Told of Growth of the M. M. P. A.

Clarence Bollandier of Lapeer addressed members of the Rotary club here Tuesday noon and told of the growth of the Michigan Milk Producers' association to 18,000 members in 28 counties in the twenty years of its organization. Mr. Bollandier, who is with the educational branch of the association, told the club of the marketing features of the organization, how peak loads of milk during the late spring and early summer months are utilized in part in manufacturing dairy products. Consumption of whole milk in Detroit where the association markets its products varies little from month to month, he says. The lowest consumption of fluid milk in that city is in June when the milk flow is greatest on Michigan farms.

SEWER PROJECT 1 HERE IS APPROVED AT WASHINGTON

As Soon as Federal Funds
Arrive, Men Will Be Put to Work on the Job.

WPA FUNDS WILL PAY 80
PER CENT OF THE COST

J. A. Sandham, a member of the local committee in charge of the sewer system project here, was in Flint conferring with WPA officials Monday and was assured that the set-up for Project No. 1 has been approved at Washington, D. C. Eight forms have been received by the WPA officials at Flint to fill out that money may be secured from the Federal treasury for the project. Mr. Sandham was told that as soon as the money arrives from Washington, men would be put to work on the project here.

Mr. Sandham was informed that six times as many applications for projects have been received at the Flint office as there is a possibility of fulfillment, and he is of the opinion that Cass City is fortunate in having its project on the program this season.

Project No. 1 of the sewer system provides for the building of that portion of the system that extends from Main street to the outlet at Cass river, a mile in length. The cost of material and labor is estimated at $23,000, according to WPA estimates. Of this amount, the Federal government would pay 80% or $18,400, and the village 20% or $4,600.

Climbing Steadily Since

LIVING TO BE 100.

John D. Rockefeller recently passed his 97th birthday. He is hoping to live to be 100 years old. As men of Mr. Rockefeller's power usually attain the aims they set out for, there seems little doubt that he will.

Many more people could live to be 100, if they would make the necessary sacrifices. They all think they want to, but many of them can't give up their pet vices. They want to do this or that imprudent thing just this once, but when they do it every day, it constantly takes another day off their lives. The younger folks who have to step into their automobiles every time they travel a half mile, aren't doing anything to promote that 100th birthday celebration. Also those who worry over the things they can't help, will probably have ended all such fretting long before the first hundred years end.

ONE ROOM SCHOOLS.

Twenty years ago there were 195,500 one room schoolhouses in this country. A recent estimate shows there are 139,180 of them. Many such buildings have been closed, and their work is done by consolidated schools.

Many of the finest people got their start in little one room schools. The teacher of the Little Red Schoolhouse was often a very superior person, and every life she touched was inspired to finer things. In the one room school the teacher has too much to do. With all kinds of lessons to learn and teach, how can she find time to help the backward kid over the hard places, or to arouse the budding genius to do his best? However, one room schools will still be run for many years. Any child who wants to learn in them will have plenty of chance.

VOICE OF INSPIRATION.

Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, who died a few days ago, is said to have spoken to more people than any previous preacher in history. Some years ago, when he was delivering radio addresses every Sunday, millions of people considered this hour a positive engagement. Whatever else might tempt them, they had to be on hand when Dr. Cadman's vibrant voice entered their homes.

It was quite a treat to hear him answer the battery of interrogations fired at him during his question period. The keen wit with which he punctured follies, and the humorous agility with which he dodged difficult subjects, will long be remembered.

If a vote was taken as to who was the most powerful preacher the United States ever produced, the prize might go to Henry Ward Beecher. That eloquent voice was a powerful force all over the world. But Mr. Beecher's voice reached only as far as the rear door of his church, and those whom he touched through printed reports of his sermons.

Radio science has given wings to such a voice, and enabled it to fly around the world. Where Mr. Beecher thrilled his thousands, Dr. Cadman thrilled the millions. He preached an eloquent devotion to high ideals of conduct and to the personality of Jesus. He lifted up his voice for tolerance. He cared not how others were seeking the way to heaven, and it did not worry him if they traveled a different road. All he asked to know was that they were trying to climb to the heights.

Who shall tell what the influence of his life will be? His words echoing around the world on the wings of the ether, must have penetrated into and influenced many hearts. They must have swayed many lives toward noble aspirations.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT.

President Roosevelt told the people the other day, that they ought to pay more attention to their local governments. Some of our readers don't agree too well with Mr. Roosevelt's ideas, but we can all join him on that.

Schools, police, fire protection, and many other things are mostly controlled by local governments. If local taxes are heavy, the community is handicapped, and if these taxes are light, the community has a chance to go ahead. The folks who take no interest in the way their local governments are run should live in some country like Russia or Germany, where orders are hall handed down to them from above. They don't seem fitted to the responsibilities and opportunities of American life.

Ten Principal Causes of Death

Ten principal causes of death, the control of which would materially increase man's expectation for a longer, happier life, are listed by the Michigan Department of Health as causing 68 per cent of all deaths in Michigan in 1935.

Heart disease again heads the list, causing 9,578 deaths last year which was a three per cent increase over the 9,275 deaths of the previous year. Cancer is second with 5,187 deaths, a slight increase also. Apoplexy is the third principal cause of death with a total of 3,907; pneumonia fourth with 3,085 deaths; and nephritis fifth with 2,974. These five diseases occupy the same relative position year after year, taking a tremendous toll of human lives despite the best efforts of science to devise protective measures.

Coronary diseases and angina pectoris replace accidents, exclusive of automobile, as the sixth major cause of death with 2,352 deaths reported in 1935. There were 2,161 deaths from accidents in the home, in occupations and other places where automobiles did not figure. Tuberculosis dropped a notch last year to eighth place when 2,045 deaths were recorded in comparison with 2,199 the previous year.

Automobile accidents claimed 1,665 lives as the ninth major cause of death while diabetes remained in tenth place with a toll of 1,230 lives. Automobile accidents combined with other accidents to take the lives of 3,826 persons. Public health authorities hold that these accidental deaths is most cases are preventable.

The total death rate for 1935 was 10.05 per 1,000 population, a continuation of the increase over the depression low marked in 1933 by the lowest rate in history, 9.62 deaths per 1,000 population. There were 51,051 deaths recorded in 1935 from all causes.

MILK PRODUCTION TAKES A TOBOGGAN

price changes should be upward. Butter prices have been climbing steadily since the middle of May and at present are the highest for this season of the year since 1930.

The latest cold storage report of the U. S. Department of Agriculture is for July 1 on which date total storage stocks of butter were reported at 74,683,000 pounds, compared with 96,392,000 pounds last year on the same date, and a 1931-35 average of 89,272,000 pounds. The July 1 storage under last year was 21,709,000 pounds, whereas on June 1 the 1936 shortage was only 12,000,000 pounds. The increasing shortage as the season has advanced, along with the drop in butter production which has occurred the past two months explains in part why wholesale butter prices are so high at present. Butter production in May was two per cent under May, 1935, according to government estimates, and current trade reports indicate substantial decreases below last year since June 1. American cheese in storage on July 1 amounted to 70,245,000 pounds. Last year on the same date, the five-year average is 65,771,000 pounds. The cheese surplus over corresponding dates of last year has become less as this season has advanced regardless of an estimated 19 per cent increase in production during the calendar year to June 1. Information is not available as to stocks of condensed and evaporated milk on July 1, but June 1 stocks were not only well below last year, but also the average of the past five years. At the beginning of June, total stocks of butter, cheese, condensed milk and evaporated, all expressed in terms of milk, were 12 per cent less than a year previous.

C. W. McPhail Once Head of 13 Banks

"Several men are heads of more than one Michigan bank but Curtis William McPhail holds the distinction of having been president of the largest number, an accumulation of more than a half century of business," says the Michigan Investor, in its June number. "While this is a distinction in his own right, two sons have contributed to the family prestige. Herman Max McPhail is a former president of the Washington State Bankers' association, and Larry McPhail is general manager of the Cincinnati Reds baseball team in the National league. C. W. Mc-Phail, as he was listed by the state and private banks of which he had been president, is now 79 years old and still active, although he has relinquished his interest in most of them. He was at one time the head of 13 banks."

Mr. McPhail started his banking career in Cass City in 1882 when he established the Cass City Bank.

Farmers to See Tests in Pastures

Pasture experiments revealing new methods of getting maximum field roughage throughout spring, summer and fall for beef cattle, dairy cattle and sheep will be among the plot and field tests available to farmers attending the annual Farmers' Day program on the campus at Michigan State College Friday, July 31.

Although the program primarily celebrates Michigan's leadership over all states in the growing of alfalfa, with over a million acres in the state this year, farmers interested in almost any phase of the state's agriculture will find new practices valuable to them. Beans, pears, cereal grains, sugar beets, grasses, legumes, weeds, sudan grass, chicory, corn, soybeans and cowpeas are all included.

Haymaking methods, livestock and livestock practices and machinery useful in producing and harvesting crops will all be on exhibition in the morning. The program starts with a hay cocking contest open to any farmer in the state.

In the sheep pasture experiments of the farm crops department at the college, an acre in small plots is doing the work with a few sheep. It is showing results that would result even if 240 acres were used, as would be necessary if the sheep were not on a scientific rotation basis in cropping the plots.

The beef cattle are in alfalfa and brome grass mixtures that more than supply enough feed. Although the ideal pasture should feed a cow and calf per acre, animals pastured at this rate are not able to eat all the feed in the test pastures. Several Tuscola county farmers who have never visited Michigan State College are planning for the trip Farmers' Day with E. L. Benton, county agricultural agent. Others are invited to join.

Potato Sprays Pay Back Profit

While Michigan potato growers continue to seek better cash markets both in and out of the state for quality potatoes, extension workers at Michigan State College continue to emphasize the proof that a persistent summer spraying schedule is one of the most important cogs in obtaining quality.

For after field preparation, seed selection, planting and fertilizing, there needs to be protection against field diseases and pests. Specifically, there are early and late blight diseases and insects including leafhoppers, aphids, flea beetles, Colorado potato beetles and other insects.

Copper lime dust and bordeaux mixture are the standard applications commonly used in Michigan, according to H. C. Moore and E. J. Wheeler, farm crops extension workers at Michigan State College and specialists in potato growing. They are authors of Special Bulletin 234, "Spraying and Dusting Potatoes in Michigan," available by writing to the Bulletin Department, Michigan State College, East Lansing.

Typical dusting outfit for protecting one of Michigan's major cash crops. Experiments show this to be effective but that liquid pressure spraying gives greater protection at less cost.

Field tests indicate that the liquid spray, using bordeaux, is superior to dusting with copper lime. Bordeaux sprayed plots out-yielded dusted plots by 13.7 bushels for Russet Rural and 20.86 bushels per acre for Irish Cobbles. Spraying with the bordeaux was cheaper than dusting by $3.70 per acre. Some saving in dusting with copper lime can be realized by home mixing, the two men find, as there was a saving of $1.41 per acre with home mixed dust as compared to factory mixed.

Drinking Water Aids Body Health

Drinking water can serve as a body thermostat in maintaining a constant temperature. Members of the home economics staff at Michigan State College describe the functions of water in the body to indicate the importance of drinking sufficient water during hot weather as well as at other seasons.

According to medical authorities, the suggestion of adding a pinch of salt to a glassful of water at intervals in extremely hot weather is valuable. This helps maintain proper health by replacing chlorides lost in perspiration.

"Water is an important part of the body. Most adults need from six to eight glasses a day," the home economics workers find.

"For those who cannot remember to drink water between meals, a good suggestion is for them to take a glassful during the day each time the clock strikes the hour. The drinking of two glasses of water upon arising is an excellent aid in promoting good elimination.

"Water in moderate amounts should be a part of every meal, but should not be used as a substitute for thorough mastication. As a pure liquid it is a part of all digestive fluids and aids in the absorption of food. Water carries food materials to the tissues and assists greatly in removing waste products."

In hearing the motion for a new trial in the case of Harry Rollins vs. Thomas VanTine, the court denied the motion. The case came to court on June 15 because of damages done to Rollins' car in an automobile collision.

The petition of Wilford Romain to have his driver's license restored at this time was denied.
Nicholas Rothe, Detroit attorney, was found guilty of a violation of the conservation laws Monday. He waived trial by jury and the verdict by Judge Louis C. A stay of 20 days was granted the respondent, who may appeal the case to the supreme court.
