Work Starts in Improving Seven Miles of M-53

E. B. Schwaderer Also Commences REA Project in the Upper Peninsula.

Work was commenced Thursday on the roadbed of seven miles on spring, that stretch of highway which lies south of the junction of M-81 and M-53, in Greenleaf and Evergreen Townships. One of the first operations will be the excavation of muck soil from the roadway beginning near the north end and ½ mile south of the McConnell schoolhouse. The muck at that point is about six feet deep in the opinion of Curtis Hunt, engineer in charge of the work for E. B. Schwaderer, Cass City road contractor. The muck lying above the marl soil will be taken out and replaced with sand. Other work County Democrats which is planned for the 25 men employed this autumn on this projage work and building culverts.

It is planned to close to traffic the first six miles of M-53 below the junction of that highway and M-81 to the Deford road while highway work is in progress this fall and winter.

E. B. Schwaderer has gone to Kinross where he will direct operations on the Cloverland project of the Rural Electrification Adminison the project, many of them going October 1. from this community. It is anticipated that the work will be com-

Helen Furcsik Instantly Killed

Funeral of Gagetown Lady Was Held in M. P. Church on Tuesday.

Miss Helen Furcsik, 19, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Furcsik, of Gagetown, was killed instantly shortly after 4:00 p. m. Sunday when the auto she was driving crashed into a four-foot ditch on a country road, east of Bach. She was driving alone and in some manner lost control of the machine and headed for the ditch. She then jumped and the car fell upon her. Under-sheriff Charles A. Tucker and Justice Verne Ricker of Owendale who investigated decided no inquest was necessary. The accident was reported to the sheriff's office by Henry Kuhn who lives in that vicinity. Funeral services for Miss Furcsik were held at 2:00 p. m. Tuesday in the Gagetown M. P. Church, Rev. W. Dafoe officiating. Interment was made in Hillside Cemetery. The deceased is survived by her parents, one sister, Mrs. Malcolm Buchanan, and two brothers, Alexander and George, Jr., at home.

Miss Furcsik was born January 21, 1919, in Dabney, West Virginia, and moved to Tuscola County when nine years of age. She was to have been married this winter to Lon Nugent, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Nugent.

Louis C. Rice Suffered a Skull Fracture Near Caro Thursday Night.

Louis C. Rice, Jr., 16-year-old son of Louis C. Rice, Pere Marquette station agent at Bad Axe and Mrs. Rice, died at 9:30 p.m. on Thursday, September 15, in Caro Community Hospital of a fractured skull suffered in an automobile accident an hour earlier when a car driven by the young man crashed into a concrete culvert abutment on M-81, two miles northeast of Caro. His companion, Grant Hogarth, 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hogarth, suffered lacerations and bruises about the face and body.

The youths were returning to Bad Axe after a trip to Caro when the accident occurred. The car rolled over several times and then plunged into a ditch. The boys were hurled from the car by the mpact into the road where they were found by State Representative Audley Rawson, of Cass City, a few minutes after the crash. Rawson called Sheriff George Jeffrey of Caro and the injured youths were rushed to the hospital.

Surviving Rice are his parents, four sisters, Jean, Shirley and Joan, all at home, and Dorothy, of Lapeer; three brothers, Dr. Dexter Rice of Minden City, William, a student at the Kirksville College of Osteopathy at Kirksville, Mo., and John at home.

Funeral services for Rice were held Monday afternoon at the Bad Axe Presbyterian Church.

Americans in Lead As Fruit Eaters

Foreigners Amazed How We Use Fruit Juices

By EDITH M. BARBER

THE American fruit-eating habit always amazes foreign visitors, who are particularly astonished at the use of fresh and canned fruit juices throughout the year. I have, by the way, recently supplied a recipe for tomato juice to an Italian visitor.

The use of fruits, which is such an asset nutritionally, has not been difficult to further, as practically everyone likes both the flavor and the texture. The increase in use has been proportionate to the avail-The comparatively low prices of so many of our fruits and juices have, of course, stimulated this use. On a low food budget, however, the expenditure must be limited to the least expensive fruits in season and to those in canned form which are the cheapest. The money used for vegetables should not be scanted for the sake of fruits.

We can count on both fruits and vegetables, especially in their raw form, to supply us with varying but generally liberal amounts of the vitamins A, B, G and C. Most vegetables are higher in mineral content than most fruits.

The use of berries, grapes, cherries and other fresh summer fruits to supplement the staple oranges. bananas and tomatoes will add interest and at the same time food value to our summer meals. There will still be a place for canned fruits and juices, even in the summer-

Pineapple Bavarian Rice.

½ cup rice 1½ cups milk

¼ teaspoon salt 1 tablespoon granulated gelatin 3 tablespoons pineapple juice 1½ cups cooked, sweetened pineapple, or canned pineapple

1 cup whipped cream Steam rice in salted milk about 45 minutes, until tender. Soak gelatin in pineapple juice five minutes and stir over hot water until dissolved. Stir carefully into rice with a fork, add one cup pineapple and more sugar if desired. Fold in whipped cream put in greased mold, chill, turn out on serving plate and garnish with remaining pineapple.

Peach Souffle.

1 cup peach pulp Sugar

3 egg whites

heit, until firm. Serve with whipped

2 cups cherries 1/4 cup butter

1 cup sugar

2 eggs 1½ cups flour

3 teaspoons baking powder 1 cup milk

Look over cherries and cut in half and pit. Cream butter, add sugar slowly and cream together until light. Add beaten eggs. Add flour which has been sifted with the baking powder alternately with the milk. Add the cherries mixed with a little of the flour. Put into greased mold, cover and steam three hours. Serve hot with hard sauce.

Preserved Cherries.

4 pounds cherries 4 pounds sugar

Wash cherries, remove the stems and stones. Cover with sugar and let stand two hours. Set on stove and bring slowly to a boil, stirring occasionally. Cook until the cherries are tender. Fill hot jars and seal. A few pits cooked with the fruit improve the flavor.

Note—Currants and huckleberries may be preserved in the same way.

Hand-Knits Combine Style, Service for Campus Wear

if knitting in this day and generation had become a magic art whereby designers have dramatized the theme to a point of high styling such as our faithful ever-knitting great-great ancestresses ne'er dreamed could be.

Back to college in a knit bolero frock such as the stunning model to the right in the group illustrated will cause one's sorority sisters to voice a chorus of oh's and ah's of admiration. It's worth the experiment, just see if it isn't! A bumpy crochet cotton lends itself beautifully to this knit design because of its resiliency and smart rough surface effect. Boleros come in so 'handy'' and you can wear this one separately with other frocks if you wish. You'll like the flattery of the figure-molding dress that, together with the bolero, forms as stylish a costume as ever might be.

With fringes all the rage this year you will be right on your toes come autumn if you wear a trim sports outfit as shown centered in the trio. It is knit of a nubby crochet cotton and what endless wear one does get out of these cotton crochets! Wash and wash them and it never fazezs their good looks. Then, too, being handknit, they have style and distinction. It is not only that the fringe that finishes the edges is definitely fashion correct but it gives opportunities for interesting color combinations. The jacket fits snug line, which is a highly important styling item—that of the fitted defined waistline. Wouldn't any school girl, business woman, debutante, clubwoman wouldn't any member of the fair sex that goes motoring, or treks about town love a handknit coat as here pictured! It sure is an inspiration to start knitting needles clicking. It is knit of a nubby crochet cotton in a striking plaid patterning with immense patch pockets of the darker color. They will tell you at any fancywork department where you get the yarn as to effective color combinations. You can make this colorful coat up very quickly if you get at it with a will. Grand to wear to the early autumn games!

Here are a few general items in regard to latest knitting trends. The tendency this season is to knit entire suits or ensembles, the exquisite simplicity of which achieves a smart tailored look. Interesting skirts are ribbed around to simuyour new black knit frock. Sweater jackets are "dolled up" with silver buttons of hand-wrought type. CHAPTER IX

A few days after Christmas, as Dale stood at one of the windows in the Locust Hill Trust Company depositing a modest check that had been a gift from his father, he was conscious of a touch on the arm. A man in the bank's uniform was at his elhow.

"Excuse me, Mr. Farwell. Will you please step into Mr. Marblestone's office? This way.'

In some surprise, Dale followed the messenger to a private office at the far end of the ornate lobby. His surprise deepened when he saw Evelyn smiling from a chair near her father's desk. Marblestone greeted his caller with a genial sa-

"Hello, Dale. Draw up a chair. I've been intending to ask you in for a chat. Evelyn happened to see you when you came in." The banker cleared his throat impressively. "We'll get down to business. When are you leaving?"

"I think about as soon as I can get ready after New Year's."

"You're taking over some sort of a school job for the spring months, I believe you told me."

"Yes, sir." "Um-m. You know, Dale, I've been thinking about you since we had that visit at your house. That profession of yours may be very interesting and all that. But you won't ever make much money at it. And I've got a good opening here for you . . . No, wait!" He gestured with his cigar as Dale started to speak.

"Let me tell you about it. I've often wished Evelyn were a boy, or that I had a son. But it's too late to do anything about that. What I mean is, I'd like to have somebody I could depend on around here. I'm beginning to need someone like that more and more. Mixed up in more things every year. You can understand. Whoever I take on will have a chance to get somewhere and to make some real money. See?"

"That's awfully good of you, sir.

"I know. I know. You're thinking that you've invested a lot of time and money in a profession and that you can't throw it away. You won't be. Scientific training never hurt a business man. Not these days. It's a good foundation. I'll you've learned to look things closely, study them. You'd do the same thing to business propositions. After you had a little training here in the bank, I'll wager you'd be a hard fellow to put anything over on.'

"It never has occurred to me to change my line of work," Dale admitted uncomfortably, conscious that Evelyn was watching him in-

"Of course it hasn't. I wouldn't be interested in you if I thought you were shilly-shallying around at your age. And I'm not asking for any decision now. You go to your job and give it all you've got. Then come back in the spring and see me. And while you're making up your mind to say yes, don't forget this. In two years you'll be making more than you will after ten of fussing with rocks. You'll be "That sounds very alluring," Dale managed. "I appreciate it, I'm sure." He rose to his feet.

"That's all right, my boy. Just you keep it under your hat and I'll be looking for you to report on the job about June. If I don't see you again before you leave-good luck!"

As Evelyn and Dale left the private office, they almost collided with Cash Brady. The lawyer lifted his hat to Evelyn and bestowed a goodnatured smile on her companion in passing. Dale was conscious of a wish that he had not met Lee's father under the particular circum-

"Dale!" Evelyn exclaimed, when the big roadster was in motion. "You don't know how thrilled I am over the idea of your coming back here to stay. I think it's wonderful for you. I'll like it, too."

"It does sound wonderful. So wonderful that I hate to turn it

"Whatever do you mean!"

"It's decent of your father to give me time to think it over. But I know what the answer has to be. I can't do it."

"Surely you're joking, Dale." Evelyn swung the roadster to a skillful halt at the curb in front of the parsonage. She shut off the motor and sat eyeing her passenger reproachfully

"No," Dale observed thoughtfully, "I don't think I'm joking. I've put in four hard years preparing for my own job. I like my work. I feel I don't know the first thing about banking. There's another thing, Evelyn. I want to make my own start in life, first. That's why I know I'm going to decline your father's offer. I don't want to be carried. If you know what I mean." "I don't know." There was a pleading note in Evelyn's voice. "I've been so happy thinking what it would mean to you. I never dreamed you would turn down such a chance." "I'm sorry."

"Couldn't you try it, if-if I asked

"That wouldn't be fair to your father. He asked me to think it over and I will. But I know now what the answer will have to be.'

"By the way," Cassius Brady informed his family casually, as the three of them formed an after-dinner circle about the living room fire. "I heard a bit of news today. Our friend Dale is going to settle down in Locust Hill and become one of the leading citizens."

"Put down your paper and tell us what you are talking about." Brady obliged cheerfully and commenced refilling his pipe.

"Henry Marblestone was telling me this morning when I was in his office. Said he was taking Dale into the bank to learn the ropes."

Mrs. Brady stole a troubled glance at Lee. "Had you heard about it, dear?" she inquired gently. "No, Mother." The brown eyes were watching the needle. "Maybe it's a big secret," Brady observed. "Henry didn't say so, though. He had just been talking to Dale. As I went into the office, with him." "Does that mean Dale will not go back to school?" Mrs. Brady asked.

Dale was coming out. Evelyn was "Not as I understand it. According to Henry, he's going to finish his work and come back here in the spring."

"I think I am rather sorry to hear that." Mrs. Brady said the words slowly.

"So am I," Brady admitted with a frown. "I wanted to see the boy go on with his own work. Always had an idea he might make some sort of reputation for himself."

"Kid! Snap out of that!"

Dale's head stirred restlessly on his pillow. A troublesome dream held him. Pink coming to his side, shaking him roughly and telling him he was late for school. His eves blinked protestingly. Why was the light burning? "Kid! Kid!"

It was Pink. A heavy bathrobe thrown over his green pajamas, hair standing grotesquely on end. Calling in a shrill insistent whisper. "What the deuce is the matter?"

"Pipe down. You'll wake the dominie. Get down to the phone. That Brady girl wants you." Dale groped his way through the lower hall to the telephone, located it and jerked the receiver to his ear. "Yes?" he called guardedly.

"What's wrong?" "Dale, I need you. Can you come Within five minutes Dale was backing the car from the garage. He had waited but long enough to don his shoes and trousers, supplementing his costume with his father's heavy ulster as he hurried from the house.

As he leaped up the steps of the Brady porch, the front door swung Lee, her face white and drawn with anxiety, stared at him pitifully. She seemed unable to

"What's the trouble?" Dale demanded in a low voice. "Is it your mother?"

"Yes . . . I don't know. She and daddy went away this morning-" Lee broke off with a nervous sob. "Take it easy." Dale's hand caught her slim shoulder in a comforting clasp. "Try to tell me about it. Where did they go?' "To Trenton. Oh, Dale! Take me there as quick as you can!" Lee freed herself to drag her coat from the hall tree with shaking hands. "Something has happened," she "The police—they found managed. our car. It was empty! Oh, you will take me!" "Why, of course." Dale sensed the urgency of the situation without waiting for further explanation. Nor did Lee trust herself to speak until the Farwell sedan was slipping swiftly through the empty streets. "It's so good of you, Dale. I'm all right now. I can think, with you here. You see, daddy left on a business trip and he thought the ride would be good for mother. She was to spend the day with some friends and they were going to drive home before dinner.

"Well, I didn't worry at first. I decided that the Hudsons had made mother and daddy stay for dinner. I was reading and it was midnight before I realized they hadn't come home. Hattie was away for the night and I was alone. Then I guess I got rather frantic. I tried to call the Hudsons and nobody answered. I knew that daddy would telephone if he could. "They found your car somewhere and checked up on the tags," Dale suggested quietly. "Go on."

"It was near Penn's Neck. Emp-"Stolen. That explains it. What's Kerney doing now?"

"I don't know. It takes him so long to tell anything. But, Dale, if the car was stolen, why didn't Dad-dy call me?"

"Don't get that myself. The best thing we can do is to talk with the Trenton cops and get the details. It may all be cleared up by this

"Dale, there's something else I must tell you. You'll know then what I'm afraid of. I can trust you. Of course you know about the White case?"

"More or less."

"The trial comes up next month. Daddy's been working night and day on it. That's why he went away. Something to do with some new evidence. He was very anxious that no one know about his trip. He told me that the reporters were trailing him all the time. He laughed about that. But I'm worried for fear there might have been some other reason. Can you understand?"

"I can guess," Dale returned

"The police know it now. But we can say that he went to Trenton on business. Now you'll understand there is only one reason why daddy didn't call me. He-he couldn't!"

"We don't know that," Dale said consolingly. "Suppose you tell me when we get near that 'Neck' place you mentioned. We'll keep an eye out for your car." Dale's foot pressed down on the accelerator. After that, they rode the miles in silence.

"Dad's car has been taken away. I watched both sides of the road," Lee observed when a glow of light against the low-hanging clouds told the travelers they were nearing the Kirridge, Mortgagee, and recorded

"Well, young man," The sergeant stared curiously at Dale's informal

"My name's Farwell," Dale informed him promptly. "Someone here telephoned Constable Kerney of Locust Hill that a car belonging to Mr. Cassius Brady had been found abandoned near Trenton. This lady is Miss Brady. She . . ."

"She wants to know what happened, eh? Well, if she'd stayed home a little longer, she would have found out." Lee took a step forward, her hands clasped beseechingly. "Where are my father and mother? What happened to them? Oh, please .

"They're both okay," the officer assured. "Might have been serious. Your father had got out of his car and was hit by another going past. The driver brought him to a hospital here. Before the accident report came through, one of our motorcycle men found your car and called in. We got busy right away and checked up. Our patrolman reports that your father was knocked unconscious for a while. Bruised and cut a little. The doctors said it wasn't bad. I suppose his wife's with him. It's the General Hospital." "Thank you, officer." Dale's voice expressed his relief. "We were afraid it was more serious."

After another short drive, they found Mrs. Brady in the hospital's reception room in company with her friends, Mr. and Mrs. Hudson. "We were waiting to see if you know if daddy was home. Then after she had answered Lee's anxto call you after we had a report from the doctor and the operator could not get an answer. I was so worried for fear you might get a car and drive down alone. It was very kind of you to bring her. Dale." "May I see daddy just for a minute?" Lee begged.

"Not tonight, dear. They have given him something to quiet him and he must rest. He said to tell you that he would be all right by morning." "But how did it happen, Mother?"

"Your father thought one of the rear tires was going down and got out to look at it. He must have stepped into the path of that other car. I don't know just what happened. I was too frightened." Mrs. Brady's voice faltered and tears filled her eyes.

Hudson promptly took the situation in hand.

"You've nothing to worry about, Lee," he insisted cheerfully. "Now here's the program. We're taking your mother home with us. If your father is well enough tomorrow, I'll home. I may drive him up myself. We can take care of you and Mr. Farwell, too, if you'll stay over."

"Thank you," Dale interposed, "but I must start for home. I ran off with the family car and my father doesn't know where I am."

"And I'm going with Dale," Lee announced promptly. "I shan't let him drive home alone after he was good enough to get out of bed and bring me here. And you're sure you're all right, aren't you, Mother? Very sure?'

"Of course, and so thankful. Good night, dear. Good night, Dale." To be continued.

Dogs Much Like People

The personalities of dogs are just as marked as are the personalities of people. And in dog families, as in human families, kinship is no sign of similarity of temperament. Every breeder knows that shy pups are just as likely as not to occur in litters with bold ones, although it doubtlessly is true that some strains are more prone than others to reproduce shy pups.

The Ginseng Plant

Several plants are often mistaken for ginseng. The ginseng does not have a long horizontal rootstock but a spindle shaped root. Each plant has three leaves each composed of five leaflets radiating from a center; and the fruit is a cluster of bright red berries. The roots are gathered as the fruit ripens.

CCHOOL days are here again, and children will spend an increasing number of hours indoors—studying, reading and writing under artificial illumination. Has YOUR child a good study light?

The lighting of a child's study desk should receive careful consideration, because this is a place where young eyes are being used constantly on tasks requiring close visual application. Children tend to be careless of such things as proper light...and abuse of the eyes through poor illumination often results in eyestrain and impaired vision. This is doubly regrettable when GOOD lighting is so cheap and easy to provide.

An I. E. S. reflector-type table lamp, equipped with a 100- or 150watt bulb, makes an ideal study light. There are also many excellent Pin-It-Up lamps on the market—using the principle of the reflectorbowl under the shade—that furnish good lighting. (These lamps may be pinned on the wall directly over the child's desk.) Perhaps you have a floor or table lamp of your own, one that is perfectly good but which was purchased some years ago and lacks the advantages of a reflector-bowl under the shade. In this case you may buy for very little money a clever new unit called an "I. E. S. adaptor," which transforms the old lamp into one utilizing the principle of a modern Better Light - Better Sight lamp. A diffusing bowl under the shade eliminates glare and assures soft, pleasant illumination.

Our Home Lighting Advisors will be glad to help you with any lighting problem you may have. Call your Detroit Edison office. The Detroit Edison Company does not sell lighting fixtures or light adaptors. See them on display at department stores, lighting fixture stores or electrical dealers.

This county club is sponsoring an oratorical contest which will be held at the Tuscola courthouse on Wednesday, October 5.

All 83 counties of the state will hold similar contests on the same day. The winners in the county contests will then compete in congressional district contests on October 12, the winner of which will compete for the state championship in Lansing the week following and for the honor of representing Michigan in a regional contest at Columbus, Ohio, from which the winner will go to Washington, D. C., to compete for the national championship and a prize of $1,000.00

Cash prizes for the county winners will be announced soon. State final prizes will be: First, $100.00; second, $50.00; third, $25.00. In the regional contests $150.00 will be given for the first prize and all expenses to Washington, D. C., to compete in the national finals, as well as $100.00 for second place. In addition to the national championship prize of $1,000.00, $500.00 will be given for second and $250.00 for the third. Persons eligible to compete are lmited to those of 16 to 24 in age and they must be affiliated with a Young Republican Club or become members before October 1. Entry blanks for the contest and club membership application cards may be obtained from Jennie Mantey, Caro, chairman of the Tuscola County contest.

Each oration will be limited to ten minutes and it must be filed in writing with Jennie Mantey, chairman of the contest, not later than October 1. Each contestant must select one of the ten subjects for his or her oration from the group that have been selected by a group of nationally known educa-

First to Translate Bible Miles Coverdale was the first to translate and publish the whole Bible in English. His version, combined with the translations of Tyndale, and John Rogers, the latter writing under the pseudonym of Thomas Matthew, formed the basis for Henry the Eighth's "One boke" to be placed in the churches. The famous Coverdale Bible was a comparatively small book, about 12 inches by 8. The title page gives no information as to place of printing but scholars think that it was published possibly in Antwerp, but more probably in Zurich.

Company Hopes to Raise Vessel Sunk 138 Years

LONDON.-Lloyd's of London has granted a license for salvage operations on the site of the wreck of the H. M. S. Lutine at the entrance to the Zuider Zee in the North sea to a company of The Hague.

For approximately 128 years the Lutine has lain on the shifting sands in the Zuider Zee. Salvage attempts began almost immediately after the vessel was reported lost and during the following two years, gold and silver bullion valued at $275,000 was recovered by fishermen and boatmen.

Previous salvage efforts under license by Lloyd's have not been encouraged since the total proceeds to date amounted to only about $500,-000. The Lutine bell, used to call the ship's watches, was brought to the surface in 1859 and now hangs in the historic University room at Lloyd's.

Blackie's boss, eighteen-year-old William Dowell, appeared with Blackie in Police Commissioner Heinrich A. Pickert's office recently and accepted a permanent dog license which had been authorized by the common council.

It was on August 19, 1937, that Blackie distinguished himself by backing one Sammy Martin, twentytwo years old, of Huntington, W. Va., into a corner and then raising such a fuss that practically the entire neighborhood was aroused, resulting in Sammy being turned over to the authorities as a prowler. Sammy was too scared to move until the police arrived and Dowell called Blackie off.

Twenty-five Years Ago. Sept. 26, 1913.

John Whale arrived here Monday from a visit with relatives in England.

Regular passenger and freight train service will be inaugurated next Monday on the new Detroit & Huron R. R. between Cass City and Bad Axe.

Present indications would seem to indicate the new farm colony for epileptics will be located in Tuscola County. At a meeting of the committee appointed by Governor Ferris to select a suitable site, it was decided to give the site either to Tuscola or Washtenaw County, and a majority of the commission favored the Tuscola site.

R. D. Keating, on Friday, expects to go to Sebewaing where he will be employed in the office of the D. & H. depot at Bad Axe and expects to leave Cass City Saturday.

Don't put off until tomorrow repairs that should be made today. Keep your car in good condition. You cannot exercise the care essential to safe driving on a highway when your car will not respond to the strain put on it. Sudden changes of lights, and unusual hazards on the road require quick action. Your car must be in the best possible mechanical shape to meet such situations.

How Electric Signs Fool You

A neon e'actric sign is not actually lighted up more than about half the time, although it seems to burn continuously. It goes out and in again 120 times each second, because it is lighted by alternating current. The same is true of ordinary electric lights, except those on direct current (D. C.). Most alternating current is 60 cycle, which means that a light goes on and off again 120 times a second. We do not notice this, for the light image remains in the eye after the light has actually gone, and the new flash comes before this image has faded

FARM OPICS

CAN NOW MAKE HAY IN RAINY WEATHER

Modern Methods Are Used In Making Green Silage.

By Clarence H. Parsons, Superintendent Massachusetts State College Farm, WNU Service,

How to make hay in rainy weather is a trick that has been solved on many dairy farms during the past few years. Modern methods of making green grass silage have done away with the need for long curing in the field, and the resulting product is high in valuable food elements and appetizing to the cows.

Dairymen have been experimenting with this new method of making grass and clover silage for several years and the state college has also given it extensive trials. Up to the present time, corn has been the standard silage crop of the Northeast, but on many farms grass and clover are easier to grow, the yields are as high as those of silage corn, and protein content of the resulting silage is higher than that of corn silage.

Grasses and clover are low in sugar content and for this reason it was difficult to bring about desirable fermentation in the silo until investigators found that the addition of cheap molasses brought about this result. The molasses is added to the grass and clover as it is fed into the cutter. On the college farm 40 to 60 pounds of molasses are added to each ton of grass. Where alfalfa is put up about 75 pounds of molasses to the ton is used. Silage put up in this manner last year came out of the silo sweet and in excellent condition, and the herd responded favorably

Grass silage is best when the crop is cut in a young and tender stage. If it becomes mature and woody, it makes poor silage.

Feed Hoppers Urged

For the Young Pullets

Healthy growing pullets require large quantities of feed, and the best growth can be made only when the birds have free and continued access to the feed. For this reason, advises a writer in the Montreal Herald, we recommend at least three 5-foot mash hoppers 4 to 5 inches deep, feeding from both sides, for each 100 birds, during the early part of the summer. These hoppers should be filled daily with fresh mash, and should never stand empty. On the other hand, if they are filled too full there may be a waste of mash. To overcome this difficulty a strip of lath may be nailed along the top of the outer edge, so as to form a lip and prevent spill-

To prevent soiling the feed, a revolving pole or reel of laths is fastened just above the level of the feed and secured to the raised ends of the hopper. For outdoor feeding, much labor can be saved by using large weatherproof, self-feeding hoppers. These are built with a solid roof or lid covered with tarpaper, which extends out beyond the feed trough on each side of the reservoir, and thus protects it from These feeders may hold 100 to 200 pounds of mash, and thus require little attention in filling. A pullet will eat about 20 to 25 pounds of feed from the age of six weeks up to maturity.

Dangers in Oil Products

Gasoline and kerosene fires cause a loss of approximately $6,000,000 a year on the farms of the United States, according to the bureau of chemistry and soils of the United States Department of Agriculture. They are sixth among the causes of farm fires and are responsible for 5 to 7 per cent of the total loss each year. Ignorance and disregard of vapor of gasoline is so highly exuid dynamite." It is dangerous to home. It may explode from even a tiny spark of static electricity produced by rubbing the clothing being cleaned. Although not so inflammable as gasoline, kerosene also gives off vapors which may be easily ignited. Neither should be used to start a fire in the house.

Farm and Feed Lot

Matured sugar cane contains 18 per cent sugar.

In hot weather the hens need plenty of water, often renewed. Meat which is to be home cured should be thoroughly cooled out but not allowed to freeze before being put in brine.

The origin of "straw" in strawberry isn't known for certain. The word is from the Anglo-Saxon "streaw." The dictionary suggests that strawberries were probably so named because the runners resemble straws. Another source regards the word "strawberry" as a corruption of "strayberry," referring to

It is customary to cover strawberry beds with straw to keep down the weeds, fertilize the soil and prevent the earth from soiling the berries. This circumstance is responsible for the name, according to some authorities. A more picturesque theory holds that the name alludes to the old custom of stringing strawberries on straws and selling them on market days for so much a straw.

Painful and Weak Feet

DR. JAMES W. BARTON © Bell Syndicate.—WNU Service.

DURING examination of recruits for the war the number of cases of flat feet, hammer toe (no movement in the joint of the toe), bunions and other foot defects was very large. While some of these cases were due to "pointed" and narrow shoes, a great many were due to "weakness" of the foot, either inherited or from standing too long in one position—as in the cases of motormen, policemen, clerksor from infection of the joints of the foot from diseased teeth or tonsils.

Today, fortunately, shoes are sensibly built for both men and women, and there is less trouble with the toes, arches and soles of the feet. There are, however, a great many foot sufferers who try various makes of shoes, get all kinds of foot "aids" and yet have no comfort with their feet. In discussing the treatment of foot Dr. Barton disorders in the Journal of the American Medical Association, Dr. Dudley J. Morton of New York states that the first thought is to remove pain and establish good working ability in the foot. The three causes of pain and loss of good working ability are: (1) irritation, (2) deep injury or changes due to inflammation, a (3) disordered mechanics, where the bones of the foot are not being held together or up in their proper places by the ligaments and the muscles.

The "irritations" are corns, calluses, warts, which should be removed by surgery, chemical preparations or X-ray. Naturally the shoes should be properly fitted.

The "injured" foot due to wrong standing, to some infective process -teeth, tonsils, or poor circulation, requires rest, removal of infection, and stimulation of the circulation by hot and cold applications, and light exercise such as working the toes and trying to grasp a small object with the toes.

In cases of "disordered mechanics"-flat forward arch or flat middle arch (the common flat foot), properly fitted insoles (adjusted from time to time) give splendid results under the supervision of an orthopedic physician or surgeon.

Strengthening the Sick.

Less than fifteen years ago panot allowed to eat solid foods, and very little liquid foods. There was the feeling that foods would create waste products which would get into the blood and be carried to all parts of the body. The bowel was also flushed out daily to prevent accumulation of wastes. In other words food—nourishment and building up the body's strength—to resist the ailment was put in the background.

Similarly when a patient was being prepared for operation, he was given small amounts of soft or liquid foods, his intestine flushed out. and often an enema used also to make sure there were absolutely no "wastes" in the lower bowel.

As we think of it now we can understand why so many patients were slow in recovering and why surgical patients remained in hospital about a week longer than at present. It just took this extra week or ten days for the patient to make up for the weakness caused hv lack of sufficient food and perhaps also too much purging.

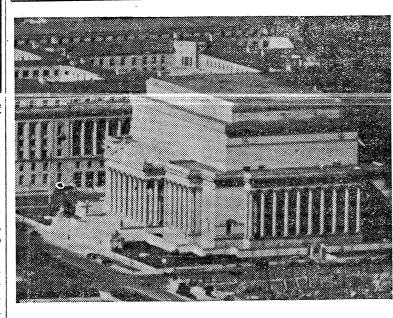

It is also in the last ten or fifteen years only that research physicians have been investigating foods thoroughly, their fuel or food value, the need of minerals, the action of vita-

In speaking of the great advance made in the study of foods by research physicians in well-equipped laboratories, Dr. J. S. McLester, one of America's outstanding food experts, states in the Journal of the American Medical Association: "Nutrition was formerly the stepchild of medicine . . . today medical men are keenly alive to the vastly important part which nutrition plays in the prevention and treatment of disease."

The Pamunkey Indians

The Pamunkey Indians still keep up a recognized tribal organization. At the time of the first settlement of Virginia they occupied the territory about the junction of the Pamunkey and Mattaponi rivers in King William county, being estimated by Smith in 1608 to number hearly 300 warriors, or perhaps a total of 1,000 souls. They still occupy the same reservation and keep up their tribal organization under state supervision, with a mixedblood population of about 140. They live chiefly by fishing, with some small farming, and having entirely lost their language and original characteristics.

PALACE FOR ARCHIVES

Built to Last Forever, Home for Nation's Records Is on Land Once a Swamp

Prepared by National Geographic Society, | in the carved and hollowed tusk of Washington, D. C.—WNU Service.

PERSON shut up in the National Archives building in Washington would never know at first hand whether it was summer or winter, day or night, for the only light will be artificial and the temperature will be kept constantly about 72 degrees.

The air will be cleansed and excess moisture wrung out, lest it shorten the life of the paper. "What is the life expectancy of such a building?" you ask the archi-

"It was built to last forever," comes the answer.

Forever! Yet this was a structure built not upon rock but on land that once had been a swamp. By what engineering miracle was it possible to achieve firmness of foundation?

This building stands upon an enormous "scow" of reinforced concrete five feet thick, sunk deep into the ground and supported on more than 5,000 concrete piles ranging from 15 to 35 feet long. But Washington is low, and this basal structure goes far down below the level of the Potomac. Under ordinary conditions the several strata of clay and gravel would keep the water out. But suppose the Potomac should rise in Would not the incalculable power of the rising water lift the gigantic scow, building and all, and float it off down Pennsylvania avenue? Or, if that is too overdrawn a picture, could it not at least move and crack this important structure?

Provision for Potomac Floods.

All this the architects foresaw. In the center of the concrete scow they left a large sump hole. Down in side it are two electric pumps and a steam turbine. If the water rises above a certain level, it automatically kicks one of the pumps into action. If it climbs still higher, the second electric pump comes to the rescue. And if the flood increases, the mighty steam turbine goes into battle with almost enough power to pump out the whole Potomac. Through a main nearly nine feet in circumference the water would go belching back to the river whence it came.

Every piece of stone in the structure was chosen and laid with the idea of permanency. The base is granite from West Chelmsford, Mass. For the superstructure an entire new bed of limestone was opened at Bedford, Ind. The largest and finest stones ever quarried in this country were sought.

Two giant blocks weighing 120 tons apiece were hewn from Indiana's limestone hills. But they could not be shipped-not without enlarging railroad tunnels and strengthening bridges all the way from Bedford to Washington. Forthwith the sculptors went out to Indiana, and roughed the chunks down from 120 to a mere 90 tons. When the blocks reached Washington, it was found there was no rig big enough to pick them off the cars, and again the sculptors got busy. Working right in the railroad yards, they knocked off enough this time to bring each block down to 60 tons.

Now you may see them, flanking the main entrance of Constitution avenue. The rock on the right has been carved in the form of a Roman gladiator, guarding the approach with sword and shield. On the other side is a female figure, holding a child, with a sheaf of wheat in the background, portraying fertility.

On entering this archives building, all documents will be fumigated, not so much to guard against disease germs as to end the activities of bookworms and their ilk which might eat through priceless pages.

Precious Documents Kent There. Exactly what are the archives which will be stored here? The two prime United States documents, the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution, have reposed in carefully guarded cases in the Library of Congress. In various buildings are numerous other records. For instance, there is a letter that came from the Court of Burma in 1856 seeking a treaty of amity and commerce. That effusion, encased | ing the most against crime.

an elephant, says: "We, who are the Minister and Generals of the King of Burma, the Overlord of all the kings of the Orient, the most Powerful Sun-rising King, the Lord of Saddan, Elephant King, the Lord of Many White Elephants, and the Great Righteous Ruler; and we who are doing homage to the King by bowing our heads to his Golden Feet which are like the Paduma lotus flowers, write this letter to the President and Ministers who are the rulers of both Washington and the countries of

One can imagine President Lincoln's enjoyment of a letter in which the King of Siam offered to stock the United States with elephants to roam in its "jungles" and serve as a source of beasts of burden. All the United States had to do was to send a steamship and the king would provide the cargo of young males and females, he explained, giving grave directions for the care and feeding of the elephants.

With careful courtesy and apparently a straight face, Mr. Lincoln replied that his country's political jurisdiction "does not reach a latitude so low as to favor the multiplication of the elephant, and steam on land as well as on water has been our best and most efficient agent of transportation in internal commerce."

At the state department also, where few now see them, are such documents as the Emancipation Proclamation, bound with a red and blue silk ribbon, and the Kellogg-Briand Anti-War pact of 1928, resplendent with red-silk ribbon and red seals.

With this in mind, a sight of the department of justice building is astounding. In it there is enough aluminum to make not only forks and spoons but pots and pans for a whole city. If the metal today cost what it did when the Washington Monument was crowned, the amount used in this single building would be worth some $8,500,000. Instead, it cost between $400,000 and $450,000, and that includes not only the metal but the entire work of fabricating it. American inventive genius played an important part in developing the electrical reduction process by which modern scientific alchemy now transforms one of the commonest elements in the earth's crust into shining metal on such a scale that we see it on every hand.

A caller at the justice department swings open aluminum doors some 20 feet high, boards an aluminum elevator, looks appreciatively at bas-reliefs cast in aluminum, runs his hand along aluminum stair railings, looks out aluminum-framed windows, and reads by the light of aluminum fixtures. In the Great Court, half the size of most city blocks, is a large aluminum foun-

Where the G-Men Hang Out.

Most spectacular and interesting of all the activities housed in the justice department is the work of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, whose long arms have been reaching out and smiting "public enemies" all over the country.

"I want to see one of the 'G' men."

"Let's see if we can get a permit to see the files where they keep the fingerprints, or look at Dillinger's bulletproof vest."

With such comment, sight-seers already are finding their way in numbers to the first permanent home that the justice department has had since its organization. Their desires can be fulfilled, though few recognize the crack government agents-known through the country as "G" men-who are accomplish-
