

Contracts Let for Gagetown School

General Contract Awarded to Saginaw Firm at $22,584 on Monday.

From Gagetown Correspondent.
The general contract for the new addition to the Gagetown High School building was awarded to J. R. Heineman and Son of Saginaw at a base bid of $22,584.00 less alternates, making a net cost of $22,128.00. The heating, plumbing and ventilating contract was awarded to A. W. Eulich of Bay City at a base bid of $5,100.00 less alternates, making a net cost of $4,230.00. The electrical contract was awarded to William F. Nelson Electrical Co. of Saginaw at a base bid of $971.00 less alternates, making a net cost of $896.00.

The awards were made by the school board Monday afternoon and were made subject to the approval of the PWA office. Construction is expected to be started within a week. The building is expected to be ready for occupancy by December 1st.

The Gagetown High School will begin August 29.

Miss McComb Married at Powers August 10

Miss Helene McComb, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd McComb, of Cass City, and Mr. William R. Burns of Escanaba were united in marriage on Wednesday, August 10. The simple ceremony was performed by the Rev. William La-Beauf, at eight-thirty o'clock in the evening, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Arnold in Powers, Michigan.

Miss McComb wore a navy ensemble with white accessories and carried a large bouquet of garden flowers. Her attendant, Mrs. William Arnold, wore a printed silk navy ensemble, with white accessories and also carried a bouquet of garden flowers. The groom was attended by William Arnold.

After the ceremony, a bountiful wedding buffet supper was served. Guests included Miss Jane Burns of Detroit, B. U. Cuthbert of Escanaba, Mr. and Mrs. William Nelson of Spaulding, Mr. and Mrs. Hanson Nelson of Powers.

Miss McComb is a graduate of Cass City High School, Class of 1936. Mr. Burns is a graduate of Escanaba High School and also attended the University of Michigan. They will live near Escanaba where Mr. Burns is employed.

Improvement Seen in Fruit Prospects in Michigan

Lansing—While Michigan fruit prospects are far below those of a year ago due to the extensive losses from late spring freezes, some improvement was registered during July. Reports to the Michigan Co-operative Crop Reporting Service on August 1 show a higher condition than the July 1 reports for practically all of the fruits. Most of the commercial fruit counties had favorable moisture conditions which, with prevailing temperatures close to normal, was favorable for the development of size, color and quality. The percentage of the crop varies widely between orchards. Some growers will harvest little or no fruit this year while others have a fair setting. In some apple orchards, the fruit is mostly on the upper branches which escaped the effects from freezing whereas that on the lower limbs was practically all frozen.

Kingston Pioneer Laid to Rest on Friday

By Novesta Correspondent.
Mrs. Mary Retherford, relict of William Retherford, passed away on August 9, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Wesley McCain, in Pontiac. She was 84 years of age. Funeral services were held in the Mount Baptist Church on Friday, August 12, and were conducted by Rev. Virgie Peter and Rev. Kenneth Shoemaker. Burial was in Mount Cemetery.
Born in Inlay City, she came with her husband to Tuscola County nearly 60 years ago and for many years they lived the life of pioneers in Section 3, Kingston Township. Relatives and friends from Deford who attended the funeral on Friday included Mr. and Mrs. George Spencer, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dodge, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Brooks, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Retherford, Mrs. George Martin and Mrs. Luella Deneen.

CHOSEN AS MEMBER OF MISS BLUE WATER'S COURT

was made a member of Miss Blue Water's court with 11 other young ladies of the Thumb of Michigan. The others are: Ardiel Stone, of Sandusky; Virginia Wheeler, St. Clair; Carrie Shannon, Davison; Marjorie Foley, Lexington; Virginia Oborski, Ruth; Ola Mae Campbell, Center Line; Lula Simmons, Caro; Mary Louise Neal, Smiths Creek; Eula Jewell, Armada; Lois Beale, Romeo; and Francis Leithausser, Port Huron.

Judy Dunford, who bears the title of Miss Port Huron, was selected Saturday night as "Miss Blue Water" to reign over the dedication ceremonies of the Blue Water Bridge in September. She was chosen from a field of 44 beauties representing as many towns and cities of Eastern Michigan.

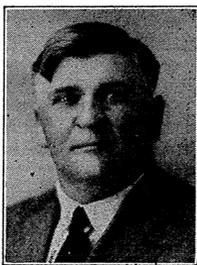

Miss Peggy Roat of Pontiac was picked as alternate.
Miss Doerr is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Doerr of Cass City. She graduated from the high school here in June, 1936, and attends Cleary Business College at Ypsilanti.

Sews and Mends without Glasses at the Age of 82

"I am the happiest when doing for others," says Mrs. Ora Delong, who will celebrate her 83rd birthday on November 24th next. Mrs. Delong says she cannot sit around doing nothing, but feels the best when kept busy. She does not wear glasses although she sews and mends a great deal.

Soon after the death of her husband in 1924, Mrs. Delong took rooms in Cass City and since then has worked, doing practical nursing or housekeeping. For a number of years she was employed in Pontiac. At the present time, she is making her home with her daughter, Mrs. John Walsley (Eliza) in Cass City, but expects to visit this summer at the home of another daughter, Mrs. Harvey Willis (Charlotte) in Port Huron. Besides the two daughters, she has two sons, James Nelson of Pontiac and Maynard of Novesta Township.
Mary Ann Comford was born in Kent County, nine miles from Chatham, Ontario, and was united in marriage with Ora Delong on December 1st, 1912.

Political Advertising.

To my friends in Tuscola County: As much as I would greatly enjoy visiting each and everyone of you between now and the primary election, September 13, 1938, I feel it is necessary first to care for the duties of the office of County Treasurer. I am telling you this now so that you may know why I have not called personally. I am now looking after the collection of delinquent taxes on the ten-year payment plan, and as your officer, your interests come first. You will agree, I believe, that conscientious attention to your interests at all times should meet with your approval. Although a strenuous campaign on my part is thus out of the question because of my work as your county treasurer, I am sure that you will cast your vote for one who has always striven to give you and Tuscola County faithful and efficient service.
ARTHUR WHITTENBURG.

Crop Outlook Best in Many Years

Fourteen Field Crops Are Reported Above Average on August 1.

The outlook on August 1 for Michigan's general field crops, taken as a whole, was the best for that date in many years. Every one of the 14 field crops for which estimates are regularly made by the Michigan Co-operative Crop Reporting Service under the direction of Verne H. Church, Federal-State statistician, was above average in condition and above the August 1 condition a year ago. With but few exceptions the condition was even better on August 1 than a month earlier which is the reverse of the usual trend during July. Good rains have occurred in many sections, while other localities have received but little moisture in recent weeks. The drier districts have held up well because of the good moisture supply in reserve at the beginning of July, but the heat wave that has prevailed during the first ten days of August will adversely affect growing crops in areas where moisture continues to be deficient. Army worms and grasshoppers are reported to be causing considerable damage in some northern counties.

Wheat and rye were harvested a little earlier than usual with favorable weather prevailing over much of the State, and with relatively small losses from local heavy storms. Reported yields of winter wheat were slightly below earlier expectations due to the spread of rust infection just prior to harvest and to thinning of stands in local areas from the severe freeze in May. The preliminary estimate of production for the State is 19,580,000 bushels, or an average of 22 bushels per acre. The 10-year average yield is 20.2 bushels and the 1937 crop yielded 18.5 bushels per acre. Some shrunken grain is reported from many sections and occasional fields are very poor in quality. The production of rye is placed at 1,552,000 bushels, representing a yield of 13.5 bushels per acre as compared with 11.5 bushels in 1937 and 11.9 bushels the 10-year average.

Family Reunions

McGregory Family.

About sixty relatives and friends gathered at the farm home of Mr. and Mrs. George Cooper near Marlette on Saturday, August 13, for the McGregor family reunion.
Tables had been placed under the tall maple trees on the beautiful lawn, amidst surroundings of shrubbery and beautiful flowers and here an inviting potluck dinner was served at two o'clock. After dinner came the usual chats, visits, ball game, etc., followed by an entertainment of vocal and instrumental music, readings and addresses.

At the election of officers, Vern McGregor was chosen president and Leslie Phillips, vice president. Phillips Boag, Mrs. William Withey and Dorothy McGregor were named as a program committee for the 1939 gathering which will be held on the first Saturday in August.

Clark Reunion.

Descendants of Amasa and Roxalana (Carpenter) Clark, who came from Vermont in 1850, settling in Berlin Township, St. Clair County, met at the home of Jason Kitchin, in Evergreen Township, for their eleventh annual reunion on August 13.

Members of the family to the number of ninety-one were present from Cass City, Deford, Decker, Flint, Allenton, Rives Junction, Mayville, Clio, Ypsilanti, Marlette, and Cincinnati.

The oldest member present was Emily Warner of Deford, who is eighty-one, and the youngest was Forest Elder from near Cass City, who is almost six months old.
A bountiful dinner under the trees was followed by a program of singing and speaking. Clarence Albertson of Cincinnati, a teacher in the high school at Newport, Ky., gave a report from the relatives in Tennessee whom he had recently visited.

It was voted to hold the gathering at the same place next year on the second Saturday in August.

Wright Family.

The second annual Wright family reunion was held Sunday, August 14, at Caseville. A potluck dinner was served and swimming and games were enjoyed.

The oldest person present was Mrs. Flora Chapel of Pontiac and

Tuscola County Fair Comes Next Week

As a headliner for the beautiful night program at the Tuscola County Fair next week, the Diamond Revue will add charm with its beautiful setting. The revue will show a complete program Tuesday and Wednesday nights, and change its program for Thursday and Friday nights. The Diamond Revue moves through five acts with a swing which will appeal to young and old, say fair officials. As interlude features an imposing array of top-notch vaudeville acts has been secured.

Horse races are scheduled for Wednesday, Thursday and Friday afternoons with Lyle Koepfgen as starter. The purses total $1,900.

According to Secretary Carl F. Mantey there is an unusual interest this year in exhibits. Every booth beneath the grandstand was rented some time ago.

Here and There Around the Thumb

Items Gathered from the Chronicle Exchanges and from Other Sources.

North Branch—H. & G. Ford, one of the oldest business firms of North Branch, has sold its general store to Harold L. Tewkesbury. The Ford family has been active in merchandising here for 59 years.

Caro—Reuben J. Hill has tendered his resignation to the Caro board of education and has accepted the position of music teacher in the Henry Ford Intermediate School at Dearborn. Mr. Hill has taught music in the Caro school for seven years.

Bay Port—Three gas stations at Bay Port, one at Sebawaing, and one at Port Austin were burglarized Tuesday night. Cigarettes, change and accessories were stolen. The largest amount of cash was taken from a gas station at Caseville where $20 were reported missing.

Owendale—A special election for bonding and raising the mill limitation to build a school gymnasium and auditorium is to be held here on August 24. A $30,500 project, federal PWA aid of $12,000 is to be asked for the building and repair work on the present school. The intention is to bond for $16,000, the balance needed being taken from cash on hand.

Owendale—Fire on Thursday afternoon caused the loss of a frame building owned by the Owendale Bank and used on Saturdays by the Owendale Live Stock Association. The loss is estimated at $1,500. No insurance was carried. It is thought that children playing with matches started the fire. The fire department saved the Owendale grain elevator and a blacksmith shop, both endangered by the flames.

Sandusky—The total now on relief in Sandusky is 173 cases, which includes 150 families or 697 persons, besides 22 single persons. Twenty-two additional cases are receiving surplus commodities, but are not receiving welfare aid. The July welfare report of Miss Dorothy Fox, county ERA administrator, showed that $1,868.63 was spent in the county, of which $321.00 was paid in cash and $1,547.63 was distributed in welfare orders.

Croswell—At the meeting of the Croswell Board of Education, a resolution was adopted protesting against any further reduction in state aid. The board has been informed that the state is considering what would amount to a 50 per cent cut in state aid and tuition. It was pointed out that these two items make up over half of the income of the Croswell School district.

Pedals Bike 110 Miles to Visit in Almer Twp.

Gordon Weston, Canadian 15-year-old, would rather pump his way than thumb rides in automobiles in making a trip from Windsor, Ontario, to Tuscola County. He started out from his home town of Windsor at six o'clock Monday morning and by seven o'clock that evening he had pedaled 110 miles, arriving at the farm home of County Treasurer Arthur Whittenburg in Almer Township for a visit with Gordon's aunt, Mrs. Whittenburg, and her family.
"Not a sore spot anywhere," Gordon assured the country treasurer when he arose Tuesday morning.

Kingston Bank Robber Paroled

John Bodnar to Be Released from Michigan Prison on August 23.

John Bodnar, 24, who was sentenced to eight to 20 years in state prison for a part in the armed robbery of the Kingston State Bank on January 8, 1931, will be given a parole on August 23, the state parole board has announced.

The board said that John Bodnar was one of five participating in the robbery, in which $2,189 were taken. Within a week, two were arrested, and the following April the third man was apprehended, while John Bodnar was arrested in Toledo, Ohio, the following October.

One of the robbers received a life term, another 24 to 40 years, and a third 12½ to 25 years, reduced to parole after 2½ years.

Two years after the robbery, according to a story in daily papers last week-end, Steve Bodnar was killed trying to escape capture in Toledo and John Bodnar was seized in Pennsylvania. Bodnar will be paroled to Pennsylvania for five years. Circuit Judge Herman Dehnke, the sentencing magistrate, has approved parole since 1934, the board said.

L. A. Maynard, president of the Kingston State Bank; Alex Marshall, cashier; Arvin Wingert, assistant cashier; and three customers were in the bank when the robbers entered the bank on Thursday morning, Jan. 8, 1931, and ordered the bank officers and customers to "stick 'em up!" Part of the bank occupants were ordered to lie on the floor and two customers were made to face the wall while the bandits forced Mr. Maynard to hand over the cash. Then the bank's officers and customers were ordered into the bank vault while the robbers made their way east out of town.

Vote on Potato Marketing Agreement

Tuscola and Sanilac potato growers will vote within a few days on the proposed potato marketing agreement requiring elimination of cull potatoes from interstate commerce and the Federal-State inspection of such shipments.

Other provisions of the agreement provide for further limitation on other low grades of small-size potatoes if necessary, but only on recommendation of area administration committees; modification of, or exemption from, shipment restrictions to prevent working a hardship on any area, part of an area, or individual producer; and administration of the program by area committees composed of growers and handlers selected from nominations made by growers and handlers themselves.

In Tuscola County, voting will take place all day Saturday and Saturday evening, August 20, at the following points: Kingston, Mayville, Fostoria, Millington and Vassar. Growers may also vote at the county conservation office in Caro on Saturday and Monday, August 20 and 22, from 9:00 a. m. to 5:00 p. m.

The place in Sanilac County will be at a growers' meeting in the court house in Sandusky on Tuesday evening, August 23. Any commercial potato producer who cannot be present that evening will be allowed to cast his ballot any time between 8:00 a. m. and 5:00 p. m. either Tuesday or Wednesday, August 23-24, at the agricultural conservation office.

Bids on M-53 Opened on August 25

Bids on contracts for the paving of the seven mile stretch of M-53 south of M-81 are to be opened August 25 in Lansing.

The date as to when work and paving on the project will begin will probably be made known when the contracts are awarded. Contracts will also include grading and drainage. Specifications call for a 20 foot pavement.

The paving of this seven mile stretch will complete a hard surfaced road from Cass City to Detroit.

Guess This One? Taken When We Were Young

Would you have guessed that the picture in this column last week was that of John A. Benkelman, who has been a resident of this community since 1865?

Six who registered their guesses with the Chronicle thought so, but J. E. Seed and P. S. McGregory picked Benkelman as the man and Frank Hegler said it was John Cole.

Those who guessed correctly when they named John A. Benkelman included Mrs. Alma Schenck, George Burg, Charles S. Seed, Mrs. O. W. Nique, Fred Schaaf and Fred Maier.

The picture this week should be equally easy to guess even though the man came here later than the pioneer days of the sixties. Who do you think it is?

Three Injured in Auto Crash on Sunday

Three were injured in a collision 2½ miles north of Colwood when automobiles driven by Moses King of Gagetown and Clement Polley of Caro crashed Sunday evening at nine o'clock.

Viola Polley of Caro and Milda Wissner of Sebawaing received cuts and bruises and Arnold Nintz of Sebawaing suffered a skull injury. All were passengers in the car driven by Clement Polley and were taken to the Unionville Hospital for treatment.

The accident was caused by a tire on the Polley car which had a blow-out as it was about to pass the automobile driven by Mr. King who was going south. The Polley car struck the other automobile and then turned and rolled over two or three times and stopped in a ditch on the west side of the road, headed southeast, and all four wheels up in the air.

Robert Bearrs and Pete Lenda were passengers in Mr. King's car. They were not injured.

KOEPPFGEN IS RUNNER-UP FOR "Y" CAMP HONORS

Gerald Fitzgerald of Bay City was chosen by his camp mates as honor camper at Y. M. C. A. Camp Iroquois at Sand Lake, a distinction which only one can claim during each period of camp. Runner-up for this award was Donald Koepfgen of Cass City.

Koepfgen was recognized by leaders as outstanding in athletics and leathercraft.

Appleblossom Club Travels through Nineteen States in Forty Days for $50.00 a Person

John Rogers of Bad Axe, Miss. Jennie Kloss of Sandusky and Miss Alexandra MacRae of Cass City were three out of group of twenty-two who traveled to Mexico City with the Appleblossom Club from Central State Teachers' College, Mt. Pleasant.

They left Mt. Pleasant June 24, spent ten days in Mexico City and returned home August 4, having traveled 6,200 miles through fourteen states in the United States and five in Mexico.

A few of the first points of interest were Lincoln's birthplace at Hodgenville, Kentucky, Mammoth Caves in Kentucky, Muscle Shoals in Alabama and the steel mills in Birmingham, Alabama.

The group were entertained by the Alabama State Department of Education and Mrs. Mary E. Scarborough, a member of that department and also a member of the Appleblossom Club Alumni, at a chicken dinner cooked Southern style and served on tables under the trees. After dinner they were taken through the capitol buildings and the first White House of the Confederacy.

In the Southern States many of the trees in the pine forests were tapped for turpentine. Much cotton, rice, sugar cane, peanuts, sweet potatoes and sorghum were seen growing. There were fields and fields of tung oil trees. Tung oil is used for varnish and paint.

The Old Spanish forts, Bancarlos and Barranos, on the United States Naval Air Station at Pensacola, Florida, were of much interest.

Eugene Field's home, the Creole Islands and the banana docks were most striking in New Orleans. Old Mobile was much similar to New Orleans with its beautiful iron works.

The group went to Baton Rouge, Louisiana, as guests of President Smith of the University. He also had a big chicken dinner awaiting the group after which he took them through the University and the capitol buildings in front of which Huey Long is buried.

Part of the group went fishing from Corpus Christi, Texas. After fishing a couple of hours in the Gulf of Mexico, they came back with 26 pounds of fish.

From Laredo, the Mexican government furnished a guide as far

Rotarians Told How to Judge Steers

With tables arranged on three sides of a rectangle in the dining room of the Hotel Gordon, members of the Rotary Club were surprised to find an unusual "guest" at their Tuesday luncheon. In the center was a splendid specimen of an Aberdeen Angus steer owned by Harrison Stine, a member of the Cass City Live Stock Club.

Rotarians suggested written choices for a name for the animal. After reviewing the suggestions, State Representative Audley Rawson selected Cass City Rotarian for the cognomen for this beef steer which will be exhibited next month in the 4-H, open and Michigan Special classes at the Michigan State Fair.

Willis Campbell, club adviser, told Rotarians the points judges considered mostly in awarding prizes on beef animals and club members asked many questions. Mr. Campbell considers this steer the best the 4-H club here has ever exhibited in beef classes.

Harrison Stine likes the animal so well he purchased his full brother Tuesday afternoon.

Simplicity Marked Summer Wedding

A beautiful summer wedding, marked with simplicity, was solemnized Saturday morning, at nine o'clock, August 13, at St. Pancratius Church in this city, when Miss Jennie Straty, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Casimir Straty, and John Frankowski, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Frankowski, both of Greenleaf Township, were united in marriage.

The church was decorated with a beautiful arrangement of baskets of flowers and the ceremony was read by Rev. Fr. Edward Werm, pastor of the church.

The bride was very lovely in a gown of white organdy over satin, buttoned full length down the back and with long train. A long veil, with elbow length overveil, fell

Thirty-five Years Ago. August 21, 1903.

Long before the hour for starting, 400 people had assembled at the Cass City depot on Friday to take the train to Bay Port to attend the first annual outing of business men of Kingston, Wilmot, Deford, Gageton, Caro and Cass City. The stores were closed and every day business cares were left behind.

A large audience gathered at the M. E. Church Sunday evening to witness the graduation of a class of 20 from the Junior into the Epworth League. The members of the class are Cecil and Ora McKim, Ethel Ford, Nina Karr, Myrtle Mead, Hattie Tanner, Gertrude Leslie, Florence Seeger, Dora Wallace, Anna Davis, Lucy Fritz, Guy Landon, Roy Hill, Frank Scripture, Bert Mead, Austin Hobart, Roy Houghton, Fred Withey, Lester Bailey and Will Seeger.

Robert Henry Warner of Novesta, one of the oldest settlers in these parts, died Friday.

Cass City School will begin work on August 31. Among the members of the teaching staff are Prof. F. E. Sinclair, the Misses Malam, Leepa, Beardsley, Mina McArthur, Luanna Bellows and Mary Beardsley and Mrs. Dora Fritz.

Kingston has voted to bond in the sum of $5,000 for a new schoolhouse. Ed Maier and George Meiser left Saturday for Buffalo where they will remain indefinitely.

POULTRYMEN'S CONFERENCE SEPTEMBER 12 TO 16

Annual conference of Michigan poultrymen sponsored in a short five-day program at Michigan State College by the short course department and the state improvement association is scheduled for September 12 to 16. The first three days stress blood testing and culling under the direction of Dr. E. S. Weisner and Ray Conolly. The last two days comprise a conference including outside speakers. Directors of the improvement association are to meet Wednesday evening for a business session. A banquet Thursday night will have John A. Hannah, college secretary and poultryman, as toastmaster. The principal speaker will be H. C. Rafter, head of the college farm crops department.

Facts Versus Fancy

Many books have been written quoting the last words of eminent men, but how true they are may be judged from the following: A certain statesman is said by one biographer to have said, as he lay dying, "How I leave my country!" While another biographer quotes him as last saying, "I think I could eat another one of those meat cakes!"

Appleblossom Club Travels through Nineteen States in Forty Days for $50.00 a Person

Concluded from first page. as Monterey. There the Federal Palace, Post Office, State Capitol and Ancient Bishop's Palace on Obispo Hill were visited. That night the group camped in the Military Camp on the edge of Monterey.

There are many thatched roof homes, many crude ways of farming, but many friendly people to be seen along the Pan-American Highway.

Santiago is Ripley's "Believe It or Not" five-mile city with just one street. However some parts of the city aren't so densely populated as others.

The people of Jacala were kind enough to invite the group to their Saturday evening party, where they danced their Spanish dances for the group.

The pyramids of Tuotchuacan are said to be like those of Egypt. Dinner was served in a cave a short distance from the pyramids. Unknown, until afterwards to the Appleblossom Club, they had eaten burro's meat.

Mt. Ixtacchuatl, the sleeping woman, and the mighty Popocatepetle are very majestic in the distance with their snow covered peaks.

Kochimilico, the floating gardens, gives a person a chance to go boat riding on a canal where large bouquets of sweet peas, pansies, carnations and gardenias are sold for five and ten cents.

A fair at Toluca plus market day gives one something to remember for ages. Everything from meat to lace lay out on the streets and sold by the owners, not to mention their horse drawn street cars.

Cuernavaca, where the palace of Cortes is located, also the town which is supposed to have the world's greatest climate, adds much interest to a trip.

The movies had English talkies and everything written in Spanish for the Mexican people.

To the American tourists the bull fight seemed very cruel; nevertheless their arena was crowded. After the fight a Mexican meal was very interesting besides tasty. Food was highly seasoned and tortilles or Cactus was served.

A man and his daughter allowed some of the group to ride on their oxen drawn cart up Huastica Canyon, at the edge of the Sierra Madre Mountain range. They also had their first chance to ride the burro.

The main crops of the country there were oranges, bananas and lime.

The orchids were seen growing high up in the trees in the jungles and forest regions. The orchid is a parasite to a tree and looks much like a bird's nest.

At Loreda fifty pounds of bananas were bought for fifty cents and other fruit accordingly.

The journey home gave the group a chance to see the raging Colorado River at Austin, Texas.

In Arkansas, Bob Burns' old home in Van Buren, and Eureka Springs, the only section of the United States that produces diamonds, also the location of the famous Baker Hospital were of much interest in the beautiful Ozark Mountains.

One night was spent at Branson, Missouri, the home of "The Shepherd of the Hills."

The intentions were to go to a ball game in St. Louis, but because of rain it was the Art Museum and Zoo and finished the day after which they crossed the McKinley Bridge.

In Illinois, they visited the capitol building, Lincoln's tomb, and the only house Lincoln ever owned.

New Salem is a place which shouldn't be missed. You see the original house in which Lincoln used to read before the fireplace. The whole town, hidden by a levee, built up like a village in Lincoln's time is free from automobiles.

Two days were spent in Chicago visiting points of interest there. From Chicago the group returned to Mt. Pleasant.

Sixty dollars had been allotted each person on the trip. On returning home there were $240 left which was donated to the Appleblossom Camp at Edenville, Michigan. Co-operative living made the trip very economical.

Being Legally Dead Up to a century ago, the common law courts of England rarely assumed that a person had died, even when records showed that he could not be alive, says Collier's Weekly. In 1826 the court of the King's Bench asserted that it could not "judicially presume" that a certain man was dead although he had been missing for 792 years.

Morgan's Raid Lasted Six Weeks General Morgan's famous raid into Indiana and Ohio was a campaign of six weeks. It started from Alexandria, Ky., on June 11, 1863, and ended with the capture of the commander and the last of the raiders seven miles south of Lisbon, Ohio, on July 26. Morgan was confined in the Ohio penitentiary at Columbus, from which he escaped on November 26.

When There Are No Drownings

According to an Old Polish belief, no one can drown the night of June 23. The occasion is widely celebrated throughout Poland as St. John's eve. In pagan times the festivities honored the return of the sun, but today they hold their chief interest for unmarried girls. On that night girls throw garlands of flowers to their sweethearts, who row along in illuminated canoes.

Helping the Spirits In the Mimbrax valley of New Mexico many fine specimens of pottery are supposed to have been made by the women of the tribes of that section hundreds of years ago. They were highly decorated and the bowls were pierced through the center. It is said that the hole was to allow the spirit to escape when the bowls were placed over the head of a corpse.

Carillons Played on Market Days In the market towns of Belgium carillons are played on market days, much as band concerts are played on holidays in America. But the bells are played while men work and they serve as an attraction to the throngs whose trade is desired by the merchants and farmers.

Dogs Take Naturally to Sea Dogs seem to take naturally to the sea. Even the ancient Vikings took their fierce hounds on voyages, and swore the pups loved it. They are especially popular as mascots on United States warships.

Expert Advice on Making of Jelly

Every Glass Should Be Clear, Firm and Quivery

By EDITH M. BARBER

"JELLY" is one of those words which seems to sound the way it should. To live up to the name jelly should be clear, sparkling, firm but quivery. Every glass you fill should score on these counts.

Certain fruits were designed by nature particularly for jelly making. They are juicy, pungent in flavor and have as well a quality which allows the strained cooked juices to jelly when cooked with sugar. Other fruits may have all the qualities except the latter. We have, however, got around that nowadays. We may take advantage of their flavors and add to them fruit pectin in a concentrated form. For perfect jelly the right proportion of sugar to fruit juice must be used. For solid currants and green grapes it may be possible to use the old-fashioned rule of cup for cup, but generally even a thick juice will take not more than three-quarters of a cup of sugar to a cup of juice. If too much sugar is used, the jelly will be gummy and will seldom mold. If too little sugar is used, the jelly will either be tough or syrupy.

Unless you are an experienced jelly maker, you will find it simpler and surer to combine fruit pectin with fruit juices. In this case you must measure exactly and follow directions absolutely.

Do not be too ambitious when you make jelly and try to make enormous quantities at one time. You will have better results if you prepare small amounts.

Select and wash fruit. Remove the hulls, stem and blossom ends. Cut hard fruits into pieces without peeling or coring.

For soft fruits use just enough water to prevent sticking. Heat gradually, mash while heating and cook until the pulp has lost its color.

For hard fruits, cook with just enough water to cover until the fruit is tender. Do not mash if you wish to have a clear jelly. Strain the juice through a wet flannel jelly bag, but do not squeeze as this will give a cloudy jelly.

When the juice has stopped dripping from jelly bag return the pulp to the preserving kettle, add enough water to cover, heat gradually and simmer for 30 minutes and strain again through jelly bag. Test for pectin and if the test shows sufficient pectin present a third extraction may be made. Keep the juice obtained from first extraction separate from juice obtained in second and third extractions, as juice from the first extraction usually makes a clearer jelly.

Test strained juice for pectin to determine whether it contains sufficient pectin which in turn indicates the proportion of sugar to be used.

Test for Pectin.

Put one tablespoonful of hot juice into a glass or cup. Add one tablespoonful of alcohol and stir once. Let stand two minutes. If it is a thick jelly which can be taken up on a spoon without breaking, one cup of sugar to one cup of juice may be used. If jelly forms, but breaks as it is taken up with the spoon three-fourths cup of sugar to each cup of juice should be used. If there is no jelly formation, the juice must be combined with sour apple juice or currant juice and retested.

Old-Fashioned Jelly.

To obtain best results in jelly making, it is advisable to work with a small quantity of juice. Two quarts of juice is a sufficiently large quantity to handle at one time.

Measure juice, add sugar and stir until sugar is dissolved. Boil rapidly until jelly test is obtained. When two drops will hang side by side from a spoon which has been dipped into the boiling mixture, the jelly is ready to be skimmed and to be poured in clean, hot glasses. Pour hot paraffin immediately over the jelly to the depth of one-eighth inch. When cold cover with tin lids.

Cherry Jelly.

3 cups (1 1/2 lbs.) juice
6 1/2 cups (2 3/4 lbs.) sugar
1 bottle fruit pectin

To prepare juice, stem and crush about three pounds, fully ripe cherries. Do not pit. Add one-half cup water, bring to a boil, cover and simmer 10 minutes. (For stronger cherry flavor, add one-quarter teaspoon almond extract before pouring.) Place fruit in jelly cloth or bag and squeeze out juice.

Measure sugar and juice into large saucepan and mix. Bring to a boil over hottest fire and at once add fruit pectin, stirring constantly. Then bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard one-half minute. Remove from fire, skim, pour quickly. Paraffin hot jelly at once. Makes about nine glasses.

Raspberry Jelly.

4 cups (2 lbs.) juice
7 1/2 cups (3 1/4 lbs.) sugar
1 bottle fruit pectin

To prepare juice, crush thoroughly or grind about three quarts fully ripe berries. Place in jelly cloth or bag and squeeze out juice.

Measure sugar and juice into large saucepan and mix. Bring to a boil over hottest fire and at once add fruit pectin, stirring constantly. Then bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard one-half minute. Remove from fire, skim, pour quickly. Paraffin hot jelly at once. Makes about 11 glasses.

TAKE IT OR LEAVE IT!

By IROQUOIS DAHL

ONE of our friends, R. E. Walker of Houston, Texas, was good enough to send us a clipping which tells about a fellow who went fishing in Galveston bay. After catching a mess of fish, he strung them on a piece of wire and attached the wire to the stern of his boat. Pretty soon, some big old sock-dolager came along, grabbed the little fish and dragged the boat with him, under the water. The poor fisherman had to swim for his life. He was rescued by a tugboat and it is said that he was just as scared as he was wet—and, boy, he was some wet!

We wonder what the unfortunate angler thinks of the sport of big-game fishing.

Girl, Arthritis Sufferer, Runs Youths' Ball Team

NEW YORK.—"Come on, let's have the hitter." Virginia Steverman, twenty-one-year-old manager of the Chestnut Hill Beavers, is on the coaching line. "Ginny," as the boys call her, is leading the club for the third year. The Beavers are a playground team composed of grammar-school boys who won ten of their fifteen games last year. Partly crippled by arthritis since she was a year old, she bats grounders around in infield practice, all the while keeping up a constant flow of diamond chatter. She also holds a weekly "fight-talk" meeting for the boys at her house.

Old Methods of Glass-Making

An ancient glass works which the famous diarist, Samuel Pepys, visited and described in 1689 turns out its products in a London suburb, according to an authority. Processes which were used 3,000 and 4,000 years before Christ are employed in it, and the clay still is trodden by barefooted workmen, since no better process of preparing it mechanically has been found. The sand used in hand-blown glass is brought from the forest of Fontainebleau, as it has been for scores of years, and a museum of rare pieces made in the works is maintained in a special room.

POSTMASTER BALL PLAYER HAD ARM BROKEN SUNDAY

Franklin Kolb, Unionville postmaster and first baseman of the village's baseball team, broke his arm while fielding a ball and an Akron player bumped into him, at the game at Akron Sunday. Unionville's victory of 5-0 placed that team at the head of the Tuscolau-Huron League. The game left Unionville with an unmarred record of four wins and no losses.

Barnacles Like It Dark

Light colors are preferred for the painting of the submerged portions of the hulls of ships. The reason for this is that barnacles accumulate faster on wood that is painted a dark color than on white and light tints.

DEATHS

Mrs. Alfred Karr.
Mrs. Alfred Karr passed away at her home four miles northwest of Cass City Tuesday, August 16, after a lingering illness.
Christina Isabella McLean was born at Park Hill, Ontario, May 26, 1882, the eldest daughter of the late Peter and Mrs. Katherine McLean.
She was married April 5, 1905, to Alfred Karr of Cass City and she has lived here ever since.
She leaves to mourn their loss, her husband, and one daughter, Mrs. Kathleen Thane; her mother, five sisters and one brother, all living in Ontario except one sister in Pontiac.
The esteem and affection for her was expressed by the beautiful floral tributes. Her cheerful, friendly disposition endeared her to all who had the privilege of knowing her.
Funeral services were held from the Angus McPhail home Thursday afternoon and burial was in Elkland Cemetery. Rev. Charles Bayless officiated at the service.

Laurence A. Hoffarth.
Laurence A. Hoffarth of Novesta passed away at the Pleasant Home Hospital early Thursday morning, following an operation and uremia poisoning.
Mr. Hoffarth was born June 14, 1869, at Carlsruhe, Ontario, and has spent the last fifty years on farms in Sanilac and Tuscola Counties. He was married to Fannie Chambers in July, 1902.
Besides his widow, the following children mourn his departure: Mrs. James Holcomb, Mrs. Leon Hall and Mrs. Henry Parker of Auburn Heights; Mrs. Ralph Graves of Wilmot; Mrs. Wilbur Clark of Detroit; and Mrs. Maynard McConkey and Forrest Hoffarth of Cass City. He also leaves fourteen grandchildren and three sisters, Mrs. Margaret Zattle and Mrs. Rosie Bruder of Hanover, Ontario, and Mrs. Mary Ruetz of Waterloo, and two brothers, Frank, of Mt. Carmel, North Dakota, and Paul, of St. Clements, Ontario.
Funeral services will be conducted by Rev. Charles P. Bayless on Saturday afternoon at two o'clock in the Hoffarth home.

Mrs. Hettie Bradfield.
Funeral services for Mrs. Hettie Bradfield, a former resident of Cass City, were held Monday afternoon at Lawrence, Michigan, where Mrs. Bradfield formerly lived for many years. She died Friday in the Borgess Hospital, Kalamazoo, and is survived by her husband, the Rev. Edwin H. Bradfield; four sons, the Rev. Irwin E. Bradfield, of Waukesha, Wis.; Richard, of Flint; Franklin, of Detroit; and Albert, of Holland, Michigan; and a daughter, Miss Helen Bradfield, a teacher at Grand Ledge, Michigan.

WASHINGTON.—A new life of Sitting Bull, in pictures drawn by himself, has been received by the Smithsonian institution.
A prisoner at Fort Randall, Dakota territory, in 1882, the old warrior made for two men who befriended him a series of drawings of the proudest exploits of his early life. All were in battle with other Indians. One picture shows the fight in which Sitting Bull suffered a foot wound which crippled him for life.
A series of 13 drawings, made for Daniel L. Pratt, post trader at the fort, was given to the museum by his niece, Mrs. G. H. Pettifer, of Oswego, Ore. The other autobiography, in 30 drawings, made for Lieut. Wallace Tear, is also owned by the Smithsonian.
The pictures are remarkable for the accuracy and delicacy with which he drew the horses and the relative crudity of the human figures, Smithsonian officials said.

Percentage of Fat in Nuts
Most nuts are extremely rich in fat. The pecan contains over 70 per cent of fat; the brazil nut, butternut, albert, hickory nut, and English walnut, over 60 per cent; almond and pistache, over 50 per cent, and the cashew and peanut over 40 per cent.

STREET SCENES IN BERLIN

Unter den Linden All Dressed Up.

Interesting Sights for the Visitor in the Handsome Capital of Germany

Prepared by National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—WNU Service.

DESPITE the rapid pace of politics in Berlin today, pedestrians on the streets of the German capital are conspicuously unhurried.

Motor traffic, on the other hand, is unusually rapid. The drivers of the 620 omnibuses hurl their two-storied leviathans from stop to stop in lurching bursts of speed; the air brakes hiss with splenetic suddenness.

The comparatively small number of motor vehicles in Berlin helps explain the villagelike appearance of most streets. Counting private cars, trucks, and motorcycles, registrations for 1936 showed only a few more than forty thousand.

The traffic flow has a heartbeat of 30 seconds—half a minute of red light, an orange flash of warning of change, followed by half a minute of green. To one accustomed to the longer intervals of most American cities, it seems at first a little hysterical in its frequency of interruption.

Upon arrival one is petrified to see autos passing stopped streetcars. The law, however, permits such passing, with the injunction that it be performed with extreme care.

Look Out for the Cyclists.
The large number of bicycles on Berlin streets creates an additional hazard for the motorist, especially as the riders seem endowed with a sublime faith that the vagaries of their delicate vehicles will be unfailingly observed by truck and car behind. Yet, with it all, casualty statistics are not high. The city's fatalities from traffic accidents totaled 358 for 1935.

The traffic lights halt squads of cyclists: girls in unbecomingly practical divided skirts; delivery boys carrying bundles bigger than themselves; tenders of street lights pedaling precariously from lamp to lamp with eight-foot ladders strapped to their shoulders.

The Berlin resident receives four deliveries of mail a day on weekdays and one on Sunday for good measure.

Five thousand postboxes announce their presence on street corners with a lustrous surface of red—that shade which someone has described as "the color of audacity." Until within the last year they were a sober blue, but the color experts announced that they lacked visibility.

Special delivery obtains, but for those who desire extra-rapid service there is the fast-functioning pneumatic-tube system, reaching every section of the town. This is a convenience to the businessman and an undoubted blessing to exigent lovers.

Any list of the city's skyscrapers should include the new home of the Karstadt department store.

Columbus haus on Potsdamer platz and the handsome white building of the Shell Oil company, which rises from the verdant bank of the Spree in mid-city, are other contenders for dizzy honors, and neither exceeds ten stories.

Berlin is not suffering from lack of educational institutions, with its 13 universities, colleges, and higher technical centers, 147 high schools, and 503 grade schools.

University Once a Palace.
Berlin (Frederick William) university, center of educational life, fronts on Unter den Linden across from the State Opera house. Such a dignified atmosphere of scholarship pervades the lovely gray building and its linden-shaded courtyard no one would suspect it was originally built as a palace for Prince Henry by his brother, Frederick the Great.

In the neighborhood of the university are several restaurants where one hears more English spoken than German. The guests are principally exchange professors from American colleges who come to Berlin for research.

The Schwarzes Ferkel (Black Pig) is popular with the teaching fraternity and is the locale for all meetings of the Berlin Harvard club. Tonndorf is another spot

MOTORISTS SPEND BILLIONS IN YEAR

Outlay More Than 10 Per Cent of U. S. Income.

WASHINGTON.—American motorists spent approximately $7,500,000,000—more than 10 per cent of the national income—last year on their automobiles, statistics compiled by the bureau of public roads disclosed.

The largest item—approximately $3,500,000,000—was for purchases, accessories and repairs. There were more than 28,000,000 motor vehicles—one for every five persons—in the United States on January 1 of this year.

Gasoline was the second largest expense, totaling approximately $3,000,000,000, of which nearly $1,000,000,000 went to states and the federal government in gasoline taxes. State taxes amounted to $761,998,000 and federal taxes to $192,121,210.

350 Million in Fees.
Registration and inspection fees totaled approximately $350,000,000, all of which was collected by states and cities. Personal property taxes probably added $50,000,000 to the total cost, although no exact data was available on that.

Insurance—another item on which no data was available—was believed to have cost motorists an additional $150,000,000. Traffic fines probably added $25,000,000 to $50,000,000 to the total cost of automobile operation.

Assuming an average of 16 miles per gallon of gasoline motorists drove nearly 200,000,000,000 miles last year. That estimate did not include 650,000,000 gallons used in farm tractors and stationary engines and exempt from state taxes.

Travel by automobile is increasing, the bureau report showed. Consumption of gasoline last year was 1,460,000,000 gallons greater than in 1936, an increase of 7.6 per cent.

Gasoline Taxes Go Higher.
State gasoline taxes in 1937 were $70,578,000 greater and federal taxes increased $14,605,000 over 1936. During the year four states increased the tax rate by 1 cent a gallon, bringing the average rate for the United States from 3.85 to 3.91 cents a gallon.

Rates of the tax ranged from 2 cents a gallon in the District of Columbia to 7 cents in Florida, Louisiana and Tennessee. Only two states showed decreases in gasoline tax income last year. They were Nebraska and Tennessee.

States reporting the largest incomes from gasoline taxes were: New York, $61,915,000; Pennsylvania, $55,720,000; California, $46,624,000; Ohio, $46,538,000; Texas, $41,678,000; Illinois, $36,266,000; Michigan, $29,430,000; Indiana, $23,497,000; North Carolina, $23,393,000; Florida, $22,466,000.

HOW

THE PLUMBER MAN GOT HIS NAME FROM LEAD, PLUMBO.—Compared to glittering gold and shining silver, lead is a humble metal. Yet it deserves the respect due to an honorable ancestor. From an early date lead was associated with the planet Saturn, and since in mythology Saturn was considered the father of the gods, lead was known as the father of the metals, says a writer in London Tit-Bits Magazine.

Persian religious writings likened the revolution of the celestial bodies to "Seven stairs connected to Seven Gates, each of a different metal. The first was of lead and the leaden gate had the slow and tedious motion of Saturn."

In astrology the characteristics of men born under the influence of Saturn are described in terms that might be lead itself: gray, heavy, cold, and slow—i. e., Saturnine.

Yet lead has always been a steadfast friend to man, and the Romans, great builders, recognized this. For water-pipes and cisterns; roof-coverings and decorations; panels and statuettes; coffins and coins, lead was used in large quantities. The famous Colosseum in Rome was so named because of the colossal leaden statue of Nero standing at one entrance. The lead mines of Britain were one of the objects that tempted the Romans to capture and hold this country. Their name for lead was plumbo—hence our plumber.

How to Lure Fishworms Out of Holes With Light

When you wish to go fishing it is generally quite a task to dig up enough worms for bait. But if you just remember certain facts about such worms, you will not have to do any digging at all, according to a writer in the Washington Star.

Fishworms come out of the ground of their own accord at night, so that's the time to get your supply of bait without digging. But if you go out with just any old light to do your worm hunting, you are quite likely to return with an empty can. You must know more facts about these worms.

The color of your light makes the difference between capturing plenty of worms and none.

Fishworms have no eyes, yet if a white light is turned upon them as they come out of their holes at night, they will quickly retreat into them. A blue light has the same effect. But a red light brings an altogether different result. They pay no attention to it, and you can proceed to fill your can.

So, before going out on your night worm hunt, put red paper over the globe of your flashlight, and you can get your supply for the morrow's fishing without digging.

How to Make Rice Flour Whitewash

A formula for whitewash made with rice flour follows: Lime, clean and well burnt, 6 quarts; Spanish whiting, or powdered burnt alum, 4 ounces; white sugar, 16 ounces; rice flour, 3 pints; glue, of good quality, 16 ounces; water, boiling, 5 gallons. Shake lime in vessel of about 10 gallon capacity, with hot water, keeping vessel covered to retain the steam, and pass through a sieve to clear of coarse particles. Make up the rice flour to a thick paste and boil well, and dissolve the glue in water over a water bath; then mix the liquids with the remainder of the water, and add the whiting or alum and the sugar. The mixture should be applied warm on outdoor surfaces, and cold indoors.

How to Make Porch Seat

An attractive seat for the kitchen or porch can be made from a discarded auto cushion. Make a low wooden bench, the size of which depends on the cushion at hand, and place the cushion on top. Use a strip of bright-colored cloth to cover the ends and front of the cushion, and another piece of the same material to form a "skirt" for the bench, letting the cloth extend almost to the floor.

How to Rescue Drowning Man

A drowning person gets a death hold on the nearest object, tries to climb over it out of the water. Hence best rescue plan is to throw something, a piece of wood or clothing, by which the person can be towed. Only as a last resort should you get within arm's distance. Approach the person from the back, if possible. If you can't break his hold, take a deep breath and submerge. That may make him let go.

How to Test Feather Pillows

Pillows do not live forever. The best of them should not be expected to live more than five or ten years. Feathers dry out, lose their natural oil and become flat and lifeless. To test a pillow, rest it over your arm. If it droops it is time to replace it with a new pillow.

How to Reopen Envelope

If you have forgotten to inclose some article in your letter, you can reopen the envelope by laying a wet cloth over the flap and pressing with a warm iron.

How to Drive Nail in Plaster

To drive a nail into plaster without cracking the plaster, heat the nail.

Gas Masks Provided for Dogs, Horses in Britain

LONDON.—Dogs and horses will have gas masks, but British cats must depend on their surplus lives during air raids in the next war. The Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals discourages any attempt to fit cats with a gas mask, saying the suffering caused by a mask is worse than that caused by an air raid.

Being left to their fate, however, will not worry the cats of this hardy isle as they are made of stern stuff. One cat in London recently was given up for dead after a house fire that suffocated three dogs and the canary. The cat was left in the garden for later burial but seven hours afterward it completely revived.

Those who went through the air raids during the world war recall that their cats readily adapted themselves. When the bombs started dropping, the cats were the first to dive for the cellar and the last to come out.

Town Crier Outshouted, Provincetown Worries

PROVINCETOWN, MASS.—The United States' only official town crier is being outshouted by boys advertising hotels and restaurants.

Though sixty-seven-year-old Amos Kubik's lungs are still strong, he is outnumbered by his youthful rivals, and the Board of Trade is considering action against the threat to "the quaintness of Provincetown."

Kubik greets boat and train passengers with announcement of tides, weather conditions and official notices.

Strange Burial Rite Held Yearly by Clan

CINCINNATI.—A strange burial ceremony was held here for the sixty-ninth time when the body of John O. Gorman, sixty-one, of Vincennes, Ind., was interred.

Each year approximately 400 members of the nomadic Gorman family assemble here in tribute to members of their clan who have died during the last year. The rite has been followed annually since 1870.

The Gormans come from all walks of life, but annually drop their business pursuits to make the "pilgrimage of the dead."

Col. James E. Gorman, leader of the family, manages a traveling rodeo.

Beauty Parlors Flourish

Men's furnishing stores exhibit weird arrays of caricatured dummies, attenuated and globular, clad in coats as square-built as a New England woodshed. The salesman explains that this rectangular effect is the "American shoulder."

Beauty parlors flourish, a bewildering assortment of jars set forth in their windows. A few of the better-known American cosmetic lines are to be found.

HEART'S HERITAGE

CHAPTER IV

Aside from more or less routine duties, Constable Kerney of Locust Hill permitted himself one diversion. It was meeting the half dozen north and south-bound trains whose schedules called for a stop within the province of his authority.

The office of the law was little more than a stone's throw from the railroad station and only pressing business prevented the officer from taking his unobtrusive stand near the telegraph operator's observation window a few moments before each train's arrival.

Public buses and automobiles would have furnished a more accurate index to the town's transients, but the station offered a convenient method of keeping one's finger on the traveling pulse.

Kerney's shrewd eyes were ever on the alert. Nearby cities furnished him with frequent "fliers" describing wanted criminals—rogues' gallery likenesses, aliases and, not infrequently, a mention of tempting rewards. The constable acquired the knack of keeping these unfavorable portraits in the back of his mind. Locust Hill with its quiet respectability might easily appeal to some fugitive as a peaceful haven.

This uncompromising vigilance appeared to have met with possible results one afternoon. Number 406, from the North, slowed to a grinding halt on time. The last passenger to clamber down the steps of the smelter was a small man who clutched a shabby suitcase in one hand and a paper parcel in the other.

An unprepossessing figure this stranger, looking about uncertainly from under the cap drawn low over his thin face. A livid welt ran from the outer corner of his left eye across the cheek and under the jaw. The ear on the same side seemed to have suffered damage all its own.

The scarred face brought no response from Kerney's mental collection, but he felt amply justified in accosting the new arrival.

"Lookin' for somebody, buddy?" "Maybe. Is this a pinch?"

"That depends," was the grim reply. "I like to know who folks are that get off here. I get paid for it."

The eyes under the cap scanned Kerney coolly. There was a slight flicker of amusement in their gray depths.

"Okay, flatfoot. I was just startin' to pay a call on my boss."

"Who's he?" "Doc Farwell. Know him, do you?"

"I know him, all right. But . . ." "Then you might show me where he hangs out. Trail along, if it suits you."

"His church is up the next street . . . Got a high steeple. Doctor Farwell's house is on the far side. By the graveyard."

"Sounds cheerful. Thanks." "Wait just a minute. You mean you work for the reverend?"

"That's whatever." The little man grinned impudently. "I'm his hired girl. Well, so long . . . See you in church."

Kerney stood staring after the departing figure as if uncertain of the best course to pursue. When the latter vanished around the corner of the station, the constable followed. A moment later, he sighted his quarry walking briskly along Market Street in the direction of Old White. Kerney followed at a distance calculated to disarm suspicion. It wouldn't hurt to shadow this new arrival.

To his chagrin, he saw the man with the suitcase turn with a friendly wave of his paper parcel as he entered the parsonage yard. Kerney continued his stroll, watching the next scene from the corner of his eye. He saw the door opened by Doctor Farwell. The man in the cap dropped his parcels and extended both hands with a shrill:

"Hey, Dominie!"

There was no mistaking the smile of greeting on the minister's pale face, as his own hands went out to clasp the stranger's.

"Well, I vow!" Kerney ejaculated, as he turned and retraced his steps in the direction of his office.

Jonathan Farwell smiled across the parlor at his guest who lolled easily in the largest of the upholstered chairs, puffing on a cigarette and grinning delightedly. The minister's smile held a warmth that no Locust Hill acquaintance had been privileged to see.

"Pink, it does seem good to see you again!"

"No foolin'? Some nice dump." The man called Pink looked about the parlor approvingly. "The old stuff looks pretty familiar."

Farwell emitted one of his rare laughs. He had relaxed strangely in this little man's presence, sitting low in his own chair with his long black legs outstretched and hands thrust in his trouser pockets.

The two men chatted for a time, Pink telling of his trip and asking pointed questions regarding Locust Hill and its people.

"Thought I was goin' to see it from inside the hoosegow," he chuckled, sailing his cigarette butt into the fireplace with an accurate flip. Cop down at the depot. Took me for one of them public enemies, I guess."

"You told him, of course, that you were coming here?"

"Sure. But he trailed me all the same. Say, Dominie . . . Ain't it about time my sidekick was showin' up?"

"I expected him before this." Farwell drew a large open-face watch from his pocket and studied it thoughtfully.

"Has he made up his mind yet what he's goin' to do?"

"He is going back to school. I do not know just how soon."

"The sooner the better," Pink grumbled. "Here he is now. Drivin' up with a dame. Classy, all right. Get a load of her, will you?"

Farwell stepped near enough the window to look over the smaller man's shoulder.

"She is the daughter of one of my members." His dark eyes contracted a trifle.

"Then you picked a good church. Here comes the kid."

Quick steps sounded in the hall. The parlor door was flung open and Dale stood framed in the entrance.

"Pink Mulgrew! Gee, but I'm glad to see you, Pink!" Dale had the little man by the shoulders, shaking him affectionately.

"Same here. But not in them trick pants. Bad enough to go in for a sissy game without dressin'. You look pretty fit, otherwise. And you've been playin' with games, I see. I should have got here sooner and started you trainin'."

"Dale," Farwell interposed the word almost sharply. "I imagine that Pink would like to go to his room. Will you show him the way?"

The minister stood without moving after the pair left the parlor. His brows were drawn into a frown as he stared down at the rug. The expression on his face did not change until the silence was broken by a sound from the second floor.

It was the staccato tattoo of a punching bag, vibrating under the attack of professional knuckles.

Within forty-eight hours, Locust Hill was mulling over a Farwell problem that dimmed its predecessors completely. This new and intriguing puzzle was the latest addition to the parsonage household. Who was this Pink Mulgrew?

The fact that he had been seen conversing with Constable Kerney gave rise to rumors that Mr. Mulgrew was a sometime gangster, employed by the pastor for purposes of reformation. Pink's sinister appearance made the suggestion entirely feasible.

Mulgrew must be a servant. It was early discovered that one of his offices was to answer the door bell. More than that, he wore a white house jacket on duty. Such a thing was unheard of in Locust Hill homes. Moreover, the man Mulgrew officiated in the dining room as a server of meals. This last knowledge was made public when the window shades of that hitherto unused room remained raised of an evening.

"Pagin' Mister Fa-awell!" Pink Mulgrew thrust his head into the living room. Dale was there, stretched comfortably on the couch reading a magazine.

"Phone, Pink?" "Yeah. The girl friend. Want me to dust off the clubs?"

"Never mind. I'll get it." He rose and made his way out to the telephone. "Hello," he said briefly.

"Hello," returned a cheerful voice. "It's Lee Brady."

"Oh! I . . . When did you get to town? I say! Are you going to be home this afternoon? And may I call?"

"If you can spare the time." Dale thought he heard a suppressed laugh. "Please do," Lee went on hurriedly. "I want you to meet the nicest person in Locust Hill."

Dale was quickened by a thrill of anticipation as he strode on his way to that afternoon appointment. He hadn't quite realized how eager he was to see Lee again.

The Brady home somehow looked the way Dale had hoped. It stood in the center of a large lawn. A house of drab brick topped by a mansard roof, its colored slates laid in patterns. A house to live in.

Lee came to the door. The same Lee of the brown eyes and ready smile. Of the bronze curls. And, this time, she wore no hat.

"I'm so glad to see you again," was her frank greeting.

"Maybe I'm not glad to see you!" Then the "nicest person," welcoming the caller from her big chair

Lee came to the door.

beside the glowing fire. Dale's heart went out to Mrs. Brady at sight. A delicate woman with snowy hair framing a young face. Dark eyes like Lee's. Gentle voiced.

"I feel as if we were old friends, Mr. Farwell," she explained, as Dale held her slender fingers in his warm clasp. "Lenora and Mr. Brady have told me about you."

"We are," he assured her. "And just how long have you been in town?" he demanded of Lee.

"Two whole days. Our trip lasted longer than we expected. We didn't know you were here until Daddy told us. I was sure you would be at school."

"I was. Stayed there long enough to make sure you weren't registered. Then I decided to look you up. You told me I could, you know."

"Lenora should have returned," Mrs. Brady interposed. "I don't know where she got the idea she must stay here to look after me. It's quite ridiculous." Her hand stole out and rested upon Lee's.

"She's a stubborn child. Like her father. They both spoil me."

"Of course they do." Dale could understand that.

"Isn't she adorable?" Lee asked, after Mrs. Brady left the room. She slipped down into the chair her mother had vacated.

"She certainly is. I wonder if you know how lucky you are."

"Of course I do. Now tell me about things. Out in the great wide open spaces. And don't skip any details."

They talked about the university town. The installation of the new president there. Prospects of a winning football team.

"When will you be leaving again?" Lee asked.

"I haven't made up my mind. You know, I don't have to go until after New Year's. I like it here. The place interests me a lot."

"I know." That quick little turn of the head Dale remembered. "And I understand that you have been very busy."

"Not very. Puttering around. Getting in a little golf and things. I've been studying, too. Exploring around here. And I've wanted to help father all I could. Getting the place settled. You know."

"Of course," Lee agreed soberly. "Being a minister's son must be quite a responsibility. What have you been studying? I didn't suppose we had much geology around here. That's your hobby, isn't it?"

"It's my job—or going to be. To tell you the truth, I've been getting a kick out of the past history here. I never lived in a place before where things like that happened. Always had a yen for Colonial history and you run into tablets here everywhere you turn. Do you know Thomas Brown?"

"You mean Miss Abbie's brother?"

"That's the chap. Looks like a musty old parchment. But he sure knows his stuff. He's given me a lot of dope and I've been checking it up in the field. I had to amuse myself in some way until you came home."

"And then I had to call you up. It's all right. I don't blame you a bit."

It was growing dusky in the room and the fire was low. But Dale knew the brown eyes were laughing at him.

"Go on," he encouraged. "What are you thinking about now?"

"I was wondering why you hadn't decided to be a minister like your father. You'll be spending all your time in the wilds, poking around with a little hammer, scaring all the birds away. It seems such a waste of time."

They both laughed.

"It's my turn now," Dale warned. "What are you planning to make of yourself when you finish college?"

"Well," Lee reflected seriously. "there are two answers. Both of them are teaching school. I'm too dumb to have a career. What else?"

"Get married. I'm predicting. You won't have a chance to teach long."

"That's the most comforting thing I've been told in a long time."

They still were chatting animatingly when Cassius Brady found them upon his return from his office.

"Hello, young man," was his greeting. "Found your way over, did you?"

"Yes, sir. And almost forgot the way home. I didn't realize it was growing so late."

"That's all right. I know what it is to get in this young woman's clutches."

A LETTER FROM HOME
A WELCOME GIFT to the Former Resident
IN THIS NEWSPAPER

Michigan Mirror

A Non-Partisan State News Letter
By GENE ALLEMAN
Michigan Press Association

Lansing—The state cupboard is bare at Lansing, and so Governor Frank Murphy, in the chosen role of Michigan's "Mother Hubbard," is calling the legislature to meet late this month for another special session, the second since his inauguration.

The governor's predicament is not the source of rejoicing among democratic leaders.

In fact, the governor has been warned repeatedly by important party advisers from Senator Prentiss Brown down to county chairmen that a special session in a campaign year would be injurious to his re-election chances.

It's a pretty mess for all concerned. Consider the situation.

Distributing Wealth

The state legislature appropriated in 1937 the grand and staggering sum of $122,000,000, while expected tax revenues at that time tallied to $104,000,000—a mere deficiency of $18,000,000.

Before legislators grabbed their hats and rushed home, the governor obtained executive authority to trim appropriations. Hopes were entertained temporarily that the budget could be balanced.

In spreading public benefits here and there, distribution of wealth that is popular with the masses, the legislature managed to create new agencies and to load new responsibilities on the state government. Result: More jobs, bigger payroll.

According to records of Budget Director Harold Smith, state payrolls for the first 18 months of the present administration were $9,420,284 higher than in the comparable period of the previous administration. If our arithmetic is right, this sum is around 50 per cent of the anticipated deficit even on the expectation that the state would collect $104,000,000 taxes.

Recession Troubles

Of course, the legislature could not know that we would be plagued by another business decline—known as "the recession."

Instead of the state collecting $104,000,000 in revenues, it will be fortunate to get $90,000,000.

Relief rolls grew rapidly despite the aid of the federal government in assuming a major share through WPA and other work projects. The state's welfare appropriation for two years, starting July 1 of last year, is now at the vanishing point.

Quoting Governor Murphy in a press article: "The state is going to need between $8,000,000 and $10,000,000 between now and next March for welfare. It's a question of whether I should do something or nothing about it. I have decided to do something, but in doing so I am mindful of my friends' warnings that it may mean the end of me politically."

"Painless Taxes"

To raise $8,000,000 or more, the legislature must enact additional taxes.

It is the governor's view that these special levies should function only during the "emergency." And it is quite obvious that special taxes, if imposed a few months before election, should be "painless" as possible—the hidden variety which you pay without being conscious of it.

A state income tax is "out," the governor says.

The sales tax of 3 per cent could be raised one-third to 4 cents, and even with the increased sales resistance, it would be reasonably easy to keep every unemployed family on the public relief rolls.

Michigan's gasoline tax is 3 cents, as compared with 4 cents in Ohio, Indiana, Pennsylvania, New York, Wisconsin, and Minnesota—to mention a few of the nearby states. As Michigan received in 1936 a total of $25,735,000, the money-raising possibility is easy to understand.

The petroleum tax bill has grown to $1,200,000,000 a year from the $130,258,000 paid in 1922, an increase of more than 800 per cent as against a general tax increase of 21 per cent.

Effect of Session

What effect the legislative special session will have on the November election is a topic of lively speculation.

If a majority view of the democratic leaders is borne out, an extra session and new taxes will not help Murphy's chance for re-election. There is a movement under way, perhaps in anticipation of this reaction, to get President Roosevelt to include Michigan on his October speaking tour.

Republican legislators, many of whom are candidates for re-election, will try to overcome the handicap of absence from the bailiwicks before the primary by making fiery speeches and thus providing "front page copy" for the voters back home.

Some democratic strategy aces believe that Murphy's move is cleverly designed to put the Republican majority in the Senate "on the spot." Can the Republicans afford to take an anti-relief position by voting against $8,000,000 or more for public welfare?

We surmise that the administration will have little difficulty in getting the welfare appropriation. Republican opposition will probably center on how the money is going to be raised.

Thus we come to the crux of the whole matter. Who is going to foot the bill? This is the real question today!

The Safety Man

We have repeatedly mentioned in this column that the one thing needed by drivers today is more courtesy. Place a little more trust in your own ability to drive, and make that ability live up to the trust you have placed in yourself.

A great many of our traffic accidents could be prevented if people would only realize that they cannot depend upon the other fellow doing the thing which common sense, or the law, or courtesy dictates should be done.

In other words, in driving today you cannot trust anybody but yourself. Courtesy pays.

Taking Vaccine for Colds

By DR. JAMES W. BARTON
© Bell Syndicate.—WNU Service.

THERE has been much written the last few years about "colds" because colds not only cause many absences from school or from work but are the starting point for more serious conditions such as bronchitis, asthma, broncho-pneumonia and pneumonia.

That colds are due to the entrance into the body of a tiny organism and its products is the belief of many physicians, but there are many "head colds" that can be traced to foods, pollen of plants, lack of vitamins, tiredness, moisture in the atmosphere and infections (teeth and tonsils) which so drain the patient's vitality that a cold has no difficulty in starting up in the nose and throat.

That the use of a vaccine—cold vaccine—has been helpful in preventing or lessening the number of colds cannot be denied, but the results vary from 10 per cent prevention with some physicians to 40 to 50 per cent with others. Also, most of these cases have been treated by injecting the cold vaccine under the skin. It is interesting therefore to learn of results of taking these cold vaccines by mouth instead of by hypodermic injection.

Cold Vaccine by Mouth.
Dr. George E. Rockwell and Herman C. Van Kirk, M. Sc., Cincinnati, in the Journal of Laboratory and Clinical Medicine, tells of their studies of 191 patients afflicted with colds, treated by cold vaccine taken by mouth.

"The patients came from various walks of life—boys in an institution, office workers, medical students, factory workers and school children. In each of these groups half the persons took the vaccine and the same number acted as controls (did not take the vaccine). The patients using the vaccine took one capsule with a half glass of water at least one hour before breakfast every morning for seven mornings, after which one capsule per week was taken throughout the season. One hundred persons took vaccine and 100 did not (controls). All had suffered with about the same number of colds each year in the past.

"Results: During the experimental year the controls (ones who didn't use the vaccine) had 375 colds, whereas the ones who took the vaccine had a total of 94 colds—a decrease of about 75 per cent. There was also a very marked decrease in days of illness from all causes among the vaccinated group as compared with the controls."

For those who suffer with frequent colds the cause of which cannot be found, the cold vaccine by mouth treatment should be worth trying.

Dementia Praecox.
When it is realized that practically two of every three cases of dementia praecox—schizophrenia—or persistent dream state as it is usually described, have their beginning before the boy or girl has emerged into manhood or womanhood it certainly gives us all food for thought. That an apparently average everyday normal boy and girl can develop into "day dreamers," is hard to understand. Sometimes, however, as parents or friends think back a little, they will remember that the individual was just a little "odd," had peculiar notions about some things, seemed always satisfied in his or her mind that the way they did things in school or in the home was the right way even if it was different from the way it was usually done by others. Thus today we find parents, teachers and physicians watching more closely for any of these signs in their children, pupils, or young patients.

Just how the youngster or sometimes the adult got started along this line of conduct can often be traced to certain circumstances of early life—even before the school age—whereby the youngster, by withdrawing into himself instead of mixing, perhaps fighting with, or studying with, others, could satisfy himself or be contented in his own mind, instead of going out among others and being not the hero he pictures himself in his dream state, but just one of the crowd and perhaps not even up to the average in mental or physical ability.

Dr. Benjamin Pollack in the Psychiatric Quarterly says that the main point is that to this patient his dream world is the real world, not the world others live in. In his own world (the dream world) success or gratification is easy to attain and so he is satisfied, and he doesn't want this idea disturbed.

Hints on Ways to Serve Cantaloupe

Sometimes With Ice Cream, or Other Fruit

By EDITH M. BARBER

IN SELECTING a cantaloupe, ripeness may be determined by making sure that the stem has been torn off completely. This shows that the melon was ripe when picked. There should also be a real fragrance and there should, of course, be no soft spots.

Melons should be thoroughly chilled before they are served and not filled with ice at the last moment. While our favorite method of serving them is in their own natural form after cutting and removing the seeds, we sometimes like to serve them with a ball of ice cream or with other fruits for special occasions. While melon balls are often used for salads or fruit cups, I prefer thin slices for these purposes. Cantaloupe combined with honeydew or watermelon gives an attractive color and flavor contrast.

Watermelon Pickle.

- 6 pounds pared watermelon rind
- 1 gallon lime water
- 1 gallon water
- 3 quarts brown sugar
- ¼ cup whole cloves
- ¼ cup whole allspice
- 2 tablespoons whole mace
- 2 sticks cinnamon

Cut melon rind into one-inch pieces and soak in lime water three hours. Drain and soak in fresh water one hour. Boil together the water and two quarts of the sugar. In this syrup cook rapidly the drained melon rind for 30 minutes. Then add the rest of the sugar and the spices, tied in a bag, and cook until the melon rind is transparent. Pack in hot jars and seal.

Orange and Melon Cups.

- Orange sections
- Melon slices
- Mint leaves

Arrange sections of orange and melon slices in sherbet glasses. Chill thoroughly. Serve garnished with mint leaves. A tablespoon of sherry may be poured over each glass before serving if desired.

OLD FAVORITES

Dressing for Green Salads.

- Livers of two chickens, boiled
- Yolks of two hard cooked eggs
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon prepared mustard
- ¼ teaspoon white pepper
- ¼ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
- 3 tablespoons vinegar
- ½ cup olive oil

Mash and mix to a paste the chicken livers and egg yolks. Add seasonings and vinegar, pour in olive oil drop by drop, stirring in the same direction until the consistency of thin mayonnaise. Mix with salad.

Spinach Salad.

- 1 pint spinach
 - 2 hard-cooked eggs
 - Special french dressing
- Chop the spinach. Chop separately the whites and yolks of the eggs and mix with the spinach. Pour over the salad the french dressing and toss well.

Raspberry Ice.

- ¾ cups ripe raspberries
- 1 cup sugar
- 1 cup water
- 1½ tablespoons lemon juice

Mash the berries through a coarse sieve or a potato ricer. Cook the sugar and water together, allowing it to boil for three minutes. Cool. Add to the raspberry juice and the lemon juice and freeze. Since raspberries are of such varying sweetness it is best to taste the mixture before freezing to make sure sufficient sugar has been added. It should be sweeter than you wish the finished ice to be, since it loses sweetness during freezing.

Maple Parfait.

- 4 egg yolks
- 1 cup hot maple syrup
- 1 pint cream

Beat the egg yolks slightly and pour on slowly the maple syrup. Cook over hot water until the mixture thickens; cool, and add the cream, beaten until stiff. Mold, pack in salt and ice, using two parts of ice to one part of salt, and let stand four hours. Or freeze in tray in automatic refrigerator.

Maple Frosting.

- 1 cup maple sugar
- ½ cup boiling water
- 6 marshmallows or two tablespoons marshmallow cream
- 2 egg whites
- ½ teaspoon vanilla

Cook sugar and water together, stirring until sugar is dissolved. Cook without stirring to the soft-ball stage, 238 degrees Fahrenheit, add the marshmallow to hot syrup. Stir until smooth. Pour syrup onto stiffly beaten egg whites, beating constantly until stiff enough to spread. Add vanilla. Cool before spreading.

Colors for Cottage

Colonial yellow, topped with a tobacco brown roof, is an agreeable color scheme for the exterior of a small cottage. The trim and sash are also painted Colonial yellow and the shutters are beige.

Blue-Green and Mulberry

The color scheme of a guest room takes its cue from the window draperies which are of pale blue-green chintz with mulberry stripes and a white grapevine design.

FATTEN COCKERELS FOR EARLY MARKET

Poultryman Notes Ages for Economy, Quality.

By J. C. Taylor, Associate Extension Poultryman, New Jersey College of Agriculture.—WNU Service.

When is the best time to fatten cockerels to market direct to butcher shops, hotels and homes? The answer is: For most economical gains in weight, fatten them at eight weeks of age. For best quality meat, fatten them between the ages of 12 and 20 weeks.

The United States Department of Agriculture found that when cockerels were fattened for two weeks beginning at the age of eight weeks, they gained about 48 per cent in weight, compared with a weight gain of about 18 per cent in a two-week fattening period beginning at 20 weeks of age. Between the ages of 12 and 20 weeks, the older the cockerels were when fattened the less efficiently they were able to put on extra weight. For each pound of gain during fattening, the eight-week-old cockerels required about four pounds of feed, the 12-week-old ones about four and one-half pounds, and the 20-week-old ones about six pounds. The 12 and 20-week-old cockerels had the advantage of a larger proportion of choice breast and leg meat. The younger cockerels had a smaller proportion of choice meat after fattening, as well as before. Cockerels of all ages put most of their additional fat into edible portions other than leg and breast meat. Only a small part of the additional fat went into the breast meat. The proportion going into the thighs and the "drum sticks" also was small.

Cockerels used in the tests were obtained by crossing White Leghorn males with females from a cross of Barred Plymouth Rock males and Rhode Island Red females.

Herds of "Super-Cows," Government Program

If the bureau of dairy industry reaches one of its objectives, the United States presently will have half a million "super-cows." With the help of federal funds earmarked for this purpose, and with the cooperation of state and local dairy organizations, the bureau has launched a project to breed 30,000 herds of superior cattle. As the essential part of the program, it is hoped to obtain for each farmer interested a proved sire, or the son of a proved sire, for his herd.

Approximately 30,000 dairy farmers are now co-operating in the program. Particular emphasis is placed on securing accurate birth records. Herds involved, located in nearly every state, will be known as "pilot" herds, setting a standard course which the owners of other herds may eventually emulate. The Department of Agriculture has recently published a pamphlet entitled "List of Sires Proved in Dairy Herd Improvement Associations." Though the names of the owners of the listed sires are omitted, a farmer interested can get the information from the agricultural college in his state, where the records are on file. The publication contains the names of nearly 1,600 proved sires.

Of Interest to Farmers

Dirty eggs that are washed do not keep well when stored.

A campaign has been started in Ireland to improve the quality of the famous Irish potato.

Someone has figured that 50,000 eggs are laid every minute of the production part of the day.

Twenty-five thousand chicks were flown from Barneveld, Holland, to London in less than 25 days.

Out of every hundred dollars the typical New York farmer spends for operating expenses, thirty dollars goes for feed.

A serious problem of the poultry industry is the lack of proper feathering of broilers in many of the heavy breeds.

Australia's wheat crop is expected to be 163,000,000 bushels, or 12,000,000 bushels more than last season.

A production record of 308 eggs per bird in 51 weeks was established by ten hens entered in a New York egg laying contest.

Much of the mortality that is common to the average pen of chicks comes during the first three weeks.

Grass alone is not enough for high-producing cows. Without supplemental grain they will drop in production, or lose body weight, or both.

Feed and sunshine are so important to egg production that on many up-to-date poultry farms, hens get cod liver oil as regularly as if they were children.
