CASS CITY CHRONICLE

VOLUME 31, NUMBER 48. CASS CITY, MICHIGAN, FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 26, 1937. EIGHT PAGES.

SPECIAL SERVICES BEGIN SUNDAY

Rev. W. H. Collycott of Rochester Here During First Week of March.

Six themes for "Lenten Conversations" are announced by Rev. W. H. Collycott, of St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal church, Rochester, Michigan, as he comes to be guest minister at the Methodist church here beginning Sunday evening, February 28, at 7:45 o'clock. Services will continue each evening during the week, except Saturday, at the same hour. Mr. Collycott's subjects are announced as follows: Sunday, "The Keynote of Joy"; Monday, "God Looking for a Man"; Tuesday, "An Authentic Message from the Spirit World"; Wednesday, "The Meaning of Sacrifice"; Thursday, "An Exhibition of Supreme Selfishness"; Friday, "Making Jesus Christ Real."

Although under the auspices of the Methodist church, this Lenten series is open to all people in the community who will come and share in the Christian fellowship there made available.

"Slow Down" in Lent.

"As helpfully stated in an editorial in last week's Chronicle, Lent means 'slow down'," said Rev. Charles Bayless, "and it is that slower and saner tempo which Mr. Collycott will bring to our people who attend these Lenten evenings."

Sunday evening will be in the nature of a union church service involving the ministers and people of the Presbyterian, Evangelical, and Methodist churches, with the united aspect featured again on Wednesday evening when the Christian Round-table Fellowship will meet at an early hour to permit a class period at 7:15 p. m., in advance of the Lenten service.

Further Lenten Plans.

Further plans for the pre-Easter period have been made by the Nazarene congregation and by the resident ministers for the annual observance of Holy Week, as follows: Special services will be held at the Nazarene church, March 10 to 21 inclusive, by Rev. and Mrs. L. E. Sparks, of Windsor, Ontario. This talented couple serve interchangeably as preachers and singers, and will be remembered by many as having been here for a similar series last year. These services also are open to the public.

A panel discussion on International Relations is scheduled for Sunday evening, March 14, at the Evangelical church under the joint auspices of the Rotary club and the Christian Citizenship league. Meredith Auten will preside and will be assisted by Willis Campbell and Kenneth Kelly. The public is invited.

Easter comes this year on March 28, and plans for the union observance of Holy Week have been made as outlined in another story elsewhere in this paper. Cass City is fortunate in the solidarity of her church leadership throughout the year and year after year.

Fred Brown's Team Is Pacing Big Five

The loss of three regulars and one second-stringer through graduation last June apparently isn't causing the Dowagiac high school much grief this season because they are having a swell time strutting atop the Southwestern Michigan Big Five conference percentage column. The team have won all five of their conference games. The Dowagiac coach is Fred Brown, former star athlete of the Cass City high school.

Miss Kelley, Bride of LeRoy Evans

A pretty wedding was solemnized Saturday evening, February 20, at eight o'clock in the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Kelley of Novesta when their youngest daughter, Miss Ruby Pauline, was united in marriage with LeRoy Evans, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Evans of Cass City.

Rev. Mr. Terwilliger, pastor of the Sunshine church, officiated at the service in the presence of the immediate families.

The bride was gowned in navy blue crepe and was attended by Miss Lenora Stewart of Deford, who also wore navy blue crepe. Both carried shower bouquets of sweet peas. Leland Kelley of Saginaw was attendant to Mr. Evans.

The bride is a graduate of Cass City high school, being a member of the Class of 1932. The groom is a successful farmer near Cass City.

Mr. and Mrs. Evans will make their home on a farm, 6¼ miles west and 2 miles north of Cass City.

FIRST ANNIVERSARY OF THUMB BIBLE CONFERENCE

On Friday, March 19, at the Baptist church in Cass City, where the Thumb Bible conference had its birth on March 20 last, will be held the first anniversary.

Dr. Louis R. Patmont, world traveler, lecturer, author, editor, scientist and linguist, has been secured to speak at the morning, afternoon and evening sessions.

Dr. Patmont has rare pictures on Russia obtained at great risk of his life. He will exhibit pictures of Palestine and other countries in relating his thrilling story.

HERE AND THERE AROUND THE THUMB

Items Gathered from the Chronicle's Exchanges and Other Sources.

J. L. Meachum, superintendent of the Millington high school, has placed 12 students of the commercial department of the school with various Millington business concerns. The students are required to take care of the bookkeeping and other business connected with office routine in each business. They spend two hours of their time each school day and receive academic credit for their efforts, but no other remuneration.

Several Caro men, among them Arden Gaul, Jay Raymond, Charles Smith, Chester Emmons and Gorman Gottschalk, have accepted positions in Flint factories as policemen. Mr. Gaul, for the past four years, has been day marshal in Caro. He will be succeeded by Carl Montei, night marshal.

After March 8 the selling of beer and wines on Sundays and holidays for consumption in the place of sale will be prohibited in Croswell, in accordance with a new ordinance which was adopted by the Common Council at a recent meeting. The ordinance was passed following a petition signed by 399 local residents. No license for the sale of hard liquors has been granted in Croswell since prohibition was repealed.

At its 17th annual Washington Birthday celebration staged by Caro Royal Arch Masons on Monday evening, about 100 persons attended. Principal speaker was Carl A. Smith, Bay City attorney, who outlined the history of the constitution, explaining how it was written and its guarantees to the American citizen. Smith touched upon the president's court reform proposals, explaining them briefly, but made no comment as to their worth.

George Wenner, sugar beet extension specialist of Michigan State College, will speak at the Caro Farmers' meeting with the Board of Commerce Tuesday, March 2. Mr. Wenner is well known to Thumb sugar beet growers as the successor to Clarence Oviatt. There is a strong likelihood that R. V. Gunn, extension worker in economics of Michigan State College, will also be present. Both men will discuss the sugar beet industry and its outlook in Michigan in comparison to other farm crops.

To Observe Plow Company Centennial

In 1837, one hundred years ago, an inspired young blacksmith, John Deere, gave to the world the steel plow, and to celebrate that anniversary the John Deere Plow company is giving in various parts of the country a day of entertainment at the business places of their dealers.

In Cass City, the entertainment of four talking pictures will be at the implement store of G. A. Striffler on Tuesday, March 2. The dealer will serve a free lunch at noon to those in attendance.

WAS SEC. OF COUNTY W. C. T. U. 22 YEARS

Funeral of Mrs. George Bates Will Be Held at Kingston Friday Morning.

Tuscola county lost a woman long and faithfully identified with the temperance cause in the death of Mrs. George Bates at Kingston. She passed away Tuesday after a five months' illness. Funeral services will be held this (Friday) morning at ten o'clock in the Kingston Methodist Episcopal church and will be conducted by Rev. Geo. B. Marsh, pastor of the church, and Rev. Andrew Wood of Imlay City. Interment will be in the Lakeview cemetery at Sarnia, Ontario.

Christina Sinclair was born in Brook township, Lambton county, Ont., on Nov. 10, 1863. In her early womanhood, she taught in the schools of that province, and was united in marriage with Dr. George Bates at Sarnia on April 19, 1899.

During her 38 years of residence in Kingston, she was a faithful worker in the M. E. church and for 37 years taught a class in the Sunday school. In the cause of temperance, she served as recording secretary of the Tuscola County Woman's Christian Temperance Union for 22 years and held a similar office in the district W. C. T. U. for 18 years, and in the 10th district for five years. For a few years, she was state director of medical temperance in the W. C. T. U. organization. Mrs. Bates was treasurer of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Tuscola County Medical society.

Officers and other representatives of the 7th district W. C. T. U. expect to attend the funeral in a body today.

Besides her husband, Mrs. Bates is survived by two sisters, Mrs. W. J. Barbour of Sarnia and Mrs. W. A. Smart of VanCouver, B. C.

Mr. Green, Miss Sandham Marry

It was a lovely wedding which took place at noon Saturday, Feb. 20, in the home of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Sandham, on West Main street, when their daughter, Miss Deloris Sandham, was united in marriage with Raymond Green, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Green, of Bad Axe.

Rev. Charles P. Bayless, pastor of the Cass City Methodist Episcopal church, conducted the ceremony in the presence of immediate relatives and a few close friends.

The bride was charming in a costume suit of powder blue, trimmed with grey fox. She carried Talisman roses and valley lilies. She was attended by her sister, Miss Johanna Sandham, who wore a beige gown and carried pink roses and blue forget-me-nots.

Following the ceremony, an informal reception was held and a luncheon served.

Mr. and Mrs. Green are spending the week in the east where they will visit Washington, D. C., and other places of interest.

The bride is a graduate of Cass City high school with the Class of 1931 and of Michigan State College, East Lansing, in 1935. She is a member of Kappa Alpha Theta sorority. She is a teacher in the Vassar school.

Mr. Green, a graduate of Bad Axe high school in 1930, is employed in Bad Axe.

On Friday night, a number of Mr. Green's friends from Bad Axe serenaded him at the Sandham home after which he was taken to the Wigwam at Caro where a steak dinner was enjoyed.

Breaks Bone in Game at School Gym

Neville Mann had a small bone broken an inch above his right ankle in a game of basketball at the high school gymnasium Tuesday evening. He was engaged in a preliminary contest with junior high boys when he received the injury.

Reception and Shower Saturday

About 125 were present Saturday night when friends and relatives met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bardwell for a reception and miscellaneous shower in honor of Mr. and Mrs. John Turner, who were married Friday, Feb. 12. A social time was held and ice cream and cakes served.

Jean Bardwell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bardwell, and John Turner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Turner of Ellington, were quietly married by Rev. Ray Wilson, former pastor of Sutton church. They were attended by Frederick and Miss Dorothy Bardwell, brother and sister of the bride. They will make their home in Caro where Mr. Turner is employed.

TEACHERS' INSTITUTE WAS WELL ATTENDED FRIDAY

With but two or three public school instructors in the county absent, the teachers' institute of Tuscola county held on Friday at Caro was marked by a large attendance. The program as outlined in the Chronicle last week was presented with few changes.

At the election of officers of the county unit of the Michigan Education association, the following were chosen: President, Sarah Ludden, principal of the Tuscola County Normal; vice president, Dorr Wiltse, Carolan school, Elmwood township; secretary, Grace Noble, Ward school, Gilford township; treasurer, Lloyd C. Miller, Vassar Junior high school.

Lansing—An accurate weather vane of business is the number of telephones in use.

Michigan merchants find new encouragement in an announcement of the Michigan Bell Telephone company that 59,473 more telephones are listed in phone books today than at the start of 1936. A total of 594,502 families throughout the state hear the jingle of the telephone bell . . . the voices of loved ones and of friends.

From Giles Kavanagh, collector of internal revenue at Detroit, came additional confirmation of better times in news that Michigan residents during the first seven weeks of 1937 paid more than $2,000,000 in income taxes. Compared with the same period a year ago, this is an increase of 35 per cent.

Preventing Labor Warfare—

Happy termination of the General Motors strike, which induced auto manufacturers in Michigan to boost wages more than $50,000,000 for 1937, prompted Gov. Frank Murphy to declare that costly labor warfare "will be futile unless we devise some formula to keep industrial society from being plagued by this economic paralysis without destroying fundamental rights—such as the right to strike and the right to private property."

And while the Michigan and Ohio legislators were adopting resolutions focusing a spotlight of congratulation upon Governor Murphy, who is already mentioned as a presidential candidate in 1940, Representative Philip J. Rahoi (D) of Iron Mountain proposed to carry out Murphy's suggestion through creation of a state labor relations board of three members.

The bill aims restrictive shafts at capital . . . provides protective benefits for labor. The agency

TOURIST BUSINESS MEANS MUCH TO STATE

East Michigan Tourist Ass'n. Secretary Spoke Here on Tuesday Night.

At a joint meeting of Caro and Cass City Rotarians at the Hotel Gordon Tuesday evening, sponsored by the Cass City club, T. F. Marston, secretary of the East Michigan Tourist association, was guest speaker. Moving pictures showing fishing and hunting scenes and recreational views were exhibited.

Mr. Marston called attention to the tourist resort business as a leading industry of Michigan. He said the tourist trade means a visit of 2,500,000 automobiles annually, containing on the average of 2.8 people each, who spend an average of 11 days in the state. This vast company of visitors assisted greatly in making the sum of $274,000,000 expended in the tourist industry in a recent year in Michigan.

Mr. Marston was introduced to the group by Ernest L. Schwaderer, chairman of the program committee.

Clarence Bougher, chairman of the Crippled Children's committee of Tuscola county, called the attention of Rotarians to the coming seal sale for the support of the crippled children's society which starts March 12. The project is not a Rotary one, but he anticipated that Rotarians would support it generously, because of the interest Rotarians take in the crippled children's project.

LARGE NUMBER OF LIVESTOCK IN STATE

This Is in Direct Contrast to Situation in Nation as a Whole.

The number of livestock on Michigan farms, January 1, 1937, was the largest for that date of any years since 1924, according to the annual livestock report issued on February 17 by Burr B. Lincoln, commissioner of agriculture, and Verne H. Church, senior agricultural statistician for the Michigan Co-operative Reporting service. This is in direct contrast to the situation for the country as a whole, the United States January 1, 1937 composite estimate of livestock numbers being the smallest since 1929, largely as a result of forced marketings in western drought areas. These comparisons have been made on the basis of animal units which allow for differences in size and feed requirements of the different species.

Average values per head for Michigan livestock on January 1 this year were above those for the same date in 1936 for all species except sheep and hogs. The total value of all livestock on farms in the state, January 1, 1937 was the highest for that date of any year since 1930, being estimated at $144,124,000 as against $136,931,000 for January 1, 1936 and $92,506,000 for January 1, 1935. These figures represent inventory values as of the date named and do not reflect income from livestock production. Preliminary estimates suggest that the Michigan cash farm income from the sale of livestock and livestock products during the calendar year 1936 may be in the neighborhood of $133,000,000. This would compare with $144,324,000 (exclusive of benefit payments) for the year 1935 and would be the highest return of any year since 1929.

The percentage changes in January livestock numbers for Michigan, 1937 compared with 1936, by species are as follows: All cattle, 103 percent; cows and heifers 2 years old and over kept for milk, 101 per cent; heifers 1-2 year old being saved for milk cows, 114 per cent; stock sheep, 99 per cent; all sheep including sheep and lambs on feed for market January 1, 101 per cent; swine, 118 per cent; horses, 100 per cent; mules, 100 per cent.

Home Demonstration Leaders' Meeting

Foundation garments and posture are the problems which will be discussed at the fourth lesson of the first year Clothing project. The importance of these problems in relation to making a good appearance and in feeling comfortable is quickly recognized, but how to achieve both style and comfort in foundation garments is a problem well worth the consideration which will be given it during this meeting. How to give the foundation garment a little cooperation with sensible posture is another phase of the clothing problem which will be considered.

Local leaders from Tuscola County Home Economics Extension groups will meet at the court house at Caro on Thursday and Friday, March 4 and 5, with Miss Marjorie Eastman, extension specialist in clothing from Michigan State College.

CAPITAL PUNISHMENT.

An issue which faces the Michigan legislature and one which arouses much controversy is that of capital punishment.

James M. Hepbron, eminent criminologist, in a recent lecture stated that capital punishment is a dead issue—that of 106 convicted murderers, only one receive capital punishment; that we are too sentimental concerning the issue to enforce capital punishment when it is a law.

Therefore, we have a much more important problem to solve regarding crime in this country, where we have a higher criminal rate than any other country comparable to ours. There are as many imprisoned in Cook county, Illinois, alone, as in the whole Dominion of Canada. And the reason for our high crime rate according to European and American authorities is: "We have a very lax, a very corrupt and highly inefficient administration of justice."

Convicted criminals receive long sentences, but they are eligible for parole in amazingly short periods of time. "For good behavior" even murderers who have received life sentences will serve only 10 or 12 years (the average life sentence) and will then be given parole. "What does society expect in payment of crime other than good behavior behind prison walls?"

In addition to the large number paroled or allowed probation instead of prison sentence, there is also the amazing fact to face that only one in ten criminals is ever apprehended and brought to justice. The one in ten may then have his case nol-prossed, pigeon-holed or indefinitely postponed. If he comes to trial by jury, his chances for acquittal are still one in three before a jury of his peers.

The problem is yours and mine. Public opinion alone can stop the corruption that attends every step of the way in the apprehension of criminals.

COST OF THE FLOOD.

Officials in the flooded district along the Ohio river estimate that the expense of drying out and cleaning up a single flooded home will average $250.

When you fill a home up to the second story with dirty water, there is a loss that can never be repaired except by heavy expenditure. Many rugs and carpets will be ruined forever, and all require the senvices of an expert cleaner. The wall paper will not come back where it was before. Furniture may not be ruined, but the repair man should go over it carefully.

Many families can not afford to spend much money on these restorations, and will clean up the best they can themselves. Yet something has been taken out of their furnishing that can't be restored. The cost of removing heaps of refuse, of restoring damaged buildings and roads, will mount into the hundred millions. If this flood costs a billion dollars, it will not be surprising.

The folks who have been saving and struggling for years to build up a nice and pretty home must be sick at heart. Even if their dwelling has not beeen weakened by the strain of swollen waters, it is heart breaking to see those pleasant home scenes turned into desolation by the power of an angry river.

Thse losses are likely to continue worse and worse as years go on. The water sweeps off the hill and mountain sides, as it did not do in days when heavy forest growth held back this flow. Deep gullies have been dug by this flowing water, so that the ranis rush off like water through the spout on a house. The country must come to the rescue of these stricken valleys, and start flood control work on a greater scale.

WHAT THE MINISTERS TELL US.

If you attend church in Cass City or elsewhere, you have probably heard the minister say something about repentance, which is one of the essential exercises of the Christian season of Lent.

Such advice will be received with hearty approval by many earnest folks, who have only trifling little sins against their white record, and who will prostrate themselves still further in figurative dust and ashes.

Meanwhile the hard and selfish and dishonest folks, of whom the world is so full, will say they need no repentance, and they are doing very well as it is. In many cases these folks do not realize that they need any repentance. They got into their harmful ways as the result of slow and small beginnings dating back to early youth. Their unlovely lives seem perfectly justifiable to them.

Frequently this type of people have some virtues which they think cover all faults. James Russell Lowell said:

"They atone for sins they are inclined to,
By damning those they have no mind to."

The man who is crooked and dishonest often feels he washes out all that wrongdoing by being generous to people in need.

The world is a place of fierce competition, which is in part necessary as an incentive to energy. In this struggle the idea is, "Every one for himself and the devil take the hindmost." People forget to be kind and think only of themselves. The world will never get any true happiness until it learns sympathy and honesty. It won't learn those things, until it feels deep repentance for the errors of the past. So the minister is right, however the old Adam in us may so No.

ONE ROOM SCHOOLS GOING.

The Little Red Schoolhouse is gradually folding up. In Allegheny county, Pennsylvania, for instance, they have closed 200 such schools in the past 10 years, and only 20 now remain.

The little cross roads school has sent out countless men and women who have done good work. The teacher had so many lessons to hear, that she could give little attention to any one child. But anyone who wanted to work, had a chance there. The pupil might come in closer touch with the teacher than he would in a great school. Today the school bus, rounding up the children for the nice graded center school, is becoming the regular plan. It is the best idea though the folks along the back roads hate to see the little cross roads temple of learning disappear.

CHURCH GROUPS UNITE.

Representatives of 40 Protestant denominations have formed a new organization called the "United Christian Advance." All these bodies will remain separate, but it is hoped to arrange and direct their various activities according to one comprehensive plan.

The Protestant church has been split up into a great number of fragments, which have prevented it from attaining maximum efficiency. An army divided into 40 independent groups would conquer no enemy, and the devil does not worry much when he sees his foes similarly split.

If you want to see more chances for business and employment in your home town, help business expand by buying your merchandise at home.

If you want more business, tell people through advertising the reasons why they should buy what you have to sell.

MAKING MONEY OUT OF WAR.

They are holding hearings in congress on a bill to take 95 per cent of the excess profits made in time of war. Here is a most ticklish question. If the American people ever get into a war again, they don't want people making great fortunes out of the nation's suffering. Yet when there is a chance to make some money, it does make slow men jump faster. The main thing in such a time is to get supplies to the fighting men without delay. Money seems a minor issue, when the lives of your boys are at stake.

The proper handling of this question would seem to be to pursue such cautious and friendly policies, that the awful alternatives of war never rise again to plague us.

THE WORLD'S FOLLY.

A recent survey of 60 nations showed that expenditures for military purposes amounted to almost $11,000,000,000 in 1936, while the similar expenditure in 1934 was only $5,000,000,000. If it had been said at the end of the World war, which was fought to end all wars, that the world would be more than doubling its expenditures for war purposes in those two years, anyone making such a prediction would have been thought to have had a crazy nightmare.

The world would make enormous gains, if this money could be spent for schools, libraries, suppression of crime, and work for the unemployed. The nations are so bent on grasping all they can reach, that they are all afraid of each other. So they are arming as the world never armed before. When will this vast magazine of explosives blow up?

IDEAS FOR NEW CITIZENS.

The number of aliens applying for citizenship papers has greatly increased in recent months. This gain has occurred in spite of recent restrictions in immigration, under which few people are now coming into the country, unless smuggled in unlawfully. The applicants for citizenship want the advantages in the way of employment and old age assistance that come to citizens. The government can't do as much for foreigners as it will do for its own people.

It is a fateful step to transfer one's allegiance from one country to another. It should not be lightly regarded, like buying a new suit of clothes. The new citizen has taken his life out of the direction of one power, and placed it in the hands of another. He should have a clear idea what he is doing.

In the United States he comes to a country based on two ideas, democratic government and obedience to law. The right to the vote is now given to practically everyone over a certain age. The democratic principle is thus firmly established.

The idea of obedience to laws is not so well protected. A large number of people, including natives as well as aliens, feel it is all right to break the laws provided they can get away with it. If no officer is looking, they don't hesitate to jump traffic lights in their automobiles, and park in forbidden places. They pay no attention to laws, unless they have reason to fear a penalty will be imposed.

Our country is headed for trouble, if that idea prevails and grows. The aliens coming among us should realize that they need the protection of the laws, and that protection will be weak and ineffective, if the habit of law breaking becomes general.

How to Drive Out Slot Machines.

Ingham County News.

A lot of worrying is being done over slot machines. It is probably true that racketeers control slot machines in Michigan and true that the payoff on slot machines is greater than it ever was on bootleg liquor. Suggestion has been made that legislation be enacted to tax slot machines; to legalize slot machines gambling as has been done with horse racing. Those who have made the suggestion believe that a high license fee would drive them out.

It wouldn't. Such legislation would merely entrench slot machine interests that much stronger and make a few score more jobs for political appointees.

Here's our suggestion on how to drive slot machines out of Michigan. This method possesses the advantages of not needing any legislation, any enforcing officers, any pronunciamiento by the governor or attorney general, or any preelection publicity. We contribute this suggestion gladly. Let those opposed to slot machines raise a few thousand dollars to pay for the manufacture of brass tokens which will operate nickle slot machines. The nickle machines are the ones which take the grocery money. They are the machines on which small boys and girls waste their cash.

Have "Gambling Doesn't Pay" or "Watch for the Lemons" stamped on the brass tokens. Then have the tokens distributed widely throughout the state. Perhaps churches, newspaper offices, chambers of commerce, better business bureaus and other organizations would serve as distribution agencies. The tokens would be passed out free of charge perhaps to reward church and Sunday School attendance. They would possess no value. They would merely be used to make the slot machine wheels around.

If 5,000 Michigan people, men, women and children set out next Monday mornnig to play funny money in the slot machines the racket would be folded up on the following Saturday night.

Some Things I Believe.

By J. Kenfield Morley in Rotarian Magazine.

As the years slide past, I realize more and more that every "kick in the pants" sends a real man a step forward.

I believe that the step from cleverness to genius is one of immeasurable distance. I believe that the return of the feminine woman is not very far off. I believe the majority of generalizations to be 50 per cent unsound. I am convinced that most of us ask questions and opinions of others not half as much for information as for approval of our own opinions.

I believe snobbery to be one of life's most human qualities. I don't believe we really even get to know anyone without mutual suffering. I really believe that beauty and horror are art's most valuable factors. I regard the art of living as the subtlest of all.

I believe the arm of coincidence to be far mightier than most of us realize. I am certain that some of life's best work is done under the head of relaxation. I believe very few people would work if they didn't have to.

I believe every experience is artistically valuable, the most irksome being usually worth the most. I have never considered the enjoyment of oneself a waste of time.

I believe that in nations, as in individuals, we are far more likely to be impressed by the bad points than by the good. I believe that the facilities of modern travel have made it increasingly difficult to escape the vulgarian.

I consider it far more selfish to cause another to accede to your wishes than to do as you yourself wish regardless of another. I believe that the grandest thrills are nine times in ten spontaneous. I believe we all forgive ourselves no matter what we may do.

I believe that the best intentions frequently bring about the saddest results. I believe that no two lives on earth have ever worked out alike. I believe almost nothing is as wonderful as we are likely to anticipate. I am convinced that the vanity of man is responsible for most of his triumphs, not to mention a still greater percentage of his defeats. I believe the habit of early rising to be the hardest of habits to acquire. I consider the sensation of drifting to sleep one of the grandest I know. I believe that the vast majority of us are governed completely by impulse and invent reasons for doing things in order to convince ourselves.

I don't believe that because a thing is of immense proportions, it is much better than one of vastly smaller size. I don't believe that happiness and success are in the slightest synonymous. I believe that less than one person in a million knows what he really wants. I know of few rules applicable to life worth a hobo's yawn and believe that one ounce of experience is worth a ton of pre-digested knowledge.

I believe that taking the line of least resistance makes both men and rivers crooked. I believe that unless you are "the boss," you can't say "yes" or "no" on any problem with authority.

I believe that a man can save 20 years of his life by studying the experience of others. I believe that the man who is not criticized isn't doing much for himself or for anybody else. I believe that those who sit around and wait for prosperity will always work for those who don't. I believe that if the time spent in wholesale criticism were concentrated on helpful cooperation, we would have a wonderful government.

I believe that a man or a business can become so careful and conservative as just naturally to sleep himself or itself to death. I have found that, as a general rule, it takes just as long to get out of any trouble as it took to get into it, and sometimes longer. I believe that politicians work on our prejudices instead of our judgments.

I believe that the size of a man can be measured by the size of the thing that makes him angry. I believe that money is made in the same way it is lost . . . by taking chances. I believe that if a person could have his wishes, he would treble his troubles. I believe that my—or any—country is all right while it tries to keep up with the one next door. The trouble starts when it tries to pass it by. I believe that the itching sensation that some people mistake for ambition is merely inflammation of the wishbone.

I believe that you may surround a skunk with plush and velvet, but he'll always be a skunk. I believe that the world's greatest water power is woman's tears. I believe that the seller is more price-conscious than the buyer. I believe that the real cost of anything is the amount of work required to earn the money to purchase it.

I believe that in investing money, it is best to remember that the amount of interest you want should depend on whether you want to eat well or sleep well. I believe that life is very much like a game of bridge: You must play the game with the hand that is dealt you; the greatest glory, after all, is winning with a poor hand and the greatest disgrace is losing with a good one. I believe that if a man's trousers wear out quicker than his shoes, he is making contact at the wrong end.

I believe the recipe for happiness to be just enough money to pay the monthly bills you acquire, a little surplus to give you confidence, a little too much work each day, enthusiasm for your work, a substantial share of good health, a couple of real friends, and a wife and children to share life's beauty with you.

FOUR RULES FOR SAFETY.

Driving a motor car would be a much safer and pleasanter occupation if every driver would follow these simple fundamental rules:

1. Observe the reasonable speed limits posted on the highway. If, however, road conditions are slippery, or otherwise bad, use common sense, decrease your speed and increase your caution.
2. Keep to the right—the "outer lane" on any thoroughfare, except when passing other cars. Many motorists seem entirely ignorant of what is meant by "outer lane." But more often it is a wilful heedlessness of rules and rights of others.
3. Pass the auto ahead only on its left-hand side and only after sounding horn. After passing do not swing back until you are far enough ahead to see this car in your rear view mirror. Disregard of this ruling is the cause of many fatal side-swiping accidents.
4. Drive only at safe speeds so that you can stop in plenty of time should emergency arise. Let your speed be determined by existing conditions, taking into consideration your car, the roadway, clarity of vision, the amount of traffic, and lastly YOURSELF.

Education of Children

Education of children is not an external thing, a writing upon blank paper, a planting of selected seed in receptive soil, but an inward growth, sustained and stimulated by experiences and activities of many kinds, the response to the whole of the child's surroundings.

Study Silversword to Solve Hawaii's Botanical Puzzle

Rare, Beautiful Plant Interests Scientists

WASHINGTON. — Silverswords, among the rarest and most beautiful of Hawaiian plants, constitute one of the world's prize puzzles in botany. Scientists of the Bernice Bishop Museum in Honolulu and of the Carnegie Institution of Washington, under the leadership of Dr. David D. Keck, have lately been making a new effort to get more definite facts about this spectacular plant's kinships and origin, for it is believed that through such data new light may be shed on the still greater scientific riddle of Hawaii's unique forms of plant life,

The silversword forms a ball-like cluster of narrow, sword-shaped leaves, white with a silvery coating of hairs. From this basal rosette there shoots up a three to six-foot flower stalk, thickly beset with blooms. The plant is a member of the huge botanical family known as the Compositae, which includes such familiar things as sunflowers, dandelions, artichokes, thistles, goldenrod, and lettuce.

Not of American Ancestry.

It has hitherto been considered more nearly related to the tarweeds, found on the Pacific coasts of both Americas, but Dr. Keck's researches now indicate that it is not, and that the silversword is more nearly related to the tree-like composites of Hawaii, a very remarkable group of plants whose nearest kindred are found far southwestwards across the Pacific, in Polynesia and the Australia-New Zealand region. The elimination of an American ancestry of the silverswords, and their assignment to an origin in a diametrically opposite direction, is considered an important step in plant geography.

Modern Baking Is Freed From Trial and Error Method

LONDON — How to tell what kind of bread a variety of flour will make before starting to bake it is told in recent researches by two British physical chemists, Drs. P. Halton, of the Research Association of British Flour Millers, and G. W. Scott Blair, of the physics department of Rothamstead experimental station.

The "shortness" of a dough determines many characteristics of a finished bread or cake. By determining this ease of tearing of the dough in a mechanical way it is hoped to bake even better products than those that "mother used to make."

Scientists have attacked the problem by learning something about the fundamentals of baking. They have found that a short dough—one that tears easily—has long, heavy fibers.

Novel Test Devised

To determine shortness accurately, they use an instrument that tells how easily dough will flow through a nozzle when the pressure that pushes it is increased. Using this tester, they find that they can make the dough shorter by adding lard, iron chloride, or a phosphate, and less short by adding amino acids. Most peculiar of these acids is cystine, which makes the dough fibers hang together by hooking the long, thin molecules in strands like a series of rope ladders.

The tests are more sensitive than are those of the baker, and more accurate. Furthermore, they are resulting in changed flour characteristics so that the finished product can be rigorously controlled.

Molasses Has High Nutritional Value

CALCUTTA — Molasses, cheap by-product of the sugar industry, has a higher nutritional value for human beings than the pure crystalized sugar that is sought as the principal product, declare Drs. J. C. Pal, N. M. Roy and B. C. Guha of the Calcutta Institute of Medical Research. They state that molasses has a notably high content of vitamin B, and C, and of calcium, phosphorus, and iron.

Safetygrams

By Fred W. Braun, The Safety Man

Very often we read about accidents that are caused by faulty brakes. We give the matter very little attention at the time and usually pass on to something else. Upon careful analysis of these accidents, you will find that nothing can be further from the truth.

Brakes do not get faulty all of a sudden. It is the process of wear and tear, hard and often unfair usage that makes them weak. The fault is not with the brakes, but with the driver.

There is usually plenty of warning when brakes begin to weaken, and when they do it is necessary to see that they are repaired or replaced at once.

After they have been tightened or relined, as the case may be, be sure that they are so adjusted that they will not burn or lock. Attend to those brakes in time.

Elephants and Donkeys

THE Republican and Democratic parties existed long before they had elephants and donkeys for party symbols. Although the Democratic party was formed in 1832, the first Democratic cartoon in which the emblem of the party was represented as a donkey did not appear until 1870.

It was a drawing by Thomas Nast in Harper's Weekly entitled "A Live Jackass Kicking a Dead Lion." The donkey was tagged "Copperhead Papers," and the dead lion represented Stanton, Lincoln's secretary of war. Stanton, who died the year before, had been embroiled in partisan politics, and Nast did not think that Democratic newspapers had the right to attack a man after he was dead. Nast's vitriolic cartoon made a big impression and the donkey has symbolized the Democratic party ever since.

Nast also drew the first picture of a Republican elephant. His cartoon, appearing in Harper's during the fall of 1874, was titled "The Third-Term Panic," and referred to the possibility of Ulysses S. Grant seeking a third term for president. A biblical inscription was used in conjunction, "An ass, having put on the lion's skin, roamed about in the forest, and amused himself by frightening all the foolish animals he met within his wanderings." One of the animals was an elephant.

This cartoon also attracted wide attention, and served to give the Republican party a permanent emblem, which political cartoonists have never replaced.

Laurel Leaves

Laurel leaves once were believed efficacious in preventing illness and the shelter of the tree was believed to ward off lightning. Early physicians held it in great esteem and considered it a panacea. In ancient Greece, when one had a dangerous disease, a branch of laurel was fastened over his door to avert death and drive away evil spirits. Young physicians were crowned with laurel berries (bacca lauri) and from this and the Latin baccalaureus (laure - berry) came our words "bachelor" and "laureate." The former designated a person not allowed to marry and the latter word was attached to official poets.

JUSTICE COURT

Julius Vasco was arrested at Monroe on Monday on the charge of the theft of 25 bushels of oats from the John Kenney farm, ½ mile north of Kingston. Vasco was apprehended shortly after the theft by a deputy sheriff at threshing time last August. When Vasco asked permission to secure a few bags from a grain elevator before accompanying the officer, the request was granted. He drove off in a truck and failed to return. He abandoned the truck near Marlette, officers say, and was not located until just recently. Monday night in justice court, Vasco was given his choice between paying fine and costs of $60.80 or spending 90 days in jail. He paid. It is said he realized $11.45 from the sale of the oats.

Sheriff George Jeffrey and Prosecuting Attorney Wills were in Grand Rapids a few days ago and secured a confession from Mrs. Esther Kuesel Miller, who admitted being implicated in the burglarizing of the Kemp general store in Unionville on August 3 last. Officers state that the woman was arrested on a breaking and entering charge in Grand Rapids. She formerly lived near Fairgrove.

European Powers Agree on Blockade of Spain to Insulate the War—Farm Tenant Program—Supreme Court Controversy Grows.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

© Western Newspaper Union.

SO FAR as the international non-intervention committee can do it, the war in Spain is now insulated. Representatives of 26 European nations agreed that no more volunteers for either side in the civil conflict should be permitted to enter the Iberian peninsula, effective at midnight February 20; and they laid plans for a complete blockade by land and sea that would prevent the importation of any more men or war munitions. Only Portugal dissented, objecting to establishment of frontier guards on her territory; Great Britain, France, Germany, Italy and Russia ignored the Portuguese protests and went ahead with the blockade plans, which are to be put into effect by March 6.

The decisions were reached after France delivered a virtual ultimatum to her fellow committee members to end their bickering and warned Italy she would not stand for "open invasion of Spain." The French were quick to place guards at all strategic points along the Franco-Spanish frontier.

The international naval patrols presumably will not have authority to stop vessels suspected of carrying arms and men to Spain, but will report ship movements to the committee for action and will place observers on the vessels to check cargoes.

Supposing this blockade to be successful, it may well be that the Spanish civil war will die of inanition. Then may be brought about that which the international committee seeks—international mediation between the insurgents and the loyalist government.

For the present both sides are renewing their efforts for decisive victory. The fascists, still driving hard at the "life line" that connects Madrid and Valencia, also are attacking the capital itself again. Their airplanes made two night bombing assaults on the city and its environs, killing a number of persons; and their artillery constantly shells the highways to Valencia.

The loyalist government, at its temporary seat in Valencia, took a new mandate of absolute power from all Popular Front parties and mobilized all available man power to oppose the insurgent forces. All military classes of the last five years were drafted for immediate war service.

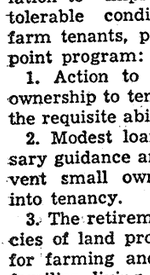
IN A special message to congress President Roosevelt urged legislation to "improve the present intolerable condition" of 3,000,000 farm tenants, presenting this four-point program:

1. Action to open the doors of ownership to tenants who now have the requisite ability and experience.
2. Modest loans, with the necessary guidance and education to prevent small owners from slipping into tenancy.
3. The retirement by public agencies of land proved to be unsuited for farming and assistance to the families living thereon in finding homes on good land.
4. Cooperation with state and local agencies of government to improve the general leasing system.

Congressional leaders promised immediate action, and Chairman Jones of the house agriculture committee said the Jones-Bankhead $500,000,000 farm tenant bill now before congress would be made the basis for the new legislation.

The President's farm tenancy committee, headed by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, recommended that congress make available "a definite sum each year for a number of years" for a land-purchase program, but mentioned no definite figure. Wallace said, however, he thought Jones' proposal for $50,000,000 annual appropriation for ten years is "reasonable."

THOUGH President Roosevelt persisted in his intention to force through congress his measure to "reform" the federal judiciary, law-makers who have been his warm supporters are coming out one by one in hot opposition to his plan to pack the Supreme court. Among them are Senator Bennett C. Clark of Missouri and Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana, both leading Democrats. They studied the scheme carefully before issuing their statements. The announcements of these men was scarcely offset by a radio address by Attorney General Homer S. Cummings, dutifully defending the President's plan.



Senator Clark

Senator Clark said he was entirely in accord with the minor proposals in Mr. Roosevelt's scheme, but was totally unable to agree with the provisions for packing the Supreme court.

Then came Senator Wheeler, stalwart radical, with a statement which it was reported he made public over the protests of the White House. He said in part:

"I am, always have been, and will continue to be opposed to the usurpation of legislative functions by the courts; I am, have been, and will be opposed to usurpation of legislative and judicial functions by the executive branch of the government.

"There is nothing democratic, progressive, or fundamentally sound in the proposal advanced by the administration."

Attorney General Cummings advanced these two reasons for supporting the President's proposal:

Atty. Gen. Cummings

New blood should be injected into the judiciary in order that the Constitution shall be construed in keeping with the changing needs produced by new complexities of national life.

The congestion of dockets in the federal courts is largely due to the inability of aged and infirm judges to perform their share of the work.

Investigation has shown, however, that the second reason is unsound.

Commenting on Mr. Cummings' speech, Senator Glass of Virginia said: "I think it indicates that the country is in infinitely greater need of an attorney general than of additional judges on the Supreme court or of judicial wet nurses for six of the present members of the court."

Senator Minton of Indiana defended the plan in a radio address but probably did it more harm than good, for he frankly admitted the purpose of the administration is to change the personnel and views of the Supreme court, in order that President Roosevelt's New Deal program will be held constitutional.

Other senators who came out against the President's plan were Nye of North Dakota, radical Republican; Bone of Washington, Democrat; Burke of Nebraska, Democrat; and Van Nuys of Indiana, Democrat. On the other side were McAdoo of California; Thomas of Utah and La Follette of Wisconsin.

Senators Bone and Wheeler introduced a resolution for a constitutional amendment that would give congress the power to override Supreme court decisions by a two-thirds vote of both houses, but only after a national election involving congressional seats has intervened so that the people have had a chance to speak on the issue.

The American Federation of Labor and Labor's Nonpartisan league declared their support of the court packing scheme, and the National Grange expressed its opposition. Legislatures of many states adopted resolutions for or against the plan, most of them being in opposition.

Mr. Roosevelt received several groups of senators, some of whom are among those opposing the packing of the Supreme court, and reiterated his intention to push his plan through congress without modification. He said the people had voted for a New Deal and were going to get it.

of collective bargaining, however, would be determined by an election. Commission members would receive $3,000 a year salary.

Commission Idea Is Popular—

The proposed labor relations commission is another "straw in the wind" of legislative trend, national as well as state, to have government administer through commissions.

Among the bills introduced at Lansing in the past two months are twelve that create commissions of from three to seven members with salaries from $2,500 to $7,500 . . . and many with power to appoint inspectors and incur expenses of travel and office help.

A flock of fair trade bills all call for a state commission. This method was recognized by the previous administration for control of liquor, handling of new social security laws, and drafting of civil service and relief reforms.

Creating a commission appears to be the popular legislative method of solving a problem.

Civil Service Coming?—

Endorsed by Gov. Frank Murphy as the headliner of his legislative program is the Pollock civil service bill. With refreshing candor the governor has pronounced his blessing on the civil service bill (and also the controversial welfare and relief bill) with this comment:

"These are excellent jobs that were performed by my predecessor and I think support for them in the legislature should be non-partisan."

In the state senate the present civil service reform is expected to encounter little opposition, but in the house ominous grumblings of protest are being heard.

The present bill would give present employees no preference in civil service examinations; they would have to take their chances in an examination along with Tom, Dick and Harry. Quoting Senator William Palmer (D) of Flint, chairman of state affairs committee: "If present employees were 'blanketed in' by this bill, I would oppose it in every way I could."

Mortgage, Contract Moritoria—

Effective immediately and "in the nick of time" are twin legislative measures, signed last Thursday by Governor Murphy, which grant 20 months more "breathing time" to forestall foreclosure of mortgages and contracts where such relief is deemed necessary by the court.

The house bill had proposed a straight two years' extension from March 1, 1937. But Senator D. Hale Brake (R), senate judiciary chairman, pointed out that the 1939 expiration date would coincide with a session of state legislature and hence would be subject to political pressure for a further moratorium extension. Said Senator Brake: "We would keep on until the year 2000 and someone would complain about ever ending this moratorium period."

Judiciary Reform "Shelved"—

The April election will not afford Michigan residents an opportunity to support or reject the State Bar's proposal for appointment of supreme court and circuit judges. The state senate, supporting a motion by Sen. Miles Callahan (R), tabled the bills.

Although leaders of the Michigan bar, led by President Roscoe Bonisteel of Ann Arbor, Past President Robert Hudson of Sault Ste. Marie and O. L. Smith of Detroit protested the action, several members pointed out that the Michigan judicial reform might be confused by the public with President Roosevelt's judicial reform.

Miscellany—

State aid of $1,250,000 annually for public libraries throughout Michigan is proposed by Senator William Palmer, majority floor leader.

Constitutional amendment exempting food, medicine or farm implements from the state retail sales tax is proposed by Senator Joseph C. Roosevelt (D), Detroit.

Measure No. 3 to break through the legislative jam was a $8,950,000 deficiency appropriation bill. Largest items: $6,000,000 for emergency relief and $500,000 for national guard in Flint.

HOW ARE You TODAY

DR. JAMES W. BARTON Talks About

Getting Rid of Fat.

IT IS hard for some of our overweight friends to understand why fat can cause any harm to the body. To them it is simply a layer of fat lying under the skin which gives the body a nice roundness instead of having bony parts stand out too prominently.

Dr. Barton

What they forget is that all the fat is not deposited under the skin or even around the organs — kidneys, heart and others—but some fat is actually deposited right within the cells of an organ—not between the cells—and so interferes with the action of the organ.

Now it is not hard to understand that if fat tissue—which does no work—gets into the cell substance it is bound to interfere with the work of the cell.

So if overweights want to keep young in appearance and feeling they would be wise to cut down gradually on their food intake, because every overweight can get rid of some weight (fat and water) if he or she has the will power to cut down on certain kinds of food—fats, starches, and liquids.

It isn't easy to cut down on fat building foods because they are the foods usually liked most. Also it is discouraging to cut down on foods for a week or two and not see much reduction (if any) in weight.

This failing to greatly reduce weight after "starving" themselves one or two weeks has confused and discouraged many overweights who have faithfully followed the reducing diet prescribed by their physician. However, "careful studies have established that water may be retained to an extent that will keep the body weight constant or at the same level when the individual has cut down his food intake by as much as one-third to one-half for as long as sixteen days."

The Water Balance.

Weight, day by day, will give no sign that reduction is being accomplished. This is because what is called the water balance must be established. At the end of the sixteen day period the individual may suddenly lose sufficient water to reduce his weight by the amount expected as judged by the amount of food eaten. Thus instead of losing 2 to 3 pounds each week — the usual rate of loss — there is no loss for sixteen days and then 5 to 7 pounds is lost within a few hours.

Others will cut down on all kinds of foods, fail to eat enough meat or eggs to sustain their strength, and will feel so weak in a few days that they give up the reducing diet in despair.

There are others who would like to try "short cuts" to reduce weight—dinitrophenol, thyroid extract, pituitary extract—which if not taken under proper supervision, often bring misery and ill health. The proper method is to be examined by the family physician and if pronounced "fit" to undergo the diet outlined, then follow it faithfully, reporting at regular intervals to the physician.

Whether it is because "misery loves company" or that seeing others as fat or fatter than oneself faithfully following rules and regulations, it is a fact that in sanitariums, spas, or "watering places" many overweights get better results than can be obtained by themselves.

The thought then is that when the overweight has difficulty working alone, finds it hard to "stick" to the reduced diet, feels very weak at times, going to a spa or similar institution and seeing others courageously fighting their battle may give him or her the needed courage to fight their battle also. Because it is a battle.

Foods That Cause Distress.

One of the points one suffering with indigestion must remember is that because a food disagrees with him it doesn't mean that it is not a good food. There is nothing wrong with the food but there is something wrong with the individual.

Dr. Albert H. Rowe, San Francisco, in Southern Medical Journal reports an analysis of 2,000 students at University of California, and also his results in private patients during a period of fifteen years.

Of 270 patients showing stomach and intestine disturbances due to certain foods, 30 per cent were male and 70 per cent female. Of this 270 cases, 232, more than 85 per cent, had food dislikes or diagreements, 80 per cent had stomach disturbances, 60 per cent had pain or soreness and 43 per cent had constipation.

To find out what foods are causing the disturbances may take months or even years and much patience on the part of the physician and the patient. By gradually leaving out these disturbing foods, and getting the patient free from symptoms, the foods known to be the cause are gradually eaten again in very small amounts so that the patient develops a tolerance (ability to eat them without disturbance) for them.

WHY MICHIGAN FARMERS SHOULD GROW BEETS

Commenting on some of the reasons why Michigan farmers should engage in sugar beet growing, the February issue of the Sugar Beet Journal, carries the following editorial:

"During recent years, wide publicity has been given to the numerous reasons why every farmer, who finds it possible and practical to grow sugar beets, should engage in the production of this essential, non-surplus and profitable crop. In brief, practically every farmer, in the sugar beet producing areas, knows that the direct benefits from sugar beet growing are materially greater than those accruing from the production of any other major farm crop.

"Unfortunately, however, little consideration has been given to the fact that every ton of sugar beets produced in the United States means much to the welfare and prosperity of the community, county, state and nation. For example, in addition to increasing the purchasing power of the sugar beet growers, every ton of sugar beets produced provides employment for agricultural workers, truckers, railroad employees, oil producers, miners, quarrymen, cotton growers, textile workers, bag makers, and for wage-earners engaged in the growing of sugar beets, the processing of beet sugar, and the delivery of the finished product to the ultimate consumer.

"In addition, every ton of sugar beets produced contributes to the welfare and prosperity of everyone, in every business which plays any part in the production, processing and distribution of the sugar extracted from sugar beets. Thus, while we may properly emphasize the direct benefits accruing to the farmer who engages in sugar beet growing, let us remember that every ton of sugar beets produced is, in actuality, new wealth which is distributed far and wide and which contributes to increasing the purchasing power of American agriculture, labor and industry."

MILLINERY TUNES TO NEW COIFFURE

Especially Flatters New Halo Hair Dress Style.

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Many of the midseason hats now showing have crowns designed especially to flatter the new halo hair dress which interprets latest smart hair styling. New types for midseason and spring include berets with streamlined visors, sailors with cunning veils, bonnet shapes with off-face brims, turbans and the extremely popular pillbox shapes.

Blue, gray and beige are important and strong colors, with emphasis on purplish navy. Materials for midseason and early spring are such as can be manipulated readily for timely fashion "firsts", such as beltings, heavy silks and straw fabrics. Later exotics, especially toyos, will come into play.

French milliners are all enthusiasm in regard to veils. They are advocating not only conservative types but fantastic veil trimmings are enlivening the mode also, in some instances veils are actually shoulder depth.

To conform to the new way of combing the hair, that is, curls in a roll about the head brought high in front, there is a tendency to give hats off-face pose. The new bretons look smart worn this way.

Recent arrivals from Paris foretell an interesting use of flowers. Also hats of same material as scarf or blouse are shown, especially in the new prints that flavor of the oriental. Then too, there is a movement to match shoes and hats in regard to color. It is going to be an easy matter to match up accessories this season since style creators are entering into a united effort to bring this about.

METAL-MESH KNIT

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

The girl who wears this knitted costume with its metal heraldic accessories must not be timid for she can't escape being picked out in a crowd, for her individual chic. In this photographed model chain-guarded belt and gargoyle buttons are further emphasized by a blouse of steel metal-mesh to simulate the coat of mail worn by brave warriors of old. Decorative buttons, hooks and clasps, belt fastenings and other trimmings with a practical purpose fashioned of old coin silver or gilt metal in heraldic designs provide a sure and certain style touch to current modes. The idea of the waistcoat or blouse of knitted metal mesh is well worth following up by those who seek the latest in fashion.

FLASHES FROM PARIS

Short fur capes are much in evidence.

Lower crowns tune to the new hairdress.

Brief boleros of matching fabric top dresses day and evening.

Resort Wardrobes Inspire Clothes of Stay-at-Homes

Every woman who sees the clothes on display in the shops these days must be tempted to drop whatever she is doing and book passage for a southern cruise or start trekking northward for the winter sports. Of course, not many are able to carry out these little whims.

However, sooner or later most of the pleasure-seeker's clothes will find their way into the wardrobes of the stay-at-homes. Take those gay Tyrolean sweaters, for instance. Originally designed to protect skiers and skaters from harsh winter winds, they were joyfully adopted by hordes of confirmed radiator-huggers.

Where Speech Comes From

Actual speech, so far as is known, is an exclusive accomplishment of human beings. It requires not only the ability to make finely differentiated sounds, but also the ability to associate them in the memory with objects, ideas and emotions, according to a scientist. A part of the cortex known as Broca's area is believed by most neurologists to be the brain center of this associative process. It is found in both right and left frontal lobes of the brain, in regions marked off from the rest of the cortex by depressions known to anatomists as the "inferior frontal sulci."
