PROMINENT MERCHANT OF GAGETOWN DIED SUDDENLY SATURDAY

Moses P. Freeman Was Township and Village Clerk for 27-Year Periods.

WAS OUTSTANDING MEMBER OF ST. AGATHA'S CHURCH

By Gagetown Correspondent. Gagetown lost one of its most prominent business men in the death of Moses P. Freeman, who has been a resident here nearly all of his life. Mr. Freeman was taken ill while waiting on a customer in the store at 10:30 Saturday morning, then went home and passed away at 12:30 p. m. from a heart attack.

Funeral services were held at St. Agatha's Church Tuesday at 10:00 a. m. A solemn requiem high mass was solemnized by Rev. Fr. McCullough, assisted by Rev. Fr. Dorsey of Bad Axe and deacon and Rev. Fr. Walker of Pinnebog as sub-deacon. Entombment was made in St. Agatha's Cemetery.

Moses P. Freeman was born in Teeswater, Ontario, on January 1, 1876. He came to Michigan when two years old with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Freeman, who settled on a farm 3 1/2 miles northwest of Gagetown. When sixteen years of age, he was employed as clerk in the store of J. M. Young and in 1903 went into the general merchandising and grocery business for himself in the same building where he has since had his store.

Mr. Freeman was an outstanding member of St. Agatha's Church, being usher for thirty years and taking an active part in all its social activities as well as its religious affairs. He was elected and held office of township clerk and village clerk for the past twenty-seven years. He was a member of the Elks of Bay City Lodge, the Holy Name Society, and a member of the village council for several years. He was married October 30, 1900, to Catherine Bliss, who survives.

Besides his wife, he leaves five brothers, a twin brother, Joseph, Thomas and Arthur of Gagetown. Turn to page 8, please.

Double Wedding at Willson Home

A quiet wedding took place at 10:30 a. m. Wednesday, August 11, at the home of Rev. Ray Willson in Ellington when Miss Hazel Irene McLean, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John McLean, of Cass City, became the bride of Mr. Lawrence Wilson of Ellington, and Miss Ruth Thompson, daughter of Mrs. Lon Royer, of Caro, became the bride of Mr. Fred Schriber of Caro. Each couple acted as attendants for the other couple.

The brides were charming in gowns of pink silk crepe with lace jackets and carried arm bouquets of calla lilies. Following the ceremony, which was read by Rev. Mr. Willson, a wedding dinner was served the bride and a few relatives and close friends at the John McLean home. The table was beautiful with bouquets of cut flowers and the brides' cake.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson and Mr. and Mrs. Schriber left that same afternoon to spend the week touring Northern Michigan. Both Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. Schriber wore white sport suits with white hats and white accessories for traveling.

Mrs. Wilson was a graduate from the Cass City High School in 1934 while Mrs. Schriber graduated from Caro High School in 1932. Both have been employed at the Michigan Farm Colony at Wahjamega.

The Wilsons will make their home on the Willson farm near Ellington and the Schribers will live on a farm near Caro.

McVITTIE—DeLONG.

Miss Marion DeLong, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John DeLong, of Deckerville, and Mr. Walter McVittie, son of Mr. and Mrs. James McVittie, also of Deckerville, were united in marriage on Friday afternoon, August 6, by Rev. Charles Fisher of Deckerville in the home of the bride's parents.

They were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Lyle DeLong, brother and sister-in-law of the bride. A reception was held Tuesday evening in the DeLong home when a social time was enjoyed and refreshments were served.

Mr. and Mrs. McVittie received many lovely gifts. They will make their home on the groom's farm, four miles east of Deckerville.

WAS TOWN AND VILLAGE CLERK FOR 27 YEARS

MOSES P. FREEMAN prominent Gagetown business man died suddenly at his home in that village Saturday.

WANNER & MATTHEWS END PARTNERSHIP

E. A. Wanner Will Continue the Business and D. Matthews Will Farm.

Wanner & Matthews, in business here since 1926, have dissolved partnership, Mr. Matthews retiring from business circles to take up farming and Mr. Wanner to continue conducting the affairs in the store and shop on the north side of Main Street. The deal was completed Tuesday morning. Mr. Matthews purchased a farm in Evergreen Township last year.

The Wanner & Matthews business first saw the "light of day" on June 19, 1926, in the Montague business block on West Main Street, next to the Opera House Block, and they continued there until July, 1934, when they moved farther east on Main Street to their present location. The business has shown a steady increase in the eleven years the firm has been in business.

Mr. Wanner will deal particularly in household appliances, plumbing and heating. Mrs. Wanner is in charge of the office and bookkeeping.

The front of the building is being repainted and store signs will be reworked.

Many Michigan Farm Earnings Highest Since '28

Earnings on many Michigan farms in 1936 improved for the fourth consecutive year and in several sections were the highest since 1928, show figures released today by E. B. Hill of the Michigan State College farm management department.

Hill's report was based partly upon records of 178 central Michigan farmers who participated in the 1936 farm accounting project, which showed the average farm income (receipts less expenses) to be approximately $2,500 in 1936 as compared with $1,751 in 1929. Most of the farms were located in Clinton, Ingham, Barry, Livingston, Washtenaw, and Jackson counties.

In the general farming and livestock areas of Michigan farm earnings have improved since 1933. Hill explained, however, that earnings in all sections of the state have not improved consistently.

Improved prices for potatoes and beans during the latter part of 1936 were an important factor affecting the earnings of the farms in the regions producing those crops. Prices for dairy products improved during 1936, and grain

OLD AGE PAYMENT REACHED $5,668 IN JUNE IN TUSCOLA CO.

Average Payment to 362 Persons Was $16.52, Slightly Under State Average.

35,883 PERSONS WERE ASSISTED IN MICHIGAN

Tuscola County old age assistance payments amounted to $5,668.00 during June, according to figures received here by Alice M. Bigelow from James G. Bryant, State Welfare Director. A total of 362 persons received assistance for an average of $16.52 a person, slightly under than the state average of $17.16.

A total of 35,883 old age assistance recipients throughout the state shared $615,897.11 for an average benefit of $17.16 during the month of June. Half of the total amount of benefits paid was met by Federal funds allocated by the Social Security Board. In addition to the regular allowance to recipients, $39,898.80 in funeral benefits, paid by the Bureau of Old Age Assistance out of state funds, was expended.

The average benefit during the month ranged from $14.00 in Oscoda County to $19.06 in Washtenaw. Wayne County's 6,967 persons and the $129,647.25 spent on their assistance accounted for approximately a fifth of the total persons and total costs for the state as a whole. The state average with Wayne excluded would be lowered only $0.34 to $16.82.

During June, 7,276 applications for old age assistance were received, of which 1,799, or about 25 per cent, were accepted as eligible. All but 22 of these cases had never before been listed on the rolls of the Bureau.

EVERETTS CELEBRATE SILVER WEDDING

Kingston Farm Home Was Scene of Happy Gathering on Saturday.

A surprise party was given in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Everett's silver wedding anniversary Saturday afternoon, August 7, at their farm home near Kingston.

Vernon Everett and Ina Coltsen were united in marriage August 7, 1912, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Coltsen. Six persons were present on Saturday that had attended their wedding in 1912—Mrs. Thomas Everett and Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Coltsen of Olivet, Kenneth Coltsen of Directors Re-elected by Farm Produce Co.

Stockholders of the Farm Produce Company, at their annual meeting Tuesday afternoon, elected the following to serve on the board of directors: W. J. Schwieger, N. A. Perry, Smith Hutchinson, Joshua Fisher, C. J. Striffler, I. W. Hall and J. A. Benkelman.

All were made the unanimous choice and all were elected to succeed themselves in the positions.

ZAPFE—BLACK.

From Shabbona Correspondent. The marriage of Mrs. Margaret Black of Detroit and Mr. Gustave A. Zapfe of Shabbona, formerly of Cass City, was solemnized at the home of the groom's son, Floyd Zapfe, in Owendale, on Sunday, August 8, at 1:15 p. m. Elder Harder, Latter Day Saint pastor at Bay Port, officiated.

They were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Harold Heintz of Detroit, son-in-law and daughter of the bride, and Floyd Zapfe of Owendale and Mrs. John May of Richmond, son and daughter of the groom.

The bride's dress was a printed triple sheer, and one of the bridesmaids wore pink silk crepe and the other a gold silk formal. Bride and bridesmaids carried bouquets of gladioli and ferns.

A dinner was served to thirty guests immediately following the ceremony. The wedding cake was presented by Mr. and Mrs. John May. House decorations were bouquets of home garden flowers.

Mr. and Mrs. Zapfe will reside in Shabbona.

"The Aftermath" to Be Presented Here

Christian women of Cass City will present Judge and Mrs. M. C. Summers Thursday evening, Aug. 26, in the M. E. Church here in a religious, economic, educational and temperance drama, "The Aftermath."

This two character spoken drama which occupies 45 minutes in time is described as a most colorful, humorous and pathetic presentation of an economic problem. The drama was written by Judge and Mrs. Summers. Both characters in the drama are enacted by them.

Judge Summers, former public prosecutor and founder of the Court of General Sessions at St. Louis, Mo., is one of America's outstanding writers and lecturers on economic topics and financial laws. Mrs. E. Jean Gibson-Summers is a nationally acknowledged authority on child welfare, writer and director of religious pageantry.

O. PRIESKORN BUYS THE CROSBY BLOCK

Original Building, Erected in 1882, One of First Brick Business Blocks Here.

The scarcity of business places for rent in Cass City has ceased to worry or perplex Otto Prieskorn. On Saturday, he purchased a business block and now he is his own landlord and entertains no fear that some one may buy his business location and leave him without a place to move the Prieskorn stock of shoes and ladies' ready-to-wear.

The business place is that known as the Crosby Block which the Prieskorns have occupied since starting business here a few years ago. The purchase was made from the owner, Charles Ballard, of Flint, a grandson of the late J. D. Crosby, a pioneer business man of Cass City.

The first portion of this two-story business block was erected in 1882 by James D. Crosby, who placed therein a stock of boots and shoes, occupying the west portion of the building. The east side was rented to Joel F. Hendrick, jeweler. In 1893, Mr. Crosby decided to add clothing to his stock of shoes and needed the room occupied by Mr. Hendrick. Mr. Hendrick then erected a brick building for his jewelry business which is now occupied and owned by the Parrott Ice Cream Co. and the Crosby store was remodeled. In 1899, Mr. Crosby placed a 20-foot addition at the back of his business block to make room for his expanding business.

The present building is 34x85 feet in size.

Mr. Prieskorn plans to remodel the upper floor, making two living apartments therein. One will be occupied by the Prieskorn family.

GULF GASOLINE DEALERS HELD MEETING HERE

Forty-eight Gulf gasoline dealers gathered at Cass City as guests of the Gulf Refining Company on Monday evening and viewed two films of moving pictures. One depicted the development of ethyl gasoline and the other speed and power as related to Gulf gasoline. The meeting was held in Doerr's Hall and refreshments were served to the group in the Doerr Restaurant.

PRIMARY SCHOOL FUND PAYMENT COMES IN SEPT.

The first installment of the primary school fund will be paid to the various school districts early in September. The allocation is $10,581,352 and will mean $7.53 for each census child in the state.

A second primary payment will be made about Nov. 15, Eugene B. Elliott, superintendent of public instruction says. It is estimated to be about $3.50 per capita.

The Misses Willerton and MacKichan View Many Fascinating Sights in Trip to South

Miss Mary Willerton, in company with the Misses Nellie MacKichan of Pontiac and Anna MacKichan of Lapeer, recently returned from a trip through Kentucky, Tennessee, and North Carolina. In the following paragraphs, Miss Willerton gives graphic descriptions of places visited on their trip:

"We left Cincinnati by Greyhound bus, and rode all day through Kentucky and Tennessee to Knoxville. This was an interesting ride for us as we got quite a good view of mountain life. Some of the homes were mere shacks on the mountain-side with not even a sash in the windows, while some were

VASSAR YOUTH, 20, PLEADED GUILTY TO ATTACKING GIRL, 13

Bank Receiver Granted Default Judgments in Nine Cases Monday.

TWO DIVORCE DECREES GRANTED IN TUSCOLA CO.

Paul Stevens, 20, young married man of Vassar, pleaded guilty to the charge of statutory rape in the circuit court of Tuscola County on Monday. Judge L. C. Cramton remanded Stevens to the custody of Sheriff George Jeffrey to await sentence. A 16-year-old Vassar boy, Steven's alleged accomplice in the crime against a 13-year-old girl, is awaiting arraignment in juvenile court before H. Walter Cooper, judge of probate.

The charge against Stevens followed an attack after an automobile ride on the night of July 28, according to the girl, who told officers she was an unwilling passenger.

Vivian Cross petitioned the court for the restoration of his driver's and chauffeur's licenses which were revoked several months ago. His desire was granted in part in that Judge Cramton issued an order permitting Cross to drive a truck, grader or any other implement in working for the county road commission.

Donald Bicknell, receiver of the Bank of Saginaw, granted default judgments in nine cases for the following amounts:

C. J. Thornton and Harvey Sherman, $107.70 and costs of $24.10. Ernest H. Fox, $1,794.01 and costs of $23.35.

Daniel Cranick, $188.17 and costs of $23.70. Daniel Cranick and Ella M. Cranick, $1,608.36 and costs of $23.60.

HERE AND THERE AROUND THE THUMB

Items Gathered from the Chronicle's Exchanges and Other Sources.

Huron County residents have paid in over $600 to the county treasurer for delinquent dog licenses within the last month as the result of an intense drive to have each eligible dog licensed or impounded. Two special deputies are conducting the drive.

John Saedlin, 35, of Detroit was taken into custody by a hastily organized posse in Sanilac County shortly after the robbery of the store of Mrs. Sarah Ingles, 73 year old cripple, four miles east of Roseburg, on Tuesday. He confessed and waived examination on the charge of robbery armed on Wednesday before Justice Noel K. Babcock and was bound over to the circuit court for trial. "He came into my store, pointed a long knife at me and told me to give him some money or he would kill me," Mrs. Ingles, who is confined to a wheel chair most of the time, told

STRICKLAND—McKENZIE.

Speaking their vows beneath an arch of evergreens, through which pink hollyhocks peeped, Miss Maxine McKenzie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred McKenzie, of Milford, became the bride of Clarence E. Strickland of Pontiac, son of Mrs. Mary Strickland, of Cass City at 8:00 p. m. Saturday, August 7. The ceremony was read in the home of the bride's parents by Rev. B. Woods, Presbyterian pastor of Milford.

The bride, gowned in white silk with long veil, was given in marriage by her father. She carried a large bouquet of white flowers. She was attended by Miss Ella MacBeth of Milford, who wore yellow silk lace and carried pink baby mums.

Mr. Strickland was assisted by his brother, Avery Strickland, of Cass City as best man. Mrs. Maynard McKenzie of Detroit, sister-in-law of the bride, played the wedding march.

AUDITOR GENERAL ISSUES WARNING ON BACK TAXES

HON. GEORGE T. GUNDRY

is calling attention of property owners who are indebted for 1935 and prior taxes that August is the last month to make settlements and keep property from the tax sale list next May.

DELINQUENT TAX PAYMENTS IMPORTANT

If Neglected This Month, Property Will Be Placed in Tax Sales Next May.

In order to bring to the attention of the people of Michigan the danger of neglect to pay delinquent taxes, the State Administrative Board has authorized a state-wide campaign of advertising which calls attention to Public Act 28, passed in the 1937 session of the legislature. (See our advertising columns.)

The act clearly provides that properties delinquent for taxes for 1935 and prior years will go on sale in May next unless advantage is taken of the provisions for partial payment before September 1, 1937. The legislature has recognized that a method of relief is necessary in the case of some property-owners and has made possible the payment of back taxes on a "10 and 10 plan."

According to Auditor-General George T. Gundry, who is charged with the duty of supervising the operation of this law, all 1933, 1934, 1935 back taxes, as well as taxes levied in prior years, must be paid before September 1, 1937, or else it is mandatory to place such properties on tax sale in May of next year.

The "10 and 10 plan," says Mr. Gundry, "helps those property-owners who cannot pay in full at this time, by permitting the payment of 10 per cent of taxes due up to and including 1935, and allows the balance to be paid on a 10 year plan. It is decidedly to the advantage of taxpayers to use this plan. Interest and penalties have been cancelled and the only added charge is a 2% collection fee on the amount paid."

"In order to take advantage of the provisions of the law it is necessary that 1936 taxes be paid in full. County treasurers are fully acquainted with the act and are already receiving applications from many tax-payers who welcome this method of discharging their tax obligations and keeping their properties from the certainty of tax sale next May. It is very important, however, that arrangements be made before September 1st, after which no further relief can be granted."

OUTLOOK GENERALLY GOOD FOR STATE'S IMPORTANT CROPS

Condition of 16 Leading Crops Stood at 81.2% of Normal on August 1.

WEATHER HAS BEEN FAVORABLE FOR BEANS

The outlook on August 1 was generally good for all of Michigan's important crops. The composite condition of 16 leading crops stood at 81.2 per cent of normal, the highest for this month during nine years of available records, and a gain of 2.2 points over the July 1 figure. The corresponding condition a year ago was 61.9 per cent. While the damage caused by excessive rains in low land areas of Southern Michigan in earlier months could only be repaired in part, the major portion of the state is in very good condition according to V. H. Church, senior agricultural statistician for the Federal-State Crop Reporting Service.

The state's potential corn crop is estimated at 55,080,000 bushels, the condition being five points better than a month ago, 20 points higher than a year ago, and six points above the 10-year average. Wheat suffered severely from black rust in most of the southern counties which caused much shrunken and lightweight grain and lowered the average yield per acre to 19.5 bushels which is one bushel below the 10-year average. The yield of rye is 12.5 bushels per acre which is just slightly below average. The prospects for oats and barley are about average for the state as a whole, although the yield and straw were greatly shortened in northern counties because of early-season drought which was not broken until July.

The weather has been unusually favorable for beans in recent weeks with the result that the condition improved three points during July

Soil Conservation Program Checking

Checking of performance in the 1937 soil conservation program in Sanilac County will start Monday, August 16, according to Secretary-Manager Frank Sweet.

The work in the various townships will be in charge of two members of the township committees who have been selected by the county committee. This checking will consist primarily of obtaining a record of crops grown in the various fields and listing the soil building practices that have been carried out on the farm. Every farmer is asked to cooperate with the reporters in an effort to make the records accurate and complete. The farm operator will be asked to sign the record as made out by the farm reporter, certifying that the record is correct for his farm.

An effort is being made to have all farms checked several weeks earlier than last year. A second check-up later in the fall will be made where additional soil building practices are carried out.

CARO COUNCIL VOTES AGAINST LIQUOR SALES

Caro village council voted on Wednesday evening to refuse permission to sell whiskey and other distilled liquors by the glass within the corporation.

Two members of the Indianfields Township board and four of the Almer Township board attended the session of the village council. It is understood that the two township boards would follow the procedure of the Caro council in the event the question should be presented for their consideration.

THE PICNIC BALL GAME.

It is quite a sight to see the middle aged men limber up for the picnic ball game. Such a citizen has passed the age when he is effective as a ball player, but he can perhaps think back to some glorious day when he batted a home run for his school team.

So when the impromptu captains "choose up" at the picnic, and our friend of middle age is appointed to hold down right field, where he won't have much to do, he lacks the heart to refuse. He is like some ancient race horse that once again sniffs the air of the track. He whiffs the air terrifically with his bat, and puffs when he chases after the ball. Perhaps he catches a fly and makes a base hit.

"Where is the arnica bottle?" is the melancholy cry the wife hears next day. The middle aged man pays a penalty for such a return of youth, though it cheers him to think he has not forgotten the old sport, and he will do it again next year.

HISTORIC COURT FIGHT.

The prolonged controversy over the proposed reorganization of the federal courts which has lasted nearly six months, will go down to history as one of the major battles of American politics. Amid all this turmoil of words, a few principles seem fairly well established.

The American people apparently want some limitation placed on the president and congress. The chief executive and the lawmakers have had a set of instructions given them by the people, which is embodied in the constitution.

Someone has to decide whether these instructions have been violated. If the president and congress can decide what these instructions permit, they become the sole rulers of the country. Apparently the people think some body like the supreme court, which is removed from the arena of politics, should have the final decision whether the president and congress have exceeded their powers.

The supreme court is not and never will be a fixed and unalterable body, which can set itself up over the people and rule contrary to the public desires. Vacancies in the court are sure to occur. When such vacancies come, new judges can be appointed whose views will coincide with the opinions which prevail at the time. Thus the attitude of the court is sure to change and follow public sentiment.

If the people want the constitution changed, they can change it by constitutional amendment. It is objected that 13 states can block an amendment by refusing to ratify it. But it is doubtful if 13 states would ever be found to hold out against any amendment that the rest of the country wanted.

The American people can do anything they want with the constitution, the courts, or any other department of government. The main difficulty is the indifference of the people on public questions, and the difficulty of waking them up to demand the changes that should come.

OUTSIDE THE PROCESSION.

An Associated Press dispatch tells of a man in Arkansas, who recently celebrated his 52nd wedding anniversary, who had never been out of his state, never seen a movie or ball game and never hunted or fished.

Such a man is a marked contrast to the prevailing sentiment, which is that people must do the things their neighbors do. So the world follows the crowd like little copycats, do things they don't really care about, which cost them too much money and run them into debt. One rather admires a man like our Arkansas friend, who is independent enough to do just what he wants to.

The victims of last year's automobile accidents have not even served as warnings to those scheduled to die this month.

A New York judge has ruled that a wife, with a job, must bear part of the expense of raising her children. That is what you might call the recognition of equal rights for women.

Add critical moments: When a lady says out loud, "I'm getting so fat" and then pauses for somebody to swear that she is not getting fat when everybody knows very well she is getting fatter.

Children in Court

By Judge Malcolm Hatfield.

The Michigan Liquor Control Commission is today enforcing its order calling for the revocation of the license of any establishment in which slot machines, baffle boards, or any kind of skill games may be found. The prohibition extends to rooms connected with rooms in which liquor is sold or served.

If county and city enforcement officials throughout Michigan follow the example of state authorities and confiscate all slot machines in establishments where liquor is not sold, Michigan will be setting an example which law abiding citizens in other states can urge their own city, county and state officials to adopt.

In the third finger you may look for indications of the urges through which the mind tends to find tangible expressions of the creative side of the inner self. Creative instincts vary with the conscious and subconscious make-up of the individual. Here is one of several variations shown by the formation of the third finger, which in the type described indicates that its possessor holds high promise of worth-while accomplishment along creative lines.

The Inventive Finger of Brilliance. The predominant characteristics of this type are (1) squareness, (2) resilience under pressure, (3) pronounced inclination or tilt of the finger toward the fourth or little finger.

This type is sometimes found rather full in structure, but is never overfleshed. Its length is often marked and is usually even with that of the second finger or nearly so. The underside of the nail tip is often spatulate in shape, with pad-like cushions of flesh which sometimes extend beyond the sides of the nail, which is quite square and firmly set. With the hand extended wide, the finger is found to lie in fairly close proximity to the second finger.

You may quite safely conclude that the owner of a third finger of this type is of a decidedly inventive turn of mind and indefatigable in working out original ideas in a practical manner.

Michigan Mirror

A Non-Partisan State News Letter By GENE ALLEMAN Michigan Press Association

Lansing—The conclusion of several commentators at Lansing is that Governor Murphy has swapped issues in getting the legislature to pass a civil service bill and in vetoing his own labor relations bill. Whereas labor relations might easily become a liability to the administration that carries favor with labor unions, because of the picketing restrictions in the bills, civil service is a non-partisan cause that resounds with governmental righteousness.

At least, such is one interpretation that is being given here.

In the meanwhile, the governor's strategy for 1938 is becoming more apparent. He seeks to put the Republican senate on the defensive. He plans to keep the legislature on the job, wear down the leader's resistance as he did in labor mediation efforts, and get them to pass new bills.

Cards in the deck of his "New Deal" for Michigan include rural electrification, a bid for farm votes; teachers' tenure fund; lower minimum hours for women in industry; and central finance control "to balance the budget." Some sort of a state NRA plan for industry and business, giving to intrastate commerce what the federal hour-wage act would do for interstate commerce, is far from being unlikely for the future.

G. O. P. Campaign

A rally in Bay City the middle of September will mark the opening of the Republican campaign for the 1938 elections. Governor Murphy's attitude on labor matters, regarded to be vacillating by Republican critics, has led to a feeling that the 1937 minority party has a chance in 1938 to effect a comeback in popular favor. Local favorites are being groomed for the gubernatorial nomination.

Republican leaders expect that Murphy will run for re-election. But if the governor accepts a federal post at Washington, the picture would be drastically changed, as the logical candidate in Michigan would probably be Murray D. VanWagoner, state highway commissioner. VanWagoner demonstrated his ability as a vote-getter in an off-election year, running ahead of local Republican candidates in several upstate counties.

Former Governor Frank D. Fitzgerald, a one-term, is being mentioned as a candidate for the United States Senate should Arthur Vandenberg resign in 1940 to try for the presidency. Hoisting a liberal banner with an eye for industrial votes, Fitzgerald last week endorsed the Wagner-Steagall low-cost housing bill with this indictment: "We face the inescapable fact that our present economic system has failed to provide decent homes for many thousands of deserving, industrious citizens."

Unemployment Compensation

The bounce-back which resulted from the governor's veto of his own labor relations act—a re-decision which left many eastern admirers gasping for breath—may have had something to do with his unexpected signature of the revised unemployment compensation act.

Frank Picard, chairman of the unemployment insurance commission, had lobbied actively to persuade legislators to put every employee under the wings of the social security benefit. Largely through efforts of Republicans in the senate, Picard's program was balked. They wrote features into new amendments which Murphy found to be very distasteful.

Whereas Picard's every employee provision would have brought some 250,000 additional persons under the act in industries covered by the state and federal statutes, the new law says that Michigan will go only as far as the federal government is willing to go. In other words, employers who have less than eight employees are exempt from the jobless insurance tax.

The previous exemption has been $6,000 on every payroll.

Picard and Murphy also favored advancing the date for first payments of benefits from Jan. 1, 1939—after the fall elections—to July 1, 1938. At future sessions of the legislature attempts will be made, the governor announced as he signed the act, to amend the law.

Liquor by the Glass?

There is one issue that, like the poor, is always with us. What to do about liquor has always been a social problem, and today is no exception.

Seeking a source for additional state income, the legislature authorized the state liquor control commission to increase public prices 15 per cent. The increased funds were to be spent in providing needed hospital facilities. The legislature also put its stamp of respect on the old-fashioned saloon by permitting the bar to return. Paradoxically, it restricted drinking to persons of 21 years or more in age.

At a national liquor control conference at Mackinac Island, Governor Murphy deplored a tendency to exploit liquor in order to get more taxes. Public morality must come first, he declared.

Then came Edward McFarland, commission chairman, with the declaration at Ishpeming that Michigan has too many drinking places and that prices should be reduced so that saloon keepers could compete with bootleggers.

Of direct interest to local communities is the fact that the legislative body of each municipality must declare before September 19 whether they want liquor by the glass within their jurisdiction. Model resolutions are being sent to each town and city by the state commission. If cities fail to act and citizens do not effect a referendum, all present liquor-by-the-glass places will continue until May 1, 1938, when licenses will be cancelled and no new ones will be issued.

The wet-dry battle is on again.

Gambling Again

By a surprise drastic order of the state liquor control commission, the slot machine racket was put on the run in Michigan. The commission issued an order making operation of a slot machine in an establishment prima facie proof for revocation of a liquor license. Coming as it did right in the midst of a summer tourist season, the prohibition caused consternation in many sections.

Simultaneously the house of representatives, prodded by Rep. Elton Eaton, crusading editor at Plymouth, authorized a legislative investigation of gambling conditions in Michigan. Rep. John Hamilton and Rep. Chester Fitzgerald, Democrats of Detroit, and Rep. Carl Delano, Republican of Kalamazoo, were appointed by Speaker George Schroeder to corral some evidence.

It was Hamilton who campaigned in vain for state licensing of gambling. And it has been Hamilton who has been an outspoken critic of Governor Murphy for "changing his mind" on labor matters.

It will be interesting to observe what becomes of the latest crusade against gambling which has been, too often, either a political football or a jackpot for campaign expenses.

Herders Do Not Desert Flocks

In great blizzards, Western sheep herders seldom if ever desert their hungry and helpless flocks and dogs, even when they themselves are freezing and starving through the neglect of the traveling camp-tender who brings their food and fuel. They stay on the job, asserts a writer in Collier's Weekly, not because desertion means a ten-year prison sentence, but because "sticking" is the unwritten law of the range.

Rainfall Plagues Engineer in Charge of Irrigation Plots

O. E. Robey, agricultural engineer at Michigan State College, may not admit the fact but he would much rather prefer a dry season than one with ample rainfall. He is in charge of irrigation experiments at Lake City, and too much wet weather makes it difficult for him to determine the effectiveness of his irrigation work.

At Lake City, Robey has experimented since 1931 with various irrigation methods on a variety of crops. His results indicate that where a supply of water is available for pumping, the cost of furnishing the necessary water to the crops is more than returned in the increased yields. Not only are the yields increased, but irrigation usually has a beneficial effect upon the quality of the produce and may be used for either prolonging or hastening the harvesting period to take advantage of market conditions.

Potato yields in dry seasons have been increased as much as 50 to 250 bushels per acre at a cost of $10-$15 per acre, according to Robey. During recent so-called dry seasons, the rainfall during the growing season has been less than 12 inches. A minimum of about 19 inches is considered desirable. The purpose of irrigation, according to Robey, is to make up the deficit in the normal rainfall.

Crops that especially are adapted to irrigation are potatoes, small fruits, truck crops and melons. If possible, it is good insurance to supply water to orchards during drouth season.

Horse Flesh Stronger Than Machine

These horses and the other competing teams at the recent Farmers' Day held at Michigan State College proved stronger than the machine that was set up to measure their strength in the pulling contest. The dynamometer, pictured in the preliminary trials broke, and the officials had to substitute a loaded stone-boat. Shown here is the 2,850-pound Percheron team owned by Frank Wyns of Shelby which took first in the contest by pulling the 5,650-pound stone-boat 216 feet. The driver is Frank Easton.

At the Lake City plots, experiments are conducted with porous hose irrigation, the system whereby water oozes through the walls of canvas hose; over-head irrigation; and with the flooding system whereby water is applied over a wide area through a pipeline arrangement. Robey is experimenting with the adaptability of each system for a particular crop, the amount of water necessary, and effect of time of application upon the crop. Some work also is being done with the effect of fertilizing elements in the water applied to crops.

MAN YMICHIGAN FARM EARNINGS HIGHEST SINCE '28

prices rose during the latter part of the year because of the decreased feed shortage caused by the drouth.

Hill explained that although many farmers have participated in improved farm earnings during the last two-year period, it will be necessary for the improved incomes to continue for a number of years to off-set the very unfavorable earnings for the years immediately preceding 1934.

Farm expenses, which decreased each year from 1929 to 1934 showed a slight increase in 1936. Feed purchases per farm were about $100.00 less in 1936 than in 1929. Hill explained that this decrease is probably an indication that farmers, in general, are growing more of their own feed requirements.

Hill's report is contained in the current number of Agricultural Economic News which may be obtained from the bulletin room, Michigan State College.

Mrs. Frank Ward, daughter, Ruby, and son, Lorn, of Detroit were week-end guests of their daughter and sister, Mrs. Kilburn Parsons. Mrs. Ward remained and is spending the week here.

Mrs. B. M. Wood, who has spent a few months with relatives in Michigan, visited her niece, Mrs. Milton Hoffman a few days the first of the week and left Wednesday for her home at Oxnard, California.

Mr. and Mrs. Arlington Gray of Detroit spent the week-end with friends and relatives here. Miss Shirley Beardsley, who had spent the week visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Gray, returned to her home here with them.

C. W. Hoffman of Elkton visited at the home of his son, Milton Hoffman, from Sunday until Wednesday afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. Sam O'Sullivan and family of Saginaw were also Sunday guests at the Hoffman home.

Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Lakin and son, Frederick, of Detroit were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Reagh, Saturday and Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Tanner, daughter, Wanda, and son, Eddie, of Detroit were also guests at the Reagh home Sunday and Monday.

The last meeting of the W. C. T. U. at Mrs. Martin McKenzie's home proved small in attendance but intensely interesting. The highlights were devotionals under the able guidance of Mrs. Chamberlain, and the reports of the world convention by Mrs. Genie Martin, district president. At the close the hostess served light refreshments much appreciated by all. Those not present missed an inspiring meeting in a delightful home, officials report.

Mr. and Mrs. Homer Hower entertained Mr. and Mrs. Robert Spurgeon at dinner Sunday in honor of the birthday of Mr. Hower and Mrs. Spurgeon.

Mr. and Mrs. John West and their guest, Donna Fulmer, of Detroit visited Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Iverson at Traverse City from Saturday until Monday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Warner, accompanied by their granddaughter, Sally Orr, of Caro spent Sunday in Flint where they visited their daughter, Mrs. Dorus Remington.

Mr. and Mrs. Angus McPhail have moved to their recently purchased residence at the corner of Seeger and Pine Streets which has been extensively remodeled and improved during the past month.

Miss Katherine Kelly, who is employed by the Frutchey Bean Company at Saginaw, is spending a two weeks' vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Kelly, here. Last week Mrs. Kelly and daughters, the Misses Katherine and Marie Kelly, spent a few days with relatives in Port Huron.

Miss Phyllis Lenzner returned to the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Lenzner, Monday evening after attending the summer school session in the university at Madison, Wisconsin. She accompanied Miss Mary Clark of Bad Axe, a fellow student at Madison, as far as Flint Saturday and visited with friends in Fenton over Sunday.

Mrs. Malon Fordyce entertained over the week-end, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Buckels and daughter, Darlene, of Detroit. Mrs. Buckels is a sister of Mrs. Fordyce. Mrs. Effie Johnson returned to Detroit with them and is spending the week with her daughter, Mrs. Buckels. Darlene Buckels remained to spend the week in Cass City.

OUTLOOK GENERALLY GOOD FOR STATE'S IMPORTANT CROPS

Concluded from first page. and added 80 pounds per acre to the indicated crop, giving a total prospective production of 3,570,000 bags as compared with 2,656,000 bags in 1936. Potatoes have shown satisfactory progress except in some southern counties which have been troubled with excess moisture throughout the current growing season. The early crop is yielding better than usual. The indicated crop is 31,130,000 bushels, or 5,000,000 bushels more than was harvested last year.

While sugar beet stands in numerous localities were damaged by early-season wet weather, the remaining stands have made good growth and show slightly better than an average condition. Second cuttings of alfalfa hay are being made with better yields being obtained than expected earlier. While pasture conditions have declined somewhat, recent rains have revived them and the August 1 condition was 11 points above average for that date.

Michigan housewives who still follow the practice of doing their own canning should take advantage of the current season's bumper fruit crop to fully restock their fruit cupboards. Not only is the crop of every kind of fruit in Michigan large this year, but the quality, flavor, and size promise to be unusually good. With a large fruit crop reported in practically all states, prices undoubtedly will be lower than in any recent year. This is a fortunate circumstance for the consumer at a time when prices of most of the other foods are moving steadily upward, and by taking advantage of the situation the public can materially aid fruit growers by thus creating an expanded market.

Most Savage Forest in France
The Vercors forest, 25 miles from Grenoble, is the most savage forest in France. It is a favorite hunting ground for boar and chamois hunters. Large parts of this forest have remained unexplored, and experienced woodsmen of the region are content to venture only a few miles into the sunless fastness.

THE SIX LELANDS.

The Lelands, springboard acrobatic favorites of circuses and fairs, will be an attraction before the grandstand at the Tuscola County Fair, and will appear twice daily. This troupe, six in number, boasts of having an entirely new angle on springboards. Tony Leland, who started his career in the show business twenty years ago with leading circuses, has conceived and produced the only act of its kind before the public today. With his long experience as a performer with the circus, Leland has worked out a routine in fast tumbling, balancing and springboard catapulting that offers a complete library of the circus artist's craftmanship. He has perfected springboard aerial acrobatics that reach a sweeping crescendo with their single and double somersaulting and twisting torso performances. In one of these springboard stunts, a man is hurled high in the air, turns two somersaults and lands in a sitting position in a chair, which is balanced on the shoulders of another man. The Lelands are versatile artists and prove it when they reappear on the program in a melange of knockabout acrobatics that make the celebrated fall of Humpty Dumpty pale into insignificance. Instead of ending in calamity, as was the case with the famous 'H D', Lelands' clowns take cripplers and spills that result in hilarity.

VASSAR YOUTH, 20, PLEADED GUILTY TO ATTACKING GIRL, 13

Concluded from first page. Levi Gilmore, $318.60 and costs of $23.35. Chas. Hodges, $584.10 and costs of 23.35. Clair Tate et al, $287.87 and costs $24.10. Winfield Wells, $139.84 and costs of $24.10. Leo M. Brown and Charles A. Brown, $131.79 and costs of $24.10. Two divorce decrees were granted. In the case of Lillie Munger vs. Harry Munger, the plaintiff is to have the custody of the child. Helen Baxter was granted a divorce from Floyd Baxter and the privilege to take her former name of Helen Atwood. Andrew Simons stands in contempt of court until he completes payments of back alimony. He was ordered by the court Monday to pay $6.99 a week. Half is to be applied on a deficit in alimony payments and the other half as a regular weekly allowance to his former wife. John and Eva Pezo brought suit in chancery court against Miles Lester, who owns land joining the Pezo farm in Fremont Township. In the complaint, the Pezos charge Lester with opening an artesian well on his place and the excess water ran onto the Pezo farm, damaging crops. The judge reserved the right to make a decision after he had made a personal visit at the scene of the difficulty.

EVERETTS CELEBRATE SILVER WEDDING

Concluded from first page. Rochester, Mrs. Albert Denhoff and Mrs. Ross Hartt of Ferndale. The many relatives enjoyed a potluck lunch at two o'clock. Although the rain made it impossible to stay out of doors, the spirits of those present remained undampened. Ice cream and cake were served to the seventy-five guests at five o'clock. Three cakes were decorated in honor of the occasion, two by Mrs. Thomas Everett and one by Mrs. Kenneth Colton. The many gifts that had been received were then unwrapped and displayed. Mr. and Mrs. Everett extended their grateful appreciation for the lovely gifts. After an afternoon and evening spent in renewing old ties and making new acquaintances, the guests returned to their respective homes expressing their sincere good wishes for the future and wishing Mr. and Mrs. Everett many more happy anniversaries. Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Elmore Colton of Olivet; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Colton and daughters, Phyllis and Marilyn, of Lansing; Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Colton and daughter, Carolyn, of Battle Creek; Miss Ruth Colton of Hastings; Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Colton, daughter, Wemona, and son, Leon, Mrs. Henry Bromley of Rochester; Mr. and Mrs. Tom Carroll of West Branch; Mrs. M. E. Harris, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Jeffery, Miss Genevieve Hartt, Mrs. Lettie Upper and son, Jack, Mr. and Mrs. Basil Colton and daughter, Norine, of Detroit; Stanley Colton, Mr. and Mrs. Ross Hartt, Betty, Johnny, Nancy and David Hartt of Ferndale; Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Everett of Oxford; Mr. and Mrs. E. Family Reunions

Walker Reunion. The fifth annual reunion of the Colin Walker families was held on August 8 at the farm home of Mr. and Mrs. David Gingrich near Greenleaf. About 65 guests from Caseville, Bad Axe, Saginaw, Detroit, Uby, Pinconning, Cass City, Unionville and Fostoria, Ohio, attended. A potluck dinner was served and the afternoon spent in games, music and visiting. Gifts were presented to the oldest member, Duncan Johnson, 81, of Uby and Lyle Richardson, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Richardson, also of Uby, the youngest, eight months. In the absence of the president, the business meeting was called to order by Mrs. Hilda Wills, vice president. Officers for the 1938 reunion which will be held in the same woods the second Sunday in August are: Honorary president, Mrs. Euphemia Wills; president, Mrs. Jessie Elliott, Detroit; vice president, Mrs. Hilda Wills, Bad Axe; secretary, Robert Willson, Detroit; treasurer, James C. Walker, Cass City.

Loucks Reunion.

One hundred and eight relatives and friends were present Sunday when the Loucks reunion was held at the club house, one mile south of Caro. Relatives were present from Oregon, Ontario, Manistee, Detroit, Harbor Beach, Kinde, Bay City, Port Austin and Cass City. The affair is an annual gathering. Mr. and Mrs. William I. Moore and grandchildren, Marshall Dean and Myrtle Lorene Souden, and Mrs. E. Baskin attended the reunion from Cass City.

Harrison-Ball Reunion.

About eighty relatives were present Sunday when the Harrison-Ball reunion was held at the home of Charles Osterly near Ellington. A potluck dinner was enjoyed on the lawn. A business meeting was held and Charles Skinner of Flint was elected president and Mrs. J. D. Clement of Cass City, secretary-treasurer. It was decided to hold the 1938 reunion on the second Sunday in August, the place to be decided later. Mrs. Arminda Ball, 78, of Cass City was the oldest person present Sunday and Gordon Keith Ware, three weeks old son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Ware, of Cass City was the youngest.

Sutherland Gathering.

The third annual Sutherland reunion was held at Lake Pleasant Sunday, August 8, with about 65 members and friends present to enjoy the picnic dinner at noon. The afternoon was spent in visiting, swimming and playing games after which a short business meeting was held. The following officers were elected for the meeting at Lake Pleasant in August, 1938: Muri Sutherland, president; Eunice Sutherland, secretary-treasurer; Milton Sutherland and Teresa Sutherland, program committee; Helen Leishman and Louise Sutherland, table committee.

Auto Accidents on Wane the Past Week

Automobile accidents in Tuscola County were not so numerous for the week preceding Thursday, Aug. 12.

Frank Cross and Harry Kelley were injured in an auto collision on M-15, a mile south of Millington on Monday afternoon. They were taken to Hurley Hospital in Flint. The cars involved were driven by Harry Kelley of Richfield Center and Joseph Tokan of Mt. Clemens.

Rain obscuring the vision of a truck driver is given as one of the causes of an auto crash two miles south of Gagetown Monday morning. The truck, driven by Lloyd Gray of Gagetown, was going west and was about to turn south when the accident occurred. G. M. Lazelle of Ososso was driving a car northeast on the curve of the highway.

Herman Charter of Cass City and Kenneth Hartwick of Detroit were drivers of cars in an accident 2 1/2 miles east of Gagetown at 1:15 a. m. Saturday. "Both cars were going east," an officer's report reads. "Charter's car was ahead and he planned on making a left hand turn. Hartwick's car sounded horn and Charter stopped to let him go by. Hartwick tried to get by on right hand side and hit Charter's right rear bumper."

A baby in the car of Alex Brodzik of Kingston was cut about the head when Brodzik's auto and that of Byron Henry of Pontiac met a mile east of Wilmot on August 8.

HERE AND THERE AROUND THE THUMB

Concluded from first page. police. She refused the demand, she said, whereupon her assailant tore off her clothes and forced her into her apartment, which adjoins the store. There he tied and gagged her.

Parties interested in the damage suit of Albert Arnold, administrator of the estate of Alice Arnold, deceased, vs. Dougald Krug, of Cass City, have been notified by the state supreme court that a motion for a rehearing of the suit has been denied. Alice Arnold, Cass City High School student, died three months after receiving a broken neck in an automobile collision October 15, 1935. Damages of $5,000 were awarded the plaintiff in circuit court here, but on an appeal by the defendant to the supreme court, this decision was reversed.

STRICKLAND—McKENZIE.

Concluded from first page. bride, and Mrs. Strickland, mother of the groom, wore corsages of white baby mums and ferns. A luncheon was served following the ceremony. Decorations were pink and white, while the bride's cake, topped with a miniature bride and groom, centered the table.

Mr. and Mrs. Strickland spent the week-end with friends at Holly and will make their home with the bride's parents at 417 Hickory, St. Milford. Mr. Strickland is employed at the Fisher Body plant in Pontiac. Mrs. Mary Strickland, sons, Avery and Ray, and daughters, Alta and Florence, from Cass City attended the wedding.

Earliest Dated Event
James Henry Breasted in his "Conquest of Civilization" says that the introduction of the Egyptian calendar, devised in 4241 B. C., is the earliest dated event in history.

PLEASANT HOME HOSPITAL.

Delbert Auten of Cass City was able to be taken home Sunday, Vera Crawford went home on Tuesday, Joe Crawford and Dorothy Turkey on Wednesday.

Mrs. Ivan Zapfe of Flint was admitted Saturday for medical care and was able to leave Tuesday.

Mrs. Margaret Bognar of Gagetown, Paul Dewey of Cass City and Mrs. William Turnbull of Deckerville are still patients.

Black Feather

By Harold Titus

THE STORY

CHAPTER I—Rodney Shaw, independent trader, arrives in Michilimackinac in 1818, determined to fight the trade monopoly established by the John Jacob Astor company in the Northwest territory. He is met by Conrad Rich, an elderly clerk, Ramsay Crooks, Astor's dominant figure, and Annette Leclere, local beauty and inspiration to all the traders, especially to Burke Rickman, a ruthless trader who is the instrument of destruction to traders refusing to amalgamate with the Astor company. Rousseau, the town bully, wearing the black feather, symbol of invincibility, knocks down Shaw's head oarsman, Basile, and Shaw in return throws Rousseau into the water. Ramsay Crooks presents the symbolic black feather to Shaw. Later, at a conference, Shaw scorns Astor's proposal virtually to surrender his independence, announces his readiness to fight the amalgamation, and prepares to depart the following day.

CHAPTER II—At a ball that evening Shaw recognizes Burke Rickman as the Astor agent who had previously robbed him of his partner and his trade, and as a dangerous rival for Annette, with whom he is infatuated. There is an exchange of bitter words. Annette is chosen queen of the dance, and after flirting with both Rickman and Shaw, chooses Shaw as king for the following evening. Basile warns Shaw to hasten his departure and tells him an old man awaits him at his tent. Shaw finds Leslie, an old free-trader, who proposes that Shaw join him and go to the rich Pillager country, where Astor is planning to send Rickman. He shows him a map and an Indian ceremonial stone given him by Standing Cloud, Pillager chief. Shaw promises to give his answer the following evening. Shaw accepts Leslie's offer.

CHAPTER III

Rodney Shaw changed his approach to Annette, scarce knowing that he changed. The light of amused combat left his eyes for minutes; his voice pleaded softly. He lost posture, lost years; he would boast to her of what he had done, of what he could do; he would strut before her. . . . And he would plead, almost seriously, as others had pleaded. Almost seriously. . . . not quite, and not for long.

And at those times, the girl was not so ready of tongue. She listened, denying his half-veiled pleas by her silence—but still she listened. Today, he was in such a mood, stupefied by her intoxicating beauty, pleading with her to go inland with him. And she put him off and when he wheedled for reasons she listed his shortcomings. She was in play, but he failed to realize her words were not full-meant.

"Presumptuous, reckless, audacious, foolhardy—"
"To desire one so lovely?"
"To risk further the ill will of the company!"
"Ho!" he laughed. "Why should I fear?"
"But they have stripped you of your trade! They will crush you, if you persist!"
"They will try, yes. But they do not guess the card hidden in my sleeve!"
"Card? You possess some secret? Or is this only an idle boast?"

He had been toying with that same black ostrich plume which had reposed these days in his waistcoat pocket and now he waved the symbol of superior strength in a dismissing gesture.
"Listen!" he said, halting in their walk and leaning close. "They think me a pauper, and that is well. But here under their nose I've acquired a share in goods beyond my wildest dream! And with these goods I march to the richest ground unattended, a ground they plan to work!"
They were on a forest trail on the heights of the island. Dappled sunlight fell upon them, scents of

Liked Funereal Architecture
Europeans in Egypt have always been impressed by the strong inclination of the old Egyptians for funereal architecture and emblems of mortality, as well as their perverse taste for the bizarre in theology. Lions with the heads of crocodiles and men with the heads of hawks, standing in solemn rows in shadowed aisles of great temples, or crawling in low relief over rock tombs, embody a good deal of sheer horror in concrete form. Some have succumbed to the atmosphere to the extent of making obeisance before the statues of the ancient gods.

Discovery of Helium Gas
Helium gas was first discovered in the sun's chromosphere by means of the spectroscopic in 1868 (hence its name derived from the Greek word for "sun"), but was not found on earth until 1895, by Sir William Ramsay and others. Commercial production began after 1914 when a German zeppelin containing this gas did not take fire after being pierced by incendiary bullets.

balsam and cedar were in their nostrils.
"Ah, Annette!" he breathed, taking her hands. "I never dreamed, in the years I've lived, that such a desirable person as you pressed foot to earth! . . ." She was in his arms, then, yielding gently and he felt her quick and irregular breathing against him.
"Dear Annette! Sweet Annette! And I've wasted years thinking of trade, when it's love I want! I've wasted my life, holding freedom as a goal, when it's enslavement in your heart I need!"
"Enslavement, Rodney?"
"Enslavement!" He repeated the word aloud and looked away from her and at his manner alarm swept into the girl's face. "Of course, it's what I want!" he cried, laughing hungrily to cover his confusion. "You're sweet! You set me on fire!" he muttered, grasping her so roughly that, half frightened, she sought escape.

They returned to the village, Shaw's tongue losing its ease. He tried to pass off that unguarded moment, those impetuous words, and conduct himself as he had at other times, but fright persisted. Let lips seduce him from that objective which was the breath of his life? Ah, no! He'd gone far enough along this course.
At the gate he told her he could not be with her this night. He had affairs to attend, he said. He was brusque and absorbed, having been frightened by the strength of his own emotions. He left her, impelled to run in flight and she stared after him with the mingled feelings of one who has been rebuffed.

So that night the girl sat alone, hurt and outraged. And Burke Rickman, prowling the places of merriment in his role of spy, saw neither her nor Shaw. But Shaw, he discovered, was at his tent. Annette, then, might be alone and the time he had awaited, and the mood which had been so long in shaping, might have arrived. So he rapped on the aunt's door and found her there, with signs of tears on her cheeks and high temper in her eyes.
Sly, this Rickman, in playing on tempers. He questioned adroitly and probed and prodded to no avail. And he kept on, belittling Rodney, scoffing at him, predicting his dire future until Annette went white again with provoked loyalty and boasted of Shaw's strength and courage and possessions and plans; her thoughts and impulses were all a jumble, hating and loving Rodney in the same moment, defending him while she longed to hurt him.

She achieved both. Her boasts were the things Rickman had waited to hear; that was all he needed, to know Shaw had a partnership and planned to march to a rich ground unclaimed by traders.
So, at midnight, when Rodney slipped along the trail to Leslie's tent another followed furtively and when Shaw heard from his partner's lips the thing he had suspected and feared, this other listened, prone behind a boulder. . . .
Leslie no longer deceived himself. The hand of death lay heavily upon him. Giles, his clerk, was holding a cup of water to his lips as Rodney appeared. The old man smiled weakly.
"I've held ye . . . back . . . delayed ye . . . thinkin' I . . . might git . . . strength . . . No good," he whispered. "Just one thing . . . I want. It's to . . . see th' Pillager trade . . . out of your hands. You go," he said and weak though he was, the order came imperiously.
Rodney knelt beside him in the entry to the tent. He could not hear the light scruff-scruff of a body worming closer, could not know that alien ears heard those rasping words, spoken at the cost of such torture.
"You take th' . . . goods. Iffen I . . . don't follow they're . . . yourn . . ." he added and his suffering eyes gleamed with stalwart friendliness. "No strings . . . to 'em . . . Yourn," he said and looked at Giles as if to adjure the man to bear witness to the agreement.
He fumbled, then, in his pouch and drew out the map and butterfly ornament.
"Take 'em," he gasped. "Use 'em . . . Standin' Cloud . . . 'll treat ye like . . . brother."
"Till go," Rodney said. "Till give them such opposition they've never dreamed off! I'll be gone before the sun shows," he promised.
Leslie smiled peacefully and closed his eyes.
"Good!" he whispered after a moment. "Set a . . . spell, old coon . . . Waugh!" The brave ejaculation came as no more than a breath.
Giles retired to his tent then and Shaw sat in the faint glow from the fire for a time silently watching the face of the older man, regretting that his partnership could not be carried out.
Leslie roused after an interval and they talked of the route and of the canoe maker who, once Superior was traversed, could supply the smaller craft necessary in the rivers. And all the while that prone figure outside the tent listened . . . scarcely breathing.
It was time for Shaw to go. Leslie gallantly struggled to his feet and stepped outside his tent.
"Luck!" he said and took Rodney's hand.
"Luck, old coon!" Shaw's voice wanted to break, on that. This was a final parting, he knew.
But no more was said. He waved as he turned and stepped past the fire. He looked back once from the darkness to see the stooped, buckskin-clad figure there outlined against his tent. Then the trail turned and took him from sight.

So he did not see Leslie clutch at his breast and sway and take an unsteady step and fall. He did not see that other man rise from his concealment behind the tent and stand and watch the motionless figure. A quick hand rolled Leslie over. A cheek went close to his lips. Fingers felt vainly for the pulse. Hands rummaged within the buckskin shirt, feeling the gaunt and lifeless breast.
A knife blade glittered in the firelight. It poised and found its mark and plunged. Then, breath somewhat hoarse, Burke Rickman drew back into the shadows.
"And who marches for the Pillagers tomorrow?" he muttered. "A tight pinch, Shaw, but we'll see who marches!"

Rodney did not go directly to his encampment. When he put off he would march with vigor and his boatmen would need all the rest the night might afford.
He was depressed at leaving Leslie in such a condition. And he was depressed, too, at thought of leaving Annette Leclere. He chided himself when first aware of this reaction but he slowed his pace nevertheless and turned in the direction of the girl's house. He grew a little warm, thinking of what manner of place a fort might be with Annette Leclere established in his house as wife and mother and sharer of his burdens and successes.
He was tempted, then, to fling gravel at her window, to plead with her to come, but he put it back, telling himself that he had a task to do.

So he walked further, forcing his ardor to cool, putting aside this impractical whim. And another hour passed before he turned back toward his tent, tightening his belt, walking faster to rouse Basile and his men and prepare for departure.
But Basile was up. The men were up. Others were there, a group about the fire. One held a paper in his hands; four soldiers from the fort stood silently by the blaze warming their hands with muskets grounded and supported in the crooks of their arms.
"Well!" Rodney challenged, sensing a menace.
"Shaw!" The man holding the document put the question. "I've a warrant for your arrest!"
"Arrest?"
"For the murder of one Leslie, now dead with a knife thrust in his heart!"

The words took speech from Rodney's lips. They gripped, like a hand, on his throat. Arrest. Imprisonment. Delay. . . . Delay! "Murder!" he cried. "Why . . . Why, I left the man two hours ago, dying of disease and—Murder? Why . . . Why, it's preposterous!"
The marshal shrugged.
"The man is dead and you admit being with him. There's a knife thrust in his heart. And 'tis rumored you'd been bargaining without success for the goods he has."
Rodney drew a long and audible breath. So someone knew! Someone had told!

His eyes, a bit wild, searched the faces about him, close pressed behind the soldiers. And beyond the fire he caught the glint of light on gilt buttons and made out Burke Rickman's face set in a sardonic smile of triumph.
"So that's your play, Rickman!" he cried. "So that's the foul trick you'll try next! So that—"
Rage choked back the words and he rushed. They were upon him, though, before his wild hands reached Rickman. They bore him down, shouting and cursing. Many minutes were required to subdue him. Long enough for candle lights to appear in windows, for doors to open and men to come running.

They led him away, a soldier on either side, one ahead and one behind. They marched him up the hill, carrying him when he renewed his struggles and threw him, strangling curses, into the guard house of the fort . . .
And, at dawn, Annette Leclere slipped out of her aunt's house, no longer able to maintain the pretense of sleeping. She had heard news of the happening shouted in the small hours.
Now she sought Basile for detail of the truth. But Basile was gone

Now she sought Basile for detail of the truth. But Basile was gone for the moment and only Shaw's boatmen moved restlessly about his encampment. She turned back. Something in the trampled sand attracted her. She stopped and picked from the dirt the frayed and battered black ostrich plume which Ramsay Crooks had handed Shaw on his arrival days before.

Annette thrust it into her bosom and hastened homeward, tears beading her long lashes.

Rodney Shaw stood at the narrow window, hands gripping the prisoning metal, staring across the blue waters of the strait.
He suspected what was happening. He guessed that Rickman, aware of what his plan had been, would waste no time, now, in putting out for the Pillager country. Sounds of feet approaching caused him to quiet suddenly.
"Ah, Basile! You bring news?"
The old man nodded, but not gladly.
"The Rickman," he said, "embarks at noon. The entire force of company engages are busied in preparation. He goes, it is said, to the Pillager country."
"Damn! It was to be expected. But . . . tell me, Basile, is there no friendly ear to listen to appeal?"
"Ay!"—nodding. "Friends, we have. The place buzzes with the narrative of what was done. It amazes one, the friends one finds. But, sadly—the friends one finds lack courage. The shadow of the great company"—with a shrug—"lies like a threat."

He glanced nervously at the guard standing near.
"The place buzzes!" Basile whispered. "It was the ma'm'selle, the Leclere, who betrayed you!"
"Betray—What's this? What did she—She knew nothing of that . . ."
Rodney's astonishment gave off into a groan of dismay. He remembered in that moment his boasts to the girl.
"The vixen!" he cried. "The wench! . . . the trollop! So she betrayed my secret to company ears, eh? Trickery, eh? A device to trap me into confidences! . . . If I had her slender throat in these hands I'd throttle the smirk from her grimacing face! . . . Vixen! . . . And you take the word to her, Basile! Before all else, do that! Say to her that I say she's a vixen! No less!"

He shook his head in helpless rage.
"But, master! One wastes strength, hating. What is done, is done. The puzzle, now, is to be free to move. You will go before the justice here and be bound to the Detroit court. Weeks may elapse. I have seen Leslie's body. It is true, what they charge, that a knife wound is in the heart. But master, within the shirt is scarce a smear of blood! On the flesh is no more than would flow from the scratch of a splinter! No knife entered that beating heart!"
"You mean—Basile! That's it! He knew he was dying! He bade me farewell. He must have died after I left. A spy waited and knifed the corpse to give this charge against me the color of truth!"
"Truth! And it is said that you had bargained for his goods and that he refused and that is the motive—"

"But Giles! Giles knows! Giles listened last night when Leslie gave his goods to me without reservation!"
"This Giles!" Basile muttered. "The man has no spine! He is so frightened of what the company may do to him that he dares not claim his own soul!"
Rodney's eyes narrowed. "Mark this, Basile! There's no aid from the law. A trial might vindicate me; surely a fair trial would clear me. But Rickman departs at noon. He will have plenty of strong backs; he will march fast. We should be gone . . . Attend, Basile. There's but one way! I must have my freedom! Find me a file. A new sharp file. You can smuggle it to me on some pretext or other. At night I'll saw my way from this place and they can serve their warrant in hell! You hold the men in readiness. You keep watch, my child! When I leave this confinement, you load the packages Leslie left. Have no interference from Giles. The goods are mine!"

They whispered further, perfecting the plan, and then Basile departed and Rodney paced and plotted further and watched preparations on the beach which were designed for his final crushing.
Two great canoes were loaded with goods. A crowd gathered. MacIver was there, viewing detail. Shaw saw Conrad Rich, the old clerk who had worked in Crooks' office, garbed in buckskin, surely bound for the interior to cast the fat accounts that Rickman planned to show from the Pillager trade.
And Rickman himself was there, tall and commanding, but Shaw thought the man conducted himself as one whose mind is neither at peace nor completely on the task.
Rickman gave his final order. The oar blades dipped. The great canoes gathered way and another company brigade had begun its march to bring to the fold still one more band of hunters.

Basile came at sundown, bringing a fresh linen shirt to replace the torn and soiled and bloodied one Rodney wore. He thrust it through the grill in the door with a significant narrowing of the eyes and Shaw felt within its folds the hard outline of a file.
"Did you deliver my message to the vixen?" Rodney asked.
"I tried, and failed. Rickman was with her for long. When he left she followed from the house. She wept and begged him not to leave her. Truly, it turned one's stomach! Such kissing and embracing and such pleading with him to remain!"

"What of the night?"
"The moon will be high. There will be no wind. The file will scream and screech."
"Yes. And the guard walks his post at all hours. Damn! He grounds his teeth. But keep the men in readiness, Basile. If the wind rises tonight, I'll try. Not, however, until I have good cover for the sounds of escape."
But the night was quiet except for the wail of fiddles and laughter from company headquarters and from dwellings in the village. Although Rodney watched and listened until dawn he was forced at last to abandon hope and throw himself on the bunk to sleep fitfully.

Saturdays and Sundays take the lead in the number of accidents by automobiles. The week-end congestion of traffic, especially on highways and on crowded city streets, is responsible for this record. People are anxious to get out of the city on Saturday and in their hurry frequently forget the safe practices and common sense rules. In hurrying home on Sunday night, carelessness again overtakes them and as a result more accidents are reported.
It is a fine thing to have week-end picnics and camping parties. Let us not mar these outings by being careless in our driving habits, but let us pay special attention to the rules of the road and continue to enjoy these pleasures.
Remember, you are not a good driver unless you are a safe driver!

Bad Axe Fair Comes Next Week

With less than a week before the opening of the Bad Axe Fair and Night Carnival on August 17, livestock, grain, fruit, vegetable and flower entries have taken all available space in the various exhibit buildings, and the stage is set for the best program of entertainment and amusement to be since the fair was organized 67 years ago, says Secretary R. P. Buckley.

Prizes for the exhibits will amount to more than $5,000.00. The elaborate harness race program calls for distribution of more than $1,250.00 in prize money during the afternoons of Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

As in the past, Tuesday, the first of four big days and nights, will be Children's Day, with free gate admission to the youngsters and all midway rides at five cents.

Grownups will throng the space in front of the grandstand on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday afternoons to find out who gets the free automobiles.

A larger and more interesting and amusing midway will be seen next week, including 11 rides in addition to other carnival attractions. Two new rides the Huge Octopus and the Rodeo Ride, will be midway features never seen before at a county fair.

Another big feature of this year's fair is the expensive, mammoth fireworks display, to be seen on Wednesday and Thursday nights.

Topping the daily and nightly whirlwind of fun and amusement will be the two big musical productions of thrills, beauty and speed, brought to the fair at great expense. On Tuesday and Wednesday the show is entitled "Rhythm in the Moonlight." An entirely different production will be staged on Thursday and Friday, known as "Cavalcade of Stars." Both of these presentations will prove that the fair management has again enlarged and improved the entertainment program in securing these high grade shows.

As usual, the fair management has combed the country in selecting the best acts appearing on the leading vaudeville stages. High grade and expensive acts will appear daily in front of the grandstand.

Safe and Sure DRIVING

BY THE NATIONAL SAFETY COUNCIL

QUICK ON THE TRIGGER.

Many motorists seem to take an inordinate pride in getting away at high speed from every stop. With engine racing and hand twitching on the gear-shift, they can hardly wait until the traffic light changes from red to yellow.

Probably they do not know that in three racing starts they can waste enough gasoline to carry them a mile.

The same type of motorist has a habit of coming up to the light at high speed, depending on quick application of the brakes to stop in time. He figures that if the signal light doesn't change he will be able to rush on and "beat the light."

He does not figure, of course, that these sudden stops are wearing his brakes out rapidly, and soon they will need relining.

Most important of all, however, neither of these hair-brained drivers has considered the chances of an accident in these reckless maneuvers. They probably would scoff at the idea that possibility of an accident is increased at all.

But common sense tells us that the hazards they run and the hazards they create are many times those of the driver who seeks to "play safe" at each street intersection.

OBITUARY

Lundus A. Hildie.

Lundus A. Hildie, a former resident of Grant Township, passed away on July 27 at Lakewood Hospital in Lakewood, Ohio, at the age of 62 years. Funeral services were held on Saturday afternoon, July 31, at the William R. & Roy A. Daniels' Funeral Home, 15800 Detroit Avenue in that city.

Born in Dresden, Ontario, July 31, 1875, Lundus A. Hildie came to Grant Township in 1886 and resided there until 1892 when he started sailing on the Great Lakes. He was married to Miss Agnes Milligan of Bay City on July 18, 1905.

Mr. Hildie was vice president of the Universal Valve and Fittings Co. and took an active part in civic and fraternal affairs of Lakewood. He had lived in that community since 1895.

In 1918 he was appointed to fill a vacancy in the Lakewood Council and was selected in 1919 and 1921. For two years he was president of the council and served as chairman of several important committees. Twice he was a candidate for mayor. He championed the new traffic and present zoning ordinances of Lakewood and was active in securing the land now used by that suburb for park purposes. He was a ward captain in three of the Liberty Bond campaigns in the World War. He was a Mason, Shriner, member of the Knights Templar, Lakewood Elks, past director of the Lakewood Chamber of Commerce, the City Club, and the Lakewood Methodist Church.

He is survived by his widow; a son, J. Newell Hildie; his mother, Mrs. Mary Hildie of Owendale; two sisters, Mrs. William Wolfe of Owendale and Mrs. Andrew Muntz of Cass City; and a brother, H. C. Hildie, of Ashland, Ohio.

William Ernest Freeman.
Funeral services for William Ernest Freeman, 54, of Detroit were held at 1:00 p. m. Friday in the Harvey A. Neely Funeral Home, in that city. Rev. John H. Shilling, assistant pastor of Nardin Park Methodist Episcopal Church, officiated and burial was in Acacia Park Cemetery, Detroit.

W. Ernest Freeman was born in Cass City July 14, 1883, and lived here for many years. The last twenty-five years he has resided in Detroit. He passed away very suddenly Monday, August 2, in Ann Arbor.

Mr. Freeman was manager of the H. L. Caulkins & Co. dental depot in Ann Arbor. He is survived by his wife; a daughter, Margaret; two sons, George B. and William E., Jr., of Detroit; his mother, Mrs. George Freeman, Pontiac; two brothers, George and Carl Freeman, and a sister, Mrs. John Putnam, all of Pontiac.

He was a member of Friendship Lodge, F. & A. M., the Consistory and Moslem Shrine. The Freemans lived at 3789 Tyler Avenue, Detroit.

Furniture Grouped for Usefulness Suggests Activity

Grouping furniture for usefulness such as for reading, sewing, or writing makes the room inviting because it suggests what one may do when he enters, say extension specialists in home furnishing at Michigan State College.

The furniture should be grouped for a purpose, and separate pieces should not be left alone. Single pieces appear isolated and useless, as few persons sit down and do nothing. Desks are useless without a chair and a lamp, and so are tables unless they are near a person who is sewing, reading, or working on a hobby, say the extension specialists.

Activities of the various members of the family should be considered when one is planning the various furniture groups, suggests the home furnishing specialists. For instance, the living room may have one or more reading groups. These reading groups usually consist of two chairs turned toward each other with a table and a lamp between. Readily accessible bookshelves are necessary, of course. Low home-made shelves of simple construction often fit into the furniture arrangement better than the larger, more elaborate, ready-made type say the specialists.

Besides the reading group, the homemaker should consider provisions for visiting, sewing, rest, conversation, and perhaps a play corner for children.

Every living room needs a day bed, a couch, or a davenport to enable one to rest without having to use a regular bed. If there is no space in the living room, the day bed may be placed in the dining room, or even in a corner of the kitchen.

Provisions should be made so that two or three people may sit together to visit, without the inconvenience of first carrying chairs across the room.

In addition to adding an appearance of order and neatness, grouping the furniture gives the effect of added space.

GAGETOWN

Jubilee Celebration—

The four-day jubilee celebration ended Sunday evening when a downpour of rain put a check on all festivities. The other three nights great throngs of people from near and far came to meet old friends and acquaintances. The Sebewaing German band played Thursday and Saturday and St. Mary's orchestra of Caro played for the dance. The ball game between Gagetown and Elkton scheduled for Saturday afternoon was called off an account of rain. Sunday afternoon, Sebewaing and Gagetown met on the diamond with Sebewaing winning in a score of 10 to 7. All other games, races and entertainment on the program for the afternoons were stopped by rain.

Edward Hennessey, 87 years old, who years ago was proprietor of the Washington Hotel, was probably the oldest person on the grounds. Among those from a distance who attended were Mrs. Phoebe Bartholomy Mr. and Mrs. Sherwood and son, Mrs. William Brown, Mrs. Sarah Humphrey and son, Mrs. John Coots, Mr. and Mrs. John Quinn and daughter, Edward Hennessey, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Mosack, Mrs. Ed DeWallin, Mrs. Bridget Walsh and Mrs. Richard Case and son, John, all of Detroit; Mrs. Nicholas and son of Rochester; Mr. and Mrs. Martin Freeman of Saginaw; Mr. and Mrs. Leo Freeman and family of Carrollton; Joseph Karner of Zilwaukee.

Wilson Reunion—

The Wilson family reunion was held last Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Moshier. Mrs. Anna Wilson of Gagetown, who is 87 years old, was the oldest member present and Billy Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Wilson of Flint, two months old, was the youngest. Guests from a distance were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wilson and Ruth of Caro, Mr. and Mrs. William Wilson and family and Mr. and Mrs. Sam Seekings of Flint, Mrs. Becky Hoxey of Bay City, Mr. and Mrs. R. Chase of Fairgrove, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Coombs and three daughters of Imlay City, Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Wilson and children of Detroit, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wilson and family of Clarkston, William Wilson of Owendale and Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Seekings and daughter of Cass City.

Stapleton Reunion—

Thirty members of the Stapleton family met at the home of John Stapleton Sunday for a reunion. John Stapleton, who is 89 years old, was the oldest member present and Frederick Miller, five months old son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Miller of Detroit, was the youngest. This is the first time in fifteen years that all the family have been together. Those from a distance attending were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Miller and family of Detroit, Mr. and Mrs. William Leiper of Ferrdale, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Klein of Alpena and Sister M. Romona of Chicago.

Seurynek-Winchester—

Miss Evelyn Ann Seurynek, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Seurynek, and Mr. James L. Winchester, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Winchester, were united in marriage on Tuesday, August 3, at St. Agatha's Church. Rev. Fr. McCullough performed the ceremony at nine o'clock in the morning.

The couple were attended by Mr. Thomas Seurynek, brother of the bride, and Miss Margaret Johnson, cousin of the bride, both of Gagetown.

The bride was beautifully gowned in a long white satin dress with long veil and carried white roses and pink snapdragons. Miss Johnson was attired in a dress of blue organza with accessories to match. She carried a bouquet of pink roses.

Breakfast was served at the Seurynek home where the decorations were in pink and white. Dinner was served to 40 near relatives. The bride's table was decorated with a five-tier wedding cake.

The reception in the Frank Seurynek home in the evening was attended by 200, out-of-town guests coming from California, Detroit, Sebewaing, Caro, Lansing and Bay City. Music was furnished by the Gungzell Orchestra of Caro.

Both young people have spent their lives in this community and are highly respected by all who know them. The groom is employed in the hotel at Gagetown. The bride graduated from the high school here in the Class of 1936. They expect to start housekeeping at once and will reside in Gagetown.

Miss Edith Miller spent from Saturday until Wednesday in Flint and Detroit visiting relatives.

Miss Veda Bixby, director of the choir in the M. P. Church, will be with the choir at the regular Sunday morning service next Sunday. This service will be the last service of this conference year as the pastor will be in conference at Gull Lake. Regular services will be resumed the first week in September.

Cataract Defined

When the lens of the eye becomes clouded the condition is termed a cataract. The lens, not being supplied with blood vessels or nerves, receives its nourishment from the fluids of the eye. The lens is encased in a capsule which acts as a filter to keep out undesirable material. Should this capsule break, the lens is flooded with the eye fluids. It then becomes clouded and the patient has what is known as traumatic cataract. In elderly persons the lens capsule gradually becomes less efficient and the lens, as a result, becomes clouded from the outside toward the center.

Thunderstorm's Warnings

Nature's greatest warning of the approach of a thunderstorm is experienced on a mountain, where the atmosphere becomes so charged with electricity that it makes a man's hair stand on end, his fingers emit sparks and the metal points of his ice ax hiss like vipers, says Collier's Weekly.

Where Game Birds Nest

Quail, partridges and pheasants nest in the edges of fields of growing grain or grass, along grassy fence rows, in roadside thickets, and in the open brushy margins of woodlands.

LOW COST DISTINCTION
This handsome three room model offers the conveniences and practical comfort of a five room house. This model can be built without a basement if desired, substituting a utility room containing laundry facilities and heater for the space devoted to a basement stairway. The bed closet makes it possible to make the living room a bedroom at night, and the conveniently located dinette provides a feature sure to add to the convenience of this attractive small house.

VIEW FASCINATING SIGHTS IN TRIP TO THE SOUTH

Concluded from first page. ber of coal mines along the route, and the few miners we saw did not look very robust.

"The principal crops are corn and tobacco, with an occasional patch of wheat. We were much amused with the tiny stacks of hay and grain, some of them not much taller than a person, and a pole sticking up through the center. We learned that they were left that way to cure and later some of them are taken to the barns. There are very few large barns except on the stock farms. They are mostly stables or sheds.

"The most enjoyable part of our trip was the two-day tour of Great Smoky Mountain National Park. It is not hard to understand why the Great Smokies were so named. The low-hanging clouds seem like smoke issuing from the tree-tops and spreading over the slopes. The first day we traveled around the southwestern part of the park, where the mountain slopes are more gentle. The highway followed the Little Tennessee River for many miles. The lakes are all artificial but they are also very beautiful and the turbulent mountain streams have many falls and cascades. Fishing is the major sport and we saw many anglers along lakes and streams.

"All vegetation in the mountains is very green and fresh, due to the abundant rainfall. The outstanding characteristic of the Great Smokies is the dense forest of evergreens and many other varieties of trees and shrubs, which cover the mountains to the very summit. Variety in wild flowers and shrubs exceeds that of any other area, of like size, in the world. There are 146 species of native trees, and over 1,500 kinds of flowering plants. The most famous shrub is the rhododendron. The pink and white ones are still blooming on the higher slopes, but the purple is all gone.

"We stayed at Asheville for a day where we visited with Kenneth MacKichan, who is an engineer there. He took us to the most interesting places in and around the town and the next morning we started on our second day's tour through the park. Here the mountains are much higher and very rugged. Sharp pinnacles and towering cliffs rise above the highway and we had some thrilling views from our open-top car.

"At Newfound Gap we left the highway and took the "Skyway" drive to Clingman's Dome, which is the highest peak in the Smokies, and next to Mt. Mitchell, is the highest point in the Eastern Highlands. This high ridge is part of the boundary between Tennessee and North Carolina. Between Newfound Gap and Gatlinburg, the highway makes a complete circle, and there are many other places where you can meet yourself coming back.

"There are many CCC camps in the park where the boys are building trails and roads. Bordering the park on the southeast, is the reservation of the eastern band of Cherokee Indians. We stopped at Cherokee Lodge and saw Chief Standing Deer—the champion archer of all the Cherokees—give an exhibition of his skill with the bow and arrow. He didn't need any bank behind his target. There is a very interesting, but tragic, story connected with the establishment of this Indian Reservation.

"Along the highways and in the towns we saw roadside shops, where native handicrafts are on sale. The firestone industries of the South produce beautiful hand-woven materials, baskets, furniture and other attractive woodwork.

"On our return journey we stopped at Berea, Kentucky. Our trip around the college campus, with a student guide, would make too long a story to include here.

"At Lexington, Ky., we saw the house where Mary Todd Lincoln lived during her girlhood, and we went through the home of Col. John H. Morgan. The Henry Clay home is about a mile from Lexington but is not open to the public.

"We didn't see an accident during the trip. The highways are excellent, but the up and down, and around the hill roads are no incentive for speeding. I can now fully appreciate the song, 'She'll Be Comin' 'Round the Mountain When She Comes.'"

Thank You, Cass City

Sales of new Chevrolets in the past three weeks have even exceeded our expectations, resulting in our having too many used cars in stock which we must dispose of. Look over the cars listed below and make us an offer.

1936 Pontiac 8. Tudor with trunk, belonged to E. Steinhurt at Elkton. Very clean, only 12,000 miles. This car cost $950.00. What will you offer?

1935 Chevrolet Dual Wheel Truck, 157-inch wheelbase, booster brakes. Belonged to Charlton at Fairgrove. Excellent shape.

1927 Whippet, George Hartsell's car and he took care of it. We evidently over-allowed on this car, but our loss is your gain so we will accept any reasonable offer. These cars would make good safe dependable transportation for children going to school. Look them over; our price is right.

1936 Chevrolet Master Coach.... Knee action, good tires, like new.... Belonged to Fred McEachern. We guarantee this car.

1934 Master Chevrolet Town Sedan (with trunk), thoroughly reconditioned, runs and rides like new. Very clean.

1929 Chevrolet Coach.
1928 Pontiac Coach, owned by Wm. Rolly.
1928 Chevrolet Coach owned by I. Caruthers.
1928 Ford Coach.
