Twins Born in Different Counties

—Half-tone courtesy of Bay City Times.

The two little specimens of babyhood pictured above with Nurse Tula Grassman in charge of the maternity ward at Mercy Hospital, Bay City, were born in different counties.

In the right arm of the nurse is the baby son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Strieter, of Unionville, while his sister is cuddled in the nurse's other arm.

The girl weighing four pounds, 14 ounces, was born at 7:15 a. m. on March 21, at the Strieter home in Unionville, Tuscola County. Dr. H. F. Vail, the attending physician, thought it advisable to take the mother to Bay City for the second birth. At 10:40 a. m., the boy was born. He outweighed his sister nearly three pounds.

Mr. and Mrs. Strieter had five children before the twins arrived.

Legion to Foster League in Thumb

As a tribute to baseball on its hundredth birthday, the American Legion posts of the seventh district have started plans to give to every boy in the Thumb of Michigan—those of at least 17 years of age—a chance to participate in an American Legion Boys' Baseball League.

It is the Legion's plan to have a community and boys' baseball league in every county of the district—Lapeer, Macomb, St. Clair, Sanilac, Tuscola and Huron—and to have a "little world series" among the six champions.

Each county would organize, operate and control its own league, but the schedules would be synchronized.

Colwells Sell Farm and Move to Village

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Colwell have sold their forty acre farm, 1½ miles west of Cass City, to Mr. and Mrs. Edward Golding and have taken the Golding property on Sherman Street in the transaction.

Both families are moving this week. Mr. and Mrs. Colwell came to Michigan in October, 1885, and settled on a farm near Novesta Corners and have lived in or near Cass City since that time, the last 27 years on the farm they have just sold. Mr. Colwell is 78 years of age and his greatest worry is that he will have no work to do before breakfast. Mrs. Colwell, who was Miss Marie Palmateer, is 73. Mr. and Mrs. Colwell celebrated their golden wedding in October, 1931.

They have four children, Mrs. Claud Shaw, Decker; Roy and Ray Colwell, Saginaw; and Mrs. John Beslock, Ann Arbor. They have twelve grandchildren and eleven great-grandchildren.

Her father was a grandson of Jonathan Weldon, Revolutionary War soldier, and her mother traced relationship to Aaron Burr, one-time vice president of the United States, whose duel with Alexander Hamilton made early history.

Guess This One?

Taken When We Were Young

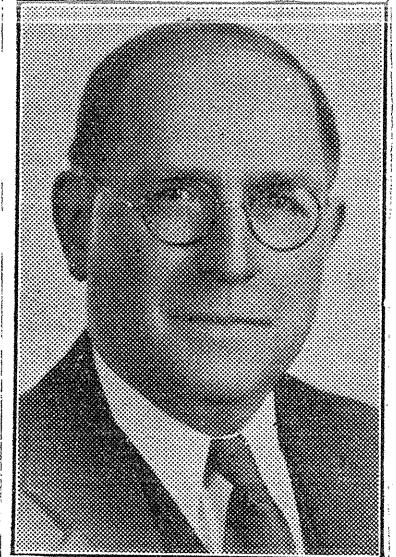

John Gordon thought the picture in this column last week was Thomas Colwell and in John Wright's opinion it was John Cole.

Those who guessed William Martus, Sr., were correct. They included Mrs. John McGrath, Jr., J. A. Sandham, Frank Reid, James J. Spence, Jim Milligan, Mrs. Thomas Colwell, Stanley Striffler, Mrs. I. W. Hall, A. H. Henderson, Mrs. Charles Randall and Merritt Allen.

Here's another candidate for your opinion. Write, telephone or leave your guess with the Chronicle.

A delightful time was enjoyed Tuesday evening when thirty-four friends surprised Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Law, newly-weds, in their home and spent an evening in games and visiting. A potluck supper was served, a beautiful cake trimmed in yellow and green with "congratulations" written across the top, held an important place on the table. Mr. and Mrs. Law were presented with a gift.

PREACHES HERE NEXT WEEK

DR. EDWIN G. FRYE.

Harrisburg, Pa., Editor to Preach Here for a Week

Preaching in the third section of the special Lenten Revival services at the Evangelical Church here, Dr. Edwin G. Frye, editor of the Evangelical Messenger, of Harrisburg, Pa., will begin his part of the series next Sunday morning at eleven o'clock, and continue each night and two Sundays, closing Easter Sunday night.

Evangelist Joe Denton of Medina, Ohio, closed the first section of the meeting last Sunday evening when he gave his address on the subject, "From Gun-Pit to Pulpit," to a house full of people. The address was filled with thrilling recitals of the experiences of Mr. Denton, who is a former British officer, and held the attention of all until the end. Mr. Denton showed that war is not the desirable opportunity in which to demonstrate heroism, but that it is, as he says, a racket, promoted to make rich people richer and poor people poorer.

Dr. Frye, who will arrive tomorrow from Detroit, is an old boyhood friend of Dr. R. N. Holsaple, pastor of the church, and because of his position as editor of the official organ of the church, is often referred to as the "Voice of the Church." He is one of the outstanding preachers of the Evangelical denomination, and is always in great demand as a preacher. Dr. Holsaple says that Cass City is very fortunate in being able to have him here. He will preach next Sunday on the subject, "Was Jesus a King?" In the evening he will speak on "Realize on Your Religion."

The subjects for the rest of the week are: Monday evening, "Much Turn to page 4, please."

LOCAL ITEMS

Mrs. F. L. Morris, son, Fred, and daughter, Nancy, and Miss Cressy Steele spent Wednesday in Detroit. Miss Betty Green of Detroit returned to Cass City with them to assist in establishing the American Book Club. The first class was held Thursday afternoon at the schoolhouse immediately after school.

Coach Kenneth "Bill" Kelly is having a week's vacation from teaching in the Mt. Pleasant High School. He and Mrs. Kelly and daughter, Marilyn, are spending the time with friends in Saginaw, Cass City and Royal Oak. They came here Wednesday and stayed over Thursday to attend the junior play, "Icebound," that evening.

Arthur Holmberg, a member of the high school faculty, appeared before local Rotarians at their Tuesday luncheon at the Hotel Gordon and gave a scientific address on color. He explained what stimulates the eye to distinguish color and with charts illustrated the action on various other waves. Dr. P. A. Schenck was program chairman.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Gemmill were much surprised Sunday morning when they returned home from church to find several relatives waiting with well filled baskets to have dinner with them. Guests were Mr. and Mrs. Lamar Bruno and two daughters of West Highland, Mr. and Mrs. Ned Davison of Clarkston, Mr. Davison, Sr., and Miss Minnie Bradshaw of Pontiac. Mrs. Bruno is a sister of Mrs. Gemmill and Mrs. Davison is a niece.

A delightful spring party was given Saturday evening when Mrs. Mary Holcomb and Mrs. E. Hunter entertained at a dessert bridge in the Holcomb home. The rooms were pretty with spring flowers and each guest was presented with a rose. Bridge was played at eleven tables and honors were won by Mrs. M. B. Auten, Mrs. John West and Mrs. Alex Tyo. Out-of-town guests were Mrs. H. F. Hittle, Mrs. Eugene Allen and Miss Barbara Allen, all of Lansing.

Ten Games on the Baseball Program

Season's Schedule Opens Here on Apr. 21 with a Game with Bad Axe.

An unusually heavy schedule awaits local high school baseball players this season which opens here on April 21. In place of the seven or eight games usually scheduled, this season find 10s contests on the calendar, with five of them on the home diamond.

Wesley Dunn, who is coaching the players, reports 44 men out for positions. The boys have been doing indoor practicing and hope the weather this week-end will permit the commencement of outdoor work.

There's good competition for first base with four after that position, nine have their eyes on the pitcher's responsibility, three are willing to serve behind the plate, and the remainder of the 44 are ready to accept infield or outfield positions.

Gordon Hartwick worked exceptionally well last season in the catcher's position and will undoubtedly be first man there.

The park has been cleaned up for the season and plans are completed to transfer school bleacher seats for the fans. Auto drivers are requested by the players to keep cars off the diamond now that it is ready for the season's play.

Here's the schedule:

- April 21—Bad Axe here.
- April 28—Caro here.
- May 2—Sandusky there.
- May 5—Sebewaing here.
- May 9—Mayville there.
- May 12—Akron there.
- May 16—Millington here.
- May 19—Vassar there.
- May 23—Marlette there.
- May 30—Harbor Beach here.

Ralph Rawson Goes to U. S. S. Detroit

Will Join His Ship After Graduation and a Short Leave in June.

The graduating class at the United States Naval Academy this year includes Ralph Rawson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Audley Rawson, of Cass City. Rawson was one of the 856 young men to enter the academy four years ago. Five hundred of the original number will graduate and qualify for commissions as officers of the line in the U. S. Navy.

All scholastic marks at the academy are combined to determine a class number. The man with the best marks, stands "one" in the class and the poorest, stands about "five hundred." Rawson's class number is "208" for the first three years of the course.

The 2,300 midshipmen in the school (four classes) are organized and disciplined by men appointed from the First (senior) class. Rawson has been appointed a midshipman officer by Rear-Admiral Brown, superintendent, and is a "Two-Striper" in the regimental organization. Thirty-one midshipman officers are senior to a "Two-Striper."

Upon graduation the class will be distributed to 56 ships of the fleet for duty as junior officers. Rawson goes to the U. S. S. Detroit, a light cruiser. She has a complement of 250 men and at present is flagship of the destroyers in the Battle Force. Her duty in war is mostly scouting and convoy. Her home port is San Diego, California. Rawson will join his ship about July 1 in San Francisco after a short June leave.

MICHIGAN MIRROR.

Concluded from first page. if he had possessed supreme executive powers.

Economy to Be Emphasized

A man who has always lived simply, Governor Dickinson exemplifies the watchword of economy which Fitzgerald carried to the capital city.

It was noticeable that in the first legislative session, after the tragic loss of the party's leader, the House of Representatives voted almost unanimously to curtail the spending of the four tourist associations, reducing their appropriations from $25,000 to $20,000 a year. At the same hour the Senate sliced more than a million dollars from appropriations there, easily outdoing their colleagues in a staunch stand for economy.

Again Michigan's "Coolidge" may be well expected to hew closely to the economy line. Home pressure groups, no matter what their interests may be, will be treated alike by the governor. His whole life has been predicated on economy which will hold in all of his official action.

Liquor Control

Although the new governor hates the liquor business, legalized as it is, yet he will probably take a realistic viewpoint on the course of wisdom for 1939.

The state treasury now receives on an average of eight million dollars revenue for the state's part in controlling the sale of liquor. In a year when an administration is struggling to overcome a big deficit and to balance the budget, thus putting its financial house in order, the loss of eight millions would be a major blow.

The new governor is known to look with disfavor on the state's participation in the liquor business, even if nominally for the purpose of control. While he would not trade morality for money, it is believed that the pressing demand for economy will be given temporary preference at this time.

The governor took great delight, as one of his first acts, in signing a bill requiring temperance education in the public schools. Education of the evils of alcohol, together with strict enforcement of the present law, will likely form his 1939 policy on this question.

No Political Debts

In the field of political action, the new governor is singularly free of political debts.

It is being said freely at Lansing that he owes no obligations to vote manipulators such as Edward Barnard, wealthy attorney in Wayne County, and Frank McKay, influential industrialist in Kent County, who pooled their delegate strength at the Grand Rapids and Flint conventions.

To that extent, it now appears that these gentlemen are out at the end of the proverbial limb.

The legal possibility that a succession of responsibility might impose the mantle of official duties on Harry Kelly, secretary of state, has not been received joyously by the Wayne County Republican boss. Kelly owes his job solely to the insistence of Fitzgerald that he (Kelly) be given a place somewhere in the slate-making. Reliable information in that Kelly is independent. A front-line fighter in France during the World War, the Detroit secretary of state likes to scrap. It all fits nicely into the rapidly changed picture at Lansing.

Canny Observer

Legislative leaders who know the new governor intimately agree that he possesses remarkable mental prowess for a man of nearly four score years.

His ability to handle detail work has always been apparent. He has a memory for names and faces that is distinctly above the ordinary. More than one veteran legislator 20 to 25 years his junior has declared: "Dickinson's mind is a lot keener than mine."

From his long experience in public affairs, having been lieutenant governor so many years that he has become an "institution" to people in small towns and rural areas—in general, Michigan's middle class, Dickinson has acquired a canny sense of reacting to public opinion.

He may be expected to proceed cautiously. He has already indicated that it might be wiser to concentrate legislative attention to four major problems: Civil service, labor relations, welfare and budget-balancing.

Just as the legislative trend two years ago was sharply to the left, leaving an $18,000,000 red-ink mark for Frank Murphy to worry about, so the 1939 legislature appears to have swung the other way. The net result, among the four issues, may well be a conservative labor law (taking advantage of the Lewis-Martin C. I. O. feud) and a sharp slash in state spending. The economy trend, if continued, would justify in the eyes of administration leaders a lessening of civil service control, putting fewer state employees under its rules, and a tightening up of the purse strings for welfare expenditures.

Dependence on Advisors

Because of the physical limitations imposed by his age, together with the general desire of party leaders to protect him against strains of the office, Governor Dickinson will depend to a greater extent than recent executives on administrative assistants and advisors.

The brunt of work is being divided among such men as Emerson R. Boyles, legal advisor; Leslie B. Butler, secretary to the governor; Gilbert Shilson, "secretary without pay" pending outcome of the utility commission case in court; and the ranking chairmen of important committees in both the Senate and House.

Senator Felix H. Flynn, president pro tem of the Senate, is one of the governor's intimate friends. The moving finger writes, and Michigan's octogenarian governor, Coolidge-like in his credo of life, is the new man of the hour. Interesting history is still in the making.

Used Enameled Bricks Ancient rulers of Egypt and Assyria used enameled bricks of many tints and great beauty for the decoration of their palaces. Greeks and Romans were also skilled in the art of enameling. It was not until 1870, however, that the first enameled bath tub was made by modern industry.

Household Hints

By BETTY WELLS

ALL politics aside, I have to take issue with Mrs. Roosevelt on the subject of dining rooms. She thinks they can very well be dispensed with in the small home of moderate means. And so they can, but not very conveniently.

If there's a family of children—and people still have them as Mrs. Roosevelt should know—there are regular meals to serve. And eating in a corner of the living room gets to be pretty tiresome three times a day. It's all right for the career girls you read about who eat breakfast on the fly and just have dinner at home now and then for a lark. Or for a young couple just starting out.

But I say, for convenience's sake, that the lady with a busy active family had better think twice before she gives up her separate dining room. There are so often problems of finding space for so many straight chairs in the combination room, not to mention the question of storage space for linen, silver, china and glass.

Another point to consider in the active family is the fact that the living room is kept pretty busy doing its own job properly without having to double up. And I always feel there's something to be said for maintaining the dignity of a dining room and respect for the fine ritual of dining. Goodness knows, manners and tranquility are hard enough to achieve at best . . .

somehow a dining room seems to make that easier. Between meals a separate dining room provides a grand place for study or reading when the living room is busy with conversation or games.

So—however handsome that extra big living-dining combination room looks, be sure you know what you're giving up when you decide on one big room instead of two smaller ones.

Books Are Good to Look At. No, I'm not going mathematical on you. My ideas on bookkeeping have nothing to do with figures and trial balances. But I have a lot to say about the kind of books you read, and how to keep them where they'll be both handy and decorative.

For, make no mistake about it, books are as good to look at as they are to read; one important decorator I know is even going so far as to paint books on the walls of a new room he's doing—they'll take the place of a mural decoration. While I'm not advocating anything so fancy as that, I do hope to make you appreciate your books as decoration.

Barbara Bennett Downey, wife of the crooner, sister of the stars and mother of five, is quite a reader—she has book shelves built under the window sills of each window in her bedroom in the country. Literary folk often have their bed set into a niche lined with books—add a reliable pair of eyes and a good light and who'd ask for more out of life than a shelf of books.

And why not combine dining room and library? Nothing would give more genuine distinction to an otherwise innocuous room than one wall with book shelves to the ceiling. If this happens to be the window wall, make a window seat between and add plump cushions. If it should be the wall against which you need to have your sideboard, that's all right too—books would make rather a handsome background for candlelight and the fine gleam of silver or brass. The pattern books make on a wall has charm in itself.

If you have a collection of books you're proud of, there's no reason why they shouldn't have the spotlight in your living room. Use them instead of the fireplace as the center of interest—they're pleasant to gather around these winter nights. Or else sink a single shelf into the walls all around the room at about eye level or just below; this will give quite a smart design to the wall, particularly if you have indirect lighting concealed in the shelf.

This is a little off the subject but it's worth saying—don't be diffident about discarding books.

Fire-Walkers Rely on Faith
Fire-walkers claim faith protects them from injury as they walk bare-footed across a bed of hot stones or smoldering ashes, says Collier's Weekly. Others claim fire-walking is a trick the fanatics are able to stage because they use a fuel that is a bad conductor of heat, because they walk so rapidly that the contact is too brief to cause a burn and, lastly, because they are able to induce some kind of anesthesia.

How Shakers Originated
The organization of Shakers, known also as the Millennial church, and the United Society of Believers, originated in England in 1747 in a movement by Jane and James Wardley. They were joined by Ann Lee of Manchester, who claimed to be Christ in a second reincarnation, and who came to America in 1774 with seven converts, establishing a small church at Watervliet, N. Y.

Location of Libby Prison
Libby prison, which was a ship-chandler's warehouse prior to the Civil war, was secured by the Confederate government and used as a military prison during the Civil war. It was located at Richmond, Va., was three stories high in front and four behind and contained six rooms (100 feet by 40 feet), where as many as 1,200 Federal soldiers at one time were confined for months.

Oldest Government Mansion
The Old Spanish Governor's palace, located in the heart of San Antonio, Texas, is probably the oldest governor's mansion in North America. Although the exact date of its construction is not definitely known, it is known that it was used by Spanish viceroys as early as 1749—perhaps earlier. It is restored and maintained as it was originally built.

Camel Market in Desert
The camel market at Tripoli, North Africa, where Arabs from all the Sahara bring their camels and burros for trading, is the "stock exchange" of North Africa. Prices for camels, burros, et al, are established here and used as the basis for trade for distances of a thousand miles into the desert.

APRIL FOOLS' DAY

For almost four centuries practical jokers have had one day each year—April 1st—in which to victimize their friends.

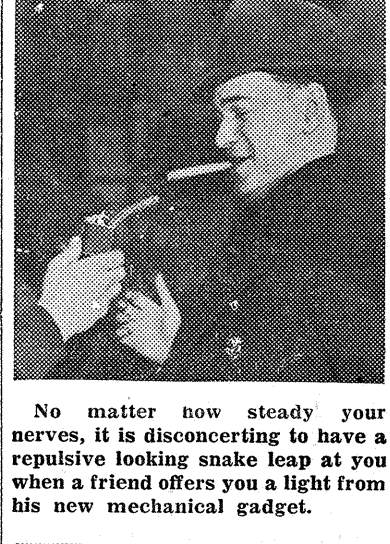

Thought to have originated in France in connection with the calendar reformation of 1564, All Fools' day spread rapidly and today is observed in many lands, particularly our own. Even the children aren't safe. This lad, finding the jam jar, is unpleasantly surprised when a five-foot "snake" lunges at him.

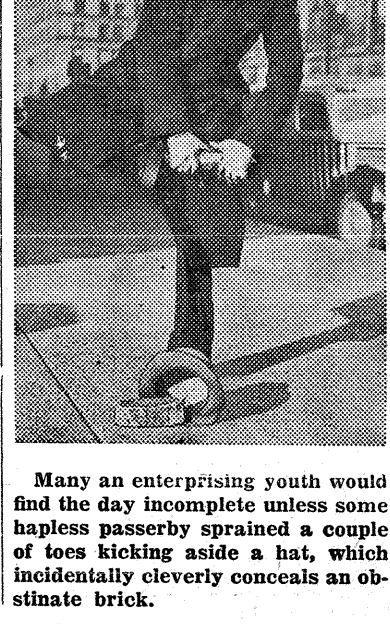

Smokers, natural prey of tricksters, have good cause to be wary. Here an exploding match, handed the unhappy smoker, adds little to his enjoyment.

Whenever a harassed guest strikes a match, all the remaining matches in this trick box jump out. The polite guest, often unaware, will pick them up again. The hardened practical joker appreciates this.

No matter how steady your nerves, it is disconcerting to have a repulsive looking snake leap at you when a friend offers you a light from his new mechanical gadget.

Many an enterprising youth would find the day incomplete unless some hapless passerby sprained a couple of toes kicking aside a hat, which incidentally cleverly conceals an obstinate brick.

Bearing Troubles
Never attempt to bear more than one kind of trouble at once. Some people bear three kinds—all they have had, all they have now and all they ever expect to have.—Edward Everett Hale.

Sportsman's Paradise
Anticosti is an island located in the Gulf of St. Lawrence some 45 miles beyond the tip of the Gaspe peninsula. It contains 3,000 miles of forests and rivers and is literally a sportsman's paradise.

CHAPTER VI

It was half past ten, and Mary sat with flushed face and icy hands in the reception room of The National Weekly. She had arrived exactly at the stroke of ten, and, after giving her name to the efficient receptionist, had been told that Mr. Buchanan was in, that he was occupied at the moment, and to sit down, please.

Two other persons had now entered the reception room; a good-looking young man with an intense air; a swarthy girl of twenty-five or so. "But I'll be next," Mary told herself excitedly, her hands like blocks of ice beneath their tan suede gloves.

The other callers had disappeared through mysterious doors and Miss Hickenlooper, the secretary, was now speaking through one of the telephones in response to a buzz that had resounded throughout the reception room. "All right, Miss Loring," she said. "Your turn now."

Mary jumped to her feet, dropping her purse as she did so. Miss Hickenlooper raised a supercilious eyebrow. "Your purse, Miss Loring," she said coldly. "And you'd better take your coat with you."

"Hateful woman!" Mary thought, her face suffused with a deep red. "She probably knows I'm excited."

"To the right, please," Miss Hickenlooper was saying. "Office at the end of the corridor."

"Thank you," Mary said coldly and, elevating her chin ever so slightly, stepped through the door that led into the working quarters of The National Weekly.

Offices opened off to the right and left of the long narrow hall but, with eyes straight ahead, she made for the one at the end—the sanctus-sanctorum of the lot—the office of Phillip Buchanan.

She stood in the doorway an instant before the man at the desk became aware of her presence. He was scanning a typed letter, and a deep frown made a furrow between his eyebrows. He looked austere, and Mary, none-too-assured at best, felt increasingly nervous.

Suddenly, he glanced up, and seeing her standing there, rose hastily from his chair, a puzzled expression on his face. He was taller than one would have judged, seeing him sitting down, glaring at that letter. He was as tall as Chris. "Is this—Miss Loring?" he asked, and the fear that he had inspired in her was instantly dispelled. His voice was kind, young—with the faintest trace of a Harvard accent.

She smiled at him. "Yes, I am Mary Loring."

"You took me rather by surprise," he said. "Oh! But I thought Miss Hickenlooper announced me!"

"She did, of course. I mean that I was hardly prepared for a debutante. 'At Sea' has the wisdom of years in its theme."

"I'm twenty-two," Mary replied, as if that explained everything.

"Yes, one of our readers." Then, evidently sensing her disappointment, he explained. "You see, all material submitted to The National Weekly goes through a regular routine. Mr. Johnstone reads it first, separates the wheat from the chaff; hands on the possibilities to Mr. Arbuckle, who in turn does a bit more weeding. After which, whatever is left goes on to Mr. Van Winkle. He then picks what he considers best suited to our needs and sends it on to me. A sort of survival of the fittest, as it were!"

"Heavens, what a test!" Mary replied, that elusive dimple playing at one corner of her mouth. "I'm surprised that anything ever reaches your desk! I had supposed . . ."

"That I read everything that comes to the office? Lord, no! I couldn't wander through all that trash! However, you may rest assured that your story—what's the title, by the way?"

"Their Son," Mary replied. "You may rest assured that 'Their Son' will be given a sympathetic reading. We like your style, and the realistic manner in which you handled the situations in 'At Sea.'"

Once an author has appeared within our pages, he's given, as far as we're concerned, a place in the sun. In fact, on second thought, I'll probably just turn this over to Mr. Van Winkle—not put it through the mill."

He glanced abruptly at the dull gold watch strapped to his wrist. "Lord! It's nearly one o'clock, and I have an engagement with Ford Hansen at two. How about having a spot of lunch with me, Miss Loring?"

Mary's hands clutched convulsively beneath the protection of the coat which lay across her lap, and, to her embarrassment, her face flushed scarlet. Phillip Buchanan, the editor-in-chief of the most popular magazine in the United States was asking her to have a "spot of lunch" with him! "Why, thank you," she managed to reply. "That will be fun."

Buchanan leaped from his chair, and went towards a cupboard at the far end of the room. "All right," he said. "Let's go." And opening the door, he dragged out a camel's hair top-coat, and slid into it. "I want to talk to you about a series of shorts, and this is a swell opportunity."

Mary felt dizzy with excitement as she and Phillip Buchanan, closeted in one of the silent elevators of the building which housed The National Weekly, descended twenty floors to the lobby. Mr. Buchanan was taking her to lunch! Mr. Buchanan wanted to talk to her about a series of "shorts" for his magazine. She mentally estimated how many words she could write a day; how many hours it would take to revise and polish what she had written. She must not be hasty or careless. She should, she figured, allow herself two mornings for the original composition, two additional mornings for revision, and a fifth sitting, perhaps, for perfect retyping of the script.

They had reached the lobby, now, and were heading for the street door. "I say," Mr. Buchanan began, "you don't mind barging all the way down to the Lafayette, do you? My appointment with Hansen's in that neighborhood."

Mind! Mary would have gone to Chinatown, or Great Neck, or Timbuktu with him, had he suggested one of those spots as a luncheon place! "I don't mind at all," she returned. "I've wanted to see the Lafayette ever since Greta Garbo appeared in 'Romance.'"

Mr. Buchanan looked puzzled. "Romance? Oh, yes, I remember now. All about a young minister who fell in love with an actress! That's right. Some of the scenes were supposed to be laid at the Lafayette. Well, I don't know that you'll find a great deal of the atmosphere of the sixties remaining, but it's a good place to eat. Come on, we'll hop a taxi."

Once in the cab, he settled himself comfortably back against the leather cushions, as if to snatch a bit of rest while the opportunity offered, lit a cigarette, and said, "Well, tell me something about yourself, Miss Loring. You're from some small town in the West, aren't you?"

Mary glanced shyly at the clear-cut lines of the man's profile. He looked rather bored. No doubt his taking her out to lunch was only a necessary evil as far as he was concerned—the courteous gesture made by a publisher to one of his contributors. Perhaps he was asking her to talk about herself merely in order to avoid the trouble of making conversation. "My home's in Hawkinsville, Iowa," she began obediently, feeling that at heart he wouldn't care if she hailed from the Fiji Islands. "I'm just visiting my aunt in New York for a while."

"Oh, so your aunt lives here?" "Yes, my mother's sister. But she's going South sometime in March, and I'll probably return to Hawkinsville. I—I really would like to stay in New York indefinitely."

"Why would you like to stay in New York?" Mr. Buchanan asked. "I should think it would be easier to write in a country town, away from all the hurrah. Besides, you're right in touch with a certain type of life which, judging from 'At Sea,' you're particularly capable of handling. Hawkinsville is a country town, isn't it?"

"I suppose that's what you'd call it, Mr. Buchanan," Mary replied, hating herself for the resentment that had crept into her voice. "The population's almost ten thousand." Then, with a chuckle, "In fact, it's been almost ten thousand for the past fifty years! Most of the boys leave for Saint Louis or Chicago to get positions as soon as they're finished with high school or college. Some of the girls marry and go away. A few new families dribble into town every year, and the men get employment at the leather factory. People die, babies are born, but the population remains the same."

The man finally looked at her. "That's interesting," he commented, and the faint lines around his mouth crinkled with amusement. "Tell me. What are the—entertainments? What do people do all the time?"

"Well," Mary replied, warming under his half smile, "there's the little country club, three miles from town, and set high up on the bluffs overlooking the Mississippi. The men, and some of the women, play golf there during the summer, and every Saturday night there's a dinner dance with Swanson's orchestra from Burlington to furnish the music; and even though Art Swanson could never, in anyone's wildest moments, be termed a second Paul Whiteman, the music is good. Really, it is! Then, there are two movie houses, and often we get pictures that haven't even been released in Saint Louis yet. And, of course, the churches are very active, and there are any number of church dinners during the winter, with the women of the guild cooking and serving the food themselves."

"And darned good food, I bet it is!" "Oh, is it! Fried chicken and cream gravy, and corn on the cob, in the summer, with great slabs of chocolate cake and home-made ice-cream. And in the winter, luscious ham, all coated with crisp, brown sugar and baked in wine, Boston baked beans, and loads and loads of tiny biscuits, fresh from the oven."

"Stop! You're making my mouth water! Lord! The people in those small towns know how to live!" "In—more ways than one," Mary said tensely, her thoughts flashing back to her father and mother; a sudden wave of homesickness and pity assailing her. "At least, they know what life is all about. They're closer to it, somehow, than people in the cities. Closer to Life—and Death—closer to each other. Sometimes, you get annoyed because everybody in town seems to know your innermost secrets—yet, on the other hand, you know that those very same people care—and care terribly when you're sick or dying, or in trouble."

Her cab was drawing up before the Lafayette, and Phillip Buchanan turned abruptly and faced her. "That is the kind of people you must write about!" he said. "That's the life you know. You were born to it. You were raised in it. You've been steeped in that atmosphere. Now, write about it!" And with an energetic jerk, he tugged open the door of the taxi.

Don't Forget to Vote!

Monday, April third, is Town Meeting Day, otherwise Township Election Day.

Every voter should go to the polls. His greatest duty on that day is to vote. He has no work more important no matter what his business.

Next Monday is not just another Township Election. There are many important questions the voter will be asked to consider. Some of them involving constitutional amendments. Some state and county officers are to be chosen. You should express your wish in their choice.

You will again be asked to register your wish regarding a proposed constitutional amendment for the non-partisan election of all state judges—where the voters actually choose the judges by their own ballots. No appointment by any governor as in the last proposal. That question alone is enough to call every voter to the polls. It will be known as "proposal No. 1." It contains only a few words and is easy to read and to understand. Give it a moment or two of your serious study. Do your best to rescue Michigan's judiciary from the baneful influence of partisan politics. Such is your duty to our state.

Voting is a citizen's most precious and most dearly bought political right. Don't throw it away nor allow it to become stale by inaction. A vote cast by every voter will keep our government clean and the dictators away. It shows how seriously we take our government. It shows our interest in self-government. We should always exercise our right to vote as though some great moral question were at stake.

Monday, April third, is the day. Let's do our duty.

Respectfully,

WILLIAM MILLER.

"Steps going down" accurately describes your residence electric rate—and liberal use of the thrifty third step is wise economy. As your use of electricity goes UP, your average cost goes DOWN . . . so that you can enjoy unstinted use of lighting and household appliances without adding much to your bill.

Consider how much ONE CENT accomplishes at the low third step in your rate: 1c will run your electric clock a whole week . . . or beat 120 egg whites, 4 at a time . . . or tune in your favorite radio program for the whole evening . . . or chill your electric refrigerator for more than 10 hours . . . or burn a hall light all night long.

Labor-saving and time-saving electric appliances repay many times over the small amount they add to your bill. Prove this to yourself by using all the electricity you need. Electricity is cheap!

Oath of the Athenian

The oath of the Athenian young man is as follows: "We will never bring disgrace to this, our city, by any act of dishonesty or cowardice; we will fight for our ideals and sacred things of the city, both alone and with many; we will reverence and obey the city's laws and do our best to incite a like respect and reverence in those about us; we will strive unceasingly to quicken the public's sense of civic duty, and thus in all these ways we will strive to transmit this city not only not less but greater, better and more beautiful than it was transmitted to us."

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

"There is only a curtain between us, Between the beyond and the here; They whom they call dead have not left us, Nay, they were never so near."

In memory of Brother William Merchant, who died March 24, 1939.

Once again a Brother Mason, having completed the designs written for him on life's trestle board, has passed through the portals of Eternity and entered the Grand Lodge of the New Jerusalem and has received as his reward, the white stone with the new name written thereon.

And whereas, the all-wise and merciful Master of the universe has called from labor to refreshments our beloved and respected brother.

And whereas he having been a true and faithful brother of our beloved Order, therefore, be it Resolved, That Tyler Lodge No. 317, F. & A. M. of Cass City, Mich., in testimony of her loss, be draped in mourning for thirty days, and that we tender to the family of our deceased brother our sincere condolence in their deep affliction, and that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family.
