Unnoticed by Mrs. Rattenbucker, the child came too close to the flames and his clothing caught fire. Hearing his screams and seeing the lad enveloped in flames, the mother seized a blanket and rolled him in it. The child suffered burns over his entire body. He was given first aid by Dr. D. J. Rain Reduces Attendance at Two Musical Events Here

While farmers generally welcomed the heavy rains the past week for the good it will do in saturating the subsoil and adding to the possibility of raising more abundant crops this summer, two musical events in Cass City suffered from attendance because of these weather conditions.

The first, that of Friday night when the annual Tuscola Band Festival was held in the school auditorium, found an audience estimated from 400 to 500. Twice that number were expected and would probably have been here had weather conditions been favorable.

The audience heard the Caro, Cass City, Mayville and Vassar high school bands perform as individual units and later in the evening students selected from the four organizations played the prelude to the third act of "Kunihild" by Kistler and selections from "Die Frieren." Turn to page 4, please.

Guess This One? Taken When We Were Young

The bewildered gentleman's picture last week made guessers more than 50% wrong. John Wright thought it was Paul Bundo, Sr., and G. A. Tindale and Arthur Little were quite convinced they were right when they named John Marsh.

Women held a perfect score, for the two who ventured opinions, Mrs. Charles Doerr and Mrs. Frank McGregory, were correct when they guessed Charles I. Cooke. Well, here's another picture for this week and it looks somewhat easier to make a correct guess.

Pretty Wedding at St. Columbkil's Church Saturday, April 15

St. Columbkil's Church was the scene of a very pretty wedding Saturday morning, April 15, when Miss Helen Margaret Garety, daughter of James M. Garety, of Cass City, became the bride of John Sweeney of Detroit, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Sweeney, of Uby. Rev. Fr. E. R. Werm performed the ceremony.

The bride was very lovely in a gown of white satin, princess fitted at the waist, with long full skirt. The back was buttoned to the waist, the sleeves were puffed at the shoulder and fitted at the wrist with tiny buttons. A finger tip veil was inset with lace. The cap was also of lace held in place by a tiny band of white satin. She carried a large bouquet of white calla lilies and snapdragons.

Miss Beatrice Garety was her sister's only attendant. Her gown was of aqua blue georgette fitted at the waist with long full skirt. A small peach bow with streamers fell to the bottom of the dress in front. The sleeves were short puffed, the neck line was held in place by shirring and her slippers and accessories were of peach color. She carried red rosebuds.

Dolan Sweeney of Detroit was his brother's best man. Both wore white carnations on the lapels of their suits of dark grey.

In the evening, a wedding reception and dance was given at the St. Columbkil's Parish Hall in Sheridan.

NATURE'S LOVING FACE.

Some years ago the study of Nature became a prevailing fad. The women got out with their opera glasses, and noted every flirt of Mr. Robin's tail, and no sparrow could twitter without their being able to identify him.

New diversions and occupations seem to crowd these interests somewhat out of the modern mind. The people are so busy chasing the elusive dollar, or clocking up the miles on their speedometers, that the sweet and simple life of the roadsides and the hills seems to elude them.

Yet all this beauty is around us every day. When we get weary of the crowds of cities, when the labors of the day seem too long, when we are tired of the honking on the road, and when our hours seem too crowded with our committee meetings and pleasures, the robin is still singing in the tree tops, the daisy still shines like a star in the field, the pine tree invites us to rest by its sweet whisper, the bush flames out like an altar fire.

The philosophers of the past were great Nature lovers. They found in those quiet scenes by the streams or the lakes a message that does not come in the hurly-burly of modern life. They made the acquaintance of all these matchless works, and every bird, every tree, every flower was a friend that spoke a language of love and rest to them.

CHILDREN IN THE STREETS.

One of the first lessons of early youth is how to cross streets. With automobiles tearing down these ways at high rates of speed, child life is exposed to peril. Many cities station officers near schoolhouses at the beginning and end of their sessions, to make sure the youngsters cross safely.

Many parents have anxious days when they first let the children go loose and take care of themselves. If they have spent considerable time showing the children the dangers of the streets, and instructing them to look both ways carefully before crossing, the chances of accident are greatly reduced.

PEACE OR WAR?

When Adolf Hitler issued one more of his defiant speeches, the world again trembled at the chances of war. The difficulty in dealing with Mr. Hitler is that no one can figure out what he will do. Sometimes he talks rather softly, but before you know it, he has reached out and grabbed some territory. Will he do it again?

He is supposed to have seized Czechoslovakia as the result of information that no big country would fight to prevent it. Now that he knows that Britain and France will fight if he grabs Poland, he may think differently. A country whose people lack the necessities of life, and where according to reports there is serious discontent, is not in any position to start a war.

Kaiser William lost his throne after he got the Germans into a four year war. Mr. Hitler might not last as long.

An Ohio man has started a "Don't Worry" club, but so far hasn't been able to interest any taxpayers in it.

One philosopher tells us that "more men can stand adversity than prosperity." Why not? We've had more experience.

LOCK THE STABLE BEFORE THE HORSE IS STOLEN

Michigan Mirror

A Non-Partisan State News Letter by GENE ALLEMAN, Michigan Press Association

Lansing—In this day of double-header movie attractions, Michigan's capital is being enthralled by two sensational thrillers:

First—"The Mystery of Frank McKay, or Why Did He Get $92,000 for the Blue Water Bridge?"

Second—"The Enigma of State Buying, or Why Were State Orders Cancelled for Higher Prices?"

With investigations under way by order of Luren D. Dickinson, the two thrillers promise to become serials. Capital citizens, accustomed to officials probes, are wondering what the final chapters will be like. At any rate, the suspense here is breath-taking.

The McKay sensation involves two state administrations—Fitzgerald's term in 1935 and 1936 when the financing was arranged, and Murphy's term in 1937 and 1938 when the structure was built. The bridge project was fathered by a special state commission and financed by a $2,300,000 bond issue underwritten by a Toledo bond firm, Stranahan, Harris & Co. The state highway department built the highway approach at Port Huron.

Why did McKay, former state treasurer, receive $92,000 in connection with the bond issues for this bridge? Or was this fee for other services? Governor Dickinson has ordered a complete investigation.

Read Asked to Probe Attorney General Thomas Read has been given the responsibility of making the official inquiry into the McKay fee.

In making this assignment, Governor Dickinson found himself in the position of asking a McKay-endorsed state officer to investigate McKay. Capital observers recall that when Read was a candidate for lieutenant governor with the support of McKay, his chief primary opponent was Mr. Dickinson.

Like all mysteries, the McKay case has numerous ramifications. PWA administrator Harold L. Ickes has jumped into the picture with a disclosure that he had rejected the bridge project in 1935 on the grounds that the financial proposal was unwise.

Counter to Ickes' boast is the untarnished fact that the Port bridge is earning money faster than the commission anticipated it would and that the 20-year bond issue may be retired in the next ten years, if present earnings are maintained.

More Commissions In the McKay serial plot is another figure, Stewart P. Blazier of Grosse Pointe, Detroit manager for Stranahan, Harris & Co.

It was revealed at Washington that Blazier had received $18,685 in "commissions" for services performed in connection with the $2,300,000 bond issue, in addition to a salary of $4,800. Blazier was a personal friend of the late Governor Fitzgerald. Incidentally, he was one of the pallbearers at the Grand Ledge funeral.

between the Toledo bond house and the two Michigan men—McKay and Blazier. Hence it has all the earmarks of legality.

Hiking Prices

The second mystery thriller was uncovered by Auditor General Vernon J. Brown. It concerns the question: Why were certain orders cancelled by state buyers and substitute orders made out at higher prices?

The legislature recently transferred all accounting responsibility to the office of the auditor general who is a member of the state administrative board.

Digging into the records of buying done by the state since January 1, Brown bared some startling transactions: Purchase of a tractor, selling at retail for less than $1,000, for a total amount of $1,250 including a traded-in tractor; purchase of a plow, selling at retail for $110, for a total of $150.95; cancelling orders for 15,151 tons of coal and substituting new orders through another firm for 10,000 tons at higher prices; and sale of alleged inferior feed for cattle at higher prices.

Brown summed it up: "Local dealers have been ignored and articles bought of distant sales agents at prices above open market quotations. . . . Unless Michigan men display more intelligent buying than its central purchasing department has yet demonstrated, it had better hand the job back to heads of departments and institutions."

Barnard Involved Edward Barnard, Wayne County Republican boss, and McKay, Kent County leader, virtually dictated the choice of nominees of the Republican party last fall.

In order to cripple Barnard in Wayne County, Rep. Elton R. Eaton of Plymouth introduced a bill calling for congressional district conventions, all on the same day. Encouraged by young Republican legislators who are itching for a "new deal" in Michigan Republicanism, the bill was rushed through the House.

In the Senate, however, it was killed in committee but only on the day following the spring election. Senator D. Hale Brake, chairman of the judiciary committee, promptly introduced a new anti-Barnard bill and by precedent-breaking methods obtained suspension of rules for the particular measure, for the deadline for introduction of bills had passed.

Barnard's power in Wayne County, as the acknowledged ruler of county conventions, will be sharply curtailed if Brake's bill receives legislative sanction. The McKay fee exposure has greatly enhanced its chances of passage. It also sharpens the cleavage that is developing in Republican ranks.

Highway Patronage Raid If Murray D. Van Wagoner were a Republican, the house of representatives would not have given a moment's consideration to a bill seeking to deprive the state highway department of maintenance of state trunk roads, returning this responsibility to the counties.

In 1925 a Republican highway commissioner, Frank Rogers, took over maintenance of state roads in 18 counties. His successor, Grover C. Dillman, also a Republican, furthered this policy by taking over 14 additional counties. The trend was continued by Van Wagoner, a Democrat, and today the state department is responsible for snow clearance, ice sanding and general maintenance of state roads in 50 of the 88 counties, 18 counties being added in the past six years.

Should a severe snowstorm hit West Michigan, the state highway department mobilizes trucks and plows from counties not affected by the storm. The mobility of the state's snow-fighting equipment is recognized generally as a distinct public asset.

create 88 varieties. The Democratic commissioner has 1,200 maintenance employees—1,200 jobs which could be distributed among deserving Republicans. The bill is undeniably political in purpose.

State Deficit Grows

While double-header mysteries are still making the headlines, Governor Dickinson and the administration are wrestling with a critical financial dilemma—a treasury deficit prospect of approximately $30,000,000 by June 30.

To pay current cost of operating the state government, Michigan is dipping into special ear-marked funds in an attempt to avert the use of script or outright bankruptcy. Ordinarily the treasury has a balance of around $15,000,000. Today it shows a red ink deficit of $18,000,000 with three months' bills yet to be paid.

The higher prices for state purchases authorized by buyers after lower price orders had been cancelled, were directly counter to the governor's economy program. Governor Dickinson's salary cutting statement was an indication of the extremity to which he is ready to go in order to restore sound fiscal government to Michigan.

Frequently automobiles coming out of a private road or driveway feel that they have undisputed right to enter the main thoroughfare. Recently, this question was sent to me: "Does a driver of a car entering a street or road from a private road or driveway have the right of way over all vehicles approaching on the street or road?"

No—decidedly not. The driver should stop to see that the street or road is reasonably clear. The driver of a vehicle on the street or road may not know there is a private road or driveway there.

You are not in the line of traffic when you come on to a road from a private driveway, so until you are sure you can get into the line of traffic without an accident, wait—be alert—be careful. It's smart to drive carefully.

COMMENTS CHAMBER FOR STATE PARK SUPPORT

The Unionville Crescent, commenting on the action of the Sebewaing Chamber of Commerce in supporting the establishment of a State Park near the C. A. Thomas fishery in Tuscola County, says:

"The Sebewaing Chamber of Commerce is of the belief that the Thomas property is an ideal location from the standpoint of bathing, boating and other summer recreations, and is centrally located for the people of a large section of both Huron and Tuscola Counties.

"The Chamber of Commerce of Sebewaing has proven by this gesture that it can forget artificial boundary lines and can boost for its neighbors, although they may live in a different county. This neighborliness should be appreciated by Unionville people and its vicinity who in turn may be able to do an equal act of friendliness to our neighbor only six miles away."

Huron County Parks to Be Improved

Improvements to county parks in Caseville, Oak Beach and Port Austin will be made by the Huron County Park Commission under a $37,000 WPA project, of which the commission's share of the cost will be about $9,000.

Work in the Caseville park will consist of installation of a water system and a sewage disposal plant for flushing toilets with septic tanks. The camping site will also be enlarged.

The Oak Beach project will include enlarging the camp site by levelling a sand ridge. At the Port Austin park, the camp site will also be enlarged by addition of lots, contributed by the village of Port Austin. Streets will be built in the park.

His New Name

Every revolution throws up some curious quirks in human nature. In the French revolution they abolished nobility, prohibited religion and made a new calendar for themselves, and the story of M. de Saint-Janvier shows how all three worked out in practice. They abolished the "de" in his name because it smacked of nobility; the "Saint," because it reminded of religion; and the "Janvier" (January) because they had changed the calendar; so his name went down on the records as: "Citizen Nivoso, formerly De Saint-Janvier."

Use Larger Collection Plates

The collection plates used in mission churches in the Far North are larger than those used in city churches. Little money is in circulation in the North, and worshippers attending church heap the collection plates with dried muskrat skins instead. These are turned into money.

Ginseng Much Used in China

Ginseng, also called "sang" is an aromatic root highly valued as a medicine in China. Its taste is sweet, somewhat like licorice. Medicinal men say the root has little use except as a demulcent, but the Chinese use it for almost every household and medicinal purpose.

Food Habits Alter As Years March On

Vegetables Now Included As Part of Infant Diet

By EDITH M. BARBER

WITH the increasingly abundant supply of vegetables in fresh, frozen and canned form which are now available throughout the year, our food habits have undergone an important change. We recognize the contributions of minerals and vitamins and also of fiber which vegetables make to the diet.

It is now considered an essential part of infant feeding to include vegetables within the first few months of life. The first reason is on account of their food contributions. The second reason for their early inclusion is the importance of educating the child to like vegetables and thus promote the taste for them throughout life.

Because the fiber is not suitable for the infant's digestive mechanism, only vegetable juice which is prepared by cooking the vegetable in a small amount of water, should be given at first. Shortly, however, the vegetable itself in strained form is added in increasingly large quantities.

As both vegetables and fruits, as well as cereals, can now be purchased in small glass jars or in cans already for use, it is easy for the mother to add strained foods to the baby's diet as the doctor orders.

Borsch.

- 2 tablespoons butter
- ¼ cup minced onion
- 1 jar or can (4½ oz.) strained beets
- 1 jar or can (4½ oz.) strained carrots
- 2 cups water
- 1 teaspoon salt
- Pepper
- 1 cup cooked cabbage, if desired
- ¼ cup sour cream
- Melt butter, add onion and cook until yellow. Add strained vegetables, water and seasonings. Bring to a boil, add cabbage and reheat. Pour into soup dishes and add a little sour cream to each serving. Yield—five to six servings.

Apricot Mousse.

- 1 cup cream
- 2 egg whites
- 1 jar or can (4½ oz.) strained apricots
- ¼ cup sugar
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon almond flavoring.
- Whip cream. Beat egg whites until stiff and fold into whipped cream. Fold in strained apricots which have been mixed with sugar, salt and flavoring. Pour mixture into refrigerator tray and freeze three to four hours. Yield—six servings.

FOR OLDER ONES

Blanc Mange.

- 3 cups milk
- ½ cup cornstarch
- 2 eggs
- ¼ cup sugar
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- Scald 2½ cups of milk, add remaining cold milk to cornstarch, stir to smooth paste and add to hot milk, stirring constantly. Cover and cook over hot water 15 to 20 minutes. Beat egg yolks with sugar and salt, and stir into hot mixture. Cook five minutes, remove from fire and stir in vanilla and fold in beaten egg whites. Pour into one large or six small molds and chill. Serve with whipped cream.

Rice Pudding.

- ¼ cup rice
- 4 cups milk
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ¼ cup sugar
- Nutmeg
- Wash the rice, mix the ingredients and pour into buttered pudding dish; bake three hours in a very slow oven (250 degrees Fahrenheit) stirring three times during the first hour of baking.

Savory Sausage.

- Cook small sausages until they are light brown. Remove from pan, pour off all but two tablespoons of fat and add one tablespoon butter, two tablespoons minced celery and one-half cup tomato catsup (to three-fourths pound sausage). Stir until hot and serve with sausage on buttered toast.

Baked Apples.

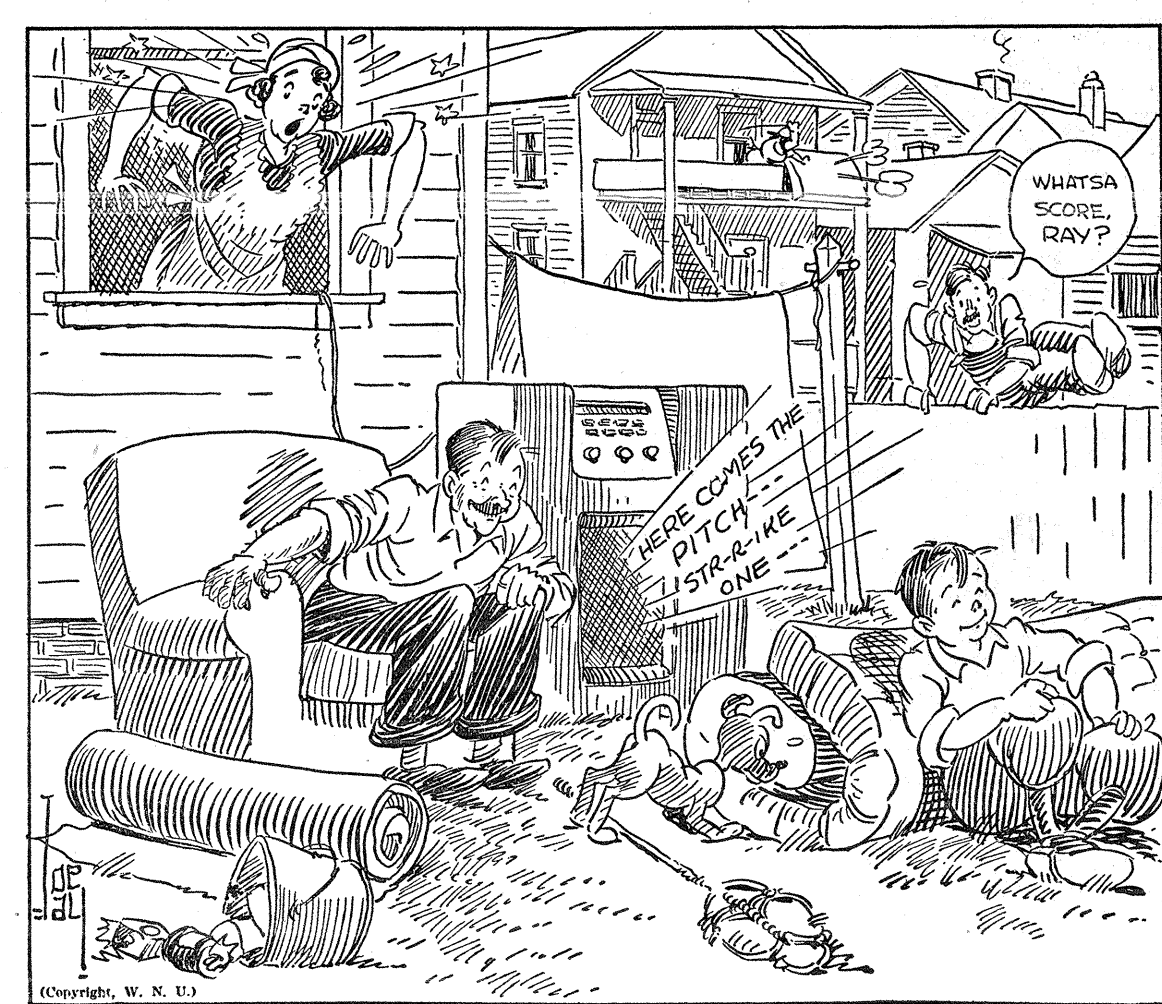

- Wash and core sour apples. With a sharp knife cut a line through the skin around the middle of each apple. This will prevent the skins bursting as the apples cook. Allow a quarter of a cup of sugar mixed with a quarter of a teaspoon of cinnamon to five apples. Fill the cavities with this mixture, place in a baking dish and cover the bottom of the dish with hot water. Bake in a hot oven, basting occasionally with the sirup. More water may be added as needed. Apples may be baked on top of the stove by placing in a covered dripping pan and cooking slowly, basting occasionally.

Creamed Fried Onions.

- 1 dozen medium sized onions
- 3 tablespoons fat
- 3 tablespoons flour
- 2 cups milk
- 1 teaspoon salt
- Pepper
- Slice and fry the onions in fat. When light brown, dredge with flour, stir well and add milk and seasoning. Cook until thick and serve on French toast, made by dipping bread in milk and frying until light brown.

RAIN REDUCES ATTENDANCE AT TWO MUSICAL EVENTS HERE

schutz" by Weber. The all-county band was under the direction of Graham T. Overgard, nationally known conductor and authority on instrumental music and the director of three famous bands at Wayne University, Detroit.

Mr. Overgard served as critic at the festival and made suggestions on the performances of the individual bands that were most helpful and valuable to both students and directors of the organizations. The program in the evening, open to the public, was much enjoyed by the audience. During the afternoon, the members of the all-county band practiced from 2:00 to 5:45 preparing for the evening performance and all found the lengthy rehearsal a valuable experience.

Selections of the four bands were transcribed on a recording system brought by Mr. Overgard and as the selections are later reproduced students may "hear ourselves as others hear us."

Tuscola Philharmonic Concert.

Tuscola County residents are indebted to Myron David Orr, county attorney, for the assemblage of the county's best musical talent in the Tuscola Philharmonic Society which gave its premier performance in Cass City Tuesday evening. The audience, like that of the band festival on Friday, was smaller than anticipated because of the heavy rainfall.

Song and instrumental numbers were cleverly arranged and staged and the program was a varied and pleasing one. Orchestra and chorus were remarkably well balanced, and while ensemble numbers were a delightful part of the program, the work of the musicians in solo and duet numbers was equally notable and enjoyable.

Vocal solos were given by Miss Lucile Osgerby of Vassar and G. W. Landon of Cass City, an accordian solo by Miss Betty Buschlin of Unionville, a violin solo by Miss Harriett Crowther and a piano duet by Mrs. Ethel McCoy and Delbert Henry, all of Cass City.

The stage setting was most colorful and very beautiful.

J. Ivan Niergarth, president of Cass City Rotary, under whose auspices the concert was presented for the benefit of the Michigan Crippled Children's Fund, introduced Clarence Bougher, in charge of the crippled children's project in the county, and after a brief summary of the work, Mr. Bougher presented to the audience the Tuscola Philharmonic Society and its director, Myron David Orr. Rev. Charles Bayless served as narrator during the program.

Members of the Tuscola Philharmonic Society who appeared here Tuesday came from seven villages in the county. They are: Fairgrove—Ferris M. Crawford, Eileen Icoeldinger, Carl Mantey, Unionville—Eva Ackerman, Doris Luther, Betty Buschlin, Viola Graf. Akron—Monte Bush. Vassar—Perry Osgerby, Lucile Osgerby, Janet Allured. CHAPTER IX

Spurred on with a new enthusiasm for writing because of having met, although rather casually and at no great length, a few arrived authors, Mary again set to work the next day. She entitled her new story "Concerning Anne," and, with a feverish zeal but not much conviction, devoted the entire day to working on it. Aunt Linnie and Lelia were occupied with some last-minute shopping for their cruise, and the apartment was blessedly quiet.

Miss Hickenlooper, sounding slightly more cordial than she had that day at the office, telephoned Mary around three o'clock, and informed her that she had made an appointment for her for some sittings at the photographer's at the following day. And would she mind dropping in the office before going to have her picture taken? Mr. Buchanan wished to talk to her. Mary acceded happily to both requests, saying to herself, "Mr. Buchanan's probably made his decision on my story, and I believe, I really believe, it's favorable. Otherwise, he would merely have returned the manuscript with a polite note of refusal."

The following day, she refused luncheon invitations both from Jerome Taylor and Count Balianci. "Concerning Anne" must be re-typed, and whipped into shape in order to present it to Mr. Buchanan that afternoon. Her heart was light while she made her plans. One story was finished, and another was about to be accepted. She was, she felt, going places and, for the time being, although she did not quite realize it, she had completely forgotten Christopher Cragg. At least, the hurt of his marrying Ilsa Grace-land was not bedeviling her every conscious thought.

She arrived at The National Weekly quarters at exactly three o'clock, a large envelope containing her new manuscript under her arm. There were three people seated in the waiting room, but, much to her amazement, Miss Hickenlooper escorted her immediately, and with somewhat of a flourish, to Mr. Buchanan's office.

He was seated at his desk, gazing angrily at a typed letter in his hand. The afternoon sun filtered through the Venetian blind of the window behind him, and settled on that strangely sunburned hair of his, making him look, Mary thought, like a little boy who has spent too many hours on the beach.

Buchanan rose hastily from his swivel chair. "Oh, Miss Loring! How are you? Won't you sit down?"

Mary seated herself on the edge of the chair that faced his desk. "I'm very well, thank you. And I've really been working since I saw you the other day. Meeting all those interesting people at your apartment stimulated me immensely, and I got busy at once on a new short."

"Um! That's fine. Have you finished it?"

Mary placed the brown envelope on the desk before him. "Here it is. I thought I might as well bring it with me since I was dropping in this afternoon anyhow. Miss Hickenlooper said you wanted to see me."

Phil Buchanan extracted a crushed package of cigarettes from the pocket of his tweed coat; extended it rather vaguely towards Mary who nodded a refusal; helped himself, and lighted a match. "Yes, I wanted to talk to you about 'Their Son.'"

Mary's heart turned a somersault. "Oh, so you've read it?"

"Yes, after Mr. Van Winkle turned it over to me with a recommendation for thumbs down."

"For what?"

"Thumbs down. He didn't like it, Miss Loring. He said—well, to speak quite frankly, he said it was trite."

Mary felt the hot blood rushing to her face.

"But I decided to read it, anyhow," Buchanan went on, "and I'm afraid I have to agree with him. It doesn't come up to the standard you set for yourself when you wrote 'At Sea.' The well—the snap's just not there. The plot's weak. The story lacks conviction."

Mary felt as if she had been slapped in the face. The man's words seemed so brutal, and his rejection of "Their Son" was such a shock. She had definitely counted on receiving a check for it this afternoon. A foolish lump filled her throat, and to her dismay she felt hot tears welling into her eyes and sliding treacherously from beneath her lashes. She could not trust herself even to look across at the man on the other side of the desk.

"Good Lord!" Phil Buchanan exclaimed incredulously. "You're—you're not crying! My dear child, please don't take this thing so seriously. After all, The National Weekly's not the only magazine in New York."

Mary averted her face, and gazed blindly out of the window. "No," she finally managed to say, "The National Weekly's not the only magazine in New York, but if you say 'Their Son' is trite, and lacks conviction, there's no use in my trying to market it anywhere else. And what a fool you must think I am! Crying because you don't like my story! I—I bet I'm the only woman who ever bawled in your office."

Buchanan grinned, showing those strong teeth that looked so startlingly white compared with the tan of his face. "Well, perhaps you are, but let's forget it."

Mary smiled through her tears. "Maybe you can, but I'm sure the memory of my making a fool of myself before an editor will haunt me to my dying day!—Mr. Buchanan?"

"Yes, Mary?"

"Throw that script in your waste basket!"

"Why, I can't do that. It's your property, you know."

"I never want to see it again!"

"No, I won't. It'll be mailed to you in proper form. Now tell me, what's the new tale about? And do you feel that you've allowed yourself enough time on it?"

Mary looked at him with troubled eyes. "Why, I don't know. I worked on it constantly for two days and a half—and, after all, a short is only a thousand or so words in length. Do you think I'd better take it back home?"

"No. Leave it here. I'll glance over it, myself, instead of submitting it to the regular routine. Then, if I feel it should be improved upon, I'll return it to you for revision before putting it through the usual reading procedure. Are you having that picture taken this afternoon, by the way?"

Mary glanced at her watch. "Yes, I am, and it's time I was getting to the photographer's. Thank you, Mr. Buchanan. You've been—nice, and I'm sorry I acted so silly."

Phil Buchanan followed her to the door. "Well, there's something you might do to—make up for having floored me just a bit there for a moment."

Mary smiled at him obliquely. "And what is that? Never darken your doors again?"

"To the contrary. I have to drive Oscar up to Westchester this afternoon, and I wish you'd go along."

"Oscar?"

"Don't tell me you've forgotten Oscar! My dog, you know. He's working up an attack of something or other, and I want to get him to the veterinarian's before he breaks out with distemper or the rickets, or whatever Great Danes have. We could call for you at the photographer's if you'll go; then, after getting Oscar settled, drop in at Trudi's on the Boston Post Road for a beef-steak dinner."

Mary hesitated. She had accepted an invitation with Count Balianci for dinner somewhere, and one of their usual walks, but an evening with Phil Buchanan suddenly appeared far more desirable than an evening with the suave Italian. She could phone Balianci; cancel her engagement with him.

"I'd love to go with you and Oscar," she finally said. "I don't imagine the photographer will keep me more than an hour, do you?"

"Not a chance! Shall I call for you, say, at five?"

"Yes, at five. Good-by."

He was, by the grace of a friendly policeman, waiting for her in his low-slung coupe when she came out of the building at five minutes after five. Oscar, looking regal in spite of a nose that was definitely dripping, occupied the rumble seat.

Mary hastily slid in beside Buchanan, and slammed the door. "I didn't know anybody short of the mayor could park on Fifth Avenue!" she said. "How's Oscar?"

"Oscar's got a decided case of the sniffles," Phil replied, looking really worried, "and Spike says you can hear a sort of wheeze in his chest—like an organ in a country church when the organist misses a note."

Mary turned about, and looked at the big dog through the back window. "He seems to be enjoying life right now," she reported. "Sitting up very straight and regarding the traffic with enormous interest!"

"He loves people," the man replied fondly, "and I bet he'll be furious with me when he finds I'm dumping him at the dog hospital."

Eventually, they arrived at Doctor Horner's Country Retreat for City Dogs, and, cramped and cold, alighted from the car. Mary could discern, through the gathering dark of the March night, a rambling frame building, once a barn, so Phil Buchanan informed her—now a model hospital for canine pets.

A united howl from the inmates had set up the moment Phil's car had pulled into the driveway. Oscar, feeling he had been betrayed by his master and this girl who had allowed him to lean so comfortably against her, slunk beneath the car and, for exactly ten minutes, steadfastly refused to budge.

Eventually, they wheedled him out, Doctor Horner having produced some bait in the shape of a very large hunk of round steak. Finally, assured by the veterinary that Oscar merely had a cold and would probably be in the pink of condition within a few days, they told the dog good-by, and, followed by his accusing eyes, made their way to the coupe.

It was nearly midnight when Mary reached home. Lelia had just got in, and was rifling the ice-box; while Miss Cotswell, propped up in bed, was reading.

"Come on in here, girls," she called from her bedroom, "and bring some cheese and crackers. Where in the world have you been, Mary?"

Mary stepped into the bedroom. "Why, Aunt Linnie, didn't Addie give you my message? I telephoned about five, but you weren't in, and I told her to tell you I was driving to Westchester with Mr. Buchanan. He had to take his dog to a veterinarian, and asked me to go along."

"Heavens! How domestic and un-exciting!"

"But it was fun, Aunt Linnie, really! We stopped at Trudi's on the way back, and had beefsteak and German-fried potatoes, and pancakes. And we sat in front of a big log fire in a room that can't be a day less than a hundred years old. No one else was there, and after Trudi served our dinner, he and his wife, who cooked it, came and sat with us, and we talked."

"Darling, you're not falling in love with him, are you?"

"Sounds cozy," commented Lelia, entering the room with a tray of food. "Phil Buchanan loves to hobnob with all kinds of people. Perhaps that's why he's so successful; he knows every phase of life. Half the policemen in New York have named their first-born son after him."

Miss Cotswell regarded her niece with speculative eyes. "Darling, you're not falling in love with him, are you?"

The butter knife with which Mary had been spreading some cheese clattered to her plate. "No," she said coldly. "I'm not falling in love with him, and a darned lot of good it'd do me if I were. He's interested in me as a writer—not a woman. And not so terribly interested, at that! He turned down 'Their Son' today—said it was trite and banal."

"Um," murmured Linnie, and bit into her cracker. "Well, I can't say, my dear, that I can shed any tears over that. The sooner you discover you were never meant to be an author, the better it'll be for you. Something will have to wake you up to the advantages of marrying Jerome Taylor."

Mary placed her plate on the tray with a bang that was almost fatal. "I'm never going to marry that silly old man, Aunt Linnie, and you might as well know it right now. Also, I wouldn't have Umberto Balianci, with his brilliant hair and perfumed cigarettes, for a gift. I'm sick to death of their fatuous glances and their silly speeches. It was wonderful—simply wonderful—to spend this evening with a man who never once mentioned my so-called beauty, nor attempted to kiss me. No, Aunt Linnie, I'm not falling in love with Phil Buchanan! And heavens knows, he certainly is not falling in love with me. In fact, there are times when I feel quite sure he doesn't even like me—that he secretly thinks I'm something of a fool!"

And, leaping to her feet, her eyes burning with unshed tears, she fled from the room.

GAGETOWN

Miklovich-Enderle Wedding—

St. Agatha's Church in Gagetown was the scene of the marriage of Miss Elizabeth V. Miklovich, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Miklovich, and Frank J. The couple was attended by Miss Anna Miklovich of Flint and Anthony Enderle of Owendale.

The bride wore a white satin dress made on princess lines, with a lace trimmed train. Her veil was of finger tip length of tulle fastened to a coronet of seed pearls and orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of white snapdragons and cream colored roses. The bridesmaid was dressed in blue satin, ankle length, with white accessories. Her flowers were pink snapdragons and white carnations.

A reception was held for seventy guests in the evening. Guests were present from Big Rapids, Detroit, Flint, Bay City, Caro, Greenleaf, Unionville, Owendale and Gagetown.

The couple will make their home with the groom's parents for the present.

Study Club Meeting—

The Study Club met at the home of Mrs. Harry Densmore Monday evening. Instead of the regular meeting the club sponsored a party for the recent bride, Mrs. Fred Nelson, nee Miss Myrtle Munro, who was honor guest. Mrs. Nelson was presented with a crystal console set. She has been a member of the club for the past eight years. Mrs. Hendershot was also presented with a gift for the new arrival at the Hendershot home.

A Professor Quiz program, conducted by Mrs. F. Emerick, was very interesting and caused much merriment. A light lunch was served. Monday, May 1, the club will hold their mother-daughter banquet, for which plans have not as yet been made.

Ferris Rushlo, pupil at the Cedar Run School of which Miss Margaret Glougie is teacher, won honors in the 4-H club meeting recently held in Caro. He was awarded the privilege of spending a week in Lansing this summer with other 4-H club members.

Albert Russell, who spent the winter with Mr. and Mrs. Percy Sharrock in Detroit, returned last week Tuesday and is visiting now at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Russell.

Several persons from here attended the banquet and dedication of the Owendale gymnasium at Owendale Saturday.

Mrs. C. P. Hunter entertained at a bridge party last Wednesday evening. Mrs. M. P. Freeman won first prize and Mrs. Alphonso

Use of Topaz for Cures

The use of the topaz to cure diseases of vision was strongly recommended by St. Hildegard. A Roman physician of the Fifteenth century was said to have wrought many wonderful cures of those stricken by the plague through touching those afflicted with a topaz that belonged to two popes—Clement VI and Gregory II. The superstitions that cling to precious stones are part of their charm, and the curious lore that has been collected about them fills many volumes, the result of painstaking research.

Meteor Falls in 664 B. C.

One of the earliest falls of meteors to be recorded took place about 664 B. C. in China. Other ancient falls of stones, some of which were made objects of worship, are recorded by Plutarch and Pliny. The stone referred to in the Acts as the image of Diana of the Ephesians which fell down from Jupiter was probably a meteoric stone, as is also doubtless the sacred stone built into the Kaaba at Mecca.

Cause of Amnesia

Amnesia is caused by overwork or worry. When a person is a victim of it he often recovers, but then he thinks something is the matter with him mentally.

Hippopotamus Sweats Blood

The phrase sweating blood is actually true of the hippopotamus. When this huge animal becomes excited, his skin exudes large amounts of oil tinged with blood.

NEWS of the FARM

State Boasts Cow with 100-Ton Production Record

Official records disclose that during 1938, Ionia Aaggie Sadie Vale passed 200,000 pound production record, being the only living cow with official record of this production. Records disclose five cows in the nation with a record of over this amount. The record breaker is owned by Ionia State Hospital, where she was bred and raised.

Michigan state-owned cows established three production records during the past year, according to Dairy Herd Improvement Test figures released during the past week to the Department of Agriculture, the agency in charge of the operation of the State Institutional Farms. The state herds now boast of the only living cow with production record of over 200,000 pounds of milk, the high producer for the state in Class B and four-year-old classes.

Ionia Aaggie Sadie Vale, bred and owned by Ionia State Hospital, passed the 200,000 pound mark by 1,620.1 pounds to enter a highly select group of five cows with a record past 100 tons of milk. Regarding this animal and the Ionia State Hospital herd, DHIA writes, " * * cow has accomplished the almost impossible achievement of producing over 200,000 pounds of milk. This herd is one of the great producing herds of the breed, averaging over 500 pounds of fat per cow year after year, and Ionia Aaggie Sadie Vale has done her share to keep the herd average up to its high standard. She was born Jan. 21, 1937, and up to Dec. 31, 1938, when she was 11 years and 11 months of age had produced 201,620.1 pounds of milk and 6,421 pounds of fat. She leads the list of living cows with large milk records and we hope will continue to add to her great record for many years to come. This brings the list to five cows with 200,000 pound milk records."

Strangely enough, while Ionia Aaggie Sadie Vale was compiling her national record, another state-owned cow, Marquette Cornucopia Fame, owned by Marquette Prison, removed her from top place in Class B for Michigan. The Upper Peninsula animal produced 30,125 pounds of milk with 949.7 pounds of fat, bettering record of the Ionia cow of 30,016 pounds of milk with 934.4, established in 1937. The third record was also established by a Marquette animal, a youngster in four-year-old class, Marquette Johanna Ruth DeKol, who produced 21,323 pounds of milk with 708.2 pounds of fat. This is a record in the class that dairying experts expect to stand for some time, far surpassing any previous records.

In discussing the records of these animals, Department of Agriculture officials pointed out that the production over a period of one year was greater than that of the average herd of dairying cattle for the average Michigan farm, that the total production of these three cows would in the course of a year fill 950 ten-gallon milk cans.

Soy Beans Win Place in Garden

Something new for a kitchen garden is suggested from the extensive research that has pushed the soy bean recently into dozens of industrial uses as well as winning plaudits for the legume as a food, feed and forage for its supply of protein, vitamins and minerals.

Meal, flour, sauce, milk curd and mash are typical forms of the soy bean in the kitchen or in the feed supplies. But the newest suggestion is to plant a short row of soy beans in the vegetable garden and try them cooked green for table use.

Two varieties suggested by C. R. Megee of the farm crops department of Michigan State College include the Hahto and the Easycook. "I won't guarantee that those who sit at the table will like these green cooked beans. Some will and some won't if their tastes differ, but it is true that they offer source of vitamins and proteins," says Doctor Megee.

The green beans are picked when they have reached nearly full size but should be still green and succulent. If they are to be shelled they are easier to shell if boiled first in the pod for 3 to 5 minutes. Then they may be steamed or boiled in lightly salted water. Some varieties cook as quickly as green peas, others take about the same time as lima beans. The firm texture and nutty flavor require only salt and pepper to taste for seasoning and perhaps some melted butter or crisply fried bacon or salt pork.

Better Market for the Truck Crops

Improved markets for vegetable truck crops are probable in view of somewhat smaller prospective supplies and increased buying power, states the federal Bureau of Agricultural Economics in its March report.

Crops pertinent to Michigan agriculture include potatoes, celery, cabbage, asparagus, lettuce, onions, tomatoes, watermelons and vegetables for canning. It takes considerable estimating to prophecy the 1939 potato crop. Intentions to plant, however, give an indication that if yields average about normal there may be a national crop of about 336,000,000 bushels or about 9 per cent less than in 1938. Michigan has an indicated 6 per cent increase in acreage.

Late crop states are going to find increased competition in marketing asparagus. One sunbeam in the picture, however, is that appetites may be whetted by a somewhat curtailed early crop from the southern states.

Low prices in the fall of 1938 are expected to lead to reductions in cabbage acreages. For celery the prediction is for a smaller crop with higher prices this spring. The report does not attempt estimates for northern acreages as yet.

Northern growers apparently are going to plant more onions in the face of a smaller Bermuda acreage in the south.

Lower consumption totals for canned corn and canned tomatoes are leading to a warning, interesting to Michigan farmers, that caution may be repaid in planning acreages of corn and tomatoes for canning. An anticipated reduction of 1.5 per cent is apparent in bean acreage nationally and white pea bean acreage is to be about 8 per cent less.

Good Plowmen Can Beat Borer

Heavier than usual infestations of corn borers in Michigan fields last fall offer more profit than just pride in good plowing this spring.

Even if the season seems late, a hurried and careless job of plowing would be a mistake, says C. B. Dibble, extension specialist in insect control, Michigan State College.

Borers winter in unused portions of the corn plant, such as stubble. Destruction in plowing by complete covering of these winter quarters of the borers will accomplish considerable in reducing the high population of the pests.

Few borers survive when stalk material in the fields and the manure in piles and feedlots is carefully plowed under and kept covered. Harrowing and fitting should be done in such a way that these stalks are not brought back to the surface.

Borers are not killed in surface trash. In fact this material will protect those that escape from buried material. When the pests emerge as moths the winged insect will fly away to lay sufficient eggs for 300 to 500 new borers to attack 1939 crops, Dibble warns.

June 1 is the date set by Dibble when plowing ought to be completed to destroy the borers which have wintered in the fields.

American Farmer Is Opposed to War in Europe

Schenectady, N. Y.—The American farmer is "tremendously disturbed" over world trends away from peace and united in his opposition to foreign interferences in American affairs, Graham Patterson, publisher of the Farm Journal and Farmer's Wife, told an international radio audience, speaking on the Farm Forum here Apr. 7. "The farmer does not approve of our mixing in world politics," he said, "but he is, on the other hand, almost a unit in opposing aggression, oppression of minorities and other current evils."

"You can depend upon it, the farmers in the United States do not want war. But you can also depend upon it they will fight to the limit for the protection of this country invasion and for the preservation of American ideals and, if they understand fully, will support defensive measures to make any such invasion forever impossible."

Though a foreign war would assure higher food prices and increased income for the American farmer, he would gladly forego these advantages for orderly peace and prosperity, Patterson declared.

Rich Beggars Apparently some beggars can be choosers. It is estimated that in New York city alone, $15,000,000 yearly trickles into the hands of 16,000 beggars. Begging is one of the oldest professions. It is said that 200 years ago an Englishman by the name of Carew amassed $150,000 during a 30-year period of begging under countless disguises.

Steiny Stone

A stone that has long served as a step at the eastern entrance to the churchyard of the old Sussex England, town of Steinyng has been found to be decorated with crude, but elaborate, carvings, and it is believed to be a menhir, or upright monumental stone, one of the few to be found in the country. It is thought possible that it was this stone that gave to Steinyng its distinctive name.

Name Marion Means 'Bitter'

The name Marion, of Hebrew origin, means "bitter," being a variant of Mary, notes Florence A. Cowles in the Cleveland Plain Dealer. It is one of the small class of names borne by both men and women, although the tendency is to restrict women to Marian and leave Marion for men.

Pronunciation of 'Cobb'

Cobb, the port of Cork, Ireland, and an increasingly popular debarkation point for visitors to the British isles, probably is the most mispronounced word in shipping circles. It is called Cobb, Kobe, but rarely Cove, which is correct. It is the same city as Queenstown, as it formerly was known.

Norris Wilber, county agricultural agent, gave a short talk in which he said, "Tuscola County is naturally adapted to the growing of beans and a quality product is produced." He also said the State Department of Agriculture should continue to insist on better grading of farm produce.

Carl Smith, secretary of the county association, outlined a plan for a membership campaign. Mr. Smith says: "The Michigan Bean Producers' Association has been organized by farmers who are bean growers and offers to the bean growers of Michigan an opportunity to get together in an effort to solve some of their problems and to improve the bean situation."

Play Golf at the Caro Golf Club... MICHIGAN'S MOST NATURAL GOLF COURSE! Golfers who travel and play various courses around the state claim that Caro Golf Club is Michigan's most natural and sportiest course. Its natural hazards of ravines, trees, and the sandy texture of the soil make it difficult to score on. We should all take advantage of this splendid endowment of nature practically at our back door. Two years ago a new club house was constructed and members now have complete club house facilities for themselves, their friends and their guests. Although former members have volunteered to pay a higher fee for the use of such a club house, the rates this year will be lower than the rates prevailing prior to its construction. This is being done solely for the purpose of inducing everyone that is interested in good, clean outdoor sport to take advantage of the only recreational center in this community. The father, the mother, and the whole family should spend part of the spare time everyone has and too often wastes in the wholesome exercise golf furnishes. If the parents are not athletically minded, give the children a chance to enjoy themselves in the outdoors. Nowhere is golf available so cheap, as the following rates will demonstrate: RESIDENT RATES. High school and college students.....$10.00 Ladies 12.50 Men 17.50 Men, full club house privileges..... 25.00 NON-RESIDENT RATES. High school and college students.....$10.00 Ladies 12.50 Men 15.00 Men, full club house privileges..... 22.50 These rates entitle you to play every day of the entire season.
