Three New Faces on Tuscola County Supervisor Board

Slip Candidates Increase the Interest in Three of the Township Elections.

When the board of supervisors of Tuscola County convene for their April session on the 11th, there will be three new faces in the organization. Henry Harris comes from Kingston Township where James Green, incumbent, was not a candidate for renomination. L. C. Draper defeated Henry VanWagnen in the Millington caucus and won again over Mr. VanWagnen, incumbent, when the latter ran on slips at Monday's election. L. D. Haines, defeated for nomination in Tuscola Township, was elected supervisor to succeed himself. He ran on slips. Willis Jamieson is the new supervisor from Watertown. He succeeds Mr. Robertson, who declined to serve any longer.

The following are members of the board to serve the coming year:

Akron—Truman Ackerman.
Almer—Ernest Luder.
Arbela—Edmund Miller.
Columbia—William Barriger.
Dayton—Fred Mathews.
Denmark—Carl Keinath.
Elkland—William Profit.
Ellington—Fred Hutchinson.
Elmwood—Roy LaFave.
Fairgrove—John N. McAlpine.
Fremont—Frank Schott.
Gilford—Lewis H. Massoll.
Indianfields—W. H. Gunsell.
Juniata—William E. Higgins.
Kingston—Henry Harris.
Koylton—Neil H. Burns.
Millington—L. C. Draper.
Novesta—Walter Kelley.
Tuscola—L. D. Haines.
Vassar—James R. Blackmore.
Watertown—Willis Jamieson.
Wells—Edgar Ross.
Wisner—Robert MacFarlane.

Elkland Township.

The only excitement in Elkland Township Monday was a contest for justice of the peace when Martin McKenzie, slip candidate, was defeated by William Miller, caucus nominee, by a vote of 139 to 127 votes. On the state ticket, Elkland Republicans voted 190 straight ballots and Democrats 22. On propositions—No. 1 carried with 126 yes to 90 no. No. 2 was defeated, 74 yes, 115 no.

Township officers elected are: Supervisor, William Profit; clerk, Charles E. Patterson; treasurer, Alex Henry; justice, full term, William Miller; justice, to fill vacancy, John C. Corkins; member of board of review, Joseph E. Crawford; highway commissioner, William Helwig; constables, Ray Fleenor, Robert Wallace, Andrew Bigelow and Harold Greenleaf.

Elmwood Township.

Charles Grady, who withdrew his name at the Elmwood caucus in the race for treasurer, ran on slips Monday and received 177 votes, the same number as received by Mrs. Carrie Russell, the nominee on the ticket. Mr. Grady won the position in the drawing by lot. Other candidates elected are: Supervisor, Roy LaFave; clerk, Harlan Hobart; highway comissioner, John Kennedy; justice, Samuel McCreedy; member of board of review, William Simmons; constables, Bruce Brown, Stephen Moore, Richard Burdon and Charles Seekings.

Large Audience at the Junior Play

Thursday evening, March 30, a large audience witnessed the presentation of the junior play, "Icebound," by Owen Davis, an especially difficult production to present as it required an unusual emphasis of character portrayal and this was exceptionally well done. Many spectators declared it one of the very best junior plays given by the school.

The play was presented under the direction of Daniel Kroll, speech instructor of the high school, with Ruth Lounsbury as student director; Betty Hudson, understudy; Neville Mann, stage manager; and Leonard Bartle, stage assistant.

The following juniors were members of the cast: Betty Brown, Bruce Stine, John Park, Mary Jayne Campbell, Carol Heller, Betty Mark, Marjorie Tyo, Robert Profit, Alice Anthes, Alton O'Connor, Hazel Corkins and Dale McIntyre.

Rummage Sale.

The Methodist ladies' spring rummage sale will be held at the Council Rooms Saturday, April 15, and opens at 9:00 a. m.—Advertisement.

WILL ACT AS CRITIC AT BAND FESTIVAL HERE

GRAHAM T. OVERGARD

nationally known conductor and authority on instrumental music, will serve as critic and conductor at Tuscola County Band Festival in Cass City on Friday, April 14.

Achievement Day Here on April 17

A Style Revue and Exhibits Will Feature the Program for the Day.

The Cass City Extension Group, assisted by the Bethel and Elmwood groups, will be hostesses to the fourteenth Tuscola County Achievement Day to be held in the Cass City High School auditorium on Monday, April 17.

The main feature of the day's program will be a style revue under the supervision of Mrs. Louise Huston, educational director of the American Bemberg Corporation of New York City.

Mrs. E. L. Benton of Lansing, wife of Tuscola County's former agricultural agent, is expected to be present to direct the recreational period.

Each of the twenty groups of the county will have exhibits of the year's accomplishments on display.

The Methodist Ladies' Aid are making arrangements to serve dinner at noon on Achievement Day to visiting delegates.

Everyone, men and women, are cordially invited to all activities of the day.

Cass City Library Is Granted State Aid

The Cass City Public Library has received a check for $39.58 from the State Board for Libraries, representing the third quarterly payment to be granted this year from the state aid General Library Fund.

Distribution of the third quarterly installment is now being made to those libraries which have sent in the necessary data regarding their receipts from local tax sources during the first half of the fiscal year. This information is necessary as state aid payments from the General Fund are dependent upon the receipt of an equal amount of money from the local governmental units supporting each library.

Two hundred thirty public libraries in Michigan are qualifying for state aid funds distributed for the fiscal year, 1938-1939, by the State Board for Libraries.

Delegates Report to Woman's Study Club

The principal features of the program of the Woman's Study Club on Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. G. A. Striffler were convention reports by local delegates. Mrs. J. Ivan Niergarth reviewed events of the annual meeting of the State Federation of Women's Clubs held at Grand Rapids recently and Mrs. B. H. Starmann gave details of the program of the county federation meeting at Millington last Friday.

During the club's business meeting, Mrs. Arthur S. Taylor was admitted to membership.

At the close of the program the hostess served buns and maple syrup.

Mrs. Frank Reid will entertain the club at her home on April 18, when the program on "Garden Day and the Home," scheduled for April 4, will be presented. Mrs. M. D. Hartt, Mrs. I. Bardwell and Miss Joanna McRae are the committee in charge.

Tuscola Co. Band Festival Here on Friday, April 14

Musical Organizations of Four High Schools to Take Part in Program.

The second annual Tuscola County Band Festival will be held in the school auditorium in Cass City on Friday, April 14, when four high school bands from Vassar, Caro, Mayville and Cass City will participate. Graham T. Overgard, music director of Wayne University of Detroit, will be guest conductor and critic.

The evening session is open to the public. At that time the four high school bands will each play three numbers of their own selection at the concert. Later that evening, a 70-piece band composed of players from all the schools will play as a unit with Mr. Overgard directing. Best players from the four high schools have already been selected for this all-Tuscola band which will play the prelude to the third act of "Kunihild" by Kistler and selections from "Die Frieschutz" by Weber. Probably two march numbers will also be included in this part of the program.

Graham T. Overgard, who will serve as guest conductor here, is a nationally known conductor, adjudicator, and authority on instrumental music, and is the director of the three famous bands at Wayne University—the Concert, Varsity and Football bands, each with more than 100 members.

Wright School Is First in Christmas Seal Sale in County

Wright School wins first honors in the tuberculosis Christmas seal sale in Tuscola County!

That was the report issued this week by the Michigan Tuberculosis Association, sponsor of the campaign to raise funds for tuberculosis fighting in Michigan. Under the supervision of Miss Helen Fournier, the pupils of the Wright School made a splendid record, the association declared. As a reward for their fine efforts the Wright pupils were given "Healthyland," a big book of health plays, pictures, stories, verses, and letters.

Under the direction of the teacher, Merton Luther, the Tuttleville School ran the Wright boys and girls a close second in the county-wide seal sale. In appreciation of Tuttleville School's splendid seal selling activities, the association awarded the pupils with "Twenty Game Combination," a combination of popular games in one set.

The association also commended the efforts of every rural school that took part in the sale of tuberculosis Christmas seals.

Each year rural boys and girls, together with their teachers, take an active stand against their greatest single disease enemy, the White Plague. The combined efforts of rural schools throughout Michigan help to provide the means for carrying on a year-round vigorous campaign to prevent the spread of tuberculosis.

Pringles Observe 30th Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Pringle of Evergreen Township were pleasantly surprised by members of their family Sunday, the occasion being the celebration of the 30th anniversary of their marriage. The party arrived with well filled baskets.

In the group were Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Hamilton, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Caister and Miss Doris Pringle of Ubly, Miss Elsie Pringle of Cass City and Clare Ramseyer of Ubly.

Mr. and Mrs. Pringle were married on March 31, 1909.

Sound Movies at C. C. C. C. April Meet

Sound movies will be the entertainment at the April meeting of the Cass City Community Club next Tuesday evening, according to an announcement by H. M. Bulen, chairman of the garage and oil men's group responsible for the program.

The first picture, "Batters Up" is an official picture of the American League with views of the world series and baseball stars in action.

The second is "Let's Go Fishing" and the third, a comedy reel, is entitled "We Drivers." This program takes a trifle less than an hour.

MRS. BRIAN SURPRISED ON 75th BIRTHDAY TUESDAY.

Several friends, including members of Venus Rebekah Lodge, spent Tuesday afternoon and evening with Mrs. A. A. Brian in honor of her seventy-fifth birthday. At six o'clock a potluck supper was served, the table being lovely with cut flowers and three beautiful birthday cakes.

Mrs. Brian, formerly Miss Libby A. Collard, was born April 4, 1864, in Tyrone, Livingston County, Michigan. She was united in marriage with Alex A. Brian January 12, 1886, and three years ago they celebrated their golden wedding. Mr. and Mrs. Brian have lived in Cass City for the last 40 years. They have two daughters, Mrs. Harry Crandell, Sr., of Caro and Miss Mabel at home; two grandchildren, Harry T. Crandell, Jr., of Caro and Mrs. H. A. Beechem, of Chicago, and one great grandchild, Katie Crandell Beechem, three months old.

Elmwood Group Visits Twp. School

Much Interest in the Gagetown District Regarding New System.

A representative group of about twenty people from Elmwood Township greatly enjoyed the hospitality of Superintendent K. T. Bordine, upon their visit to the Marlette School Friday. When the group arrived at the Marlette School, Mr. Bordine spent some time explaining the organization of the school system so that they could appreciate better the advantages which were being enjoyed by the rural students and community. They visited an assembly which featured music by the school band and a short lecture given by Dr. C. Collycott, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church of Rochester. The rest of the day was spent in visiting the different class rooms, inspecting the buses, and studying the varied features of the school program.

Some of the features that attracted the attention of the group were the efficiency of the bus system, the surprisingly low operating cost of the school, and the broad educational program being offered by that type of organization. No child in the Marlette district leaves for school before 8:00 a. m. and every child is home at 4:45 p. m. Another point of interest was the greatly increased state aid which they receive since it has been organized under the Township Unit System. Last year

Warner's Team Moves to Semi-Finals

Harrisville High School moved into the semi-finals of the state Forensic debate contest by virtue of a forfeit by Menominee of a quarter final meet. The forfeit climaxed a seven meet winning streak which has sent Harrisville from an insignificant contender to a position as a possible winner in the state semi-finals. They will probably meet Flint Central, April 15, at either Harrisville or Flint.

Composed of Grace Somers, Elizabeth Ross and Leslie Johnson, the team has reached a point in the contest higher than has any other team in the history of the school.

Albert H. Warner of Cass City, coach of the team for the last two years, has built the team into a possible contender for the state championship.

Bowling Upset in Monday Match

The Wallace group, leading the men's bowling league at the weekend with a record of 30 games won to 9 lost and a percentage of .768, lost first position when the Starmann five took three games in a row on Monday from the Wallace team. This places the Starmann group at the top with the slight margin of a half game "to the good."

Captain Starmann may also feel "chesty" over a record of 930 pins made by his team Monday night, the highest single game score of the league year. The Starmanns finished approximately 400 pins ahead of their contenders in Monday's match.

$70,000 Sewage System Is Nearing Completion Here

Six of the Seven Miles of Crocks for the System Have Been Laid to Date.

The village sewage system for Cass City is nearing completion and this summer will see the work finished, it is anticipated. The filter at the milk condensary plant and the Imhoff disposal plant near the Cass River are practically completed and there is less than a mile of trenches to dig. Six of the seven miles of crock have been laid in the trenches and covered with earth.

"We could finish the system by June 15 with the present force of workmen," said C. U. Brown, who is superintending the project for the village, "but we expect that WPA officials will decrease the size of the force in the near future."

The project will cost approximately $70,000.00. Of this amount, federal funds will supply about two-thirds of the sum and the village will pay the remainder.

Lauds New Governor in Rotary Address

Describing Governor Luren D. Dickinson as one who had established a reputation for absolute honesty, strict integrity and as a man of honor and unpurchasable, Dr. R. N. Holsaple, speaking before the Rotary Club here Tuesday, paid tribute to the state's new head in a talk on "Prominent People I Have Met." He said that Mr. Dickinson, because of his reputation, was the greatest vote getter in the state. He had been elected lieutenant governor by large majorities several times while making practically no efforts in his behalf.

Mr. Dickinson, who is president of the Michigan Anti-Saloon League, was prominently identified with that organization when Mr. Holsaple was its Michigan superintendent. Other prominent persons mentioned by Mr. Holsaple in his talk Tuesday were William J. Bryan, Captain Richard Hobson, First Congresswoman Jeanette Rankin, Carrie Chapman Catt, woman suffrage leader, and Sergeant Alvin York, a World War hero.

The speaker was introduced by Otis Heath, program chairman.

Rotarians will meet with the Community Club next Tuesday and on April 21 will attend a Charter Night meeting at Frenkenmuth.

MASONS ATTEND PAST MASTERS' NIGHT HERE

A large group of local Masons attended the Past Masters' Night of Tyler Lodge on Friday evening when the third degree was conferred upon Edward Golding by past masters of the society. Visitors were present from Decker, Gagetown, Caro and Saginaw. Rev. Charles Bayless made the presentation of a Bible to the lodge, the donor of which is Frank Hall. A dinner preceded the evening's program.

Guess This One?

Taken When We Were Young

Not so many ventured guesses on last week's picture, but of those who did two-thirds were correct when they named Thomas Gillies. They were George Spencer, Dan DeLong, H. D. Malcolm and Mrs. Moses Karr.

J. E. Seed was quite sure it was William Bentley and Glenn Tuckey thought it might be John Moshier.

We ought to have a lot of correct guesses on today's halftone picture.

Union Good Friday Service Today

Program Is Divided into Three Periods of Meditation and Music.

Local churches are uniting in a Good Friday service today commencing at 12:30 and continuing until 3:00 p. m.

The program is divided into three periods of meditation and music. In the first, the organ prelude will be played by Delbert Henry, Rev. Ali B. Jarman will speak on "Pilate's Verdict of Innocence," and Mrs. Earl Douglas will sing "The Paschal Feast" as a soprano solo.

In the second period, Rev. Charles Bayless will speak on "The World's Supreme Hour" and William McCallum will sing "There Is a Green Hill Far Away." Mrs. Ethel McCoy will be the pianist.

In the concluding part of the afternoon's program, Dr. Edwin G. Frye of Harrisburg, Pa., will have for the subject of meditation, "God in the Hand of Man." Miss Laura Jaus will sing as an alto solo, "The Glory of the Cross," with Mrs. Raymond McCullough at the piano.

Stores Close.

Many Cass City merchants are displaying placards announcing the closing of their business houses on Good Friday from 12:00 m. to 3:00 p. m.

140 Men Attended the Conservation Banquet on Tuesday Evening

About 140 men attended a banquet at the Caro Methodist Episcopal Church dining room on Tuesday evening, sponsored by the Tuscola County Conservation Association. The group was made up of township commiteemen and their guests.

Charles Bonine, member of the state association, addressed the group on the subject, "Every Normal Granary," and two reels of pictures illustrated his address.

I. O. Kellerman, farmer field man in six counties, said there were three reasons for the Federal conservation program. First, to conserve our soil; second, to stabilize and maintain adequate food supplies at reasonable cost; and third, to help the farmer secure his national income.

Mr. Kellerman explained the method of determining allotments for farms and said 76% of all farmers of the nation are participating in crop insurance.

The wheat carry-over on July 1, 1938, was 600,000,000 bushels, he said, and the estimated carry-over a year later will be 1,200,000,000 bushels. Forty-eight per cent of the farmers of the nation produce only 10% of its farm commodities, while 52% of them produce 90% of like crops.

The federal purchase of 632 carloads of beans took that amount out of merchandising channels to be sent to 31 states for welfare uses. People consume, it is estimated, 14% more food, when it is available.

PRESBYTERIANS HELD ANNUAL MEETING TUESDAY

Members of the Presbyterian Church, at their annual meeting Monday evening, elected R. A. McNamee as elder to succeed himself. Reports of the various societies were read. Rev. Mr. Korteling of Fairgrove served as moderator.

Republicans Sweep Michigan in Monday's Election

Voters Approved the Proposal for the Nonpartisan Elections of Judges.

Michigan Republicans won another smashing victory Monday when they gained every state office at the April election.

Besides electing their entire ticket the Republicans generated new strength in the populous urban centers while retaining their customary hold on the rural areas and smaller towns.

Late statewide tabulations revealed these returns:

Supreme Court Justices, 3130 out of 3,555 precincts: Henry M. Butzel (R) 362,007, Howard Weist (R) 350,753, Thos. J. Murphy (D) 263,734, Clarence Dwyer (D) 237,645.

U. of M. Regents, 3,130 out of 3,555 precincts: Harry G. Kipke (R) 344,525, J. Joseph Herbert (R) 337,945, Dr. Dean W. Myers (D) 270,654, Chas. C. Lockwood 246,279.

Superintendent of Public Instruction, 3,130 of 3,555 precincts: Dr. Eugene B. Elliott (R) 365,848, T. Thomas Thatcher (D) 248,011.

State Board of Education, 3,057 of 3,555 precincts: Mary Farnsworth (R) 350,151, Edna C. Wilson (D) 249,184.

State Board of Agriculture, 3040 of 3,555 precincts: Melville B. McPherson (R) 338,957, Forest M. Akers (R) 339,378, Benj. H. Halstead (D) 245,661, Albert D. LaLonde (D) 236,588.

One of the two proposals for constitutional amendments was accepted. Voters approved nonpartisan election of judges by 312,255 to 186,728 in a tabulation of 2,925 precincts.

Lansing—To tax or not to tax, that is the question.

Once again an administration at Lansing is confronted with the very distasteful prospect of imposing additional taxes. If the estimated $25,000,000 deficit for the current fiscal year is to be reduced and if expenses and receipts of the forthcoming fiscal year are to be balanced, the state administration must obtain more money from one source or another.

And there's the rub—who is going to pay the piper?

State Treasurer Miller Dunckel believes that the sales tax should be increased from 3 to 4 cents. The revenue from the additional cent would be segregated for the sole purpose of paying off the $25,000,000 deficit. Treasure Dunkel would have it tagged the "Murphy tax."

Auditor General Vernon J. Brown offers a seven-point budget balancing program to solve the state's financial problem without creating another levy or increasing an existing tax.

1. Abolish payroll increases ordered by the civil service commission, and thus save "at least" $1,000,000 a year.

2. Abolish most commissions, boards and bureaus created by the 1937 legislature, thus saving "more than" $1,000,000 a year.

3. Revise formula for distribution of state aid to public schools to equalize districts that raise no school taxes locally and other districts which get more than they need, thus saving $13,000,000 a year. School aid this year was $28,000,000.

4. Revise property tax law and

CORRECTION.

An error crept into the article regarding tax collections in Tuscola County which was printed in the Chronicle last week. The amount returned uncollected by Walter Bierlein, treasurer of Denmark Township, was $460.25 and not $332.80. The total amount of the townships tax roll is $17,094.18. Mr. Bierlein collected 97.3% of his roll which is slightly below the record of Robert Thompson, Tuscola Township treasurer, who has a record of 97.7% of his total roll collected.

OUR CRIPPLED CHILDREN.

The Easter Season is here again, leading our thoughts to the thousands of children whose misfortune is to be physically handicapped—a curved spine, a paralyzed arm, a crooked leg. It is time to think how we able-bodied individuals can help these children. By help, we mean far more than mere sympathy for their present and future plight. We mean help our crippled children to become as physically normal as modern science will enable, and to live as normal lives as possible, enjoying a justifiable measure of happiness and success.

In our own state, and even in our own community, there are many physically handicapped persons who need never have suffered the unhappy psychological and economic consequences which result from being physically below par. It is up to us now to prevent this needless suffering by those children who are now handicapped, or who might become so, by giving them the medical care and hospitalization treatment they need.

By providing our handicapped children with the educational opportunities, automatically falling to able-bodied youngsters in cities and in the rural areas, with proper recreation, vocational guidance and training, and assistance in securing self-supporting employment, we are only giving them what they deserve and are entitled to as Americans. They do not want to be continual burdens on their families and the community any more than our taxpayers want them to be.

Therefore, let us all help them to contribute to our community rather than be burdens, by supporting the Easter Seal Sale of the Michigan Society for Crippled Children, Inc., which is working hard to see that each physically handicapped child in our state develops to the fullest extent of his capacities, both mental and physical.

It is only through the public's purchase of Easter Seals, symbolic of a hopeful future for our crippled that this society can carry on reaching every single physically handicapped child now existing, and working to prevent others from being handicapped.

Let us think of this Easter season in terms of help to others far less fortunate, those who are literally handicapped in the race which is our life.

THE SWEETS OF SPRING.

George Herbert, famous old time poet, wrote these lines:

"Sweet spring, full of sweet days and roses,
A box where sweets compacted lie."

The world, says Mr. Herbert, had the right idea. As the sun comes back from its too long stay in far away lands, the brighter and longer days fill the mind with hope and confidence. People will attempt new things in spring that they would not have dared try in autumn or winter.

"In the spring the young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love," said Alfred Tennyson. If the youth had not dared to think of marriage back in chilly January, the warmer days of spring produce a new buoyancy in which he says that the sweets of romance are possible, and his heart becomes bold enough to ask the fair one for her affection.

Swelling buds in trees and shrubs, joyous trilling of bird notes, the peeping of spring flowers above the ground, are signs of reviving life. Spring is a kind of annual miracle, when we realize once more that there are throbbing through the universe forces of strength and power which we can use if we see fit.

As we go out in the country, the sight of the farmer getting ready for his spring work tells us of the richness of the soil and the preparation made to provide the things we need to sustain life. The neighbors are getting the dead leaves out of the garden, digging up their flower and vegetable beds, which is a promise of fruitage and beauty to come. The fisherman is looking over his lines and dreaming of gorgeous days by the brookside. The air is full of anticipation of good times and joyful occasions. The spring should fill us with enthusiasm here not merely for the sports of the season, but with confidence that we can make good in our work, and climb to heights of achievement not previously reached.

Says Iffy, the Dopester, in the Detroit Free Press: The mayor of East Detroit who favored gambling was defeated at the election. Any time the people are given a clear and simple issue between right and wrong they always know how to vote. The only time they ever make a mistake is when they are not sufficiently informed.

GAGETOWN

Election Tie—

At the Elmwood Township election Monday, 389 votes were cast. Charles T. Grady ran for office of treasurer on slips against Mrs. Harry Russell, each receiving the same number of votes, 177. The decision was made by drawing and the office went to Charles T. Grady.

The other offices: Supervisor, Roy LaFave; clerk, Harlan Hobart; member of board of review, William Simmons; highway commissioner, John Kennedy; constables, Stephen Moore, Richard Burdon, Bruce Brown and Charles Seekings.

Study Club Officers—

The Study Club met Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Earl Russell. After roll call, the following officers were elected for the coming year: President, Helen Fournier; vice president, Mrs. Don Wilson; secretary, Mrs. Margaret Glougie; treasurer, Miss Edith Miller; parliamentarian, Mrs. Fred Palmer; critic, Mrs. L. D. MacRae. April 17 is the next regular meeting and will be at the home of Mrs. Harry Densmore.

Death of George O. Wood—

George O. Wood passed away in University Hospital in Ann Arbor on March 29 after an illness of a year's duration. The remains were brought to the Hunter Funeral Home here where services were held at 8:30 a. m. Friday, and at St. Agatha's Church at nine o'clock, conducted by Rev. Fr. McCullough. Entombment was made in St. Agatha's Cemetery.

Mr. Wood was born in Elmwood Township on June 15, 1889. He followed the farming industry and was a member of St. Agatha's Church.

He leaves his father, Jarvis Wood; two brothers, Bert Wood, of Gagetown and Peter Wood, of Unionville. His mother and a sister preceded him in death.

Relatives and friends from a distance who came to attend the funeral included Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Wood, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Rabideau, Mrs. D. Dymock and Clarence Wood, all of Detroit, and Miss Evangeline Wood of Birmingham.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles McComb of Detroit spent Friday and Saturday with her mother, Mrs. Mary LaFave.

Mrs. William LaFave, who spent the past winter with her daughter, Mrs. Henry Walters, in Detroit, returned home last week.

Mr. and Mrs. George Lenhard and Mrs. Alice Howell of Caro were Tuesday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Purdy.

Mrs. Ralph Clara, Mrs. M. P. Freeman, Mrs. L. D. MacRae and Mrs. F. D. Hemerick attended the Tuscola County Federation of Women's Clubs held at Millington Friday.

Leslie Beach suffered a broken arm last Wednesday when he was kicked by a colt. The large bone in the right arm was broken between the wrist and the elbow.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Young, who spent the past four months in Southern California, returned home Friday.

Mrs. Alphonso Rocheleau spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Clem Lenhard and Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Weiler.

Mr. and Mrs. Antine Creguer, who spent the past winter in Detroit with Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Creguer, have rented the house recently built by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hanson and moved there Friday.

Oil Does Things.

Coloma, (MPA)—Just what an oil boom can do to a man was illustrated by a bet made by two Paw Paw Lake men. Wm. A. Cross wagered 60 beers (he is a tavern keeper) against $9 in cash with Stewart Bell that by July 4, 1940, there will be 111 oil wells within a five-mile radius of Coloma. The bet was drawn up in legal fashion, and attested by a notary public.

Safetygrams

BY FRED W. BRAUN © The Safety Man

Pedestrian, walk with the lights. Do not ignore this warning. The lights are put up for your protection and should be used accordingly. There are just as many pedestrians trying to "beat" the lights as there are auto drivers. Why take a chance? Why invite trouble?

Contrary to all instructions issued in newspapers, magazines, and other publications, pedestrians still walk along the right-hand side of the highway.

Everyone is too prone to blame the auto driver when we as pedestrians could exercise more care at crossings and on our highways.

Life will be longer, sweeter, and safer is we use just ordinary common sense in walking and driving.

MICHIGAN MIRROR.

tax intangible property a special low rate. Intangible property is now taxable at the same rate with real estate property, the rate being higher than the yield and hence not being enforced. The 1937 state tax commission started a movement to enforce the intangible property tax, but Governor Murphy called it off.

5. Plug sales tax loopholes, thus collecting "several millions."

Hope on Sales Tax

The auditor general is confident that efficient enforcement of the state sales tax, together with certain changes contemplated to aid collection, would result in many millions more for the state treasury.

Senate bill 114 by Senator Geo. McCallum of Ann Arbor, chairman of the senate taxation committee, would require auto dealers of new and old cars to pay sales tax to secretary of state at time of registration or transfer.

This bill is expected to net approximately $5,000,000 more annually in sales tax collections.

6. (Point in Brown's program): "Adopt a sane and sensible welfare plan."

7. Strict economy by the administration to the end that there is "severe pruning of every item of public expense."

McCallum's Tax Plan

Senator George McCallum, taxation committee chairman, has introduced a bill requiring the state tax commission to assess personal property at either of the following rates: 5 per cent of the annual income derived from stocks, bonds, etc., or one quarter of 1 per cent of the par value, whichever is the greater.

The present personal property tax (now unenforced) averages 2.7 per cent of the par value, or 19 times as much as the McCallum proposal.

Exemptions: Government bonds, armory bonds, possessions of benevolent institutions, G. A. R. and Y. M. C. A. and similar groups, banks and trust companies, and insurance companies and utilities that now pay a specific tax.

State-Owned Autos

For many political moons an unwritten law has permitted state officials and employees to obtain and to use at public expense, expensive cars for personal as well as business purposes.

Representative Arthur U. Odell of Allegan and six other members of the house have just introduced a bill to curtail the car-buying practice by requiring approval of a state emergency appropriations committee before a car could be purchased.

A check-up revealed there are 683 state-owned machines, of which 116 are 1939 models.

The late Governor Frank Fitzgerald always declined to use a state-owned automobile for official business. He provided his own car and charged mileage expense. Furthermore, he had an Eaton County license plate. Luxurious machines, used by former Governor Murphy and George Gundry, now repose in the state garage.

Governor Dickinson has been provided transportation to and from the capitol and his home near Charlotte by state police.

To Extend Payroll Tax?

A last minute attempt will be made in the Michigan legislature to extend the unemployment compensation tax to all employers.

The present act exempts "small employers"—those who hire less than eight workers.

This year the social security taxes include an employer levy of 3 per cent to support a system of unemployment insurance and a levy of 2 per cent, divided equally between employer and worker, to support a system of old-age insurance. Next year the old-age insurance tax will go up one cent, borne one-half by the employer and one-half by the worker.

David Lawrence, Washington observer, points out that the 1939 payroll tax total will equal the entire amount paid by corporations in income taxes during the prosperity year of 1929, and that this cut into purchasing power will be in addition to a corporation income tax that is almost as high as in 1929.

The plight of the small business man, already badly tax-harassed, will receive careful consideration at Lansing. We forecast that the Dickinson administration will not lend encouragement to further extension of the payroll tax.

Liquor Jitters

Liquor interests are slowly recovering from a bad case of jitters.

Because Governor Dickinson is an ardent dry in his personal life, many retailers and vendors of alcoholic beverages jumped to a hasty conclusion that Dickinson would try to return prohibition to Michigan.

The governor, president of the Michigan Anti-Saloon League, has let it be known that it was his duty as governor to carry out the will of the people to the best of his ability—in other words, to permit sale of liquor under rigid control.

"Control," however, may be tightened up to require midnight closing for roadhouses outside of municipalities, enforce the prohibition of sale of liquor to minors, and perhaps to ban Sunday liquor sales.

Mass production methods in industrial centers complicate the liquor enforcement picture somewhat. A worker whose "day" begins at 4:00 p. m. and ends at midnight usually abstains from taking a drink prior to going to work. When he finishes work at midnight, he is often in a mood for "relaxation"—a glass of beer or so.

Murl DeFoe of Charlotte, "personal representative" of Governor Dickinson on the state liquor commission, formerly was convinced that the state store system was wrong and that the state should get out of the "liquor business." Today, looking from the inside out, he finds that he has changed his mind—that state monopoly is the only sure way to effect decent control.

Democrats' Policy

Democratic leaders at Lansing have adopted the Republican policy which has prevailed at Washington: Lay low, wait for opponents to make mistakes, and then capitalize on the issues.

Spokesmen in the Senate and House have already indicated that some of the 1940 issues may be the following:

Labor—A "Cossack" labor relations law, clamping severe restrictions upon workers and employers who are not covered by the Wagner act for interstate commerce, would provide Democrats with welcome campaign material. Civil Service—Efforts will be made to show that the legislature has virtually "annihilated" civil service in its insistence that many workers should be exempt and that less money should be spent in administering the act. (Bill has passed the House).

Will the conservative pendulum swing too far to the right? Democratic leaders are secretly hopeful that it will. The old game of politics is still being played.

Northwest Elmwood.

Leo Seurynck has been ill with the flu for the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. John Baloza and family are quarantined in with scarlet fever.

George Mullin, who has been ill for some time, went to Ann Arbor Friday for treatment.

George Wood died of cancer during the past week at the University Hospital in Ann Arbor.

Lawrence Salgat has begun work on a new home, the old one having been destroyed by fire in February.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy LaFave went to Bay City Mercy Hospital on Wednesday for X-rays. Mrs. LaFave's knee is very much improved while her husband's injured hip is not coming along so nicely.

The Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Grappan were Mrs. Myrtle Teller and son, Lloyd, and daughter, Carol, of Grant Township and Mr. and Mrs. William Grappan and daughter, Jean. The occasion was Mrs. William Grappan's birthday.

Profit in Dog Chasing?

Birmingham, (MPA)—Is it profitable to chase dogs in Oakland County. It almost seemed so when the county board of auditors reported that the official dog catcher was the highest paid of any county employee except circuit judges. Paid on a fee basis, the warden received $4,281.40 in 1937. Circuit judges received $7,500 annually.

Knows His Schools.

Iron River, (MPA)—John F. Mason, retiring county school commissioner who has served in that capacity for 38 years, really knows his schools. He has seen the erection of every school building in every district of Iron County. The only structure standing when he took office, a small rural school, has since been abandoned.

Stars 'Avenging Angels'

The Lengua Indians of South America stand in mortal fear of falling stars, and with good reason. For, if among them, a murdered person is found, a stone is inserted in the wound, the stone rises to the Milky Way and comes down again in the shape of a meteor upon the guilty person's head.

Meaning of Name Janet

The name Janet, of Hebrew origin, is a diminutive of Jane and means "little one of divine grace."

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

Default having been made for more than ten days in the conditions of a certain mortgage executed by John W. Smart and Hattie B. Smart to the Vassar National Bank of Vassar, Michigan on the 27th day of December, A. D. 1919, recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for the County of Tuscola on the 6th day of January, A. D. 1920, in Liber 149 of Mortgages on pages 106 and 107, the said Vassar National Bank having thereafter changed its corporate name to Millington National Bank as shown by certificate of the Comptroller of Currency of the United States of America, recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for said county on June 13, 1931, in liber 211 of Deeds at page 311; said mortgage having been, on the 7th day of March, A. D. 1938, assigned by Clarence G. Winslow, Receiver for Millington National Bank, to Chris Schumaker by an assignment recorded in the office of said Register of Deeds on the 22nd day of December, A. Evangelical Church—R. N. Holsaple, Minister. Easter Sunday and the week following:

Next Sunday morning the Sunday School will meet at ten o'clock. The Lenten Offering Boxes will be returned and a special study of the lesson conducted by competent teachers, under the direction of Ed Helwig, superintendent.

At eleven o'clock, Easter worship will be conducted, and Dr. Edwin G. Frye of Harrisburg, Pa., will preach on the subject, "The New Day." The choir will render Carrie B. Adams' great anthem, "Hail the Day." The choir will appear for the first time in their new choir robes, and hereafter will wear black robes.

At seven in the evening, the Evangelical League of Christian Endeavor will meet to study the subject, "The Greatest Victory of All Time." Leader, Miss Marjory Schwegler.

At seven-thirty, the evening preaching service will be held one-half hour earlier than usual in order that the speaker may be driven to Detroit for a midnight train. Dr. Frye will preach the closing sermon of the four weeks' revival campaign, on the subject, "Are You Ready?"

The mid-week prayer meeting will be held next Wednesday evening at eight o'clock, as usual.

Cobra Spits Out Poison

A spitting cobra can project poison far beyond its striking distance.

Beef Cattle Feeders Organize in Tuscola

One hundred fifty farmers made a tour of Tuscola County visiting the farms of several cattle raisers and inspecting herds of beef cattle on March 28. At a noon-day session at Sutton Church, the Tuscola County Beef Cattle Feeders' Association was organized and the following officers were elected: President, Nate Pattison, Caro; secretary-treasurer, Stanley Hess, Vassar.

E. L. Benton, extension specialist in animal husbandry at Michigan State College, was in charge of the tour and George Branaman, professor of animal husbandry at Michigan State College and president of the Michigan Beef Cattle Feeders' Association, entered in the discussions.

The new organization will keep its members informed on market conditions and on a system of making purchases of feeder cattle and marketing fat cattle. It will promote legislation favorable to the cattle feeding business and will oppose any retractions in federal quarantine laws which are now in effect on imports of South American live or dressed beef.

State Increases Cheese Volumes

Importance of cheese in menus during the recent weeks of the Lenten season has led to a summary and survey of production in Michigan which shows the state is gaining in national rankings.

Limburger, for instance, almost speaks for itself, says A. C. Baltzer, extension dairyman at Michigan State College. From production reports he figures the state is fifth in the nation in making limburger. About a hundred thousand pounds annually is the Michigan make.

Fourth high state is the rating on Michigan's cottage cheese. More than 130 plants are making annually 10 million pounds. The state is seventh in cheddar or American type cheese, 60 plants producing 12½ million pounds. Three factories are producing Italian cheese, the state is third in the nation with 1,500,000 pounds.

Brick and cream cheese each total about the same in volume and rank as limburger, fifth in the nation.

One reason for increased production and consumption, Baltzer believes, is that the American public now understands better that cheese is easily digestible. Other virtues are that this dairy product has "eye appeal" as well as pleasing taste, that it is economical with little waste and prices prevailing are reasonable.

In a recent survey by cow testers, the cheese eating habits of herd improvement farm families were noted. Consumption averages a pound a week for a family of four, a rate two and one-half times greater than the United States average.

Compelled to Whitewash Roofs

Every householder in Bermuda is compelled by law to limewash his roof. The rainfall there is never heavy and the roofs of the houses are constructed to catch the raindrops from the skies. The pure white limewash keeps the roof water clean, and a special form of gutter conveys the rain water to concrete lined tanks. It is mandatory that every island's house have a tank for storage of the "sky water." Limewashed catchments are also contrived down the slopes of the hills. These carry the rain water into the underground concrete-lined tanks hewn out of the coral rock.

Longest Volcanic Eruption

One of the longest recorded displays of seismic violence occurred in Japan in 1914, observes a writer in Collier's Weekly. During the 30 hours preceding the great volcanic eruption of Sakurajima on January 12, one meteorological observatory alone recorded 417 earthquakes, or an average of one every four minutes and 19 seconds.

Animal That Produces Light

Of all the animals capable of producing light, the brightest one, for its size, notes a writer in Collier's Weekly, is a marine crustacean of the genus Cypridina. One part of its luminous gland imparts a visible glow to about two billion parts of water.

Laid First Cathedral Stone

The first stone of St. Paul's cathedral, London, was laid by Sir Christopher Wren in 1675; the last was put in position 35 years later, by his son, another Christopher.

Naming Staten Island

Staten Island was first discovered by Henry Hudson in 1609, and was settled by colonists from Holland. It was named for the Staaten General, which is the parliament of the Netherlands.

Wild Boar as Trophy Animal

The most noted of European trophy animals is the wild boar, which is hunted chiefly in Central Europe. Boar hunting for many centuries was a prerogative of estate owners and aristocrats, so the animals were not exposed to indiscriminate killing

Air Pictures in Wind Tunnel

In a wind tunnel it is possible to show visibly the geometric shapes, such as cones, discs and spheres, in which air flows.

Disappearance of Coins

Treasury experts have no means of estimating accurately what proportion of the smaller coins disappear from circulation. A minor coin may be either short or long lived. Wear and tear or hard use may send a coin back to the mints for recoinage in a few months. If a coin escapes mutilation or defacement, however, it may continue its travels indefinitely.

First Express Service

The first express service begun in the United States was started on February 23, 1839, when William Frederick Harnden of Boston, Mass., made the first express shipment of one valise full of packages to New York. Service was soon extended to Philadelphia.

Dowry Duty Free

An Austrian law provides that a foreign woman marrying an Austrian may bring into the country whatever she wants as dowry, free of duty for one year after the wedding.

IN LOVING memory of our dear wife and mother, Mrs. Lloyd Hall, who died April 5, 1938.

Oft and oft our thoughts do wander,
To a dear grave not far away,
Where we laid our darling mother,
A year ago today.
We think of her in silence—
No eyes can see up weep;
Many silent tears are shed
While others are asleep.

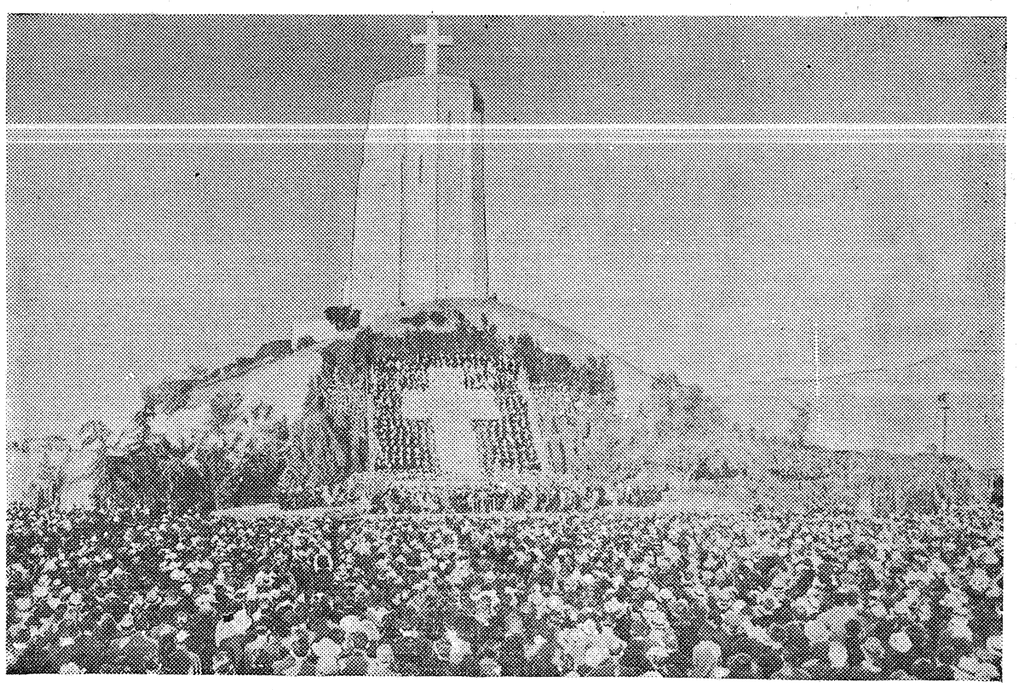
Easter Sunrise Services Attract Thousands As Churches of Nation Hold Observances



Each Easter Sunday morning thousands of worshipers gather at the gently graded slope of Mount Forest Lawn in Forest Lawn Memorial park, Glendale, Calif., for sunrise services. A huge choir, dressed in white forms a living cross on the side of the slope. During the past few years sunrise services have become increasingly numerous, and have been held in all sections of the country where weather permits.

The Lafayette was seething with activity. Smartly groomed women were lunching at "tables for two" with smartly groomed men. Larger tables, surrounded by males only, buzzed with laughter and conversation. At first, Mary thought perhaps she and Mr. Buchanan would have to find another place for their "spot of lunch," but the captain miraculously located a small table for them, decorated by three yellow jonquils in a bud vase, and plumped against a window.

"What sort of cocktail would you like, Miss Loring?" Phillip Buchanan asked, almost before he had succeeded in getting his long legs beneath the snowy cloth.

"None, thank you," Mary returned. "You see . . ."

"Fine!" the man replied. "Well, you don't mind watching me drink, do you? Have you decided what you'd like to eat?"

Mary glanced at the menu in her hand. "An Egg Benedict, I think, and endive salad."

"Egg Benedict and endive salad, Alphonse, for Miss Loring, and I'll have fillet mignon with sauce menuiere. Coffee, later." He glanced at his watch again. His life, thought Mary, seemed to be run on schedule. He had consulted that timepiece exactly five times in the past hour. "It's a quarter after one," he announced. "I'd better tell you what we have in mind for you, Miss Loring. Both Mr. Van Winkle and I are enthusiastic about 'At Sea.' The plot of course, is not particularly new, but then, after all, no plot is. You attacked it from a fresh viewpoint, however, and we liked the manner in which you handled it. Now, we feel that a series of shorts, done in the same style, might be used by The National Weekly over a period of several months. Say, one every other week. And, in time, if they prove satisfactory, and click with our public, we will, of course, gradually increase the pay."

"I'll do my best, Mr. Buchanan," she said breathlessly. "I'll start in tomorrow. I—I think I have a plot in mind right now. And then, of course, you have 'Their Son.'"

"Yes. Van Winkle will give that a reading within a few days, if possible. We're practically deluged with scripts right now, but many of them are unsolicited, and I'm sure he'll give 'Their Son' some preference as far as the time element is concerned."

"Is there any particular treatment you . . . ?"

"Simply stick to writing about the type of life you know," Buchanan replied, cutting short her question.

He then attacked his steak and, for the next few minutes, completely ignored her existence. Still resentful, she adhered to her vow of silence. Buchanan, however, didn't seem to notice the deficiency, and luncheon would probably have gone on indefinitely without further exchange of words, had it not been interrupted presently by a young man with an engaging smile, who spied them from an adjacent table, and came over to speak to Buchanan.

He was short and dark, with gray eyes that were serious yet friendly. "Hello, Phil," he said cordially, coming towards Buchanan with outstretched hand. "You're the very person I hoped to see today."

"Hello, Jim! Glad to see you! Miss Loring, this is Jim Ormsby."

Jim Ormsby! Could this stranger be Lelia's former husband, or were there any number of Jim Ormsbys in New York? "How do you do?" she returned.

"What's on your mind, Jim?" Phil Buchanan was asking. "Won't you sit down?"

"Thanks, no. I'm dashing off to keep an appointment. It's this, Phil—Paul Waring and Lorry Wood and I are running up to my place in Connecticut over the week-end, and we want you to make a fourth. Badminton at the club, you know, and plenty of Contract between drinks. How about it?"

"I think it's a swell idea, Jim. Count me in."

"Fine! I'll give you a ring tomorrow, and inform you on all the finer points of the situation! Good-by, Miss Loring."

Mary watched Jim Ormsby as he walked across the room, and finally disappeared through the door into the foyer. She liked his voice, the way he carried his shoulders, the perfect "hang" of his well-cut clothes. He looked just the sort of person whom Lelia might well have loved—whom Lelia might still love with all her heart. "He's very attractive," she said, more to herself than to Phillip Buchanan.

"He's—tops," the man replied almost belligerently, "and, to my way of thinking, he's been given a dirty deal. His wife divorced him a couple of years ago on what was merely circumstantial evidence. Never gave him a chance to explain; and he was too damned proud to do so later. Seemed to figure that if she didn't have more faith in him than she appeared to have, he might as well let her go."

Mary leaned across the table. "Is his wife, by any chance, named—Lelia?" she asked excitedly.

"Yes," Buchanan replied, surprised, "it is! Do you know her?"

"Well, rather! In fact, she's a sort

"Yes," Buchanan replied, surprised, "it is! Do you know her?"

of cousin of mine, and she's visiting Aunt Linnie right now!"

"Oh, Lord! I hope I haven't said anything I shouldn't have!"

"No, Mr. Buchanan, not at all.—By the way, isn't it time we were leaving?"

Buchanan looked at his watch. "Yes, it is. How are you going uptown?"

Mary smiled at him. "Literally, in the bus," she replied. "Metaphorically, on wings. You see, I'm terribly excited over this assignment you've given me, and I'll do my best to make good."

Buchanan motioned to Alphonse, glanced over the check, and, leaving some bills on the table, indicated to Mary that he was ready to leave. "You'll hear from us as soon as we've made a decision on 'Their Son,' Miss Loring," he said when they reached the foyer. "Thanks for lunching with me."

Mary extended a gloved hand. "Thanks for asking me," she replied, her eyes dancing. "I loved it, although I confess you had me stymied for a while."

"Stymied?" the man replied. "Stymied! What do you mean?"

But she was out of the door now, and either did not hear him, or else would not turn around. Her heart was lighter than it had been in weeks, and her feet barely touched the pavement as she fled down the steps and turned up Fifth Avenue.

CHAPTER VII

Lelia Ormsby was seated at the desk by the east window in the living room when Mary returned to Miss Cotswell's apartment. "Mary?" she called, hearing the click of a key in the latch.

"Yes, Lelia. Where are you?"

"Right here in the living room, having a perfect whirl for myself, studying all the travel literature I can find about the tropics. "There's a boat sailing for the West Indies March fifteenth, and I believe that'd be just about right for our trip."

Mary came into view, her eyes wide and starry, her face flushed. "Good heavens!" cried Lelia. "What in the world have you been doing? You look as if you'd caught the world by the tail! I've never seen anybody quite so—aglow! Did you see Mr. Buchanan?"

Mary fell into the cushions of the lounge and prepared to relax in comfort. "That's just it, Lelia," she replied, her voice husky with excitement. "I not only saw Mr. Buchanan, but he took me to lunch at the Lafayette. And, Lelia, he wants me to write a series of 'shorts' for his magazine."

"Darling! That's wonderful! Did he mention the delicate subject of pay?"

"Yes, Lel, he did! He's going to increase the size of the checks as time goes on, providing, of course, my stuff clicks with the public. I'm so happy. You can't imagine what it means to me."

"It means," Lelia said, her blue eyes serious, "that 'At Sea' must be a darned good tale, and that Phillip Buchanan feels he's made another of his well-known finds! Congratulations, my dear. By the way, how did you like Phil Buchanan?"

"I liked him—well enough," Mary replied, "but he acted as if he were bored to death with every word I uttered, and he looked at his watch at least six times."

"Oh, well," chuckled Lelia, "he is a busy man."

"Lelia," Mary began.

"Yes?" replied Lelia, not looking up.

"Lelia,—I—I—met Jim Ormsby today."

The older girl did not move, but Mary could see a deep red slowly rising to the nape of her neck. "He's a friend of Phil Buchanan's," Lelia returned evenly, her attention apparently riveted on a colorful picture of the race course at Havana.

"Yes," Mary returned. "He asked Mr. Buchanan to spend the week-end at his house in Connecticut."

Lelia turned about, a little smile twisting her lips, her eyes as blue and unfathomable as a wintry sea. "That house in Connecticut is—sweet. White clap-board, and sort of straggling all over the side of the hill, and a fireplace in every room. We lived there most of the time, Jim and I."

There was a revealing nostalgia in Lelia's tones as she spoke of the home she and Jim had shared together, and Mary, sensing the ache that lay beneath those words, longed to rush to her and place sympathetic arms about her shoulders. Instead, she continued to stand by the window. "He's attractive, Lelia."

"Yes," Lelia replied dully. "There has never been anyone else like him in my life. And, Mary, there never will be. Did he seem well, and—and happy?"

"I saw him for just an instant, Lelia," Mary countered, wishing she had more to tell the other woman. "He merely came to our table at the Lafayette, and spoke to Mr. Buchanan about going to Connecticut for the week-end He said two other men whose names I don't remember were to be in the party, and that they'd play Badminton and Bridge."

A second of silence followed, broken finally by Mary. "Was there any mail for me, Lelia, in the eleven o'clock delivery?"

Lelia's shoulders jerked, as if she had been abruptly jarred out of a reverie. "Yes, I believe there's a letter from Hawkinsville. And, by the way, there's a box of something or other for you, delivered about an hour ago by a Western Union boy. Looks like candy, and I hope it is. I'm perishing for the want of a chocolate-covered mint."

"The letter from home can wait an instant," Mary thought. "At least, until I see what's in this package."

She untied the ribbon, and tore away the glossy orange tissue that covered the box. An envelope-enclosed card, tipped from its position by her eager fingers, fell to the floor. Stooping, she picked it up and read, "Fruits from Italy to a lovely lady, with the felicitations and adoration of Umberto."

"Just so much—eyewash!" she told herself. "The man scarcely knows me. I'll give the stuff to Addie. Maybe she'll like it."

Then with a commingling of eagerness and apprehension, she opened the letter from Ellen.

Mary dear:

There's really not a thing to tell you, but I know that you worry when you don't hear from home every now and then, so am writing anyhow.

Dad still hasn't been able to make any connections. Mother is getting thinner every day from worry, and Aunt Mamie goes sadly about with the usual chip on her shoulder. She has taken to referring wistfully to one Harry Archer who visited at Grandfather's house twenty-five years ago, intimating that he was desperately in love with her, and that it was just too bad she didn't marry him. I asked Dad on the Q. T. if the guy really had been in love with her, and he replied that if he was, he managed to exert wonderful self-control. All Dad can remember about Harry Archer's visit was that there had been two picnics at Hick's Bluff, and, in both cases, Harry had to be hit over the head with a club in order to get him even to go through the motions of being Aunt Mamie's escort.

Browns Business College have put me first on their list for any possible job that may present itself, but I'm afraid the chances aren't so hot.

I hope you're having a wonderful time. Have you seen Radio City yet?

Give my love to Aunt Linnie and Lelia.

Devotedly,
Ellen.

P. S. Chris Cragg was married to that Ilsa Graceland in Chicago last Saturday, and is bringing her to Hawkinsville the end of the week. Everybody's dying to see what she's like.

For an instant, the room went quite black before Mary's eyes, and it was only with supreme effort that she kept from slumping to the floor. So, Chris had married, after all! Of course, he had told her that he was going to. Of course, he had been honor-bound to carry through; yet all along, there had smoldered in the back of her mind the thought, "If he really loves me, he won't marry Ilsa. He can't! He'll surely tell her that he loves someone else—that his marriage to her can't go through!" But the marriage had gone through—last Saturday! Chris had now been married for five days.

With fingers that seemed numb, she picked Ellen's letter up, tore it into tiny pieces, and dropped it into the waste basket How surprised Ellen would have been had she dreamed of the portent of that postscript! "Thank God," Mary thought gratefully, "nobody—not even Ellen—knows how desperately I care for Chris! Nobody knows that I care at all!"

She picked Ellen's letter up and tore it into tiny pieces.

At last, she turned from the dressing-table, and moved toward the bed. Blindly, she dropped to the bed, heedless of the satin spread that covered it, and lay there in a disconsolate heap, like a child that has been sent to his nursery for punishment At last, the tears began to come, and still unmindful of the coverlet, she buried her face against the protecting privacy of the pillow, and gratefully let them fall.

She did not know how long she lay there, but the winter darkness had fallen outside when Lelia finally entered the room and snapped on the light. "Mary, I didn't know you were here!" she said, glimpsing the huddle of Mary's body on the bed. "Have you been asleep?"

Mary sat up, trying to avert her haggard face from Lelia's gaze. "Yes," she lied. "I was asleep. What time is it, Lelia?"

"Six o'clock, darling. Hadn't you better start dressing? This is the night you and Linnie are going to Jerry Taylor's, isn't it?"

"Yes," Mary replied dully. "No! Oh, I don't know!"

"But, Mary, I'm sure it is. In fact, I heard Linnie say this morning that you and she were to be at his place at seven. He's sending the car for you.—Mary?"

"Yes?"

"I wish you'd wear my ermine wrap tonight. It would look simply ravishing on you, and I know Aunt Linnie wants you to appear particularly beautiful. Jerome's quite a person, you know—even though he is, in my humble opinion, the worst sort of renegade."

"But, Lelia," Mary demurred. "I might get it soiled or tear it."

"Don't be ridiculous, darling. I want you to wear it. It'll look divine with that silver-threaded evening frock of yours."

"All right," Mary replied listlessly. "Thank you." But she was thinking, "What difference does it make how I look? What difference does anything make, now that Chris is married? All that matters is that I succeed in my writing."

Three-quarters of an hour later, Mary, a transformed person, stood before the mirror of the dressing-table The hot bath and icy shower had brought life and color back to her weary body; miraculously wiped from her face the ravages of sorrow. Lelia had dusted just enough rouge over the soft curve of her cheeks to disguise their pallor. Her lace frock clung lovingly to her body, and fell to the floor in an eddy of silver and white. Three orchids of deep purple perched lightly on her left shoulder, and now and then smoothed their soft petals against her cheek. Addie had just brought them in with the announcement that Mr. Taylor's chauffeur had delivered them, and that Mr Taylor's car was waiting at the door.

"Well, if you ain't a dream!" Addie cried. "Why, honey, you look just like a princess."

Mary, suddenly aware that, had it not been for Lelia, she would never have been able to dress that evening—that Lelia had practically pulled her together—turned impulsively and kissed the other girl on the cheek. "Thank you, Lelia. You've been sweet to me tonight. You're always sweet to me."

Linnie Cotswell, looking handsome in a trailing gown of maroon-colored lace, appeared in the doorway "Ready, Mary? Why, my dear, you're a dream! I didn't know my family tree could produce such royal fruit!"

Mary never quite knew how she managed to get through the hours that followed It was like a hectic nightmare—a nightmare made up of spacious, flower-filled rooms in Jerome Taylor's penthouse; of Jerome Taylor himself, faultless in black and white, a gardenia in his lapel; always at her side, always looking at her with quizzical, admiring eyes. It was a wild conglomeration of Aunt Linnie, looking like a duchess and saying bright things to the man who made the fourth in their party, and whose name Mary neither caught nor cared to know. Dancing with Jerome Taylor to the tune of "September in the Rain," and thoughts of Chris! A constant pain in her heart, a lump in her throat that could not be swallowed, and thoughts, unforgettable thoughts, of Christopher Cragg!

Efficient Marshal.

Augusta, (MPA)—When Marshal William Purdy picked up a man on a charge of being drunk, he not only conducted him to jail, but sobered him as well. While he was taking the culprit to the county jail recently, (there is no jail in Augusta), the marshal's car ran out of gasoline. Leaving the prisoner to guard it, Purdy walked several miles for gas. By the time he reached the county jail, officers there refused to accept his prisoner—he wasn't drunk any more.

Rabid Dogs Do Not Avoid Water

Dogs with rabies do not avoid water, although this erroneous opinion is common among the laity. Mad dogs are often very fond of water and will rush into it, thrusting their heads and swallowing with great difficulty. Rabid dogs have been known to swim streams in their rovings.

SCHOOLS

Greenwood School.

Teacher, William Burmeister.
Reporter, Clinton Sadler.

The ones who had all their words right in spelling last week were Lucile Patten, Emma Popp, Jean Niziol and Bernice Vorhes.

On the south bulletin board one of the new pictures is about Charlie McCarthy.

In art we are making Easter baskets and cutting out paper flowers to put in them.

We have a big bird chart with 30 birds on it. We each received a group of colored bird cards. We are seeing who can see the most birds as they come back from the South.

The story the sixth and seventh graders are having in reading is Penrod by Booth Tarkington.

We received twenty-five Easter seals. The money from these seals goes to help the crippled children.

We had visitors last week. Their names were Miss Ludden, principal of the county normal, and Miss Leola Boyne and Mr. Manwell, county normal students.

Those who are on the honor roll are Jean Niziol, Bernice Vorhes, Jimmie Luana, Vernon Patten, Yvonne Palmer, Lucile Patten, Emma Popp, Dorothy Smith, Floyd Patten, Irene Hawley and Rowena Hawley.

Those who were neither absent nor tardy were Helen Luana, Vernon Patten, Bernice Vorhes, Wilma Bodie, Yvonne Palmer, Lucile Patten and Emma Popp.

Rescue School.

Teacher, Catherine MacLachlan.
Reporter, Madelyn O'Rourke.

In our reading contest, Alton Summers leads the eighth grade; Madelyn O'Rourke, seventh; Edna Ellis, sixth; Isabel Martin, fifth; Kenneth Hill, fourth; Winton Ellis, second; Kenneth MacAlpine, first; and Donna MacAlpine, chart class.

The eighth grade of Sharrard School invited us over to hear their debate on "Resolved: The maintenance of large armies and navies promotes war." We enjoyed the debate very much. The decision was a tie.

Those receiving certificates for having twenty perfect spelling lessons are Kenneth Martin, Harold Cummins, Edna Ellis and Madelyn O'Rourke.

Maynard Martin visited us on Wednesday.

We received our service bars from the Michigan Automobile Association and have earned a trophy.

Sharrard School.

Teacher, Miss Agnes MacLachlan.

Reporters, Marian King and Josephine Zaleski.

We had a debate Friday afternoon. The question for debate: "Resolved: The maintenance of large armies and navies promotes war." The members of the eighth grade were divided into two groups. Those taking the affirmative were Florence Jackelowicz, Roy Rolph, and Josephine Zaleski. The negative debaters were Genevieve Miljure, Marian King and Aileen Kirby. Our judges were Helen MacLachlan, Euleta Heron and Mrs. Jennie Mae Kirby. The members of the sixth, seventh and eighth grades and their teacher of Rescue School observed our debate. The judges declared the debate a tie.

We are sorry to hear that Kenneth Woolner underwent an operation on Wednesday. For art on Friday we made "get well" cards and sent them to Kenneth.

On Tuesday the boys and girls pleasantly surprised Miss MacLachlan on her birthday. We spent the afternoon playing games after which the pupils served a delightful lunch of cookies, cake and jello and presented Miss MacLachlan with a lovely purse.

The boys and girls of our school sent Kenneth Woolner a box of fruit on Monday.

We received eight service badges from the A. A. A.

Those having 100 in spelling for the week were Richard Zaleski, Kathryn Woolner, Harold King, Onnallee Rolph, Eva King, Edward King, Emily Jackelowicz, Marian King, Jake Gross, Genevieve Miljure, Florence Jackelowicz, Aileen Kirby, Josephine Zaleski and Roy Rolph.

Sand Valley School.

Teacher, Mrs. Warner.
Reporter, Dorothy Klinkman.

We have two new pupils in our school. They are Marietta and Betty Hood.

We are very sorry that Henry Nowland received a broken leg when he was playing baseball.

Those who were neither tardy nor absent last month were Lance and Billy Robinson, Dorothy and Kenneth Klinkman, Donna, Bob, June and Henry Nowland, Chester Strickland, Arthur DuRussell, Marie and Cleo Shagena and Raymond Windy.

Those neither tardy nor absent for the week are June, Bob and Donna Nowland, Cleo, Robert, Marie and Elaine Shagena, Chester Strickland, Lance and Billy Robinson, Vernon and Arthur DuRussell, Raymond, Joe and Steve Windy, Letha and Althea Palmateer, Dorothy and Kenneth Klinkman.

Raymond Windy and Donna Nowland received 100% in arithmetic.

The seventh grade are studying about the earth for geography and will have tests over all the book Tuesday. They are also starting transportation booklets.

The seventh and eighth grades learned "Abou Ben Adhem" for reading.

Our visitors this week were Agnes Windy, Lila Nowland and Bobby Warner.

Those who got 100% in spelling this week are Lance Robinson, Dorothy Klinkman, June Nowland, Marie Shagena, Kenneth Klinkman and Raymond Windy.

We started practicing baseball before the snowstorm.

The well drillers came and are drilling a well for us.

Leek School.

Teacher, Sarah Wright.
Reporters, Betty Jeanne Bruce and Ezra Parker.

The beginners have made a booklet on Holland. Mrs. Wright has finished reading "Kit and Kat, the Dutch Twins," to them.

We have a border of rabbits and Easter lilies on the board.

Bill Kubat and Frank Skripy gave several harmonica selections for the Greenwood program.

The fourth and fifth grades are beginning study of the Dominion of Canada for geography.

The sixth and seventh grades are studying the North Central States for geography.

The fourth grade have one more story in their reading books to read.

Those receiving 100% in spelling for the week were Betty Jeanne Bruce, Frank Skripy, Howard, Earl and Ezra Parker.

Those neither tardy nor absent for the month were Frank Skripy, Virginia and Irene Kapral, Betty Jeanne and Martha Bruce, Joan Kapala, Earl and Howard Parker.

Our handicraft and sewing articles must be finished by April 4. They will be judged at Kingston and then taken to Caro. Each one in our club will be given a free ticket to the show at the Strand Theater at 10 o'clock. We have enjoyed our clubs very much.

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Henderson attended the funeral of Mrs. William Curry in Flint Saturday afternoon.

The usual C. E. and church service at the Novesta Church of Christ will be omitted Sunday evening, April 9, and beginnnig at eight o'clock, an Easter pageant in four parts, entitled "The Christian Trail," will be given at the church. Everyone is welcome.

Harold Ferguson of Pontiac spent a few days last week with relatives here.

Coops Need Oil to Lick Mites

Oldtime whitewash of Tom Sawyer's day has little place in effective control of mites and lice in modern poultry coops. An oil spray application inside is more effective if less attractive.

Those who seek appearance can apply paint to coop exteriors, advises C. B. Dibble, Michigan State College extension specialist in insect control. Interiors should be sprayed this spring with a half and half mixture of crankcase oil and kerosene for controlling mites. A thorough coop cleaning should precede the application.

Another appliciation takes care of the lice. Dibble recommends treating the perches with nicotine sulphate, also known as black leaf 40.

One ounce of this is considered sufficient for 30 to 40 feet of perch. The liquid should be dropped on and spread in a thin line. If a brush is used the material usually only treats 6 to 8 feet of perch.

This application for lice is to be made just before the birds climb onto the roosts in the evening. A second application 14 days later is recommended to control any lice that hatch after the first nicotine sulphate is applied.

Marine Foods in Mermash

dry protein mash, supplies chicks, pullets, hens with iodine and other minerals in food form. They are lacking in Michigan soils and crops.

Mermash supplies such minerals from Pacific Ocean kelp (a plant) and fish meal. Farmers note that chicks raised on Mermash are strong, grow fast and feather soon. Pullets cost low and lay early.

Mermash contains the best: Ground yellow corn, pure wheat bran, flour midds, meat and bone scraps, alfalfa leaf meal, kelp, fish meal. Its low price pleases.

EASTER

Most representative and unchanged of all children's toys are those of Easter time.

The furry rabbit, as usual, is the most popular of children's Easter toys in 1939. Christmas presents are already broken or forgotten, and their owners eagerly welcome the Easter bunny. Here a worker in a larger eastern toy factory cuts the pattern for a rabbit, which, Easter Sunday morning, delights some happy child.

Quarrelsome Donald Duck is rapidly growing in popularity. Though many other Easter toys are manufactured, the bunny and Donald easily lead in total sales. This particular duck, when completed, may be shipped to any part of the world.

Surrounded by thousands of stuffed toys, this girl is busy dressing a rooster. After workmen have completed manufacture of the toy, it is then dressed and made ready for shipping. Manufactured primarily for smaller children, Easter toys are usually not mechanical.

This workman trims the whiskers on Brer Rabbit, and no one could be more of an authority on the job. Perhaps he is prompted by jealousy to clip them that close. Regardless of the length of his whiskers, Brer Rabbit always finds himself in the arms of some enthusiastic five-year-old on Easter Sunday morning.

Held Apple-Paring Bees

Here's a little jovial custom the swains of pioneer days enjoyed at apple-paring bees. If they could take all the skin off an apple in one strip, they whirled it around their heads and let it fly. The paring was supposed to shape itself into the monogram of the fellow's intended mate.

First Chicks See New Federal Lab

Pre-Easter hatching of 1,000 eggs has placed in operation the facilities of the new federal poultry disease research laboratory on the campus of Michigan State College.

The hatchings which will be set each week to provide a total number of 6,500 chicks are designed for an intensive study of the causes of fowl paralysis which is taking an estimated 25 per cent toll annually from the farm flocks of the 25 midwest and northeastern states which the laboratory is to serve.

Half of the chicks are to be used in pathology or disease innoculation studies, it is explained by Dr. J. Holmes Martin, director. The other half of each hatch is to go into genetic studies to locate individuals which can be used to establish susceptible and resistant organs.

Eggs are being purchased from 10 different flocks from coast to coast in the nation, selected on the basis of quality breeding. Preliminary work includes only strains of White Leghorns to establish fundamentals. Later, results are to be tested on other breeds by collaborating experiment stations at state colleges and universities in some of the 25 states which the laboratory serves.

Dr. Martin announces three appointments to the laboratory staff. Senior poultry pathologist is Dr. C. A. Brandly, who received degrees from Kansas State College, taught there, and who served three years as associate chief in animal pathology at the University of Illinois.

Another staff member is Dr. N. F. Waters, working as senior poultry geneticist. He is a graduate of Connecticut State College with subsequent degree from Harvard and in the past eight years has served as poultry geneticist at Iowa State College. Superintendent of the plant is J. F. Michael, transferred from the national federal research center at Beltsville, Maryland. Two additional aides are to report April 15 to work with Superintendent Michael.

COLWOOD.

Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Winniger and son of Detroit were week-end guests of Mrs. Winniger's mother, Mrs. Alma Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin McCreedy spent the week-end at Flint with relatives.

The ministerial meeting of the North Michigan Conference of the U. B. Church is being held at Colwood U. B. Church this week.

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. McKellar were Sunday callers at the Thomas J. Smith home.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Smith and Mrs. Sam McCreedy attended a meeting of Elmwood Township school officers at Marlette High School one day last week.

Elden Vader and uncle, Roy Vader, visited the Robert Schull and W. C. Cornwell ranch at Clare Wednesday.

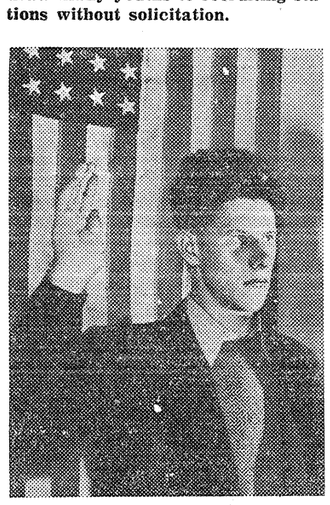
Mr. and Mrs. Donald McNeil and family of Caro were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Dailey.

Advertise it in the Chronicle.

YOU'RE IN THE ARMY NOW

During 1939 some 40,000 young men, from 18 to 35, will enlist in the United States army, keeping it at its full strength of 165,000 men. Army Day observances, April 6, draw many youths to recruiting stations without solicitation.

Having passed physical and intelligence examinations, the youth is questioned for possible police records and moral deficiencies. When requirements are satisfactorily met, he is fingerprinted for further criminal identification.



Accepted as a soldier, the recruit then solemnly swears that he will "bear true faith and allegiance to the United States . . . will serve them faithfully against their enemy . . . will obey orders of the President and the orders of the officers appointed."

Under the tutelage of a regular, the recruits learn to march in formation. Then the young men are sent to an army post for the duration of their enlistment. Some are sent to foreign countries, some remain at home. Regardless, "the army builds men."

Save by Cutting Taxes

If taxes were cut in half, the resulting savings would be equal to about $5 a week for each family.

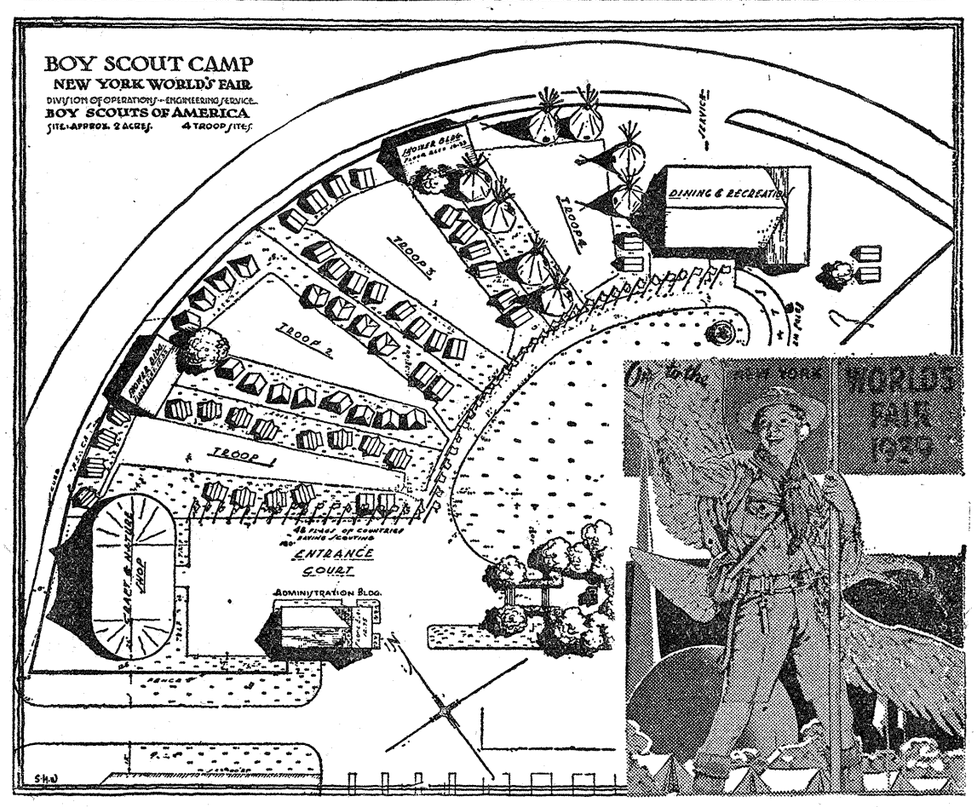
Boy Scouts Building World's Fair Camp



Layout of the two-acre Boy Scout camp at the New York World's Fair, to be used by 3900 different Scouts and leaders from all sections of the United States during the Fair season.

Any qualified member of the Boy Scouts of America may apply for an opportunity to take part in a unique demonstration and service camp at the New York World's Fair, Dr. James E. West, Chief Scout Executive of the National Council, Boy Scouts of America, has announced. The plan for a Scout camp of approximately 150 different Scouts and leaders each week, on a two-acre site within the Fair grounds from April 30 to October 31, was approved by formal action of the managers of the World's Fair Corporation and the National Council, Boy Scouts of America.

The camp, to be located immediately adjacent to the Federal Building, will accommodate four Troops of 32 Scouts and four leaders. Each site will be equipped with tents of various colors and designs. There will be a large tent for the display of Scouting including woodcraft, handicraft and campcraft. There will be opportunity for Troops that have produced outstanding articles of handicraft and campcraft to have them shown in this tent at the World's Fair and the exhibit will represent the finest craftsmanship so far developed by Scouts.

Near this tent there will be an open area for flag ceremonies, together with a rustic campfire amphitheatre for dramatics and other spectacular demonstrations and a dining hall with full equipment.

Totem Pole at Gateway

The gateway is to be an imposing one with a 40 foot totem pole. The headquarters building will serve as the administration center for the camp, and a stockade will surround the entire camp area. In line with the symphony of colors of the World's Fair the Scout camp will be most colorful with the flying flags of all Scout nations waving aloft, a symbol of world brotherhood and a friendly greeting to visitors from all over the world.

Contacts with Officials

Service projects will be an important part of a Scout's program during four or five hours each day. This will put Scouts in touch with the management of the enterprise, and they will have many occasions to meet the distinguished persons involved in the Fair.

There will be accommodations for only 3,900 of the 1,271,000 present registered Scout membership, most of whom, judging from requests already on hand, would like to avail themselves of this privilege. The opportunity will be open to Scouts in any part of the United States who meet the standards prescribed by the National Council, and preference will be given to applications in the order of their receipt.

All camp reservations must be made through local Scout Councils and not directly with the National Council.

DEFORD

Francis Stewart and Kenneth Kelley were at Lansing on Wednesday to attend a milk producers' meeting.

Miss Belle Spencer spent Sunday at Oxford at the home of her brother, Elvin Spencer. The Misses Wanda and Helen Spencer returned to her home with her to spend the week. Sunday evening callers at the Spencer home were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Chard of Marlette and Mr. and Mrs. Harshel Adams of Ellington.

ELMWOOD GROUP VISITS TOWNSHIP SCHOOL

Concluded from first page.

84% of the total money spent was received from state and federal aid.

A great deal of interest has been shown in the Gagetown Community and Elmwood Township in regard to a township school district and figures of the state finance department show that there would be an enormous increase in the amount of state aid received if organized on the unit basis. Under the present organization of the several school districts there is practically no state aid being received, placing the educational burden upon the local community. Over forty pupils of high school age are not attending high school for lack of transportation while in the Marlette system nearly every student is in high school for under that type of organization the child is furnished free transportation and is paid for under the Thatcher-Saur Law.

The difference in the Marlette system and the one contemplated for Elmwood would be that grades 1 to 6 would remain in the rural schools under their present system and only grades 7 to 12 would be transported to the Gagetown High School. This type of organization would provide the same amount of aid as if all students were transported. Another condition favorable to the formation of a Township Unit is that adequate building facilities now exist. There are several good rural schools now in Elmwood Township and the Gagetown High School is now enjoying the use of a new building addition which has increased the value of the school plant to $60,000 and is able to accommodate 100 additional pupils. Adequate building now exists for all children of grades 7 to 12 in the township in addition to the grade children now attending.
