LARGEST CLASS IN HISTORY OF SCHOOL

66 Seniors Were Presented Diplomas at Cass City Tuesday Evening.

This week the graduates of the Cass City high school, comprising 66 talented young men and women—the largest graduating class in the history of the school—have occupied the center of interest in the community. The exercises upon the event have been most attractive and those who labored so zealously for the success of the occasion have the satisfaction of knowing that their efforts resulted so favorably.

The school auditorium was crowded Tuesday evening at the commencement exercises and late arrivals were unable to find seats. As Miss Marguerite Steensma played a march, the members of the Class of 1936 were ushered to seats on the stage by Don Hunter, president of the junior class.

Frank Morris, president of the senior class, was master of ceremonies and his introductions of program numbers were cleverly done in an informal way. He stated that 13 of the 66 members of the class had started school together in Cass City 13 years ago.

Patricia Pinney as salutatorian welcomed the parents and patrons of the school, Jean Wallace showed fine ability as a reader in a Scotch dialect selection, while the prophecy of Helene McComb and the giftatory by Helen Doerr supplied an abundance of humor to the program. Two members of the class, Hester Kitchin and Dorothy Holcomb, tied for class honors, and as valedictorians, expressed appreciation for the sacrifice of parents, teachers and friends of the class. Norris Stafford read the class will as the last number of the evening's program by the seniors and in it conveyed many of the idiosyncrasies of the graduates to the under classmen.

Musical numbers throughout the evening's program were contributed by the members of the class. A girls' glee club composed of seniors sang "Alone" by Josef Rohrer and "Dancing Song." A boys' quartet sang "Soft Shadows Falling" and "All through the Night." Eva Mae Sovey chose "Roses of Picardy" as a vocal solo, and Frank Morris, Cressy Steele and Esther Turner appeared in an instrumental trio.

Supt. J. Ivan Niergarth announced that Dorothy Holcomb and Hester Kitchin were awarded the highest honors for perfect scholastic records in high school, and that 10 other members of the class were honor students. They are: Helen E. Doerr, Millicent J. Graham, Helene E. McComb, Martin A. Moore, Frank L. Morris, Elizabeth Pinney, Patricia Pinney, Norman L. Silvernail, Cressy L. Steele and Esther S. Turner.

Principal Willis Campbell presented the graduates with diplomas and the audience of approximately 1,200 people was dismissed by the benediction pronounced by Rev. Paul J. Allured.

Baccalaureate Service.
A large audience gathered at the union church service held at the school auditorium Sunday evening when Rev. Charles Bayless, pastor of the M. E. church, gave the baccalaureate address to the Class of 1936.

Speaking on the theme, "Out into Life," Mr. Bayless first referred to the patriarch Abraham who "went out, not knowing whither; who through faith dwelt in a land which had been promised him, living in tents with Isaac and Jacob

CROP DATA GIVES TRENDS IN MICHIGAN

Point to Specialization in Alfalfa, Poultry and Dairy Production.

The trend in Michigan agriculture points to specialization in alfalfa, poultry and dairy fields of production, according to E. B. Hill, head of the farm management department, Michigan State College, East Lansing.

After making a comprehensive survey of Michigan crop statistics over the last 50 years, Mr. Hill has come to the conclusion that certain fundamental changes have taken place in the half century which give Michigan agriculture an entirely different aspect.

Most significant have been the shifts in grains, livestock and hays, he says. Michigan's acreage and position in the nation in production of wheat has fallen while the other grains have risen slightly. Livestock raised for meat purposes and ordinary tame hay have also become of decreasing importance, while alfalfa, of negligible importance 15 years ago, is increasing in acreage by leaps and bounds every year.

The maximum wheat acreage was 1,750,000 acres in the 1880's and 1890's when Michigan led the states in wheat production, according to Mr. Hill's study. Wheat acreage now is constant at half that figure. Oats and barley have been fairly constant while rye is one-fifth of its 1900 acreage.

The passing of the red cow on the majority of farms in southern Michigan is symbolic of changes in livestock, he says. Sheep, hogs, beef and dual purpose cattle have decreased in number while dairy cows and poultry have increased greatly.

Although 42 per cent of Michigan's tillable soil is in hay, 44 per cent of this is now in alfalfa. Tame hay, such as timothy and clover, reached a high with 3,000,000 acres in 1924 and has since declined by over half a million acres. Close to one million acres of alfalfa were raised last year with further increases expected.

No real changes have been noticed in the cultivated crops such as potatoes, beans, sugar beets, and corn. These, Mr. Hill says, have remained fairly constant or fluctuated somewhat with market conditions.

Largest Class This Year at M. S. C.

The 78th annual commencement exercises at Michigan State College at East Lansing will include the granting of 34 higher degrees in addition to the graduation from regular four year courses of more than 500 Michigan young men and women and 36 from outside Michigan in ceremonies Monday, June 15.

Included in the list of candidates for the higher degrees is Marshall B. Burt, of Cass City. He is completing requirements for the degree of master of science granted for work in major bacteriology, minor horticulture and economics. Body of Aged Man Found in Well

Several hours after Marshall A. Snover, 84, was reported missing Friday morning, June 5, his body was found in an open well on his farm, one-half mile north of Novesta Corners.

Mr. Snover left the house early that morning and when he did not return his nephew, Henry Leesman, with whom he made his home, became alarmed and began a search for him, finding his body in the well.

Dr. Savage of Caro, acting coroner of Tuscola county, was called and decided no inquest was necessary.

In this same well, Mr. Snover and his wife and daughter found refuge from the flames in the fire of 1881 which swept the community in which the family lived.

Marshall A. Snover was born April 19, 1852, in Michigan and has lived on a farm near Novesta Corners for about a half century. He left the farm six years ago to reside in Bay City, returning to the farm this spring.

Funeral services were held at three o'clock Sunday afternoon in the home. Rev. L. A. Kennedy, pastor of the Cass City Baptist church, officiated and burial was in Novesta cemetery.

About nineteen members of the Cass City Extension Group visited the Dow gardens at Midland on Wednesday.

Let's Take a Shopping Trip through the Chronicle Columns This Week and Save

As you walk about the streets of Cass City you cannot help but compare it with other towns of like size scattered throughout the state, and you discover that it is one of the best towns to be found anywhere. The stores would do credit to a much larger town; they are well stocked; the merchants are considerate of local people in extending credit when money is scarce; they work on a small margin of profit; they are interested in the welfare of every citizen, for it only through the success of all that any of them can be hopeful of being successful themselves; their lives are wrapped up in the community.

Wouldn't it be great if you bought from me and I bought from you, in everything we handle? A dollar kept in circulation in any community goes into the pockets of many people and each one makes something from it. Think it over and draw a mind's eye picture of it travelling about.

Thinking along these lines, one cannot help but think of the many money savings opportunities that are offered each week in the Chronicle. Let's take a shopping tour through it.

If you like Hershey's Chocolate Syrup on your serving of ice cream, there's an opportunity to get a can without cost. The Parrott Ice Cream Co. tell you how in a week-end special offer.

Are the curtains beginning to look worn and shabby? A June sale at the Pinney Dry Goods Co. offers opportunity for savings on yard goods and towels as well as curtains.

If you wish to save your clothes and money read about the special offer on a Thor washer by the Cass City Oil and Gas Co. Six gentle hands wash your clothes faster, gentler and better.

No better time to paint the house or garage than in the month of June. Temporarily reduced prices at Bigelow's Hardware on quality paints permit improvements at a saving.

Did your roof leak in the last hard shower? Well, there's no better time than the present to replace it with one that won't leak or burn or wear out, according to The Farm Produce Co.

Perhaps last year's bathing suit is worn, too small or out of style. Special prices are quoted on these garments together with attractive offers on other summer goods by G. & C. Folkert.

As in former years, the graduates in grey caps and gowns, in single file, marched up the center aisle of the church and took their places in the front seats reserved for them. Lights of New York

By L. L. STEVENSON

Harbor Thrill: A blanket-like fog hanging over the bay . . . A big Staten Island ferry boat, loaded with hundreds on their way from their homes to a busy day in the city, sliding through the thick mists toward its Manhattan slip . . . Directly in its path, a little government cutter . . . Hundreds see what seems to be a great tragedy—a collision between a pigmy and a giant . . . Screams arise . . . Mariners also see the peril. Sirens send forth their blasts . . . Whistles scream . . . But in the ferry plot house stands a keen-eyed, steel-nerved man of the sea . . . At exactly the right moment, the steering wheel turns . . . The ferry shifts its course—and glides into the slip, leaving the little cutter bobbing in its wake unharmed . . . A few seconds later the passengers are streaming ashore with their minds filled with their tasks . . . and the ferry and the cutter forgotten.

Give a Man a Horse: Encountered William S. Hart in Times Square. The years have dealt kindly with the two-gun hero of the old days of the silent screen. He looks much like he did when, in the close-ups, he gazed at his audiences with a poker face. He's past sixty now and hasn't acted for years. Near Los Angeles, he has a 200-acre ranch with seven cowboys and 200 horses. Among them is the famous Pinto, now 29 years old. But with all his horses, Bill Hart doesn't ride much these days and when he does he chooses his horse with care. A serious operation two years ago is the cause. And I still thrill when I mentally vision him galloping over the lonely prairie-e-e-e.

Note of a New Yorker: Please omit further references to the old home town and bucolic scenes. To tell you the truth, I'm city-sick. It's a recurring ailment with most malignant symptoms at this time of the year. Pounding the pavements, hemmed in by Skyscrapers, jostled by chiselers, I long for the great open spaces with such a yearning that I ache. I want to escape but can't. The reason is that I would not be worth anything outside the big town. That's the curse of it. The city gets on your nerves and makes you want to flee after it has so softened you that you can't!—O. L.

Just a bit different: "Back home again. It was lovely in New York. But now my town looks so small and shabby. Queer that I never noticed before how low the buildings are in the business section and that our mayor goes around with his clothes unpressed. How quiet everything is now, and how uninteresting. My friends seem rude, too. Whenever I start to tell them about New York they change the subject to some business women's meeting or a recital by someone from a town a few miles away. Or they tell me that they wouldn't live in New York for anything in the world—that here in this city of 8,000, they get anything New York can give. Maybe they are right but I'd give ten years of my life—and I come from a short-lived family—just to be a resident of your inspiring city."—Claribel K.

City life: Two first floor women tenement dwellers, leaning out of the windows . . . Their stomachs protected by cushions . . . Gossiping with one another . . . The husband of one of their friends had come home lit the night before . . . Tossed all the furniture down three flights of stairs . . . Sent his wife bumping down after it . . . The wife was unhurt . . . The cops toted the furniture back up again . . . and it wasn't damaged much . . . But after the cops had gone, the drunk fell over a chair . . . and gashed his head so badly he was taken to Bellevue . . . That was a shame, one gossip told the other . . . If he hadn't gone to the hospital, he would have had to go to work with a hang-over!

Movie eavesdropping: "Why do you want to stay for the rest of this picture? All he does is bring us pasteurized milk in the morning. Now a picture about Madam Curie would be something. She discovered radio and radio killed her."

Nice work if you can get it: Debutantes, eager to earn a bit of money, register with an agency which supplies well known names for endorsement purposes. Each is investigated thoroughly and those in whose families there have been scandals are not listed, the theory being that testimonials from those thus smirched wouldn't do a product any good. The girls receive $40 to $50 for a plain endorsement and from $50 to $5,000 for a testimonial with a photo—the rate depending on the standing of the family. © Bell Syndicate.—WNU Service.

SAFEGUARD VESSELS BY NEW SEA RULES

Changes Are Imposed by New Regulations.

Washington.—Loud speakers for officers on the bridge to broadcast warnings to various parts of a ship are required under new rules now being distributed by the bureau of navigation and steamboat inspection of the United States Department of Commerce. The loud speaker system supplements the alarm bell system in the current program for safety at sea resulting from the ocean disasters of recent years. From the bridge the captain or officer in charge can broadcast warnings separately to all lifeboat stations, the embarkation deck, the main crew quarters and places where passengers are likely to gather. This device is expected to forestall catastrophes, particularly those involving fire at sea, in which passengers are trapped through failure or inadequacy of the alarm system.

The revisions embodied in the fifty-third supplement of the general rules and regulations include several other drastic measures, and for vessels of certain types require extensive changes. For new construction they apply now, while for vessels already in commission the changes must be made by various dates between next July 1 and 1938.

Alarm Provisions.
The alarm provisions of the new rules, which were revised recently by a nation-wide conference of inspectors, are the most significant. Once there was a free and easy attitude in this matter. In the regulations of 1915, for instance, vessels of more than 100 tons gross carrying passengers were required to have an alarm bell "unless there was a watchman always on duty" or the inspectors decided that such a bell might cause confusion and panic.

Since then there has not been such sensitive concern for the passengers' nerves. The 1935 rule provided that there should be alarm bells in the sleeping accommodations. Now it is ordered that the bells shall be at least seven inches in diameter, and besides of such size "as to provide an alarm throughout the spaces for which they are intended."

The loud-speaker system, when the vessel is under way, must be supplied with power and be ready for immediate use. It must have a call or attention signal, a shrill and distinctive note of about 1,500-cycle frequency. There must be an automatic emergency power supply. Directions are given for protection to the loud-speaker equipment in fire or collision.

Rules Are Strict.
Earlier safety regulations stressed portable fire extinguishers. These devices in recent years have been supplemented by fire detection and sprinkler systems. The amended rules of 1936 are extremely strict as applied to flammable vessels now in commission. By these are meant especially craft which have wooden hulls or upper portions where sleeping quarters for passengers are provided. This broad regulation applies to ocean, coastwise, river and lake vessels.

The rule provides that vessels with neither fire detection nor sprinkling systems be fitted with automatic sprinkler systems in the sleeping quarters of passengers and other places deemed necessary. In exceptional conditions additional watchmen may be substituted for this requirement, provided that enough watchmen are provided to reach every part of the vessel every ten minutes. The watch system must be under close supervision and its records kept for examination by the bureau.

Flexible Theater Planned for All-Year College Use

Bennington, Vt.—A theater, unusual in design and planned to serve the needs of the town as well as the college community, is to be built here on the campus of Bennington college.

The facade of the theater will serve as the background for an outdoor stage with a stadium seating more than 500 persons. Within, the auditorium has been designed to be flexible in size, with a seating capacity ranging from 350 to 570. This is to be achieved by building walls, so that they can be removed, increasing the floor area. The stage will also be flexible.

Asks Body Be Left Untouched Ten Days

Pasadena.—The peculiar will of a man who ordered that his body should be left untouched for ten days after his death was revealed in court procedure here.

"I am fearful that I might be buried alive," explained the codicil of the will of Auguste J. Paris, who died recently. In order that he might administer the will, Pierre Paris, a son, asked the court to invalidate the codicil.

State laws governing the disposal of dead bodies, he explained, prevented him from carrying out his father's wishes.

Invites Entries into Colt Contest

Announcement of a statewide colt development contest similar to the one in 1935 that attracted entries of approximately 500 colts in Michigan is being made by the four sponsors, the Michigan Horse Breeders' association, the Michigan Livestock Improvement association, the State Department of Agriculture and the Michigan State College extension service.

Any farmer in the state may enter one or more colts in the contest previous to the initial weighing which will take place between July 1 and July 20. Enrollment can be made through the county agricultural agent or by application to the animal husbandry extension division, Michigan State College, according to H. F. Moxley, extension specialist in animal husbandry at the college.

To the colt development projects, credit is given at county and state fairs and the International Livestock Exposition at Chicago for Michigan's heavy winnings in horse classes recently. Eight years ago at the state fair there were but eight exhibitors in the horse classes, according to Moxley. In 1935 there were 46 exhibitors with purebreds at the fair in addition to others entering classes for grades and practically every exhibitor had been participating in the colt development work or in 4-H colt club projects.

Information required includes a certified report of the date of birth, sex and color markings of the foal, breed name and number if registered and color of dam, and the name, registry number, license number, color, name of owner of sire and weight of each animal nominated.

Retain Vitamins in Canning Foods

To retain vitamins in commercial or home canning, vegetables and fruit must be canned as soon after picking as possible.

"This is the advice of Flora M. Hanning, research fellow in nutrition at Michigan State College, East Lansing. Miss Hanning is making a thorough study of the effects of cooking and canning processes on vitamins.

raw vegetables and fruits, varies with soil and methods of canning," she says. "The fresher the vegetables the more vitamin C is there. So whether in the home or in the canning factory, the shorter the time from field or garden to the finished can, the more vitamin C is conserved."

The amount of air included in the jar or can also affects the vitamin content, she says. Experiments at the college have shown, however, that apples which have been allowed to stand in salt water a short time before canning have more vitamin C than apples canned immediately after picking. The salt water permits some of the oxygen to escape.

"It is very important that the food is tightly packed in the jar or can so that all the bubbles of air are forced out, and as little air as possible left under the lid. Heating with those bubbles of air destroys some of the vitamin C," she says.

Miss Hanning also stresses the fact that cooking vegetables and fruit too long in canning and then throwing the liquid away needlessly wastes much of the vitamin content.

Wise Gardener Uses Calendar

Schedules for planting in small and large gardens can be extended as far through the summer as late in August, suggests H. L. Seaton, instructor in vegetable gardening at Michigan State College. Not only will a succession of crops keep the table supplied, but canning and winter storage supplies will be part of the harvest.

After the first plantings of string beans and sweet corn have a start, successive patches can be put in every two weeks until July 15. For late cabbage, cauliflower and Brussel sprouts, set the plants from June 15 to July 1.

"The right quantity of vegetables to plant depends upon the size of the family, preferences for certain vegetables and a guess as to what the soil and weather will produce as a reward for the garden work," says Seaton.

"Usually about 100 cabbage plants for a good storage variety is sufficient. For beets and turnips for winter storage, about 150 feet broadcast about August 1 to 15 after early crops are harvested is enough. A good storing variety of carrots should be sown in 300 feet in rows before June 15. Late spinach, radishes and lettuce can be put in August 10 to 20 to catch cooler weather."

At the time the cabbage plants go in late this month, two or three dozen cauliflower plants and one to two dozen plants of the Brussel sprouts can be transplanted, while Chinese cabbage can be sown directly in the garden plot.

ELECTRIC TOASTERS

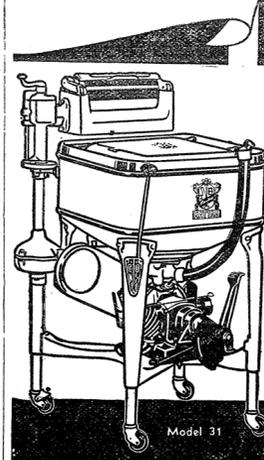

When you toast bread, you rebake it. That is why toasted bread is so much more nutritious, wholesome and beneficial. It is also the reason why people eat more toasted bread than they do regularly baked breads.

Electric toasters perform the work of toasting with no effort whatsoever. Slip the bread into the already made slot. If the toaster happens to be one of the latest automatic type, you set the temperature regulator to what brownness you desire and push down the contacts. When the toast is ready it will appear at the top of the toaster. In the event you do not eat the toast as fast as it is toasted, you may leave it in the toaster where it may be kept warm until you are ready.

Eat more toast. Toast with electric toaster. There is no waste from over baking, consequently the electric toaster is the most economical way to toast bread. Investigate and be convinced.

LARGEST CLASS IN HISTORY OF SCHOOL

Concluded from first page. ... because he was looking forward to the city that has foundations whose Architect and Builder is God.

"Those old pioneers knew the lure of the frontier," said Mr. Bayless, "and so we know a similar lure today, for the frontier has gone only in a geographical sense. There are frontiers of scientific discovery, of new knowledge, of social engineering, of international conciliation, of spiritual achievement which beckon and challenge.

"The thrill of living," he said, "is the continuous discovery of more that life may mean. And the most wholesome work is to cooperate with other people to help something better become real."

In this connection he referred to Colonel Lindbergh's reply to his associates who offered him a contract for a million dollars upon his successful first trans-Atlantic flight: "You must remember, the flying colonel cabled, 'this expedition was not organized to make money but to advance aviation.'"

Speaking further of aviation, reference was made to the exploits of Amelia Earhart who, according to Arthur Brisbane, "drinks nothing with alcohol in it." "Achievement was stimulant enough," said the preacher.

The text for the sermon was as follows: "... Let us... run with patient endurance the race that is set before us, fixing our gaze upon Jesus, our Leader and Example in faith." (from Hebrews 12:1, 2).

Continuing, reference was next made to the importance of the spirit with which each one plays his part in the race, in the game of life. It was pointed out that the destructive feature of Rugby football was injected into an older type of play by "a fine disregard of the rules." One William Webb Ellis (at old Rugby school, England in 1823) was the first one ever to take the ball in his arms, and with a fine disregard of the rules, to run with it, "thus originating the destructive feature of the Rugby game." This same spirit, running full against precedent, doing the unheard of thing, must often be displayed, said Mr. Bayless.

The address was concluded with a list of suggestions as to why in human experience it has been and still is necessary for successful living, in the best sense of the word, to fix our gaze upon Jesus. "He is still up-to-date and ahead of us; He is 'the true living Way', as he said of Himself. ... 'The power of an endless life' which was in Him, and which reappears in all Christ-like personalities, bestows a peace and an inner confidence which the world cannot take away. ... In Christ we have no fixed rules of living in any particular situation, but the way to find more life in new situations all along; no final creed, but the way to find more and more the meaning of God as we grow; no proof of God, but the way to find what divine power may do in us and in the life of our world."

The peroration of the address was a quotation from the epilogue of Robert Russell Wicks' 'Reason for Living.' "If I might register a wish that I sincerely hope will come true in the careers of most of you (Class of 1936)," said Mr. Bayless, "I would borrow the words of a spiritual leader, and say: 'To be an interpreter—to be one among a thousand, to whom it is given to think out some thought which others have not understood; to live out some truth which others have not known; to hold out some light which others have not perceived; and so to make the meaning of life clearer and the way of life brighter for some of the nine-hundred-odd others—this is the highest of all callings."

Sunday evening, as Miss Marguerite Steensma played a march, the members of the class were ushered to seats in the auditorium by Don Hunter, junior class president. The school glee club sang "Lovely Appear" from "The Redemption" and "Lift Thine Eyes" from "Elijah"; the invocation was given by Rev. Paul J. Allured, Scripture was read by Rev. L. A. Kennedy, prayer was offered by Rev. G. A. Spittler, and the benediction was pronounced by Rev. Libbie Supernois.

The Luxury of Crime

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

THE taxbill's here (it comes each year along about this time), A bill for what? Well, quite a lot will go to pay for crime.

No goods we take, no laws we break, no evil path pursue, We tote no guns—we're just the ones who pay for those who do.

We need no ball, police or jail, no courthouse on the square Where men are tried, but those outside must pay for people there.

In cells they sit and do their bit and think it quite a chore, And put away three meals a day that we are paying for.

We're just the great (in ev'ry state) majority of men Who day and night live fairly right, without police or pen.

We need no laws or courts, because we never climb a wall— We could go on from dawn to dawn without a law at all.

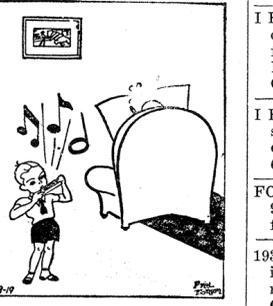

In mills we toil, or plow the soil, a living try to win, Give little time to thoughts of crime—and then the bill comes in. I sometimes think that those who wink at crime have failed to see.

To folks like us who labor thus, it's just a luxury. © Douglas Malloch.—WNU Service.

Mayan Structures Significant
 Many Mayan structures have been found to have astronomical significance. They were used for maintaining their calendar by which ceremonials and agricultural activities were timed. Their astronomer-priests had evolved out of centuries of such practices a system of numerical notation which included the concept of zero and the positional value of numbers a thousand years before they were evolved in Europe.

knowledge regarding our organization may stand you in good stead some day.

Ho-hum! It has been some shopping trip, and if all of us took advantage of the things we have seen and could save on, we would have spent a lot of money, yet saved in the long run, if we bought only of our needs. On the other hand, the merchants we purchased from would have made a small profit, which would have helped him pay his taxes, and put a few cents away to help buy his potatoes, wood and coal next winter.
 Now how about a little recreation? It's after supper, the dishes have been put away, so let's go to the show. The Cass Theater has an attractive program each week.

The Household

By LYDIA LE BARON WALKER

WITHOUT being in the least selfish, there are some ways in which a person should consider himself or herself first. This would seem on the face of it to be practically impossible, but on further consideration, the truth of the statement becomes apparent. Time to do the work of your particular job, is one of these items of unselfish consideration of yourself first. Those who have definite hours of work or business hours that are specific, do not have this consideration come into their problems. It is settled by the firm or person who engages them.

Often to insure no deviations from the prescribed hours, time clocks have to be punched. But even when no such mechanical timekeeper enters into the case, the fact that keeping strictly to opening and closing times, and luncheon periods, is essential to a task makes those engaged in it realize that failure to conform to regulations may cost them their jobs.
 Keep Faith With Time.
 It is when you are master of your own time, as is the case with homemakers, artists, many professional persons, and those in various forms of business, that keeping faith with time frequently has to bear the brunt of seeming selfishness. Everyone who has been over-persuaded to let a task of importance remain undone in order to fill in a table of bridge, or to do some other interesting thing to gratify and satisfy an importuning friend, knows it would have not been selfish to refuse, however it might have appeared.
 It is fortunate for a homemaker, that so much of her work is flexible, that she does not have to be as adamant in apportioning her time as do those who are in the business world that is business for themselves whether at home, at a studio, or in rooms taken in the hopes of seclusion from interruption.

Elkton Elevator Destroyed by Fire

Early Wednesday morning, fire destroyed the elevator of J. R. Quinn at Elkton, with loss estimated between $10,000 and $15,000. The entire building and its contents were destroyed, including $7,000 worth of beans stored in the elevator. Loss is covered by insurance. Origin of the blaze, which was fought by the Bad Axe and Elkton fire departments, was undetermined. The fire was discovered by Michael Burzyck.
 Mr. Quinn says that the edifice will be rebuilt.

Sally Saves KITCHEN CLUB

And Now; The Men!

Dear Club Members:

IT'S interesting, how many men think they can cook these days. Some of my men friends are vainer about their scalloped eggs and cheese souffles than about their golf scores. But that's only another indication that the male half of the human race is really beginning to appreciate us poor women. All these generations we've been concocting appetite-teasing dishes, and about all we got for it was a grunt of satisfaction; occasionally an exclamation of "That's great; gimme some more!"

Now that men are really beginning to do some cooking, maybe they'll find out it's an art, after all. There will be more careful tasting of fine dishes; more appreciation for a good sauce, a well-turned roast, a vegetable salad with just the right combination of taste-pleasure and eye-pleasure.

Do you know there is actually an organization of men who like to cook? There is, though. It's the American Association of Gourmets, and it had a meeting recently out in Del Monte, California. One of the items on the program was to select a prize-winning recipe.

The winner was Samuel G. Blythe, the writer. And Mr. Blythe fixes sweetbreads. I thought the Club members would like to try them the prize-winning way, so here's Mr. Blythe's recipe:

Sautéed Sweetbreads
Soak sweetbreads in salted water for half an hour, then place them in a saucepan and just cover with water to which has been added a tablespoon of vinegar. Let them simmer for twenty minutes. Dip immediately in cold water. Season with salt and pepper. Dip in egg white and roll in finely ground black walnuts. Sauté slowly in covered pan. Serve at once when well sautéed.

I tried it last night and believe me, it is good!

COTTAGE CHEESE VERSATILE DISH

Care Should Be Used in Way It Is Prepared.

By EDITH M. BARBER

COTTAGE cheese, also known as pot cheese, is perhaps the oldest type of cheese known to man. It is probably one of the first "made" foods and was discovered before man lived in a house and before he knew cooking utensils. While cottage cheese may be made of sweet or sour milk, what we get today is usually made from sweet milk. The curd is solidified by means of rennin, and then the whey is drained from it. Cream is often added to the cheese before it is sold. While cottage cheese is used particularly as an accessory to the main course of the meal or to the dessert, it has a number of uses in combination with various other foods.

Care must be given in using cottage cheese in any cooked dish that the temperature be kept low or the time of cooking short. In the recipe for soufflé, for instance, the temperature is high, but the time of cooking is comparatively short. With the scrambled eggs both time and temperature are low. Cottage cheese combines well with fruit, fresh, stewed or canned. It is particularly good with berries. You will like it as a filling for pancakes, either plain or Russian, which after rolling around the cheese are served with strawberry or raspberry jam.

Pleat, Tailor and Tuck Smart Silks

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

EVERY day in every way women who recognize the importance of selecting materials for the fashioning of their costumes that can be "put to the test and not found wanting," are turning to handsome dependable silks that are really and truly pure silk for the solution of their fabric problems.

The fact that a lavish amount of pleating, tucking, shirring and meticulous tailoring is involved in the styling of this season's smartest apparel is proving an added incentive to insist on silk of the better sort that may be relied upon to yield successfully to these varied and sometimes intricate manipulations.

Three outstandingly important fashion trends are presented in the illustration, each of which demonstrates the chic and charm of silk weaves in the current mode. For the perfectly stunning jacket suit the designer handles black and white printed silk crepe as tailor-perfect as if it were wool. The braid-bound edges of the jacket interpret a highly significant styling detail. As to the white organdy frill, it is a "last word" in accessories.

The other standing figure reveals Miss 1936 wearing a navy blue silk sheer with a pleated tunic, for you must know that the pleated tunic is a top-notch fashion for spring and summer. Men's wear buttons go marching down the front of the tunic pictured. Short puffed sleeves follow the latest dictate of the mode. Note that these are designed to give shoulder emphasis as all the newest fashions would have it. A tiny boutonniere and a yellow chambray belt stress the new vogue.

As to this matter of tunics, from all indications they are about to stampede the fashion picture. If in doubt, choose a tunic frock is timely advice, for it is to be tunics by day and tunics by night according to reports from style centers. Some tunics are straight and narrow while other tunics flare about the knees like a bell or a lampshade. Many evening frocks adopt pleated skirts with tunic tops.

Another big fashion feature is the blouse that is all-over pleated like the one shown in the picture. This blouse is of bright green pleated silk chiffon. It is worn with a black silk taffeta suit. Note the pleated frill about the throat. This is a favorite new neckline silhouette. And again please to observe that the sleeves are short and puffed in the latest manner. The smartest flower turbans are topeheavy in front. The one topping milady's prettily coiffed head is made of purple silk violets. Purple, green and black is the color scheme of this costume which goes to show how striking the new color alliances are this season.

The new and fashionable bolero costumes bring blouses into the very foreground of the fashion scene. With black bolero two-piece dresses or suits the outstanding color idea is to wear as bright a blouse as the new silk prints can afford, or if not a print, then let your blouse be of a high-color pleated silk sheer. Anyway, go the limit in matter of daring color for your blouse.

NEW COTTON LOOKS LIKE SILK OR WOOL

Cotton that looks like silk, cotton that looks like wool, cotton as sheer as the gauziest chiffons, cotton velvets, cotton tweeds and cotton laces—all these will march in the fabric parade.

Cord laces will be the tops in spring and summer swank, shown in tailored sports clothes for resort wear now and all-around use later.

Peasant weaves also are slated for high success in natural neutral tones, both in cotton and linen, with bright accessories.

Embroidery, which has been creeping back into the style picture, achieves rampant recognition in the new cotton fabrics. Embroidered surfaces are all over the place, both in soft, homespun type of cotton fabrics for sports wear, and in the organdies and mousselines for evening.

Built-Up Heels Are Tops in New Modes for Daytime

Caprice is the keynote of the new spring styles. While some Paris authorities portend a vogue for Spanish señoritas, Chinese deities and animated modern paintings, most American women are preparing to step forth in sober suits and saucy accessories.

Mannish felts and flower-trimmed trifles flaunt breath-taking colors in the new millinery modes. Tailored waistcoats and the frillest of feminine blouses have a slightly rakish look. There are 20 gay new glove shades and a dozen stocking tints, while scarfs are more frivolous than ever in color and design.

Book buttons lend a "highbrow" air to several new mid-season frocks. They are tiny, closed volumes of black enamel whose leaves are edged with gold.

PRINT COATS

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

A plain coat topped a print frock is not news but a print coat topped a plain frock is latest news from Fashion town. The model pictured typifies the new mode. In this instance the redingote is of black and white print linen over a black linen dress. The short sleeves proclaim a popular vogue for the summer. Bright silk print coats with monotone silk dresses, also jackets of gay floral silks that contrast plain skirts will be made a big feature during the coming months.

GROW BETTER CHICKS At Lowest Cost With Mermash

Nothing mysterious about it. Michigan soils and crops are very deficient in iodine.

MERMASH benefits chicks by adding Manamar to an outstanding poultry ration. Manamar is composed of kelp, an ocean plant, and fish meal, both rich in digestible iodine and other minerals essential for health and growth.

Chicks raised on Mermash simply walk away from those raised on other rations. They're healthier, grow faster, feather better. Chick losses are lower. Cost per chick is lower.

Yes, all costs are lower because Mermash is undoubtedly the lowest priced, good, chick starter-growing mash on the market.

Tall Tales

As told to: ELMO FRANK E. HAGAN and SCOTT WATSON

Right Good Butter

VERMONT is noted for its maple sirup but it ought to be noted also for its dairy products—that is, if Uncle Joe Stokes' cow had ever become well-known outside of the little town in the Green mountains where he lived.

One day when the door of Uncle Joe's ice house was open she strolled into it, and when the wind blew the door shut she was trapped. He didn't find her for three days.

Uncle Joe's family was getting tired of nothing but ice cream for dessert, when finally the cow seemed to thaw out a bit. But the next day she wandered over to a marble quarry.

But fine butter it was—cool and firm and hard. Then a hot spell came and Uncle Joe was afraid the butter might spoil. So he took it down to a shady nook and put it on a big stone.

"Well, sir," says Uncle Joe. "I found that that stone had melted and run away. But the butter was all right."

Operators of 66 Michigan livestock farms who kept records of their income and expenses in 1935 as cooperators with the farm management extension project at Michigan State College, find that their type of farming gave returns last year that put them at an advantage over more than a dozen other types of farming in the state.

Livestock Paid Best Last Year

Because of their larger volume of business, low feed costs and increased meat prices, according to C. O. May, extension specialist.

From 1934 to 1935 the change in livestock prices, particularly meat animals, was greater than in any year since 1910. In 1934 meat animal prices were only 68 per cent of 1910-1914, while in 1935 they averaged 118 per cent, or a 73 per cent increase over 1934.

In the opinion of Mr. May, it would be unwise to make drastic changes in order to participate in the advantages that livestock farmers enjoyed in 1935.

This is especially true since a downward trend in prices for livestock will most likely begin in a relatively short time, and this is particularly true for hogs.

The operators of the 66 farms represented in this report averaged earnings of $1,566 for their labor and management. This figure represents what the operator had left for his labor and management after paying all cash operating expenses, allowing for depreciation and other inventory losses, a charge for family labor other than the operator and a deduction of 5 per cent interest on the total investment.

revised the membership of the County Emergency Relief Commission, effective July first. The county commissions thereafter will be composed of the chairman of the County Board of Supervisors, or a supervisor selected by him to serve in his place, the chairman of the present County Emergency Relief commission, except where he is a county official, and a third member to be recommended by the County Board of Supervisors for appointment by the State Relief Commission. The State Relief Commission is hopeful that this revision of the membership of the County Relief Commission will secure greater public support, understanding and interest in the administration of relief.
