

BABS was such a little girl to be disappointed at Christmas, but there seemed no other way.

Her mother called her to the bedside. "Babs, darling," she began softly, "Christmas will soon be here."

The little girl's eyes shone. "It won't be the same this year, darling. There won't be any presents, or well—anything."

"No Santa Claus?"

"No Santa Claus."

"But why?"

"You're going on five, Babs. Try to understand. What we call Santa Claus is really just the love people have for each other at Christmas." Her voice trailed off in a fit of coughing. "That pillow—there—now I can breathe. It isn't I don't love you, darling. I just can't do things this Christmas. That lovely tree last year—you remember it, don't you, Babs?"

"Oh, yes, Mummy."

"We'll try to have one like it next year, if—" She choked a moment. "If I get well."

"Why, Mummy, you're crying!"

"No, no, I'm not. See? Why don't you run out and play a bit? Get your coat and rubbers."

Babs went out into the snow very thoughtful. A group of children were playing down the block, but she didn't want company.

Of course there was a Santa Claus. Hadn't he come last year? And all her playmates—he came to see them, too. How could Mummy be so mistaken?

She hadn't intended to come so far. But it was fun walking on the crisp, crunchy snow. And there, ahead, were men stringing lovely colored lights and loops of greenery on lamp posts.

"What's she want, Bill?"

"I can't just get it. Something about Santa Claus."

"Why, sure, kid. Just down the block. He's ringing a little bell."

The men laughed, and Babs laughed, too. Santa Claus! She would find Santa Claus. The street was alarmingly crowded, but she could hear the thin tinkle of a bell.

Then she saw him, all dressed in red and with a long white beard. He was sitting by a big red box, and every now and then someone would drop money into it. Babs stood for a long while watching, fascinated, afraid to speak.

The tinkling stopped, and the Santa Claus came over. "What's the matter?" he asked gently. She let him lead her back to the big red box. He took her up on his lap, and gave her the little bell to ring. Slowly she told her story. Mummy, who was so sick, had said there wasn't any Santa Claus this year. Babs took care of Mummy. She didn't know how to get home.

"I think I had better see if we can't find your Mummy," Santa Claus declared. "She's probably worried about you. You aren't afraid to come with me, are you?"

"Oh, no," Babs answered trustfully, and carried the bell while he put away the big red box.

They found the right neighborhood with no great difficulty. Babs insisted that Santa Claus come in. "To show Mummy there really is a Santa Claus," and he agreed. Then things began happening. There was a doctor, and a nurse, and Babs must be quiet, and mustn't see Mummy—not for days. Through it all Santa Claus kept coming back, only without the beard or red suit. Until Christmas, that is, and then he came dressed as she had seen him first, even to the little bell, and with a big red box full of toys for her. And as an even grander present, he said that Mummy was well enough to sit up.

He was very tender to Mummy, and carried her gently to the big chair that was ready for her. Babs was sure that Mummy looked prettier than she had ever seen her. Oh, it was such a Merry Christmas! If it could only last!

"My," said Babs, "I wish you could stay here forever."

And the Santa Claus man answered very gravely, "Thank you, Babs. There's nothing I should like better."

But he wasn't looking at Babs. It was more as though he were talking to Mummy.

He's Getting His Order in Early

This wise young man is taking no chances on being overlooked on Christmas morning—and he is giving his order early. Grownups, too, might be as wise in shopping early and avoiding the last minute rush.

SCHOOLS

Ferguson School.

Teacher, Miss Seurynek. Reporter, Velma Pratt. Those receiving certificates for the month of November are as follows: Hubert and Dolores Sopchak, Dorothy Ball, Joan and Robert Atkins, Marcella and Roy Darling, Ellamae Geoit and Gordon and Lawrence Englehart. Joan Atkins is at the head of our Thanksgiving arithmetic chart. She already has 15 turkeys.

For art Friday, the second, first and primer grades made an enormous Thanksgiving basket which was filled with many different fruits. The upper grades made Puritan silhouettes.

Ben and Harold Kitchin are new pupils which we received last week. This makes enrollment of 23.

The primer class have a good start in their Primer Basic Reader.

Roy Darling is at the head of our spelling chart.

The fifth, seventh and eighth grades are beginning a project on oranges and lemons.

Brown School.

Teacher, Miss Norma Ward. Reporters, Florence McLellan and Phyllis Deneen. For art Friday, the people in the upper grades drew pictures of Pilgrim ships and colored them black. The little people drew Thanksgiving pictures.

We had our pictures taken last week. Mary Lou Kilbourn, Lena Dashed and Edward Labioda were not in the picture because they were absent.

Lota Little visited us on Tuesday.

The fifth and sixth graders have been reading books for book reports.

We enjoyed the snow very much. It was fun playing Fox and Goose.

Two seventh graders, Norma and Leigh McConnell, have their workbooks and have begun working on them.

Lena Dashed has been absent for two weeks taking treatments for her eyes. During her absence, the fifth and sixth graders wrote letters to her in their English class.

For morning exercises, Miss Ward is reading, "The Rushton Boys at Treasure Cove."

We are glad that Lucile Delong is able to be with us again. We

KINGSTON.

Feagan-Woytovich—

Miss Betty Feagan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Feagan, and Mr. Benjamin Woytovich, son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Woytovich, were united in marriage at the M. E. parsonage on Monday, November 28, at 7:00 p. m., by the Rev. George B. Marsh. They were attended by Allen Jeffery of Kingston and Miss Evelyn Patrick of Deford. A reception honoring the newly-weds will be held at the bride's parental home on Friday, December 2.

The groom is an auto mechanic. They will reside in this village.

Rev. and Mrs. George B. Marsh returned home Friday from Detroit where they had visited relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Harris will entertain the Kingston Farmers' Club Friday, December 2, for dinner. There will be an exchange of gifts. Mrs. Holmes will have charge of the program.

Mrs. Carrie Everett has returned home after spending 10 days with her granddaughter, Mrs. Allison Green, in Columbiaville.

Russell Patrick is employed in Bay City.

Eugene R. Hartt and Helen Barr, both of Pontiac, were united in marriage Friday, November 25. They plan to move to their farm north and west of Kingston in the spring.

Miss Bess Green returned to her school duties at Drayton Plains on Sunday night after spending Thanksgiving vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Green.

Morganatic Marriages

The origin of the term morganatic marriage is from the medieval Latin phrase "matrimonium ad morganicam," the last word referring to the German morgengabe—morning gift; the meaning being that the children were entitled to nothing of the father's beyond his first, or "morning gift," that is, the privilege of being born. A morganatic marriage is historically connected with an early German form of marriage in which the mund—the right of protection or guardianship—was not acquired, but the morning gift was made.

Third Century Relics

In a Greek city found near Arles, France, famous for its Roman ruins, are a dozen villas, one having 12 rooms, a pagan temple, 52 Greek altars, beautiful jewelry, busts and pottery indicating the community dates back to the Third century before Christ.

Immensity of the Amazon

The area drained by the Amazon and its tributaries totals more than 2,970,000 square miles, largely untamed tropical forests, and the volume of water discharged into the sea annually is probably five times as much as that of the Mississippi.
