Legislature Asked to Change Hospital Name at Wahjamega

Wahjamega, during the memorable county seat controversy which lasted from June, 1860, until April. 1865, was a candidate for the county capital location and was several times designated by the board of supervisors. The county seat was eventually located permanently at Caro.

If desires of Caro citzens are heeded, Wahjamega will lose to Caro one of the principal means that keeps the name, Wahjamega, before the people of the state, for the state hospital commission has asked the legislature to change the name of the Michigan State Hospital for Epileptics at Wahjamega to the Caro State Hospital.

The name, Wahjamega, was coined from the initials of the Village Caucus.

Pheasants Hunters May Wear Tags Next Fall

Lansing - Michigan pheasant hunters next fall may wear identification tags on their backs if a proposal now being considered by the state conservation commission is given favorable action. The proposal was offered before the commission at its February meeting as a possible method of pettering relations between farmers and sportsmen.

Deer hunters for several years have been forced to wear identification tags on the back of their hunting coats, the tags bearing large numbers identical with the wearer's license number. According to conservation officials the method has not only been successful in identifying hunters involved in game law violations, but it has had a deterring effect in that hunters hesitated to violate the law knowing that they could be easily identified. It is proposed to extend the same system to apply to Michigan's half million small game hunters.

The proposal came as a part of a discussion on various county Sunday hunting laws. Several of the state's southern counties are now closed to Sunday hunting. There are now bills in the legislature which would close three additional counties. Although such acts are entirely a matter for legislative action and for local determination, Senator George P. McCallum, Ann Arbor, asked the commission what might be done to clarify the present situation. It is felt that with some counties open to Sunday hunting and some closed, there is an enormous hunting pressure on the open" counties.

The Conservation Commission has no authority to regulate Sunday hunting but stated that it day hunting but stated that it would make every attempt to improve the situation by creating at Bach on January 28 by Rev. better relations between hunters and farmers. Several members of the commission suggested that with kipfer, 16, Caro; married at Peck hunters wearing identification tags, on February 11 by Rev. A. E. Tingfarmers would be given a better lan. opportunity to control trespassers and at the same time the tags might act as a deterrent to hunters who migh be inclined to commit vandalism.

Definite action on the proposal will be taken at the next meeting of WEDNESDAY'S MARKET the commission which will be held AT SANDUSKY YARDS at Lansing, March 10.

Crop Kings Get Crowns at M. S. C.

Michigan's outstanding crops growers won state honors and the trophies that went with the selections in the annual Farmers' Week competitions at Michigan State College last week.

Two Upper Peninsula men are the potato chiefs, but the Lower Peninsula entries won other principal crowns.

Premier certified seed grower of potatoes for 1938 is Amos Ismay, Ir., Crystal Falls in Iron County. He obtained 491 bushels to an acre, 97 per cent U.S. No. 1 grade. Potato tablestocks sweepstakes were gathered in by John Parkka, Atlantic Minue, Houghton County.

The Bibbins trophies for seed production went to three men. Jesse Pickett, Caledonia, took one trophy for his own seed corn production. Jesse Treiber, Unionville, was named for outstanding work in small grains seed work; Fred Katona, Glennie, for production of alfalfa seed.

Another crown went to Jesse Pickett in the corn show for showing the best sample of 10 ears. P. A. Smith, Mulliken, won championship honors for the best peck of white pea beans with a sample of the Michelite, recently developed by the agricultural experiment station at the college as a service to Michigan agriculture.

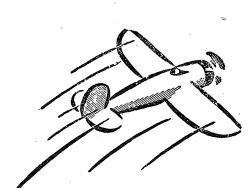

For the best peck of malting barley another of the trophies awarded by the farm crops department of the college in cooperation with the Michigan Crop Improvement Association went to George Aldrich, Fairgrove. Ward Small, Curran, had the best four quart sample of alfalfa seed.

December 14, 1938, Mr. John N. Mc. Alpine, chairman Tuscola County Board of Supervisors. Dear Mr. McAlpine: In response to your request that I furnish the Board of Supervisors with an opinion as to whether or not the county was liable to Earl Laur for compensation for his injury arising out of the accident Sentem per 22, 1938, I submit herewith my opin-

There is no question that the county is an employer under the Workmen's Compensation Act; Section 8411 C. L. of Michigan 1929 specifically lists counties as one of the public employers coming under the act. I consider Mr. Lauer an employee of the county under this act also. I base this opinion on the definition of employees as contained in the act, Section 8413 C. L. Michigan 1929. "Employee shall be construed to mean every person in the service of the State or of any county, , under any appointment or contract of hire, express or implied," I also rely on the case of Curran vs. Delta County, 230 Mich. 694 in which a special deputy appointed by the sheriff was allowed com-rely on the opinion of the Attorney General, 1928-30, page 657 in which the attorney general holds that a deputy sheriff employed on a salary basis is within the terms of the Workmen's Compensation If my opinion is accepted to this point, the only question remaining is whether or not the injury to Mr. Lauer's eye arose out of and in the course of his employment. From the facts of the case, th only answer possible to this question is in the affirmative. Mr. Lauer had driven a natient to the Pontiac State Hospital and was on his way home when the accident happened. The car had a flat tire and removing the flat tire, when the lid on the rear compartment of the car came down and struck him on the head, pushing his eye against the bumper guard.

After an investigation of the law and the facts in this case. I do not hesitate to say that it is my opinion that the County is liable to Mr. Lauer for compensation for his injury.

A Non-Partisan State News Leiter By GENE ALLEMAN Michigan Press Association

Lansing—A paradoxical situation whereby Michigan, the nation's leading state, has permitted commercial interests to exploit landscape beauty along scenic highways this week prompted Murray D. Van Wagoner, state highway commissioner, to propose remedial legislation.

In a public statement released this Thursday, Van Wagoner reviewed the progress in roadside beautification and declared:

"Experience has shown that roadside projects have invited commercial development which has destroyed the beauty of these projects. The state highway department needs a new weapon in its roadside beautification program, ed by a militant newspaper editor That weapon must be a statute in Wayne County, Representative banning grotesque signs, shacks, etc., along our roadsides.

"I favor some type of so-called billboard legislation, broad enough to include hot dog stands, shacks, etc., being introduced in the current session of the legislature."

Not Punitive Bill

must be designed to make our high- them congressional district convenways safer.

"It should not be a punitive measure designed to kill legitimate business. It should not primarily be a revenue measure. Rather, should it aim at regulation.

"Along scenic or tourist routes, commercial boards and signs should be restricted to special zones adjacent to cities and towns. The state highway department would be authorized to designate such routes and zones."

The proposed legislation also would require "adequate and regular maintenance of the signs by the owner." License fees would be used to defray cost of inspections and to further the roadside beautification development.

Although public opinion was strong for its enactment, as evidenced by resolutions passed by women's clubs, civic groups and other organizations, the measure was amended to death and was finally buried in committee. At that time there was a legisfrom billboards, rather than to control them. Commissioner Van Wagoner's latest move in behalf of highway scenery protection is but another step in a department program designed to promote Michigan as a tourist state. Highways have been relocated to bring them closer to the Great Lakes shorelines. Natural stands of timber along scenic roadsides have been conserved through the purchase of right-ofway as wide as 400 feet.

Scores of roadside parks have been created. More than 2,500 picnic tables have been set out along roadsides throughout the state.

As one of the Republican delegates to the Grand Rapids convention who never received his credentials and who had no voice in the voting, Editor Eaton is determined that so-called boss control of conventions shall be done away with.

Do you know that the more electricity you use, the cheaper it becomes? The nature of electric costs is such that prices average down rapidly as use goes up. For example: If you are now using 10 units per month at the regular residence rate, you can buy 10 MORE at less than half the price paid for the first 10. If you are now using 50 units per month, you can buy 50 more at just half the price paid for the first 50, as

Weekly News Analysis-Paris, London Woo Franco In Weak Bid to Oust Fascists

EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst, and not necessarily of the newspaper.

Germany and Italy would not have aided Rebel Spain if they had no aspirations in the Iberian penin-Nor, presumably, would Rebel General Francisco Franco have accepted Fascist aid if he did not expect to repay that favor. These simple facts are being ignored by France and Britain, who now hope to woo the Rebels away from their Rome-Berlin connections to make a peace which would save the defeated Loyalist cause. It is hoped thereby to end the war immediately, giving General Franco a partial victory when he could achieve a complete victory through a few more weeks' fighting on the Madrid-Valencia front.

The likelihood of a complete Loyalist surrender is evidenced by an apparent breakdown in morale, coupled with internal squabbling. An army of 200,000 government troops allowed itself to be routed out of Catalonia. Next day Loyalist President Manuel Azana plumped for unconditional surrender while Premier Juan Negrin boasted he would continue fighting. Meanwhile, in southeastern Spain, Loyalist Gen. Jose Miaja was a virtual dictator in his own right, ignoring both Senors Azana and Negrin. Whether he wanted to surrender or continue fighting was anybody's

Britain and France could hardly expect General Franco to jump at a peace offer from such badly-tattered opposition, but they did. It was reliably reported that Anglo-French interests were offering to supply funds for reconstructing Spain if Franco would oust German and Italian influence. So anxious were the British that they sent a cruiser to carry Rebel Spain's envoy to the Loyalist island of Minorca, where a surrender was asked and won. In return for these gestures, General Franco offered little to the two great European democracies who refused him recognition until all Loyalist hope was gone. His promise: To remove foreign troops, which does not necessarily mean removal of foreign influence. Expected daily is recall of the old Bourbon dynasty to Spain's throne. Probable ruler will be big, sportloving Prince Jaime, not a sufferer from haemophilia (bleeding) like so many Bourbons. Highly grateful to the man who restored his throne, Prince Jaime would be more than willing to let General Franco rule as premier, a la Mussolini.

Vatican

Within 18 days of a pope's death, the Sacred College of Cardinals must meet in Rome to elect his successor. Locked in secret conclave at the Vatican during late February and early March, these princes of the Roman Catholic church will name a successor to the late Pope Pius XI. Attesting to the futility of prediction was the last election, on February 6, 1922, when Pius—only nine months a cardinal -was elevated over the heads of many more favored candidates.

Favored candidate this time is Cardinal Eugenio Pacelli, papal secretary of state who serves as temporary pope during the interim between Pius' death and the election of his successor. Though he confesses a longing to lead the contemplative life of a monk, Cardinal Pacelli has the excellent record of papal diplomat that qualifies him for the job of pope in a year like

Only stumbling block to Cardinal Pacelli's election is the growing belief that a non-Italian might make more headway in settling the current European turmoil. Though the position traditionally goes to an Italian, it is recalled that in 1922 the Spanish Cardinal Merry del Val led early balloting.

.By Joseph W. La Bine_ illegal Irish Republican army. While first arrests were being made and special guards were assigned to the king and queen, Irish Prime Minister Eamon de Valera found occasion to regret the incident. Far from a terrorist, Mr. de Valera has won amazing concessions for Ireland by using much gentler tactics than the extremist Republican army advocates. Today Ireland is known as Eire, having become an independent state associated with the British commonwealth only for certain minor purposes. British overlordship is gone except for far north Ulster, which is largely English Protestant as opposed to the Irish Catholicism of southern Ireland. Main purpose behind the Republican army is British withdrawal from Ulster. Mr. de Valera also wants this but he believes in saner

While soothing London's nerves by asking laws to crush the illegal army, Mr. de Valera probably found himself blushing with embarrassment when P. T. Kelly, an independent senator, arose to "regret that the ultimatum sent by the Republican army to the British foreign secretary had not been sent by the Irish government."

Relief

It is paradoxical that this year's nti-administration congress should be the first to admit that federal relief is a permanent fixture. But this does not mean that the White House and Capitol Hill are agreed how relief should be handled. No sooner had the nation recovered from the shock of congress' independence in slashing $150,000,000 from the relief deficiency bill, than relief again popped into the head-

'Emergency,' As President Roosevelt signed the reduced deficiency appropriation he begged congress to restore the $150,000,000. Reason: 'In my opinion an emergency now The President said WPA's alternatives are (1) to slash 1,000,-000 reliefers from the rolls by April 1 or (2) to oust from 1.500,000 to 2,000,000 via week-by-week reductions from April 1 to July 1. Since each WPA client presumably has dependents, the President thought it was contrary to "human decency" to leave from 4,000,000 to 8,000,-000 Americans stranded,

'URA.' The house received a bill from Virginia's Clifton A. Woodrum which would completely upset the administration's relief apple cart, creating 'URA' (unemployment relief administration). The bill's lightly-camouflaged purpose is to give congress complete voice over relief, hamstringing the White House. Stipulations: (1) halving the President's 1939-40 budgetary relief request of $2,266,165,000; (2) abolishing WPA and creating 'URA' which would report monthly to congress; Adding to their discomfort is the (3) providing for congressional allo- demand by Montana's Sen. Burton state agencies; (4) giving the President $120,000,000 a year to spend as he sees fit; (5) attempting to divorce politics from relief.

pressions. Says he: "American growth has been an 'off again, on again, gone again Finnigan' . . We owe it to our people to protect them . . . from the strains and stresses of an economic system which . . . periodically has hurtled off the track. A program of 'timed' or 'balanced' public works would act like a gyroscope." For proof Mr. Ickes pointed to PWA allotments last June, when the federal reserve index stood at 77. By October the index had risen to 97, and by November to 100.

Miscellany

In Harrisburg, Pa., State Rep. John J. Baker proposed a $50 "baby bonus" for needy mothers, "not to increase the population but to make sure mothers can depend on proper medical attention."

• In Cleveland, Safety Director Eliot Ness claimed 80 per cent of serious traffic violations are committed by WPA workers.

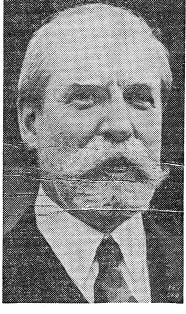

Business

As counsel for a New York state legislative insurance committee. Charles Evans Hughes made a name for himself in 1906 uncovering what he thought to be irregularities. The chief Hughes fear: That insurance company resources were so large as to make conservative, responsible management increasingly difficult. The Hughes remedy: Federal supervision of insurance invest-

Since 1906 Mr. Hughes has risen to the U.S. Supreme court and may have changed his mind. At least nothing has been done about it and the vast insurance fund has quadrupled. Whereas Mr. Hughes suggested limiting new policies to $150,000,000 a year per company, some now write $2,000,000,000 a year. Today there are $110,000,000,000 worth of policies in effect and insurance investments cover a surprisingly wide field. Samples: Government securities, $4,500,000,000; railroads, $3,000,000,000; farm mortgages and corporation securities, $2,000,000,000; state, county and city bonds, $1,500,000,000.

If this business was worth investigating 23 years ago it is even more vulnerable today. Just started in Washington is a 12-month probe by the temporary national economic committee, headed by Wyoming's Sen. Joseph C. O'Mahoney and better known as the "monopoly investigating committee." Chiming in is William O. Douglas' Securities and Exchange commission. Pertinent question marks include (1) what influence insurance investments exert on U.S. money markets, banks, railroads, etc.; (2) how insurance executives are chosen; (3) possibility of interlocking directorates between insurance firms and utilities.

Though the monopoly committee has often reiterated that it is not hunting witches, and although Mr. Douglas maintains he only wants to bring the Hughes report up to date, ing reorganize U.S. railroads. The Wheeler charge: That present insurance company negotiations with carriers feature repeated concessions to investment bankers at the expense of bondholders. But if rail aid presents as many obstacles as insurance men claim, the probable solution of this problem will not be a federal whipping post for insurance companies but revision in the railroad reorganization statute.

Treasury

Statutory limit of the U.S. public debt is now $45,000,000,000, which will be reached when and if congress approves President Roosevelt's new budget. (Current debt: About $39,700,000,000). When congress convened last month it was rumored the administration would ask to raise the debt limit another $5,000,000,000. To congressional fiscal experts who questioned him about the U.S. financial outlook, Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr. explained that it might be a good idea to raise the debt limit. Said he: "I would not be worried to see it (the debt) go to another $4,000,000,000 or $5,000,-000 000, which is the present budget, and we are going to have to ask congress, if you vote this money, to increase the treasury's borrowing power." Mulling over this advice, congressmen decided the official request, which will come from the White House, may precipitate another feud between spenders and conservatives.
