GUADALUPE ISLAND VICTIM OF GREED

Guarded Now to Save Seal From Extinction.

Washington.—On lonely Guadalupe island, 140 miles off the coast of Lower California, Mexican soldiers guard the once plentiful elephant seal from extinction at the hands of hunters and collectors.

About 150 six-months-old baby seals have found refuge on this desert island, which has been a government reservation since 1922.

"Once lords of the precipitous, volcanic shores of Guadalupe were the fur seals, whose myriad herds wore smooth the rough rocks of their rookeries," says the National Geographic society.

"In an attempt to restore some economic value to the island, goat raising was begun many decades ago. The herds multiplied rapidly, an estimate of 1922 placing the goat population at around 50,000.

"Barren, boulder-strewn Guadalupe has a desert climate. After times of drouth, thousands of goat skeletons whiten on the narrow beaches and in the infernalike canyons.

"In 1875 a visiting naturalist called Guadalupe a botanical paradise; but members of a recent expedition had to shoot specimens of some plants from inaccessible cliff ledges beyond the reach of the nimble-footed goats.

"Either soldiers stationed on Guadalupe, or goat herders, brought cats which, after failure of the goat project, became part of the local wild life. The cats preyed on petrels, wrens, flickers, and other birds.

"The high, northern end of Guadalupe sometimes penetrates the clouds. It is here that the island's limited forests cling to the stony soil.

"About four times the size of Manhattan island, Guadalupe has no towns or permanent settlement. A few houses clustered about the principal harbor, on the northeast coast, are left-overs from goat-raising days.

"The high, northern end of Guadalupe sometimes penetrates the clouds. It is here that the island's limited forests cling to the stony soil.

USE COMMON SENSE IN CHOOSING LIFE PARTNER

A girl who did not care to do much jazzing and drinking and petting at twenty and who has put in half-a-dozen sober years of office work since, finds this sort of company stimulating—for just a few years.

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

A POPULAR situation in the novels I used to read when I was a little girl was that of the beautiful heroine who was torn between love and duty in selecting a mate.

Our mothers, who belonged to the generation that strictly supervised its daughter's reading, were not enthusiastic about the novels of The Duchess. The Duchess always used the present tense, which lent thrill to the young reader but was disapproved on the ground of bad style by my mother; also The Duchess used the word naked when decent Victorians preferred bare.

"Ballister kisses Molly's exquisite naked throat," The Duchess would say. "Her tumbling gold hair loosens itself and blinds him in a river of perfumed silk."

It was forty long crowded years ago when my mother would pick up a copy of "Molly Bawn" or some other favorite and scornfully, patiently read some such phrase to her shamed and giggling daughters, and yet the stories of "The Duchess" have somehow remained fresh in my mind all that time; there must have been some good in them.

And that the old situation is still a new situation where maids and their hearts are involved, a letter lying on my desk this morning proves. A canny Scotch-American girl named Jeanie is in the same fix Molly was in so many years ago; two men want her, and she doesn't know which one to take.

Thomas is the comparatively young president of a rubber company; he is a splendid, reliable, admirable young man; Jeanie's father is one of his employees. Larry is at present a clerk in a Bank, but his heart is far from clerking. He writes poetry, he plays in little amateur plays, he has great plans. Jeanie's people don't like him because he is somewhat intemperate, but Jeanie, who at twenty-seven is two years older than Larry, is confident she could soon cure that.

She writes me fully the advantages and disadvantages of each side. Thomas is forty, and Jeanie feels that may be a little old. On the other hand Larry is young for twenty-five, and has had other girls. Thomas has loved Jeanie since she was in Grammar school.

"I think I WOULD marry Thomas, and have it over, if it wasn't such a SENSIBLE thing to do!" confesses Jeanie. "But with my father anxious for me to do it, and my mother so delighted at the idea, and Thomas so—so darned PERFECT, I just feel like somehow jumping the traces! Tom's first wife was my dearest friend, and his little boy loves me, and THAT'S an inducement, but somehow I feel as if it would be more romantic—more thrilling, to do things against the grain, marry in spite of criticism, take a chance, go crazy for once in my life!"

This girl writes for my advice, and I'm going to give it to her, but perhaps she won't take it. Girls at her age are very apt to go a little "arty," and for a few years the easy hospitality of someone's studio—usually an unsuccessful someone, for successful artists and writers have no time for this sort of pleasant philandering—the gipsy meals and the good talk, the delightful feeling of being Bohemians, and not caring who pays for the red wine, or who is married or not married to who, is all very delightful. A girl who did not care to do much jazzing and drinking and petting at twenty, and who has put in half-a-dozen sober years of office work since, finds this sort of company stimulating—for just a few years.

Then she begins to see that under the smocks and the tousled heads, under the lazy talk of socialism and letters, men are men and women are women just the same. Free love and free divorce and the Bohemian attitude of never cleaning up thoroughly and not caring, are not satisfying very long. To dismiss the possibility of children as both amusing and disgusting is shocking to the woman whose heart and soul are awakening to the miracle and the glory of them; mere physical relationships are not really uplifted by being gilded with the phrases of decadent poets.

In a Bohemian group of which I was a young, awed and pantingly grateful member many years ago there was a nice simple girl of Irish extraction named Brenda. Brenda was extremely sweet and pretty and confiding, and was easily persuaded that marriage vows were a remnant of a convention-bound age. But the day came when she had to tell her lover that she was to go through the greatest experience that ever comes to any woman. He laughed, amused and disgusted, and what he said to her burned into Brenda's honest soul. "Servant girl talk, darling!" he said. "Am I to drive you in the dead of night to the nearest parson?" Presently Brenda appealed to a woman friend who took her to a doctor "absolutely safe."

Ten days later Brenda was safe indeed, lying straight and pure and forgiven on a slab at the morgue; the fever and headache and the racking anguish over. Her group didn't pay for her funeral, but they did toast her that night in good red wine, and some of them wept.

There was another beautiful girl in the group, sixteen. Her father was a painter so modern that the world hasn't even yet caught up with him. One of his contemporaries, a jaded, vicious, drinking man with a skin of copper and a whiskey breath, liked Alice, and Alice's dreamy artistic father was not above selling her to Duke, and putting a fat check in the bank as a result. Alice didn't stand it long; she contracted a hideous disease and took her own way out a few years later, and I lost forever whatever young illusions I had regarding these trumpety Bohemias that flourish in all cities and all groups, and destroy much that is fine and good and promising.

So my advice to Jeanie is to marry Thomas, and thank God that he is as fine as he is, and be a good wife to him and a good mother to little Brenda and to other children. She tells me he loves books and music, and that she does; there are two strong ties, and her mother's pleasure will add even more happiness to a happy life. Many a good woman of Jeanie's age would be proud to have one fine man love her, to have the prospect of a home and of his devotion; within a few years Larry's career will be all the justification she needs for turning her back now on what seems the slightly more romantic choice.

Writing poetry and being able to express himself wittily are good things in a man, but with them too often goes the tendency toward drink, and the generally careless attitude toward those obligations and manners and morals that generations of decent men and women have established.

But men and women, generations ago, discovered that nicely-cooked and served meals, clean bodies and clean clothing, beds freshly made, voices controlled, and the relationships between parents and children, husband and wife preserved with dignity and courage all meant civilization. If Jeanie is to take her place and play her part as a useful human being she really has no choice in this matter, especially as her saying that "she can't bear to hurt Tom because he has the most wonderful disposition in the world" indicates that she more than half loves Tom, and would at least feel safe with him. Whatever The Duchess would have advised forty years ago, my advice now is all for Tom, and he and his Jeanie have my best wishes.

66 Pens Enter Egg Laying Race

On the completion of the 14th annual egg laying contest at Michigan State college in which the 10 single comb white leghorns of the Royal Poultry farm at Zeeland, Mich., won out over 62 other pens entered from all sections of the United States and Canada, a new contest for 51 weeks began last week on the campus at East Lansing.

Entries for the new competition which began October 1 number 66 pens or 660 birds, announces C. G. Card, manager of the contest and head of the poultry department at Michigan State college. Results of the contest stimulate interest in better breeding and are an aid in keeping Michigan near the top in the nation's huge poultry industry.

In the contest just completed, the 10 Zeeland hens laid a total of 2,856 eggs in 51 weeks. They were accredited with a total of 2,733.85 points. Points are added for eggs above standard size, or deducted for eggs below standard size. Second place in light breeds and in the entire contest went to E. C. Foreman, Lowell, Mich. Third place went to W. S. Hannah and Sons, Grand Rapids, Mich.

Other Michigan pens winning awards included second high hen in the contest, 320 eggs and 331.20 points for an individual in the Royal poultry farm entry and third place to the Foreman poultry farm for a bird laying 310 eggs for 330.90 points.

Ages of Animals

It is not easy to discover the ages of wild animals, because no records can be kept, but we know the length of life of our pets. A dog, with care, will live to be fifteen years old, and a cat twelve, though there have been cats gray but hearty at twenty. A rabbit is old at five and a horse at twenty-five, while a parrot often lives to be sixty.

"Bouterimes"

The expression is French and means rhymed endings. A list of words that rhyme with one another is drawn up. Each competitor is given a copy, and must make a verse ending with the words, without changing their places on the list. Judges award a prize to the best.

THERE GOES THE DINNER BELL

Farmer Explodes 'Scarcity' Theory

Proves Growers Got More for Grains in Years of Big Crops.

PLAINFIELD, ILL.—Farmers get as much or more for their grain in years of large crops than in the small-crop years.

This simple refutation of the entire "scarcity" theory of the Roosevelt administration was found in records of the Department of Agriculture Year Book by Homer B. Grommon, "dirt" farmer with 450 acres near here, and president of the Farmers' National Grain Dealers' association.

Mr. Grommon's conclusions are based on comparisons of the 13 largest crop years of the last 26 with the 13 smallest. Here is what he found:

Average value of United States wheat crops in the years of plenty—1 billion 69 million dollars a year; in years of scarcity (planned or not)—677 million.

Average corn crop value in years of plenty—2 billion 115 million; in years of scarcity—1 billion 737 million. Average oat crop in years of plenty—5 billion 575 million; in years of scarcity—5 billion 574 million.

Average prices received during the "big" years were: wheat, $1.20 a bushel; corn, 75 cents, and oats, 43 cents. Averages in the "lean" crop years: wheat, $1.01; corn, 74 cents, and oats, 43 cents. Even when the World War years are excluded entirely, the average wheat price was $1.17 for big-crop years and 88 cents for little-crop years.

The following table shows the course of wheat prices over the last 26 years:

Thirteen Largest Crops.

Table with columns: Year, Production (million bu.), Farm Price (Per bu.). Rows include years 1915 through 1929.

Total ..... 11,558 Average ..... 889

Thirteen Smallest Crops.

Table with columns: Year, Production (million bu.), Farm Price (Per bu.). Rows include years 1921 through 1934.

Total ..... 8,082 Average ..... 668

*Price per bushel received by producers. Prices for years 1909 through 1918 are as of Dec. 1 of each year. Prices for years 1919 through 1934 are weighted average prices for crop marketing season.

Large crops mean jobs in both the city and country. Mr. Grommon pointed out. The difference between average big-crop years and average small-crop years, including wheat, corn and oats is 26 million tons of grain, which would make 13 million two-ton loads for trucks. Thus a demand would be created for truck manufacturers, gasoline distributors and all the other operations of transportation, processing and manufacture. People would have more money to buy the farmer's products.

When prices are raised by an artificial or "planned" scarcity, there is no corresponding rise in the ability of the people as a whole to pay those prices. Hence, the system must fall down in time.

How New Deal Imports Hit Farmers of Illinois

In 1935 the United States imported the staggering total of $1,106,000,000 in agricultural products from foreign farmers to replace American farm produce kept out of the local market by government order.

There are 231,912 farms in Illinois. If the farmers of Illinois had been allowed by the New Deal government to produce this material, it would have meant $4,781 additional income for every farm in the state for 1935.

In the 12 chief agricultural states of the nation there are 2,276,991 farms. This foreign flood cheated every one of these farms out of an additional income of $486 during 1935 for crops they could easily have produced if the scarcity program had not been in force.

The figures are from the U. S. department of Agriculture.

Tells How Women Lost Jobs Under New Deal

CHICAGO.—Appointment of four women to positions of importance in the Roosevelt administration was only a "smoke screen" to cover the discharge of hundreds of others under Section 213 of the National Economy act, said Judge Grace A. Miles of Independence, Kas., in a speech before a group of women here.

Judge Grace A. Miles

She cited one case which she said was typical of the way women civil service workers were replaced by political appointees.

"A married woman earning $1,200 a year, whose husband was also working for the government at a salary of $1,500 a year—supporting both parents—was discharged under the provisions of the law," she said. "Her position was filled, not by a single woman or the head of a family—but by the wife of a railroad official making $10,000 a year."

No Future in New Deal, Landon Warning to Youth

TOPEKA, KAS. — "The present administration apparently believes that there is no future for this country," Gov. Alf M. Landon told the Young Republicans' national conference here. "It has accepted the idea that we have reached our peak—that ahead of us is a large standing army of unemployed; that, in consequence, the government must play a greater and greater part in managing the details of our daily lives instead of confining itself to the expanding field of regulation in the public interest.

"The Republican party, on the other hand, utterly rejects this philosophy. It believes that America still is on the upgrade, that we can eliminate unemployment, that the government should tighten the rules governing business, but should not attempt to manage business; that, in a word, America will once again be a nation where youth can be confident of its future," Gov. Landon declared.

RURAL SCHOOLS

Sand Valley School. Teacher, Lucile Anthes. Reporter, Evelyn Nowland. We are studying our hygiene charts this month. We are also making notebooks with them. We are first studying about alcohol. Our visitor this week was Ralph Robinson. The fifth and seventh graders are studying Europe for geography this week. For reading, the fifth graders learned the poem, "Jack in the Pulpit." The fourth graders learned the poem, "The Boy's Song." Marie Shagena is learning, "My Shadow," for reading. The little folks colored teddy bears. We put them up on the bulletin board. The second and third graders are done with their stars in spelling and in reading. Marie Shagena won first prize in spelling and Henry Nowland, second prize. In reading, Elaine Shagena won first prize and Billy Robinson, second prize. We had a good time playing baseball this week, but our ball is torn and we cannot play until we get it sewed.

Winton School. Teacher, Miss Beatrice Martin. Reporters, Elizabeth Butler and Lorine Muntz. Miss Martin has finished reading "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch." We enjoyed the story very much. Our third grader is learning his multiplication tables for arithmetic. The fourth grader is learning how to measure with a yardstick. For language the sixth grader has been writing formal and informal notes and for arithmetic he is working division of fractions. Miss Martin has taught the first and second grades the song "Baby Bye"; now she is reading "Alice in Wonderland." There are two health posters on our walls. Our teacher has had to spray the flies several times this month. Wanda Karr keeps the school-room supplied with flowers every week. We have decided to have a short program the last Friday of each month. Two pupils get up the program with no help from the teacher. Joan Muntz and Wanda Karr are busy getting it up for October. We appreciate having our slide. Those neither tardy nor absent during the month of September are: Lloyd Vyse, Edith and Elizabeth Butler, Francis Clara, Lavina Evans, Wanda Karr, Lewis Profit, Velma and Lorine Muntz, Richard and Robert McDonald, and Leo Russell. No one has been tardy this month. Our per cent of attendance was 97.9. The first three grades had a spell down Friday with Velma Muntz the winner. Lorine Muntz and Elizabeth Butler were captains for a geography match on Friday. Lorine's side won. Score, 14-30. We are waiting patiently for our electric lights. We could use them some of these dark and gloomy days. Lewis Profit gave an excellent oral report on "Toby Tyler" for language last week.

Fox School. Jason Kitchin, teacher. Rose Shaw left us and moved to Detroit last week-end. We added five new names to our roll this week. They are Iva, Ida, Harry, Alta and Dewain Allen. "The More We Get Together the Happier Are We." Our enrollment is now forty-four. The nature story for this week was about "Cloudwings the Eagle." It was very interesting. We are still enjoying those songs. Kelley's favorite song seems to be "Oh, Dear, What Can the Matter Be?" A surprising statement found in the booklet on Safety which came from the State Department of Education is that in 1934 there were 35,500 deaths from motor accidents and 33,000 from accidents about the home. Verna Heronemus was absent two days recently because of infection in a finger. Even little cuts need proper care. A framed, enlarged picture of the school hangs on the front wall, a gift to the school from the photographer because we ordered so many pictures. Thank you, Mr. Picture Man. The Primer class prove to be willing workers when it comes to clearing the yard of waste paper, etc. Visitors this week were Juanita and Ralph Collar and Austin Philpot. The Moshier school visited us on Friday. A ball game called at 3:30 resulted in a 7 to 3 victory for the visitors. Our boys played good ball except for one inning. Then, we want to explain, we have but one eighth grader and two seventh graders. Two of the boys are only fourth graders. Give us a year or two to grow and then watch out. Iris Heronemus and Ruth Philpot, reporters for October.

Rescue School. Teacher, Catherine MacLachlan. Reporter, Euleta Hartsell. We have put up our October window decorations. Third and fourth grades are making geography notebooks. Those receiving "Perfect Attendance Certificates" for this month are: Edna Ellis, Elda, Roland and William Hartsell, Clarence Kilpatrick, Jr., Elinore Longuski, Jackie O'Rourke and Theodore Ashmore. Mrs. Crea, the county nurse, called at our school for a few minutes Monday. Miss Gertrude Putman and Miss Lula Ashmore were our visitors this week. Those having A's and B's on their report cards this month are: John Ashmore, Harold Cummins, Elda and William Hartsell, Elinore Longuski, Isabel and Marie Martin, Madelyn O'Rourke, Lawrence Summers.

Sharrard School. Teacher, Agnes E. MacLachlan. Reporters, Fred Cooley and Edward Wiechert. Marion King and Bernard Wiechert were absent three days this week. We have not received our science books yet. We have just finished reading

"The Courtship of Miles Standish" for literature. The fourth grade is studying subtraction for arithmetic. The sixth grade is studying decimals for arithmetic. The beginners, first and second grades are studying the poem, "The Mind," for language. The third grade is studying carrying arithmetic. We have our Halloween decorations up for this month. We colored pictures for window decorations for art Friday afternoon. Those having one hundred in spelling for the week were: Harold King, Lloyd Wolfe, John Cooley, Albertus Kipfer, Edward King, Edna King, Robert Kipfer, Bernard Wiechert, Genevieve Miljure, Aileen Kirby, Josephine Zaleski, Eva Kipfer, Marie Rolph, Fred Cooley, and Edward Wiechert.

Cedar Run School. Teacher, Marion Leishman. Reporter, Leatrice Schmeck. We have been busy organizing 4-H clubs this week. Our newly elected officers are: Clothing Club—President, Lucile Hendrick; vice president, Pauline Southworth; secretary, Frances Chaffee; treasurer, Leatrice Schmeck. Handicraft Club — President, Clayton Turner; vice president, Clinton Beardsley; secretary, Ferris Ruslo; treasurer, Richard Ostrander. People neither absent nor tardy for September were: Peter Aleksink, Laura Beardsley, Frances and Dale Chaffee, Edna Feagan, John and Luella Hartley, Lucile, Leone and Thomas Hendrick, Richard Ostrander, Leatrice and Jimmy Schmeck, Pauline and Edwin Southworth, Billy Ritter, Robert Rutland, Florabelle Wright, Jack Zellar. We are planning a school fair for Thursday evening, October 29. The money is to be used for purchasing tools, wood, and a sewing machine for our 4-H clubs. Watch our news for further details. For drawing, Oct. 2, we made free hand drawings of scenery. The little folks have been making pictures of Indians.

They call him "Grandpa" if they are big enough, but they listen to his advice on eating if they are in the Michigan State college cross country squad. Lauren P. Brown, the coach, is really not so old, but he seems to have acquired some information about fit foods, for his squads have been winning consistently at East Lansing and in the east over courses from three and one-half to five miles in length. Coach Brown sums up his advice to eating from soup to nuts. Home economics experts and specialists may deride some of his pointers. Yet his squad went to Van Cortlandt Park in New York 11 months ago and won the Intercollegiate A. A. A. Cross Country championship. The first man across the tape was an M. S. C. runner, covering five miles in 26 minutes and 36 seconds. Five of the college's runners were in the first eleven to finish. In fact, State has won this title three years in a row. What are these food hints? He approves milk drinking and almost all vegetables. Coffee should be used only by those men who have been raised on it and who stir up a fuss about not getting it. And only one cup. The same holds for tea. Fried foods are all right if served occasionally. Salads should be served with only small amounts of dressing, and pickles and condiments, well there's no use in taking up stomach room with this stuff, says Brown. Fruits are approved with the exception of bananas. Water, as much as desired but not with ice. Peanuts are crossed off the list, but plenty of butter is approved, potatoes should be boiled or baked, and only one dessert per meal is the rule. Cocoa and chocolate milk are not approved for runners and soup just occasionally and preferably thick. Meats should be principally roasts, boiled meats or cutlets, avoiding those fried and eating pork only when well done.

Carolina K., one of the running horses, had circled the track twice in a "warming up" period before the crowd realized that the horse was running away and out of control of the rider, Clarence Alexander. It was then that Lee Dickinson threw himself on the horse used by the marshal, gave the horse the line and darted after the runaway which he caught before reaching first quarter pole. Young Alexander was none the worse for his wild ride and was ready to enter the race which was immediately called.

Dairy feed scales and production records are partners in efficient and money returning milk and butterfat production. The high cows in the state last year was Roena of the Ridge 215,664, Guernsey owned by Fred C. Gleason, Sodus, Mich. The animal produced 14,509 pounds of milk or 839 pounds of fat.

7,040 Cows Get O. K. on Records

Records of more than 7,000 dairy cows in Michigan have just been approved officially by the dairy bureau of the United States Department of Agriculture, it is announced by A. C. Baltzer, extension dairyman at Michigan State college.

In 44 associations for dairy herd improvement in the state, Baltzer finds that only 127 cows made less than 155 pounds of fat in completing tests for the last current association records.

Although the 44 associations cost approximately $35,000 for a year of testing, they prove their worth in bringing out production records. Records enable herdsman to cull and permit them to feed according to milk and fat produced and to find the most efficient and low cost rations.

In Tuscola, Huron and Sanilac counties, the Dairy Herd Improvement Association is credited officially with the following records of herds producing an average of 300 pounds of fat or above per animal:

Huron County. Spencer Dunham, Tester.

Table with columns: Owner and Breed, Av. No., Cows, Fat. Lists names like Verne Ricker, Ralph H. Brown, Frank Bensinger, etc.

Tuscola County. Lee L. Rowe, Tester.

Table with columns: Owner and Breed, Av. No., Cows, Fat. Lists names like Milton Adams, Harold Blaylock, Lucian Hall, etc.

Sanilac County. Andrew Shaw, Tester.

Table with columns: Owner and Breed, Av. No., Cows, Fat. Lists names like John Davis, Oscar Stinson, Eldon Brown, etc.

In summing up the production records of the 7,040 animals completing the tests, Baltzer reports that 3,737 cows were above the state average of 336 pounds of fat for 1934-35. For the last four years the state average of cows on test has been 336, 335, 336 and 336 pounds of fat.

THE COST IS TOO HIGH.

Kathleen Norris

America's foremost woman author, a great novelist and writer of varied articles, Kathleen Norris now dips her pen into the subject of women and their relation to the modern scheme of things!

Men and women alike will be fascinated by the straightforward manner in which this great literary figure pursues an alluring topic. Common sense is her greatest weapon in a campaign to throw out the sham of Twentieth Century living and get down to bed rock... from whence will arise a stronger and better society.

Pertinent questions on human behavior are raised with utmost candor in this great series of articles by Kathleen Norris. You'll not want to miss one of them... because they drive home emphatically the practical viewpoint on problems that concern us all!

Don't Miss These Articles IN THIS PAPER

What a price to pay for carelessness, thoughtlessness and indifference!

Yet the future is brighter than cold figures seem to indicate. More and more states are passing effective drivers' license laws. More cities and towns are beginning to organize their police and court facilities to battle with accident causes. More citizen groups and private individuals are awake to the fact that traffic accidents vitally concern them and the lives of their families.

Traffic accidents can be controlled. Individual cities and towns are making enviable records in accident reduction. And every driver can help in bringing this annual toll of human waste and human misery down.

Successful Hay Fever Remedy Found by British

London.—After an extended trial lasting more than five years authorities in the physiotherapy department of St. George's hospital, London, are satisfied they have developed a treatment for hay fever. During the trial period the treatment has been successful in 99 per cent of the cases.

The treatment involves application by electricity of a coating of ionized zinc to the inside of the nostrils. Three or four applications are given, after which the majority of the patients are free from attacks of ordinary hay fever for a year. Precautionary applications are given at the end of the year and again a year later. Thereafter there is no recurrence of the trouble.

Many cases were recorded in which patients previously were unable to visit rural districts on account of severe attacks of hay fever. They are now able to do so without any ill effects after the treatment.
