More Relief Money Was Appropriated

Tuscola Supervisors Voted an Additional $600.00 for February, March Needs.

Tuscola county supervisors held special session in Caro Wednesday to consider welfare problems. Six hundred dollars were appropriated by the supervisors to match a similar sum by the state. The twelve hundred dollars will be used to augment sums previously appropriated for welfare work during February and March in the county. Relief needs it appears, are growing and money was lacking to meet the emergency.

The supervisors voted to make ready a room in the basement of the court house for the sheriff's department in which examinations may be held for applicants for auto drivers' licenses.

Supervisors visited the county farm early Wednesday afternoon and inspected the rooms which were remodeled for a county hospital. The alterations are practically completed and it is expected that within a week or two the furniture will be installed and the hospital ready to receive patients. The normal capacity is 14 beds, but in an emergency this may be increased to 18 to 20 beds. A trained nurse, it is planned, will be there

Beekeepers to Meet on March 4

Farmers owning a few swarms of bees as side line farming will on Friday, March 4, at 10:00 a.m. in the basement of the Tuscola county court house in Caro have opportunity to attend a beekeepers' school. All beekeepers are invited. The program:

10:00 a. m., "A Year in the Apiary," R. H. Kelty. 1:00 p. m., "Swarm Control," R. H. Kelty.

2:00 p. m., "Fowl Brood Control" and colored motion pictures, Vester E. Mock, chief apiary inspector.

3:00 p. m., Slides on Benefits of Bees, R. H. Kelty.

The work of honey bees in pollination of growing crops, especially fruits, is worth many times that of the honey and bees' wax sold. Constant effort must be made to increase honey uses that beekeeping may be more profitable for this continued benefit to crops. This enterprise in Tuscola is rapidly increasing in importance. Three hundred thirty farmers now own 5,128 colonies.

MARCH BLOWETH IN.

If a vote were taken as to which is the most unpopular month of the year, March might be the winner in that left handed fame. People dislike its blowy ways, which lift their hats into the gutter and play the mischief with the lady's skirts. It is said its sunshine is learn that Gerneth Mercer, one of acts for a few hours as if it were your warm friend, but that it soon goes back on you, and the day turns sour.

March does not get its just deserts. That grouchy wind that blows your hat off is pumping good air into your lungs, displacing the dead stuff that has lingered there for days. The sun has climbed back nearly half way from its low point. Better get out in the open air, where you will hear some cheerful spring bird telling you the season of love, mating, and flowers is right on us.

IS IT FOOLISH TO WORK?

Students of criminal life remark that one idea which is widely held much easier and more profitable ways of getting through the world than by working. These people say that the worker's lot is almost invariably hard. To accumulate money enough to live on is such a slow and difficult process, that he can't Brown and Wayne Peddie won the expect to realize any such aim unless he has unusual strokes of luck, cake. Our school is working hard or is far more brilliant than average.

Hence the criminal mind argues, it is necessary to take a chance, and try crooked methods. It is held that the idea of a God who punishes wrongdoing is exploded, and the only thing they have to fear is getting found out. The criminal mind says that only people of commonplace or low intelligence work, and that a brainy fellow should live by his wits. As he jumps into the stolen automobile that takes him from the scene of his crime he glories in his supposed superiority of intellect.

He is not so smart as he thinks he is. He is undertaking to fight the whole world. Every honest person is watching for indications of such base creatures. No one is brilliant enough to win at a game having such hazards.

No human mind is so disciplined that it will never do some careless thing that will reveal dishonest acts. The criminal will some day leave the fatal fingerprint that shows his identity, or some article that can be identified. He can't always wear a mask on his face, and somebody will remember his evil eye and furtive look. Nothing seems more certain than that he will eventually land in jail.

Meanwhile the faithful worker who is building up a reputation and home for himself by his honest conduct, goes on to years of self chert, Aileen Kirby and Genevieve respect and freedom from worry, Miljure. which the hunted criminal can never hope to attain.

SAVING WILD LIFE.

Scientists and sportsmen's organizations tell us that civilization is killing off wild life. It destroys the shelters in which wild animals and birds flourish, and the food supplies on which these creatures depend. The rivers are spoiled for fish by the pollution of the streams. The scientists say we must study the needs of these creatures, and take steps to see that they get their food, and protection from their many enemies.

If the birds are destroyed, the United States will not be able to feed itself, because insects will destroy the crops. When we allow the rivers to become sewers, we abolish one of man's chief food staples.

It would be a better policy to give the scientists some money, and let them see what these wild things need. Then pass some laws that will let them live and flourish. and have those laws enforced.

A Non-Partisan State News Letter By GENE ALLEMAN Michigan Press Association

Lansing-The paradoxical situation whereby vast surplus stocks of Michigan apples and potatoes remain in Michigan warehouses while outstate apples and potatoes arrive daily for sale here has prompted state officials to burn midnight oil in quest of a solution. Two conclusions are being advanced by experts in the state department of agriculture: 1. Apples, potatoes and similar foodstuffs should be graded. The state department, cooperating with the federal government, undertook a grading program last fall. But only the surface is being scratched. 2. Merchandising foodstuffs in attractive packages would stimulate consumer buying. Instead of placing pages of yesterday's newspapers around the bottom of a bushel basket, the grower would use attractive green or red paper. Paper cartons would be utilized for retail presentation of pears, peach-

The third and final plank—utilize newspaper advertising to create the automotive industry and its

A large part of the Michigan surplus stocks could be sold in Michigan through a cooperative advertising campaign whereby the growers would offer allowances to retailers for partial payment of newspaper advertising space.

And if business conditions improve so that the state might afford to make a modest annual appropriation to match the fund of could be pyramided easily into $4 worth of advertising benefits. Growers would have better prices. And, instead of feeding foodstuffs to animals, growers would realize a fair profit through sale of surplus stocks to consumers.

Michigan's A-1 advocate of the "Advertise Michigan foodstuffs in signalled. Michigan" is State Senator Miles Callahan of Reed City. Callahan knows his potatoes!

Lumbermen Happy

Michigan is still an important lumber state, and lumbermen are jubilant over 1938 prospects.

Passage by congress of the new home building act—whereby $600 down will finance a $6,000 home with monthly payments of less than $33-has provided the silver lining. The Michigan Building and Loan league estimates that a total of fourteen millions of dollars are available immediately to Michigan citizens for home construction in This amount represents the combined cash of the 75 associations plus their credit from the federal home loan bank system with which most associations are affiliated.

According to Grant H. Longnecker, executive secretary, "These funds are available to responsible persons who are interested in buying, building, repairing or remodeling residential property."

No wonder the lumbermen are optimistic.

With clearing of the present industrial clouds, Michigan will witness a marked improvement in the building trades and supply business field.

No Special Session?

Like the famed "off agin, on agin, Finnigan" report of a railroad wreck is the last-minute word in Lansing that the much-tooted special session of the legislature is not going to be held after all.

Two weeks ago it was a sure bet that legislators would be summoned to appropriate additional funds for unemployment relief.

Resourceful budget workers convinced the governor that upwards of $3,000,000 could be obtained by requiring liquor firms to store goods in state warehouses for sale to the state "if and when needed." This system is used in Ohio. It would solve the problem of putting millions of dollars of state funds into liquor stocks in anticipation that the public may buy them.

United States Senator Prentiss Brown counseled the governor publicly not to take the chances of a legislative battle this year.

If the unemployed can be fed and housed, there is little likelihood of a special session in Lansing. As Homer Martin of the UAW put it recently at Flint, "we want relief and we don't care where we get

Presidential Hopes

The importance of Michigan in the 1940 presidential campaign may be deducted from the fact that John Hamilton, Republican nachairman, chose Grand Rapids for a Lincoln Day address and that President Franklin D.

Roosevelt will visit Michigan next September.

Senator Vandenberg of Grand Rapids is "most popularly" mentioned for GOP nomination, according to the American Institute of Public Opinion—the service that accurately forecast Roosevelt's re-

Governor Frank Murphy is still in the first ten favored candidates for the Democratic nomination as the successor of President Roosevelt. Murphy's 1938 hurdle comes next fall. After that—well, who election in 1936.

Convinced that automobile factories cannot hum with activity again until the used car jam is broken, manufacturers and dealers are planning a "super bargain sale" this spring.

Prices will be cut to the wellcenter attentions on impproved reconditioning methods.

The used car business is a two billion dollar industry.

The Petroleum Institute estimated recently that of the 29,000,000 automobile owners in this country, 10,000,000 of them had never owned a new car.

For every new car a dealer sells, he receives a used car.

It is an economic cycle that functions just as long as there is a market for used automobiles. When the market jams, then the backlog starts that ends in shutdown of automobile factories.

The used car industry is more important to Michigan than to any other state in the country. Remember, one of every six persons owe their livelihood in America to mass consumption—is yet to be many ramifications. Verily, Michigan is on the national map in heavy black letters.

Have you ever driven along on a country road and found that the growers, each $1 of public funds driver ahead of you was courteously signalling what he intended to do? Doesn't it make you warm toward him? Do the same thing for the motorist who is following you. When slowing down or preparing to turn, give the chap behind you a signal. Be sure it is the right signal. Then do what you have Know your signals. They vary in different localities, but it is easy to learn what they are. Most highway accidents, you know, occur because one person does not know what another is going to do. You set the example by signalling your intentions. Start

-And March Marches On!

Though it's just another month in the year. March probably has more traditions and superstitions behind it than any of the remaining 11 months.

Since Julius Caesar's time the 'ides of March" have been famous in song and story, few people realizing that every month had an "ides" in the old Roman calendar. The fact that Caesar was murdered on the "ides of March" made that particular day more significant.

To the Romans, March was the first month of the year, a calendar custom that persisted throughout Europe for centuries. England did not adopt the present calendar until 1752, previously dating its legal year from March 25. Literally, March is the month of Mars, based on Grecian legend. Certainly its warlike tendencies are borne out by the furious winds usually accompanying the month. If March comes in like a lion, it will go out like a lamb. or vice versa If people are "mad as a March hare" there's usually a mental ailment concerned March beer is tra ditionally the best, since climatic conditions are supposed to be best for brewing in that month.

Improved lighting attracts more customers

IERE is an interesting table of figures. It is interesting because it applies to YOU. It shows how typical stores-both large and small—have used better lighting to attract more customers and increase sales. What these stores have done, YOU can do.

The left half of the table deals with show-window lighting, the right half with interior lighting designed to draw attention to a particular display inside the store. The percentage of people attracted BEFORE and AFTER improved lighting was installed is highly significant. Increases of fifty to one hundred per cent have been achieved at only a nominal cost for lighting.

The figures above are not guesswork. They are the result of an accurate check in a number of representative retail stores. And there that light will work efwhat type of merchandise sold. Lighting has boosted the sales of gasoline, women's hats, groceries and meats, shoes, hardware, men's furnishings and a hundred other different items. You can make lighting an investment, returning good dividends. Improved lighting pays its own way.

There is no charge for the expert advice and services of a Detroit Edison lighting engineer. He is skilled in every phase of making LIGHT do a good selling job. We shall be glad to send one of our engineers, at your request, to look over your store lighting. He may be able to give you helpful suggestions. Call your Detroit Edison

FRANK MERRWEL AT FARDALE

By Gilbert Patten The Original

BURT L. STANDISH @ Gilbert Patten

The whistle! The kick-off! The plunk of the lusty foot of a State kicker boosting the ball high and far toward the east goal, which Fardale, having won the toss, had chosen to defend because of the favoring wind. Racing from the restraining line, the maroon - clad State men blazed like a sheet of flame across the field.

Under wraps, Merriwell sat with the squad and saw the game begin. Elmer Davis was in there at right half, where Bascomb would have been had he not been hurt. The kick, aimed for "coffin corner," was coming into his territory. He took the ball cleanly and was away, with two interferers sweeping in ahead to blaze a path for him. Twenty-two yards of green sod were left behind his flying feet before he was and will be sold as aforesaid to satisfy the amount due on said mortgage with interest that may accrue thereon after this date and the costs of foreclosure.

Dated: February 17, A. D. 1938. PINNEY STATE BANK of Cass City, Michigan, mortgagee.

James K. Brooker, Attorney for mortgagee. 505-506 Phoenix Building, Bay City, Michigan. He thought of her, si 2-18-13.

That was good. Good enough to bring a great cheer from the Fardale crowd that packed the north

But State wasn't disturbed. They were brimming over with confidence, those fellows. This was a game they had reckoned in the bag pefore it started. Any team Mayfield could trim, even by the closest score, just had to be an easy bounce-around for them when they turned on the juice.

Davis was on his feet again. If that hard tackle had jolted him much he didn't show it. A quick huddle was followed by a shifting switch behind the line and a center buck, Davis carrying the ball.

But the State line was a stone wall through which no hole could be drilled, and Davis went down in the pile-up. Two yards lost.

Second down, twelve to go, with the State cheer booming across the field now. What did that Fardale quarterback think he was doing, slamming his lighter players into State's impregnable defense? Futile and silly. The State men were laughing.

Another formation for a run. But no, it was a fake. Springall took the ball and kicked quickly. He got it away and the wind helped carry Washburn, Fardale's left end, got through this time between guard and tackle. The over-confident State men had been caught almost flatfooted, and Washburn did some clever side-stepping and a little fast running. He downed the ball-catcher well over in State's territory.

A bit disgusted, but still confident, State settled down to show the home boys some real football. Of course Fardale knew what it was up against. Otherwise a long kick never would have been considered on second down. That early in the game, it was the trick of a team lacking faith in its driving force. Anyhow, that was the way State doped it.

Merriwell was trying to take it easy on the bench. He was trying to keep from getting too tense. If he got into this game at all, he wanted to be in the right condition, mentally and otherwise.

He watched the State steamroller start rolling, saw it steadily and surely grind forward into Fardale territory. It was bumping the breath out of the blue-and-white defenders. And it hadn't yet turned to either of the two scoring plays Kane had so carefully drilled his players against. Had the scout been mistaken about those plays?

No! There was the first one, a run around the strong end by the right halfback, with State's end blocking Washburn, Fardale's left end, in toward the line.

And now, with a heavy but swift interferer ahead of him, that backfield man came booming round the flank and went romping over the chalk-marks for a touchdown.

Washburn had failed. He had forgotten Kane's order not to worry about leaving a hole in the line, but to get outside the opposing end man and fight him off, while striving himself to get still further out, if possible, to force the runner to swing wide. Had he remembered to follow instructions the run might have gained, but it would not, in all probability, have been good for a

With the crowd in the south stand chanting State's fighting song, following a stirring cheer, State lined up to attempt a place-kick for the extra point. The angle was a little difficult, but State kickers seldom missed the posts. One of them booted the leather now, and Fardale failed to touch the ball.

But the wind took a hand. swerved the ball just enough to carry it against one of the posts, and caromed off outside. Six points instead of seven.

State didn't mind that. Six points were merely a starter. Those confident fellows were thinking they might make 60 or more before the final whistle blew.

Time out now and a pause in which the school band played "Fair Fardale." Kane was sending a man in to take Washburn's place. Hodge!

Frank had forgotten that Bart had been transferred from the scrub the night before. Now he saw him fling off his wraps and start out on to the field. The fellow who had thought himself buried with the dead ones who were doomed never to play for Fardale was getting into the game ahead of Merriwell.

Frank was human, and in that moment he felt a twisting stab of the commonest and meanest of human emotions. Jealousy. That was something he had thought he'd learned to control and hold at bay, but it got him now and stung him deep and hard.

He and Hodge were the only two freshmen to make the squad, and to a certain extent he had helped Bart's reputation with the coach by yielding to Inza's wishes and saying a good word for the fellow at every opportunity. Now Hodge was going into this game to fight for Fardale and Frank was still glued fast to the bench.

Merry had been too busy to see Inza for more than a moment or two since Sunday, but only last night Barney had told him that Hodge had managed to see her often. And the frank Irish boy had expressed his conviction that she was a two-timer who was plaving Frank for a simple sap. He had laughed at Barney then, but he brother somewhere up in the stand behind him and applauding Bart, and decided that Barney was right. er. Just a simple sap, that's what he

The game went on with Hodge dotime that same State runner came steaming round that end Bart was outside the opposing lineman and forcing the ball-carrier to make a wider swing. Thus he gave the Fardale backfield time to charge in and stop the play repeatedly before more than small gains could be made. And once he broke clear ness in hand that he saw and heard and brought the runner down him- nothing, not a part of it. Heart self for a slight loss.

The whole team had stiffened. Seeing this. State went into smashing tactics that soon had Kane sending in replacement after replacement for players who had been knocked out of commission. The coach was using up his best reserves fast, but, between pluck and many lucky breaks, Fardale hung on through the first and second quarters without being scored against again.

But the blue-and-white had fought more than three-fourths of the time in its own territory. Not once had it got within striking distance of the enemy's goal, and always the spectators-even the optimistic of the Fardale fans-had constantly looked for a blow-up that would let the maroon jerseys run as wild and handsome as they pleased. And when the whistle sounded the end of the half the shadows of their own goal-posts were on the backs of the Fardale players.

There was a heavier shadow on the face of Coach Kane.

Tom Kane was too wise to carry a clouded face into the dressing room, but he was grim as he walked about amid the benches and tables on which many of the fellows were lying while rubbers worked over them. He had a few words for each man, words of encouragement or instruction; sometimes of warning against faults betrayed on the field. Now and then he gave one of them a pat on the back.

At length the call came: "On the field in three minutes."

Then the coach made his speech,

"You did your work well out there in the first half. You put up a fine defense against a team that expected to walk all over you. When they found they couldn't do that they tried to put fear into your souls. But you weren't afraid. You showed them you could take it and come right back for more. Now you're going out there and give it. Games are won by courage and quick thinking oftener than otherwise, and you've got more of that stuff than State has. But look out for their air attack. They've scarcely used it yet, but they will when they find you are outsmarting them. You broke up their right-end run after they worked it for that one touchdown, and now they'll probably uncork their other big play from the same formation—a double spin with two fake passes and a slash through a hole they'll try to open between tackle and guard. Be on your toes for that. Now go out there and feed it to 'em!"

Still over-confident, State expected to see an opposing team that was all shot and nine-tenths licked come back to the field. What they did see was a team that apparently had just begun to fight. Within two minutes Fardale met the double-spin play and tore it to shreds for a small

But a Fardale backfielder, who had charged into the line of scrimmage, was down. It was Elmer Davis. They got him up and two men half carried him toward the Far-dale bench. He was out. "Now, Merriwell," said Kane, "go in there.'

The coach had been holding Frank in reserve to fill Davis' place when the time came-and it had come. His heart pounding, Merry leaped up and hastened to report to the referee. At last!

Ten seconds later he was in the midst of another line smash that Then State went into the air, but the first pass was incompleted and a kick followed. Fardale's safety man got the ball and ran with it when Merry cut off the State player who was charging to tackle. A 20-yard gain set the Fardale crowd roaring. This was like the Musketeers when they were right. State was both worried and angry now, and nothing does more damage than worry and anger. Before the Maroon players could pull themselves together Fardale had tricked them with a faked pass and an end run that netted another first down. Was Fardale going to town?

Fast action now, fast and sure. No waiting for State to settle down. A line-buck for two yards, and then an unexpected trick. Fardale came back with State's own double-spinner play. It surprised and disconcerted State, threw the secondary defense into uncertainty and completely off balance.

The runner came through the hole and broke loose with the ball. He side-stepping, changing his pace, Frank was as elusive as an electrified ghost. He straight-armed the last would-be tackler and was in the open.

With the goggling, gasping, roaring crowd standing to the last human who could stand, he sped away for a touchdown.

And then, "Block that kick!" was the imploring cry of the State crowd into this neck of the woods." He thought of her, sitting with her as Fardale lined up to try for the point, with Springall holding and Frank in position to boot the leath-

Merry advanced and swung the good right leg that somebody had accused him of stealing from Charing a real job at left end. Every lie Brickley. The spheroid sailed over the exact center of the crossbar, putting the Musketeers one and the north stand became a madhouse.

Merriwell didn't know they were cheering for him. He didn't hear the crowd roaring his name. So concentrated was he upon the busi-and soul, he was giving that business all he had to give. Now it was up to Fardale to hold that one-point lead—to hold it somehow and to add to it if possible. And now State, seeing at last that the expected push-over was not going to come off, was growing panicky. The thought of being defeated by Fardale was very shocking. Over-confidence was gone, but omething just as bad-or worsenad followed. When the third quarter passed with Fardale not only holding its one-point lead, but continuing to threaten, State knew she must gamble. The final quarter saw State throwing passes which got her nowhere until the last minute of the game. Then two completions carried the Maroons to Fardale's 15yard line and had the Fardale spectators shaking in their shoes. Then there was a fumble in a line-buck. Out of the melee came Merriwell with the ball. Again he broke through. Again he was off for a run, with the crowd shricking. Once more he ducked and weaved and went flying onward.

But a maroon backfielder had him. He couldn't get past this time. Not a chance.

Frank had seen a lone Fardale But Bart couldn't reach the man to block him. So Merry, veering to the left, threw a lateral to Hodge and threw himself, instantly, into the clutches of the tackler, both going down.

Bart took the ball on the dead run and ran still faster until he could put it down behind the goal-posts.

There was riotous rejoicing in the dressing room. Fardale, with Merriwell again booting the ball for the extra point, had beaten the strong State Second team, 14 to 6. Kane himself was laughing like a boy. He had told them all what he thought of the fine job they had pulled off, and he had actually hugged both Merriwell and Hodge. "Now let anybody tell me Fardale hasn't got a téam!" he said. Bart took his shower and rubdown, and dressed in a hurry. He was the first to leave. Merry saw him go and fancied he knew the cause of his haste. Of course he stopped State again, with no gain. had a date to meet a certain person after the game.

Tad Jones was waiting when Frank left the gym. The boy was steaming with excitement.

"Gosh, Frank!" he chattered. 'Gosh, you was just the real Mc-Coy! You was right there with the old works. I'll tell the cockeyed world! But there's somethin' else I gotter tell you. Miss Inza's gone up to Mr. Snedd's 'nd wants you to come there right away. She told me to fetch ya, dead or alive."

Merriwell hesitated. So that was where Hodge had hastened away to so soon. Well, there might as well be a show-down now as later.

"All right, let's go," he said. "But we gotter keep away from the campus. Hear that crowd roarin', Frank. They're celebratin', 'nd Professor Scotch is leadin' 'em. He's hoarse as an old bullfrog, too. He won't have no voice to lecher with for a week."

Merry found Inza in Snodd's big living room, alone. She was sitting at the piano, just as he had seen her was Merriwell. Weaving, dodging, the first time, and her fingers were dancing like pixies over the keys. The music that poured from the piano was wild and gay.

He came up and stood beside her. She felt him there, and the tune There was no stopping him then. ended with a crash. She sprang up and caught hold of him with eyes a starry glow.
"Oh, Frank!" she said. "I want
