

Credit for Capture Goes to Jeffrey

Sheriff Uncovers Clue that Leads to Arrest of Mayville Bank Robbers.

Marshall Raisin and Raymond Pyle, both of Flint, were arrested early Saturday morning in Poplar Bluff, Mo., on the charge of robbing the Mayville State Bank of $2,891.10 on Wednesday afternoon, October 6. They pleaded guilty Saturday in Missouri to Federal charges of robbing the bank and were turned over to the Federal grand jury under $100,000 bond each.

To Sheriff George Jeffrey of Tuscola county goes the credit of locating the clue which resulted in the arrest of the two bandits and an accessory. Mr. Jeffrey, in making a house-to-house check of farmers in the vicinity of Mayville on the day after the robbery, learned from Bruce Brown, a farmer residing a mile south and one and one-half miles east of Mayville, in Burlington township, that Brown had noticed two men in a car parked on his farm a short time before the two gunmen entered the bank and took the money. The sheriff, taken to the spot, found fragments of a partially burned letter in some bushes. Gathering them up, he pieced them together in his office and was able to decipher "Poplar Bluff," "Marshall," "Miss" "need some dough," "angry," and "777." Consulting with state police and G-men, the information developed through the cooperative movement that Poplar Bluff was located in Missouri and that there were but four streets in Flint that carried the number 777.

At 777 East Austin avenue, Frank Raisin, 26, was arrested charged with being an accessory to Turn to page 8, please.

Million Pheasants Await Hunters

Thumb of Michigan Particularly Adapted for Propagation of These Birds.

Hunters have cause to be hopeful for success after the information given to Cass City Community Club members Tuesday night that there are between two and three million pheasants in Michigan when the hunting season opens this morning.

These figures came from the lips of R. S. Burroughs, a representative of the Michigan State Conservation Department, who gave the evening address. Mr. Burroughs said that Michigan planted several thousand pheasants in the state in 1918 and it is surprising how these exotic birds have flourished here. He said the Thumb of Michigan appears to be the best territory in the state for their propagation.

In 1935, the department's records show that 750,000 pheasants were shot by 270,000 hunters in the state during that season. The pheasants are well established here and the residue left after a hunting season provide plenty of stock for replenishing the supply for the following autumn.

Mr. Burroughs explained the operation of cooperative and independent hunting clubs which have been formed by land owners Turn to page 8, please.

Community Mourns Death of Popular Rural Teacher

Miss Lenora Mary Stewart, teacher of the Crawford school in Novesta township, passed away on Monday, October 11, at the Morris hospital in Cass City, following a five-day illness with pneumonia.

Funeral services were held at the Deford M. E. church Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock, conducted by Rev. George B. Marsh, the pastor, and interment was made in the Novesta cemetery.

Lenora Mary Stewart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vern Stewart, of Novesta township, was born in that township September 2, 1917. She graduated from the Cass City high school with the Class of 1935 and then attended the Tuscola County Normal School at Caro. She taught the Crawford school in District No. 1, Novesta, in 1936 and started her second term there on August 30, 1937. She was teaching when she was taken ill on October 5.

AUCTION CALENDAR.

Ed Donley is quitting farming and will sell live stock and farm tools at auction at the Lee Dickinson farm, 2 1/2 miles west and 1 1/2 miles south of Cass City, on Friday, October 22. Worthy Tait is the auctioneer, the Cass City State Bank will clerk the sale and full particulars are printed on page three.

Next week's Chronicle will carry display advertisements of the auction sales of V. J. Carpenter & Son, 4 miles north and 1/2 mile west of Cass City, on Tuesday, October 26, and C. W. Law, one mile north of Wickware, on Thursday, October 28.

GREENLEAF EXTENSION CLUB TO MEET TUESDAY

The Greenleaf Extension club will meet at the home of Mrs. Chas. Bond on Tuesday, October 19, at 1:30 p. m. The leaders, Mrs. Bond and Mrs. Henry Klinkman, will present the first lesson on children's clothing. All ladies interested are invited to attend.

Caro H. S. Defeats Cass City, 13-0

Heavy Fighting Visitors Push Over Two Scores for a Victory.

Caro won its first football game, since 1931 from a Cass City team, Wednesday afternoon when they lived up to the experts' predictions and took Cass City into camp.

The game was well fought with the edge going to Caro in offensive power. The defensive play of Emmons for the visiting team was the outstanding feature of the contest.

Millard Ball, Bernard Kelly and Phil Doerr did exceptional work defensively for the locals, in fact, the lighter Cass City eleven fought back stubbornly throughout the entire contest.

With a little more experience behind them some of the freshman and sophomore members will make it plenty tough for oncoming foes. Sandusky, playing inspired ball, held Cass City to a scoreless tie last Friday.

The next encounter for the Maroon and Grey will take them to Marlette where a tough contest awaits them.

The next home game will be against a flashy reserve team from Saginaw high school on November 5.

Family Celebrated Eightieth Birthday of James Maharg

Mr. and Mrs. James Maharg entertained from Friday until Monday the former's sisters, Mrs. Robert Reynolds and Mrs. William McKinney, and his niece, Mrs. Alex Porterfield, and two daughters, all of Toronto, Ontario. Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Maharg and son, Kenneth, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Maharg and daughter, Nora, also were guests Sunday when a dinner was served in honor of the 80th birthday of James Maharg.

James Maharg was born in Ontario and was united in marriage with Miss Mary Gray, January 9, 1878, at Orangeville, Ontario, and they came to Cass City in December, 1880, making their home on forty acres of land in Grant township, seven miles north of Cass City. Here they endured the hardships of the pioneer; here sickness and hard times visited them; yet there were happy days in spite of the many difficulties which lined the way of progress. They worked hard and after a span of fifty-seven years they may look back with satisfaction on the advancement made and the happiness enjoyed in a community which they did a large share in improving.

The Maharg possessions have increased from the 40 acres to 480 acres of Grant's finest farm lands which are now owned by Mr. Maharg, his sons and grandson.

When Mr. Maharg first came to Grant township, it was no unusual thing to walk seven miles to Cass City, purchase groceries and flour and carry them on his back. The automobile and the fine roads of today were not even a dream in those early days and golf was not necessary as a means of exercise.

One winter Mr. Maharg worked in Caseville, chopping elm and ash wood to four foot lengths, at fifty cents a cord. After paying his board, his net earnings were about 35 cents a day. In order to spend a week-end with his family, Mr. Maharg walked 17 miles from Caseville to his home on Saturday afternoon. Often he would walk Turn to page 5, please.

Cass City Community Swimming Pool Is Nearly Completed

Through the contributions of citizens of the Cass City community, $5,000 were made available for a community swimming pool at the City Park this summer. The financial campaign was launched late in July, building operations were started in August and the pool is now completed with the filtration system nearly so. It is planned to erect a bath house approximately 21 by 34 feet in size, with boys' and girls' showers, clothing room and other equipment.

To date approximately $4,000 have been expended. Three local contractors, A. T. Barnes, E. B. Schwaderer and E. L. Schwaderer, have contributed time and the use of their tools and this has lowered construction costs 25% and gone a long way in making the project possible.

The pool itself is 35 by 75 feet in size with a depth ranging from 2 feet 9 inches to 8 feet 6 inches. The filtering process is a continual one. A gravity feed forces the water into the filtration system and then it is pumped back into the pool, effecting a complete change every four hours.

The village council, in late July, voted to furnish the site for the pool and agreed to assume the maintenance and management of the project when it was turned over to the village free from debt. The pool, it is understood, will be subject to regulations prescribed by the village trustees and the intentions are to make its privileges available to children without charge.

A swimming pool has been discussed at various times in former years by local citizens with the suggestion that the Cass river be used as a site. This summer, a representative of the Michigan Department of Health, discouraged a river site, stating that the department would likely condemn such a location from a sanitary standpoint.

95 Bushels of Beans from Two Acres

Jay Hartley, Ellington township farmer, harvested from two acres of new land 95 bushels and 14 pounds of screened beans. This plot of ground was so thick with brush a year ago that it was not convenient for pasture.

From another 21 acres of land, Mr. Hartley threshed 389 bushels of beans, machine measure.

Seek Contributions for Youth Center

Budget of Two Hundred Dollars Needed for Operations in Coming Season.

When the Youth Center is opened for the fall and winter with the installation of a modern fire escape as ordered by the village council, the new shuffle board court will be ready for use. This active game will furnish a wholesome outlet for youthful energies. The equipment has been made available through the joint gifts of a local business man, the Art club, and the older boys of the manual arts department at Cass City high school.

New materials for table games needing replacement due to breakage and loss are also being ordered, so that several sorts of interesting leisure time occupations will be available for those who attend. People having table games to donate and fairly recent magazines suitable for young people of the teen-age are asked to notify Guy Landon, J. Ivan Niergarth, or Mrs. John Sandham.

As announced Tuesday evening by G. W. Landon, chairman of the directors, the Youth Center requires a modest budget of about two hundred dollars to operate during a season. The 1937-38 solicitation for funds with which to carry on this community enterprise will be made during the third and fourth weeks of October. People will be given opportunity to contribute as members of church groups, clubs, business organizations, and citizens at large. One will be asked to make a personal gift of over one dollar. Many will be approached for smaller sums. The largest possible supporting constituency for this local enterprise is desired.

W. S. C. Told of Trip to Europe

Mrs. Edward Baker, first vice president, presided at the regular meeting of the Woman's Study Club held at the home of Mrs. J. A. Sandham Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. Raymond McCullough and Mrs. M. C. McLellan gave a review of the book, "Inside Europe"; Miss Ella May Rike, junior high teacher, spoke on a European trip she enjoyed recently; and Mrs. Grant Patterson reported on the "Club Woman."

Club members will please take note that the next regular meeting will be held next Tuesday, October 19, instead of October 26 at the home of Mrs. Ernest Croft. This change is made on account of the annual meeting of the East Central District Federation which will be held in Cass City, October 26 and 27, which local members are urgently invited to attend.

Is Provided for in the Farm Tenant Act of the FSA.

It is anticipated that the rural rehabilitation loan program will continue without major change under the newly established Farm Security Administration of the United States Department of Agriculture which, September 1, supplanted the Resettlement Administration, John McDurmon, rural rehabilitation supervisor for Tuscola and the west half of Huron county announced recently, following assurances received from R. G. Carr, state director of the Farm Security Administration in Lansing.

Mr. McDurmon, whose office is in the Court House at Caro, stated the rural rehabilitation and farm debt adjustment work which he represents in these counties is provided for in the Farm Tenant Act which the Farm Security Administration will administer and that his duties under the FSA will be substantially the same as in the past.

KETTLEWELL-KERBYSON.

A quiet wedding ceremony took place Monday evening, October 11, in the home of Rev. J. Leslie French, pastor of the Caro Presbyterian church, when Miss Mabel Jean Kerbyson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond S. Kerbyson, of Cass City was united in marriage with Cecil B. Kettlewell, also of this place.

Attending the couple were Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Kettlewell, brother and sister-in-law of the groom. The bride wore a lovely gown of peacock green with grey coat and black hat and slippers.

After a few days in Saginaw and other places in Michigan, Mr. and Mrs. Kettlewell will make their home on the A. R. Kettlewell farm, 1 1/2 miles south of town.

The bride, a graduate of the Cass City high school in June of this year, was an honor student all through her four years of high school and finished her course of study as co-valedictorian of her class.

Mr. Kettlewell is a graduate of Crosswell high school.

Finance Committee Makes Report to Board of Supervisors of Tuscola.

The East Michigan Tourist association is the only organization of four who asked for appropriations that had their desire granted by the Tuscola Board of Supervisors. The association will receive $250. The three other requests came from the Starr Commonwealth, the Michigan Children's Aid Society and the Department of Agriculture. The last was for bee inspection in Tuscola county. All three will be considered later, it was decided Monday, the opening day of the October session. Their requests have been granted in former years and it is anticipated that it will be again in the closing days of this session.

William Gussell, John McAlpine and Truman Ackerman were appointed by Fred Matthews, chairman of the board, to represent the supervisors at the annual meeting Turn to page 5, please.

Sheridan Old Settler Answers Final Call

Mrs. Catherine Walker, for 56 years a resident of Sheridan township, loved and respected by a large circle of friends, passed away on Wednesday, October 6, after an illness of many months.

Catherine Patterson was born in Euphemia county, Ontario, January 16, 1845. On June 27, 1877, she was united in marriage with Colin Walker. To this union, six children were born. Two sons and her husband preceded her in death. The children who survive are Mrs. Mary Wilson and Mrs. Chas. Elliott of Detroit, James Walker and Mrs. David Gingrich of Greenleaf; two stepdaughters, Mrs. Euphemia Wills and Mrs. Sarah Johnson, of Ubyly.

In the early spring of 1881, she with her husband and family came to Sheridan where they endured the trials and tasted the joys of the pioneer days in that community.

Funeral services were held at Fraser Presbyterian church in Greenleaf Saturday afternoon at two o'clock. Rev. F. E. Ogle of Ubyly officiated. Interment was in Elkland cemetery.

No Duck Hunting Sundays in Huron and Sanilac Counties

An augmented force of conservation officers will assist local law enforcement agencies in enforcing the no-Sunday hunting ban in Huron and Sanilac counties and the Great Lakes waters adjoining, it was announced today by the department of conservation.

Recently the department received an opinion from the attorney general stating that the boundaries of the two counties extended far out into Saginaw Bay and Lake Huron. This will mean, conservation department officials say, that no duck hunting will be permitted on Sunday along the entire shore line of Saginaw Bay and Lake Huron from a point near Sebewaing, around the "Thumb" to a point about half way between Lexington and Lakeport.

Sanilac county has been closed to all Sunday hunting for several years. Huron county, following an affirmative local vote last spring, is being closed this fall for the first time.

Reese Resident Fatally Injured

Two Others Are in Hospital as Result of Injuries in Auto Crash.

Gottlieb Reinhardt, Sr., 56, of Reese is dead and two residents of that village are in St. Luke's hospital in Saginaw as a result of injuries received in a two-car crash Tuesday afternoon at the intersection of M-46 and the Vassar road. Mr. Reinhardt died at the hospital Wednesday noon.

Mrs. James Hogan, 35, was the driver of the car in which Mr. Reinhardt and Mrs. Clarence Herford, 34, were passengers. Mrs. Hogan received a fractured arm and left ankle and head bruises. Mrs. Herford has a fractured right leg and head bruises.

Harvey Haag of Sandusky was the owner of the other car. Passengers in this car apparently were not injured seriously. A Vassar physician treated them for minor injuries.

The Haag car was overturned in the crash and the one driven by Mrs. Hogan was demolished.

Frank Turak of R. R. 1, Kingston, had his car, a Model T Ford, badly damaged when it landed on its top Wednesday afternoon about 1 1/2 miles northeast of Caro. His mother had her face cut by broken glass. Mr. Turak apparently lost control of his car as he was unable to account for the cause of the accident.

Mr. Turak had brought his mother to consult a Caro physician and was returning home when the accident occurred. She has been ill for the past six months.

REA Generators Contract Awarded

Finish 150 Miles of Pole Setting on Huron Project This Week.

E. B. Schwaderer, Cass City contractor, and his partner, L. W. Edison, Grand Rapids contractor, have made considerable progress on their contract with the Thumb Electric Cooperative of Michigan the past month. The middle of this week they had finished setting poles for 150 miles of line in Huron county and had strung wire for 30 miles of electrical lines.

They were awarded the contract last July on the Huron county project for $605,767. This Rural Electrification association project included poles, wires, transformers and other materials and labor for approximately 639 miles of electric lines.

Following a meeting of the board of directors Saturday evening, Frank Wilson, president of the Thumb Electric Cooperative, announced that the contract for the generators had been awarded to the Fairbanks-Morse Company. The low bid, $187,500, was for three Diesel units totalling 3,000 horsepower. It is expected that invitations to bid on the power plant building will be issued in the near future. Mr. Wilson asks all contractors who wish to participate to send their names in to the company at Ubyly or to the Southern Michigan Engineering Corporation at Lansing.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy C. Allen of 13601 Benwood avenue, Cleveland, Ohio, were pleasantly surprised on the evening of October 2 by their friends and neighbors, in honor of their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary.

Couple Celebrate 25th Anniversary

The house was beautiful with silver decorations, American Beauty roses and snapdragons, and a buffet dinner was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Allen, former residents of Cass City, were presented with a radio and many beautiful silver gifts.

Mr. Allen has been a motorman on the street railway in Cleveland for many years and Mrs. Allen is a clerk in the Wright Department store in Garfield Heights. They have twin daughters, Jessie and Lucile, both nurses, and Fay, a senior in John Adams high school.

YOUTH MINDED.

According to press dispatches Sing Sing prison's death house has been crowded with doomed killers. Not so long ago, twenty-three men were waiting to die in the electric chair. Nine of them were still too young to vote.

Recent developments have indicated that Cass City citizens are youth-minded. We refer to the establishment of the youth center last year and to the municipal swimming pool and bath house now in course of construction in the city park.

These provide places for youth to spend their leisure time and it is the belief that they will prove profitable investments in more ways than one.

PEACE ON THE RAILROADS.

A settlement is announced of the wage dispute between the railroad companies and their employes, which seems to assure the country against any disturbing labor trouble in that great industry.

While there is to be peace on the railroads, there seems to be a good deal of poverty there also. The majority of the railroad companies are not making any money.

TWO FAMILIES, ONE ROOF.

A recent business review remarks that the doubling up of families still prevails in this country. Millions of people desire independent homes of their own, but are not able to afford them.

Also many young people who went to the cities in the boom times, lured by high wages, have gone back to live on the old farm.

Less than 300,000 housekeeping units were erected in 1936 in the city centers of this country, according to the National Bureau of Economic Research.

The Brookings Institution figures that the country needs the erection of 900,000 buildings each year for five years, with an estimated annual expenditure, including repairs on old buildings, of $5,000,000,000.

Something ought to be done to revive the building industry and provide work for a vast body of people in these trades. Building operations by the government do not solve this problem, since they pile up the government debt which is far too high.

The American people own 28,000,000 motor vehicles, because machines cost much less than they did years ago. They would buy many more homes, if ways could be found to reduce costs of construction.

You may be interested to hear that another hundred will be killed on our highways today.

The optimist believes that the world will repay his contribution to human betterment; the pessimist doesn't believe in investing anything.

NO LIKENESS TO FATAL 1929.

Some pessimistic observers have been getting scared over the recent stock market decline. They say the slipping prices remind them of the terrible time in the fall of 1929, just eight years ago.

Now some people say that the recent succession of stock market breaks, with relatively few buyers, reminds them of that year of catastrophe. They say the stock market is the barometer of business, and that the falling pressure indicates storms.

The usual signs indicating a business collapse are absent. The stock market often falls merely because people get nervous. When business has a crash, one reason is that it is hard to borrow money.

Excessive speculation and over-production of merchandise and commodities are usually very much in evidence before a business crash. There is no evidence of either of these conditions. Production is mostly a hand-to-mouth affair, either on orders, or based on close estimates of what people are going to want.

There is no sign of any crash or depression for the next year anyway, but the American people must beware of running up too heavy debts. The borrowing habit gets individuals into trouble, and it can do the same thing to nations.

"NO HUNTING."

The no-regard-for-property hunters, who are in the great minority of course, are causing more and more farmers to post their farm lands with "no hunting" signs.

THE MONTH OF FRUITS.

Someone has called October the month of fruits. The apples red on the trees, the grapes turn to their rich purple, the vegetables display all colors of the rainbow.

These products which grow in such beauty as to delight the eye, which sustain the body of man, represent the essential goodness of life. If the universe were a place of cruelty, where harsh fates willfully make us unhappy, as some seem to feel, would all this richness and beauty be created?

HUNTING AND SPORTSMANSHIP.

Millions of men and boys, with some women, are starting out on the hunting trail. It sometimes seems as if the number of hunters exceeded the number of animals and birds to be shot.

Laws are passed which attempt to regulate the pastime or occupation of shooting these creatures. If the game laws are well obeyed, we shall keep a moderate amount of wild life, to be a valuable source of food supply and to give pleasure to sportsmen.

Every hunter in Michigan should be asked to obey these laws. The sportsmen have their choice, whether to exterminate many useful varieties and reduce the supply of others, or to encourage the growth of these creatures. It is up to the sportsmen.

Life sometimes presents us with prizes that we never dreamed of winning.

Everybody wants peace, it seems, but few are doing anything about it.

The individual who tries to please everybody winds up by pleasing nobody.

The man who numbers his friends by the thousands probably hasn't that many.

The world is crowded with individuals able to tell everybody else what they must do.

There are times when a man ought to make an extra contribution to the church of his choice.

AFTER THE ACCIDENT.

Your newspaper often reports: "After the accident, the driver put on speed and disappeared." His guilty conscience flogged him as he tried to run and hide.

It is a criminal offense to leave the scene of a motor car accident without establishing your identity. Whether you are responsible for the crash or not, to run away stamps you as the guilty party.

APPRECIATION.

The following poem was found in the possession of our wife and mother who so recently left our midst. We wish to present it to all of our kindly friends, neighbors, nurses, Mr. McPhail, and Drs. McCoy and Donahue in appreciation of their help and kindness to us in our bereavement.

William Arthur Perry and children.

"Friends."

by Edgar Daniel Kramer.

When on my knees

As each day ends

I talk to God,

I ask for friends

Who will be firm

And hold me true

To that which He

Would have me do;

Who will be quick

To give me praise

For having walked

In noble ways;

Who will be brave

To criticize

When I have stooped

To lust or lies;

Who will be kind

Although I fail

As I fight on

To glimpse the Grail;

Who will be harsh

When I forget

The goal on which

My heart is set;

Who will have faith

That angels know,

Although I bring

Of joy or woe.

When into dark

The daylight blends,

I pray, "Dear God,

I would have friends!"

Need No Bulls in Bull Dozing

A new art is being practiced in Michigan, the art of bull dozing, yet it has nothing to do with bulls unless done unwisely.

Although Michigan agriculture has progressed through a century, land clearing in a wise way is found to be profitable on some farms where income fails to provide a suitable living for a family.

In sponsoring four demonstrations of a bull dozer, which tumbles over stumps like toy blocks, members of the agricultural engineering staff at Michigan State College explain the purpose.

On some farms, the actual cropped acreage or efficient improved pasture land is too small to support a family. This is true in some of the northern counties. On other farms, the wrong parts of the farm have been farmed because they already were cleared or were easiest to clear. More productive land has been idle.

To cut relief loads and make farming more self-sustaining, farmers in four counties are invited to attend demonstrations this month. In Alpena county a demonstration is scheduled October 19; Otsego county, October 20; Charlevoix county, October 21; and Osceola county, October 22.

In the Upper Peninsula similar projects have been under way. More efficient farming is being sought so that cash income will be sufficient to support a family now living on the land. Iron county supervisors purchased a bull dozer to aid agriculture within the county.

Bankers in another county offered to serve as collection and booking agencies for use of a land clearing machine. Charges are at a rate of $5 an hour, indicating the necessity of selecting land for clearing that will be sufficiently productive to replace other land.

COMMUNITY MOURNS DEATH OF POPULAR RURAL TEACHER

township all her life with the exception of eight years when the family lived in Indiana. Of a happy disposition, a consecrated Christian young lady, and one who was always ready to help anyone at any time, she won many friends in the community and was dearly loved by her pupils. Miss Stewart was prominent in church, Sunday School and Epworth League circles. She was a teacher in the Deford M. E. Sunday School.

Besides her parents, she leaves a brother, Francis Stewart; a grandmother, Mrs. Lena Stewart, of Kingston, four aunts, two uncles and several cousins.

What Is It? Dinner, Lunch or Supper?

DEAR Mrs. Post: A friend of mine insists that no matter what is served, the meals of the day in their order are called breakfast, lunch and dinner, and a light evening meal is supper. I maintain that if a person eats a full course meal at noon it is called dinner. Will you explain this to us?

Answer: Meticulously speaking, dinner, no matter whether served at mid-day or in the evening, begins with soup in plates set on a tablecloth, and is followed by meat and vegetables, and there is no cup and saucer for a hot beverage on the table. It is the tablecloth and the soup in the soup plate, and the absence of cups and saucers, that classifies the meal as dinner. Until lately the presence of bread and butter plates also banished the name of dinner. Supper is recognized principally because set on a bare table, and it has cups and saucers and hot coffee, tea or chocolate on the table, and soup, if any, is served in cups. The difference between lunch and supper is that one is at mid-day and the other is in the evening. Less meticulously but according to its more usual interpretation, dinner is the substantial meal of the 24 hours, no matter at what time it is eaten, and the other meal is either lunch or supper.

Sending Announcements. DEAR Mrs. Post: My only relatives are my aunt and my brother, and under the circumstances I am not going to have a very large wedding and will not send any invitations. But I would like to send announcements to our friends everywhere. In whose name should these announcements be sent?

Answer: Either would be proper although somewhat depending upon circumstances. If your aunt has brought you up and your brother is younger than you, then the invitations would certainly go out in her name. But if you and your brother have always lived together and if he is older than you, the invitations would probably go out in his name. This, however, can't be answered definitely since the question of how both feel about the matter must be taken into consideration.

Don't Skimp ... But Save!

Sometimes we confuse skimping with saving. We measure our purchasing by someone else's price rate. Saving means getting full value for every penny while paying less than we would have to pay elsewhere.

Skimping means doing without what we need because the price includes something we are not getting.

CHAPTER XI

So Rodney Shaw came home to his fort, gaunt and still a bit pale, but erect in his canoe.

The wind blew chill that day but he had refused the capote which his men urged him to wear. He was not cold, he declared; the new life in his veins had plenty of warmth.

This was true. His splendid vitality had rebounded amazingly from the depths to which Mongazi's bullet had reduced it and his body felt no discomfort from the autumn wind.

A chill, however, lay upon his heart and in his eyes as they stared across the water to his establishment was a bleakness. He felt as he had felt for days: as if the sun were permanently gone. In the beginning he had attributed the sensation to physical weakness but realized that this was an error. Toughened to hardship, with the splendid foundation of vigor on which to rebuild strength, his body had regained much of what had been lost. Not all, of course, but much. He could walk and paddle; his heart no longer pounded his ribs at slight exertion; his voice had recaptured its vibrant timbre . . . Still, he felt cold.

He stepped ashore, now, without the feeling of achievement which he had anticipated.

Men left tasks and ran to greet him, shouting and laughing. A half dozen Indians loitering about the place stared. One of the engages had taken a native wife and Rodney stopped to speak to the girl and bid her welcome and try to make a joke about her husband.

He stood a moment before his quarters, looking about. A great flock of red-winged blackbirds, ready for their annual leave taking, rose and dipped and whirled above the fort like soot flakes tossing on a gale.

He was back, safe, alive, treading the ground of his stronghold, and it was good . . .

Good to be there? A tingling stab ran his breast as he told himself it was good to be back within that stockade. He had ached and hungered to be back, thinking return would bring relief from the pall which hung above him. He would have been back days before had not Basile persisted in his argument that the trade, after all that had happened, demanded that Rodney be seen among the scattered hunters. This was reasonable and Shaw had yielded to the old man's nagging, restless though he had become.

That feeling of being under a cloud had increased with the days. He knew its beginnings, the time and the reason, but he would not let himself dwell on those. He knew it dated from the moment he had sent Annette Leclere away.

He had sent her away in bitterness, but he had not wanted her to leave. His heart had wanted her to remain close to him, to comfort him, to hear the questions he ached to ask. But his mind would not permit that heart to have its way. She had been in Rickman's quarters here, after pleading in the streets of Mackinac with Rickman not to leave her. Surely, then, she had come to Rickman. She had served him, Shaw, but only as any woman would serve any man, wounded and in need.

A gnawing wonder harried him. Had she not, once or twice or thrice, actually felt the things her looks and touches told him she felt back there at Mackinac? Was there not, after all that had happened, a chance that her blood might call to his as his once had to hers? He'd wanted to ask her those things. His heart had. But his mind, filled with animosity and doubt, would not let his heart have its way; would run no risk of letting that heart demand its way. So he had banished her and the pall had settled . . .

Fish were smoking on racks of withes over a fire. A hunter was just then unloading the carcasses of two deer from his canoe. Rice was heaped yonder on an oilcloth. Against the wall were newly delivered packs of fur from some native who was already discharging his debt. A well-stocked, profitable establishment, this; the sort of domain free men dreamed of building in the wilderness. It was his, despite opposition. It was his to hold easily, now . . .

And yet, despite all this, it was not good to be here. The place was filled and yet it was empty; the fort had permanence and instability together; he had a feeling of homecoming and departure; much lay ahead but more behind, irretrievably behind . . .

He walked into his quarters where Jacques was making a fire and again that feeling which had swept and rocked him at Mackinac reasserted itself. Again he thought what it would be for a trader, coming home to lips and arms and eyes like hers. Again he saw loneliness and hardship without mellowing tenderness stretching before him down the years.

"Voilà!" muttered Jacques, rising from the hearth as flames crackled. Jacques went out, closing the door. Rodney moved slowly about. He stopped beside the table, staring down at the paper folded there. His name was inscribed on it in a fine and delicate script.

Trembling, he snatched up the paper, opened its folds, sank to the bench and began to read:

My Dear Rodney:
When this comes to your attention your wish that I be gone will be wholly granted. I have spent days here unknown to you and I pray you will not be harsh with Basile when you become aware of it.

One of the objects of my coming here was to say to you that nothing you can ever think of me for the mischief I did will be undeserved. I attempted to say this at your bedside but you would not hear me out. I bear you no resentment for that dismissal.

I beg of you to consider this. When I betrayed your plan to Burke Rickman I was a girl, piqued and hurt. I have matured, I believe, in the months that have passed and this maturity has only increased my perception of the enormity of my misdeed. I shall carry my regrets throughout life.

This is all I have to say, dear Rodney. It would have been a privilege to say it rather than write it. But, being the transgressor, I can ask no favor.

I wish you only health and happiness and good fortune.

Annette Leclere.

He looked slowly up from the paper, his mind completely in a swirl. She here? She . . . preparing for return? Return where? With whom? His heart pelted at his ribs and his throat swelled. A letter such as that, sweet, gentle, humble . . . But her cloak had been in Rickman's quarters! She had come to him from the company fort! . . .

"Jacques!" he called, lunging for the door. "Jacques!"

Jacques was there. Not in answer to his call. But there, eyes large and excited and strained words on his lips.

"The clerk, Rich, from the company, awaits at the gate!" he blurted.

"Clerk? Rich? Company . . . Devil take him! . . . Jacques, what of the ma'm'selle? Was she here? When did she leave? What was . . ."

A rising clamor of voices and pound of feet broke his question down. He moved slightly to look past Jacques and saw Conrad Rich racing toward him.

"Forgive this, Shaw!" Rich panted, coming to a halt. "They wouldn't let me in. But it's more'n life and death that fetches me here!"

Rodney was struck by the genuineness of the man's emotion. "Annette!" he finally got the word out explosively. "She's on the way out and Rickman . . . he's hard after her!"

Cold within Rodney turned to warmth, to heat, to a fire.

"Is this another wild scheme?" he snarled. "Is this another attempt by you company hirelings to suck a man into a trap where he—"

"Shaw, leave off! It's no time for talk such as that! D'you think I'd be here if that was so? D'you think I'd risk my skin comin' here for trade? It's a woman this time, I'm to say, and there's none at our establishment to stand by her! Listen!" he said as Rodney's hold relaxed. "It's all he's planned on for days. It's all he's lived for, this chance at her! It drove him wild when she come, callin' the military back. 'Nd he schemed to kill you so's he could have not only the trade but her!"

"Military? She called them back?"

"Fore God, Shaw, didn't you know? But how could you? No, you couldn't! . . . Listen! Rickman sent back for the military to come 'nd drag you out of here to stand trial. They come. Capes. But Annette knowed it. She'd worked for you back yonder. She'd got Leslie's Giles to take your part so's they'd kill the warrant. But Capes was on 't' way and there was nobody else to send to call him back. So she come . . . th' night we fired your place, here. That's what touched Rickman off, I tell you, man! It drove him wild. She, standin' tellin' him as how she was lyin' when she begged him to stay at Mackinac; as how she only done it to give you a chance to get free and here ahead of us. He went mad, I tell you, man, 'nd ripped her cloak off and she had to run for it . . ."

He paused again, panting, and Rodney stood before him, jaw loose.

"She didn't come . . . to . . . him?" he asked in a whisper.

"Eh? Him! You didn't know? She didn't tell? When she was nursin' you she didn't give it away? Him? 'Twas you she come for, Shaw; it's you she loves! And she's goin' back and he's after her and it'll be like devils from hell tearin' at her tender flesh if he ever gets—"

Shaw was past him, then, spinning him to one side with an arm thrust, jerking open the door, crying:

"Jacques! . . . Jacques! . . . Two men and a light canoe! Now, Jacques, now!"

An hour's start, miles of advantage, had Burke Rickman.

As Rodney set his course to the southward to have the strategic shelter of the chain of islands, he made the other out, far, far off.

An hour passed, and two, without further sight of Rickman. The last island of the chain was a full league in length and beyond lay much open water. When they breasted this final shelter he cursed his boatman and the canoe quivered as they drove blades deeper.

Jacques, in the bow, spoke guardedly:

"They have not passed beyond."

Out there was steel-blue water, sullen under clouds the hue of new iron. Upon it, as far as they could see, floated no other craft.

"Turn . . . so . . ." Rodney extended his left hand; the bow swung toward the reed bed at the foot of the island. He picked up a rifle and examined the priming critically. Reeds hissed against the birch bark as they slipped into their cover, making on toward the far edge where, from concealment, he could watch for approach.

The channel between island and mainland was narrow. This oncoming canoe would pass within a stone's throw.

"Be ready!" he muttered, slowly lowering his head for better screening. . . . "Ready, Jacques . . . The paddle on the bottom . . . So! . . . Silently, at first . . . Now . . . Now!"

The bow swung outward; with stout shoves of the paddles they followed the point of the reed bed, out toward deeper water, out to cross the course of that other canoe.

They glided from their shelter into full view and Shaw rose to his knees, swinging the rifle to his shoulder, and in the split instant consumed by this movement he saw Rickman's face; amazement, bewilderment, high fright and venomous hatred.

The bow boatman, yonder, cried out in alarm, lifting his paddle high, and went overboard to escape this menace.

The lurch caught Rickman off balance as he lunged forward and grasped a gun lying on packs before him. He cursed sharply, tried to hold the weapon and clutch for the rail at once; the rifle slid into the water with a splash and the man in the stern dived from his seat for sanctuary.

For a moment they held so, Shaw's gun full on his enemy's breast.

"You are not going on, Rickman," he said evenly. "It's the end of your march! The ma'm'selle proceeds, unpursued!"

The other's eyes were busy, now that a second had elapsed and the hammer not fallen. He laughed dryly. "So, you would shoot a man down, unarmed?" he asked and the taunt was stinging.

"The end of your march . . . in all things!"

"In cold blood and three to one?"

The taunt struck home. He could see Shaw's mouth settle. He moved a hand, then significantly toward the knife at his belt.

"For long I've wished this," he muttered. "But . . . man to man, without odds!"

"Man to man! you beg for that now, eh? You, a snake, begging for such? Well, I'll demonstrate to you what decent folk will do, how far decent men will go . . . with snakes."

The muzzle dropped, he squeezed the trigger. Water splashed and the flattening ball ripped crunching through the skin of Rickman's canoe below the water line.

Silence a moment. He could hear the water gurgling about the other's feet. Lower settled the canoe under Rickman. It lurched and listaded; it went awash and the trader, abandoning effort to keep it righted, vaulted to the lake, supporting himself with a hand on the gunwale.

"So!" cried Rodney. "You men, —to Jacques — 'ashore with you! He has no supporters; I'll have none. He's asked for it, at last! I'll take no advantage . . . Ashore, now!"

They went over the side, frightened, and swam slowly for the reefs away from which he was drifting in the breeze, faces over their shoulders, watching him in a sort of terror.

Then Shaw slipped his knife from its sheath, clamped it between teeth and seizing a paddle, face dark with fury, drove forward. Two strokes, three. He dropped the paddle, half rising to lunge and pounce upon his adversary.

But Rickman could read the plan of attack as clearly as though it had been written down for him. He waited that pulse beat until Shaw should be poised for his leap and then, cat-like, he shot out a great hand, grasped the moving canoe, shoved it, twisting it and Shaw, upset by the joggling, sprawled with a splash . . .

Grinning, then, Rickman, supporting himself with a hand on the canoe bow, saw the other break the surface, saw him turn and strike out, swimming for him, heard his rattle of rage through the teeth set on the knife blade.

"Ha!" he cried, swinging the canoe mightily. "Ha, Shaw! Plans go awry!"

The stern swept toward the swimmer, blocking his way as Rickman drew himself to the far side, leering over at Shaw, now lifting a hand for support.

Rodney breathed rapidly. The excitement, the unexpected plunge, the quick effort to close, had taken toll on his strength. He began working himself hand-across-hand along the canoe to be at Rickman. But, even as he went, Rickman moved on the opposite side, keeping more than an arm's length between them, laughing, laughing . . .

"Dunce!" he cried. "Dunce! The other end to, I'd have drilled you, Shaw! I'd have drilled while you whimpered for fair fight! But now . . . Will you wait for me, or will you come?"

Shaw swore hoarsely and started working his way around the canoe, but on ahead went Rickman, laughing until, winded, his pursuer rested again.

"Our trader loses his wit?" Rickman jeered. "Our trader forgets that inland nothing is banned. He plays the gentleman and . . . perishes, eh?"

One of Rodney's legs cramped and he grimaced in pain. He was breathing through open lips, now, failing to recover strength in this snatch of a rest period.

Minutes counted; seconds, even, were precious . . . Slowly Shaw worked himself along the canoe as Rickman jeered. The man was confident, expecting, and with good reason, to see Shaw relax his grip at any moment, helpless through weakness even to keep his nostrils above water. They were face to face, directly opposite one another. Shaw drew his knees upward until they touched the canoe bottom.

He spread his feet wide, he shot them forward, he brought his heels together.

Almost before his legs gripped Rickman he saw surprise and chagrin sweep the man's face. He hooked his own elbows over the rail. He crossed his feet and jerked his legs inward with all the might left in them, with all the steel and courage in his heart. Rickman cursed sharply, once, a curse that had begun with contempt and ended with fearful surprise. He had not reckoned that in those weakened muscles was a strength like this.

The man let go the canoe with his knife and stabbed downward to cut the legs dragging at him. His other hand could not hold him safe. In a trice he was under water, direction of the slashing blade going wrong, dragged beneath the canoe, feeling hands grapple for him . . .

Rickman's blade slashed out but Rodney caught the wrist. He closed and they rolled over once and came up face to face, both strangling, free hand of each gripping the knife hand of the other.

Rodney's head was under his adversary's chin, now, forcing him backward; legs twined about one of Rickman's thighs, binding it close, giving purchase for the boring of that head. His back was gradually forced against the side of the canoe.

With a quiver Rickman went limp. His arm flexed, his body twitched . . . And then Rodney was rising, rising slowly, almost lazily, commencing to swim indifferently, as in a dream.

Jacques was staring hard at him. "It is done, master," he said. "One may now return in peace."

"We do not return, Jacques, we march on."

FOUR PLACES
In your home that should be Light Conditioned

BEDSIDE LIGHTING—100 to 150 Watts
BATHROOM MIRROR—100 to 180 Watts
KITCHEN LIGHTING—150 to 200 Watts
STUDY DESK—100 to 150 Watts

Bedside lighting, bathroom lighting, kitchen lighting, and lighting for a child's study table . . . these should receive careful consideration, because these are the places where eyes are used constantly on tasks that require close visual application. These are the places where abuse of the eyes through poor lighting may result in permanent injury. These are places in your home that should be LIGHT CONDITIONED. Compare the recommended lamp wattage with the lamp sizes at these four locations in your home. Sizes are total: There may be one lamp bulb or several.

Good lighting at the bedside can help to prevent eyestrain caused by reading in bed. Good lighting on either side of the bathroom mirror will greatly facilitate shaving and primping. Good lighting in the kitchen makes cooking, dishwashing, and other kitchen tasks easier. And good lighting at the study desk will help to protect your child's eyes against eyestrain.

Lansing — Michigan's czar of state finances, Governor Frank Murphy, is demonstrating that he means business in trying to balance the budget.

Faced with the prospect of a $18,000,000 deficit due to legislative generosity in granting requests of home pressure groups, Murphy asked for and received extraordinary power from legislators, before they adjourned, to trim appropriations as he saw fit. In the matter of finances, the legislature abdicated. Invested with all the authority of a financial dictator, the governor has reduced an estimated deficit from $18,000,000 to $3,000,000. President Roosevelt announced last week that the federal government would balance its budget beginning July 1, 1938. Governor Murphy is determined, so he professes, to maintain the "financial integrity of the state" in 1937.

ment of two Republicans—Ickes and Wallace—to his cabinet has an equal, in spirit at least, to Murphy's appointment of Republican Harold Smith to be budget director. The selection of Smith was particularly disappointing to expectant Democrats, and it has not been altogether "one happy family" to have a Republican in the position of slashing legislative appropriations and then receiving the governor's public praise for doing it. Speaker George Schroeder has been touchy about this situation, claiming that legislative prerogatives were being usurped by a state appointee.

It has been a bitter pill for some legislators to have Smith, a Republican, become the recipient of commendation by the governor for doing something which the democratic-controlled legislature failed to do.

Labor Trouble Grows

The nomination in Detroit of the C. I. O. candidate for mayor has given fresh impetus to the growing labor movement in Michigan. It presages new and determined efforts of the C. I. O. to organize workers in industries throughout the state. It increases the likelihood that Governor Murphy may call the next special session of the state legislature sooner than next January for the primary purpose of passing a labor relations act.

Michigan's present law prohibits picketings. Under the labor relations bill passed by the state legislature but vetoed by the governor, picketing would have been legalized although restricted to employees who were on strike. It would have been illegal to block the entrance or exit of any building.

Saginaw was one of the many cities in Michigan to experience labor trouble. At the Fame Laundry company plant, 50 members of an A. F. of L. union were prevented from entering their place of work by striking employees of a competing laundry, all of whom were members of the C. I. O. A court injunction was ignored by the C. I. O. workers.

C. I. O. organizers are busy in Grand Rapids. At Port Huron the police attempted to enforce an injunction writ against pickets. Many picketers were injured.

At Eaton Rapids a woolen mill has been idle for many months, due to labor demand for higher wages. Thus the labor movement grows in Michigan. Results of the Detroit primary demonstrate that the C. I. O. is still a powerful factor... one not to be lightly ignored.

Farm Prices Dropping

Industrial workers are getting $70,000,000 more weekly in their pay checks, and prices have been climbing steadily. For automobiles alone, consumers will pay more.

But while commodity prices have been going up, farm prices have been going down. Farmers must pay out more, yet receive less.

The state cooperative crop reporting service, for example, points out that on September 15 the price of wheat was 10 cents lower than on a corresponding date a year ago; dry beans were $1.50 less a hundredweight; potatoes, down 70 cents a bushel; apples, off 25 cents a bushel.

The industrial worker will pay less for food, but the farmer will have to pay more for industrial products.

Price-Fixing Fails

Legislative attempts to tinker with the economic law of supply and demand are plaguing Michigan grape growers.

Along with an act setting up a retaliation tariff on imports of beers, the 1937 legislature passed a bill setting the price of $55 a ton which wineries must pay in cash for Michigan grapes. Wine manufacturers who bought grapes in lesser quantities were to be taxed 50 cents a gallon.

Price-fixing has been tried before with little success.

Here's how it is working out for the grape growers this fall. Nature provided a bumper yield to the tune of a 7,500-ton harvest. The open market price is $8 a ton.

Why then, the $55 price? That's just the rub. Sixteen per cent of the Michigan harvest is at stake in the latest demonstration that law-makers can't control supply and demand no matter how hard they try.

Newspapers Take a Bow

In these days of governmental spending, it is news when someone voluntarily returns unexpended money.

Newspapers of Michigan received $10,000 from the state last year for the purpose of advertising the state through a four-day tour this summer of newspaper editors, members of the National Editorial Association.

A special train was chartered. Nearly 300 editors were taken from Detroit to Mackinac Island.

Michigan editors who took the tour paid a higher rate than the visitors. Members of the tour committee paid their own expenses, rather than use state money.

The net result was the presentation to Secretary of State Leon D. Case at a Lansing luncheon last Friday (October 8) of a check for $2,629.57. Newspapers voluntarily refunded more than 26 per cent of the state appropriation, much to the surprise of politicians. Again the sanity of newspaper editors is being questioned.

Low-Priced Homes

Michigan's booming automobile factories, setting a pace for general improved economic conditions, have created a widespread housing shortage. In fact, the National Lumber Manufacturers' association is authority for a statement that Michigan leads all other states "by a wide margin" in home building interest.

Construction is centered mostly in low-priced homes.

The shortage has been acute in many cities, leading to mushroom trailer camps and inducing a trailer concern at Mount Clemens to build "trailer cottages."

Muskegon's success in stimulating building of homes has brought inquiries from a number of Mid-West cities. Holland rates high also. One lumber dealer in Holland has built 35 houses priced from $2,700 to $4,000—all since January 1.

Duke Knows U. S. A.

The forthcoming visit to Detroit of England's former king, the Duke of Windsor, and his American-born wife is another confirmation of the international prominence of Michigan in world commerce.

When foreigners come to the United States for the purpose of getting a cross-section understanding of America, they always include these four cities on the list:

New York City, world's greatest metropolis with its towering skyscrapers.

Chicago, capital of Mid-West agriculture, home of the stockyards.

Hollywood, world center for motion pictures.

Detroit, world motor metropolis. Because of the automobile, Michigan will be host next winter to Edward and Wallie. Their visit should be worth millions to the state's growing tourist business.

Children in Court

By Judge Malcolm Hatfield.

A father learned yesterday in Juvenile Court that a definite means of causing a boy to steal is to tell him anything in order to avoid allowing him the means of earning a small amount of spending money.

This particular youngster was interested in a young lady in his class in the local high school and disliked seeing other boys escort her to the soda fountain or movie. Consequently, as he was forced to work at home without an allowance, he quickly took advantage of the first opportunity which presented itself to secure money by an unscrupulous method.

Here's News! State Gets a Refund

Secretary of State Leon D. Case wears a big smile as Philip T. Rich, Midland publisher, presents the State of Michigan with a check for $2,629.57, the unexpended sum from an appropriation of $10,000 given to the Michigan Press association for advertising Michigan through a four-day tour of the National Editorial association.

Lansing—Newspapers of Michigan rated the front page Friday, October 8, when they presented the State government with a check for $2,629.57.

Almost in the "man-bites-dog" class of news was the announcement at a special luncheon here that the Michigan Press association, representing 258 weekly newspapers and 27 daily newspapers, had returned to the state treasury more than 26 per cent of its original advertising appropriation of $10,000.

Editors from nearly 40 states visited Michigan last July, taking a four-day trip from Detroit to Mackinac Island. A Pontiac automobile was awarded to the editor who wrote the best newspaper story about Michigan.

In the presence of state officials including Governor Frank Murphy, a huge scrapbook of newspaper articles about Michigan was exhibited and a 35-minute motion picture of the editors' tour was shown. The check was presented to Secretary of State Leon D. Case, a member of the administrative board, by Philip T. Rich, editor of the Midland Daily News, who was chairman of the publishers' convention bureau in charge of the four-day tour.

Word came at five o'clock Monday afternoon that the speaker engaged for Tuesday night was unable to come because of illness and at 1:30 Tuesday morning Mr. Keppen had Mr. Burroughs' promise to give an address. Apples Blush at Size of Crop Dame Nature seems to be blushing this fall at the size of the Michigan apple crop. Yet consumers are finding the blush attractive because the fruit is the best quality in years and because the harvest of 50 per cent more apples than usual means comparatively low prices.

Weather has played an important part in creating this supply, says H. D. Hootman, extension specialist in horticulture at Michigan State College. Almost ideal growing conditions for apples have prevailed since June. Instead of the normal 8 to 10 million bushels, orchards in the state are yielding between 13 and 14 million bushels of fruit this fall.

Rains in June and July and a cool September have put on size and now a rich color. Because of frosts and cool nights the last few days there has been little loss in dropping.

Stimulation to storage facilities means that many more apples than ever before will be available after cold weather sets in and until early spring. Detroit warehouses are being packed with the fruit and growers are putting in air conditioning and refrigeration or constructing storage space.

Wealthies and McIntosh already have been picked and the harvesters now are concentrating on the Delicious, Northern Spy, Baldwin and Jonathan varieties. Federal purchases are removing some of the excess of the crop and providing some of the less desirable market grades for distribution to relief clients.

Concluded from first page. by farm and home management plans and advice from county supervisors—will be made to low-income farm families who desire to become re-established on a self-supporting basis but who are unable to secure the proper credit from other sources with which to purchase live stock, equipment, and seed or feed.

In addition to the rural rehabilitation program which will be continued as an important part of the new agency, the Farm Security Administration will conduct a limited tenant loan program, as provided in the Farm Tenant Act, for selected tenant farmers.

The method of handling applications for the new tenant loans will be announced later when information is received on the details, Mr. McDurmon said.

Land use planning and submarginal land purchasing, further provided for in the Farm Tenant Act, have been assigned by the secretary of agriculture to the Bureau of Agricultural Economics. This means that former land utilization work and that to be carried out under the new act will be continued through a Land Utilization Division of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, while the Farm Security Administration will conduct the tenant and rural rehabilitation programs and complete farmstead projects now under development.

Thus, remaining functions of the former Resettlement Administration and those added by the Farm Tenant Act have been divided between the Farm Security Administration and the Land Use Program of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, according to the statement received by Mr. McDurmon from the state office.

Officers Suggest Hunting Code Embodying Essential Points of Sportsmanship

As a guide to the quarter-million or more hunters who will be afield during the opening days of the upland shooting season in Michigan, conservation authorities suggest a hunting code, embodying many essential points of sportsmanship.

While it is believed that the great majority of Michigan hunters try to observe both the written and unwritten laws of their sport, it is also thought that few would fail to benefit from occasional reference to the "rules" in printed form. The code follows:

Keep in mind: That hunting was once the sport of kings and princes only and regarded by them as an honorable and chivalrous pastime. That today it is the sport of the common man. Do nothing to degrade it.

Be considerate of others always. Do not use intoxicating beverages while hunting.

Buy a hunting license and carry it all times afield.

Keep a copy of the Michigan Game Law Digest in your hunting jacket, your cap or your suit coat. Study the game laws. Be firm in your decision to observe them.

Learn by practice to handle and shoot a gun safely—before you go hunting.

Adopt the slogan: "A gun is always loaded." Do not forget it.

Select an experienced hunting companion. Avoid the individual who is careless or dangerously excitable under fire.

Drive reasonably and safely. Respect the speed limits as you drive through towns.

Do not hunt so near towns and villages as to endanger the residents.

Understand the Horton Trespass Law and its application in farm-game areas.

Remember, that under provisions of the Horton Law, a farmer may have you arrested for entering his premises to hunt without permission, even though his land is neither fenced nor posted.

Always ask for the privilege of hunting on a farm. If, after investigation, it appears that no one is home, leave quietly. Do not hunt on the premises.

Be quiet. Do not sound your horn so as to attract the attention of the landowner or to annoy the occupants of his house.

If the hunting privilege is granted, inquire if there is any place where hunting might be hazardous or where property might be damaged. Avoid that place.

Be polite. Introduce yourself to the owner. Park your car out of the way in the yard.

Invite the landowner to go hunting with you.

Prevent your dog from chasing or otherwise annoying stock. Do not kill cats on a farm.

Do not fire your gun within 200 yards of a highway, farm house or domestic animals, especially animals in harness.

Do not climb fences. Use the gate if possible or crawl under it. Remember to close the gate.

If you are responsible for any damage or find that damage has been caused by others, report the damage to the land holder.

Do not run when approached by a stranger. Have a clear conscience and you will have no impulse to run.

Observe and follow the spirit and letter of the law and others will respect you and enjoy your companionship.

Do not compromise others or be compromised by a violation of the law.

Remember that rowdiness and vandalism have no place in the sportsman's code.

Cooperate with the conservation officer. The conservation officer is employed to serve you and to protect your rights. The sportsman has nothing to fear from him. Learn to distinguish readily the legal game species. Always be sure of your target before you shoot.

Be fair. If you find hunting good, remember the other man. Leave some of the game for him.

Do not forget that the law forbids the cleaning or dressing of game in the field so as to destroy identity of sex or species. Wait until you get home.

Show your game to the land holder. Offer him some of it. Thank him for permitting you to hunt on his land.

Leave a clean camp. Be careful in disposing of lighted matches and cigar or cigarette butts.

Do not post land you do not own or hold by lease.

Do not forget, discard or lose the report form attached to your hunting license. Use it to report your game kill before February 15.

Redeem Time Redeem the time, or the misspent moments will condemn you.

CREDIT FOR CAPTURE GOES TO JEFFREY

Concluded from first page. the crime. He was held to the grand jury in default of $100,000 bail Monday after he pleaded guilty before United States Commissioner Otto J. Manary to being an accomplice in last week's Mayville State Bank robbery.

Raisin told Manary that he took $200 of the $2,391.10 loot and shielded his brother, Marshall, and Raymond Pyle, who he said were the actual hold-up men, until they fled Flint.

Marshall Raisin and Pyle were arrested Saturday at Poplar Bluff, Mo., and are being returned to Michigan to face Federal charges.

Federal agents who made the arrests in Missouri said that $2,000 hidden in the spare tire of the bandits' automobile was recovered. Raisin and Pyle are also accused of taking $1,229.02 from the Otisville State Bank on July 23.

X-Ray Clinic for Sanilac County on October 18

Another X-Ray clinic for the diagnosis of tuberculosis will be held in the court house at Sandusky on Monday, October 18. The clinic is sponsored by the Michigan Tuberculosis Association and the Sanilac County Health Department. Appointments have been made for contacts of known cases of tuberculosis and for those having symptoms suggestive of the disease.

As a preliminary step, the tuberculin test was given to those under 21 years of age. A negative test rules out the presence of tuberculosis although a positive test does not necessarily indicate active disease. Those giving a positive reaction will receive an X-Ray examination.

Through the assistance of the Sanilac County Chapter of the American Red Cross, facilities will be available to care for all in urgent need of the service at this time. A shortage of available funds forces the tuberculosis association to limit the number of free X-Rays at each clinic to twenty-five; but the Red Cross has offered to take care of the additional expense in order that all may be cared for.

BETHEL EXTENSION GROUP MET OCTOBER 7

Mrs. John Marshall was hostess to the Bethel Extension group on Thursday, October 7. This was the first meeting of the year and several members were absent. Mrs. Earl Deneen and Mrs. Frank Merchant assisted Mrs. Marshall in serving a delicious lunch at noon.

Mrs. Sam Blades and Mrs. John Guisbert are the leaders for the coming year. Mrs. T. J. Heron is chairman, Mrs. Marion Withey is secretary-treasurer and Mrs. John Doerr is recreation leader and publicity writer.

In the afternoon, Mrs. Blades gave the lesson, "Making a Dress from a Commercial Pattern." Several different makes of patterns were examined and discussed and the ladies were informed how to choose the most satisfactory pattern.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Ray Hulbert on November 18.
