

Masonic Temple Dedication Is Very Impressive

Large Number Attended at Gagetown in Spite of Stormy Weather Friday.

The weather man looked with anything but favor on the evening of the dedication of the new Masonic Temple of Acme Lodge at Gagetown and late Friday afternoon brought a severe snowstorm and prospects of drifted roads as Masons drove to the scene of the ceremony. The dinner preceding the evening program was much enjoyed by over 250 people.

At 8:30 p. m., the Masonic and Eastern Star lodges and their friends assembled in the lodge room and witnessed the impressive and solemn ceremony of dedication under the leadership of Most Worshipful Grand Master Wm. H. Parker of Otisville and assisted by the following Michigan Grand Lodge officers: Francis B. Lambert of Midland as M. W. Senior Warden, Clarke W. McKenzie of Kalamazoo as M. W. Grand Chaplain, Ben J. Henderson of Standish of M. W. Junior Warden, Dewey H. Hess of Saginaw as M. W. Deputy Grand Master and Marshal, Lester Garville of Kalamazoo as M. W. Senior Grand Deacon, and Willard Nash of Saginaw as M. W. Junior Grand Deacon.

Address of Evening.

Clarke W. McKenzie, Past Grand Master of the Grand Lodge and Past Master of Tyler Lodge of Cass City, was the speaker of the evening. Mr. McKenzie's automobile slid into a ditch and he received a sprained right ankle in the accident shortly after he had left Kalamazoo on the journey to Gagetown. He secured another car and a driver and kept his engagement, appearing on the program with the aid of crutches. In his address, he held the rapt attention of his audience in which he said in part:

"The ceremony of dedication of the Masonic Hall is an outstanding event in the history of the lodge. You have listened tonight to the dedicatory ceremony under the direction of your Most Worshipful Grand Master in which he has dedicated this building to Free Masonry, to Virtue and Universal Benevolence. The institution of Masonry, ever since its inception, has continued to impress upon the minds and conscience of those who were permitted to join its membership, the fact that it is an institution that conveys to those members only principles of right living. I am sure that every member of those present has realized that were he to practice in his daily life the things that he has learned in his Masonic lessons that he might have no fears as to the attitude his fellow men will have toward him. Personally, I owe a great deal more to Masonry than I will ever be able to repay. It has been my college of education and I shall continue always to be grateful to Masonry for what it has done for me. Turn to page 2, please."

Novesta Farmer, 79, Recovering from Serious Operation

A patient in Pleasant Home Hospital here is an interesting surgical case for physicians. He is Joseph Parrott, who will reach his 79th milestone on May 23rd next, and who underwent an operation for resection of the small intestine on April 4. Mr. Parrott was suffering with a Richter's hernia in the right groin region in which gangrene had developed and it was necessary at the time of operation to remove six inches of his small intestine. Dr. H. T. Donahue and Dr. I. D. McCoy, who performed the surgery, are gratified that the patient is making so steady a recovery. It is said that medical records contain no instance of persons who have attained that age that survive such an operation.

Mr. Parrott comes from a family noted for longevity. His father lacked just 35 days of reaching his 100th birthday and his mother lived 88 years. If temperate habits are a boon to long life, Mr. Parrott may equal his father's record. "I never drank beer, whiskey, coffee or tea and have yet to smoke my first cigar or pipe," he told a Chronicle representative Wednesday. "I've always voted the Prohibition ticket when opportunity offered. My favorite drinks have been milk and water."

Born at McKay's Corners, near Chatham, Ontario, he came to Greenleaf township, Sanilac county, in 1883, and on July 4, fifty years ago he married Miss Arta Keyworth in Cass City.

Only fifteen ventured guesses on the picture printed in this column last week, but the remarkable feature is that 14 of this number were correct.

The picture was taken about 50 years ago and the likeness of Fred Schaaf was recognized by the following people: Mrs. Alma Schenck, Mrs. A. A. Ricker, Miss Martha Striffler, Mrs. W. D. Striffler, Clem Tyo, Mrs. O. W. Nique, Homer Hower, Mrs. B. F. Hill, James J. Wallace, W. J. Schwegler, Mrs. G. E. Krapf, Mrs. L. E. Hartman, John Wright and Mrs. M. M. Moore.

Will the percentage of correct guesses be as great on the picture printed under this heading this week?

Warren Kelley First in Sub-District Oratorical Contest

Mary Irene Moran of Port Austin Won Declaration Contest Here.

It was feared that the heavy snowfall of April 8 would make it necessary for the sub-district public speaking contest here to be postponed, but contestants from Bad Axe, Harbor Beach, Port Austin and Pigeon finally arrived. As the critic judge from Bay City was unable to come, the contestants were judged by the speech coaches of the represented schools.

The contest began shortly after eight o'clock with Daniel R. Kroll, speech instructor of the Cass City High School, presiding as chairman. The speeches were of three different types: Declarations, orations and extempore speeches.

The decision reached in the declarations was very close. Mary Irene Moran from Port Austin received three votes for first place and Joan McGrath of Cass City received two votes for first.

In orations, first honors went to Warren Kelley of the Cass City High School for his oration on "Youth Must Assert Itself in Regard to War." Second place was won by Cora Chapman of Harbor Beach.

Alma Chapel Choir Here on April 24

The Chapel Choir of 20 voices selected from the Alma College A Capella choir is scheduled to sing at a union service at the Presbyterian church here on Sunday evening, April 24.

All 20 voices are well trained and as a unit the choir is almost unsurpassable. Their attacks and shading are unexcelled and their numbers are executed with perfect intonation and flawless technique.

When the A Capella choir made a recent trip to Detroit, the Chapel choir appeared on two occasions—the Detroit News Radio Extra Hour, where they were received with unbounded enthusiasm, and at a joint meeting of the Detroit Presbytery and Presbyterian.

The choir's appearance in Cass City on April 24 is one of a number of concerts which the group will present in Thumb of Michigan villages this spring.

TWO VIEWS OF EASTER.

What does Easter mean to you? Is it merely a colorful day, one of bright life, beautifully dressed women, men togged out in their best clothes, sparkling and emotional music in churches, eloquent sermons from pulpits banked with gorgeous flowers? Do you get out chiefly to see the new hats the women folks are wearing, and what styles you should select on your next shopping trip? How comes it that a host of people who never go to church more than once or twice a year, usually turn up on this glorified Sunday?

However one looks at it, it is a beautiful occasion. It does no harm for people to wear their best clothes to church, and the sight of new styles set money flowing and gives work to some who lacked it.

The world's greatest musicians have lavished the wealth of their imagination on church music. At Easter day you hear some of the most gorgeous harmonies and most entrancing melodies that the genius of man ever put into a musical score. Such things lift the soul above sordid money getting, and inspire us to live better lives.

The old saying has it that some who go to scoff remain to pray. Some who go to church for frivolous reasons are yet so stirred by some word or truth from the sacred book or the lips of the preacher, as to encourage them to live better lives.

Back of all this colorful spectacle, there are grand and cheering thoughts. They are like the revival of life which we see in the glorious spring time. As the trees, which previously seemed dead and ended, are now putting forth their buds or have already spread their leafy green, so Easter teaches us that life, after a similar experience of death, can blossom out again in a fairer state of existence.

BIG MEN IN YOUTH.

As the golden wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ford was observed April 11, the country congratulates Mr. Ford on his marvellous achievements and public services. As he always refers to his wife as his greatest supporter, the country honors her for all she has done to assist her famous husband and benefit the community.

Mrs. Ford tells how she first met her husband at a dance, and how as she got acquainted with him, she found him "different from other young men." That is probably true of most young men who are to have famous careers. They don't run along the ordinary ruts of life, or become stereotyped copies of the prevailing codes and habits.

When you see a group of ordinary young fellows together, they often seem about like a row of peas in a pod, all just about alike. They wear the same style of hats, the same kinds of shirts and trousers, they talk the same slang, they engage in the same amusements, and they have the same ideas. If a fellow of unusual ability does not conform to the prevailing pattern, they are likely to consider him eccentric and queer.

If a fellow is going to make a big mark in the world, he can't conform to some standard copy like that. He will have to read some books and newspapers that the crowd does not see, he will have to form original ideas of his own, and he will need to spend some time improving his ability to do things. In so doing he will drift away somewhat from the ordinary crowd, and they may think him peculiar.

The world is full of opportunities for great achievement. There are still opportunities for those who are not afraid to be a little "different."

CHANGE JOBS EACH 15 MONTHS.

An Iowa state commission figures that the average Iowa working man changes his job each 15 months, due to switching of the same or unemployment.

In the so-called "good old days," men used to work for one boss 20 or 30 years or a lifetime. Some men change jobs now because of discontent, some because the boss gets tired of their ways. There is a great number who change because the job runs slow or closes down, and they are forced to try something else. Industry seems to run on a "Now you see it and now you don't" basis. It might help if employers who keep their help busy regularly were given some kind of reward in the shape of tax discounts. They confer a great benefit on the public.

SPRING THOUGHTS.

Somehow the poets have always burst into song when the spring has come. The editor may laugh a bit at some of the rhymes they bring in, but he knows that a new feeling of happiness has come over the land, which inspires some people to blossom out into verse. So even if he has to tuck some dull verses into the waste basket, he knows that the people are rejoicing over the return of the sun and the cheerful songs of the birds, and the world looks better to everybody. Said Martin Optiz, a German poet: "It is not the variegated colors, the cheerful sounds, and the warm breezes which enliven us so much in the spring; it is the quiet prophetic spirit of endless hope, a presentiment of many happy days, the anticipation of blossoms and fruits and a secret sympathy with the world."

The people do love the outdoors. They don't like a season of cold when it is necessary to be shut up in houses and workshops most of the time.

They want to get out and roam around the country, to hear the crack of the batted baseball, to swat the little golf ball down the field, to make the woollen tennis sphere spin over the net, to pursue slippery Mr. Fish to his remotest lair, to observe the lovemaking of the birds as they prepare for the eternal renewal of life. These and a hundred other joys come with the spring.

The people are already revolving plans of what they propose to do during the coming summer. Some will travel far and see many states and foreign lands. Some will get just as much pleasure learning about Michigan. Some who never leave their community can find beauty and happiness anywhere under the blue sky. Anyway, spring is a grand old season and we all greet it with a cheer.

WHY NATIONS GO BATTY.

It is often remarked that the world has gone crazy. The cruelties and persecutions now rampant seem like a return to the dark ages. A few years ago the world seemed moving steadily along the path of democratic progress. Now many countries have dictators, and the democratic idea is in danger.

How come? It seems largely the result of internal conflicts that hinder progress. When employers and employees are fighting each other, when labor and capital engage in warfare, when races or religions contend together, when sections grasp selfishly for their own advantage, there is a condition or conflict that makes it almost impossible to organize the industries, and secure efficient production. The result is that there is unemployment, many people are hungry, countries are filled with discontent.

Such conditions have led to great European countries to accept dictators. Such a powerful man at the head may for a time control these destructive conflicts. He forces all these elements to sink their differences, so there is a good chance to increase production and produce more welfare—for a time.

Such dictatorships have exposed those European countries to terrible evils. They abolish freedom, which the human race has cherished. They threaten to involve countries in wars. They are likely to show up great weaknesses as times go on.

The lesson for the United States is clear. The conflict between economic classes, races, religions, and sections is a destructive force that produces these conditions. Our people will say that conflict can be avoided only by fairness, justice and tolerance. The top dog must learn to have pity for the under dog dog's troubles, and the under dog must learn not to bite those who help him.

Benjamin Harrison's Campaign

During his campaign, Benjamin Harrison was pictured by his opponents in editorials and cartoons as a little man wearing the hat handed down from his grandfather, William H. Harrison. But Benjamin won, and he turned out to be an able president.

MASONIC TEMPLE DEDICATION IS IMPRESSIVE CEREMONY

those members of Tyler Lodge, who were considerate enough to accept me as one of their members. When I left here over thirty-one years ago, little did I realize that I would ever become active in Masonry but once again the Good Hand of Fellowship of a lot of fine Masons in the city in which I now live, was extended to me and I was given the opportunity to render more service and better equip myself as a result of those contacts to battle the affairs of life.

"You remember that before the ceremony of dedication was started tonight, the Grand Chaplain was invited to invoke the blessing of Deity and the Grand Master said that we were taught in Masonry that before entering upon any great and important undertaking, we should first invoke the blessing of Deity. It is here we are reminded again that the cornerstone of this fraternity of ours is a belief in God and the practice of His Virtues. I wonder how many of us are endeavoring to practice daily these principles? It seems to me that were the three and one-half million Masons in this country all to resolve at one time to practice every day the principles of Masonry, it would not be long before the disturbing conditions which now surround us would be revolutionized if not entirely eliminated. It is my opinion that we find ourselves in this state of turmoil and uncertainty because of the greed and selfish motives of individuals. The desire to build up self in individuals has become so prominent in our thinking that we have been able to exclude from our consciences the things that should stand out in each of us as individuals.

"It seems to me that everywhere in this world of ours today there is a saturated philosophy which is eating out the heart of idealism and that saturated philosophy which you will see in every phase of human conduct is based on three distinct attitudes. The first attitude is that of rank greed. Everywhere you go, at home and abroad, you will find a determination to get what you can. That has become the actual intention of many of our institutions and I am sorry to say it has crept into our Masonic fraternity and even into the church until sometimes there are those who profess an idealism of that attitude. You see it in industry, you see it in nationalism; nations are 'wanting' and they are going to fight to get what they want. Backed up with greed is the attitude of prejudice which makes its colorful approach, to finding that basis or attitude or influence. 'We are right and you are wrong.' Everywhere you go you can see that. You have class against class,

Naming the Dogwood Tree

The dogwood tree is supposed to take its common name from the fact that a decoction brewed from the bark of one of its species was used in England to wash dogs afflicted with the mange. It is a hardy little tree and fairly tolerant of the shade of larger trees. It grows vigorously throughout the northern part of the United States.

How Adam's Apple Got Name

The Adam's apple, which is a movable protection or enlargement formed on the forepart of the human throat by the thyroid cartilage of the larynx, received its name from the old belief that when Adam ate the forbidden fruit, which is reputed to have been an apple, part of it lodged in his throat. The legend was apparently confirmed by the fact that Adam's apple is much more prominent in men than in women.

Byron Wrote Speedily

Lord Byron, the English poet, was one of those fortunate beings to whom genius came easily, and was therefore little appreciated. He wrote the book, "The Corsair," in 10 days, the "Bride of Abydos" in four days, and another while undressing after balls and masquerades.

Do you want to SAVE MONEY? The Standard Ford V-8, with 60-horsepower engine, gives you a lot of car for a little money. 300,000 new owners acclaimed the "thrifty 60" last year. Hundreds a day are buying it in 1938. Why? Because it is priced low—includes essential equipment without extra charge—and goes farther between filling stations than any Ford car ever built. Owners all over the country report averages of 22 to 27 miles on a single gallon of gasoline. But economy isn't all the story by any means. The Standard "60" is built with the same precision as the De Luxe "85," and has the same 112-inch wheelbase chassis. It is easy to look at and ride in—as well as easy to buy and run. Milk A Mainstay Of Farm Income

Year	Farm Cash Milk Income (in millions of dollars)
1933	990
1934	1173
1935	1289
1936	1417

ABILITY of the dairy industry to maintain cash payments to farmers for milk and employee payrolls is evidence, says the Milk Industry Foundation, that this $1.4 billion dollar industry is a mainstay of agricultural and industrial purchasing power during periods of recession.

Milk, the largest source of farm cash income, was also the only major farm commodity except cotton to return farmers more cash in January than the same month of 1937. Farm cash income from milk of $132,000,000 for January was the largest for the month in eight years and 14.8 per cent greater than in January 1937.

Further evidence of the importance of fluid milk distribution to economic stability is that despite curtailed business activity during the last quarter of 1937, milk company payrolls increased 4.8 per cent and employment 7 per cent over the last quarter of 1936.

CASS CITY BOWLER "SIGHS FOR NEW WORLDS TO CONQUER"?

From Caro Advertiser. Meredith Auten, Cass City banker, is very much interested in all kinds of sport. He is chief rooster for Cass City high school teams of all kinds, plays a strenuous game of golf, is now rather a tennis has-been, although he can still take a lot of the boys at this game. Recently he has become much interested in bowling.

Monday noon he dropped into the Recreation at Caro and tried to inveigle The Advertiser man into a bowling game. This was declined with thanks.

So Meredith bowled a line by himself, with a score of 108.

Carl Emery then came in, and Meredith, looking for some world to conquer, said if Carl would spot him 20 pins, he would bowl a game with Carl.

Carl agreed, ran into some poor frames and bowled 172. Meredith bowled 176 (including his 20-pin spot) and so beat the Caro man.

Feeling pretty good, and with his chest slightly bowed out, Meredith then wanted to bowl some more.

In this game, including the 20-pin spot again, Meredith bowled 216—and Carl bowled 234!

Meredith's jaw dropped slightly, but he was game and wanted to bowl once more. The score of this game was: Emery, 204; Auten, 135.

Meredith then spent most of the balance of the afternoon asking various folks in Caro if all the boys did over here was to bowl.

Pretty Silk for Her Easter Frock

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

DECK little daughter out in a pretty-pretty dress-up silken gown at the joyous Easter time and note what a radiant outlook it will give her. It will be as refreshing a sight as the flowers that burst into an ecstasy of color at the magic touch of spring to see little girls lifting their way along in the Easter style parade. It seems that silk for dress-up "Sunday-go-to-meeting" frocks has come into its own this spring in childhood's realm, more so than for many seasons past.

Mothers are becoming increasingly alert to the fact that bright colorful well-cut clothes are vastly important in the development of a child's personality. Often it is only a becoming dress that spells the difference between a confident happy child and a timid backward one.

Mothers will find inspiration aplenty as to "how to make" little daughter's Easter frock, in the trio of fashions illustrated, for they came fresh from the designers' hands and are alive with new "ideas." If you prefer to buy your child's frock ready made you will find more daintily fashioned silk models than have been shown for quite some time, but if you are a sew-at-home enthusiast all you have to do to make a dress after the manner of the model shown to the right is to take enough silk (navy printed silk taffeta fashions the gown pictured) to the pleater and the pleater pleats the skirt. Just ask little daughter, she knows!—knows that pleated skirts are very stylish indeed this season. To give the attractive styling to the top part insert puffed details in the sleeves and the bodice as pictured.

As to the little girl centered in the group it is not a case of "all dressed up and no place to go" for her outfit, even to her new wrist watch and the dainty white gloves she carries, unmistakably identifies her as one who will join in the style parade proudly arrayed in her Easter finery. The dress is made of dainty flower-print silk crepe in delicate lovely colors. There is considerable smocking at the waistline, giving the corselet effect so popular in adult fashions, with simulated yoke effect repeating the smocking. The brim hat is of the same silk print.

Little daughter will look just as if she stepped out of a fashion plate if on Easter she wears a dress of plaid weighted silk taffeta (very smart is taffeta this season). Make the skirt with fan box pleats and grace the neckline with a pleated frill, as you see to the left in the picture. Velvet ribbon is used for the bow at the neck and for about the waist which gives it still another claim as a fashion-first. When in doubt use velvet touches to finish off the dress or the coat you may be making, for as a trimming feature velvet is very important this season.

For children's dresses plain silk crepe in the new charming pastel colors ranks in high favor. These pretty monotone crepes revel in "oodles" of shirring, smocking, fagoting and other handwork detail. The colors available are entrancing. © Western Newspaper Union.

NEW IN THE MODE

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Silk sweaters in bright colors with the tailored spring suit are important news. A cardigan fine slip-over silk sweater as pictured at the top can be buttoned in back or front. It has a boat neck and short sleeves. The silk knit has a small spaced arrow motif. The rough straw sailor has a bandana trim. The gypsy blouse shown here is in black and white polka dot silk crepe. It has a turnover collar and long full sleeves with turned back cuffs and a red silk chiffon handkerchief in the breast pocket. It is worn with a black silk taffeta upturned sombrero with a chin strap

TAILORED OUTFITS

HERALD OF SPRING

BY CHERIE NICHOLAS

The annual blossoming of tailored suits is a surer sign of spring than the appearance of the first crocus. Of course, there are always modifications, and this year they take the form of lower waistlines, higher hemlines, and boxy shoulder details.

In keeping with this vogue, simple shoes are once again highlighted. Gone are the foot-revealing sandals that predominated in last year's spring line.

Shoe trimming details, including simple cut-outs, punchwork, and perforations, are especially significant because of their restraint. This is also true of colors. The blue, red, and copper-hued shoes now slated for style importance are considerably toned down to conform with the note of early spring reserve.

Nursery Rhyme Buttons to Adorn Spring Prints

Little Jack Horner was no more surprised than the fashion snoper is at the new forms of catalin buttons that are now being sewed on prints here, cotton goods there or just fastened to fancy little cards for the home dressmaker. Little Jack Horner happens to be one of the figures into which the catalin has been shaped and he is accompanied by such renowned persons as Old Mother Hubbard and her shoe, Little Red Riding Hood, the Piper's Son, Jack the Giant Killer and Mother Goose, herself, whose rhymes were the inspiration for these new shapes. Colors? Blue, green, orange and red. And, as strange as it seems, (or does it?) more of these buttons are being used on adults' apparel than on infant wear.

Mr. H. F. Lenzner, Pub. Cass City Chronicle Cass City, Michigan

Dear Sir:

After reading the article in your issue of April 8 about the picture that had been on display in your window, taken 45 years ago,—said picture showing 13 members of the Cass City band and 27 members of the I. O. O. F. lodge, I decided to try and organize a new club.

Inasmuch as I was a member of the lodge and appeared in the picture, I would be entitled to membership along with Daniel McGillvray, O. K. Janes, Dr. M. M. Wickware, L. I. Wood and probably others whose whereabouts I do not know.

I have taken the liberty of naming this club, "The Die Hard Club," and when those entitled to membership are located and officers elected, I will deposit a $100.00 government bond with the treasurer to be given to the last surviving member. I will be pleased to hear from all entitled to membership and suggest that we get together at some central point, elect officers and have bond deposited with the treasurer.

Respectfully yours,
C. W. McPHAIL.

CHAPTER VII

"Of course it might well have been going to be pneumonia," Mary Dana Webster conceded reasonably.

"And Adelaide being what the English amiably call 'a bit on the plump side,' it might well have been going to go hard with her," Lynn Dana contributed.

Sarah Lynn had been home for a fortnight, and her mother, large and languid in expensive negligees, was ruling her realm from a mid-Victorian sofa.

The plain cousin sighed. "Well, at any rate, she's got Sarah Lynn back again."

"Ah, but has she? Geographically, yes; psychologically, no! Something's happened to the child, Mary. A sea change—no, air! Mary, I'm telling you! The last of the queer, dark Dana girls has found her element."

"You mean she'll actually be a fier? Have her own plane?" She shook her head. "Cousin Adelaide won't listen to the idea, and can you imagine Ed Dana going against her?"

"Ah, but reinforcements are rapidly galloping to the rescue, headed by Great-granny, tailed by the dashing and heroic figure now before you."

"Lynn! You're going to finance her?" He nodded. "Yes. But not a word to anyone."

Gunnar Thorwald came to meet Sarah Lynn. He spoke at once, without greeting or prelude. "I ask you to pardon."

Sarah Lynn stood still, staring at him. He took off his helmet and absurdly she recalled Kitty Medill's high, sweet voice in the dim-lit lobby of the Hotel Californian at Fresno—"You tell your big Swede I don't like his fireman's hat!"

His hair was the guileless yellow of un-salted butter, and he had a lean, stern, young face and ice-blue eyes. Their grave gaze was steady upon her. He said again, "I ask you to pardon. I know now the truth. I have shame of my rough words."

She bent her head. "Thank you," she said unevenly. He put his quaint head-gear on again and continued to regard her seriously. "You like to fly?"

Color came flooding back into her face. "Oh, better than anything else in the world!"

"Now? You will come?" He was asking her to fly with him. Gunnar Thorwald, Norwegian ace, who never flew women, who had scorned and despised her, was asking her to go up in his plane. She heard herself making a vague sound and she saw that it must have seemed like acceptance because the tall youth nodded.

"So! We go to tell them." He turned into the little dooryard with its cinnamon pinks and candytuft and China asters and stood aside for her to precede him through the narrow door, up the precipitous stair. Gunnar Thorwald in the first little old Dana house with the matriculated and the man in the wheelchair, and a stranger, and Jens serving tea with heavy care, his huge shoes creaking as always.

She sat silent in her dress and cloak and beret the color of ancient brick and Lynn Dana's eyes were warm upon her.

The Norseman put down his cup and rose. "We fly," he stated briefly.

The stranger, who was Conrad Jordan, stood up, too. "I'll drive you out to the field," he said. "I'll telephone your mother, Sarah Lynn," her uncle said.

"Oh, but not until after I've gone!" she cried out in panic. The nonagenarian gave her shrill cackle. "You just up'n put out, Sairy Lynn, quick's ever you can," she chuckled. "If there's any to do about it, you tell 'em your greengrammer said you could!"

Sarah Lynn sat beside Conrad Jordan in the small, swift car, and the Norwegian ace doubled up his length in the rumble-seat. They had telephoned from Danavale and the Hermod was being warmed up when they arrived, and she saw Gunnar Thorwald walk round it once, twice, and again, in eagle-eyed inspection, before he took his place.

Conrad Jordan observed him with satisfaction. "That lad will never smash up through his own carelessness," he nodded. He amplified it for her—"Most of the crashes occur on the ground."

"I see," Sarah Lynn said quickly. He considered her shrewdly. "I believe you do." They were stepping nearer to the plane and he said above the roar, "You can get aboard now." He took her elbow in a firm hand and helped her into the cabin.

She sat down quickly in the rear seat, fastening the belt about her waist, calmly folding her hands in her lap.

The Hermod taxied sturdily down the field and took off trimly. There were instants when it seemed to hang in the clear air, suspended over the field. She could see Conrad Jordan waving. Presently he lost dignity and importance and became a tiny toy figure in a world of playthings and vanished altogether.

They flew over the Santa Cruz mountains, brown, green, compact as if they had been carved out of wood and painted.

They circled the water and turned inland again, picking up the mountains, Danavale, San Jose, the airport, like dropped stitches.

Sarah Lynn caught her breath. "Quick! Such heavenly quickness!" He nodded. "I have named him for Hermod, the swift one. You know?"

"I know. Hermes—Mercury." "Yes. We go down, now." The west was darkening when they swooped to earth with a suave landing and rolled briskly to the hangar.

The old attendant came limping to open the door and help her out. Conrad Jordan was not in sight.

"He said would you come speak to him in the 'phone booth," the man addressed Gunnar, and the Norwegian ace followed him in.

The older flier stood with the receiver in his hand. "Hello, Gunnar! Do you mind? I'm waiting for this Glendale connection. Will you run Miss Dana home for me?"

"Please don't trouble," she said quickly. "They will send a car for me." But Gunnar was already stepping toward the roadster and she followed him.

He drove a car as smoothly as a plane. They had ticked off a twilight mile before he spoke. "You have no fear."

"No." "That is good." After a moment she said, "I want to be a fier."

"That is also good." "Then, you think women should fly?"

"Why not? Women have courage; the skill they may learn. In the ancient history of my country the women fought often beside their men."

"I know." She remembered the governess' books from the library. "My grandmother," he began again, his voice warmer than she had heard it before, "there could be no more of courage in woman or man." Presently he said, "Your grandmother I also like."

Sarah Lynn kindled. "Oh, Great-granny's splendid! She ran away from home when she was fifteen and joined an emigrant train and came across the plains in a covered wagon, and there were Indians and hunger and thirst and—"

They were running into Danavale. "Oh, not my uncle's house! I want to go home, please. To the left." It would be over in a moment and there was a thing she must ask. "I've been wondering. There isn't any fear, I know that, of course, but when you're flying alone, hour after hour, do you ever think about death?"

"Often," he told her readily. "With great interest. But not with what is your word?—eagerment?" She nodded; it seemed an excellent word.

Jordan's car swiftly back to the airport and found the Hermod put away for the night and his friend waiting for him outside the hangar.

"So," the Norwegian ace said gravely, "you are satisfied? I have asked the pardon; I have taken her to fly. It is finished."

It must have been almost at the same instant that Lynn Dana was typing to his traveling cousin in Geneva. "And so, Sally Ann, my dear, it has begun!"

Sarah Lynn was twenty years old on the fifteenth of June. Her first waking thought was, "Now I'm exactly old enough to begin my flight training!"

For months she had been saying, "I'd like to fly," and "I want to fly," and finally, "I'm going to fly!" but without any deeper delving into the proposition.

Sarah Lynn's place at the breakfast table was festive with flowers and tissue-and-ribboned packages. Her mother made much of birthdays.

Her dark and difficult daughter opened her gifts with grateful warmth and ran to kiss and thank her.

"I'm so glad they make you happy, darling. But you haven't looked at the big box yet," she reminded her archly.

It would be from Duncan Van Doren, of course, from the smartest of San Francisco florists. She lifted away damp layers of glistening green paper and registered authentic appreciation. She touched lilies-of-the-valley and forget-me-nots and tiny pink rosebuds with her brown finger-tips. "Duncan has perfect taste."

"Ah, yes, hasn't he?" her mother said gratefully. "Will you arrange them now, dear? The low green bowls and the little crystal vases for the lilies?"

"You fix them for me, Mother, please! You do it so much better—and Penny's waiting. I promised to walk with her."

Mrs. Dana was wistfully cheery about it, sure that a brisk walk would do her child good. "But don't stay away too long, darling!" she said with the look which meant her sly, sweet hopes. "Happy plans for the birthday."

Sarah Lynn found the governess and the greyhound waiting for her. They set off together through the increasing loveliness of the day.

"Queer! No presents from Great-granny and Uncle Lynn!" "Ah, well, the day's not done!" Miss Pennington wagged her head in its stern, out-dated sailor hat.

"Penny, where shall we go? The high meadow? Remember how I used to tease the ladybugs and make them fly away home and tell them their houses were on fire and their children would burn?"

"I remember." "Uncle Lynn and Great-granny used to call me Ladybug, didn't they? I haven't thought of that for years."

"Haven't you, indeed?" Something in her tone made Sarah Lynn halt. "Penny, dear, we are going too fast? Lightning seems to set the pace but we can shift into low if you like!"

"Certainly not!" "Oh, look at Lightning!" The greyhound, at the bend of the road, tensely silhouetted, was gazing fixedly into space. "Isn't she glorious when she's sighting something? Her lines do things to me, like sunsets and symphonies."

They rounded the curve and Sarah Lynn cried: "There's a plane! Look, Penny—a plane in our field!" She began to run, Lightning bounding before with shrill, suspicious barks.

There in the center of the broad meadow, searing already toward the long, bright, rainless summer, an airplane rested on the ground like some great bird briefly breaking its flight. It did not look disabled to Sarah Lynn, and the pilot stood unhurt beside it. Out of gas, probably. There was a closed car close by, and she was abreast of it before she realized it was the one shared by her great-grandmother and her uncle.

She stood still, then, beginning to shake with excitement. The ancestress hopped nimbly out of the machine and hurried to her. There were dabs of dull crimson on her cheek-bones and she was laughing in her shrill, cackling giggle.

Her great-granddaughter managed a strangled whisper. "What—what is it?" "It's your covered wagon, Sairy Lynn!"

"For me? To keep?" Questions going off like a string of small fire-crackers. "Yours," Lynn Dana answered from the windows of the car.

She ran to him, her mouth working. "Uncle Lynn, Uncle Lynn! Not—belonging to me? To fly?" "All yours and only yours. Many happy returns from Great-Granny and me. We let Conrad Jordan and Gunnar Thorwald pick it out for us, but we were very firm about having a Gypsy Moth." He grinned at her. "It was the nearest we could get."

Then she saw what he meant. The little ship was painted a clear, sharp, lacquer red with its name in black letters—L A D Y B U G.

to touch it. Then she went back to the donors and gave a hand to each and stood staring at them.

"Great-granny, Uncle Lynn—" she began, trying to assemble an adequate sentence. She shut her eyes and kept the lids tight for a long instant before she opened them again, and the nonagenarian and the man who had sat still in a chair for more than half his life would always remember the drowned glory of them. "Do you mind if I go?" she asked huskily.

"You just up'n put out, Sairy Lynn," the ancient woman told her, shrilly competing with the noise of the motor.

The man said with his good grin. "Ladybug, Ladybug, fly away home!"

Then she ran back to the plane, Lightning beside her. "Are you going to teach me?"

The pilot nodded without undue enthusiasm. "How long will it take?" She shrugged. "Depends."

She flushed. "Of course. But, I mean, if I try with all my might—if I'm not too dumb—if I study and work—"

"Just for a Private, of course. Private Flying License. That's the quickest. Ten hours instruction, ten hours solo flying; that's the minimum."

"Yes," she said contentedly. "When is my first lesson?" "Tomorrow."

"Oh, not today?" He shook his head. "Physical examination—lots of details to fix up. But I'll hop you over to the field, now, and your folks'll drive over after you. Ready?" With swift strength he swung her up and into the cockpit and climbed in himself.

A Non-Partisan State News Letter By GENE ALLEMAN Michigan Press Association

Lansing—Michigan today is an economic plateau sharply cut by deep valleys.

The valleys are industrial centers where factory machines today are idle and thousands of workers are either on WPA or relief. At Grand Rapids, for example, leading plants are operating only at 20 per cent capacity as compared with capacity production 12 months ago. And this figure goes for metal trades as well as for furniture, for furniture represents only 30 per cent of the west Michigan metropolis' industrial life.

Farms and small cities and towns constitute the plateau. While conditions are far from being rosy, Main Street is well off. Farm income has been relatively stable; Michigan enjoyed the largest percentage increase in 1937 farm income of any state in the Middle West. Ask your country cousins!

Home Building

As business entered its fourth month of the new year with few signs of a trend toward recovery, government economists are reported to be more convinced than ever that the key lies in the field of home building.

Michigan rated fourth in the nation last year in the number of new homes.

Towns like Holland and Muskegon attained remarkable results in the small homes classification.

The newly liberalized FHA provides government backing for 90 per cent of construction cost up to $6,000. Thus for $600 the American worker can have a house valued at $6,000, and the obligation is payable over many years at easy terms and at a low rate of interest. Furthermore, the farmer can build a new barn, purchase needed equipment, and otherwise add to his investment under advantageous terms.

The same government that criticized the Michigan automobile industry for easy installment plan financing is offering Michigan the opportunity of a life-time to get a new house.

Monthly Income

Industrial production may be scraping bottom, but the consumer's monthly income has dropped only from around 3,900 million dollars to about 3,400 million dollars.

This is heartening news, for it is buying power that counts. With adjournment of Congress and removal of fears which produced the recent dictatorship hysteria, America is expected to get a new grip on itself. And when that moment arrives, Michigan will receive the first benefit in the industrial pickup. Watch then for a home building revival. We should be back again in the column of leading states.

Workers' Revolution

The spectacle of utility plants being seized by workers to forestall possibility of a wage cut was presented to the nation last week by the C. I. O. in Michigan.

In Europe it would be a "workers' revolution."

The New York Times gave its conservative readers the jitters on Sunday, April 3, when it devoted a front page column to the Michigan property seizure.

The remarkable thing about it, at least to outsiders, is the complacency with which Michigan officialdom accepted the situation. Governor Murphy continued his policy of mediation via the conference table. No one raised the question about sending troops, or law and order, or constitutional rights and so on. In this modern day, such things have been apparently relegated to the limbo of the "horse-and-buggy."

A circuit court judge added confusion to the picture by announcing that state courts lacked judicial rights to interfere in labor difficulties now that the National Labor Board has jurisdiction. This was news to many citizens, who had been under the impression that the rights of property could be defended and protected in court.

Jubilantly, the C. I. O. union proclaimed it had triumphed again, forestalling any wage cuts for four months.

All of which raises a query: What next?

Partnership

Grand Rapids manufacturers are introducing a new program in industrial relationship.

Here is the logic: Many industrial plants in Michigan during depression years benefited the workers more than the stockholder. After the ever-staggering burden of taxes was met, wages of the workers were paid. Then the stockholder got what was left—if anything.

The complication, or "fly in the ointment," has been the neglect or indifference on the part of industrial leaders to acquaint their co-workers with the facts of the business. If the workers' wages must be paid first, why not provide the workers with a statement of operating costs, profit and loss, in an easy-to-understand form?

The manufacturer realizes that the worker is just as human as he is. He has the same appetite for food. He craves a home for his family. He enjoys movies, radio, newspapers. He wants security, but he is willing to share his future with the stockholder when he is convinced that "capital is on the level."

This viewpoint is old-fashioned neighborliness that you find in every small town.

"Industry comes back to Main Street!"

Women's Coats Go Long, Short

Women can take their choice this spring for their new coats, but the choice had better be for either dress length or short swagger type if style means anything.

"Coats are news this spring, for not for several years have coats been so important a part of the costume," observes Evelyn Mansfield, home economics instructor in clothing at Michigan State College.

Classics in coats, she finds, are the straight topcoats of tweeds topped with fox or polar wolf collar. Furless and square shouldered tailored swaggers continue to be popular. But a coat is a coat and those that are in style will cover the dress—few three quarter length coats feature Easter and later spring style parades.

For slenderness and height many women are picking the tuxedo style coat which is fitted and tailored. Comfort and style add to this type because it looks well worn either open or closed.

The Michigan State College instructor has been surveying the work of manufacturers in this country as well as studying fashion hints offered from Paris.

One new variation of the reefer coat is the capelet reefer. The capelet takes the place of sleeves and is cut so that it drapes comfortably around the arms. The redingote style with matching dress is another type that is being revived for 1938.

New York fashion leaders are suggesting bloused coats, dolman sleeves gathered and pleated coat fronts. Some of the bloused coats are shirred like a dress but tightened at the waistline with corselet belts or with set-in belts. The blouse may be only in the back of the coat or all the way around.

1938 Fair Price Determination for Sugar Beets

Saginaw — Considerable misunderstanding has arisen among the sugar beet growers over the statements regarding the 1938 fair price determinations, according to Arthur A. Schupp, executive secretary of the Farmers & Manufacturers Beet Sugar Association.

The fair price determination, as issued by the Department of Agriculture applies only in those cases where the processor is also a producer of beets. The determination of the fair price for the 1938 crop in this case is in two classes. First, if an agreement has been made between the processors and producers for the 1938 crop, this price provided for in the agreement is determined to be the fair price for the 1938 crop. Second, if no agreement has been made for the 1938 crop between the producer and the processor, then the fair price is determined to be not less than the price agreed upon in 1937, except that a minimum rate of not less than $5.00 per net ton for beets testing 16.5% sugar is required under a "factory average content" and 16.8% sugar under "individual test" contracts.

Public condemnation of convicted drunken drivers is reaching high proportions. And justly so.

Is there any reason under the sun why a man should be permitted to drink more liquor than he can control, step into a high-powered automobile, and drive recklessly down our highways, injuring and killing people? There is none.

It is regrettable that in many cities and counties throughout our nation enforcement officers and even courts have been somewhat reluctant to enforce laws to protect citizens of their communities from these drunken drivers.

Licenses of drunken drivers should be revoked. No man who has been convicted of drunken driving should be permitted to drive an automobile. The use of our highways is a privilege. It should be considered so and not abused.

Dangers Faced by Archeologists
Very real are the dangers archeologists often must risk. In Egypt they face sudden sandstorms, fierce heat; in Tibet, suspicious, hostile natives; in Central America, disease and deadly snakes; in most places, ordinary thieves, seeking valuable jewels of other civilizations. Yet their diggings have added page after page to ancient history, brought to light many interesting facts. Some of these: There were cities of half a million inhabitants in prehistoric times; Cretons, 4,000 years ago, had bathrooms much like modern ones; Roman boys scrawled slang on house-walls 2,000 years ago.

The Electrified Farm

Is Ready for Spring

Every foresighted farmer is busy preparing now for spring and the subsequent season's activities. Where he can use electricity, his preparations are made more speedily, more easily, and at less expense. He is prepared to "get the jump" on the market.

Machinery and equipment have been repaired economically during the winter in the farmer's own electrified workshop. And this workshop will again prove its worth when the equipment goes into operation. Ability to make quick repairs at home will save the farmer time, keep a crew of men working productively, and eliminate the expense of a trip to town.

Electric brooders are helping the farmer to grow stronger and healthier chicks, ready for market several days in advance of those brooded by other methods. Pullets kept for next season will start laying earlier. Yet electric brooding costs no more than other, less dependable methods.

Newly-born lambs and pigs find protection in the warmth of an electric heater. Dangerous chillings at this critical time is prevented. With this protection, development of the young animals is greatly aided, and larger growth achieved.

For the market gardener and nurseryman, electric soil-heating in hotbeds and plant houses, cold frames and nurseries help to get early spring seedlings started sooner, without the effort entailed by other methods, and without danger of freezing.

Is your farm ready for spring? The Farm Service Division of The Detroit Edison Company can tell you how to use electricity to greatest advantage. Call or write your nearest Detroit Edison office today.

Give more POTASH to your SUGAR BEETS

POTASH is the important plant food in determining profits from sugar beets. A crop of beets removes from your soil more potash than nitrogen and phosphoric acid combined. Be sure to have your beet soils tested for available potash. Maintain your soil supply by using 200-400 lbs. of a fertilizer containing at least 6% potash before planting; 100-200 lbs. at planting; and the same amount as a side-dressing. On most mineral soils apply at least as much potash as phosphoric acid. On heavy fertile soils one-half as much may be satisfactory. On sandy soils the potash should be double, and on muck soils triple, the phosphoric acid. Write us for further information and literature.

Consult your county agent or experiment station. See your fertilizer dealer or manufacturer. You will be surprised how little extra it costs to apply enough potash.

News as to Easter Fashion Trends

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

WHEN you start out in quest of chic clothes for spring-summer, be prepared to experience not less than a thrill a minute, for the whole set-up of fashion proclaims an entirely new order of things.

Pleats and pleats and more pleats, boleros played up in every mood, colors that are excitingly new, prints that are refreshingly "different," costume suits and coats and dresses of wools that revive enchanting pastels, stripes everywhere you turn in the mode, flowery beribboned Watteau hats that bring the daintily feminine into the picture, Gibson girl blouses with wrist-deep full sleeves, Gibson girl sailors with colorful veils that are brought up under the chin to tie at the back in a fluttery butterfly bow—and here we will have to stop to take breath before we go on with the story of Easter fashion trends that spring a delightful surprise every step of the way.

Perhaps the most significant news is that of striking color innovations not the least of which is the revival of pastel shades such as flourished in the romantic past. And if you are asking us to mention a pastel that fashion particularly highspots at the dawn of this new season we would unhesitatingly answer "pink." The emphasis is especially on pink only that pastels are acclaimed for costume accents, for you will be making a perfect start in the right direction if you buy for your fashion-first a three-piece costume suit tailored of a lovely pastel woolen in a fine herringbone pattern such as fashions the stunning model to the left in the picture. It will be style-correct in either a grayish blue or a dusty pink, or you may choose one of the new vogueish cereal shades or a golden-beige which is creating such a furore in the realm of fashion this spring.

You can do wonders with a three-piece of this type in the way of costume changes. In fact the major part of the spring wardrobe is provided with a skirt-jacket-topcoat threesome as its basic theme. To be high style the three-quarter topcoat must have "boxy" lines as this model shows. If you are keen about navy for your Easter costume let us "whisper aloud" to you that navy is a big favorite and with pink accessories it is a fashion highlight. A handsome wool tulleur such as pictured calls for a collection of blouses and when you are blouse shopping keep in mind that the newest blouse on the scene is the blouse that really blouses, call it Gibson girl or gypsy peasant blouse as you will.

Boleros have become an overwhelming passion with designers. Buy them separate or choose a bolero suit complete. We selected for illustration (centered in group) a conservative refined type made of a fine black sheer. No doubt you noted at once its exquisitely neat and trim appearance. The secret thereof is that it is modeled over a clever new braform with dainty under-arm shields attached that give perfect protection at the same time that it molds the figure into modish contour. With a collection of blouses this costume may be transformed at a moment's notice to meet any occasion.

As to the separate blouse, buy or make as many as you will and even at that you will not have too many to satisfy fashion's demand.

As to pleats and prints, they have formed a partnership that is proving by far one of the most far-reaching fashion trends of the season. And to prove how dramatically and beautifully silk prints and pleats perform together we are picturing in the foreground a most winning daytime dress of silk Paisley print. All-around knife pleating is released from the hips making a slenderizing pleasing skirt. A horizontal drawstring shirring across the bust matches the shirring on the sleeves. A blue sash off-the-face hat completes as fetching an Easter costume as fancy can picture.

Milk is heavier than cream. Cream in milk rises to the surface because it is composed of infinitesimal drops of oil and fat which are lighter than the remainder of the milk. The rising of cream is not at first apparent because the drops are very small and they come up slowly.

A certain fish in some states may be called a large-mouthed bass, but in other states the same fish will be called a green bass, a chub, a trout, a Welshman, a cow bass, a rock bass, a yellow bass, white bass, white salmon, and white trout. Altogether this fish is called by 40 different names.

Narrower Rows
Closer Beets
MORE TONS

The ground does not crack or dry out as quickly and weeds are forced to stop growing sooner.

This is a saving to the grower because he does not have to cultivate as often for weeds and consequently is not so likely to destroy the surface root growth of the Sugar Beets.

Contrary to the popular belief that by planting the rows closer together the beets are harder on the land, we believe that they are easier on the land.

More beets leave more roots in the soil and more tops, consequently the ground is in better shape for drainage and fertility to the following crop.

Remember this—narrower rows have a definite tendency to produce a higher tonnage and more sugar per acre.

Narrower rows mean more beets per acre. If you have a year in which something injures the "stand" there are, of course, more beets left to grow per acre.

There are 4450 more 12 inch spaced beets per acre in a field of 20 inch rows than there are in a field of 24 inch rows.

There are 1980 more 12 inch spaced beets in a 22 inch row than a 24 inch row.

Large horses admittedly will tramp more on narrower rows but it takes a lot of tramping to tramp out 1980 or 4450 extra beets.

Leaves of narrower rowed beets cover the row more quickly therefore the ground is shaded sooner.

NEW USES OF PRINT IN SPRING STYLES

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Designers are having a lot of fun with prints this season, in that they are using them in a trimming way rather than for the entire costume, or at least in combination with other plain fabrics.

It is very good style to have a dark dress tied about the waist with a gypsy sash of the print; the coat or jacket having a lining of the same print.

Little ruches of bright silk outline skirt hemlines as well as the edges of the bolero jacket. Spaghetti trims are also made of colorful silk print.

Cutout florals are applied in fascinating ways not only on day dresses but especially on sheer diaphanous evening materials. The idea offers vast possibilities and certain designers are turning out veritable works of art. They scatter petals and single flowers and clusters with the same artistry a painter creates a picture.

Mrs. R. Sargent—

Mrs. Esther Sargent, aged 79 years, passed away Friday, April 8, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. William R. Wilson, 1103 East Thirteen Mile Road, Royal Oak, with whom she has made her home most of the time for the past five years.

Esther Davidson Sargent was born Feb. 2, 1859, in Renfrew county, Canada, and came to Royal Oak with her parents at the age of seven years.

In 1883 she was united in marriage with Richard Sargent, who preceded her in death on May 22, 1933. To this union five children were born of whom two survive—Mrs. William R. Wilson and Mrs. Mason Wilson of Cass City. One daughter, Ella (Mrs. Charles Kelley), two sons, Lee Roy and Lafayette Sargent, preceded the mother in death.

She also leaves seven grandchildren and one great granddaughter, three brothers, James and Samuel Davidson of Royal Oak, Andrew Davidson of Birmingham. One brother, John Davidson, passed away about twenty-four hours before his sister.

Mr. and Mrs. Sargent came to a farm, one mile west and one-half mile south, about 40 years ago, where they remained about 25 years. Both were members of the Deford M. E. church in those early years and the funeral service was conducted at the Deford church on Sunday afternoon by the pastor, George B. Marsh. The body was placed in the Novesta cemetery.

Acreeage Allotment Going to Farmers

They Will Be a Guide to the Agriculturalists in Planting Spring Crops.

Farm acreage allotments of soil depleting crops are being sent to farmers. These allotments are for a guide to farmers in planting crops this spring.

To qualify for full payment under the new farm program, a farmer need make no reductions from these allotments but must meet the following requirements on his farm:

1. Plant no greater acreage of depleting crops than his farm allotment.

2. Plant only his farm potato acreage allotment on commercial potato farms. Payment will be made only on the actual acreage of potatoes planted in 1938.

3. Plant not more than three acres of potatoes on non-commercial potato farms.

4. Carry out soil building practices to meet his farm soil building goal.

Deductions will be made from the maximum farm payment if these provisions are not met on the farm.

The total allotments for all farms in the United States are set so that production under normal conditions will result in ample supplies of farm commodities rather than surpluses which are wasteful of soil and farm income, and so that there will be a well managed reserve supply against short years.

It is intended that both farmers and consumers will be safeguarded against disastrous and prohibitive price fluctuations by this system and the soil of the nation will be preserved.

Concluded from first page.

A natural mechanic, his bent for machinery sent him into the sawmill industry at the age of 15 years and held him in that pursuit for many years in Sheridan, Uby and Greenleaf, and as an associate of his father, John Parrott, in the operation of a mill near Shabbona. When he located in Novesta township 46 years ago, he erected a mill on his farm which he conducted until the lumbering industry was on the wane in the Thumb of Michigan. Twenty years ago, he began to pay more and more attention to farming and his 120-acre estate has provided him with plenty of activity in late years.

Mr. and Mrs. Parrott have four children, William Parrott of Cass City, Earl Parrott of Bad Axe, Kent Parrott of Crosswell and Mrs. Harry Tallmadge of Sandusky.

Warm March Puzzles Fruit

One man at least has been trying to do something about the weather.

Members of the horticultural department at Michigan State College recently wondered if the exceedingly warm March which Michigan experienced this winter would have any effect upon fruit crops.

They decided there wasn't much to do about it—except for one man who began to dig into weather bureau records from previous years. He matched up similarly warm March daily averages and found that when Dame Nature fooled the fruit industry early in the year she invariably turned on enough cold later on to cut harvests severely.

But there's sunshine in the findings. For with these weather bureau records matched up with lower than average yields of peaches and apples there usually were higher prices.

Michigan this year may still be in the good graces of nature. Severe damage in Southern Illinois has already occurred. In Michigan, although prospects have not been cut down very much, there still are some anxious days and nights, or even weeks.

The average last killing frost dates vary in Michigan. Some of the representative fruit areas listed by the federal weather bureau records at East Lansing indicate the variation. For South Haven the average date is May 3; for St. Joseph it is April 25; for Pontiac, May 10; for Lansing, May 6; for Grand Rapids, April 28; and for Traverse City, May 10.

Two Schools in County Lead in Christmas Seal Sale

Among Tuscola county rural schools, top honors for selling 1937 tuberculosis Christmas seals go to children of the Honsinger school, announced the Michigan Tuberculosis Association this week. For winning the highest per capita rating of any other rural school enrollment in Tuscola county, the children were awarded a set of six big books of adventure stories—Kidnaped, Robinson Crusoe, Hans Brinker, The Dog of Flanders, Wolf Ear the Indian, and The Dragon's Teeth. The prize was sent them in care of their teacher, Mary Ruth McCloy, who supervised the sale.

Second prize, a book of fascinating Indian legends titled "Why the Owl Flies at Night," was won by the pupils at June school, where Alice Garner, teacher, had charge of the sale.
