500 Descriptions to Be Offered in May Tax Sale

Many Have Taken Opportunity to Clear Property by Making Tax Payments

These are busy days at the office of Arthur Whittenburg, Tuscola county treasurer. For several weeks many indebted for 1932 and prior taxes on their real estate have been settling up their delinquent tax accounts to prevent their lands from being sold at the May tax sale which will be held at Caro on May 3.

On April 26, there were 873 descriptions of land on which delinquent taxes were still unpaid. Mr. Whittenburg anticipates that tax payments will be made by property owners to reduce that number of descriptions down to 500, and that around a half thousand descriptions will go on sale in Tuscola county next Tuesday.

When the auditor general listed lands for sale in the May tax sale, 3,150 descriptions were advertised in Tuscola county alone. One-half of this number, according to Mr. Whittenburg, should not have been included as taxes on that number were not delinquent at the time. It has cost Tuscola county over $600, the treasurer estimates, for extra clerk hire and extra time of the regular office force to make the corrections on the descriptions listed by the state in the May tax sale.

Every effort has been made by the county treasurer to notify delinquent taxpayers that their lands are listed for sale on May 3 and in this he has had excellent cooperation from township supervisors who have furnished addresses and in other ways have rendered valuable assistance.

NEST OF EIGHT BUNNIES INTEREST CHILDREN

A nest of wild rabbits, in which were eight baby bunnies, was uncovered in a tulip bed in the back yard of Mrs. Edward Pinney's home and the children of the neighborhood have been very interested in watching them grow. All were very sad when the last rabbit left the nest Monday night and did not return.

Picture of America's Progress from Wild, Untamed Acres to Cultured Beauty

By William Noble.

Across swampy lands, over corduroy roads in a covered wagon drawn by a team of horses, as a child came Edward L. Burse from Blenheim, Ont., to Elkland township in 1878, and 59 years later again rode Mr. Burse in a covered wagon, but this time in a modern, luxurious one, drawn by a powerful motor car, over picturesque, smooth roadways to vacation land in Florida. That is simply the picture of America's progress from wild, untamed acres to the cultured beauty and fertility of those same acres today. And, too, the story of an ambitious pioneer who only after years of toil and sometimes discouraging work, found success in that land.

Mr. Burse worked with his father clearing rough, wooded acres on the 40 acres of land they purchased upon their arrival here from Canada.

"We traded our team of horses for a team of oxen, 50 bushels of wheat and a $150 note," said Mr. Burse, "and it enabled us to get started farming."

The fire of '81 swept their land and home but in the hearts of such pioneers such adversities were soon forgotten.

The Burse family farmed profit-

Miss Ruede is Bride of Donald Schenck

A wedding of interest to many Cass City people was that of Miss Genevieve Ruede, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Ruede, of Jackson, and Donald Paul Schenck, son of Mrs. Clayton Schenck, of Cass City, performed at 6:30 p. m. on Saturday, April 23, in St. Mary's rectory in Jackson by Rev. Fr. Higgins.

Death of Last of the Dunlap Triplets

Joan Irene, the last of the Dunlap triplets, passed away Saturday, April 23, in Pleasant Home Hospital of bronchial pneumonia, following an illness of measles.

25 Boys Report for Track and Field

Cass City Will Be Fairly Well Represented in the Thumb Contests.

Twenty-five boys reported to Orion Cardew and Kenneth Kelly for track and field workouts the first week in April. Taking advantage of mild weather of the past ten days the squad is beginning to show good results for its efforts. Good timed trials have been run by some of the boys, in the 440, 880, 220 and the high and low hurdles. Very slow promising displays of skill have been shown as yet in the field events. These events call for more extensive drill and progress is much slower than on the track.

Below are listed the boys on the squad and the events that they are training to take part in:

100 yard dash—Bruce Stine, Dale McIntyre, Bill Spencer, Millard Ball.

220 yard dash—Bruce Stine, Dale McIntyre, Bill Spencer, Millard Ball, Grant Hutchinson.

440 yard dash—Stanley Kloc, Grant Reagh.

Half-mile run—William Bears, Frank Bach, Ralph Ball, George Kennedy, Bud Kirkpatrick, Bernard O'Dell, Max Wise.

Half-mile relay—S. Kloc, Grant Reagh, Bruce Stine, Millard Ball, Dale McIntyre, Grant Hutchinson.

Low hurdles—Harmon Smith, Leland DeLong, Stuart Atwell, Frank Bach.

High hurdles—Harmon Smith, Leland DeLong, Stuart Atwell. Turn to page 4, please.

The final event of the evening will be three songs sung by the massed chorus. Leroy Daniels of Flint will act as guest conductor.

W. S. C. Committees Are Appointed by President-Elect

Various committees for the coming year were announced by Mrs. Edward Baker, the president-elect, when the Woman's Study Club met Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. Ivan Niergarth. They are:

Reception—Mrs. L. I. Wood, Mrs. A. Moore, Mrs. E. Doerr, Mrs. Edwin Fritz, Mrs. E. Bardwell.

The program of the day was in charge of Mrs. McNamee. A quartet, composed of Mrs. Charles Bayless, Mrs. Willis Campbell, Miss Verda Zuschnitt and Miss Winnifred Schell, sang "If You Love Me Keep My Commandments," "Spring Blossoms" and "A Daisy," with J. Henry Smith at the piano.

Mr. Smith was the speaker of the afternoon and took for his subject, "Realities of the Voice." Among the many excellent things told by Mr. Smith was, that everyone, who wants to sing can do so, if he does away with self-consciousness. It matters not so much if you stand just so, breathe just so, hold your mouth just so.

The date of the next club meeting has been changed from Tuesday to Wednesday, May 11, and will be held at the home of Mrs. A. Moore, six miles north and 1 1/2 miles east of Cass City.

Miss Urban and Mr. Frank Speak Vows

A pretty wedding took place at 9:00 a. m. Saturday, April 23, in St. Agatha's Catholic church at Gagetown when Miss Irene Mildred Urban, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Urban, of Colwood, became the bride of Louis Frank, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Frank, Sr., of Cass City.

Rev. Fr. McCullough officiated in the presence of about forty relatives and friends.

The bride wore a lovely floor length gown of white satin with a full length tulle veil, caught in a headress of pearls, and carried a shower bouquet of white carnations and pink rosebuds.

Guess This One? Taken When We Were Young

If Arthur C. Atwell ever runs for congress and gets as large a percentage of votes as he did in last week's "guess who" contest, he may rest assured that he will be seated with honors in the nation's legislative halls.

Everyone registering an opinion on last week's picture seemed to think that "Art" hadn't changed much since the days in which he batted home runs for the Cleary Business College baseball team (we won't say how many years ago).

Mr. Atwell received a hundred per cent vote of the 18 persons participating. They included John A. Cole, Howard Malcolm, Miss Pauline Tyo, F. A. Bigelow, L. I. Wood, E. W. Schwieger, B. F. Benkelman, Dr. F. L. Morris, Mrs. J. A. Caldwell, Mrs. I. W. Hall, Herbert Bigham, A. A. Jones, Miss Mabel Brian, Mrs. W. A. Seeger, Mrs. B. F. Hill, Mrs. Omar Gaspie, Mrs. Harold Kolb, and Mrs. H. L. Hunt.

After this experience, the "Guess This One?" editor will not even say that this week's picture will be at all difficult. What's your opinion?

Bad Axe Defeats Cass City, 9-6

Eight Baseball Games on Cass City's Spring Schedule; One This Afternoon.

Cass City lost its opening baseball game to Bad Axe 9-6. Bad Axe scored five big runs in the first inning after two men were out, on several errors and three good hits.

Reagh pitched good ball for the losers, allowing nine hits and no walks, while Klaydzyk allowed only four hits but he issued nine bases on balls, and struck out 13 hitters.

Following is the baseball schedule for Cass City:

April 29, Caro there. May 3, Sandusky here. May 6, Sebawaing here. May 10, Mayville there. May 20, Vassar here. May 24, Marlette here. May 30, Harbor Beach there.

Sweet Shop Will Have Place on North Seeger Street

H. E. Crowther of Saginaw has purchased the residence of the Andrew Seeger Estate on North Seeger street together with six acres of land. The barn at the rear of the residence lot will be used by Mr. Crowther as a shop and warehouse for his honey business.

Formerly in that industry in Ohio, he has found more clover and better soil here for crops needed for bee culture. Mr. Crowther has 400 to 500 swarms of bees located in Sanilac county, mostly in the territory around Shabbona, and he sells both comb and extracted honey at wholesale in all parts of the United States. Large shipments were made this winter to Florida to meet the demands of northern tourists.

"Forty pounds is the average production for each hive in the country over," says Mr. Crowther, "but if we don't beat that we think we're pretty low."

Last year was a poor honey year, but two years ago the production was unusually good. More extracted honey is sold than the comb variety and the extracted kind is more easily shipped.

Apiary Inspectors Are Appointed

In announcing the appointment of 21 apiary inspectors to start bee inspection in 20 Michigan counties, Commissioner John B. Strange pointed out that the exceptionally early spring, coupled with conditions that are threatening to destroy many Michigan colonies, made necessary immediate start of this branch of work by the department. The honey industry of the state represents an investment of over $21,000,000 and the department is desirous of taking every precaution to protect this industry, according to Commissioner Strange.

Inspectors assigned to Huron county are Eldon Field of Deford and Percy Nugent of Uby, and to Sanilac county is Kenneth Norton of Deckerville.

The Fourth Division of the M. E. Ladies' Aid will meet with Mrs. Audley Kinnaird on Monday night for a potluck supper. The Christian flag recently obtained by Division Four will be formally presented to the Methodist church next Sunday morning at 10:30. The minister will give a brief address on the meaning of the flag.

To the Voters of Tuscola County:

Four years ago I was a candidate for the office of Prosecuting Attorney on the Republican Ticket at the September Primary; though not elected, I appreciated the support you extended me at that time. I am a candidate for Prosecuting Attorney on the Republican Ticket at the Primary this Sept. 13th. I ask for my first opportunity to serve you, the people of this county.

Respectfully,
TIMOTHY C. QUINN.

Grade Operetta at School Tonight

The operetta, "Miss Muffett, Lost and Found," will be given at the high school auditorium on Friday, April 29, at eight o'clock.

Old Mother Goose and all her children; as well as The Old Woman in the Shoe, with her large family; Mother Hubbard; and all the Mother Goose characters will be happy to entertain the audience.

Two special features will be given—a tumbling act sponsored by Miss Flint and a tap-dance number by Kathryn Price, Jean Bigelow and Florence Jackson.

This operetta is to be given in place of the one which generally takes place each year on the school lawn.

Rotarians Hear Talk on Trips to South America

Prefacing a talk on two trips to South America by giving brief descriptions of visits to Rotary clubs in European countries, Roy Gifford, former Cass City boy and later a world traveler, held the members of Rotary here in rapt attention at their luncheon hour on Tuesday noon.

Mr. Gifford, now of Grosse Pointe, left the states on a trip through South America as a "business missionary" of the Oldsmobile company of Lansing in 1909. About a year ago, he made a second trip to Latin America, this time by airplane, when he traveled 18,000 miles in 28 days. Beautiful cities of this part of the southern hemisphere, the peoples of the several countries, their industries and the remarkable improvements made in that period were interesting comments made by Mr. Gifford. Most noticeable, he said, were the rapid strides made in conquering disease in Latin America.

The Cass City club stood third with 98.18% in the attendance record of the district for March.

A. A. Ricker served as song leader Tuesday.

Nern-Middleton Nuptials Saturday

From Port Huron Times-Herald.

White brocaded satin fashioned the classic wedding gown worn by Miss Frances Middleton when she was married to Frederick J. Nern at 12:30 p. m. Saturday in St. John's Evangelical church. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Basil Middleton, Lexington, and Mr. Nern is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Nern, Water street. Rev. E. J. Soell read the ceremony.

On the arm of her father, who gave her away, the bride advanced down the aisle to the altar which was beautifully decorated with a profusion of white lilies and snapdragons in tall standards and banked with palms and ferns. Attendants of the bride and groom were Miss Jacqueline Middleton, sister of the bride, and Dr. Donald Phillips.

The bride's gown had leg o' mutton sleeves ending in points below the wrist. A pear clip at the

STEAL SAFE WITH $1,700 FROM BROWN CITY HOME

While Mr. and Mrs. George McCrea left their home in Brown City Tuesday night to visit a grocery store and make purchases, thieves entered their dwelling and escaped with a safe containing $1,700 in cash, together with deeds, titles and other papers. The safe, said to weigh about 600 pounds, was taken from the house through a kitchen door.

I wish to announce to the voters of Tuscola county, that I will be a candidate for the office of Sheriff of Tuscola County on the Republican ticket at the primary election to be held September 13, 1938. Your support will be greatly appreciated.

Sincerely,
RALPH (MACK) MCKAY.

Church of Christ Will Dedicate Its Recently Completed Basement Tonight

As gastronomic fame of the diners served annually by the Ladies' Aid of the Church of Christ, south of Cass City, spread to almost boundless proportions, it was decided last fall by 61 members of the congregation that no longer would their former quarters be suitable. Each time announcement of a dinner was made their small church was filled, but only a few could be served at a time. Many were forced to wait and to those who had been looking forward to this dinner it was indeed a disappointment.

The congregation tackled something that "couldn't be done." That is, couldn't be done on blue prints. But to those sturdy men, many of whose fathers were pioneers, the task of excavating a basement beneath a standing church, "could be done."

Work was begun last fall. Bees worked long hours and sometimes into the night, but the ladies, with their moral support and lunches, were ever encouraging.

Mementoes of almost 40 years ago, when pioneers built the small, but grand edifice over a cornfield, were found. Vivid stories of those by-gone days were revived.

A story the church could tell of its construction, perhaps would not be different than the story being told of its new basement. A congregation of energetic pioneers working side by side to erect a place of worship. Today another congregation, in that same manner installing facilities to broaden the church spirit.

Money for supplies was obtained through church activities and on Friday, April 29, the new basement will be dedicated, and Elder Robert Warner wishes to express the congregation's thanks to Cass City for its cooperation. Over a hundred epicureans who attend their supper tonight will indulge in one of the best meals yet and can marvel at something which "couldn't be done."

We doff our hats to this small, energetic group, who have brilliantly defied recession and skepticism.

PROF. J. HENRY SMITH HONORED AT PARTY

A spring party was held on Wednesday evening, April 27, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. I. Wood honoring Prof. and Mrs. J. Henry Smith. Official members and their wives and members of the choir of the Methodist church here used this means to express their appreciation of Professor Smith's services as choir-master during the present conference year.

Places were laid for forty at small tables made gay with spring decorations. Willis Campbell led a period of group singing and entertained the company with a skit in which Daniel Kroll, Walter Schell, and others were involved. The evening's program was closed by a talk on "Norway Today" by Rev. Erlend Wang of Uby. Mr. Wang is a native of Norway and visited his homeland during the summer of 1937.

Science Beats the Sun

INDUSTRIAL engineers have now developed the device shown above, Consumers Information reports, to test color-fastness of fabrics, so that manufacturers can make sure in advance that their materials won't fade in the sun. Women never used to be sure that their dresses and draperies would retain their original brilliance until they had actually been exposed to sunlight. But through the use of this machine, developed by industrial research experts, it is now possible to tell whether dyed fabrics will hold their color. This is one more example of how industry helps the consumer.

Michigan Mirror

A Non-Partisan State News Letter
By GENE ALLEMAN
Michigan Press Association

Lansing—Governor Frank Murphy's political future continues to be closely allied with the White House.

It was President Roosevelt who selected Murphy, depression mayor of Detroit, to be federal administrator of the Philippines. It was Roosevelt who induced Murphy to leave a flattering salary to head the 1936 New Deal ticket in Michigan.

Two years later when the most precipitous industrial slump in American economic history was plaguing Michigan, throwing one-fourth of the population on public welfare, Murphy was confronted with the unhappy prospects of a $15,000,000 deficit in the state treasury. Taxpayers were becoming sensitive again, as demonstrated by the widespread interest aroused by Booth papers through publication of Michigan tax articles.

At that crucial moment, the White House decided to launch a gigantic priming program, pouring four billion dollars into cities and farmlands from coast to coast.

Millions for Michigan

What affect will the additional New Deal billions have on Murphy's prospects for re-election? Political wisecracks are seeking the answer.

Here are new factors:
1. Every town and city in Michigan is scrambling to get its share of federal money. Projects, already approved, call for $33,302,000—and that is only the beginning! PWA projects will put thousands of union laborers at work. That much money at the disposal of any group of public officials in any campaign year is something to be considered.

2. Farm loans to the farmers. The federal farm subsidy in 1938 will reach an all-time record of more than one billion dollars. The new ever-ready granary plan alone will put $4,000,000 more into the pocketbooks of Michigan grain growers.

3. Unlimited millions for direct relief and WPA have been extended to Michigan as result of Murphy's personal appeals at the White House. This outpouring of cash will spare Murphy from additional financial deficit.

Put these three together and they spell VOTES in any man's language.

No Special Session

Unless the unforeseen develops in the near future, the state legislature will not convene in special session.

When pressed by pressmen, Murphy declared a month ago that if a call was issued, it would be because of the need for more relief money. Today Washington is supplying the cash.

Several weeks ago the governor intimated that he might call a session to authorize another tax moratorium. Labor leaders were pressing him for such action. This idea did not meet with approval among members of the governor's cabinet. Auditor General George Gundry frowned on it, declaring that few homes were involved. Attorney General Raymond Starr, whose hard-headed rulings have earned for him a reputation for independent thinking, neatly squelched the plan by reminding the executive office that taxpayers would have more than a year's time in which to redeem property sold for non-payment of taxes.

The only possible justification for a special session in 1938 would be to amend the state housing act to permit cities under the population of Detroit to participate in the government "slum clearance" program. The new housing act, however, has eased the pressure for this revision. Prospects are bright for resumption of home building this year.

Labor Rocks the Boat

The "what next?" chapter in Michigan's turbulent labor history was supplied this month by Flint C. I. O. forces.

In utter violation of their contract with General Motors, Homer Martin's lieutenants at the Buick-Chevrolet city decided to employ force and violence for collection of delinquent dues.

Almost as disgraceful as the recent C. I. O. seizure of utility plants of the Consumers' Power Company were the tactics employed at Flint in refusing to permit workers to enter automobile plants unless their dues were paid. The C. I. O.-G. M. agreement does not authorize a closed shop. Yet a closed shop was established, unofficially at least, for several days.

It has served to foment further the labor unrest that now seethes in Flint.

Newspapers in Chicago and New York carried news stories of the Michigan labor trouble. Several years ago General Motors embarked on a definite program of decentralizing industrial operations. It is generally conceded that this movement will be accelerated—opening plants in other states—unless there is a definite turn in Michigan affairs. Youngstown tire workers have seen their jobs dwindle by the thousands under similar circumstances. The writing on the wall is clear. But will Michigan heed it?

Schools Seek Relief

A total of 7,134 teachers in 402 Michigan school districts receive salaries ranging from $500 to $1,200, according to Dr. A. J. Phillips, executive secretary, Michigan Education Association. Furthermore, many local school districts are in serious financial trouble. Taxes are already high; taxpayers are rebellious; yet a $500 to $1,200 salary for a professionally trained person does not fit in well with American standards.

The answer will eventually come from the local taxpayer. State funds are local funds in reality. You pay the bill, and no one else.

Farm Teams Run Away—

Harry Hool had the misfortune of having his team of horses run away twice in one day, first on the drill and shortly after on the wagon. The drill was badly damaged but Mr. Hool escaped without injuries. John Andrajka also had a runaway during the past week.

Two automobiles ran in the ditch at the Herbert LaFave corner Sunday afternoon. The first car was ditched at noon and within an hour another had landed in the same spot. Nobody was injured.

Gus and Orville Grappan of Crump, Michigan, were Monday callers at the Joseph Grappan home. Pete Wood has built a new milk house and is also shingling his home. Tom Freeman has improved his place by building a new chicken coop.

Herbert LaFave purchased a four year old horse last week.

Battled Crows With Noise

Farmers of early Ohio kept noise-makers handy to scare away the clouds of blackbirds that came to feast on the corn. The birds would appear suddenly, usually when the corn was almost ready to be harvested, and then men, women and children in a family would come out beating pans, ringing bells, shouting and doing everything to make noise and scare the birds away.

FARM TOPICS

KEEPING RECORDS GUIDE TO FARMER

Best Way to Find "Leaks" and Check Them.

By R. E. L. Greene, Assistant Agricultural Economist, North Carolina Agricultural Station.—WNU Service.

Many a farmer who has been losing money for years without knowing it has found that by keeping records he can find the "leaks" in his business, plug them, and make his farm show a profit.

In farming it's easy to lose money without knowing it.

A farm may supply a family with food to eat and clothes to wear, but at the same time bad cropping practices may be wearing out the soil so that at the end of the year the farm may be worth considerably less than it was at the first of the year.

By keeping records, a farmer can tell which crops are most profitable, whether the farming program is balanced or not, and whether the general cultural practices are satisfactory.

Records kept in one year also aid in planning the farming program for the next year. They also provide a helpful means for determining whether the program is working out as planned, or whether changes should be made to bring the program back into line.

A glance at the records can also show whether certain farm enterprises are costing more than they are worth.

Records are a source of information in making credit statements that are valuable in the event it is necessary to secure a loan, or in taking out insurance policies.

Feeding Will Improve Hatchability of Eggs

While the present emphasis is on getting a good egg lay, the poultryman should give a thought to whether his flock will be in condition for laying hatchable eggs—eggs from strong, healthy chicks can be hatched later in the season.

Rigorous winter always makes this a complex problem, asserts Cora Cooke, poultry extension specialist, University farm, St. Paul. But however difficult it may be to provide sunshine and green feed or substitutes for them during cold months, doing so is the first recommendation for the improvement of hatchability. The flock, of course, must be protected from chill and extreme cold. And although continuous housing reduces the hatchability of eggs, poultrymen can take measures to overcome this handicap. It is estimated that, from all causes, poultrymen and hatcherymen take an annual loss of more than 14 million dollars from eggs that fail to hatch.

In experiments at the National Agricultural Research center, Beltsville, Md., where the breeding flock was allowed outdoors in the winter sunshine, the hatchability of their fertile eggs increased 14 per cent. This increase was shown despite the fact that the hens had previously received a diet containing 2 per cent cod liver oil.

In some sections, however, it is necessary to confine the flock in cold months, and "canned sunshine" can be provided for the layers by feeding cod liver oil to the extent of one quart in each 100 pounds of mash.

The Friendly Grape Vine

Nothing will live so long nor give so good an account of itself as a grape vine. Fifty years is not old for a grape vine, and, given an environment not too unfavorable, a crop of grapes each year is almost certain. What other fruit will live so long and yield so abundantly with so little care? When thought of in terms of healthful fruit for the farm family, rather than in terms of profit, the grape is truly a wonderful plant and should have a place on every farm.

Mash for Turkey Breeders

Although there are others, the following proves to be a good mash for the turkey breeding flock, says Dr. W. A. Billings, veterinarian, University farm, St. Paul: This will mix 1,000 pounds: corn, 225 pounds; oats, 100 pounds; bran, 150 pounds; middlings, 200 pounds; alfalfa leaf meal, 100 pounds; meat scraps, 125 pounds; dried milk, 75 pounds; salt, 5 pounds; cod liver oil, 20 pounds. If possible, buy "fortified" cod liver oil; less will be required.

Electric Chair for Poultry

An "electric chair" for chickens that would outmode the old method of killing poultry by decapitation, is the invention for which a patent was recently granted to a North Acton (Mass.) poultry man. In this "chair" the chicken is hung head down by one wire attached to its legs. The other wire clamps on its head which fits in a support. A switch swiftly sends an electrocuting charge through the chicken's body.

GAGETOWN

Memorial Services—

Impressive memorial services were held Sunday afternoon at the Gagetown Church of the Nazarene for the late William McKenzie, who passed away last December in the West where he and Mrs. McKenzie had gone to spend the winter with the latter's relatives.

The services were opened by the local pastor, Miss Lila Fish, who said in part, "We have assembled at this time, in memorial, in honor of a beloved member of this church, the late Brother McKenzie."

A duet by Rev. and Mrs. Ford, "How Beautiful Heaven Must Be," was followed by the reading of the 91st Psalm and prayer.

The sermon was given by the Rev. Mr. Halliday, who in 1915 built, organized and was the first pastor of the Church of the Nazarene at this place. He traced his associations with the deceased through the many years, gave a pleasing eulogy of Mr. McKenzie as a chartered member and faithful follower of the church, and an honored citizen of Gagetown.

Rev. Lila Fish presented a beautiful framed memorial in honor of the deceased to be kept in the church.

Rev. and Mrs. Ford gave a duet, "No Goodbys in Heaven" and Mr. Ford made a few remarks. Closing hymn by the congregation "The East Gate," was followed by the benediction of Rev. Mr. Halliday.

Memorial flowers were on the altar.

Lumber Yard Sold—

The Gagetown Lumber Yard has been sold to the Unionville Lumber Company. After a few alterations, the yard will be opened with a full line of building materials. The yard has been owned by J. L. Purdy for over 40 years. Since the death of the late John Lenzner, who was salesman for so many years, the stock has diminished. Gagetown citizens are very happy to welcome the new comers and have once more a lumber yard in our village.

RESCUE.

William Ashmore, Sr., is putting a new roof on his house.

Some of the farmers around here sowed their oats last week.

Perry Mellendorf was confined to his bed last week with a severe attack of measles.

The missionary meeting will be held on Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Frank Reader.

Miss Lula Ashmore is working for her aunt, Mrs. Gordon Roe, in Owendale.

Lloyd and Carol Teller and Milton Mellendorf were in Elkton on Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Arthur Taylor and Miss Ellen Shepard were callers Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. DeEtte J. Mellendorf.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond LaVigne and children of Detroit visited over the week-end at the Richard Cliff and Jacob Helwig homes in Grant. They also called on other relatives.

Mrs. Myrtle Mellendorf and son, Barton, of South Oliver called to see Perry Mellendorf Sunday afternoon.

As John MacCallum's birthday was Monday, April 25, a number of relatives helped him celebrate it on Sunday, April 24.

Miss Erma Cliff, 16 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Cliff, has a Sunday School attendance record of which she may be proud. In over nine years, she has only missed three Sundays in attending Sunday School at the Grant M. E. church. Two Sundays she missed by illness and one Sunday she didn't have any way to go as her parents were in Detroit on account of the illness and death of her grandmother.

The British Parliament

Like the congress of the United States, the British parliament legislates for the whole British nation. But in addition to this, it takes the place of the separate legislative bodies that used to exist in Scotland and Ireland, Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland, such as in this country can only be made by state legislatures. With regard to the Dominion of Canada, the Australian provinces, and other colonial possessions with legislatures of their own, the powers of parliament are somewhat analogous to those of congress over the states.

First Baseball Rules

Baseball is said to have become an official game when the Knickerbocker club of New York was founded in 1845 and drew up a code of rules.

Early Prize Fighting Rules

Under the London ring rules a round in prize fighting ended when a man was knocked, fell or was thrown to the ground. Some rounds lasted many minutes, others only a second or two.

Find Ancient Tooth.

A perfectly preserved mastodon's tooth, measuring 4 1/2 by 2 3/4 inches has been found in a marl pit on the farm of Seymour Rose in Hamilton township, Van Buren county. It is thought to be from 50,000 to 100,000 years old.

Thought Boat an Evil Spirit

When the Ohio Indians saw LaSalle's boat on Lake Erie in 1679, they thought it was some evil spirit on its way to destroy them. It was the first big boat they had ever seen, and they scampered into the wilderness in fright.

Predicted Profit From Tobacco

In 1618 Robert Harcourt, an Englishman, wrote: "This commodity (tobacco) will bring as great benefit and profit as ever the Spaniards gained by the best and richest silver mine in all their Indies."

"Licking Cub Into Shape"

The phrase "licking a young cub into shape," may appear modern, yet a Twelfth century bestiary gives a vivid illustration of the process, for the bears' offspring are said to be born shapeless lumps, and then molded into form by their mother's tongue.

A Barmecide Feast

The expression Barmecide feast means a feast with nothing to eat. One of the Barmecide family invited a poor man to dine, but while the host called for the most delicious dishes and urged his guest to eat, there was no food. The poor man played the game, which so pleased the Barmecide that he provided a real banquet.

The Electric Motor

Meet your best farm hand . . .

YOUR BEST FRIEND and most faithful servant on the farm is the electric motor. One small motor can do a surprising amount of work—jobs that formerly were performed by hand, by animals, or by some other type of power. A one-horsepower motor will work all day at a cost far less than that of the food one man eats at a single meal.

CONSIDER THE LONG LIST of jobs on your farm for which an electric motor is a necessity. It is the heart of your running water system. It grinds your feed, hoists your hay, fills your silo, threshes your grain, keeps your workshop machinery humming, and does innumerable other useful jobs, large and small. For dozens of intermittent, seasonal jobs, a portable motor—small enough to be wheeled about—is a handy thing to have. It can be used anywhere on the farm within reach of an electric power outlet.

THE INITIAL COST of a good electric motor is small, and there is practically no limit to its life, if it is given reasonably good care. Ask your electrical equipment dealer to show you the proper size and type of motor for the jobs on your farm—and let him tell you how hard it works for wages measured in pennies per day.

OR FOR MORE extensive information on the many uses of electric motors on the farm, get in touch with the Farm Service Division of The Detroit Edison Company. A call or visit to the nearest Detroit Edison office will bring a Farm Representative immediately.

STRAIT GATE

CHAPTER IX

The Gate was richly golden, bathed and burnished in a strong metallic radiance, and the sun was sinking into the western sea in a molten blaze of unbelievable glory.

Pop perched on the edge of his seat, looking off, looking down. His unpleasant pallor was enhanced and there was a pinched look about his nose and mouth. He was breathing badly, but his eyes were enraptured. He caught her scrutiny upon him and smiled at her, drawing a long, quivering breath, tipping his head back, relaxing like a swimmer about to float on a gentle sea.

The Hermod swooped and swirled like a gull, dipped and rose again. Sarah Lynn pulled herself to attention. This proud dominion over the fowl of the air and the fish of the sea was not a bird-like inconsequence but a business of infinite importance, detail, of levers and gears and hair-trigger precision. The sea-gulls, white dots against green-blue, far below them now, flew because they couldn't help it, but men flew because they had conquered.

The taxi-driver was waiting for them. "Hi, Pop," he said, "you better beat it! Lena, she's fit to be tied!"

The little man tried to thank Gunnar but he made only a series of embarrassed gurgles.

The flier gave him a comradely clap on the shoulder. "It is good! Now you remember always?"

Sarah Lynn escorted him back to the restaurant.

Driving back to Danavale she said again, "I want to come down in a parachute, Gunnar."

"Yes. After you have solved for a month. Then I will take you."

"Take me?"

"You shall do it from the Hermod. I will remove the door, for your Department of Commerce, Conrad Jordan has told me, makes you wear two chutes when it is the jump of intention."

"Oh? In case one doesn't work? And it would be too bulky to get out through the door? But after I'm once out, it's perfectly simple, isn't it, Gunnar? Just to wait long enough to be clear of the ship before I pull the string?"

"That is all," he agreed. His mouth looked rather grim.

"Gunnar, did you mind when you did it?"

"On the ground, before, I had fear like a great sickness. In the air it left me."

Le Roy suggested her first flight alone in secret but she decided against it. It was due Great-granny and Uncle Lynn and old Penny if they wanted to come, and at the last instant she whispered to her young brother Bill. Bill's freckles, standing out like brown polka-dots on his pale face were the last things she thought about as she walked over to the plane.

She slipped round to the further side, unobserved, and laid her face against the Chinese lacquer red. "Don't be jittery, darling!" she whispered. "I won't even nick your nail-polish. I promise! I'll take you up like a swallow and bring you down like a leaf."

She got into the cockpit and went through the routine she had rehearsed again and again. It had become an integral part of her mental process.

The assistant sprang aside from the propeller.

"Clear!"

Clear, oh, clear! Forever and forever, life for the queer dark Dana Lynn, smiling and shouting.

Sarah Lynn pushed her throttle to the stop and Ladybug went forward with a roar, left the ground and began to climb into the wind.

Sarah Lynn reached the altitude she wanted, readjusted her stabilizer to take the load off the joy stick, leveled off, banked to the left, building her own road as she flew. She exulted. "No matter what comes to me, if I live to be a hundred, I can never be as happy as this instant!"

The little ship quivered under her hands, sprang forward at her touch, dipped, soared. It was a living thing, vibrant, sensitive; delicate and dear; helpless in her care, depending upon her courage and skill.

"I'll take care of you!" Sarah Lynn pledged her plane.

Ladybug, Ladybug, fly away home!

Mary Dana Webster went to drink tea with Lynn Dana, an anxious pucker between her eyes.

"Ardine is perfectly poisonous about Sarah Lynn."

He shrugged. "Is it important?"

"Probably not, but it disturbs me. She's such an exceptionally good hater."

"Doubtless. What's the basis of it?"

"Partly disgust at having the ugly duckling turn into a skylark, and at yielding first place as Danavale's center of shocked interest, but chiefly on account of Jim Allison. She has worked it out in her nasty little mind that Sarah Lynn, by being the victim of her joke on Gunnar Thorwald, is responsible for his complete and final defection."

"And that goes deep?"

"Apparently. In her predatory fashion," his young kinswoman said, "she cares enormously. Did you know he'd been grounded? Yes. Drinking. Nice lad, to begin with, and what a mess she's made of his life!"

Lynn Dana nodded. "Of every life she really touches. Poor old Keaton!"

"I don't think he's ever come fully out from the ether," his cousin scorned him.

"But as to Sarah Lynn, I don't see, Mary—After all, the only two things in the world which matter to her are flying and Gunnar Thorwald. Ardine could no more ensnare him than she could take an ax to the plane, much as she would enjoy both activities. I really don't see what she can do."

"Well, I don't either, Uncle Lynn. Her plain and pleasant face lifted a little. "But just the same, she sort of worries me."

The parachute jump now held the limelight in Sarah Lynn's thoughts. She read and studied and asked questions and listened eagerly to Conrad Jordan and the ace, and Lynn Dana sat in his wheeled-chair and approved.

"Won't it be pretty bulky with two chutes, one in front and one behind?" she wanted to know.

"I have said I will remove the door," Gunnar reminded her.

"Then you can dive out, forward, and that's much handier than backing out," Conrad Jordan said, lighting a cigarette. "Then you'd have to push your way, with your back against the door, against the air-pressure."

Lynn Dana's amused gaze, slightly grim, went from one calm speaker to the other. "If you don't mind, Sarah Lynn, I'd rather like you to take whatever precautions suggest themselves."

"Of course, Uncle Lynn! I want to be sensible."

Sensible, the small, slight thing with her clear olive-and-ivory face and its crowding eyes, her fine, thin hands relaxed in her lap, planning this dazzling danger as casually as her cousins made dates to go dancing.

"The mental reactions are very different," her uncle's flying friend said, "in a premeditated jump and bailing out in an emergency, to save your life. All the breaks are with you now. You're going at the thing scientifically, you have no fear and no nerves, and I prophesy it's going to be a tremendous satisfaction to you, at the moment and in your memories. But I want to tell you frankly that you'll have some bad minutes before you go up."

He leaned forward to knock off an ash. "Never knew it to fail. The most hardened jumpers experience it, though I dare say in most cases it's purely physical and subconscious. I know a young chap at an airport who does exhibition jumps, but always before he goes up he turns deathly pale and his face and hands twitch. And the minute he climbs into the ship he's fine."

"Like a soldier in the trenches waiting the command to go over the top," Lynn Dana contributed.

"Or, I remember before a big game, the agony of waiting, of wishing you had elected to play tiddley-winks instead of football, and the departure of all dolldrums when the whistle blew."

"Exactly. Tremendous relief in definite action: setting the body into directional motion toward a determined objective. Physical action replaces mental; fear evaporates. My conviction is that with a normal mind danger brings a calm and alertness and a cleverness far beyond ordinary experience."

"That I also believe," the Norwegian ace said.

Jordan went on. "There's the case of an English army officer, years ago. His chute caught in the ship and tore, leaving only the harness on him. He didn't know it, and the motion-pictures showed him calmly feeling round the harness and the umbrella didn't open, almost the whole way to the earth."

"Cheery anecdote," Lynn Dana said a trifle tartly.

"That was an old-fashioned affair, Lynn. Sarah Lynn'll have two modern, absolutely reliable chutes."

"Pool-proof," she grinned at him.

"Pool-proof, which is superfluous in your case," he grinned back, approving her warmly. Lynn Dana's study pulsed with approval, with affection for her. Her uncle's lifelong devotion, the cordial friendship of his friend, the cool comradeship of the flying boy from Norway. What more, besides a Gipsy Moth, did a girl need for happiness?

Fliers did not marry.

"I have wondered if I'd really remember to pull the string," she said, "but I was reading Lieutenant Cramer's account of his first experience. An old-timer told him he couldn't keep his finger away from that ring if he tried!"

Jordan nodded. "Your only difficulty will be to wait until you are entirely clear of the ship." He faced Lynn Dana. "She'll have two chutes fastened to the webbed harness about her body. The main one has a 20-foot spread and the second a 24. That's on her chest."

"Made of silk?"

"Light, but entirely substantial. Both have pull-rings and rip-cords to unlatch and throw up the parachutes, and the rings are handily placed. You'll have everything clear in your mind a hundred times over, Sarah Lynn. The thing you must be prepared for is the scream and the flapping of the silk and the report, like a gun, and the violent jerk when your parasol opens. After that"—he ground out his cigarette—"it's really delightful."

enough, I should say," he told her cheerfully. Then he looked at Gunnar and away again, grinning, without comment. It was the hardy Norseman who was showing the regulation jumper's symptoms.

His ice-blue eyes blazed in a face of sudden snow; his young mouth was set in a taut line. "Come!" he called harshly.

All Sarah Lynn's slowness was overlaid with her equipment. "I feel like Theodora and Theodora, dee both!" she laughed. She was comfortably casual in her brief good-bys, making no ceremony of farewell.

The Hermod, looking oddly crippled with its missing door, took off into a brisk wind. The flier did not look at his passenger nor speak.

"I wonder what makes him so deathly white?" she asked herself. "Just a detached interest in all branches of aerial conquest?" She felt suddenly gay. All her instructions were etched on her memory; she was past the traditionally bad moment of leaving the ground; she knew exactly what to do to get clear of the ship, and after that, she had been assured, the adventure would take on elements of distinct pleasure.

They climbed to a thousand feet, two thousand. The meadow fell away beneath them; human beings took on the value of playthings—puppet people with toy automobiles. There was likewise a toy ambulance.

At three thousand feet Gunnar nodded. "Ready? Now you go!" he shouted hoarsely.

Sarah Lynn stood up and made her bulky way toward the opening. She thought he was the palest living person she had ever seen.

"Fling yourself far from the ship. Make sure you are clear. Count a slow ten before you pull the cord!" His words came jerkily. "Wait! You are sure? You wish to go? There is no need, if you—"

Suddenly Sarah Lynn laughed aloud, filled with a wild mirth which was heady and sweet. "Still the fear of death?" she mocked him. "Life is one adventure; death is another!" She was confident, shining-eyed, radiant, but as she made a forward movement his arm shot out and caught her, pulling her against him.

"Sarah Lynn—" he said her name queerly in a choked voice, and kissed her, a fierce kiss, deep and desperate.

Then she was leaping out into swift and stinging air and was amazed to find that she did not immediately fall. The speed of the Hermod was carrying her along beneath it, face downward, with her arms and legs spread out like a starfish. There was the strange sensation of traveling across the air rather than through it.

"He kissed me!" she exulted. "Gunnar kissed me!"

She began to fall, her body twisting and turning. Now she was looking up at the plane, now down at the earth which was coming swiftly, perilously closer.

"There's something I must do, now!" she thought anxiously. "Oh, yes!—The cord! But where is that ring?"

Her fingers fumbled for it. It seemed to be lost in the webbing. Why hadn't she kept her hand on it all the time? She turned over again and saw the Hermod still above her but further away, somersaulted and saw the earth rushing up to meet her. Why hadn't Gunnar taken her higher than three thousand feet?

Sarah Lynn thought suddenly of her mother. She had a poignant picture of Adelaide Dana's upstairs sitting-room, pretty and peaceful.

with potted plants whose every leaf glistened, and a canary warbling tenderly in an expensive cage, and quantities of framed photographs of her big brothers and herself and young Bill in all stages of infancy and childhood.

She found the ring and gave a desperate jerk.

Now! She knew exactly what would happen. The rip-cord would release the pack and the spring rips of the little pilot chute would open instantly, catching the air and dragging the main chute out into a long line and the wind would rush in at the bottom and expand it. It simply couldn't fail; Gunnar and Conrad and Vance Le Roy had checked it thoroughly. "And even if it doesn't work," she told herself sensibly, "there is the emergency chute! I'm not rattled," she rejoiced. "My mind is running like a clock. And Gunnar kissed me! He was white as a sheet and scared to death about me, and he kissed me! And it was the kind of kiss— There was a weird noise which was something between a whistle and a shriek: something was fluttering overhead, and then snapping, loudly, urgently.

"It's opening!"

Then a gun went off somewhere, a shocking, thunderous boom, and her downward progress was halted so abruptly that she thought her arms and shoulders were being torn loose from her body. There were uncounted instants of confusion and terror, and then peace enveloped her.

Her chute opened and was functioning perfectly. She was floating gently, and everything was quiet about her, a sweet, celestial quietness which was soothing and comforting.

She could see the ambulance moving slowly to keep in line with her. She had lost the Hermod for the moment, but surely Gunnar would land as quickly as possible and come to her. That kiss, she felt, was not final: it must be a prelude. Even if it had been given in high excitement, it stood for an emotion which wasn't to be disposed of with this adventure. Fliers did not marry. Oh, didn't they? Then what?

There was a confused clamor of voices, cheerful, exultant.

"Good girl!" Conrad Jordan said, lifting her to her feet. "Perfect performance!"

"Atta girl!" Vance Le Roy was unfastening her harness, warmed for once into enthusiasm.

"Where is Gunnar?" Sarah Lynn demanded.

Old Pete from the airport was swearing softly and happily, paying her high praise with picturesque embellishments.

"Hold still!" Conrad Jordan had taken out his handkerchief and was wiping her face, and there was bright blood on the white linen.

"What's that from?" she asked impatiently. "I'm not hurt."

"Of course you're not, just a scratch or two when you were dragged."

"Where's Gunnar?"

"He'll be here just as quick as he can set the ship down," her uncle's friend said. "Now we'll just get aboard and let them run us back to Lynn and the old lady—"

He was steering her toward the ambulance.

"I'm not hurt. I'm not going to ride in that thing!" she told him spiritedly. "Where will he come down?"

"Quickest way to get there," he said, taking her arm in a firm grip. "We'll all pile in. Half a mile away!" He lifted her and set her inside and a white-suited orderly grinned and congratulated her.

"I want Gunnar," Sarah Lynn said.

"He'll be here in a jiffy. Lynn and your Granny need to see you before they're convinced you're safe, though we signaled them. Well, did it all come off according to schedule? Did it follow the pattern?"

"Oh, perfectly! It was heavenly after the chute opened," she answered, stooping to look out of the ambulance window. "I don't see the Hermod."

"But you can hear him? Right over us," Vance Le Roy said.

The matriarch and the cripple and the old governess greeted her in character. The ancient woman sat in her the reincarnation of her own dim, daring youth, choosing, as she had done, the brightest adventure of her period, and the paralytic sublimated his own helplessness in her courage and skill.

"I told 'em it was all plumb foolishness, tagging you round with that hospital wagon, Sairy Lynn," her great-grandmother said. "I said you'd come down like a leaf off a tree. Us Danas we most generally do what we set our minds to! Leastways, we do our own."

Lynn Dana smiled into her eyes. "I'm glad for you," he told her, "glad and proud. You've given me my best moment, Sarah Lynn."

Miss Pennington's high color was faded but her diction was as crisp as always. "Let me tidy your hair a bit, she bustled up to her. "I should have thought to have you wear a close net."

The girl slipped out from under her hands. The Hermod was down and Gunnar Thorwald was out and running toward her. She went to meet him.

"I'll know as soon as I see his face," she told herself. "I'll know the first second—"

Gunnar was still white, but she saw at first glance that he was angry, and her heart turned over in terror. There was in his pale face a look of fright and of fury. She did not know what it meant.

Then he reached her, and she knew immediately and entirely what it meant, for he caught her into an embrace of urgency and iron and bent his bare yellow head and kissed her again, and the kiss on the earth differed only from the one at an altitude of three thousand feet in facility and duration.

Sarah Lynn was held in a vise; she could not move her body or her lips, but her mind ran and leapt and soared.

"He does care! He cares—and he's furious—but he can't help it!" Suddenly his arms loosened about her and he held her off, putting her thoughts into words.

"I have not wanted this," he frowned in grave anger. "It is not my wish, my plan. Freedom I like. But—" he looked young, bewildered, aghast, and on his pale face were scarlet flecks from the still bleeding scratches on her own.

Simple Goiter Quite Prevalent Among Grade Children

The Sanilac County Health Department announces the completion of its program for the examination of grade school children during the current school year.

The interest and cooperation of the parents in the school examination is evidenced by the fact that 1,175 or 47.5% of the children had one or both parents present at the time of the examination.

Approximately one-half of the grade school children have now been examined and it is planned that the other half be examined during the next school year.

Twenty-four hundred and seventy children were examined and of this number, 1,522 or 61.6% were found to have defects other than dental. In every instance, the results of the examination were made known to the parents and the responsibility for the correction of the defects found were placed in their hands with the recommendation that those needing medical attention be referred to their family physician or dentist.

About the same number and type of defects were found in the children of Sanilac county as are found elsewhere, although there is some evidence that the percentage of some of the common defects is smaller than in the average rural community. However, there was found to be one notable exception to the foregoing statement.

Simple goiter, or a moderate enlargement of the thyroid gland, was found to be present in 627 or 25.4% of the children examined. This condition is due to the fact that the individual has not been getting enough iodine to supply the body's requirements. The feeding of very small amounts of iodine (such as are found in iodized salt) will usually check the growth of the gland, although it is much better to prevent its enlargement by the routine use of the iodized salt as a prophylactic measure. It is interesting to note that 30% of the rural children showed this enlargement while only 12% of the children living in the towns had goiter.

Large Audience Heard Alma Choir

The Alma College Chapel Choir, composed of twenty young singers selected from the A Capella Choir of Alma College, appeared in concert here Sunday evening at the Presbyterian church, presenting in addition to its regular program, two brilliant soloists, Stuart Wurnaar, baritone, and William Presser, violinist. The group is on concert tour throughout the state and has been received with enthusiasm wherever it has appeared.

Singing entirely unaccompanied, the choir presented a full evening's entertainment of the finest sacred and secular music with perfect intonation and flawless technique. The choir uses a limited repertoire consisting only of music of great inspiration, which the members learn well in order to interpret correctly. Thus they grow into the mood and emotion of the composer as he conceived the piece.

The group appeared in a concert before high school students in the auditorium Monday morning.

Age of Fables

That first century after the discovery of the New World by Columbus was the age of fables, when the Spanish conquistadores were obsessed with legends such as those of the "Island of Women" somewhere in the West, the great "Seven Cities" abounding in treasures and putting such a childlike faith in the most preposterous stories of fabulous treasures that no sooner did an Indian tell about coasts where pearls abounded or cities where gold and silver were used for the commonest purpose, than they fitted out an expedition to seek those treasures on the spot.

Ape Executed as a Spy

One day during the general European war of 1701-1714, a ship was wrecked off the fishing village of West Hartlepool, England, and the sole survivor, an ape, was washed ashore. None of the villagers had ever before seen such a creature, says Collier's Weekly, so the monkey was tried by court-martial, found guilty and hanged—as a French spy.

Household Hints

FUNCTIONAL needlework, we call it, in our best modern mood. It has little to do with pretty guest towels and do-runnies that a lady in the past whipped up in her idle moments. These days we are having great fun and a sense of real achievement in creating down-to-earth basic necessities for our homes—the while fulfilling our desire to knit, crochet and sew a fine seam.

Lucy N. has made all the upholstery coverings for her dining room chairs. Her furniture was "picked up"—a round pedestal table and six so-so chairs with upholstered seats and backs. Using unbleached muslin, she first made patterns of the pieces she needed to upholster the seats and backs. Then she used hooked rug technique to achieve a beautiful fabric to cover the chairs. This material, cut exactly to the muslin patterns, was created in solid off-white tufts of wool clipped for a deep, luxurious effect. When each piece was finished, the muslin pattern was tacked on the chair and reinforced at the edges with strong tape on which were sewn those heavy snaps used by professional upholsterers. Then the white tufted coverings for each chair were snapped into place on the muslin, allowing them to be taken off for cleaning when necessary. The room itself is lovely, with pale blue walls, off-white shantung draperies at the windows and a deep blue rug on the floor. The off-white upholstery on the chairs adds a modern touch that is smart and different.

And Ellen R. is very proud of a beautiful afghan she has completed—mulberry background, with each strip embroidered in gay wools in a floral pattern. Instead of throwing this lovely piece willy-nilly on a bed or sofa, this smart lady has stretched it over the back of a sofa to form a definite part of the upholstery, the remainder of the couch being covered in a mulberry fabric to match the afghan. The effect is stunning in her colonial living room.

The Tuscola County Band Festival at Vassar last Thursday evening was well attended and an enjoyable program was given with high school bands from Cass City, Millington, Vassar, Mayville and Caro participating.

The program closed with two selections given by a clinic band in which the five high schools were represented. Mr. Norton served as conductor.

Seven Millions Each Week Spent by the Masons for Charity

"Every week seven millions of dollars are spent on Masonic charity in the United States and Canada," said Dewey Hesse of Saginaw, senior grand warden of the Grand Lodge of Michigan Friday evening.

Mr. Hesse was the speaker at a gathering of Masons and friends in the Masonic lodge hall here. In reviewing the activities of Masonic groups in the state, he said that the major project of Michigan Masons was the Masonic home at Alma. Other outstanding projects are the orphan home at Mason, Mich., conducted by Eastern Star lodges, the DeMolay fraternity for boys sponsored by Royal Arch Masons, the educational fund established for young people by Knight Templars, a similar fund sponsored by the Consistory, and the crippled children's fund of the Shriners which maintains 14 hospitals and provides treatment for impaired children without regard to race or religion.

Mr. Hesse was introduced by M. B. Auten, toastmaster. The address followed an excellent fish supper enjoyed by 200.

Olin Thompson, a member of Acme Lodge of Gagetown, expressed the gratitude of his group to Tyler Lodge of Cass City for the use of lodge rooms here while their Masonic Temple was in the process of construction.

Royce Hyatt, 12, a pupil of the sixth grade, entertained during the dinner hour with songs which he accompanied by his guitar.

She wore in her hair a tiara of the same material with long matching streamers falling from the back. Her flowers were yellow jonquils tied with long yellow chiffon streamers.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Middleton chose a street length gown of navy blue cable net over taffeta with a short boxy jacket of cable net. Her accessories were navy and her flowers gardenias. Mrs. Nern's dress was of navy blue lace accented by a coral clip at the throat and at the waist. With it she wore a navy sailor hat tied with a veil. BEAUTY AND FERTILITY

Concluded from first page. 40 acres across the road from his father's land. Two children were born, one dying in infancy, and the present Mrs. E. R. Wilson, wife of Rev. Mr. Wilson of the Sunshine church.

Mr. and Mrs. Burse built a home on this land but lost it by fire in 1928. Another house was built and today it is modern in every respect, with running water and electricity, an undreamed of convenience 60 years ago.

"Times have changed," remarked Mr. Burse, "better roads, electricity and other conveniences make things easier, but we were happy in those days too."

Despite Mr. Burse's 72 years he is in perfect health, and does his own farm work. One cannot deny that it was the spirit and stamina of such pioneers that has made Michigan.

Marriage Solemnized—

The Deford church was the scene of a very impressive and beautiful wedding ceremony on Saturday, April 23, at two o'clock, when Miss Julia Nemeth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Nemeth, became the bride of Julius Chick of Detroit.

To the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march, played by Mrs. Howard Malcolm, the Rev. George B. Marsh entered the church auditorium from the annex wing, followed by the groom's attendants at properly spaced intervals of distance, and followed by the groom, who took their places before the altar chancel.

Miss Esther Kosa, Miss Mary Haas and Miss Irene Smith were the bride's attendants and Clarence Haas, Andrew Chick and William Putman were the groomsmen.

The altar was made beautiful with palms, potted flowers, lilies and ferns. The groom's party there awaited the bride's party who came up the church aisle singly. Bridesmaid and maids of honor attired in blue silk and carrying bouquets of roses and snapdragons were followed by the bride dressed in a beautiful gown of white silk and a long bridal veil. She carried a large bouquet of red roses. The bride came on the arm of a gentleman from Detroit who gave the bride away. There the bridal couple paused while Mrs. John Zinnecker sang "O Promise Me!"

Mrs. Howard Malcolm was the accompanist. The double ring ceremony was used.

The bridal couple left the church together followed by the bridal party who left singly as they had entered, the minister being the last of the procession. The affair was witnessed by a large number of spectators who stood while the bride's party made their ingress and egress. At the home of the bride's parents, a dinner was served to a large number of guests, and the evening was made merry with dancing. The home of the newlyweds will be in Detroit.

Miss Helen Amberboy was a guest for the past week of her sister at Flint.

Mrs. Frank Hegler was a guest on Sunday of her sister, Mrs. Hamberg, at Detroit.

The men and boys choose sides nearly every evening for a game of soft ball at the school grounds. Mr. and Mrs. Slingside have changed their farm near Evert for the Polworth residence in Wilmot.

A group of boys from the Hillside school near Colwood played a ball game at the Deford school on Tuesday. Score, 9 to 19 in favor of the Hillside school.

Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton McPhail entertained at Sunday dinner the following guests: Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Fox, daughter, Lillian, and son, Bobby, of Detroit and Mr. and Mrs. Warner Kelley.

MISS URBAN AND
MR. FRANK SPEAK VOWS

Concluded from first page. as bridesmaid, wore light blue frocks of floor length and carried carnations, snapdragons and rosebuds.

Mr. Frank was attended by Peter Pastor of Owendale and Charles Urban, brother of the bride, of Colwood.

Mary Ann Vargo of Colwood, niece of Miss Urban, was very dainty in white taffeta as flower girl.

Immediately following the wedding, a breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents.

On Saturday evening, a reception for Mr. and Mrs. Frank was held at the home of the groom's parents, north of Cass City, when 150 friends and relatives were present and enjoyed dancing and a delicious supper.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank received many lovely gifts. They will make their home with the groom's parents.

TEST, TEST AND TEST

AMERICAN industry, according to Consumers Information, surpasses that of any other country in its exact methods of testing products and so assuring maximum performance before passing them on to the user. One company reports, for instance, that 25% of its labor and cost of production goes into testing. Above are shown tests of two of the 600 different operations which go into the manufacture of their vacuum cleaners. The young lady is balancing the fan, an intricate job in which she puts tiny drops of solder on the light side until the balance is perfect. Inset, operator testing air passage, suction power and wattage, on a government test-block.

Farmers Depict Ideal Michigan

Picturing Michigan agriculture as it would look in an ideal has been and is the work of hundreds of key farmers in 79 of the 83 counties in the state.

Heading up the survey of farming as it is and as it should be is H. A. Berg, extension specialist in farm management, Michigan State College. He started the work by summing up Michigan's rank nationally in leading farm crops for acreage and production.

Such national records as being first in acreages of potatoes, field beans, peppermint and spearmint, cucumbers for pickles and alfalfa were reckoned in the preliminary work. Second place production rankings are apparent in clover seed, late cantaloupes, celery, late market cucumbers and late onions.

Of the 79 counties, Tuscola county is aiding in the work and at present has prepared through a committee of representative farmers, a mapped picture of the county as its farmers think it should be. Changes in land usage are leading goals in many counties.

For the state as a whole, totals indicate that 50.2 per cent of the land is in farms, while the county surveys point to a more desirable goal of 49.2 per cent. This is a reduction over the state of but 1.9 per cent, but a total of $57,855 acres.

Tillable acreage should increase 51,387 acres, summaries show. There could be 4,098 fewer farms from the 196,517 total, yet the farm population could increase by 24,515 persons from the present total of 840,514.

Corn should occupy 81,616 more acres; the state should grow 167,599 fewer acres of beans, but could add 1,810 acres of potatoes, 28,203 more acres of sugar beets, 158,386 more acres of barley, 475,205 more acres of alfalfa and 756,829 more acres of alfalfa for hay.

worked on, scorning whatever laughter or contempt they had to meet.

Most men who have some revolutionary idea get discouraged when they make one or two failures.

THE RISKS OF BUSINESS.

The effort to revive business prosperity depends on whether the owners of capital and the employers of labor can be persuaded to assume the normal risks of business.

If a business concern sees many difficulties blocking the way of trade, it is apt to curtail its plans for improvement, and to buy as little as possible.

The people resent it when they think business earns too big a profit. But if a big share of its profits are taken away by taxation or other means, business may say it is not worth risking its capital when its returns are so small.

Many business people feel that the game is loaded against them. If they win, the government's taxes will take a big share of the profits.

The fears that upset the business world are often unjustified, but after all the shocks the country has had to take they are not so strange.

PHILOSOPHY OF FISHING.

Many philosophers have found moral benefits in fishing. They say it induces a calm and contemplative habit of mind, and thus counteracts the unhealthy rush and strife of the modern world.

This may seem a too imaginative view of this ancient art. Yet countless men, harassed by the cares of their work, have found that this pursuit refreshes their tired nerves.

The fishermen may say they have no time for philosophy as they engage in battle with the wits of the fish world. They are after alert and gamy creatures, and it takes all that human attention and experience can do to contend with these wily swimmers.

A good fisherman must be a careful observer of the ways of the creatures whom he wishes to take. He must have studied their habits, he must understand their moods, and remember hundreds of experiences in the past, to know when they will bite and where they can be found.

A good fisherman should be able to do other things well. If he will observe the facts of his trade as well as he studies the actions of trout and salmon, he should know how to lure customers to his order book.

Deep regret must be felt that Wilbur Wright, who died 26 years ago, could not have been here to see the results of these early experiments. It is a tragedy that so many men who have conferred great benefits on the world pass on before they see the fruits of their labors.

One must wonder at the courage and persistence of these men, who struggled so hard to teach the human race how to fly. Probably most of their neighbors laughed at their ambitions, and may even have regarded them as touched about the head.

SUEDE REACHES NEW HIGH IN THE MODE

Fascinating Colors One of Its Big Features.

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

The outlook is for more suede to be worn than we have ever known before. There's a reason. Finally, modern science has converted sturdy rugged suede into the most exquisite of soft workable, pliable, dainty-as-silk or chiffon mediums.

Now that this season is bidding fair to go down in history as one of color superb, suede with its rich tones, or its sweet pastel tones fits right into the scheme of things.

Your wide straw brim will take suede, with which wear a matching suede bolero, to which add a tie girle of the same suede.

If it's sportswear that interests you, or a tailored spring suit, make it suede. You will be charmed at the sight of the handsome jacket suits available, and three-quarter top coats and so on and so on!

MADE OF LACE

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

It costs so little to look well-dressed if you only "know how." The "knowing how" is to have in your wardrobe as goodlooking a suit as your purse can buy, plus one simple foundation dress made of high-quality dependable fabric, plus an infinite supply of flattering blouses and fetching accessories.

Ribbon Bow Trims Touch Up Simple Daytime Frock Many of the newer dresses and blouses are animated with cunning bow trims.

FLASHES FROM PARIS White beadwork on dark gowns takes place of lingerie neckwear. Fine Jersey daytime dresses are shown by leading couturiers.

Red Sets Off Beige With a beige suit or coat, shoes, gloves, and bag in the new Paris sand shade, luggage tan enlivened by red, will look thrillingly advanced.

THAT'S what Consumers Information calls these workers in a Pittsburgh glass plant, who are testing and finishing non-shatterable glass for use in automobiles. It is explained that one of the greatest hazards in auto accidents used to be flying glass, which was the most common cause of injury. Now all American cars are equipped with the shatter-proof variety, developed by American industrial research experts especially for this purpose, and the saving of many lives is the result. False perceptions are responsible for many accidents. Statistics show that a large proportion of railway crossing accidents are caused by drivers actually running into trains. Some of these accidents may be due to optical illusions.

Many persons do not have accurate distance perception. An object which seems to them to be several hundred yards away may be only a few blocks away. A person driving 50 or 60 miles an hour does not have sufficient time to correct an initial misjudgment.

Anyone who is directly implicated in any accident involving distance judgment should have his eyes examined. Until examinations are made it often is difficult to determine whether or not eyesight is bad.

Some of the large trucking concerns are now requiring that their drivers have their eyes checked. This provision will not only protect the truck drivers and their cargoes; it will protect other motorists as well.

It is important for the driver of a car to be in first class physical condition as it is for the motor of the car to be in good mechanical repair.

Most Famous Dogfight The most famous dogfight ever staged in the United States took place on a farm near Louisville on October 19, 1881. The match, held for a stake of $2,000, attracted a large number of "sportsmen" from many large cities and created much betting throughout the country. A railroad company even ran special excursion trains to the Kentucky metropolis, says Collier's Weekly, and the incoming crowds were welcomed by the notables of the city.

Barnum Bribed Indian Chiefs When ten of America's distinguished Indian chiefs paid a visit to the White House in 1864, P. T. Barnum bribed their interpreter to bring them to his American museum in New York for exhibition, on the pretext that they were to be given a public reception. After this "reception" had taken place hourly for more than a week, says Collier's Weekly, the chiefs discovered the deception and departed in a huff.

What the Federal Sugar Beet Program means to YOU

Payments

The 1937 Sugar Act provides to growers of Sugar Beets a payment of 60 cents per hundred weight, raw value, on the sugar commercially recoverable from Beets.

The basis for figuring recoverable sugar is set at 97% of the average cossette sugar per cent of all the Beets processed at the particular plant for which your beets are grown.

This means that a 15% beet equals 300 pounds of sugar per ton and 97% of 300 pounds would be 291 pounds of raw value recoverable sugar. Multiplying 291 pounds by 60 cents gives you a sugar payment of $1.746 per ton of beets.

By the same figuring, a 16% beet would give you $1.8624 per ton of beets. The above examples illustrate the basis of payment with respect to various sugar contents of your beets.

The 1937 Sugar Act also provides crop insurance with respect to bona fide abandonment of planted acreage and crop deficiencies of harvested acreage resulting from conditions as determined in accordance with regulations issued by the Secretary.

Sugar Beet growers are practically assured of a total of from $7.50 to $8.00 per ton for Sugar Beets grown in 1937 and/or 1938.

What the Grower must do

In order to comply with government requirements the grower must:

Eliminate child labor. Pay fair and reasonable wage rates. Conform to Soil Practice Requirements.

FARMERS & MANUFACTURERS BEET SUGAR ASSOCIATION, SAGINAW, MICH.

Soil Practice Requirements have been announced and there is no apparent general condition existing upon a farm operated as a unit by either owner or tenant that cannot be met.

However, we urge every grower to become familiar with these requirements, particularly those who rent land in fields for the purpose of growing Sugar Beets only in order to avoid any possible chance of non-compliance.

For further details, see your County Agent, soil conservation committee or local field man.

The Labor Rate

In Michigan the labor rate for blocking, chinning and hoeing is $11 per acre. Pulling and topping $7 for 7 tons or less per acre, plus $1 for each ton per acre in excess of 7 tons per acre.

While the object of the Sugar Act is primarily to help the farmer, it is also intended to benefit the labor employed in Sugar Beet fields.

Remember there is no farm allotment this year. Plant as many acres of Sugar Beets in 1938 as you consistently can in accordance with good farm practice.

It is important for you to have as much Sugar Beet acreage as possible for 1938, for your 1938 acreage may become the basis for your 1939 and 1940 quotas. There is every indication that 1938 will be an important and profitable year for Sugar Beet growers.

Announces Candidacy

VERNON J. BROWN.

Vernon J. Brown, who recently made public his decision to retire from the state legislature, has announced his candidacy for the nomination to the office of Auditor General at the state republican convention this fall. Mr. Brown has represented the second district of Ingham county for the past 10 years.

Vernon Brown is well known throughout Michigan, both as a legislator and as publisher of the Ingham County News. His articles on state government and his editorial comments on state matters have been widely read. At one time his syndicated articles were being published in more than a third of the weekly and daily newspapers of Michigan. They were circulated in every county of Michigan. Entering the legislature in 1929 after varied experience in township, city, county and state positions, he early won prestige as a student of government and an authority on taxation and finance. His campaign for economy in state government waged in 1932 resulted in the passage of nearly 100 economy bills prepared by a commission of inquiry into costs of state government. Mr. Brown was a member of the commission. Passage of the bills resulted in the reduction of the 1933 budget by approximately $5,000,000.

In his announcement, the retiring legislator declares that he is entering the campaign as a result of hundreds of letters and editorial comments emanating from every section of Michigan urging that he continue in state affairs.

"I believe I can best serve the state at this time in the office of auditor general," stated Mr. Brown. "It is my belief that the importance of this office to the people of Michigan has been overlooked in recent years. I am confident that if I am nominated and elected I can render a distinct service in that capacity."

"Clamor for party patronage has defeated several measures proposed in the legislature and aimed at economy. Others which passed have failed in accomplishing their purpose because of unfriendly administration. Obsolete accounting methods frequently lead to confusion and controversy concerning the condition of state funds. For years there has been complaint regarding duplication and unnecessary expense but no remedy has been applied. Useless expense, not only at the state capital but in the offices at every county seat in Michigan, results from unnecessary accounting between county and state, required once but now to no purpose since the state has abandoned the property tax. Many other economies can be effected without sacrifice of efficiency. My experience in the state legislature has led me to discover these shortcomings in this department. I am convinced that if nominated and elected auditor general I can do much to reduce costs and increase efficiency."

Air Mail Week May 15 to 21—

The primary purpose of National Air Mail Week is to acquaint the public with the benefits of air mail. The domestic rate of 6c for an ounce or fraction thereof is the only postage required. A letter recently received by Mrs. J. Sutton from her son stationed at Hawaii reached her in four days whereas by ordinary rate of postage it would take two weeks. A commemorative new air mail stamp of the six cent denomination has been designed. The border will be printed in blue and the central design will be in red. This design will depict an eagle with outstretched wings, bearing in its talons a shield, olive wreath and a bundle of arrows. Prizes are being awarded for the best posters and essays. Let your slogan be "Send an Air Mail letter Air Mail week."

"There are two classifications of cancer causes," Dr. Kirchner said. "We know that it is a disease of growth and that it is caused by chronic irritation, or more rarely inherited. It may be caused by an ill fitting dental appliance rubbing against the tongue or by chemical irritation where the skin is continually exposed to chemicals such as coal tar. Warts and pigmented moles should be carefully watched as a change in size and color may mean that they are becoming cancerous. Also, continuous exposure to heat and sun may lead to cancer formation."

Certain rules were given for the avoidance of cancer. "The best preventative of cancer is cleanliness," he said. "Beware of a cold sore or burn that does not heal." "An X-ray should be taken of the stomach of any person developing a new type indigestion within the cancer age. The cancer age is from 35 years to old age but can occur at any age. Avoid delay in treatment, avoid cancer quacks."
