggestion. The importance of being able to wait and see cannot be overestimated.

We have all seen women embarrassed by anger at the act of a friend which subsequently turned out to be entirely innocent. We have seen them wear themselves out in resentment, lose strength and nervous energy, on a hasty conclusion which soon proved to have been entirely unfounded. We have seen them waste time and money and lose "face" through hasty action at such times.

It is amazing how many things that upset us will adjust themselves beautifully if given a little time. Misunderstanding is cleared up, motives clarified, and the necessity to "do something" resolved into thin air, by just stopping to "wait and see."

ROLY POLY GOLF BALL

THIS is a dinner table trick that will startle all who witness it. The feat is performed with an ordinary golf ball, which the magician places on the table.

Making mysterious passes, he causes the ball to roll along the tablecloth, traveling in a most uncanny fashion. Anyone may lift the ball and examine it.

The motive power is furnished by a strong thread that runs beneath the tablecloth. On the end of the thread is a small metal ring, which the tablecloth hides. It is upon this hidden ring that the wizard places the golf ball.

While his right hand makes its mystic passes, the magician uses his left to draw the thread, which makes the ball roll in a most natural fashion. The trick is made most effective by having a confederate pull the thread from the opposite side of the table. In this case the ball will roll away from the magician.

An Appeal for Hundreds of "Homeless" Cass City Brides

Compare the number of marriage licenses issued to Cass City district couples in the last five years to the number of new homes built here during the same period, and you'll agree with the statement that hundreds of Cass City brides are "homeless."

Living in rented houses, they haven't yet been given the thrill of enjoying a home of their very own, complete with modern conveniences.

Then add to these, the list of all the brides of the past years whose dwellings have grown antiquated with the years, and the total of "homeless" Cass City district brides becomes an imposing one.

Husbands who investigate will find that they have the best opportunity in years to give their brides attractive new homes this spring. With the aid of their local banks, they can pay for them on terms as easy as rent. Construction costs, too, are considerably below the average of recent years.

And the stable values of Cass City district property guarantees an investment that will not shrink during the coming years, but will continue to add accrued dividends that can always be converted into cash.

We'll gladly assist with information about the latest 1936 models in homes for these Cass City district brides of all ages, and we'll furnish sketches, plans, and other contruction information that may be needed.

ALASKA PROJECT IS ATTRACTING MANY

Applications Being Received
Daily From the States.

Basin, Wyo.—Colonists on the widely publicized Matanuska project in Alaska now are for the most part well satisfied with their lot, despite rumors to the contrary. Don Irwin, agricultural director, wrote A. W. Koons of Basin, a friend.

Despite wide publicity given some complaints, there are many now in the United States who are eager to take their places. Irwin, former resident of Basin and at one time a member of the Wyoming legislature, revealed that he was receiving dozens of letters in every mail from persons asking to be allowed to take the places of colonists leaving the project.

"Despite the stories being circulated, to one here on the ground it would appear that things have gone very well," Irwin wrote. "True, we could have made better progress had the actual construction work been started earlier in the season, as it might well have been. Since it has started, however, it is going forward with a rush."

At the time of writing, Irwin said, 600 men from transient camps in the United States, 200 carpenters and laborers from the towns along the Alaska railroad and 175 colonists were hurrying to complete the houses and get people and live stock under cover before winter set in.

"To date we have either completed or have under construction 107 houses, with 63 yet to build," Irwin said. "I think it safe to say that 25 per cent of the remaining homes will be under construction in the next two days."

"The colonists are working hard, are considerate and expect to stay and make this their home. They are well clothed, well fed, are being supplied with nice homes, furniture, good stoves, sewing machines, power washers and good radios. It isn't pioneering as we think of it."

"To date 25 families have left the colony. Five more are making application to return. Sickness will develop and it may be necessary for some who would like to make Alaska their home to return to the states."

Demand for Horses Is on Increase in Canada

Ottawa, Ont.—The horse is staging a comeback in Canada.

The Canadian department of agriculture reports that demands for horses from United States breeders and for use on farms in western Canada has increased the value of the heavy type of horses by 30 per cent in the last two years, giving a great impetus to horse breeding.

In 1931, when the end of prohibition was in sight, exports of horses from Canada to the United States leaped from 672 in 1930 to 6,020, and in 1932 to 6,713.

The trade dropped in 1933 and 1934, but is again being revived by demands for Canadian draft horses from United States breeders. A recent shipment from Lambton county in Ontario brought a price of $250 per head in the United States.

The principal demand, however, is a domestic one. In 1921 there were 3,610,495 horses on Canadian farms. Last year there were only 2,933,480. The drop is explained by the fact that with the advent of tractors and other automotive machinery farmers abandoned horse-breeding.

Now, with farm prices low, farmers are abandoning tractors and again turning to horses. They find it more economical to feed oats to horses than to sell the oats to buy gasoline.

United States Drinks
Way to Wine Leadership

Bordeaux.—The United States was this French region's best bottled wine customer during July, statistics just issued by the tax authorities show. Thus the United States has regained its old position.

With 24,000 liters or nearly 26,000 bottles, the United States led even Belgium and Great Britain in the import of Bordeaux wine in bottles.

Besides 10,000 liters of fine bottled wine, Great Britain imported 145,300 liters of Bordeaux in barrels. This has been done since the days of the Black Prince when this part of France belonged to England.

Cass City High School.

Music—

"And the air shall be filled with music" was the quotation inscribed upon a huge music staff which extended across the upper part of the stage in the high school auditorium at Elktion Friday. The prophecy contained in those few words by Longfellow was fulfilled as five orchestras and eight bands from twelve towns in the Thumb district joined in the fourth annual band and orchestra festival in the Elktion high school on Friday, April 17. Orchestras from Akron, Unionville, Fairgrove, Crosswell, Sebawaing, and Harbor Beach presented two selections each during the afternoon. The auditorium was crowded Friday evening with spectators when bands from Sebawaing, Mayville, Pigeon, Crosswell, Bad Axe, Caro, Harbor Beach, Kingston-Unionville-Fairgrove, and Elktion demonstrated their ability.

W. W. Norton of Flint, who has been guest conductor at Elktion music festivals in previous years, filled that honored position again this year. After each musical organization had presented its numbers, Mr. Norton offered constructive criticism. At the conclusion of the orchestra concert in the afternoon Mr. Norton directed an all-district orchestra made up of outstanding players from the individual groups in playing "Spanish Dance" by Moskowski, "Waltz" by Brahms and "Huldigungs March" by Grieg were the two numbers played by the all-district band in the evening under the baton of the guest conductor. At the request of the audience this group played a final selection at sight.

A group of members of the Cass City high school band observed the other bands during the evening concert. A number of other Cass City people also attended.

Music festivals are proving popular this spring, as they have done in years past. The girls' glee club have been rehearsing lately in preparation for the choral music festival to be held in Bad Axe on May 15. They will sing "Lift Thine Eyes" by Mendelssohn and "Giannina Mia" from "The Firefly." The first number will be sung a capella, and Mrs. Ethel McCoy will accompany the girls in their second selection. In addition to numbers by the individual clubs, a massed chorus will sing three numbers. Harold J. Powers of the music department of Central State Teachers' College, Mt. Pleasant, will be guest conductor.

Grape Operetta—

The grade school operetta, "Punch and Judy," written by A. Brant Schafer, is scheduled for Tuesday, May 19. It will take place on the front lawn of the high school. A very nominal fee will be charged, the money going towards the music book fund.

The general plot of the story is the finding of an old Punch and Judy stage in an attic, by a group of neighborhood children, while having a cleaning-see on a rainy day. We are also introduced to the sort of inhabitants that live in attics, such as mice, moths, bats, photograph albums, and ghosts.

In the second act the children put on a Punch and Judy show, the puppets being portrayed by real children.

The members of the Punch and Judy cast are:

Punch, Jim McCoy; Judy, Nancy Morris; Pretty Polly, Marion Dickenson; Man in Night Cap, Floyd Coulter; Courtier, Ed Doerr; Policeman, Carl Bolla; Devil, Fred Auten; Crocodile, Kenneth Clemens; Jack Ketch, Delbert Strickland. Their ballyhoo man, or manager is Jerry Kercher.

Other clever character parts are: Jack-in-the-Box, Bobby Ryland; Bridget, an Irish maid, played by Barbara Bardwell; Toni, Bridget's Eytalian husband, played by Raymond Gruber; Patricia and Paddy, their children, played by Beverly Woosley and Jack Coulter, the latter turning out to be a live monkey. Miss Math and Mr. Bat are played by Mary Lee Tyo and Dean Robinson. Count Mouse is played by Warren Bayless. The silhouettes who have stepped from an album, are Elaine Kirtan, Betty Jo Agar, Frances Koepfgen, Zelfha Kehoe, Helene Creguer, Dorothy Dickenson and Marian O'Connor.

Other parts are played by Jean Bigelow, Richard Root, Betty McCallum, Alice Schwaderer, Ruth White, Bob Keating, Elaine Brown, Kenneth and Kathryn Price, Albert McPhail, Billy Benkelman and Billie Osborne.

The kindergarten, first and second grade boys make up the mouse chorus, and the girls are raindrops. The third grade are the old clothes chorus, the fourth grade are ghosts, the fifth grade are silhouettes, and the sixth grade are neighbor children.

Many catchy songs and lines, combined with all these characters, make up a clever and entertaining operetta.

The production is directed by Miss Steensma, the music supervisor, with the able and generous assistance of all the grade teachers.

Home Economics—

The second year home economics class has been divided into groups of six girls each. Each group will plan and serve a three-course dinner. The other groups will help with the preparing of the food and then observe as the one group eats, carefully watching the table manners, type of conversation, and other details. Each group contains a mother, father, son, daughter, woman guest, and man guest. The dinners will be served this and next week with several days for discussion.

Child Care—

Only one more lesson remains of the ten-week course of child care instruction. The following week an examination of the work covered will be given. The notebooks made by the girls illustrating the lessons should prove helpful to anyone taking care of a small child. If you ask a student taking the course, she will gladly show it to you.

Briefs—

School closes on June 12 this year; Commencement dates are June 7 and 8. The exercises will occupy two evenings instead of the usual three. Baccalaureate will be on Sunday and a combined class night and the giving of diplomas will take place on Monday. A speaker will be omitted.

Junior play pictures arrived from the photographer Friday.

As the saying goes, "When a man bites a dog—that's news," so it is news when a group of students, instead of the teacher, requests the removal of someone's gum. That has happened several times in speech class and the victim usually graciously responded. Maybe it was more for personal revenge than an effort to make the class better that instigated the requests.

DEFORD

The Ill—

George A. Martin was quite ill for a few days with an affliction of the throat. He is considerably improved at this writing.

Mrs. John Clark was taken on Monday to a Cass City hospital for diagnosis and treatment. She returned to her home on Wednesday.

Wedding Anniversary—

Mr. and Mrs. Lawson M. Stenger observed their crystal wedding anniversary on Thursday evening. The house was gay with a large number of invited guests. After a fine program was enjoyed, Mrs. Stenger served a dainty lunch and coffee.

They were the recipients of many gifts, congratulations, and good wishes for future years.

Removal of Society Hall—

Society Hall was built about 40 years ago by the Knights of the Maccabees lodge which at that time had a large membership. Later an interest in the building was secured by the L. O. T. M. lodge, and the A. O. O. G. lodge.

In recent years the membership of each of these organizations has diminished to such a small number, that all meetings have been discontinued. Max Kruzel recently purchased the building and has nearly completed the razing and removing of the same, which will be used for outbuildings.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Douglas entertained the Farmers' club at their home at Cass City on Friday. A goodly number were present and enjoyed a nice program. A very instructive part of the hour's program was contributed by County Agent Mr. Benton, and Mr. Rood, a soil specialist from Lansing college. Mr. and Mrs. John Elley will entertain at the May meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Kelley have moved to the home owned by William Gage.

Miss Lenora Stewart, who is attending normal school this year, has secured a contract to teach the Crawford school.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Brown of Caro were dinner guests Wednesday of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Sole.

Charles Dodge of Imlay City was a caller in Deford on Tuesday. Arleon Retherford has been appointed as substitute carrier for Norman Ruggles on Rural Route No. 1.

Mrs. Frank Crittenden of Kelo, Washington, came on Sunday to visit her mother, Mrs. Frances McCracken, whom she has not seen for a period of twelve years, and her brothers, William and Joe, for 28 years. She expects to remain for an indefinite time. She came as a surprise to her people and was brought from Detroit by Zeno Crittenden who returned to Detroit on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Koeltzow had as guests on Sunday their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Koeltzow, of Montrose, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Youngs of Millington, and Alvey Palmar of Saginaw.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Colwell of Saginaw spent Sunday at the Geo. Spencer home.
