Carlos Vader and Miss Mitchell Marry

Miss Marcelle Caroline Mitchell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Mitchell, of Wickware and Harold Carlos Vader, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Vader, of this place, were quietly married Thursday afternoon, February 10, in the Baptist parsonage at Caro by the pastor, Rev. H. W. Ambrose, the ring service being used.

They were attended by Miss Madeline Mitchell, sister of the bride, of Deckerville, and Arlington Hoffman, cousin of the groom, of Cass City.

A wedding dinner was served that evening at the home of the bride's parents, only the immediate families being present.

Mr. Vader graduated from the Cass City High School in 1935 and Mrs. Vader graduated the same year from the Deckerville High School.

Brothers Meet After 46 Years

John Seder of Cass City and his brother, Wesley J. Seder, of 317 Cable street, Indianapolis, Indiana, thought they had made a record for their family two months ago when they were reunited after being separated forty-four years.

But on January 15 the family record was broken by a full two years when a third brother, Harry A. Seder, returned home after having been given up by his brothers years ago.

The three were born in Elkton, Michigan. John, now forty-six, was left in Elkton with another family, while Wesley, who is fifty, and Harry, forty-eight, were taken away by their mother. She died eight years later and shortly thereafter Wesley and Harry were separated, not to see each other again until January 15.

John, a carpenter, and Wesley, a farmer, are ready to settle down. But Harry has twenty-one years of army service behind him and needs only nine more before being eligible for retirement. So he is going to re-enlist soon and then after a time he, too, will be ready to settle down.

Cass City Defeats Harbor Beach

Cass City Won Its Third Straight Game Tuesday in a Fast, Close Battle.

Cass City won its third game in a row Tuesday in a hard, closely fought battle from Harbor Beach by a score of 25-24.

The game was close after the first quarter all the way through until the final gun. Bears' long shot in the closing seconds brought the crowd to their feet with a rousing cheer. Harbor Beach made one free throw after that to come within one point of tying the score.

Sebewaing was defeated in their return game here by a 35-25 score. Cass City's last two games will both be away from home. Bad Axe will be played this Friday and Harbor Beach on next Friday.

The Maroon and Grey will be pointing to the coming Class B tournament to be played here on March 4 and 5. Cass City will be fighting furiously to defend their district championship won last year at Marlette. The Cass City boys have won five out of the last

Departmental Work Is W. S. C. Subject for Coming Year

The Woman's Study Club met Tuesday afternoon at the Youth Center with Mrs. Lyle Bardwell as hostess. The Attractions of Freshman's Day

Any visitor to the Cass City High School on Monday, February 14, would have been surprised by the odd way the freshmen were dressed. What a variety of costumes there were!

The Dionne quintts were there, Amos and Andy, Paderewski, Little Red Riding Hood, Martha Raye, and many other notables too numerous to mention.

Mabel Jean Bradshaw as Lize Jane, took first place as the best dressed girl. Neil McLarty, impersonating a fashion model, and Bob Matthews, as a tramp, tied for first place as the best dressed boys. What a headache the judges must have had to decide the winners!

Refreshments were served during the program, too. Mr. Campbell, Mr. Cardew and Mr. Kelly all had a chance to taste some of those

MARRIAGE LICENSE BUSINESS IS DECLINING

Myers had been dead about 24 hours, it was estimated.

Mr. Myers was born at Port Crescent, Huron county, on April 5, 1874. He lived alone in Grant township.

Funeral services will be held this (Friday) afternoon at two o'clock at the Angus McPhail home and will be conducted by Rev. Joseph Blackmore, pastor of the Owendale Methodist Episcopal church. Entombment will be made in the Williamson cemetery in Grant township.

Guess This One? Taken When We Were Young

Guesses recorded by the Chronicle on last week's picture in this column were 60% incorrect, and for variety of suggestions, none printed so far has it beaten.

Miss Mary Kastraba, Fred Schaaf, Mrs. H. Dulmage and S. S. Jones all said they thought it was Dr. M. M. Wickware. Mrs. Alma Schenck, Miss S. McDonald and Dr. M. M. Wickware said that it was Dr. I. A. Fritz. Fred A. Bigelow and Alex Tyo both guessed the picture was that of John Cole, while J. A. Sandham said it was Archie Graham; Arthur Little guessed Smith Hutchinson; Miss Mabel Auslander said it was James Spence; Dan Hennessey suggested Richard Fancher; John Profit thought it looked like George Charter, U. G. Parker guessed William Foe, and Mrs. H. M. Willis said it was Thomas Colwell.

Arthur Moore was the first to register a correct guess with this newspaper office and named John C. Corkins. Others whose guesses were right included Frank Hutchinson, A. A. Jones, Ray Flenor, Mrs. George Rohrbach, Dr. F. L. Morris, Don MacLachlan, Mrs. William J. Schweger and Mrs. William Grappan.

Here's another picture taken years ago that is likely to be a puzzler to many. Who do you think it resembles?

Funeral of Earl Heller Here Thurs.

Cass City Business Man for 25 Years Was the First Volunteer Here.

Earl L. Heller, who made a valiant fight against illness which would long ago have discouraged the average man, finally met defeat in death at Bradenton, Florida, Thursday morning, February 10. The body was brought to Cass City on Wednesday morning and funeral services were held at the Angus McPhail home on Thursday afternoon, February 17, with Rev. Charles Bayless, pastor of the M. E. church as the officiating clergyman. Business places closed during the funeral hour.

Burial was in the cemetery at Caseville. Members of Tyler Lodge, F. & A. M., participated in the impressive Masonic service.

Earl Lafayette Heller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Heller, was born in Vermontville, Mich., on November 8, 1889, and came with his parents to Cass City when he was about four years of age. After attending high school here, he pursued a business course in Bliss-Alger college in 1909 in Saginaw and later entered the employ of his uncle, James Heller, who conducted an implement business in Caseville. In that village, he met Miss Ada Lee Curran, and they were married in Windsor, Ontario, in July, 1910.

In April, 1912, they came to Cass City when Mr. Heller purchased a confectionery business and four years later he started a bakery here. He continued in business here until he sold his bakery business to J. D. Sommers last year, a quarter century later.

Mr. Heller also conducted a bakery in Pigeon for a few years. He was a member of the Odd Fellow, Masonic and Elk fraternities and of the American Legion.

Mr. Heller was the first from Cass City to volunteer for service when this country entered the World War, but was not accepted because only single men were permitted to join at the time. After persistent efforts, he was later accepted and was sent to an officers' training station at Camp McArthur, Waco, Texas. Illness there kept him from going into service overseas. Mr. Heller never

January Milk Prices Show Effect of Unemployment

The Michigan Milk Producers' Association announces a base price of $2.04 and an excess price of $1.68 for January. These prices are not delivered at Detroit for milk testing 3.5% per cwt. Freight and local haul charges will be deducted from the delivered prices quoted.

These prices are 21 cents lower than for the month of December. Prices tumbled on butter from an average of 37.21 in December to 32.57 in January. On milk sold to dealers for distribution, the price decrease was 15 cents per cwt. Added to the decline in sales price was a marked reduction in amount of milk sold to Detroit consumers, due to unemployment, while at the same time milk production was increasing.

Fluid sales to consumers were down over two million pounds, or about 6.7 per cent below December. Production was up nearly three million pounds, or nearly 3 per cent over December. As such a situation leaves a greatly larger amount of milk in the manufacturing class, the blended average price naturally suffers a rather drastic shrink. Where approximately 65 per cent of total milk was used for fluid distribution in December, the ratio had dropped to about 57 per cent in January.

Quite generally throughout the city, dealers began offering during the last half of January, a brand of milk at a price below their regular grade. The store trade has mostly turned to this lower priced brand which retails at two cents below the regular grade.

While these lower prices for milk are very much in evidence, statistics from the U. S. Bureau of Labor indicate that milk has not suffered the decline experienced by farm products in general.

COMING AUCTIONS.

Roger Partridge will have an auction sale, 1 mile east and 1 1/4 miles north of Cass City, on Monday, Feb. 28, and Dwight Barnes will hold a farm sale on Thursday, March 3, 5 miles east and 1 1/4 miles north of Cass City. Both of these sales will be advertised in detail in the Chronicle next week.

Father and Son Banquet at Gageton

D. A. Crawford, superintendent of the Gageton high school, will be toastmaster. The toast to fathers will be given by Paul A. Hunter and the toast to sons by Rev. Fr. McCullough.

Probate Judge Phillips of Bay City will give the address of the evening.

Musical numbers include a vocal solo by J. Salerno, principal of the Gageton High School, and a piano solo by Mr. Mixter, music instructor of the Owendale school.

The banquet will be served by women of the M. P. church. Because of limited accommodations, the number of banquets must be confined to 80 persons.

Property tax rates in Huron county for the fiscal year of 1938-37 were $13.09 per $1,000 valuation, the lowest of any county in Michigan, the research department of the Detroit Board of Commerce disclosed in last week's issue of its publication, The Detroit. Huron county received from the state of Michigan state aid, equal to more than 100 per cent of its tax rate, the report also revealed.

Arrangements are being made for the second annual religious festival of Huron county on Tuesday and Wednesday, March 8 and 9, which will be held in the Evangelical and M. E. churches and

Eight Cases of Childhood Type of TB X-rayed in County

Eight cases of childhood type tuberculosis were discovered among the Tuscola county residents recently X-rayed at the Christmas seal clinic of the Michigan Tuberculosis Association, officials of that organization announced this week. The clinic, one of a series being held throughout the state, was sponsored locally by the county nurse, Miss Helen Canfield.

No evidence of the more dangerous active adult type tuberculosis was revealed in those X-rayed. Relative to the early childhood type of the disease, Dr. Bruce H. Douglas, president of the Michigan Tuberculosis Association, explained that there was cause for great alarm. He declared that while this type was often the forerunner of the deadly active disease, the reason for its development is usually lack of observance of the rules of healthful living.

"Most important where childhood tuberculosis is found," said Dr. Douglas, "is that a regular routine be followed and that the person get plenty of nutritious food. Rest is absolutely necessary. So, too, is fresh air and sunshine. Exercise, though, should be taken in moderation."

The recent clinic was financed almost entirely through the sale of tuberculosis Christmas seals. Since November of 1931 more than 125,000 Michigan people, most of them school children, have been tuberculin tested by the Michigan Tuberculosis Association. During the same length of time over 35,000 chest X-rays have been made.

The Tuscola county clinic is an instance of the steps that are being taken today to combat tuberculosis through modern weapons. Through the use of the tuberculin test and the chest X-ray the disease may be discovered long before the appearance of symptoms, which usually signalize a further advanced type of case. The association pointed out that through the early discovery of tuberculosis not only is the development of active disease prevented, but considerable money is saved. Had the eight cases of early form tuberculosis which were discovered here been allowed to go unchecked, it is likely that later on the country would have been put to much greater expense of hospitalization.

Written Exam for Automobile Driver

It Will Take the Place of Verbal Test for Operator's License in the State.

Police officials who will conduct examinations of Michigan automobile drivers under the state's new licensing law are receiving instruction in a series of state police institutes.

These examinations under the state law must be passed satisfactorily by every person making application for a driver license after the machinery is set up throughout the state for such tests. They will start simultaneously sometime between March 15 and April 1. Instructional institutes will have been held in every section of the state by March 12.

While the weeding out of irresponsible and unfit drivers through examinations is expected to reduce substantially the state's highway accident toll, Commissioner Oscar G. Olander of the state police has informed Michigan drivers that the majority of them need not be apprehensive as to their ability to qualify for renewal of their licenses promptly and with a minimum of inconvenience.

"Our purpose is not to harass drivers but to protect them," Commissioner Olander said. "The majority of Michigan motorists are competent. They have the right to the assurance that fellow motorists likewise are fit and capable drivers. It is only in fairness to the responsible motorist that we seek to require a sense of responsibility in other drivers on the highway with him. As a matter of protection to themselves and the other fellow, the unfit, unsafe drivers should be denied the privilege of operating a motor vehicle on a public highway built for safe transportation and not for wanton destruction of human life and property."

"Application for a license under this new law is not a routine obligation to be met every three years when the old license expires but becomes an opportunity for that

Two of Class of '35 Were Married on Monday at Deford

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Sherwood at Deford, joyous in gala decorations of evergreens and flowers, was the scene of a very pretty wedding when their daughter, Miss Rosalind Elaine Sherwood, became the bride of Paul Clark Moore, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Moore of Grant township. The marriage was solemnized by the pastor of the Methodist church, Rev. George B. Marsh, in the presence of thirty people, relatives of the bride and groom, on Monday, Feb. 14, at 3:30 in the afternoon.

To the strains from the piano, played by a cousin, Mrs. Gerald Elmore, of Birmingham, the bridal couple took their places beneath an evergreen arch decorated with white tapers and bells and flowers.

The bride attired in a rose colored crepe suit, trimmed in white fur, and wearing a corsage of pink roses and sweet peas, was attended by her two sisters, Miss Louella Sherwood, maid of honor, and Miss Onnellee Sherwood, bridesmaid, who were attired alike, in suits of powder blue silk crepe trimmed in white fur. Their flowers were roses and snapdragons.

The groom was attended by his brother, Clayton Moore.

At 4:30, a buffet luncheon was served.

The wedding trip will take the newlywedded to Detroit, Pontiac, Birmingham, and Auburn, Indiana. These worthy young people are both graduates of the Cass City High School, Class of '35, and on their return, their home will be at a farm five miles north and one and one-half miles east of Cass City.

Those in attendance from a distance were relatives from Detroit, Pontiac and Birmingham.

A pre-nuptial shower was given for the contracting parties at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Parks in Deford on Thursday evening, February 10, and they were the recipients of some splendid gifts from the 60 persons present.

SUPERVISORS IN SPECIAL SESSION NEXT WEDNESDAY

A petition of eight supervisors for a special session of the Tuscola County Board of Supervisors has resulted in a call for the convening of the board on Wednesday morning, February 23. They will consider welfare problems.

WASHINGTON'S EXAMPLE.
How would the world view George Washington, if he could come to life and take part again in the toils and struggles of the nation? Would it feel, as the earlier historians used to, that he was a man of superhuman excellence, a miracle of personality, almost a god? Or would it feel he attained his great fame more by luck and chance, and that he was not as brilliant or able as many others among the old statesmen?
George Washington was not called a specially eloquent orator. As a political thinker, others probably dug deeper into the science of government, but he showed a marvellous power to win allegiance and devotion. Perhaps only Napoleon, Julius Caesar, and Alexander the Great in world history could be reckoned as having equalled or exceeded him.
When he faced the powerful British army, with all its skill, discipline, organization, traditions, abundant money and supplies, he had only a ragged, poorly paid, poorly equipped force. It was a rag, tag, and bobtail army. Yet somehow he held it together, and made it do effective fighting, so that he finally won the war. Who else in our history could have performed such a stunt?
How did he do it? His sublime unselfishness and courage was a principal factor. Men felt ashamed to be weak and grasping when his honest and penetrating eyes looked at them. His absolute thoroughness and untiring industry made them respect his judgment. He knew all the facts of a situation as the result of the most intensive study, so people accepted his judgment.
If our young people could but resolve on Washington's Birthday to emulate these characteristics of unselfishness and thoroughness, our country would avoid many of the errors into which it has recently fallen.

CRIMINAL TRAITS.
How early do criminal traits show themselves in children? Is there any way by which these dreadful tendencies can be checked? Can you bend the twig that seems to be starting crooked, so it will grow into a good straight tree?
These are questions anxious parents are asking. They see their boys stealing apples, or little daughter telling a lie about why she was late in getting home from school. They ask if some evil stain in that child's life is beginning to show itself. They pass sleepless nights dreaming of the dark possibilities of that child's future.
Mrs. J. L. Whitehurst, education chairman for the General Federation of Women's clubs, said in a recent address that if such criminal traits could be recognized in early youth, much could be done to prevent young people from going wrong.
The parents ask what specific things you can do when you discover such criminal traits. The old timers said, "Take the bad boy out into the woodshed and give him a licking and beat it out of him." In these independent times, that might make him still more rebellious. What is needed is to give that child some incentive to good behavior, to show him some very desirable result that can be had if he will play the game according to the rules.
A chance to earn some money at honest work has effaced the criminal tendencies of many. Many other boys have become so absorbed in their baseball and football that the game of teasing the police seemed less interesting to them.
The President or the Governor can start a new government utility operating by punching an electric switch, but unfortunately the taxpayers can't pay for it that way.
Scientists say they have doubled the length of life of the water flea by forcing it to diet. Wonder what a water flea eats when it is on a diet?

NATIONAL UNITY.
The world has been watching with some alarm the radical reorganization of the German government which has been accomplished within a few days by Chancellor Hitler. He has apparently got all strings of power in politics, economics, and military organization into his own hands. Now the world asks what he proposes to do with this vast concentration of power. Does it mean he will challenge the world to fight?
This question of national unity is also pressing in the United States. Such a unity is needed, if it does not cost too much. Lack of economic unity slows down production. When a class struggle is created by a widespread strike, the producing power of a large section of the population is stopped. That destroys purchasing power, which throws many other people out of work.
When some section suffers from economic calamities, and other states out of sectional hostility, refuse to redress it grievances, that helps destroy national prosperity. When one section loses its ability to produce and consume, other parts of the country can't sell their products.
How are we going to get this national unity? The Fascists of Europe say it was caused by democracy, that the people are too selfish to hand out justice to everybody. Our people say that in the long run, democracy is the only sure way to progress.
The first essential in national unity is general intelligence. If you know nothing of the troubles of the community 1,000 miles away from you, you won't listen to its appeals. The newspapers perhaps do more for national unity than any other force, since they give information about conditions all over the country. If we could have a nation of thorough readers, many discords would be swallowed up by human sympathy for distress and misfortune.

40,000,000 AUTOMOBILES.
A leading engineer predicts that 10 years from now the country will have nearly 40,000,000 automobiles. If the roads and streets seem crowded now, what shall we do then?
The most serious congestion is in large cities, and suburban districts around those places. Street widening and construction of new streets would involve taking much land now occupied by valuable buildings, and thus would be very costly. The problems of the time of 40,000,000 automobiles will have to be solved largely by traffic signal systems and by more caution and self control on the part of drivers. It should also occur to many people that life in and close to the great cities is too crowded for comfort, and that they would better move out to the great open spaces.

TWO GREATEST AMERICANS.
"This is the month of February when all people of all parties tell us what Washington and Lincoln would be doing if they were on earth today.
"What would Washington do, what would Lincoln do?" they keep asking every year. Of course nobody really knows. But we may all be pretty certain of this: Whatever the situation might be, Washington would think first of his country and not of any political advantages; and Lincoln would preach the doctrine of love and forgiveness instead of hate.
"That is why they are still honored as our two greatest Americans."—Iffy, the Dopester.

After having carefully read everything which transpired at the conference of the "little business men" in Washington we have come to the conclusion that the thing we need most of all is more customers.

Every school in the nation should have a safety program. It makes no difference whether the school is located in the country or in the city, it should have a school police and school patrol operated and governed by the students themselves. Public officials should take an active part in such a program by sponsoring it and organizing it for the children.
Schools in many communities now have safety patrols and are finding them very effective in solving the traffic problems in the school zone. Children are taking great interest in them. Such training is very necessary, since we all know that it isn't always the driver of the car who is to blame for an accident. Children must be taught safe practices and safe conduct.

Dear Herb: I have looked forward to getting the Chronicle with added interest since you started publishing the "Guess This One?" Have got quite a kick out of looking back on the faces of the old boys when they were young. Have had them all right so far and my guess for the one in February 11th's paper is George Charter. Success to your paper.

First President of W. C. T. U.
Frances Elizabeth Willard was born in Churchville, N. Y., in 1839. After some years as a teacher, she became secretary of the Women's Christian Temperance Union in 1874, and its president in 1879. She was made first president of the World's Women's Christian Temperance Union in 1891. She originated a petition against the importation and manufacture of alcohol and opium, which was signed by 7,000,000 persons. She was an editor of the Chicago Post and the Union Signal and wrote "Glimpses of Fifty Years," and numerous articles in the temperance cause. She died in 1898.

The Inns of England
The inns of England have their foundations in the depths of the Middle Ages. Some of them have seen the almost prehistoric changes from crude earthen floors to stone floors and from stone floors to mats of rushes. They have sheltered kings and pilgrims, merchants and all kinds of travelers, and between the occasions of more spectacular hospitality they have gathered about them all the richness of the social life of the neighborhood, for it is at the inn that men have always met and expanded a personal and political philosophy.

Prodigies in Musical World
There are probably more prodigies in the musical world, and more that succeed, than in any other field. Most of the great composers were prodigies—Handel, Haydn, Mozart and Beethoven, for example. Franz Schubert had composed a symphony before he left school.

Indian Tribes Worshipped Jaguars
Jaguars, the largest cats in the Americas, are everything from gentle pets to man-eaters. Once they have tasted human flesh they are always the latter. Their favorite prey is the dog. Several ancient Indian tribes worshipped the jaguars. Mayans, on meeting one in the forest, knelt and awaited death. It was blasphemous to kill the beast.

People hereabouts had an intimation during the past week of what a western blizzard is like. On Monday it was cold, Tuesday colder, and Wednesday the coldest. Not only was it zero weather but during the greater part of the week it felt as if the Arctic regions had migrated to our midst. The effects were marked. Wells froze solid; vegetables in cellars were blistered; water pipes burst and the atmosphere in some of the rooms at the school house became so frigid that the pupils had to be dismissed.

MICHIGAN MIRROR.

Concluded from first page. will merely add to the certainty of a mounting state deficit for the current fiscal year.

Beer Gardens

5. When girls leave home and go wrong—in beer gardens, the press finds a familiar theme for front page news.

Detroit citizens learned of the sinful conditions existing in the motor metropolis' beer gardens where beer and dancing provide the formula for good times.

While welfare leaders demanded reform, the state liquor control commission advanced the belief that Detroit had too many licensed establishments. Maybe, prohibiting dancing in places where liquor was served would solve the whole matter, others declared.

Hotel managers protested loudly, declaring that they maintained wholesome places of entertainment. The result was a state ruling prohibiting the admission of minors into a beer-dance establishment.

What next? Well, there'll be new complications tomorrow. That much is inevitable.

State Paternalism

The $3,000,000 legislative item for hospital improvements, previously mentioned, brings up the perplexing problem of the budget deficit at Lansing.

Whereas the administration one year ago was insistent that the budget be balanced, today it is conceding privately that a deficit appears inevitable. With unemployment relief reappearing as an urgent necessity, the state government is turning to the question of how to raise additional money for welfare needs, rather than how to spend less money.

Governor Frank Murphy has indicated repeatedly that he may call a special session to authorize the expenditure of more state money for welfare purposes.

According to State Treasurer Edward Fry, "state paternalism has its limits."

Treasurer Fry recently pointed out that the legislature left the administration $18,000,000 in the red and that the public has one or two alternatives to escape this alarming deficit:

"We must give serious thought to the desirability of increasing the sales tax rate or the adoption of some new tax, or we must make up our minds that the State Government cannot continue the support of the local communities to the munificent degree of the past and present. The books simply won't balance."

Straits Bridge

The visit of President Roosevelt to Michigan next fall on the occasion of the dedication of the new International bridge from Port Huron to Sarnia is reviving agitation to construct a bridge over the Straits at Mackinac.

As the president's yacht will visit Mackinac Island, you may expect now to hear more in 1938 about the Straits bridge than you did in 1937.

Prof. James H. Cissel, University of Michigan, believes the plan of linking the two peninsulas is feasible, practical, and sound.

"Straits traffic is increasing at the rate of over 22 per cent annually, and will before long—probably at the time the bridge is completed—reach a total of one million cars each year," Professor Cissel points out.

"That number of vehicles, paying tolls at the present ferry rates, will amortize the structure in 30 to 40 years."

The facts that the bridge would be financed by bonds paid by tolls at present ferry rates and would stimulate greatly travel in Northern Michigan are two reasons why the Straits bridge idea will continue to grow in popularity.

No C. C. C. Scandal

The absence of scandal from operation of the C. C. C. camps is remarkable in many ways.

Members of both major parties display enthusiastic favor to the idea of continuing this conservation work in Michigan. Because the state leads all other states in tourist income, improvement of our recreational resources—forests, lakes and parks—is of paramount importance to Michigan. Hence the C. C. C. work is of greater value to Michigan than to many other states.

An average of 66 camps were operated in Michigan last year.

More than 87 million trees were planted, 44 million fish stocked in lakes and streams, 65 bridges built, 20 fire lookout houses built, and 105,000 man-hours spent actually fighting forest fires.

No wonder Michigan is "sold" on the value of C. C. C. camps!

Nothing but a financial scandal will change popular opinion on this outstanding service of our federal government.

Footwear Long in Use

The farmer who always includes Sugar Beets in his rotation is farming on a sound, profitable basis.

This has been proven in thousands of cases.

It's the regular planting of Beets every year that will give you the best return in the long run.

You can generally bank on Beets. And here are the main reasons:

Sugar Beets are a non-surplus crop. You cannot produce too many.

Acre yield and price levels for Sugar Beets, over a period of years are more constant than any other major cultivated crop.

You can always market all your Beets.

Federal legislation now provides Sugar Beet payments of 60 cents per hundred pounds of sugar in addition to what your company pays you for your beets.

Sugar Beets are a great help in destroying weeds and pests.

Sugar Beets are tough! They can better stand all kinds of weather.

Sugar Beets provide tops for feeding your live stock.

Sugar Beets break up your soil. This permits the free entrance of air. Fertility is deposited in your soil in the form of small roots.

Sugar Beets increase the yield of following crops.

Sugar Beets guarantee the farmer a ready market.

Be sure to make it a point to plant one field in Sugar Beets. It will pay you to always include Sugar Beets in your rotation.

An Unknown Quantity

Algebra would be easy if "x" were not the "unknown quantity."

You know what quality is, you know what value is... but you puzzle over what comes between them and price. The "x" in that problem is indirect distribution; lack of control of production.

There is no algebra in shopping from the ads in this newspaper. Quality offered is a known quantity. It is so plain that you see it. It is so tangible that you keep it.

It seems as though Freshman's Day is becoming bigger and better every year. May we have more Freshman Days like this year's, where everyone has a good time, and even the freshmen seem to enjoy themselves.—Betty Stirtion.

This forced the Louisiana company to migrate to Honduras where it continued to operate for a while, but finally succumbed.

Valuable Aluminum Pyramid Caps Washington Monument

Few visitors to the Washington monument have seen the 100-ounce pyramid of pure aluminum which caps this famous 555-foot structure in the nation's capital. This rare picture was taken in 1934 when the monument was cleaned and overhauled.

Costing $1,300,000, the monument was started in 1848, was left unfinished when the nation entered the Civil war, and was finally dedicated on February 21, 1885. The capstone, the peak of which is shown below the aluminum pyramid, weighs 3,300 pounds. Its placement was an unusual engineering accomplishment.

Photograph at the right shows the monument from a distance at night, its peak bathed in a bright light that makes it visible for miles.

WRITTEN EXAM FOR AUTOMOBILE DRIVER

Concluded from first page. person to check his driving ability on four points," Captain Scarvada said. "First, he learns and we learn if he is mentally able to operate a car; second, is he physically fit; third, is he actually capable of operating a car—has he the proper understanding of the fundamental driving rules to operate a car with safety to himself and others; fourth, has he the proper sense of responsibility of his obligation to society or is he constantly violating his privilege to drive by disregard of the rights and safety of others on the highway with him."

Examinations are both written and oral. The written examination consists of 20 questions of the true or false type. An example follows: "A driver of a motor vehicle must observe certain things. Two of these things are given in the following four statements: 1—A driver must observe billboards. 2—A driver must observe stop and go signals. 3—A driver must observe the scenery. 4—A driver must observe stop signs."

The applicant is required to draw a ring around the number of each of the statements he thinks correct. In the above example, numbers two and four are correct. There is a certain supplementary educational value in the questions themselves—for example, in the above, the applicant realizes that billboards and scenery are not things to observe for safe driving.

The written examination accomplishes three things: It tests the applicant's knowledge of driving rules every driver must know; it gives the applicant knowledge of what he should do and shouldn't do; it leaves a record of his knowledge of driving laws. In the latter case, frequently in court, a violator may disclaim knowledge of certain driving laws and a jury might be inclined to leniency toward him because of this claim. His application for driver license in the future will disclose him having indicated familiarity with that law.

There are ten sets of written examination questions so applicants will find it difficult to post themselves on a certain set of questions. The only preparation for answering any of the ten sets is familiarity with fundamental driving rules, contained in the booklet, "What Every Driver Must Know." Two and one-half million copies of this booklet, prepared jointly by the Secretary of State and the Michigan State Police, are being distributed in the state. One is issued with each car license. They are available at every police station, state police post or sheriff's office. They are being distributed through the schools. An effort is being made by the state to place a booklet in the hands of every car driver in Michigan.

The oral examination consists of brief questioning on standard road signs. This determines the ability to read and discloses instances of color blindness.

A simple vision test and a test of hearing completes the examination. But 20-40 vision is required for a license to be issued. This is the equivalent of one-half normal vision. Color blindness does not disqualify the applicant though it will mean special coaching in light positions on traffic lights—green for ground, amber middle and red, top light.

The three types of traffic signs on which questioning may be made are regulatory, warning and guide signs. Deficiency in hearing may be remedied by rear view vision mirrors and special coaching to make the eyes compensate hearing deficiency.

Foreign born who have never learned to read will not be denied a license. But they will be required to recognize certain words such as "Stop" and "Slow" when they appear on traffic signs of standard type.

What Every Driver Must Know

OVERTAKING AND PASSING

The new Michigan drivers' license law requires each motorist to pass a test on highway regulations and other subjects when applying for a permit. Here is an explanation of the overtaking and passing rules, just in case the examiner asks you.

You may overtake and pass another vehicle only when it is safe. If you are in the open country, sound your horn first. The overtaken driver must move to the right and not increase speed. Be sure you have an ample clear distance ahead, free of oncoming traffic. Don't pass on curves or hills or at rail and road intersections, unless an officer tells you to. Another safety rule in this connection includes staying in line when there is a string of cars and not cutting in and out. Drivers on three and four lane highways must keep to the lanes on the extreme right, except when passing.

STOPPING AND TURNING

You may be asked about stopping and turning when you apply for your new Michigan driver's license. Here is a digest of the state law covering these subjects.

The only hand signal required or permitted in Michigan is given by extending the arm straight out from the left of the car. Mechanical and electrical signals are permitted. If you use your stop light for a signal, press the brake pedal lightly several times. Start giving the signal at least 100 feet before turning or stopping. Be sure you are clear of traffic, then get into the right lane to turn right. To turn left, use the lane nearest and to the right of the centerline.

Local officials may mark the pavement showing how to make left turns in certain spots. Follow these where they appear, otherwise observe the above regulations.

TRUCKS AND BUSES

Chauffeurs applying for their new licenses may be asked about regulations covering trucks and buses before being granted the permits. This is in line with the new Michigan license law. This article summarizes the special speed restrictions so chauffeurs will be prepared if the examiners ask about them.

These special speed limits apply to trucks and buses and may be changed by the Public Utilities Commission: 25 m.p.h. for any vehicle weighing more than 18,000 pounds loaded or unloaded; 35 m.p.h. for any vehicle loaded or unloaded weighing more than 5,000 pounds but less than 18,000; 30 m.p.h. for any vehicle or combination exceeding 35 feet long over all.

Truck and bus drivers not operating under special Public Utilities Commission regulations who drive vehicles coming within these limits, must abide by them.

Pavement markings and traffic signs are for the motorists' protection. This explanation is both to coach you in preparing for the examination upon renewing your driver's license, and to help you drive safely.

PAVEMENT MARKINGS

Yellow markings are painted on highways at curves, hills, and other danger spots to keep cars in the proper lanes. Don't use the center part of three-lane highways at

TRAFFIC CONTROL SIGNS

These notify you that certain acts are unlawful. They are erected by statutory authority, and violation of the rules they state will result in arrest.

Expert Pottery Forger

French and German museums contain many specimens of that extraordinary forger of pottery, Michael Kauffmann of Rheinzabern, a village mason, who carried his game on for 40 years and invented inscriptions which the pundits are wrangling over to this day.

The Final Dun

Old-time duns are curiosities. Here is a copy of a dunning notice 150 years ago: "Take Notice: Debtors—This is the last time of asking in this way; all those who settle their accounts by the 18th of June instant, will have the thanks of their humble servant; and those that neglect, will find their accounts in the hands of some person who will collect them in a more fashionable way, but more expensive."

Spontaneous Combustion

Spontaneous combustion is fire resulting from heat produced as a result of the combination of oxygen with other substances. Rags, cotton waste, newspapers, straw and many similar materials give off heat of sufficient amounts to reach the kindling point of the materials, which burst into flame. Papers and magazines stored in a hot attic may result in spontaneous combustion.

Flag Swinging

Flag swinging consists of a swinging routine with flags four feet square, climaxed by tossing the flags into the air with a dextrous twist that keeps the cloth spread taut. The sport is a favorite Swiss pastime, and is a relic of the days when the Swiss used flags to signal across Alpine passes.

Pennies go a long way on the electrified farm.

Much drudgery of farm work is lessened with the installation of modern electrical farm equipment. Thanks to electricity the farmer enjoys a better, happier and more prosperous life. And the cost of this better living is measured in pennies a day.

Electric lighting (often considered the first electrical necessity) does much to add beauty, comfort and convenience in the farm home. The back-breaking labor of washday has been eliminated by the washing machine, which handles a good-sized weekly wash at a cost of about 4c for electricity. The vacuum cleaner saves time and effort and costs about 2/3c an hour to operate. The radio brings in entertainment, market reports, recipes, timely news—and the cost of operating the average set is about 2c for an entire evening. An electric range brings all the advantages of electric cooking—cleanliness, healthfulness, better flavor, convenience, added hours of leisure—for about 1/2c a meal per person. An electric refrigerator keeps foods at the proper temperature, permits the saving of left overs and reduces spoilage and makes possible delicious frozen desserts—at a cost of 75c to $1.50 per month for electricity.

Other household electric appliances that provide pleasure and convenience at low cost are the electric toaster, percolator, food mixer, portable heater and sewing machine. Electrical servants are dependable and untiring. Their wages are measured in pennies a day.

Capitals of Pennsylvania

The year after Penn's arrival the Provincial government was established in Philadelphia, which remained the capital until 1799, when Lancaster received the honor on the first Monday of November of that year. By an act approved February 21, 1810, says the Philadelphia Inquirer, Harrisburg was declared to be the capital after 1812. From that date Harrisburg has been the capital of Pennsylvania. Philadelphia was the capital of the United States from 1790 to 1800. Lancaster and York were temporary capitals during the Revolution, Lancaster—for three days from September 27, 1777, until September 30, 1777, when York became the capital.

Visited by Virgin Mary

The name of the girl fourteen years of age, who, according to tradition, was visited by the Virgin Mary at the Grotto of the Spring, at Lourdes, France, and informed of its miraculous properties, was Marie-Bernarde Soubirous. She was better known in her village as Bernadette. It occurred in 1858.

FRANK MERRIWELL AT FARDALE

By Gilbert Patten

The Original BURT L. STANDISH

© Gilbert Patten WNU Service

CHAPTER IX

Given time to think a little about the remarkable happenings which had pushed him into the limelight at Fardale, Frank became panicky himself. For quite the opposite reason, he suddenly understood, fully and completely, how Bart Hodge had felt when he went to Inza and told her he was going away because he couldn't face the school. For Merry was no bounder, no show-off, who reveled in notoriety; and even though he was at the same time not a shrinking violet, he had always found it easier to face criticism and blame than mealy-mouthed flattery.

Therefore anybody who looked for him to go on parade and do a little strutting was making a bad guess. He merely forced himself to go through the usual moves as if nothing unusual had happened. No swank, no posing.

It was disappointing to his enemies. Particularly so to Bascomb. The fellow simply refused to behave the way Bascomb expected—and wanted—him to. Very annoying.

By noon on Monday somebody had brought in a newspaper containing an account of the runaway and rescue. It passed from hand to hand.

Pete Smith had done no kidding this time. He had written a straightforward, honest story, giving Frank credit for nerve, fast-thinking and modesty. Bascomb and his bunch didn't like that much, either.

Nor did they like it when Merry, caught crossing the campus and questioned by some upperclassmen, failed to get smart and make fresh answers. What they understood even less was the way he gave credit to Bart Hodge. That, as they saw it, was foxy stuff. He was pulling a thin trick.

"Well, anyhow," said Hugh, "we'll have the pleasure of not seeing him try to become a football hero."

And then, when Bascomb galloped into the gym to dress for field practice Tuesday afternoon, Merriwell was there. Wearing a Bloomfield high rig from sweater to cleated shoes, he was talking to Dick Springall, the quarterback and captain.

There was a frightful convulsion in the depths of the Grand Canyon. This, Bascomb told himself, was the limit and then some.

"Well," he said, when he could speak, "is it possible you've got over being afraid to play football, Merriwell?"

"I've never been afraid to play football, sir," said Frank.

"Oh, yeah?" Hugh's mouth threatened to lop off all the upper part of his head with its expanding grin. "Then how come you laid down on your team last year and watched it from the stand while it took a licking by Torrence academy?"

"Did it ever occur to you," Merry asked, "that that might be my business?"

"Oh, so you've got a nasty come-back, have you?" said Bascomb, his grin changing to something hard and cruel. "Well, that just makes the account heavier to settle."

Springall interposed at this point. "Drop it, both of you," he said. "That stuff is out, around here. The next one to start it will be reported to the coach, and what he'll do about it will be enough."

"I'm sorry, Mr. Springall," apologized Frank, "but Bascomb ought to get it through his head before long that I'm more than fed up with his funny business. But I'll wipe the slate when he's ready to call it quitting time."

"That's real nice of you," said Bascomb sourly. "And I'll tell you when, but everything will be all squared up then."

It was a threat Merriwell did not miss, though he appeared to ignore it. As an enemy Bascomb would be far more tenacious and vindictive than a person with the unstable-ness of Hodge.

Bart arrived presently and was no less surprised to see Frank there. But he said nothing.

The coach, when he appeared, was the only person who did not show surprise. Practically everybody noticed that.

On the field Kane turned the new man over to Hanscomb, the assistant coach, a Fardale grad whose special duty was to instruct in kicking and passing. Two minutes later Hanscomb was putting Merriwell through a series of drop-kicks, place kicks and punts of every variety.

All the other men on the field were busy also, but many of them stole glances at Frank whenever they found an opportunity to do so.

They were, naturally, very curious about him. They suspected that pressure had been brought to bear to get him out there, and it seemed strange that Kane would bother a moment with a fellow reputed to be a football quitter.

Watching Merry daskly in a lull of his own work, Bascomb was spoken to by another man of the Varsity, who had stopped near him: "Maybe Merry will pan out, after all. He sure can boot the old ball hard and pretty, and he seems able to place it on a dime."

Bascomb grunted. "Huh! Wait till you see him try to make a quick kick with a charging line tearing through on him. That will be something else again."

A short time before work was to end for the day Kane called the regular team together to make a few rushes against the scrub. He wanted, in particular, to oil up a play that had gone sour against Mayfield, for he still believed in it.

Not a little to his surprise, Frank was sent in as right halfback for the scrub. That was more than he had expected, his first day on the field.

Passing him before the line-up, Hodge spoke from the side of his mouth: "Well, they've promptly buried you with the rest of us dead ones, Merriwell. You'll never get out of this graveyard."

In the backfield behind the varsity line, Bascomb, who wasn't yet aware of what was to be tried, said to Springall: "Call a play that'll let me get at him, Dick, and I'll block the legs off Merriwell."

That was the kind of a play Springall called when they were ready to go. It was a faked right-end run with a spin and reverse around the left end.

Tackle and guard opened the hole that let Bascomb go through on the jump, and he sheered to the left and cross-blocked Merry, who was charging.

Frank's churning knees struck Bascomb's ribs a split-second after he realized what was going to happen. Over Bascomb's body he spun, hands outflung. His palms struck the turf. Like tempered springs his arms flung him upright on his feet again to complete the impromptu handspiring.

He wasn't confused. In his stride again, he leaped at the interferer, who was coming round the end ahead of the runner, and laid him low.

The safety man, coming at full speed, tackled the runner and smeared the play for a slight loss.

Everybody who had seen just what had happened was laughing.

Bascomb wasn't. He was getting up, his hand pressed to his side, his face twisted with wrath and pain.

Because of malicious eagerness to get at Merriwell and hurt him as much as possible Bascomb had made a cross-block worthy of the rankiest amateur.

The coach had warned him about stuff like that, more than once. Now, as Bascomb rose to his feet again, Kane came swiftly toward him.

"That'll be enough for you today," said the coach. "I'm tired of telling you." Then he turned and beckoned a substitute. "Come in here, Davis."

Bascomb walked away slowly and left the field, still holding his hand to his side. Practice went on without him.

When it was all over Kane asked the assistant coach: "What do you think of Merriwell's kicking?"

"He's a natural," answered Hanscomb.

"Then don't try to coach him. Coaching hurts a fellow with natural kicking ability more than it helps."

"And he knows how to pass, as well. He's got an arm and he's rifle accurate."

"Sounds like something. That was a stunt he did when Bascomb threw that low block at him."

"Didn't I see it! He's better walking in his hands than some of the would-be's."

Kane almost smiled. "That sounds odd from an old pessimist like you. Are you telling me he doesn't belong on the scrub?"

"What I don't understand," said Hanscomb, avoiding a direct answer, "is how that lad can be a football quitter. A fellow who has got the nerve to face mad dogs and snatch a girl off a runaway horse two or three seconds before she'd have been killed hasn't any right to turn yellow just because he's been knocked cold in a line buck. There's something wrong about it."

Now Kane did smile a little. "It does sound a bit balmy," he allowed, and said no more.

Outwardly calm, Frank was inwardly almost tumultuously happy that night. Maybe Hodge was right in thinking he, like Bart, had been buried in the Fardale graveyard of football hopes, but he had a feeling that the scrub could be used as a springboard from which to leap to a more lively field.

He felt a thrill of pleasure when he sat down that night in the smaller dining room with the other football men. He hadn't got to training table, but maybe he was on his way. He thought of Barney, who never missed a chance to cheer him on, and missed him for the time being. Barney was all wool and a yard wide. Some pal!

Those fellows were agreeable fellows who were still a little curious about him, still a little doubtful and suspicious. He could feel that uncertainty behind their evident willingness to take him for what he might prove to be worth. Physically they were a healthy he-man lot, packed to capacity with leashed vigor.

He noticed, quickly, that Bascomb was not there. That was odd. He didn't understand it until the reason came out in the remarks of two fellows on the opposite side of the table.

Said one: "Well, maybe we're going to be a backfield man shy after today."

Said the other: "You mean Bascomb? What's the report?"

The first one answered: "The doctor says he may have a cracked rib. They're taking an X-ray."

That gave Merriwell a queer sensation. He said impulsively: "Oh, that'll be tough! It'll weaken the team. I'm sorry."

Then it seemed that everybody was staring at him. He was embarrassed, but his face was sober and honest. He was really concerned for the welfare of the team.

Dick Springall said: "We have to take practice injuries as they come at this stage of the season. We can stand them better now than later on."

Somehow Springall did not appear as much worried over losing a big shot as Frank had expected.

Mulloy was waiting for Frank and they walked back to Union hall together. The Irish boy was bubbling over with chuckles.

"When they try to stop you they go to the hospital, me lad," said Barney. "Maybe that'll ooze through Bascomb's thick head while his rib is mending. You busted it, all right. That's the latest intelligence."

"And that makes Fardale that much weaker," said Merry.

"Who says so? Let me tell you something. It's just been poured into my ear that the Grand Canyon was pushed on Fardale by some rich old grad with more influence than sense. It's done nowadays, you know. And he hasn't panned out. It's suspected that the coach was looking for a good excuse to bench him. Now he won't have to look any more, and he really ought to give you a loving cup."

There was a long period of skull practice the following afternoon. State Second, the strong team Fardale would meet Saturday, had been scouted in its first game, and Kane spent the best part of an hour demonstrating State's scoring plays with blackboard diagrams and showing his plans of defense against them.

"State is counting on a push-over Saturday," said the coach in conclusion, "and they have a right to after the showing we made against Mayfield. But what I'm counting on is that you'll get together and hand that bunch an upset that'll take the conceit out of them. You can if you want to."

Then he took a letter out of his pocket and went on. "I've got something here that I want to read—part of it. It's a letter that Professor Scotch got Doctor Massey, of Bloomfield, to write me. Doctor Massey is the physician for Mr. Asher Merriwell, Frank Merriwell's uncle and guardian, who is being treated by the doctor for heart trouble. Mr. Merriwell collapsed in the stand at Bloomfield last fall during a game in which his nephew was knocked out in a line smash."

Sitting as still as stone and looking straight ahead, Frank heard the coach read a portion of the letter:

"Mr. Merriwell is a sportsman who has always encouraged his nephew's love of athletics, but the shock of seeing Frank stretched on the ground and hearing a woman shriek that he had been killed caused him to collapse that day. Afterwards I found that Mr. Merriwell's heart had been seriously affected by the shock, and it was I who pledged the boy to play no more football until I should say he might without apprehension that another, similar, accident might not have an even more serious repercussion on his uncle. And to make sure Asher Merriwell would not hear of what I had done, I asked Frank to tell nobody. Now, however, I feel confident that Mr. Merriwell has so far recovered that I am willing to release the boy from his promise, as long as he's so anxious to play football again."

"That's all," concluded the coach, "and it ought to be enough to end the guessing and loose talk that's been going on."

After that, until it was too dark to continue, the squad pulled off a period of field drill that spoke of a new spirit of snap, precision and enthusiasm. And Merriwell was in the Varsity backfield, filling Bascomb's place, when the scrub gave Varsity a chance to test Kane's plans of defense against State's pet scoring plays.

Hodge remained with the scrub.

Albino Dingo Not Popular
The albino dingo (wild dog) of Australia is not popular among his own kind. This was proved some years ago when the first pure white dingo ever seen in Queensland was captured alive. The animal was placed in a cage with other dingoes that were in captivity. On the following morning the albino animal was found dead, having been torn to pieces.

Michigan Mirror

A Non-Partisan State News Letter

By GENE ALLEMAN

Michigan Press Association

Lansing—Michigan's liquor control problem is like the mercury in a thermometer: One day state control rises in public acceptance and favor; the next day it drops sharply as some development incurs popular criticism.

It is never static; always in flux. Here are some recent developments in the ever-constant problem:

1. Figures compiled by state police show that automobile accidents due to drinking increased more than 40 per cent in 1937. In Detroit the liquor cause of accidents is declared by safety authorities as being a major factor in the 1937 auto deaths.

2. Extension of the closing time of liquor-selling establishments from 2:00 to 4:00 a. m. is favored by Police Supt. Fred W. Frahm of Detroit. Frahm revealed that 1,202 Detroit blind pigs paid Uncle Sam internal revenue taxes totaling $44,826 in 1937.

"Give us a later closing time and we'll exterminate the blind pigs," declared Frahm to a legislative committee studying control abuses.

Private Clubs

3. Private liquor clubs in so-called "dry areas" face permanent closing after May 1. Under the state's revised liquor law, Attorney General Raymond Starr ruled that private clubs would have to close their doors in towns whose officials or voters had limited the serving of intoxicants to beer and wine.

Unforeseen by legislators, the ruling dealt a knockout blow to the legislator's favorite drinking rendezvous, the Tally-Ho club, situated less than two blocks from the State house.

Owners of private clubs, organized into a state association, demand reconsideration by the attorney general.

4. Liquor sales have declined sharply due to unemployment spread. Prices were hiked 15 per cent by the legislature to provide approximately $3,000,000 a year additional state revenue—money to be pigeon-holed for use of hospital improvements. With liquor sales falling off and the liquor stock inventory at an almost all-time peak, payment of the three millions high school auditorium in Elkton.

An attendance of more than 800 sugar beet growers filled the high school auditorium to capacity on Tuesday when the annual meeting of Croswell Sugar Beet Growers, Inc., was held. Plans for the 1938 campaign in Croswell were received enthusiastically, and it was announced that contracted acreage was more than double that of a year ago at the same time.

A Christmas cactus 45 years old has just dropped its last 1937-38 blossom in the home of Mrs. H. F. Walker in Unionville, after presenting over 200 double fuchsia-like blooms. The plant first belonged to the late Mrs. Candace Palmer and was brought to Unionville from the farm east of that town when they moved into the village. When Mrs. Palmer sold her home she gave the large old plant to her friend, Mrs. Mary Schad, another lover of plants. Mrs. Schad cared for the cactus for a number of years until it was too cumbersome for her to handle. It then became the property of Mrs. H. F. Walker, who had it for several years. One season more than 400 blossoms covered its branches.

All highways in Huron county from the paved state trunk line to the unimproved township road have been given names through the cooperation of L. L. Bateman, road engineer and the Detroit Edison Company. Altogether, there are 121 names, given to the roads of the county, as some roads have two or more names in order to give these highways local significance. Names of pioneer residents provide the principal source for road names. In this manner, the names of persons, who helped to build the county, will be perpetuated. Geographical names have also been given some roads, such as the Pigeon Road, Crescent Beach Road, Owendale Road, Ugly Road, and the like.

The Detroit Edison Company has just received approval by the Michigan Public Utilities Commission for the construction of approximately one and one-half miles of farm line to serve ten available customers along M-51, beginning at the south village limits of Ruth, continuing south along that highway.

Local officers throughout Michigan are not taking kindly to the new law which provides for written examinations for applicants for motor drivers' licenses. In Sanilac county, for instance, there is not room in the county jail to carry on the work as a room 24 feet in length is required. In addition, it will take all the time of one person to fill in the required blanks and conduct the examinations, and this will require at least one additional employee in the sheriff's department. There is such a thing as getting too much red tape in what should be only routine governmental functions.—Peck Times.

Efforts to increase the attendance at the Sandusky High School were accelerated Wednesday with the introduction of the first school bus to pick up pupils living in and near Port Sanilac, Cash, Watertown and Applegate. A second bus will be put into operation, it was announced, and will serve pupils in the Snover, Juhl and Laurel areas.

The long debated sewage disposal plant for the city of Sandusky was further away from being constructed after the qualified voters on Wednesday failed by five votes to give approval of bonding the city for $19,000 over a period of 20 years at 4 per cent interest and thereby qualify themselves of accepting an outright grant of $15,545 from the Public Works Administration, which had recently rejected to accept the last election in April, 1931, for bonding the city to the amount of $25,000 as a true status of the public's desire at this time for bonding the city's future welfare. "The special election called on Wednesday did not create any great amount of enthusiasm," says the Sandusky Republican-Tribune, "for only 84 qualified voters trekked to the polls to indicate their desire, with 46 voting in favor and 38 against the proposition and the necessary three-fifths vote required to pass the bonding issue would have been 51 votes, thus lacking five votes necessary to pass the issue at stake. Many citizens of the city took the stand that the outright grant of $15,545 from the Public Works Administration would tie the city officials up to certain regulations in hiring labor and some feared that outside labor under the PWA would be brought into the city for constructing the sewage plant, just the same as building the sidewalks here a year ago, when men in Sandusky needing the work could not secure work on the project and this issue alone helped to defeat the project."

"Next Monday evening the village dads and mothers will gather in the Community Hall to nominate a slate for the village election," says the Deckerville Recorder. "Times never change when it comes to this great American custom of going to the caucus and hemming-and-hawing about the village form of government and the present office-holders. Men are made and unmade over night. Candidates find themselves villainous vipers and great men all at the same time. One-half of the group may favor a good deal of pavement for the village, and the other half may think that the dirt road is good enough for the boys to drive over, thus the issues rise and fall, and the voters nominate their choice. Deckerville will be no exception. For the past few weeks politics has been the main topic at the daily meetings of the 'pool room congress,' the 'harness shop legislature' and the 'gas station hot stove league.' Party lines have been drawn, candidates discussed, and a platform even has been discussed. Deckerville with the oldest village president in the state, with only a very small bonded indebtedness with sunken sidewalks, etc., will no doubt see some real action at its caucus next Monday night. Come early folks, get seats in the front row, and please don't feed the elephants any peanuts, or bother any of the other animals in their cages."
