CASS CITY OIL CO. IN PROSPEROUS YEAR

Declare 10% Dividend, Nearly Double Inventory, Retire $1,500 Capital Stock.

City Oil and Gas Company are being handed checks covering a 10% dividend for the past year's business which closes this month.

In addition to the dividend, the purchase of new equipment, the increase of stock inventory, the retirement of capital stock and improvements to the service station indicate that the past year has been a very prosperous one for the com-

Two new trucks were added to the company's delivery system, the stock inventory was increased from $5,000 to $9,000, and $1,500 in capital stock was retired from this year's earning. Repairs and improvements to the service station and buildings caused an outlay of $500. Among the improvements was the arrangement of a display room for refrigerators, washers, ironers and other merchandise at the north end of the service sta-

ELEVATOR MEN IN BANQUET HERE MON.

Local Company Was Presented with $800 Patronage Dividend Check.

Forty-three men representing elevator companies holding stock in the Michigan Elevator Exchange attended a banquet at the Hotel Gordon in Cass City Monday evening. This was one of four annual district meetings held in the state when dividend checks are distributed and the methods of exchange are discussed by officials of the organi-

Following the dinner, L. E. Osborn, manager of the Michigan Elevator Exchange, and Mr. Yager, representing the Michigan Farm Bureau, gave addresses. Moving pictures showing the progress of the exchange in the state were thrown on the screen here Monday

The exchange is a cooperative organization of Michigan elevator companies. It handles about onethird of the beans and grains grown in Michigan on a brokerage basis. Patronage dividends are paid this bushel of grain.

The Farm Produce Company of Cass City is a member of the exchange and the company's dividend on the grain and beans sold through the exchange the past year amounted to approximately $800.00. A check for that amount was given to Frank Reid, manager of the local company, on Monday evening.

WHY =Greek Drapenies Were Always Highly Prized. The Greeks were geniuses at dressmaking. The draped style of dress that they evolved became "one of the most ingenious, carefully considered, and individualistic fashions ever conceived." Why Greek draperies rate so highly in clothes history is explained by Miss Isabel Spaulding of the Brooklyn museum's education division, says Science Service. The Greeks, she points out, had their clothing made to measure. A simple rectangle of cloth for a tunic or a mantle was woven to the actual measurements of the individual, and "one man's size was apt to be another man's downfall." The clothing business depended vitally on mathematics.

As for the arranging of a garment; that called for knowledge of line and proportion and neat balance of light and shade, in order to produce the elegant effect that fastidious Greeks aimed for.

The Greeks, Miss Spaulding emphasizes, were no child-like people in their attitude toward dress. They understood well the importance of adapting clothing to the architecture of the human form.

Egyptians constructed their costumes on the same principle as points out. This is not widely recognized, because Egyptian draping was so varied, and often so complicated. How some of the effects were produced is still not fathomed by those who have tried to imitate the fashions shown in Egyptian art.

Why Pearls Were Loved

by Women Through Ages Love for pearls among the Greeks can be traced back to the time of Homer, who wrote, "Earrings bright with triple drops that cast a twinkling light." Fragile, exquisite, delicate, feminine, enhancing the coloring and skin texture of the wearer. Modest, unpretentious above all, flattering, charming. This is why through all the ages men and women have loved pearls.

Years are required to match a perfect strand. King Humbert of Italy gave his queen, Elena, one fine pearl every year. Over this purchase the king, himself a lover of pearls, spent many long hours. With the succession of these lovely presents the queen found herself the possessor of one of the finest royal collections of pearls in Eu-

In the Roman period pear-shaped pearls were most highly valued; in the middle of the Eighteenth century round pearls were more esteemed. In the Nineteenth century both were valued on the same basis.

Why Colors Dominate

That colors have an effect on our physical and mental condition is now an accepted fact, asserts a writer in Pearson's London Weekly. Witness the use which has been made of certain colors in treating various nervous disorders and diseases of the body. For example, panes of glass are covered with red paper in a room in which a patient with smallpox is lying. This has the effect of preventing those disfiguring pockmarks in the skin which are so common in sufferers who have not been protected in this way. This domination of color has even found its way into our speech. Thus, when a man becomes very angry, we say he "sees red"; if he is disheartened he "feels blue"; if he is very well, he is "in the pink."

Why Cigars Are So Called

The word cigar is Spanish and is derived from "cigarra," the Spanish name for grasshopper. When the Spaniards first introduced tobacco into Spain from Cuba, they cultivated the plant in their gardens, which in Spanish are called "cigarrals." Each grew his tobacco in his cigarral. When one offered a smoke to a friend, he would say, "Es de mi cigarral," that is, it is from my garden. Soon the expression came to be: "Este cigarro es de mi cigarral," this "cigar" is from my garden. The grasshopper place where the cigarra sings.

Why Sun's Rays Appear Red

The color of the sun is no different at various times of the day. The reason it appears redder at sunrise and sunset lies in the fact that when the sun is near the horizon its rays have to travel a greater distance through the earth's atmosphere than at noon. In traveling through so much atmosphere, the light rays are dispersed, and the shorter rays, such as blue, indigo and violet, are lost; while the red rays (the longest) are the only ones capable of permeating so much atmosphere. The result is that the sun appears red, for more red rays than any other reach the eye. - Pearson's London Weekly.

Why Fork Has Two Prongs An ordinary fork not only has to hold our food while we cut it, but also has to convey it to our mouths, but a carving fork merely has to hold the meat while the knife does the work. And so, not to make too many fork-holes in the meat, only two prongs are provided.

Why It Is Nanking Cloth The name of the "nankeen" cotton cloth is derived from Nanking, the city in which it was originally manufactured.

SEAS EATING AWAY ENGLAND'S CLIFFS

Ominous Movement of Coasts Causing Alarm.

London.-Coincident with the startling news that Scotland is drifting westward at the rate of ten feet a year, there is a more realistic and ominous movement of the coasts of England. It is the crumbling of the cliffs-the "White Walls of England"-into the sea. A constant erosion is going on which is greatly accelerated in winters of high winds and tides, such as this winter has been. Just recently 80,000 tons of cliff fell on the beach at one place in Norfolk, carrying people, houses and cattle with it. On that same coast there are several small communities which have been forced to retreat inland by the undermining and encroachment of the sea. In other places, persons reluctant to lose their homes are undergoing the danger of being swept to death. On nights when there are gales they tremble to think that any moment everything they own and hold dear may start sliding into the sea. In Yorkshire, between Flambor-ough and Spurn Head, the sea is regularly eating away fifteen feet of land a year. Thirty - five villages the Greeks, Miss Spaulding also have been devoured by the waves.

Selsey Bill, one of the promontories which tourists see as they approach or leave England, is another danger spot. Already it is four miles shorter than it was 100 years ago. Deserted houses on its furthermost point are tottering on their foundations. Nothing known to science or engineering can stop the process for long. Concrete walls and fills have been swept away.

serts he has developed a substitute

The amateur chemist is Frederic . Hoyer, and, as one example of the manner in which his "gas substitute" will benefit the world, says general use of his "gas" would greatly reduce, if not erase entirely, deaths from monoxide fume poison-

In a recent demonstration of his discovery, Hoyer, accompanied by his attorney, A. F. Burkardt, and a reporter, drove a car with standard equipment fourteen and one-half miles on a gallon of ordinary gasoline, and one-tenth of a mile more on a gallon of what he said was his 'gasoline substitute.''

At the completion of the last demonstration, Burkardt declared: "Well, as far as we are concerned, this new fuel is perfected."

Perfected Hydraulic Brakes . . . Greatest Pulling Power in Their Price Range . . . New Steelstream Styling

Thousands of Chevrolet users will tell you that the best answer to your transportation needs is—Chevrolet trucks!

Chevrolet trucks have the greatest pulling power in their price range . . . because they have a New High-Compression Valve-in-Head Engine which wrings the last ounce of power out of every gallon of fuel.

Chevrolet trucks are the most economical for all-round duty . . . because they give maximum gas and oil mileage, and will keep on serving over a long period with minimum care and attention.

And Chevrolet trucks are safer, more modern, more durable . . . because they're the only low-priced trucks with Perfected Hydraulic Brakes, New Steelstream Styling, and extra-strong Chevrolet construction throughout.

An Open-Air Cafe in Peiping.

Prepared by National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—WNU Service. ILLIAM THE CONQUER-OR, cider, omelets, Mont St. Michel-these are features of Normandy that come to mind with the name of that old province of France. You accent, thus unconsciously, history, art, and refreshment.

Cherbourg, the port where Normandy seems to thrust its nose impudently upward-what does it mean to the ocean traveler? So much weariness of the flesh in connection with embarking and debarking that one is glad to be off. But things are to be seen there, and Cherbourg is a gentle introduction to the heady sights farther on.

It is here that one becomes aware of the value of the fishing industries as a social center. The chatter, both shrill and thunderous, that goes with the business is by no means the least of the interest.

It is not perfunctory, this fish selling by the men of the boats and their wives. Emotion turns the card in many a sale, for if Jean, the seller, takes offense at the low offer of a retailer, he growls a refusal to trade; and if Ginette displays her wares with enticing good nature, she laughingly reaps a big handful of coins for the deep pocket concealed in her ample wool skirt.

And of course there is the exchange of local gossip. Where a few white-capped women gather the talk runs highest, for the woman who retains the bonnet of her ancestors is usually one who prefers word-of-mouth to newsprint or radio. It is a pity the caps are passing. The faces, ruddy and perhaps too irregular, look better when topped with picturesqueness than when frankly unadorned.

In Cherbourg, too, one comes upon the sight of women washing at a public fountain. That is a matter that always interests. How can they work in cold water? What a boon' it would be to these hard-working women if a little hot water were supplied! If you have ever watched them at work you have seen grim

In Apple Blossom Time.

In the very first miles out of Cherbourg the charm of Normandy begins to assert itself. Suppose it be May, what is the enchantment? The apple trees. They are everysprigged muslins.

The country is full of 'ittle hills, so that each farm has its slopes and its brooks, among which stand the blooming trees. And all this loveliness produces the cider which is the wine of the Norman country and one of its big products.

The farmhouses themselves are approached by these saucy trees which flaunt sprays of pink against the old gray stones. You get an impression that all farmhouses are near cousins of old castles. Their size is often prodigious to American eyes, accustomed as we are to the wooden farmhouse. The wide sweep of well-cut gray stone walls has a dignity of other days. A round tower, which seems to be set on some part of the building, rises from the ground, a separate entity, yet an indispensable part of the whole. It may be intensely agrarian in its intent, in its interior uses, but it vividly suggests the old story of the castle tower in which a fair damsel was confined in cautious protection, a protection naughtily defeated by the maiden's letting down her hair as a ladder to a waiting lover. Even the livestock of the Norman country is conspicuously different from the accustomed. The gait of the immense Percherons sets a pace for the work of the farmer, who is ever shouting to them a strange sound, "Hue!" delivered with reproach or scorn. Magnificent animals they are, but never to be hurried, whether at the plow or along the roads.

As a farmer can go no faster than his horse, his life is regulated by the Percheron. Will he some day exchange this placid power for a hurrying Ford or Citroen? A light horse built for speed, perhaps five miles an hour, is used for the high-wheeled hooded carts which take folks to market on a market day. Sometimes real beauty hides in these excluding hoods. At Honfleur one sees it often.

Buckwheat, But No Cakes.

The Norman fields are red and white with buckwheat. It is an important crop, but raised for local sustenance. To Americans, the word "buckwheat" means just one thing-griddlecakes, light and brown, eaten with a bit of savory sausage or drenched with melting butter and sweetened with that divine essence of the woods, maple

But in Normandy the buckwheat cake is unknown. Some mission-ary from the North Woods should teach its mixture, or make a pile of "stacked griddles" such as old soggy, putty-colored. The call of Mont St. Michel is a call to the heart. You may go hither and you through France, seeing castles and monuments, flowered lanes and bewitching rivers, but always is felt the tug toward Mont St. Michei, often called, less formally, "the Mount" or "the Adirondack guides can cook. The way buckwheat is used in Normandy is to make of it a sort of bread,

Unresisting, you at last find yourself straight down the coast from Cherbourg at the little town of Avranches, from which the happy pilgrim gets his first glimpse of the Mount.

Avranches is set on a sudden hill. and to reach its gems of interest the road sweeps upward on the steeps. In so doing it passes a library. That seems prosaic until into one's mind flashes the remembrance that it is here that great treasures of the Mount have found safe harbor after disturbing conflicts. Here are parchments written in the twelve hundreds.

Here, too, is the work of the monk, Abelard, whose love for Heloise is even better remembered than his treatise, "Sic et Non"-such is the delight one takes in romance.

Up the hill is the Plate-forme, a name which sounds dull enough until, as one stops to survey it, its history comes back from some pigeonhole of the mind. What an astounding chapter of history it commemorates, this simple stone platform ringed about with chains! It is all that is left of the great cathedral which was taken down in 1799 as it began to collapse.

This spot, the Plate-forme, was just before the cathedral door, and it was here in 1172 that the King of England, Henry II, knelt before the prelates and emissaries of the pope to atone for the murder of Thomas a Becket in Canterbury Cathedral. The king, having been excommunicated, was not allowed to prostrate himself before the gorgeous company from the Vatican within the building, but had to remain outside until their absolution was given him; and on his royal knees, which ached miserably.

The Sands of Mont St. Michel.

The time to see Mont St. Michel is at any time when you find yourself near. If a chance to see it is given, even if it be midnight or winter, the sight should not be missed. But if a choice of times can be made, then the time of high tides is that time. And if there is a moon, and one can spend the night on the Rock, then sightseeing has reached its ultimate.

From Avranches the view resolves itself into a map of the Bay of Mont St. Michel and that great space of sand from which the tide recedes. For 22 miles, from Avranches to Cancale on the Brittany side, extend these tidal sands; and in the middle of all this flatness. as if floating in the sky like a mirage, rises the granite rock of Mont St. Michel. Two hundred and fifty feet it towers, and man-made structures have increased its height to 498 feet.

The curious and seeking observer can also note from afar the three distinct tiers on the Rock. First above the waters are the ramparts, splendid in their medieval strength; next, the band of clustered houses, "clinging like limpets to a rock;" and then the buttressed Merveille and the crown of towers and turrets resting on that marvel of ma-

And just as the Rock has three tiers of architectural interest, the three tiers represent three purposes -fortress, prison, and abbey.

Pontorson, lying on the little river Couesnon, is the place of departure for the Mount. There one would take to the sea, were it not for the causeway of approach, built across sand and water.

In olden times-it can be done now if the traveler likes risk of wetting-the only way to reach the Rock was to walk or ride across the exposed wet sand. Even kings and bishops came that way, risking tides and quicksands. Fancy Louis XI snatching up his long gray robes and picking his way among the salt

After centuries of wet feet and floundering horses, energy was expended to bank high a causeway and on this to run a little train from Pontorson. And now motor cars by hundreds and even airplanes alight like butterflies on the sands by the ramparts.

Myths and Folklore.

Myths and superstitions linger about many bridges. Since people often die in floods, the Romans looked on a bridge as an infringement on the rights of the river gods to take their toll. Hence, human beings first, then effigies, were thrown into the flooded Tiber by priests, while vestals sang to appease the river gods. In parts of China today

Sir Mark Sykes records this legend of a bridge under construction which had fallen three times. "This bridge needs a life," said the workmen.

"And the master saw a beautiful girl, accompanied by a bitch and her puppies, and he said, 'We will give the first life that comes by."

But the dog and her little ones hung back, so the girl was built alive into the bridge, and only her hand with

It was Peter of Colechurch, a monk in charge of the "Brothers of the Bridge," who built the Old London bridge. It was a queer structure, with rows of high wooden houses flanking each side, overhang-not without local disputes.

Prepared by National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—WNU Service. EW works of man more profoundly affect his destiny than does the bridge.

An empire was at stake when Xerxes threw his pontoons across the Hellespont, and Rome's long arm stretched over Europe when Caesar's army bridged the Rhine. Lack of pontoons on which to cross the Seine, Napoleon complained, kept him from ending a war. Our own Gen. Zachary Taylor reminded the War department that its failure to send bridge materials had prevented him from "destroying the Mexican army.'

Yet history, being so largely the annals of wars, fails to emphasize the importance of bridges in everyday life. When you reflect how bridges now make travel easy and swift between towns, cities, stateseven between nations where rivers form frontiers-you feel that few other devices conceived by man serve more to promote understanding and mutual progress.

Ride the air across America and see how bridges dot the map. If the day be clear half a dozen may be in sight at once. From culverts over backwoods creeks to steel giants that span broad rivers, you see a bridge of some kind wherever rails or highways cross a watercourse. How many bridges of all kinds America has, nobody knows. No official count exists. United States army engineers, concerned only with bridges that span navigable rivers of the United States. have more than 6,000 on their list.

Look down on any river city, such as Pittsburgh; see the steady twoway traffic that flows over its bridges. like lines of ants marching. Think of the jams, the chaos in traffic, should all bridges suddenly Trace the bridge through history and you see how its development is an index to man's social and mechanical advance.

The Urge Is to Get Across. Fallen trees, chance stepping stones, or swinging vines formed his first bridges. He used them in flight from enemies, to hunt, fight, or steal a wife on his own predatory quest. Fantastic old woodcuts even show us living chains of monkeys swinging from tree to tree across jungle creeks! To get across, even as when the waters parted and Israel's Children walked dry-shod primary urge. To this day, as in parts of Tibet, Africa and Peru, men still cross dizzy canyons on bridges of twisted grass and wild vines. Yet the function of these primitive structures is the same as that of the new Golden Gate bridge or the new giant at Sydney, Australia. They carry man

We do not know who built the first bridge. At the end of the reign of Queen Semiramis, about 800 B. C., an arched bridge spanned the Euphrates at Babylon. The legendary "Hanging Gardens," some say, consisted of trees and plants set along the roadway of this wide bridge. Explorers at Nebuchadnezzar's palace at Babylon found no traces of any bridge. Yet the use of the arch is very old thereabouts; you see proof of this in the amazing ruins of Ctesiphon palace, east of Babylon, where the vaulted ceiling of the grand banquet hall, still standing, is 85 feet high.

Romans left us fine examples of the ancient arch bridge. To this day their masonry work is unsurpassed for strength and beauty; some of their early stone bridges are still in use. Only in recent times came cast iron, steel, and cables. In our own country it was the advent first of railways and then of improved highways for motor cars and trucks which was to strew bridges from coast to coast.

In the pioneer's bold trek to our Middle West and beyond, they forded streams or used crude ferryboats drawn by cables. Often the fortyniners swam their horses and oxen. and floated their heavy wagons by lashing logs on either side of the wagon boxes. Covered wagons bound for the "Indian Territory" camped at fords to rest, wash clothes, swap horses and shoe them, and to soak their tires. Today steel bridges span many such creeks; across them whiz motor cars, so fast that passengers barely catch even a glimpse of the streams that once seemed so wide.

Built for Railroads.

Train riders, asleep or busy with books and cards, are rushed for 20 miles over the famous Salt Lake cut-off of the pioneer Union Pacific railway. The "world's longest bridge structure," it is called. Stand this trestle on end and it would reach so high that men on the ground could not even see the top of it! Most new bridges we now build are for highways. But when you the stream. ocal Happenings

Cooking the Cook

Cooking for years has been to a great extent that of cooking the cook.

This condition can be eliminated since it is caused by unregulated heat that is radiated from portions of the appliance that were not designed to retain the heat.

Electric Ranges are correctly engineered and designed so that all heat is definitely directed to the job of cooking the food and not the cook.

Cooking electrically is pleasurable cooking. It is also clean, safe, cool and economical.

Do not change your cooking appliances without first investigating the merits offered by the Electric Range.

Freedom from household chores and caring for the family for a week is in store for Michigan farm women attending Farm Women's week on the Michigan State College campus, July 25 to 30.

During this time the women will attend general meetings, receive instruction in phases of home economics which they may elect, participate in a "hobby series" of meetings, and take part in recreational facilities offered for summer session students.

Arrangements are being made to nouse the women in various college dormatories and in East Lansing homes. Information on the 1937 Farm Women's week may be obtained by writing the short course office, Michigan State College, East Lansing.

Indians Blamed for Soil Losses

Indians who stalked game hundreds of years ago near Benton Harbor probably never heard of soil erosion. If they had, they wouldn't have burned over the woodlands. Wind and water erosion are acute agricultural problems in this area and other parts of the state, largely because of the removal of timber, foresters say.

Recent tests by the soil conservation service on the Jessie Morgan farm in Berrien County show that woodlands in this region were burned over periodically by Indians in order to make their hunting easier. The older trees in the stand show a decided decrease in growth for certain periods over 100 years ago. Another proof that burning took place, according to foresters, is in the dense understory of dogwood and other undesirable species.

Demonstration of proper methods of timber stand improvement is a part of the erosion control program being carried out by the federal government in Berrien County. The soil conservation service selected a portion of the Morgan farm for tests and demonstrations. OF YOUR HAND

By Leicester K. Davis @ Public Ledger, Inc

OCCASIONALLY one meets man or woman who seems to delight in applying elaborate rules of reasoning to practically everything in life. And yet despite this ceaseless analyzing, such an individual never seems to get much accomplished. The reason, of course is that so much mental effort and time are consumed in the dissection of whys and wherefores that initiative and action which get things done are bound to suffer.

Look carefully at the second finger of such a person and very likely you will find the characteristics which this lesson points out.

The Overlogical Finger of Saturn. Excessive length and leanness, protruding knotty knuckles and absence of flexibility are the outstanding indications in this type of second finger.

With the fingers extended and pressed together such a finger of Saturn will be found to have far greater length than that of the forefinger, which sometimes seems quite dwarfed by comparison. The spaces between the knuckles seem disproportionately long. The nail is usually narrow or "pinched" in form and is often deeply set.

A second finger of this type usually inclines toward the forefinger when the hand is extended.

One may look for hyperlogical mentality with second fingers of this type, one that is likely to carry logic far beyond normal bounds, and in business particularly one

Treatment of Rheumatism

DR. JAMES W. BARTON

OO WIDESPREAD is the Interest in rheumatism that there are medical specialists who treat nothing else. It is known that there are one hundred of these 3 rheumatism specialists in the United States aside from physicians at spas or "watering places" where rheumatic patients make up the majority of cases being treated.

The idea is now general that rheumatism is not a local disease of a certain joint, but that something somewhere in the body tissues is causing the trouble and the organisms or substances responsible for rheumatism simply go to the joint or joints and develop the inflammation (arthritis) in the joint.

Just what are the Dr. Barton causes is not known but it is almost generally accepted that infections, deficiencies and dampness, injuries, may all have a part. Something renders the tissues sensitive to, or unable to resist, the attack of certain organisms. Infected Tonsils. It is almost generally agreed that infected tonsils stand at the top of the list as a cause of rheumatism in children. It is therefore advised that the tonsils be removed in every child attacked by rheumatism. Statistics show that the child who has had his tonsils out is less likely to have rheumatism and therefore serious heart complications are less likely to develop.

Although diet and the use of the salicylates enter into the treatment, physical therapy—heat of various kinds, and massage—offers the most relief.

It is because rheumatism cripples the patient and becomes "chronic" that so many patients try various forms of treatment often given under unskilled supervision. As the exercise and the amount of time spent in going to institutions to get the joints "bakes," massaged, or exercised prevents many from receiving this form of treatment, it has been suggested that teams of rheumatism experts - physicians, nurses, and those qualified to give physical therapy—go among local physicians and teach this type of treatment.

Types of Overweight.

No one has been able to get out a height, weight and age table that will apply to every single individclose to a good table that will apply in a general way to the "average" individual but there really isn't any average individual.

In trying to arrive at the proper weight for one of a certain height and age there are so many points to consider. Thus in children it is their nearness to, or farness from, the age of puberty when they attain manhood and womanhood. In young men and women it is the age at which they seem to "fill out," when they get an extra padding of muscle and fat.

After thirty, for some reason, it has been believed that it is quite the proper thing for them to fill out even more and attain "the middle-age spread." There is no "real" reason for putting on this extra weight at this time.

Then there are the three types of build: (a) long legs, short body; (b) short legs, long body; (c) melium length of legs and medium length of body. In addition to this there is the difference in bony structure; short and tall individuals with thin bones; short and tall individuals with heavy bones; and short and tall individuals with bones of medium weight.

Now there are the few individuals who have a thyroid gland in the neck or the pituitary gland lying on the floor of the skull, which are not manufacturing enough juice for the needs of the body. In the case of the thyroid gland it means that there is a little less of the burning up or the use of all kinds of foods and in the case of the pituitary gland the starch foods are not completely used, thus allowing storage of fat. However, the number of these individuals would be less than 5 per cent of the total number of overweights.

There is also a number of individuals who are said to come from a "fat family"; they consider it only natural to be fat because their parents, uncles and aunts, or even their grandparents were quite fat. Most physicians are of the opinion that their parents, grandparents or other relatives were fat because they had the same diet habits-ate too much of the starch and fat foods for the amount of work that they

However, the great majority of overweights are overweight because despite the fact that some may not be big eaters, every one of them is eating more than he or she needs to supply heat and energy to the

How Old Can We Live to Be?

An article in The American Weekly, with the June 20 issue of The Detroit Sunday Times, points out that bald people never live to be 100; that old age is creeping up when you cannot hear keys rattle . . . and explains other things that sidetrack us prematurely if we start out with a through ticket to the century mark.—Advertisement.

COSTLY INATTENTION.

A cat may look at a king, it is said. Yes, and perhaps, pity him for his misfortunes.

King Leopold took his eyes off the curving road merely to glance at a map beside him, but it was time enough for the powerful car to dash off the pavement and overturn, with fatal consequences. The life of the Queen of Belgium, who was sitting beside him, was sacri-

There are a thousand things to distract the attention from careful driving. You may be listening to the chatter of friends in the back seat. You may think the scenery more interesting than the traffic that may appear at the next corner. You may even try to steer while reaching for a package back of your seat.

But a moment of sanity will show you the foolhardiness of inattention. In a single second, at only 30 miles an hour, your car will travel 44 feet. Would you drive it BLIND that far?

There is only one safe way. Keep your eyes and your attention strictly on the serious business of driving.

Birds Are Fidgety

Birds are highly organized, nervously, that is why their motions impress a human observer as fidgety in the extreme, but really they are not so. The bird is simply twitching as part of its life program. Many of its motions are of the jerky sort, owing to the construction and pull of the muscles, and not because it is particularly

Flying Fish, Sailfish

The flying fish flies, after a fashion, and the sailfish does not. Flying fishes, of which there are a number of species, are small and light but have long, winglike pectoral fins. The fish works up speed in the water, throws itself into the air, and the "wings" are able to carry it for some distance. The sailfish is a very large deep sea fish, related to the swordfish, but having teeth, and characterized by the large, high dorsal fin, which is suggestive of a sail.

FIRST AID

TO THE ailing house

By Roger B. Whitman PREVENTING PAINT FROM

PEELING FRIEND recently wrote me of

A trouble with peeling paint: "On the east wall of my house there is a small window of a bathroom with a flat frame four inches wide. The surface is practically flush with the stucco. Within two years after that frame was painted for the first time, the paint began to peel, and it has continued to peel after each repainting.

He wants to know where the trouble lies; why paint should peel on part thereof, whereby the power of that particular window frame, and sale contained in said Mortgage nowhere else.

The most usual cause for the peeling of paint is moisture in the wood. On a dry and warm day, the moisture is drawn out through the surhow moisture gets into the wood. Until he does so, paint on that frame will continue to peel.

As the window is on an east wall, it is exposed to the drive of easterly storms. A heavy wind forces water into any cracks there may be, no matter how fine. Quite possibly the window frame does not make an absolutely tight joint with the stucabsolutely tight joint with the stuc-co. Again, a window on the floor above may be responsible, or a scribed in said Mortgage as folcrack in the upper part of the wall. Water entering a wall runs down inside until it strikes a crosspiece of the frame; there it collects, and soaks into the back of the outer surface of the wall. I have known water that entered a wall around a second story window frame to show itself through the blistering and peeling of paint as much as twelve feet to one side. For this, of course, the diagonal timbers of the frame were responsible.

Paint also peels on sappy and resinous wood, although this is so well known that wood of that kind should have special treatment before being painted. But as moisture in the wood is the most common Order for Publication.—Probate of cause of peeling, it is this that should be looked for in the event of that particular trouble.

For centuries wrestling has been the national sport of Japan. Once two royal princes met on the mat, the winner being declared Emperor. But Japanese wrestling is more deadly because it includes jiujitsu. Japanese wrestlers usually weigh between 300 and 400 pounds. They have a powerful guild, the elders of which teach the sport and direct tournaments. To insure great size rare in the Orient they force their sons to marry daughters of wrestlers.

A Non-Partisan State News Letter By GENE ALLEMAN Michigan Press Association

Lansing-Dizzy and agog after a hectic labor "holiday" that paralyzed the state capitol city and a power strike that put an industrial center into inky idle darkness, Michigan employers and employees alike are wondering this week what the state legislature is going to do.

Adjournment will be midnight Friday, June 25-or until solons finish their tasks while the clocks are turned back.

The labor relations bill, drastically revised by the House, is before the upper chamber. While organized labor has come out in opposition to a clause giving the governor power to cope with "extraordinary situations," like the Saginaw power shutdown, employers are pointing out that the revised bill would permit unauthorized strikes as well as authorized strikes without advance notice and without requirement of reasonable efforts at mediation.

Gone from the governor's original bill were such anti-strike features as the clause forbidding employees "to declare or engage in any concerted activity in the nature of a strike in relation to any demand, grievance, or other matter, (1) without first having exhausted every method of voluntary agreement and negotiation provided by this act, and then givingdays' written notice to the employer and the board of demand, grievance, or other matter in dispute, or (2) during a period not exceeding days while the matter in dispute is pending before the board or a special board of mediation as herein provided for."

U. S. Mediation Act

Employees would have retained the right to strike, but this privilege would have been available only after they had made reasonable efforts to mediate differences with the management.

In 1934 the Roosevelt administration created by act of congress a National Mediation Board for the railroad industry. The railroad labor act, under which the board functions, requires advance notice of an employees' strike, giving the mediation board a limited period of time in which to settle the disagreeouts-no lost wages.

At Washington came a demand by Senator Royal Copeland, New gotten. York Democrat, that the Senate conduct a sweeping investigation of labor troubles and weigh carefully the merits of the railroad mediation Taxes Again Under terms of an unemployment compensation passed by the senate and sent to the house, employers of less than eight persons would be winters in Pontiac with his other exempted from a Michigan tax. The present law grants $6,000 exfederal requirement.

Of tax interest also was a decthe legislature should keep within open house to all. He was a kind, laration by Governor Murphy that the $104,000,000 budget and pare down appropriations that threaten a $20,000,000 deficit unless additional taxes are imposed.

Senator George McCallum suggested a straight income tax with no exceptions as a constitutional way to raise more money that the state apparently is going to spend.

Throughout Michigan meetings are being scheduled, and held, including a meeting in Tuscola County, June 25, to discuss methods of conducting the 1938 federal agricultural conservation program, it is announced by County Agricultural Agent E. L. Benton. Members of the boards of directors of the county agricultural conservation associations, county agricultural agents and members of the county agricultural planning committees will attend. The meeting in this county, to be held in the basement of the court house at Caro, is open to the public.

> 500 Women at Science Meet Not a single man among the 500 scientists at a conference in Moscow, Russia. All the speakers as well as all the members of association were women. One was V. P. Lebedeva, a professor of medicine. Another. Professor M. L. Rokhlina, stated that the number of women students in the universities had grown from 16,700 in 1914 to 183,000. Half the total number of doctors in Russia are women. Most of the women "scientists" are found in medicine, chemistry and biology.
