Urging that all in these communities make as generous a purchase of Christmas seals as personal circumstances allow, the managers called attention to the fact that although tuberculosis is today the most needless of all diseases, 2,044 died from it in Michigan last year. Tuberculosis still kills more between the ages of fifteen and forty-five than any other disease.

"The Michigan Tuberculosis Association is striving to return the sale of Christmas seals everywhere in Michigan to pre-depression levels this year," the managers said 'We earnestly hope that here we shall be able to reach that goal."

Funds raised through the sale of Christmas seals will finance the

Large Audience Attended Closing Service of Mission

The final service of the National Preaching Mission in Cass City, five churches cooperating, surpassed all expectation Sunday evening when a large congregation which filled the Evangelical church to capacity listened to a masterful sermon preached by Rev. H. I. Voelker of Flint, one time pastor here. Mr. Voelker, taking for his text I Chronicles 26:18, "At the causeway," reemphasized the fundamentals of the Christian faith and urged his hearers to a deeper prayer life, consistent Christian living and unswerving loyalty to the Christian church.

Rev. Mr. Voelker at an earlier service addressed a youth group representative of the five churches on the subject, "This Is My Father's World." Mr. Voelker stressed Christian character and his address was followed by open forum on the characteristics of a Christian person and his relation to the world in which he lives. The discussion period was followed by a social

Ford Garage Has Added Improvements

When the Ford garage of G. A. Tindale was erected in 1917, trucks were built low in stature and an average height door would admit them, but late years has witnessed an increase in height. It is of the overhead variety which adds convenience as well as height to the admittance facilities.

A contract was let this week for the installation of a furnace and air conditioning unit for the workshop and storage room. And then to add attractiveness to the front of the building, a new neon sign has been erected.

The "Corset Crime"

To Catherine de' Medici has been attributed "the crime" of establishing the corset in its complete form. She abhorred her large waist and contrived a strait jacket to confine it. #### Circulation of Money

One of the most important things in connection with money is its velocity of circulation, or rate of turnover. As one authority states, a dollar passing from employer to workman, to shopkeeper, to wholesaler, to farmer and back into a shop, may pay $5 in debts in a day; or it may stay idle in somebody's pocket. In the course of a year it is obvious that the dollar, which represents a part of the national income for that year, may be involved in far more than fifteen transactions. Such statistics are arrived at from reports of retail stores, wholesale dealers, etc.

Beware of Hatred

Honest indignation which the cause of right demands, can thunder with power and strike with lightning effect. But there is such a thing as allowing this strong moral force to get mastery over the soul that should control it. The old Romans had many terse, pithy sayings that embodied the strong, good sense Wednesday night at the home of that led them to the heights of earthly pwer. One of them was: "Resist beginnings." You cannot curb the power of the river, so choke its source. You cannot arrest the fury of the conflagration, so put out the spark. It is almost impossible to check hatreds that have been allowed free course, so never let them begin.

> Pelicans Fish in Flocks One of the strangest things about pelicans is the way they fish. They always do this in large flocks. If on a bay, they form a wide half-circle and paddle toward shore, catching all the fish that happen to be inclosed within the circle. On narrow rivers and canals they divide into two bands. Each band forms a half-circle stretching across the river and the two flocks swim toward each other, scooping up fish with

Expression "Dark Horse" The expression "dark horse" originated in Tennessee many years ago. Sam Flynn, a horse trader, had a black horse entered in a race. His name was Dusky Pete. # 66THANKS A MILLION"? FOR MORE THAN A MILLION

America has bought 1,130,000 Chevrolets during the past twelve months, thereby giving Chevrolet the greatest year in its history and the greatest masure of buyer preference it has ever enjoyed.

The builders of Chevrolet are thankful for many things, but most of all for the warm friendship of the American people.

And so again at this Thanksgiving season we say, "Thank you, America," for you have given Chevrolet a measure of good-will without parallel in the annals of modern industry.

Consider, for a moment, all that you have done to inspire Chevrolet's appreciation during the past twelve

You have purchased 1,130,000 Chevrolets; you have made Chevrolet your favorite car for the seventh time in the past ten years; you have given Chevrolet strong preference in every section of the country; you have conferred this same high honor upon Chevrolet trucks by purchasing more than 205,000 commercial units; you have made 1936 the most successful year in all Chevrolet history.

And now, to climax these expressions of friendship, you are displaying even more marked preference for the new Chevrolet for 1937.

It is difficult to express adequate appreciation for gifts so great and so generous as these. All we can say is, "Thanks a million" for more than a million cars in 1936; and all we can do is offer you the still finer Chevrolet of 1937 in return for the finest friendship ever bestowed upon any motor car manufacturer.

SAFE STOPPING DISTANCES

Very few motorists have any accurate idea of the distance in which they can stop their cars at any given speed. Many believe they 'can stop on a dime."

Modern four wheel brakes in good condition, are it is true, quite wonderful. But the average driver does not consider that when an emergency suddenly develops, valuable time is always consumed in realizing the danger and applying the brakes. This interval is called "reaction time."

The most alert individual, scientific tests have shown, needs not less than half a second to get the brakes to working. Many drivers require from one to one and onehalf seconds. Since at even thirty miles per hour, a car travels 44 feet in one second, consider where our friend is who says he "can stop on a dime."

Better "play safe" and allow plenty of margin for the stop you may have to make in a hurry. At 20 miles per hour, calculate on 43 feet; at 30 miles, take 80 feet; at 40 miles, allow 128 feet; and at 50 miles, not less than 186 feet.

Remember, you are just an average driver. Lives may be at

Yellow Fever

A LTHOUGH history books do not say so, the United States came within an ace of losing the Spanish-American war. Our greatest enemies were not the Spaniards. Our doughboys had them licked before the first shot was fired. Our real enemies were the germs of that devastating tropical disease called yellow fever.

After two months of campaigning in Cuba, the official report said the army "was utterly used up and of no value whatever as a fighting machine." At least four-fifths of the troops were down and out with tropical diseases, principally yellow

At this dismal juncture, Walter Reed, a brilliant young American doctor, arrived in Havana. He quickly saw that none of the other doctors had the slightest idea what caused yellow fever. But when he suggested that such a little thing as the bite of a mosquito could bring it on, the know-it-alls laughed in his face.

Then Reed performed one of the most amazing experiments in the annals of medicine. Several heroic troopers volunteered themselves as human experiments. Some allowed themselves to be bitten by Stegomyia mosquitoes. Others slept on bed clothing infected by yellow fever victims.

All the troopers bitten by mosquitoes fell ill with fever within four days. None of the other did. So a brave doctor with the aid of a few brave soldiers was able to prove conclusively the cause of vellow fever and pave the way for sanitary experts to wipe it forever out of the tropics.

ROOUEFORT CHEESE MADE IN OLD MINE

Coal Shaft One of Many Odd Curing Rooms.

Washington.—A new use for an old coal mine shaft in Pennsylvania has been found. It makes an excellent curing room for domestic Roquefort cheese, says Dr. L. A. Rogers of the bureau of dairy industry of the United States Department of Agriculture. The shaft has been whitewashed and partitioned, and dampers have been installed. The air forced through the wet shaft by the mine fan maintains this room at 46 to 48 degrees F., with humidity near saturation.

There are other Roquefort projects in this country using unusual local facilities. In the damp sandstone bluffs of the Mississippi at St. Paul, caves have been cut and are used as curing rooms for Roquefort cheese made from cow's For a number of years a mountain farmer on the Pacific coast has been making a good Roquefort from goat's milk. He ripens the cheese in a room literally built in a large spring of very cold water. The water not only flows under and around the room, but onto the roof. so that it pours over the wall and turns a fan to circulate the air in-

The department has been interested for a long time in the production of domestic Roquefort cheese from cow's milk. It has established the fact that the special flavor, appearance, and texture of this cheese depends in a large measure on the control of the growth of molds and bacteria, and not on climatic conditions or peculiar herbage in the pastures or even on the use of sheep's milk or goat's milk exclusively. The department has carried on most of its Roquefort cheese experiments with cow's milk.

The process of making Roquefort cheese includes inoculating the curd with a mold grown in loaves of bread. The bread finally becomes a mass of mold in the spore stage. This is dried, ground to a powder, and sprinkled over the curds as they drain.

Carol's Favorite Back

in Power in Roumania Vienna.-Despite recent reports that Mme. Magda Lupescu, King Carol's favorite, would be expelled from Roumania, it appears now that she is in stronger position there Mme. Lupescu, red-haired Jewess, who became Carol's consort years ago, and for whom he forsook his throne and his wife, Queen Helen, has been in danger many times since becoming Carol's "du-Bary." She was wounded by an assassin in 1933.

As recently as last July Roumanians attempted to oust her from Roumania and bring back Queen

The recent change in Carol's cabinet has strengthened his consort's position greatly. Despite anti-Semitic agitation, she has the support of Vice Premier John Inculotz. Inculotz has become Roumania's new "strong man."

He is reported to have said no harm will come to Mme. Lupescu unless it is "over his dead body." So the king's consort is safe—at least as long as the "iron man' remains in power.

Lost, yesterday, somewhere between sunrise and sunset, two golden hours, each set with sixty diamond minutes. No reward is offered for they are gone forever! "Quoting Lydia H. Sigourney, American Author."

In this modern age, time plays a very important part, time to not only do the things one would like to do but time to do the things one should do, is the problem.

With the advent of electricity ,there appeared the possibilities of utilizing this great factor time to its utmost degree, since the advent, not only has the prediction come true but it has become a reality.

Are you benefitting? Are you utilizing this medium to save your valuable time which was formerly spent in the drudgery of household tasks, brought about, not because of one's desire nor wish, but because of necessity, there being no better way to perform the many household duties.

Today much time can be conserved by applying electricity correctly to the numerous tasks that it may be used for in the household, and when applied it has been found to not only conserve one's time, but to as well, do the job more efficiently, more economically.

Industry has found how to utilize electricity and save valuable time and do the work more efficiently and more economically, why cannot the household?

Begin now to use electricity in the fullest extent. Save all those precious moments you can, so that you may devote them to more knowledge, more benefit to yourself and others.

You can do many things with a 10c spent for electricity each day.

Electricity is cheap—when used correctly.

ALIENS OWN THREE BILLION U.S. STOCKS

Total $5,035,000,000.

Washington. - Foreign investors own more than 3,000 million dollars in American stocks and bonds and have total investments in the United States aggregating 5,035 million dollars, the Commerce department reported.

British investors lead all others with 27.3 per cent of the total, while Canada is second with 20 per cent, and Holland third with 15.6 per cent. The department said:

"Together with foreign owned bank balances and other short term funds representing liabilities of the United States to foreign creditors, which amount to roughly 1,200 million dollars, the total long and short term foreign investments in the United States at the end of 1935 Frankie Champion of St. Louis, were approximately 6,235 million

> The report showed that more than 1,000 million dollars of foreign money was invested in the United States in 1935, mostly going into stocks and bonds.

Besides stocks and bonds, foreign investors have more than 1,000 million dollars invested in American trusts. foreign insurance companies operating in this country, and in farm and urban real estate. The department estimated that value of the stocks held by foreign investors increased 37 per cent during 1935.

Dividend and interest payments to foreigners amounted to 145 million dollars in 1935. About 63 millions was earned off common and preferred stocks.

Travel Exhibit Includes

Cot Used by Napoleon Paris, France.-A "Wanderlust Exhibit" showing how man voyaged in the past and how he travels today has opened here. The exhibition includes everything from a 300-year-old trunk of Marie de Medici to full-sized modern airplanes and de luxe railway coaches.

A large part of the exposition is devoted to showing how Napoleon traveled. The emperor's collapsible iron camp bed, which followed him from Italy through Germany and finally into Russia, is one of the greatest attractions. With it are exhibited the silken cushions upon which Napoleon slept during his campaigns. These cushions, the forerunners of the rubber air cushions used in the World war, likewise were collapsible and were blown up like balloons at night by the emperor's orderly. His toilet set of comb, brush, mirror and even a "tub" of miniature size for "bathing the eye" are included in the exhibit.

Many relics of the stagecoach days are included and the history of travel has been brought up to date by the exhibition of hundreds of etchings, sketches, paintings and photographs as well as reduced models of modern steamships, including the Normandie.

Fatal Disease Attacks

Two Boys, Balks Doctors Bellaire, Ohio.—Two boys are slowly dying here from a strange disease that physicians find impossible to treat or diagnose exactly. The youths are John, eleven, and Mike, nine, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Pete Krinenko of Dilles Bottom, coal mining camp six miles west of here. The voungsters were stricken when they were seven. Both have been growing slowly worse and now it is impossible for them to sit up in the beds in the Ohio State hospital for crippled children.

The nearest that physicians have come to a diagnosis is that the disease causes slow deterioration of the brain cells that control the movement of the body. Joints become swollen and in the last stages the patient loses his mind.

Only three other deaths caused by this disease have been recorded in Ohio.

Old Documents Prove Claim to Tiny Islands

Honolulu.-Archives of the Territory of Hawaii may be called upon to prove United States ownership of three tiny islands near the equator.

These islands, Baker, Howland and Jarvis, were occupied last year by American youths from Kamehameha school in Honolulu, who took weather observations for future use of trans-Pacific aviation lines. The British secretary of dominions recently questioned American sovereignty over those islands. But documents in the Hawaiian archives show that the islands were discovered by Americans and claimed for the United States nearly half a century before Hawaii itself became an American territory, and to date have been officially claimed for this country no less than three times.

AMERICA'S HIGHEST PEAK PHOTOGRAPHED

Mt. McKinley and Environs Registered on Film.

Washington, D. C.-North America's highest peak-Mt. McKinley in Alaska, rising to an altitude of 20,-300 feet—has, for the first time, been photographed intimately from the air. The pictures, both still and in motion, were taken by Bradford Washburn, leader of the National Geographic society's Mt. McKinley expedition sent to Alaska last July, who has just made a preliminary report to the society's headquarters here. Some of the photographs were made on infra-red-sensitive film.

In a series of four flights from the Pan American Airways base at Fairbanks, Alaska, Mr. Washburn succeeded in photographing a vast expanse of the rugged terrain between Mt. McKinley and Mt. Hayes.

Use Infra-Red Ray.

The pictures reveal the highest territory under the American flag. They also mark the first use, in the region, of infra-red ray photography, which makes it possible for the same photograph to show the town of Fairbanks and the white summits of Mt. McKinley and its related peaks projecting above the Farmer's Clubhorizon more than a hundred miles away across a haze-obscured plain.

The infra-red photographs show bottom, among the world's mountains, since it rises 20,000 feet from a level plain almost without foothills. Mt. Everest, although 29,000 feet above sea level, actually rises only about 10,000 feet above a lofty plateau region. Because of its near Arctic latitude, Mt. McKinley has a very low timber line and is forbiddingly barren, Mr. Washburn points out. Its expanses of snow and glacier do not completely cover all its jagged rocky ridges.

After flying 500 feet above the top of Mt. McKinley, despite dangerous air currents, and circling the peak several times, Mr. Washburn flew straight along the axis of the mountains, taking close range photographs in pairs, stereoscopic fashion, at intervals of a minute. He thus obtained a progressive series showing the various peaks in their true relations to one another.

World's Highest Cliff.

The photographs prove conclusively the location of Mt. Hunter, a peak more than 15,000 feet high, about which accurate information has been so scarce that its very existence has been denied. This mountain, although perhaps higher than any in the United States proper, is actually dwarfed to relative insignificance by its towering neighbors, Mt. McKinley and Mt. Foraker, the latter 17,000 feet high.

Photographs of every angle of Mt. McKinley reveal a giant of almost unrealizable magnitude, massive to very top. Its steeply sloping western face has been called the world's highest cliff—an almost sheer drop of over three miles. The southern side, however, is perhaps more impressive; although only about two miles deep, its wall is perpendicular. Only three expeditions have been known to scale Mt. McKinley.

On the survey flights, Mr. Washburn was accompanied by Pilot S. E. Robins, Radio Engineer Bob Gleason, and A. L. Washburn, assistant, Bradford Washburn was also the leader of the National Geographic society's Yukon expedition of 1935 which explored and photographed nearly 5,000 square miles of unknown territory near the Canadian-Alaskan border. On that expedition he discovered two new peaks in Canadian territory, naming them for King George and Queen Mary of England.

Minneapolis, Minn. - One of Minnesota's vegetable growers' greatest problems-that of ascertaining the quality of their products —has been solved by a University of Minnesota plant physiologist, R. B. Harvey of the university farm has perfected a method by which he can peer into the heart of potatoes and other agricultural products. Employing the use of an X-ray and a physician's fluoroscope, Harvey can detect those vegetables with hollow hearts and thus rate accurately products by testing samples in large

A DEN OF ROBBERS

W HEN Billy Mink started to explore the big barn in the farmyard where he had decided to stay for a while he didn't know that he was entering a den of robbers. But that is what he was doing. Yes, sir, that is just what he was doing. You see, that barn was the home of ever and ever so many of the tribe of Robber the Rat, and each one of them, big and little, was a robber. They lived by robbery, which, you know, is another name for stealing. Now those robbers had lived in Neurocalometer and X-Ray Service that big barn so long that they had come to look on it as belonging to them. They knew every nook and corner and cranny in it and under it. The farmer who owned it had tried his best to drive them away. But those robber rats simply laughed at all his efforts. They were smart. Oh, yes, indeed, they were smart. Robbers often are quite as smart as honest people. They were too smart for that farmer.

All those rats belonged to the Brown Rat tribe. Not that they were all brown. The fact is, the older ones were quite gray. But that was because they were old and had grown gray with age.

Not all rats are bad. There are Brushtail the Wood Rat and Miser the Trade Rat and their families. They are honest and respected by their neighbors. But all the Brown tribe are outcasts, despised by all the little people of the Green Meadows and the Green Forest, and hated by man. There is no good in them. They become robbers as loon as they can run about, and they remain robbers as long as they live. There is not an honest hair on one of them. They hate the sunlight, for their deeds are deeds of darkness. They are savage. But with all this, they are clever, very clever indeed. They are so clever that in spite of all man's efforts to kill them their tribe has increased until it is probably the largest tribe of little people who wear fur in all the world, excepting the Mouse tribe.

The farmer who owned that barn had set traps of many kinds, but the wise old leader of the rats had found each trap and warned all his relatives. The farmer had tried to poison them, but somehow their wise old leader always knew where the poison was and warned them against it. A cat had been brought to catch them, but the tough old fighters among the rats had driven

So, the rats had increased and the greater the numbers the more they stole. They gnawed holes wherever there was a chance of getting food. They got into the farmer's house and did great damage there. In the spring they killed young chickens in the henhouse. They stole eggs. In fact, these robbers did about as they pleased and the big barn was their den.

Costs but Half to Delouse Now

It's about this time of year, when cattle are brought in from fall pasture that they begin rubbing poles and sides on fencing, posts and buildings to ease the itch caused by cattle lice. If they are deloused now the cost can be half that of doing the job in colder weather, says C. B. Dibble, extension specialist in insect control at Michigan State College.

Older animals that have been sprayed for flies during the summer may be free from lice, but young stock likely is infested and can spread the lice to stablemates. Sprays applied now are far cheaper than dusting powders necessary when cold weather prevents spray-

Stock dip or a solution of any of the advertised brands of pyrethrum plant sprays are recommended. Usually the strength of the latter is at the rate of one ounce to six and one-half gallons of water, or one to 800 strength. A gallon and one-half of spray applied as a fine mist with a knapsack sprayer usually is necessary to soak the animal thoroughly. Spraying, says Dibble, must be repeated in 14 days for a clean job as the knits of eggs are not killed.

"Spraying or dipping can be done for three to five cents per animal," Dibble reports. "If the job is neglected until cold weather when the animals literally rub the barn down, powder must be used for safety. Four ounces of powder blue, white, yellow and green. Some for each animal, applied twice in a 14-day interval cost 10 to 12 cents per animal. Treat animals in warm weather and prevent losses at a low cost for treatment."

The administrator's attention was called to the fact that latest figures showed that 3,498,012 persons were employed the first two weeks of October, an increase of 29,020 over the preceding half month. He explained this by pointing out that the drouth in the Midwest added 32,831 destitute farmers to his WPA project

Steel Workers Ask for Legislation

FIRST of the big groups that aided in the re-election of President Roosevelt to call on him for their reward, the steel workers have asked that the Chief Executive recommend to the next congress the passage of legislation outlawing company unions and forbidding coercion of workers by employers. George A. Patterson and Elmer J. Malol, employee representatives of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel company, carried this request to the White House. The Carnegie - Illinois company has offered employees a 10 per cent wage increase on condition that workers sign an agreement to permit adjustment of wages to the cost of living. At his press conference President Roosevelt said living costs should not be permitted to operate to curb wage increases. Furthermore, Secretary of Labor Perkins ruled informally that the employee representatives had no authority to sign such an agreement for their fellow employees.

Labor Board Dissolves Harvester Council Plan

E MPLOYER corporations were hit by a ruling of the National Labor Relations board ordering the dissolution of the "industrial council plan" of the International Harvester company at the plant in Fort

While the ruling dealt only with the Indiana plant, the board pointed out that the same plan also exists in the other 14 Harvester plants in the United States and Canada. It sets a precedent also for future decisions in regard to similar plans in other manufacturing plants throughout the country.

The industrial council of the Harvester company is an illegal labor organization under the terms of the National Labor Relations act, the board ruled. Under it the employees possess "only the shadow, not the substance, of collective bargaining," according to the decision. Numerous benefits conferred on the employees under the plan are admitted but the board says most of them "are granted in the form of pater-

A. F. of L. Council's Report on Social Security Act

W HEN the American Federation of Labor's annual convention opened in Tampa it had before it the report of the executive council dealing with, among many other topics, the social security act. The report heartily approved of a federal social security program and would give labor the greatest possible benefit from the federal statute. If the federal law is unconstitutional, the council said, "it is clear that its provisions must be changed or that sanction must be afforded to them through an amendment to the constitution.'

The council questioned the wisdom of obtaining the necessary funds through a payroll tax "which to a great extent is to be paid directly or indirectly by the workers the capital. The insurgents sent involved" and suggested that congress repeal this feature of the law as soon as it convenes.

In discussing unemployment since NRA's end, the council said:

"The shorter work week and the six hour day furnish the real solution to the insistent problem of unemployment. It is the responsibility that private industry must accept in order to give the necessary balance to economic expansion." The council reported a membership of 3,422,398 on August 31-the greatest since 1921.

The council dismissed John L. Lewis' epochal rebellion with a deress during the last year. "Appropriate action" was suggested.

George L. Berry, national co-ordinator for industrial recovery and president of the Printing Pressmen's union, proposed that the controversy with Lewis and his C. I. O. group be ended by arbitration, but this was rejected by President Green and other federation leaders. John P. Frey lost no time in introducing his resolution for expulsion of the rebel unions with their membership of over a million.

President Starts on His Ocean Cruise

DRESIDENT ROOSEVELT went by train to Charleston, S. C., to board the cruiser Indianapolis for a jaunt in southern waters. He said he was not certain where the ship would take him, but in Washington it was assumed that he would proceed at once for Buenos Aires to attend the opening of the Pan-American peace conference on December 1. In that case he will make stops at Port of Spain, Rio de Janeiro and Montevideo, and will not return before December 15. If his plans are changed, he will merely spend two or three weeks fishing in the Caribbean.

At his last press conference before departing the President said he had about completed drafting the 1937 budget. He said also that he had outlined to his subordinates the things he wants done during his absence, these including: Drafting of a farm tenancy law to end evils attending the system of share-cropping and farm tenancy, now chiefly prevalent in the South. Clarifying amendments to the social security act.

Amendments to the Tennessee Valley Authority act, permitting broader social and economic improvement of the regions served by the TVA's huge power projects.

Wallace was asked whether the lack of a control plan might not result in another surplus, leaving the administration up in the air without any machinery to cope with it. He said he could not estimate a surplus ahead of time and that he would rather wait to see what would happen.

"It may be possible to find a solution that will prove better than the AAA or the soil conservation act," he said.

The attackers at one time smashed the defending lines at the Los Franceses bridge and forced their way across the Manzanares river and into the northwest quarter of Madrid, but probably retired, for the loyalists dynamited the bridge and captured several rebel tanks. He was offered his choice of several diplomatic posts in 1933 but declined, saying he felt he could better serve the President and the nation as publisher of the Constitution. ## The Sugar Beet's Own Story

"Let's have a friendly chat, Mr. Grower! You are situated right in the heart of one of the best sugar beet sections of America.'

"Just as certain sections of Louisiana are best for raising sugar cane, your section of Michigan is peculiarly adaptable for raising Sugar Beets. Thousands of farmers-many of them your neighbors—find this true."

"Naturally, every year cannot be good for a bumper crop. No one is blessed with perpetual prosperity."

"So get this fact firmly fixed in your mind: Farm incomes, like all other incomes, must vary from year to year. That is controlled by weather, by supply and demand, by management and economic conditions."

"But, as all authorities agree, and experience shows, your soil is excellent for Sugar Beets, isn't it good business to stick with that which is best for your pocketbook?"

"Sugar Beets are not a surplus crop. From the standpoint of consumption, you cannot raise too many Sugar Beets. The processors will take all you produce."

"Sugar Beets do not impoverish your soil as do other crops. On the contrary, the growing and proper cultivation of beets gives to your soil those properties it needs to keep it healthy and highly productive of other crops in proper rotation."

"Beets are hardy. They are not so sensitive. They can 'take it'. For beets, more than any other crop, take wet weather, dry weather, hot weather and cold weather."

"This means that when you grow beets and get up against adverse weather conditions, you are more certain of a good yield than you are with any other cultivated crop."

"So, in conclusion, let me stress this, Mr. Grower: Year after year stick to a regular planting of Sugar Beets. Sugar Beets are the ideal crop from which to make more money."

"When planting time comes around next spring see to it that Sugar Beets are included in your crop program."

SOCIAL BEGGARS THINK WORLD OWES THEM LIVING

Anna, living in a college town, might very well run a boarding house for students. Her idle son might find a very profitable job in washing dishes, and her daughter might forget her discontent if she put on a waitress' apron and cap and made herself useful.

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

NNA is a woman who never has solved her own problem. Since I first knew her. some forty years ago, when we were both girls in school. Anna has been unequal to the demands of the moment, but perfectly sure that if she had a little help she would be a great success.

At fifteen Anna said that if she only had some rich friend who could send her to New York to study dramatics she could be an actress. She wasn't going to take any job in an office or shop; she didn't propose to find herself middle-aged some day, working for a drug firm at twenty-five dollars a month!

That was forty years ago. Ever since then I have watched her floundering more and more helplessly in the mesh of life that is never going to be unravelled for her now. Tangles that the Twenties don't solve have no way of miraculously smoothing out in the Fifties. Anna has never gotten so far as to get up in the mornings and get breakfast on time: she has never liked housework—she says it is servants' business. Anna's beds are never made; her husband died a broken and disappointed man after twenty years of discomfort and inefficiency. Anna's daughter and son are now following in her footsteps. The daughter, widowed, has come home with a baby daughter; the son, unhappily married, is also living at home again as a single man. None of them has any money. None can get work. Refined and idle and eloquent, they are professional beggars. They have a large pretentious house well plastered with mortgages; a house that is eryone gives them a wide berth. Anna and her children, always very elegant about it, and with sensibilities easily hurt, have "borrowed" money from everyone who will lend it. Occasionally a newcomer in town, some kind-hearted woman who has listened for the first time to Anna's story, takes up a collection for Anna. She finds ten women who will put up a hundred dollars apiece, or she has a garden party for dear unfortunate Mrs. Poore. Anna's letters of thanks are very dashing; the last one I had, had a coat-of-arms upon it.

falling into ruin for the want of paint and plaster. Everyone in town is sorry for them, and ev-

Things will be like this now as long as Anna lives, and when she dies Anita and little Nancy will take up the good work. The world, they feel, owes them a living. Just why it does, when it doesn't apparently owe millions of equally worthy folk a living, is obscure. But the phrase is a favorite with Anna.

"I feel that there is some rich man or woman somewhere." Anna says, "who would be only too glad to give me and the youngsters the little we need to be comfortable, and to preserve our self-respect. Well! The only thing, then, is to find that person.

Frequently, hearing that one has a rich friend, she suggests it.

"You know this Mr. Smith. You wouldn't want to suggest to him that it would be much smarter than having his name on the charity list to have him simply relieve me of the miseries of responsibility and anxiety that I've carried all these years. I think I've done my share! I think I've contributed enough to the general scheme of things. I deserve a rest now."

As a matter of fact she never has done anything. She never has cooked a good meal, or kept her house clean, or lived within her income even when she had an income. She has tried fifty jobs and never held one. She has spent weeks-years in explaining to her friends exactly why she couldn't do this sort of work and wasn't fitted for that. At the moment I write influential friends are being importuned by Anna to recommend her for a government job of three thousand a year.

"I would have to have a car," she told me in reference to it. "Because it's really just a sort of inspection of the whole county. I think I could do that, and maybe squeeze poor darling Alan into something good on the side. He's been trying for seven years now to find something to do, and it's having a bad effect on him, poor child!"

If she gets this job, Anna will hold it just so long as it takes the Anna. higher authorities to discover that she is completely unfit to fill it. Sometimes that discovery takes weeks, sometimes months, but with Anna it always arrives, and she is sent back to idle at home among the dropping plastered walls, the broken plumbing, the dingy woodwork and rotting furniture again. Never having solved the very first problems of her little girlhood she naturally isn't going to change now.

Even today she has a profitable source of income close at hand. In this college town one-third of the plainer homes take in boarders during the term, and make good money from it. School boys and girls are not critical tenants. Simple, good, hot food and plenty of it, and a bedside light for study hours constitute their main needs. There are scores of women in this neighborhood who support themselves by keeping boarders. Some of these women have to pay for help, or take part of their board-money in help. Anna has two assistants in her family. The idle son might find a very profitable job in washing dishes for his mother, cranking the ice-cream freezer, raking the dooryard and painting the fences. The daughter might forget her abiding and bitter discontent if she put on a waitress' apron and cap and made herself useful for the first time in her twenty-five years.

Ten dollars a week apiece from ten boarders is money. Even spending ten dollars a day on food and laundry Anna couldn't but save. But she would have to work, and the fundamental difficulty with her, and with so many like her, is that they hate work. Anna has shuddered away from the very idea of it all her life.

Right in the same block are the Swensens; small busy blonde mother, crippled father, four children. The two oldest boys sell magazines, deliver newspapers, work on Saturdays in shops, gardens, lumber yards; wherever their activities can find a few hours pay labor. They keep twenty per cent of what they make and are buying an old car. Mr. Swensen carves little wooder birds and brackets and oddities generally for one of the local cabinet makers. Mrs. Swensen cooks for a good part of the day on an old gas-stove with a loose piece of zinc reinforcing the oven. She sells soups, rolls, pies, cookies, macaroni, jams to private customers, and tow-headed Inga and Kurt deliver the cooked food in the coaster, after

Mrs. Swensen, shy, fair, hardworking, foreign-born, has solved her problem. She tells no story of bad times and unemployment; she is not looking for a rich stranger to finance her idleness for the rest of her days. One knows that even in her small girlhood back in Sweden little Linda Ardersen did what her mother told her to do; small, vigorous, earnest, one sees her herding geese, plumping feather beds, sweeping a flagged old kitchen floor as if Davy Jones were after her! One knows that when George Swensen was brought home to her helpless and crushed, five years ago, she faced his tragedy, faced her own, puzzled and wept and prayed out the solution.

And the moral of all this is that almost every woman has a probthat there is no use dreaming of larger problems, planning for more congenial duties, until these present ones are completely solved. Until your scheme runs like clockwork, despite any difficulties, under any handicaps, it is mere waste of time to think that you would be equal to the demand if the demand were changed. If you can be a success in middle-age, you are one. If any possible combination of circumstances can make you a failure, an idle discontented parasite, then no possible combination of circum-
