Two Injured in Traffic Accidents

One Falls from Automobile and the Other Fell from a Wagon.

When Raymond Castellano of Wisner drove from Bradleyville on Tuesday morning he picked up Frank McCory, 50, of R. R. No. 2, Akron, as a passenger. McCory, intending to lower the window as the car was in motion, grabbed the door latch by mistake. The door opened and McCory pitched from the car to the highway, injuring his head seriously. He was taken to Mercy Hospital in Bay City for treatment.

Joe Caulfield, 47, received a broken leg and arm in a fall from a wagon on Monday evening. The accident happened as John Salazar was driving his automobile on a Fairgrove Township highway, seven and a half miles northwest of Caro Standpipe. As Salazar started to pass a team belonging to Walter Embling and driven by Norman Etsel, the team made a left hand turn to enter a farm yard. To avoid hitting the wagon and team, Salazar drove his car into a deep roadside ditch. The horses became frightened, ran into the yard, breaking their harness, and demolishing the wagon. Caulfield was injured when he fell from the wagon.

War Stimulates Michigan Industry

Tool and Die Plants Go on 24-hour Daily Production Schedule.

Lansing—The World War No. 2 is already having a stimulating effect on Michigan industry and agriculture.

Again is appearing the familiar shadow of 1914-1918 when Europe's internal jealousies brewed a war boom in the United States.

"War profits" were reflected in newspaper headlines.

The Associated Press reported that Michigan's tool and die plants were rapidly going on a 24-hour daily production schedule, as orders poured in from Washington for preparedness aircraft output needed to back up our neutrality stand. Residents of Lansing were assured that the city's industrial system was in a better position to receive benefits from war munition orders than in 1914-1918.

To its upstate readers the conservative Detroit Free Press carried a top headline on a front page: "State farmers profit millions in war markets."

At the capital city Governor Luren D. Dickinson diverted from his usual "sin-dancing-drinking" statements to declare that America's first duty was to keep out of war and he urged strict observance of President Roosevelt's neutrality proclamation as defined by Congress.

Much as the average Michigan citizen did not like the prospect of personal profit at the price of bloodshed overseas, he nevertheless read with relish the news of a pending war boom.

As steel stocks rose almost daily and steel plants hurried to speed production, lake shipping concerns announced that more ore-carrying vessels were being pressed into service. Early in August, one month before Hitler issued his invasion order, traffic through the American locks at Sault Ste. Marie was 42 per cent ahead of last year.

In the Upper Peninsula's copper and iron country, workers looked forward to the prospect of a busy fall and winter season. Copper prices climbed. So did iron prices. Old-timers recalled the prosperous days during World War No. 1.

Upstate farmers were told that the war boom in commodity prices would put $25,000,000 to $30,000,000 into their pockets for the 1939 crops.

"War profits" to Michigan farmers meant a hope of clearing away without losses the largest stored surpluses in nearly ten years as of Turn to Michigan Mirror, page 2.

Celebrates 13th Anniversary as a Grocer in Cass City

Alex Henry is celebrating this week the 13th anniversary of his entrance into the grocery business in Cass City.

Born near Mitchell, Ontario, Mr. Henry was not content to stay too long in any one place after reaching manhood, until he landed in Cass City nearly a quarter century ago. In 1900, he came to Michigan and two years later went to Caro, Sask, where he homesteaded land in the wheat growing area in that province. He returned to Michigan in 1915 and three years later entered the employ of the Ford Garage in Cass City. In 1921, he and two partners established a garage business here known as the ABC, each letter representing the first letter of a partner's first name. After about three years in that business, he sold his interest to a partner and was engaged in carpenter work until he entered the grocery business in the autumn of 1926.

Prominent in fraternal circles, good natured and a fair-minded man of integrity, Mr. Henry has built up a large circle of friendship in and out of business.

Mr. Henry married Miss Bertha Davis in 1908. They reside on West Church Street and have two children, Mrs. Donald DuFord (Frances) of Cass City and Delbert Henry of Detroit.

$21,026 Is Sent to County Schools

Payment Represents $2 per Child for Primary School Interest Fund.

Not only school officers but County Clerk Clare W. Horning and his deputy, Mrs. Guy Ormes, would like to see larger payments of primary school interest funds instead of passing out the money in small quantities. The past week in the county clerk's office, checks were prepared and sent out to 154 school district treasurers in the county and a record made of each payment on the county books. The payment at the rate of $2 for each school child made $21,026.00 available.

Several years ago, the year's appropriation of primary school interest fund was made in one payment. A few years later two payments were made each year, and this year it looks as though the appropriation would be divided into several payments.

All schools except District No. 5, Tuscola Township, shared in the appropriation distributed this week. District 5 does not maintain a school and has plenty of funds on hand to transport its pupils to the Vassar school and therefore was ineligible to share in the appropriation.

Library money at the rate of 21 cents a child brought that distribution of funds to $2,131.50 for schools in the county.

An address of welcome was extended by Rev. Paul J. Allured of the Kinde church.

Arthur Holmberg, science instructor of the Cass City High School, was the principal speaker. He spoke on the subject, "The Responsibility of Privilege."

Plantings Promise Better Fishing and Hunting

Hungarian Partridges and Bass Fingerlings Brought Here Recently and Planted

Sportsmen in the Cass City community may look forward to better hunting and fishing because of plantings made of birds and fish here recently.

Henry Predmore, county conservation officer, released 100 Hungarian partridge in Section 29, Elkland Township, and Walter Goodall has promised to keep an eye on the flock and make frequent reports to the conservation officer regarding their condition. The Hungarian partridges are very hardy birds, according to Mr. Goodall, and should do well in this section of Michigan. There is a closed season on this kind of birds.

Nick O'Dea, a representative of the state fish hatchery at Drayton Plains, was in Cass City Tuesday and with the help of E. W. Kercher, local sportsman, planted 1,350 large mouth black bass fingerlings, about three inches in length, in the Cass River, south of town.

Similar plantings were made in North Lake, Shay's Lake and Phelps' Lake, all in Dayton Township, in Murphy Lake in Millington Township, and in Black River in Lexington Township in Sanilac County.

Last May, Mr. Kercher assisted A. T. Stewart in planting 240,000 Wall-eyed pike fry in spots along the Cass River east and south of town. They were about half an inch in length and will take three or four years to develop into "fishing size."

This new endurance mark not only breaks all Class D records but is also an unlimited closed car class record and is faster than any stock closed car, regardless of size or price, that has ever traveled this distance under official observation," Mr. Heath, sales manager of the Cass Motor Sales, declared.

"New economy marks were also set by this new Hudson Six which scored an average of 32.66 miles per gallon in a special 1,000-mile test using the optional overdrive and rear axle gear ratios," Mr. Heath revealed.

HEADLINES SHOULD BE HONEST.

The preference of Boston University students for conservative news presentation rather than sensational headlines is significant in view of the situation in Europe. A survey conducted by a School of Journalism senior reveals the students prefer a newspaper that is conservative in its treatment of news by a majority of approximately 90 per cent.

This echoes the recent survey by Fortune Magazine, which found many readers questioning the impartiality of publishers and the honesty and accuracy of the press. Fortune reports that less than three out of five of those interviewed feel that headlines usually give an accurate idea of the facts.

The student survey is challenging. Does not the pronounced interest in serious, honest news reflect the attitude of intelligent, world-conscious citizens generally? Might not the questioning of sensationalism lead to a re-assessment of some of the prevalent theories about "reader interest."

Particularly significant are these facts now. Reckless, sensational, fear-filled handling of the news would destroy the morale of the people of democratic nations to the extent that they are influenced by such journalistic practices. Judging from the survey, however, young people of America are thinking clearly. Newspapers desirous of capturing and holding reader interest and winning the respect of the public might profit by studying these conclusions.—Christian Science Monitor.

FAREWELL TO STRAW HAT.

The time has come when most American men pack the straw hat away in the attic. The old straw is often so faded and soiled, that they are glad to put it in the ash can or give it to some relief agency.

They had some nice times under that straw in the days that are gone. If it changed its color under the sunlight glare, it at least gave a touch of festivity to many a picnic and woodland excursion.

The seasons come and go, and the things that go with each season have their charm and appeal. The new fall lid looks as if the wearer really meant business. It seems as if the owner of such a dignified creation was a man of power who could take a good place in the work of the world, and say things to which the world will listen.

THANKLESS JOBS.

When people are asked to take hold of some task for the good of the home town, they often remark that it is a thankless job. If they are asked to take some office in a church, or serve on a committee in some society or club, they sometimes remark that they will have to spend a lot of time and get no thanks for it.

Yet in a good town like this are there any thankless jobs? The many folks who have carried on organizations and served the public in various ways build up a lifelong reputation. The people are grateful for all they have done, and if they make a few mistakes, these are forgotten. There may be little or no money in public activities, but they create wide circles of friends, and friends come in handy.

Clipped Comment

Why Let Our Sons Be Murdered? From Detroit Free Press.

Colonel Lindbergh advances convincing reasons, that ought to be compelling, why we of the United States need to use every means in power to keep clear of the European war and European entanglements, and refuse to be used as tools by disseminators of bugaboo hysteria and partisan propaganda.

nor anybody else any real good, but will be selling ourselves into expensive, bloody and probably perpetual slavery to the Old World.

Colonel Lindbergh begs us to count the cost of entering the conflict and he should be listened to.

He is quite right when he says that if we once start we must throw the resources of our entire nation into the conflict, and when he adds:

"We are likely to lose a million men, possibly several millions—the best of the American youth.

"We will be staggering under the burden of recovery the rest of our lives. And our children will be fortunate if they see the end in their lives, even if by some unlikely chance we do not pass on another Polish corridor to them.

"Democracy itself may not survive. If we enter fighting for democracy, we may end by losing it at home."

These are words of reason and sense from a man whose personal courage and patriotism may not be questioned, and who has more than a little first-hand knowledge of the European scene.

They are a warning to us who love our homes, our country and our families, and who desire to see our sons live on in health and strength enjoying their rightful heritage, instead of being herded aboard troop ships and sent to continental battlefields to be murdered, maimed or gassed in order to help nations that love us for what they can get out of us.

The cry that we must go to war to "save the world" and to protect ourselves from trouble in case the "wrong side" wins is foolish nonsense. Surely we will not fall for that sort of thing a second time.

We know how much we "saved the world" by what we did in 1917-18.

And we know now that the way to protect ourselves is to build up adequate means of self-protection and then mind our business.

We know that the way to save our sons and husbands from being gassed is to let those who start silly fights finish them.

But Colonel Lindbergh is right when he says we must act clearly and think quickly in the days ahead.

The propagandists who are trying to wreck our peace in order to serve their ends or the purposes of those they serve are extremely active. Congress soon will be in session, and both that body and the President will be greatly influenced by the manifest sentiment of the nation.

Nobody in Washington should be permitted to doubt that the insistent demand of the nation is for peace, and that for the moment everything else is subordinate to this demand.

Meteorite Nursed

To save what remains of an iron meteorite which fell near Melbourne, Australia, many years ago, it has been placed in an air-tight case in which the atmosphere contains only nitrogen. The gas was pumped in at a pressure equal to a wind blowing at 45 miles an hour against the sides of the enclosure.

'America, the Beautiful'

The late Katharine Lee Bates, who was for many years a member of the faculty of Wellesley college, crossed the continent of North America and was so moved by the wonders of her homeland, that she wrote "America, the Beautiful."

Michigan Mirror

A Non-Partisan State News Letter By GENE ALLEMAN Michigan Press Association

Concluded from first page.

January 1: Oats, 71 per cent of the 1938 crop; corn crop, 75 per cent; and wheat, 54 per cent.

Hog prices were soaring. The consumers' premature rush for sugar boosted prices nearly 50 per cent in a few days.

Mayor Richard W. Reading in Detroit protested; Attorney General Frank Murphy rumbled about possible G-men investigations; Attorney General Thomas Read at Lansing declared that a price-fixing "conspiracy" among retailers would bring instant prosecution by the state. He added, significantly, that "the present crisis may succeed in doing that which numerous 'isms' have failed to do" for Michigan farmers.

Crops Improving

While mid-summer weather was approaching drought proportions, Michigan farmers entered September with crop growing conditions 4 per cent above August and 1 per cent above a year ago.

The federal-state crop reporting service said that 1939 crops would be well above 10-year averages. And that news, coupled with the reflection that surpluses were still on hand, was immediately linked to headlines of rising commodity prices, due to the war.

Known to agricultural experts for a long time through Republican and Democratic administrations was the fact that farm prices have lagged in parity with manufactured goods. The AAA and soil conservation programs were aimed to effect an artificial remedy.

As Attorney General Read observed, war profits may do for the grower what government planning had not fully accomplished.

Problem of Neutrality

Into the new picture of war profits was injected the issue of national neutrality and how it might be best maintained.

Michigan's senior United States senator, Arthur Vandenberg, announced that he would vigorously oppose any revision of the present neutrality act to permit "cash and carry" purchases of American munitions.

Vandenberg is the state Republican central committee's choice for the White House.

Thomas Dewey, Owosso-born presidential possibility, made a plea for peace during his visit to his old home a month ago.

At Washington was Attorney General Frank Murphy in a Dewey-like role of a relentless Sir Gallahad against corruption and crime. While he had not joined the chorus in defense of the President's "cash and carry" plan, he was expected to do so.

War profits and neutrality thus loomed prominently in the Michigan foreground of coming events.

Spy Fever

Into the daily press and the motion picture news reels Attorney General Murphy solemnly requested every good American citizen to come to the aid of his country.

Spies would seek to embroil America in the conflict.

Industrial plants where war orders were being filled for Allied powers would be subject, it was thought, to extensive espionage and sabotage activity.

If you believe there is a spy in your neighborhood, quoth Murphy, notify the nearest G-man office of the department of justice.

State Police Commissioner Oscar Olander confided that his staff of 300 uniformed men and plain-clothed detectives had been instructed to keep a vigilant watch for foreign agents.

And so, with war fever, came an accompanying pulse-quickener, spy fever, to the Michigan scene.

Hard-Boiled Budgeteer

Gus Hartman, Michigan's new budget director, is earning a reputation of being a hard-boiled executive in grim quest of economy.

For many administrations state employees have driven their cars to state garages before week-end holidays in order to have gasoline tanks filled to the brim.

Official and personal use of state cars in many departments had become one and the same.

In announcing that he opposed any special legislative session to impose new taxes, Budget Director Hartman asserted that plain and simple economy measures could stretch the biennial appropriations to meet anticipated needs. This was easier said than done, as the late Governor Fitzgerald discovered when he sought to cut the state payrolls by millions within 60 days.

"Could Hartman deliver the goods?" asked many a sympathetic citizen. What was perhaps the first answer toward realization of his ambitious goal was Hartman's rigid order governing mileage use of state automobiles. Other drastic economy steps were promised.

A cloud in Hartman's economy sky was the prospect that higher commodity prices would add to the state's expense of maintaining its many institutions.

AN IMPORTANT STATEMENT FROM A. & P. ABOUT WAR DAYS AND FOOD PRICES

A&P's policy will remain unchanged—that policy is simply this: A&P will provide good food at the lowest prices possible. As always, we will operate our stores and markets with the interest of our customers constantly in mind. We know the hardships that increased food prices can bring to countless families, therefore, our prices will be adjusted only to the extent that it is absolutely necessary. If owing to the laws of supply and demand the prices for food we purchase move upward, obviously, we will have to pay the higher cost and change retail prices accordingly. You have our assurance, however, that A&P's margin of profit will continue to be very small and normal in every respect. Thus, we pledge to our six million loyal customers the best efforts of our wide-spread organization to keep our prices as low as sound business judgment will permit. We repeat—A&P's policy will be unchanged. Good Foods at the Lowest Prices Possible!

Lane Usage Defined in Traffic Rules

In the past, Michigan driving rules have been designed for the conventional two-lane highway. It was not until the Michigan Traffic Control Zones proved successful that regulations were set up for driving on the wider highways. The state's new traffic law lists these regulations in detail. They are summarized in the brief but valuable rule: If there is room to the right, drive to right.

Vehicles on highways of three or more lanes shall drive entirely within the extreme right-hand lane except when overtaking and passing. It is unlawful to straddle lane lines.

The middle lane on three-lane highways and the second lane on four lane highways shall be used for overtaking and passing only. It is unlawful to drive into the far left lane of a three-lane highway or cross the center line on four-lane highways.

If these rules are observed, head-on crashes will be eliminated and side-swipes will be reduced. Rules similar to these have been in force on US-10 south of Saginaw, US-33 between Saginaw and Bay City, US-24 in Monroe County and US-12 in Berrien County. Michigan State Police records show that they have saved countless lives.

Simply stated, the rule provides that traffic keep well over to the right—and DON'T CROSS THE YELLOW LINE.

Panama Hat, $500
A man's Panama straw hat valued at $500 was exhibited in Philadelphia at a convention of the Merchant Tailor Designers' association. The hat was woven of braid thread-like in texture and resembled a linen handkerchief.

Oxidation
As slow and fast oxidation generate the same amount of heat, a log that has undergone complete decay over a period of years has produced as much heat as it would have if burned to ash in a few hours, says Collier's Weekly.

$8,000 Will Buy a Village
Eight thousand dollars will buy a village of four houses and a store in New Lebanon, Ill.

Autumn Arrives; Here's the Route

Autumn arrives officially here and throughout the northern hemisphere on September 23, bringing what astronomers call the "autumnal equinox" when the sun crosses from north to south across the equator. In the above chart, which shows the various "leanings" of the earth with regard to the sun at the start of each season, the earth is shown to be something like a great movable floor in space. The sun is near the center of this floor and the earth moves around the outer edge of it.

Past Is Re-Created In House of Dolls

Many Figures Displayed By Florida Woman.

ST. CLOUD, FLA.—The international doll house—"doll heaven" somebody called it once—boasts one of the largest and most varied collections of dolls in the country.

Mrs. Jack Baughman is mother to the dolls, which she has gathered from all over the world and exhibits in this little Florida cattle town. She has hundreds of the little figures, filling cases and lining the walls of her international doll house.

Some are exhibited in miniature displays, such as "Innocent Nell" of the old melodrama who is shown in an old-fashioned bedroom with a tiny maple dresser and cross-stitched sampler and rag rug. Beside her is the bedroom of a modern girl, with latest design furniture, including a cigarette tray and a miniature radio.

A few of the dolls are old and valuable. One is labeled an "Italian Lady of Quality." Her clothes, embroidered with gold, were copied from a painting by Pisanello, Fifteenth century artist. She wears a girle and necklace of rubies, emeralds and diamonds.

An odd pair is Amanda Button and her son, Ezra. Their entire clothing consists of 10 pounds of metal, ivory and bone buttons—all colors, sizes and shapes.

The collection shows the progress of dollmaking since time began. The dolls represent many national and international personalities who were famous years ago. Among them are Queen Wilhemina, Lillian Gish, Jenny Lind and Lillian Russell.

LOCAL ITEMS. Miss Blanch McMann spent the week-end at her home in Marlette. Robert L. Keppen was a visitor in Alpena Sunday.

Poland Again Battles for National Existence

Boundaries of Poland in 1560, after the marriage of Queen Jadwiga of Poland and King Jagello of Lithuania. Lands of the two nations were combined.

Poland began to disintegrate with the rise of power of the Teutonic knights in East Prussia. Russia began taking land when the Teutons caused internal strife.

Poland's first partition took place in 1772, when Russia, Prussia and Austria each took lands; Russia to the northwest, Prussia to the east, Austria, south.

Russia and Prussia alone shared in the second partition of Poland, which left that country with very little original territory.

The third partition, occurring in 1795, caused Poland to disappear altogether. Russia, Prussia and Austria shared the spoils.

Poland declared its right to autonomy in 1918. Shaded area shows old German boundary restored by Hitler's decree.

Two State Sales to Aid Livestock Men
Two events designed with the cooperation of Michigan State College to spread better livestock breeding animals throughout the state are on the calendars of leading livestock men in Michigan.
September 23 marks first livestock show usage of the newly completed livestock pavilion on the campus at East Lansing. Michigan's first statewide ram show and sale is to be held through sponsorship of the Michigan Purebred Sheep Breeders' Association. At least 300 of the best rams from flocks in the state are to be assembled for grading by G. A. Brown and C. L. Cole of the college animal husbandry department.
Nearly 200 animals are to be selected from the top grades for sale to Michigan flockmasters. This is to precede the annual tour of the ram truck which in other years has carried outstanding breeding animals into various counties in the state to buyers.
Second of the events is to be held at Lapeer, Thursday, October 26. This is to be the first state consignment sale of Michigan's beef cattle blue bloods. Sale catalogs are available through R. C. Lott, Lapeer, county agricultural agent and general sales manager.
Fifty animals of the state's best purebred beef breeding herds are to be paraded down the main street of Lapeer. Sale by auction begins at 12:30 p. m., preceded by a cattle judging contest.
Wednesday evening before the sale there is to be a banquet at Lapeer. H. C. Rather, head of the college farm crops department, and G. A. Brown of the animal husbandry department are two of the speakers assigned to the serious portions of the banquet program.

Gunny Sack Tarzana

London Milkmaid
The London milkman has gone to the colors, and his job has been taken over by a comely miss. The box slung over her shoulder is not her lunch, it's her gas mask.

Wool From Whale Meat
Plans are reported under way for the manufacture of artificial wool from whales, according to a process perfected by a scientist in Japan. Tokyo has learned that the process consists of reducing the whale meat to a viscous mass, which is forced through small holes and spun into a thread. The fiber floats in water and is said to have considerable strength. The new wool is expected to compete with that made in America and Italy from the casein in milk.

Playwright's Woo
The odds were 56 to 1 in 1937, against a playwright getting his work produced on Broadway. Approximately 4,500 new plays were copyrighted in Washington but only 79 appeared in Manhattan theaters.

TWO APPLES SHOW OLD, NEW SPRAYS

These two McIntosh apples, sprayed in the old and the new ways, illustrate what Michigan State College entomologists have found in a five year series of experiments. Neither of these apples is wormy, but the one at the left, protected on the tree with an arsenical spray, needs washing before it could be marketed. On the right, also protected and not wormy, is an apple with no appreciable residue and what little spray still remains is harmless because the spray was a nicotine product. Adoption of the new spray by Michigan apple growers is expected to aid in marketing a better quality apple without necessity of washing, which often bruises the skin and adds to production costs.

College Invents New Apple Spray
Science at Michigan State College has been invoked over a five year experiment in apple orchards to find a new spray combination which controls the codling moth, prevents wormy apples and yet does not leave a spray residue containing so much arsenic that the apples need washing before going to market.
Nearly 500 orchard owners in the state have been using the new type spray in 1939, helping to prove with other 1939 plot tests by the college that a less harmful spray still protects the crop.
And this is important this year, says Professor Ray Hutson, college entomologist, for crop reports indicate a harvest of more than eight million bushels in Michigan. To wash that many apples would be costly, to have that many wormy would be ruinous.
The secret lies in a combination of nicotine sulphate with bentonite, a type of clay found in large deposits in Wyoming and other states. Ordinarily, says Professor Hutson, the nicotine sulphate has the immediate power to kill the codling moth but is so volatile and soluble that insufficient residual effect remains. Sufficient amounts of the clay are mixed to force a suitable percentage of the nicotine to remain volatile and soluble while the remainder continues to provide a residual protection over a period of days until growth of the fruit requires another application.
Present federal food standards limit the amount of poisonous residue of the arsenic. Over that limit the fruit must be washed. With two varieties of the McIntosh and the Spy, washing induces bruising of the fairly tender apple skin. A heavy arsenical residue also brings blotching of the skin coloring because the residue spots permit only uneven coloring. Burnt foliage often is another effect of the now out-of-date arsenic.

As late as the 1850's, a number of the clipper ships that transported immigrants to the United States made the passengers provide and cook their own food. Many of them, having insufficient food, says Collier's Weekly, died of malnutrition.

Ships' Graveyard Discovered
While marooned on Robben island for two days, 80 schoolboys of Cape-town, South Africa, discovered a ships' graveyard that had not been known to exist. The wreckage, composed of companionways, hawsers, rope rails, bunks, sea boots, peak caps and other articles, lay strewn along the beach for nearly three miles. This wreckage is believed to have come from ships that had been wrecked on the island or scuttled in Table bay.

Household Hints

By BETTY WELLS

IF YOU'VE read your Arnold Bennett, you know a lot about the people who are responsible for most of the beautiful English china we use in our homes today. The spode, for instance, which we cherish with such affection and pride, is made in Stoke-on-Trent, one of Bennett's "Five Towns." Josiah Spode founded this pottery in 1770, and it has been carried on continuously ever since.

Cherished spode tea cups.

Spode perfected a method of making a fine quality of ware by using calcined bones mixed with the clay paste to produce a very fine quality of ware that doesn't break or chip as easily as does fine china of other countries. Most of the English potters have since adopted a similar formula which we know as "bone china."

Another important lure of spode is that you can always replace a broken piece in any pattern because no design is ever discontinued. In short, "open stock" in spode really means what it says. And the patterns themselves are very lovely. Many of the older ones show the influence of the Chinese designs that were pouring into England during the Eighteenth century. Later spode patterns reflect English garden flowers and chintz floral effects. One of the oldest spode patterns, "Blue Towers," is a scenic which is said to illustrate the old Spode estate. Other popular spode patterns include "Rosebud Chintz," "Indian Tree," "Gainsborough," "Rose Briar," and the charming "Mayflower" in pinks and lavender.

Every Woman Should Have Her Own Desk.

Half the trouble with housekeeping is simply that too many of us try to run the works on the fly. We depend on keeping all the details in our head and in a jumble. In short we're operating a complicated and important business in a way that would get us fired from any office we ever heard of.

We don't keep books. We don't schedule our work. We don't organize. We don't buy ahead. We don't keep desk supplies on hand. And that brings us to the root of a lot of our troubles. How many of us have desks anyway? Plenty of women in charge of big households don't! Those who do are often content with little spindly affairs that couldn't be expected to function properly for much besides personal correspondence.

No, it's really impossible to do a businesslike job of housekeeping without good equipment which begins with an adequate desk. If we're to do our work as a profession we'll find that the more we work at our desk with pencil and paper the less actual physical labor will be required to run our homes pleasantly and well.

That desk will be the center of our organization; from it we will outline our work by the year, by the month, by the week, by the day. Here we will keep records of what we need, what we buy. Here we will make out orders, menus, schedules. Naturally this desk will have to be kept supplied with sharp pencils, pen points, note pads, stamps, stationery, rubber bands, clips and all of that—which we'll buy in quantity as we do staple groceries and light globes.

We favor a flat-top desk for the purpose, for the same reason that a business man chooses that type . . . it's more efficient. There are many flat top desks that have great distinction of design. The Queen Anne kneehole desk is lovely and graceful. So is the George Washington flat top desk illustrated today. But a Secretary type desk has its points too. Choose one that seems to suit your needs best.

Peasant Accent to Room Achieved With Valances

One simple way of giving a peasant accent to a room which you have decorated in the Swedish or Swiss manner is by installation of cut-out wooden valances attached to the inside of your windows.

These can first be painted with some colorful floral design in the peasant manner or can have stencils applied. Then, you may repeat the pattern and color note on the inside of your cupboard doors.

Bustle Dress Now Fashion Interest

Inspiration Taken From Modes of the '30's.

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

The versatility and resourcefulness with which designers are handling the bustle theme calls for admiration. While the bustle mode, so important this season, gets its inspiration from the modes of the way-back-when eighties, the interpretation given it by contemporary style creators modernizes the theme to the liking and acceptance of the most exacting and conservative followers of fashion.

To enumerate the endless ways in which designers are handling the situation is scarcely possible. The story is best covered in stating that the new styling calls for back fullness achieved by clever manipulation in the way of gathering at the waistline, inseting fan-shaped pleats, adding peplum flares and perhaps the most popular and simplest method is the sash bow at the back. And here's good news in regard to the bustle bow, you can buy dresses with detachable bustle bows. Also, bustle bows are selling at the ribbon counters.

The smartest dress at the moment is the black gown that is styled with a bustle silhouette which may be as restrained as most discriminating taste demands, rendering it perfectly practical for general wear.

New Glove Ideas

When you see designful stitching in highly decorative mood in place of the usual conventional three-row effects down the back of a glove, know then that it's "new." Shown at the top is an attractive half-inch glove (kaywool for the palm to give warmth without bulk, capeskin for the backs for grace and form) designed by Natascha. Note the attractive diagonal stitching on the capeskin back. The shoe influence is also reflected in a new glove this season. See below in the picture a combination of kaysuede and capeskin, the two joined with smart lacing through metal eyelets, matching the oxfords that companion with the gloves.

Style Notes

Sleeves are longer. Jewelry is of massive heirloom type. Bustle-back hat is latest millinery news. Costume suit is of outstanding importance. Long fur stoles is prospect for fall and winter. Smart sweaters have detachable angora collars. Back fullness gives new look to "dressmaker" coats. Quillons on the new hats are huge and are mounted high. Wear a blouse of striped satin with the new black suit.

Winter Skirts to Be Widely Flared

Hips wear their way to freedom in showings of new winter styles in Paris. Dresses and coats were hip shirred and there were velvet day suits designed with flared skirts. The much-heralded tight skirts so far have failed to materialize. Widely flared evening skirts appeared in stiff, outstanding satins, tulle, and laces. Many were gold embroidered or spangled in vine and leaf designs.

The dahlia was the keynote of Chanel's collection. Dahlia pinks, purples, and reds predominated. This flower design was used to trim shoulders of evening dresses and jeweled clips were worn in dahlia form.

Historical Prints
History presented in a painless manner seems to have been the motive of a New York designer in a new series of early American prints for school clothes.

Lobster a la Shangri-La

According to the Soviet Academy of Science, a small variety of lobsters born thousands of years ago have been revived and are today pursuing a normal existence. The immortal crustaceans were found buried under the surface of a region of eternal snow in the Siberian peat fields, 15 to 20 feet beneath the ground. Some of the lobsters, since their revival, have given birth to a new generation.

Hens Near End of Egg Contest

More 300-egg hens than in any of the previous 16 egg laying contests at Michigan State College are in prospect as the 17th annual competition comes to a close Friday, September 22.

In the meantime entries have been closed for the 51 weeks contest scheduled to open October 1. C. G. Card, head of the college poultry department and superintendent of the contest, has been busy returning entry fees to those who entered after the contest quota of 55 pens was filled.

"This contest no longer is a simple one of hens laying the most eggs," says Professor Card.

"The reason we continue these competitions is that they continue to show new trends in poultry development."

First of the contests back in 1922 was scored on the basis of eggs. In 1926 the rating was shifted to include egg size and the contest was won on the basis of points. Breeders quickly shifted their breed selections so that egg size became standard or above.

After finding that this desirable egg size could be obtained, the poultry contest managers again set up new rules, since followed in other state contests. Since 1937 pens must be scored on the basis of all 13 hens originally entered.

Professor Card hopes breeders will find better strains of birds that can stand up under heavy egg production without losing potential profits through severe mortality.

In his opinion the entire poultry industry can benefit if leading breeders can show healthier birds are obtained by selection of breeding stock with greater livability.

Oldsmobile Now on Display Here

Highly enthusiastic over the new Oldsmobiles for 1940, Otis Heath of the Cass Motor Sales, Oldsmobile dealer here, has returned from the dealer preview meeting held in Lansing. He was accompanied by members of his sales organization, who were likewise very much elated over the cars that Olds is to offer for the coming season.

"It's hard to imagine how they can make so many improvements each year," said Mr. Heath. "The new Oldsmobiles are bigger and better looking in every detail and with a front end design that is by far the most attractive I have ever seen. The interiors, too, are the last word in good looks, luxury and comfort."

"More than that, this year Oldsmobile will introduce a revolutionary new mechanical advancement that is destined to be the greatest forward step in driving ease, convenience and safety since the invention of the self starter. It represents the final culmination of over eight years of research and testing on the part of Oldsmobile and General Motors engineers."

"The factory assembly lines at Lansing are running now and we have a car on display for the people of this city to see in advance of the national announcement."
