

Five Injured in Three Auto Crashes in Tuscola County

Man Whose Wife Died on Monday Injured by a Hit and Run Driver.

Miss Virginia McIntyre, 15, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. McIntyre, of Saginaw, is in a cast in Saginaw General Hospital suffering with a fractured pelvic and a broken vertebra received in an auto accident near Reese Saturday. Returning home from Deford where she had gone on an errand, Miss McIntyre pulled to the left to pass a load of hay and then noticed a car coming from the opposite direction. To avoid a collision, she drove her car into a highway ditch and it hit a tree. The car caught fire and Miss McIntyre was pulled from her automobile by a girl companion who escaped injury. Mrs. Arthur C. Atwell and son, Stuart, motored from Cass City to visit Miss McIntyre in the hospital Wednesday.

Frank Rondon of Millington, driving south on a county road, 3 1/2 miles south of Vassar, received a fractured arm and head wounds when his car was struck by a hit and run driver Tuesday at 8:00 p. m. Rondon's car rolled 150 feet into a roadside ditch. Mr. Rondon was returning home from Vassar where he had been at a funeral home to view the body of his wife, who passed away on Monday. Funeral services for Mrs. Rondon were held Wednesday. Officers, who were told the hit and run driver's car was a green coach, have failed to locate him to date.

Three of a quartet of Akron High School pupils were injured Monday night, when the driver lost control of the car in which they were riding in Fairgrove. Traveling west and attempting a turn south, the car left the village street and ran into a tree. Mildred Becker had her right leg broken between the knee and ankle and the left leg fractured, Don Starkey, the driver, suffered a broken right leg between the knee and ankle, and Billie Churchill, the son of the car owner, was so badly cut about the head that 20 stitches were necessary to close the wounds. Robert Gilmore, the fourth occupant of the car, escaped unhurt. Those injured were treated by Dr. Spohn and Dr. McKenney in Fairgrove.

Howard-Anthes Nuptials Saturday

At a home wedding, solemnized before relatives and friends, Saturday afternoon, September 23, at six o'clock, Miss Ella Mae Howard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Howard, of Pontiac spoke her vows to Harold Walter Anthes, son of Walter Anthes, of Cass City.

Rev. Mr. Creswell, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, officiated at the ceremony which took place in the bride's home, 393 Paddock Street, Pontiac.

Miss Howard wore a street-length dress of plum colored silk crepe with a corsage of rosebuds, sweet peas and snapdragons.

Mrs. Fred Humphrey of Flint, sister of the bride and maid of honor, wore a darker plum colored velvet with a corsage of roses, sweet peas and snapdragons.

The Misses Lucile Anthes, Jean Creswell and Virgaleen Powley were bridesmaids. Paul Anthes attended his brother as best man.

A reception was held at eight o'clock following the wedding in the Howard home.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard left on a week's trip through the north after which they will make their home in Cass City, where Mr. Anthes is employed by his uncle, Amasa Anthes.

Moves Farm House 11 Miles to Cass City by Modern Methods

Moving a farm house by modern methods was exemplified when Amasa Anthes, building mover, transferred a residence from a farm 11 miles east of Cass City to a lot on North Oak Street in this village in two days. The house belonged to Elmer Spencer, who purchased a village lot on North Oak Street from J. E. Seed. The moving of the heavy load was accomplished by the use of a large truck and heavy duty trailer. Mr. and Mrs. Spencer will occupy the residence on its new site.

New Traffic Law Effective Today

Legal Speed Limit Is Twenty-five Miles an Hour on All City Streets.

Radical changes in Michigan's new traffic law, effective September 29, which should be borne in mind by the state's two million motorists are:

"Stop" signs mean stop! Right-hand turns on red lights are prohibited.

If a green arrow is shown with the red light, vehicles may cautiously enter the intersection to make the movement indicated by the arrow, but must yield the right-of-way to other vehicles, and to pedestrians.

A flashing red arrow with the red light means that vehicles must first stop before making the right turn.

Pedestrians should cross streets on green light, although they may cross on the red if they do not interfere with traffic. When crossing on the green they have the right-of-way over turning vehicles.

Pedestrians must walk on the left side on rural highways, facing oncoming traffic. When sidewalks are provided, it is unlawful for pedestrians to walk on the main traveled portions of the highway.

Twenty-five miles per hour is the limit on city streets.

Rev. C. P. Bayless Goes to Church in Detroit

Rev. Charles P. Bayless, who was transferred from the Methodist Church at Cass City in June to the pastorate of the church of that denomination in Durand, has been appointed by Bishop Edgar Blake to be the minister of the Ford Memorial Methodist Church in Detroit. This parish is out Warren Avenue West. Schoolcraft Road cuts across it on the eastern edge and Greenfield Road on the west.

The transfer is one of five post-conference changes due to the vacancy at Strathmoor Methodist pastorate in Detroit following the death of Rev. Peter Stair in July.

Rev. George McDonald Jones goes to Durand from Hartland, Rev. Ensworth Reiser of Ford Memorial Church goes to Strathmoor, and a former Methodist Protestant minister will fill the pastorate at Hartland.

Libby Says Council Favors Retention of Arms Embargo

Peace Advocate, Well Known Here, Explains Danger of War Boom.

Frederick J. Libby, executive secretary of the National Council for the Prevention of War, who addresses Cass City audiences each Christmas holiday season on the subject of peace, says his organization will work actively for the retention of the present embargo on arms. In a recent statement, he said:

"The National Council for Prevention of War will work actively for retention at any cost of the present mandatory embargo on arms, ammunition and implements of war as America's first line of defense against involvement. We support also a thoroughgoing prohibition of loans and credits to belligerents covering the new devices to get around the Johnson Act, such as the Export-Import Bank and the RFC. This is America's second line of defense against involvement."

"A 'cash-and-carry' or 'come-and-get-it' arrangement regarding such secondary war materials as oil, cotton, steel, etc., coupled with a limitation of sales to peace-time quotas based on purchases during the past five or ten years, would constitute a strong third line of defense. With this belongs the policy on which all are substantially agreed, that United States citizens should be forbidden to travel on belligerents' ships and that United States ships should be prohibited from trading with belligerents and from entering war areas."

"Our program is based on the single consideration that America's first concern must be staying out."

The bride was attended by the groom's sister, Miss Rita Powers, of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, whose gown was of fuchsia moire, trimmed in small velvet bows of the same color, and she carried an arm bouquet of sweetheart roses.

The groom was attended by his brother, George F. Powers, of Detroit.

A wedding breakfast was served to 21 at the home of the groom's sister, Mrs. R. R. Bonn, of Detroit, by Misses Ruby Hart and Belle Hamilton, friends of the bride.

Friday afternoon as William Bell of Detroit was on his way here to spend the week-end with his wife, who is at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Boulton, he picked up two hitchhikers, giving them a ride as far as Bridgeport. Before taking the two men into the car, Mr. Bell had dropped his purse containing $57.00 in what he thought was a hole in the seat but in reality dropped it down between the seats. After letting the men out, Mr. Bell drove on to Vassar, where he stopped to visit a relative and then discovered the purse and money gone. The sheriff's office was notified but up to the present time, nothing has been heard of the hitchhikers.

Rev. W. H. Hastings Installed as Pastor

Reception in Honor of the New Minister and His Mother Tuesday Evening

Simplicity marked the service at which the Rev. Wendling H. Hastings was installed to the pastorate of the First Presbyterian Church in Cass City Tuesday evening.

The Rev. Melvin R. Vender, moderator of the Presbytery, of Croswell presided before an audience composed of the church's congregation sprinkled with representatives of other local churches and a number of friends from Saginaw.

An organ prelude, "Our Redeemer and Our Lord," (Schreiner) and "Lift Up Thine Eyes," (Mendelssohn) was played by Mrs. Ethel McCoy. A solo, "How Lovely Are Thy Dwellings," by Liddle, was given by Arthur Holmberg.

Rev. Henry William Fisher, D. D., of the First Presbyterian Church of Saginaw, gave the sermon using for his subject, "Loyalty." He spoke of loyalty to one's country, to one's home, and to one's church. Mr. Fisher's address as well as other short talks given were permeated with the tremulous spirit of an uncertain world, but still, retaining a spirit of faith and hope.

Besides the Rev. Mr. Vender and Rev. Mr. Fisher, others on the program were Rev. Joseph I. Lindsay of Harbor Beach, who delivered the charge to the pastor, Rev. Charles D. Brokenshire, professor of Alma College, who delivered the installation prayer, and Rev. Paul J. Allured of Kinde, former pastor of the Cass City church, who gave the charge to the parish, ending his talk with eight beatitudes: 1.—Blessed or happy is the content.

Redeem Property Now Says Treas.

Can Be Done Without Penalty Before October 1 at Tremendous Saving.

Property owners whose lands reverted to the State of Michigan at the 1938 tax sale, have an opportunity to regain them if they act prior to October 1, County Treasurer Arthur M. Willis states.

Under the present law, the state takes over November 3 all property descriptions delinquent on 1935 and prior years' taxes, which were bid in at the 1938 tax sales.

Owners have the remainder of September in which to redeem their property at a greatly reduced cost. All that is required is payment of delinquent taxes without any interest charges, and a 6 per cent collection fee, before October 1st.

If this is not done, in order to redeem it in October, owners will have to pay the full amount for which it was bid in by the state. This includes taxes, interest and 4 per cent collection fee. In addition there will be a charge of 18 per cent on the total of these items.

By acting in September, Treasurer Willis states that a saving of from 50 to 75 per cent can be made.

The infant reached up and grasped the spout of the pot projecting over the edge of the table and drank a mouthful of the boiling liquid before her mother, who was preparing dinner nearby, could reach the child.

The little girl was rushed to Fairgrove by her parents and then taken to the office of Dr. Staven in Caro, by James Davidson of Fairgrove. After emergency first aid, the child was hurried to the Saginaw hospital by Davidson where she died at 8:55 p. m.

Surviving are her parents, five brothers and five sisters. Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. W. C. Richardson Writes of Difficulties Experienced in Returning from England

The following letter to her sister and niece from one of the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. J. Henry Smith of Cass City, who with her husband, Dr. W. C. Richardson, of the University of Ohio, has been spending the last few months in England, may be of interest to Chronicle readers as showing some of the difficulties experienced by our returning citizens:

Athens, Ohio, Sept. 20, 1939.

Dear Aline and Nancy: It is hard to know where to begin, there is so much to tell. I suppose most of it will have to wait until I see you. It would take days to give a complete report. I had a letter from mother and dad in which they said they received my telegram an hour and a half after you had telephoned them so I know that you also received the wire I sent as soon as we docked. I wanted to write as soon as I got home but everything has been chaos. We were, of course, desperately tired—in fact, I think it will be weeks before I get rested. And from the moment we hit town every few

Mt. Pleasant Wins over Cass City 14-0

Cass City High School's football team was defeated Friday night, 14-0, in their opening game of the year by Coach Bill Kelly's "Oilers" of Mt. Pleasant.

The game was played before a large crowd, under the lights, on Central State Teachers' College field. All of the Cass City boys had the experience of playing in the first night football game any of them had ever seen. The boys reported favorably on the playing conditions under the lights.

Cass City kicked off to the "Oilers" and held for downs forcing the Mt. Pleasant team to punt. A little nervous, Cass City fumbled on the first play giving the "Oilers" the ball on the Cass City 40-yard line. Mt. Pleasant took advantage of their break and marched down the field to score on a pass, Servoss to Gover. Servoss added the extra point.

From then on it was a nip and tuck battle with Cass City in possession of the ball most of the time. Fumbles and penalties cost Cass City several scoring opportunities, the best being in the second quarter when McIntyre made it a first down on the Mt. Pleasant five-yard line only to have the play called back for a fifteen yard holding penalty.

minutes someone new hears of our return and pops in. I was able yesterday to get our clothes unpacked and sent to the cleaners and laundry. We didn't have a single stitch which was clean. Am now faced with the problem of unpacking the stuff we stored in order to have clothes to wear. Looks like a big job and one I hate to tackle.

To start back before the war! When we found that the Europa wouldn't sail and wouldn't refund our money and also couldn't transfer our passage, we rushed madly from one point to another trying to find something. Discovered that we had to pay full passage in cash to get even a guarantee of transportation. Also that there was practically nothing to be had. Finally ran the French Line down through Cook's and found that we could get something on the de Grasse. As I said, they wanted full passage. However we persuaded Cook's that we would be able to pay up within a few days and so they let us pay a deposit and they paid the rest themselves. Turn to page 6, please.

Four Laws for Agriculture Become Effective This Week

These Regulations Are Designed for the Protection of the Producers.

No new regulations are placed upon the farmer by the four laws affecting agriculture that became effective during the week, according to Agricultural Commissioner Elmer A. Beamer. The new laws, designed for the protection of the producer and the improvement of marketing conditions, provide for the grading of eggs, the issuance of warehouse receipts for storage of farm produce, control of overrun in dairying plants and truth in use of breed names in the advertising of milk.

Of the new laws, the warehouse or farm produce storage act is considered the most drastic. This law provides for the licensing of all warehousemen engaged in the handling of beans, potatoes, grains and seeds for storage, with complete provisions against loss to the farmer. The warehouse receipts must contain, under the law, information regarding the location of the warehouse; statement whether the farm produce will be delivered to bearer, to a specified person, or to a specified person on his order; the date of issuance of receipt; the rate of storage charges; the net weight and percentage of dockage.

Two Drowned in Lake Huron Near Port Hope Saturday

Chas. Karn, 28, of Detroit and his uncle, Edward Karn, 42, of Grosse Pointe Farms were drowned in Lake Huron Saturday afternoon when their flat bottomed boat capsized in heavy seas in about 25 feet of water, about three-fourths of a mile north of Port Hope. Their companion, Ernest D. Vittoz, 57, of Highland Park, clung to the boat more than three hours and was rescued by Peter F. Richards of Port Hope.

Edward Karn's body was recovered Saturday evening by coast guardsmen, but they abandoned the search for the body of Charles Karn on Sunday when rough seas interfered with the work. They expected to cruise the area where the men drowned when the water became more calm. The body of Charles Karn was recovered Monday after being sighted by two Port Hope school girls.

Ernest D. Vittoz, who was taken to the Harbor Beach Hospital suffering from shock and exposure, is reported on the road to recovery.

THANKFULNESS FOR AMERICA.

As our people look across the stormy Atlantic Ocean, and see the still stormier Europe raging with the passion of war, a profound feeling of gratitude takes hold of them, to think they are living in free and peaceful America.

Their gratitude is enhanced by the 3,000 miles of ocean that lie between our land and these contentions nations which can't keep the peace. Those ocean miles are worth more than lands rich with gold or with soils of unbounded fertility. They create almost impassable obstacles to nations that look over with envy on the riches of America.

We owe our relative security on this side of that ocean to the foresight of our ancestors who crossed those seas. Very many of them came in days when crossing such an ocean involved dangers. The tempestuous Atlantic was not a good place for the frail sailing ships of the old days.

Those ancestors came over in the main because they did not like the way the nations in Europe acted. They disliked the constant wars and the liability to military service. They longed for a country of peace and freedom, and they saw no chance of getting it in war torn and king ruled Europe.

It took great fortitude and industry to create new homes and institutions in a wilderness. These ancestors believed that democratic government would save them from the incessant wars and grinding oppressions from which they had suffered in Europe, and the result has proved that they were right.

Our people have to maintain this glorious heritage. Such a country will not run itself. There are hard labors to keep it going, and keep it up to the noble ideas which the fathers established.

ACTIVITY AND CONDUCT.

The story is told of a Sunday School boy who was usually troublesome in his class. One Sunday he was extremely quiet. The teacher told his father what a good boy he had been on that day. The father said he was glad to hear it, only he thought it was perhaps because he had been on a 20-mile hike the preceding day.

Both young and older people are less likely to make trouble, if they have plenty of scope for activity. A large part of the so-called lawlessness of youth occurs when youth has had too little chance to do active things. If they can't throw a baseball or kick a football, they may take out their surplus spirits in mischief.

Also older people who have plenty of interesting things to do, frequently avoid the mistakes that tear up families, and get them into trouble in their daily work.

SUCCESS WITHOUT EDUCATION.

Education is a wonderful door to all the heights and successes of life. Any youngster who has a chance to enter that door and refuses to do so, makes a mistake he is likely to regret in many bitter moments.

Yet the youth who never had that opportunity, or who missed it by his own neglect, should not feel that all the good things of life are forever lost to him. Countless men and women who had little school and college education, have found some way to open the doors to the better life.

If they didn't have school education, they had to get education in some way. They learned by determination to perform every task faithfully, by constant study of books, magazines, and newspapers, and by association with helpful people. The door to education is always open, but it takes willingness to climb before it can be entered.

CROSS ROADS OF LIFE.

From time to time people come to a fork in the road, where they don't know which way to turn. The road ahead is obscure, and many people choose the wrong one.

One of those cross roads of life is reached when young people quit school. Shall they go on to some higher course, or shall they go to work, and what occupation shall they choose? A further difficult decision occurs when it comes to getting married. Shall they select this or that mate? Life has a number of such cross roads, and a decision taken hastily may mean the choice of the wrong road.

What to do at the cross roads of life? Talk with older folks who have traveled these ways before. Study your own nature, and what kind of people you get on with. It seems as if some people snapped up a coin to see which road to take. Better do some solid thinking.

WARS MAKE WARS.

The World War was often called "The war to end war." Our people felt that if they could teach the war-making powers that war does not pay, no more wars would be made.

After that war closed, the League of Nations was organized, which it was hoped would make it next to impossible to carry on wars. Then in 1928, the so-called Kellogg-Briand peace treaties were negotiated, by which most of the nations agreed not to carry on wars.

A recent newspaper statement has it that there have been 20 wars of some importance since the end of the World War, and 10 wars since the treaties of 1928 were signed. Wars stir such intense hatred, that as soon as nations recover a little, many of them are at it again. Our country can well be thankful that it has great oceans protecting it from these terrible conflicts, which do no country any good, and fill the earth with sorrow and loss.

COMING OUT OF STORM CELLAR.

Money, says a high authority in the U. S. treasury, is coming out of the storm cellar. It is remarked that for the past few years, people were principally concerned with the safety of money. Now it is thought that the desire to earn a profit is returning to start up business activity.

People should not be encouraged to take excessive risks, but there are usually some chances about business which people have to take if they are to make a success. If money is coming out of the storm cellars, it is no doubt because the business skies are clearing. People are seeing that the fears which led them to run for shelter with their dollars are largely imaginary.

What is the cost of war, and who pays? These two questions, with Europe once more in flames and speculators seeking to profit from a "war boom," seem vital. Trying to calculate the cost, based on actual outlays of governments, destruction of property and loss of life, reach figures commonly used only in astronomy. But as for who pays. It is safe to say everybody.

Michigan Mirror

A Non-Partisan State News Letter

By GENE ALLEMAN

Michigan Press Association

Lansing—Within sixty miles of three-fourths of Michigan's population, the National Park Service is converting 16,000 acres of marginal land from agricultural to recreational use. Two "little national parks" are being created.

Just 160 miles from Lansing, 210 miles from Detroit, and 263 miles from Chicago, the National Park Service is creating a "Lake Placid" for the entire Middle-West—a professional bobsled track with exciting hair-pin curves, scenic ski trails, breathtaking toboggan slides, a steel ski jump, and a monster skating rink.

At Isle Royale, soon to become a national park, the governmental agency is preparing to open up to venturesome vacationers this American shrine of virgin wilderness, home of Moose. The island is Michigan's northern-most bit of territory, skirting the shores of Canada although it is 50 miles away from Michigan.

Together with the Civilian Conservation Corps and the National Youth Administration, the National Park Service is spending many millions annually in Michigan. This fact is a recognition in itself that Michigan, as well as being a major industrial empire (automobiles, furniture, paper, for example), ranks tops as a year-round vacation playground.

Because the National Park Service is a "silent partner" in this development, comparatively few citizens are aware of its activity.

A Resettlement Accident

That Michigan has thousands of acres of land unfit for agriculture is an accepted fact.

Much of this land consists of sandy soil which, while ideal for bathing beaches, is a liability to any ambitious farmer.

When the New Deal in 1934 sought to control production of foodstuffs with the hope of averting repeated surplus yields and low prices, a social betterment project was conceived at Washington whereby farmers on marginal lands would be resettled elsewhere. The government would buy their holdings at a reasonable price and would assist them to locate elsewhere where soil was more fertile.

In Barry County, west of Hastings, Washington agents bought up approximately 4,000 acres of picturesque, hilly country, dotted with lakes. It surrounds a community known as Yankee Springs.

In eastern Jackson County and western Washtenaw County, midway between Jackson and Ann Arbor, the federal land-buyers chose a wide area, 180 square miles in size and more than 12,000 acres in all. Eight lakes are in this rugged, wooded section which radiates from a little hamlet known as Waterloo.

With some 16,000 acres of land on its hands, the government turned them over to the National Park Service. "Create a public playground," was the curt command. "Make it available at low cost to the masses of northern Indiana and Ohio, to the workers in industrial centers of southern Michigan, to the dwellers in countless small towns between Lake Michigan and Lake Erie."

Thus, under government auspices, Michigan's "little national parks"—Waterloo and Yankee Springs—are coming into existence.

Pump Sand for Beach

At the Waterloo recreational area is Hubert A. Lamley of Blissfield, efficient landscape architect and engineer, "boss" of the 12,000-acre program who is known officially as the "project manager."

"At Yellowstone Park the government is preserving a natural wonderland," he said. "Here, for example, are to be found the only geysers in the United States. But at Waterloo and also at Yankee Springs the National Park Service is creating a public playground where none existed before."

"We have two objectives. First, to provide general recreational facilities for the public. Second, to provide organized camps where groups may obtain health-giving outings at a low cooperative cost."

"For example, at Portage Lake the National Park Service is creating a 12-acre bathing beach, 500 feet long, where only a marsh existed before. Sand-pumpers transfer sand from one part of the lake to the beach. We are providing a bathhouse of brick and timber. Next season there will be a modern camp ground for trailers and tents, equipped with electricity and sanitary facilities and laid out on a subdivision basis whereby each camping party will have a well defined lot, screened with shrubs."

"Since fishing will be a major recreation here, we have created a 17-acre rearing pond. This fall we will take out 1,200,000 fingerlings for stocking of Portage and other Lakes. Some of the Waterloo lakes are not fished enough; Cas-side Lake is overstocked with fish, we believe."

Camps for City Youth

Because the Waterloo and Yankee Springs "little national parks" are within easy access to a major part of Michigan's population, the National Park Service recognized a need for organized camps. The Detroit board of education is sponsoring several camps in the Waterloo area where underprivileged children are sent at low cost for a week's outing. The board sponsors health trips to the Mill Lake camp where cottages have been provided to accommodate 12 persons and to Cedar Lake where cabin facilities total 96 beds.

"The Detroit board of education has assured the National Park Service that it could use six more camps," added Mr. Lamley.

"We make a flat charge of 25 cents a person per night for use of the camp buildings. We require that some established organization, such as the Boy Scouts or Girl Scouts, assume responsibility. We have sunk deep wells for water supply. We have provided modern sanitation. We have brought in electricity. Sponsoring these camps in Detroit, Ann Arbor and soon in Jackson is a group known as the 'Waterloo Committee'."

"The Waterloo project has other attractions, too. We have a trout pond, created by impounding a stream, which the state conservation department stocks with legal-size trout. Without a fee licensed fishermen can cast for trout, but the day's limit is two."

"Hiking trails are under development. In our reforestation program the National Park Service has planted 350,000 hardwoods and is maintaining its own tree nursery. This territory, by the way, is rich in diversified trees. We have oaks, maples, beech, bass, elm and ash in large numbers. Then there are the tamaracks, red cedars and ground junipers—the sumac, the dogwood, the sheep-berry and the holly. Fall colorings are unusually fine here between October 1 and October 15."

Bridle Paths, Skating

"As many points in the Waterloo area are very hilly, 1,000 feet above sea level, constituting a natural divide between the lakes, Michigan and Erie, we plan to construct toboggan slides for winter sports. Several riding academies now maintain saddle horses. Bridle paths are being built."

"The entire area here—12,000 acres in all—and around 4,000 acres at Yankee Springs constitute a perpetual game sanctuary."

Aiding the National Park Service at Waterloo is a new camp of Civilian Conservation Corps and the Cassidy Lake "Tech" work-study school of the National Youth Administration.

At one time this year the government was employing 70 persons at the Waterloo recreational area. This is an index of how the government is spending money in Michigan on these outdoor playground tracts.

Grayling's Winter Park

Because Grayling is readily accessible by train or road from Detroit and Chicago, is situated north far enough to get a fair share of freezing temperatures, and is blessed by hills and pines, this northern town was selected by the National Park Service for development of an ambitious winter sports park. (Back of the geographic factors was the vision and determination of Grayling home-towners, many of whom contributed hard-earned money to assure toboggan slides and a skating rink).

Imagine a thrilling bobsled track with two or three hairpin bends that will shoot the sleds to the top of the banks! Picture also a steel ski jump, 96 feet in the air! Consider next a scenic ski trail, 31 miles long, free from dangerous obstructions!

While the bobsled track and steel ski jump will not be available for the 1939-40 season, the toboggan slides have been relocated to obtain additional length, extra speed and greater safety and new ski trails are also in readiness.

At Isle Royal, the National Park Service has ambitious plans under way, preparatory to the time when this island will become a full-fledged national park. In the meantime the "little national parks" at Waterloo, Yankee Springs and Grayling are rapidly being transformed out of acres of woods and lakes and streams.

DEFORD

Attends National Convention—

Mrs. G. A. Martin of Deford left Tuesday morning, September 26, for Rochester, New York, to attend the 64th annual convention of the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union which is held in Convention Hall, September 27 to October 3.

This convention is notable because of the celebration of the centenary year of Frances E. Willard. Her memory will be honored in many ways. On Thursday, delegates will visit the home of her birth in Churchill, N. Y.

There will be a brief centenary observance program in the small park where a marker has been erected in her memory, and then opportunity to see the house just across the street in which Frances Willard was born. Unfortunately it has succumbed to the changes that come with time and is now quite different from the little cottage of 1839, but the original room in which the child was born is still a part of the present house. Members of the Willard family from Oberlin, Ohio, will be present at the banquet on Thursday evening and will pay tribute to their great aunt, Frances E. Willard.

Many prominent speakers will be heard at various times during the convention. Representatives of national and international organizations in which Miss Willard held executive offices will have a place on the dinner program. Monday evening, October 2, will be world's night and will be an interesting feature. Delegates and visitors are expecting a most enjoyable time in Rochester, New York.

Bob Keppen Says It's a Fact!

WRITES OF DIFFICULTIES EXPERIENCED IN SECURING PASSAGE FROM ENGLAND

Concluded from first page.

And we cabled you. It was such a relief to know that we had you to cable to. So many were stranded without any way of obtaining additional funds. Of course you know how grateful we are to you. We collected the money you sent on Monday and had it converted into travellers' checks. Then we found out there was doubt of the de-

Grasse sailing. Went to Cook's and they advised not paying any more on that passage until something definite had come through and advised us to scout around and see what we could find. Said they couldn't do anything as none of the steamship companies would let them in because of the crowds and had taken their phones off the hooks. There were huge queues outside the various offices, especially the U. S. Lines. We tried the Canadian Pacific and they said they weren't sailing as far as they knew. Tried the Holland-Amercan Line. Walter did that while I stood in queue at the U. S. Lines. Holland-American Line had some space left but wouldn't issue it without an exit permit. The government had issued an edict saying that all British and aliens had to have a permit to leave the country after September 9. Later that was extended to September 16 for American citizens. However, the Holland-American Line interpreted that arbitrarily to mean that a permit was needed if one would be on the water on that date and wouldn't give passage without it. The snag lay in the fact that one couldn't get a permit without already having passage. So Walter joined me and we waited a couple of hours more and then gave up. It was nearly closing time and the office was filled and about fifty people ahead of us. And anyway all passage was taken for boats leaving within the next month and they were just making a reservation list.

Wednesday night we heard over the radio that there would be space available for Americans on some merchant ships leaving over the week-end and to apply at the Embassy. So bright and early we trekked up there and found quite a line. After waiting nearly two hours we were told that there was one freighter leaving the next day to carry 60 passengers for men only and to take about three weeks to make the crossing. They suggested that we could go into another room and put our names on a list for other merchant ships which might leave within three or four weeks. We weren't keen about that but did put our names down. Just then an American woman came in and said that she had just learned that there was some available space on the Aquitania sailing the next day. So we all piled in a taxi and tore down to the Cunard Line. They said they had some left in Tourist Class and that Cook's could do the arranging and transfer our French passage for us. So we went there and set that in motion. I went to American Express and cashed some checks and took money back and paid up the French passage which Cook's transferred and then paid the extra that was required for the Aquitania and by one o'clock we were in possession of tickets which guaranteed us space but didn't say what kind of space. Then we had a bite of lunch—and that was all it really was, we were so excited and started in to get ready to leave. I tore about doing some shopping I had left for we hadn't known but what we might have to leave our luggage in England. And then that night we packed and left London at eight o'clock Friday morning on the boat train.

We got to Southampton at nine-thirty-five and stood in line until two-thirty before we could get on the boat. It was dreadfully mismanaged. Can't see any possible reason for keeping us herded there but the general idea from the beginning of the crisis was to let people stand and tell them nothing or else send them scotching hither and yon on wild goose chases.

By separating Walter and I each got in a cabin for three. And they were grand accommodations. As Walter said, we travelled in a luxury we ordinarily wouldn't have afforded. The cabins were outside ones and very large and we were fortunate in our cabin mates. We slept there Friday night and spent all of Saturday in port. That day was complicated by the facts that the stewards struck just before lunch time. They wanted a bonus and also a clause written in their contracts such as the crew and officers have guaranteeing compensation to their families in case of accident. Well, a few stayed on the job and we had a ham sandwich and a cup of coffee for lunch. Some of the women poured the coffee. The stewards started to march off the boat but were met by fixed bayonets at the foot of the gang plank and so had to march back on. Got the matter straightened out during the afternoon and so we did have dinner—a bit late. They were also on edge—I think it was the last straw—because the passengers who were to have sailed on the Mauretania were all transferred to the Aquitania as the government had taken over the Mauretania and sent her to dry dock.

The other disturbance was caused by Kennedy's message to the Americans on board. He certainly messed things up for a while. I felt he should have kept still or else said more than he did. He felt it his diplomatic duty to warn the passengers that they were travelling at their own risk. Of course we had realized that to begin with. But he so worded the message that it sounded as if we were going to be required to leave the ship and of course didn't say that we should be taken care of in any way if we did leave the ship. Walter and I decided we'd sit tight and if they were going to force us to leave they could do so but that we wouldn't do anything about it ourselves. A committee from first class was formed and sent a petition around for all classes to sign requesting Kennedy to elucidate and he sent a rather good reply. Said he hadn't wanted to alarm passengers, etc., but that it was his duty to inform them they were travelling on a belligerent ship, etc. Then he added a personal note saying that his own son was going to sail on the Queen Mary so soon as she sailed. That calmed most of the passengers down although quite a number left. The report of the exact number varied from 16 to 70. I do know that one woman's luggage in tourist class came across without her.

At dinner time the tugs pulled us out three miles in the harbor. We were tremendously relieved to get a little way from port. We all felt that Southampton was a "hot" spot and likely to receive a raid at any moment. The delay in our sailing had been due largely to the fact that they had to build in some special construction to support the two twelve pound guns we carried. We stayed there until three o'clock Sunday morning when the boom had been cleared—the boom being a net across the harbor to keep mines and submarines out. By that time they had the water swept clean and we put up steam and started off with our destroyer.

The whole voyage seems unreal. Our destroyer stayed with us for two days and then left us during the night. Part of that time it trailed along behind us so close we could see on deck and at other times it scouted around at the side and ahead. They are so fast. They can dart around like a mosquito and can turn around almost in their own tracks. We maintained a terrifically zig-zag course. Sometimes even circling back almost as far as we had gone ahead. And we went at top speed. The Aquitania has a speed of 32 knots and it was wide open a good share of the time. Of course it made a lot of vibration especially when we would zig-zag because then one of the screws would come out of water. I had always thought I'd hate such a vibration but we loved every shake the old boat gave. Thursday night we ran into fog off the Banks and the engines were cut almost off and we lay-to for seven hours. It was a ghastly feeling not to have the vibration and to realize we were just sitting out there. Of course the fog was a protection from submarines in itself. Fortunately all the nights were cloudy except the last one which was quite brilliant but we didn't have a moon which was a help. The black out of the ship was complete and you couldn't see a few feet away from you. Don't think it could have been seen a half mile away. Painted gray and all port holes black and all windows black. In front of all doors a shelter was built so that no light would show when they were opened. Of course no smoking or flash lights on deck after eight o'clock. Port holes in cabins were locked from 8 to 8 o'clock. Our cabin was particularly fortunate—the one I was in I mean. Besides the usual ship's ventilation, we had a fan and also just above my berth—I had the upper—there was a vent which let out somehow on to the deck and so the fan dragged in fresh air. Walter and I were both on the same side of the ship not far apart on C deck. The crossing was very quiet—I mean the sea. No rough weather at all. Rough water would have made the trip safer but it certainly would have been a mess. The passengers from the Mauretania were given cots in the lounge. Third class which has a maximum accommodation for 500 passengers had 700 and it was horrible. I went down one day to see what it was like. Didn't care to stay. As far as I know Cabin class didn't have any cots in lounges. We were up there quite frequently and didn't see any. Much more freedom of going back and forth between classes than usual.

The group in tourist contained many interesting people and so we really had quite a good time. There were quite a number of Australians going home and some South Africans. One of my cabin mates was a Scotch woman returning after a visit home and the other was an English woman who is in the British consulate in Seattle, Washington. I liked her a lot. Had a good sense of humor and wasn't a bit jittery.

You realized, I suppose, why I didn't write or cable you. The day we received the money all out going cables were cancelled and service wasn't resumed for a week. By that time the censorship had become so rigid that there wasn't anything to say except thank you and we realized you'd know we were doing that from the depths of our hearts. Censorship of mail had started much earlier and one couldn't say anything of importance and if you didn't say anything at all you were suspected of being a spy or writing in code. No cables were allowed from the boat and mail was censored. So New York was the first opportunity.

Well, I guess this is the end of the first installment as it is time to get lunch. Upon reflection I think maybe you'd better send this on to mother and dad so I won't have to write the same information twice. I'll write again real soon. Oh yes, I got your kilt, Nancy.

Lots and lots of love to you both. Am so anxious to see you.

EVELYN.

Battle Against Wind and Sand in First Soil Conservation District Being Followed by Entire State

The entire state has become soil-conservation conscious as a result of the battle being waged in Western Michigan against sand and wind in the first soil conservation district. Photo shows large sand dune, with insert showing the unloading of brush, which is placed over bare spots to prevent soil blowing until trees may be planted and started to halt the inland march of the sand dunes.

Overtaking and Passing Rules in Automobile Traffic

Overtaking and Passing.

An important section of Michigan's new traffic law from the standpoint of accident prevention regulates the conduct of the motorist overtaking and passing other vehicles.

No vehicles shall be driven to the left side of highway on the approach to the crest of a hill or upon a curve where the driver's view is obstructed to such an extent as to make it unsafe to pass.

Outside of cities and villages the horn must be sounded before passing another vehicle. As soon as a driver is safely clear of an overtaken vehicle he should return to a normal position as far to the right as possible. Usually only about 12 seconds are required to pass another car.

If the driver ahead has signalled his intention to turn left he must not be passed on the left.

No motor vehicle shall be driven to the left side of a highway when approaching within 100 feet of an intersection or railroad crossing. Michigan State Police point out many lives would be saved annually if this rule was never violated.

Turning.

The vehicle moving straight ahead at a prudent speed is rarely the car involved in an accident. But the new Michigan traffic law takes recognition of the fact that when that vehicle is turned from its straight course, the accident risk increases.

The act provides that the right turn be made as in the past. Keep as close as practicable to the right curb or edge of the highway.

The left turn is to be made by entering the intersection in the lane to the right of and nearest the center line and by leaving the intersection in the line to the right of and nearest the center line. In other words, Michigan now has the "inside turn."

At traffic signal locations, vehicles intending to turn left shall permit vehicles bound in the opposite direction to pass through the intersection before turning left. This same rule applies at non-signalized intersections.

Before turning, one must signal his intention by extending the hand and arm straight out from and beyond the left side of the vehicle. The next step, the Michigan State Police point out, is to move into the proper lane. If proper signals are indicated by a driver about to change his course, other drivers can handle their cars in accordance with such signals and avoid the accidents so common when confusion and misunderstandings attend a change in course or speed.

Clipped Comment

Polluting a Nation's Reading.

Smut is polluting the nation's reading at an increasing and alarming rate, according to students of that subject.

There are 400 magazines published in the United States, three-fourths of which have been established since 1930, which either portray crime and cast criminals in hero roles, or devote their contents to sex stories, carry pictures that border on the indecent, print articles on illicit love, or carry disreputable advertising.

Canada and Australia protect themselves from this American contamination by prohibiting the circulation of more than 100 of these magazines in those countries. But more than 15,000,000 copies of this erotic filth are printed in the United States every month, and according to accepted estimates are read by some sixty million people.

Among those readers are hundreds of thousands of boys and girls of 'teen age, while a majority of readers of this type of magazine are under 40 years of age.

How much has this monthly flood of smutty reading to do with the much deplored increase in crime and decadence of public morals? How culpable is it in implanting lewd notions in youthful minds, to supplant the clean ideals inculcated by the home, the church and the school?

How much has it to do with sex crimes? In New York City alone some individual is arrested every six hours for some sex crime of revolting type. Figures for other cities and even rural communities might be equally startling, if available.

There is no surer road to national degeneracy than to pollute the minds of the nation's youth with lurid tales of crime, of sex laxity and of dissolute living. Writers of such tales throw a deceptive glamour around their plots that make an especial appeal to the underprivileged, and it is from this group that our prisons are drawing their recruits most rapidly.

When such lurid reading material is multiplied four times in nine years, the trend of national thinking must be toward depravity.

Sensing that danger, the Detroit Catholic League is engaged in a campaign to drive all smutty "literature" from the newsstands of the country. In its pursuit of that objective the league deserves the support of good citizens generally, irrespective of race, or political or religious beliefs.—Don Cochran in The Hartford (Mich.) Day Spring.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS BY JOSEPH W. LaBINE

Congress, Like Entire Nation Not Certain of 'Best' Course To Preserve U. S. Neutrality

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.) Released by Western Newspaper Union.

CONGRESS: Admonition

"I have come back to Washington with an open mind. Whether I vote for repeal of embargoes or retention of them, my vote . . . will be for the means which I believe best calculated to keep the United States out of war. That we must do."

Illinois' Sen. Scott Lucas, a middle-of-the-road Democrat, was bold enough to admit publicly what most of the nation's 531 legislators admitted only to themselves: That no man could stamp his foot and say there was only one way to keep the U. S. out of Europe's war. But a few who took their seats in Franklin Roosevelt's third special session (and the nation's twenty-fifth since 1797) were highly opinionated, 100 per cent positive that only the arms embargo they pushed through congress three years ago could keep America neutral. Among these few were Idaho's Borah, North Dakota's Nye, Michigan's Vandenberg and Missouri's Clark.

But national leaders, being merely men, were confronted with the same confusion as the nation: The more they thought about arms embargo vs. "cash and carry," the more they argued about straight international law vs. specific neutrality legislation, the less positive they were about everything save one fact, that the U. S. must keep out of war.

Day before congress opened, politics found itself "adjourned" for 35 minutes. To the White House went Republicanism's 1936 standard bearers, Alf Landon and Col. Frank Knox, to talk with Franklin Roosevelt, John Nance Garner and congressional leaders of both stripes. Even the President was apparently confused, for there were rumors he had decided to supplement straight "cash and carry" (whereby belligerents could buy, pay for and haul away arms in their own ships: with old-fashioned international law. His thesis: One principle of international law never disputed is that belligerents have the right to purchase anything they need in neutral countries.

Only concrete results of the conference were the platitudes everyone expected, announced by White House Secretary Steve Early:

(1) "The conference with unanimous thought discussed the primary objective of keeping the U. S. neutral and at peace.

(2) "There was complete accord that . . . the whole subject . . . be dealt with in a wholly non-partisan spirit."

Next day, at 2 p. m., the assembled houses of congress heard Mr. Roosevelt's recommendations:

"Let those who seek to retain the present embargo position be wholly consistent and seek new legislation to cut off cloth and copper and meat and wheat and a thousand other articles from all the nations at war.

"I seek a greater consistency through repeal of the embargo provisions and a return to international law . . . I give you my deep and unalterable conviction that by the repeal . . . the United States will more probably remain at peace than if the law remains as it stands today . . .

"May you, by your deeds show the world that we of the United States are one people, of one mind, one spirit, one clear resolution, walking before God in the light of the living."

NOTABLES

In the news

DUKE OF WINDSOR was named major general of British expeditionary forces and planned to go back to France.

CHARLES M. SCHWAB, native of Loretto, Pa., who rose to control billions of dollars in the steel industry, was buried at New York.

KERMIT ROOSEVELT, son of the late President Theodore Roosevelt, reportedly renounced his U. S. citizenship and became an Englishman to join the British ministry of shipping.

In the West

For the moment, fighting died down along the Saar front while both sides took time out to move up fresh troops. But France was fearful on two counts: (1) about 70 Nazi divisions were being moved from Poland to the western front; (2) Aachen, the town from which Germany jumped into Belgium in 1914, was evacuated of civilians and became a concentration point for Herr Hitler's troops. Was history about to be repeated?

At Sea

As the British airplane carrier Courageous went down, its 578 dead boosted Britain's sea toll to 761. Prime Minister Chamberlain reported 31 allied or neutral ships had been sunk by U-boats, also that the allies have sunk seven or eight German subs. Comparison: In April, 1917, peak month of the World war's sea fighting, average British tonnage loss per week was 127,000, or 39 ships. For the week ending September 19 in the present war, Britain lost 45,000 tons, or 13 ships. Biggest U. S. concern in the sea war: Several American cargoes had been confiscated by Britain; at least one American steamer, the Wascosta, had been stopped and searched by a German sub.

Jazz Said to Kill Silk Parasite

Jazz may save the silk industry of Japan by killing one of its worst enemies. A Japanese scientist, says a Tokyo dispatch, declares that the syncope has fatal effect on a parasite worm which is attacking silk. The maggot so greatly detests jazz that when near a phonograph playing the strains it burrows deep into the body of the silkworm to get away from the sound, and there it dies of suffocation in less than half an hour.

English and Geography Work in Extension

"English" and "Geography" are the two subjects chosen for study in the extension work for Tuscola County teachers this autumn.

The class in English will be in charge of either Professor Magoon or Professor Miserez. This assures a strong class in either literature or rhetoric. The class in geography will be taught by Professor Sill, who had charge of a class here several years ago. The work will cover Europe or the United States, depending on the needs of the teachers present at the first meeting. Both courses will run parallel with the regular campus semester work and carry the same number of semester hours as do the corresponding courses on the campus. These courses will count toward the renewal of limited certificates, and also for credit on the Bachelor's Degree.

The first meeting will be held at the court house in Caro this (Friday) evening at seven o'clock.

EMBARGO ON ARMS

of Europe's unwanted war. What Britain wants or what will please Hitler is relatively unimportant. If the western powers fight each other and Russia stays out, she alone will win the war. We must stay out, strengthen our democracy at home and be in a position to initiate a continuing Mediation Commission of Neutrals to secure at the earliest possible moment a just, honorable and enduring peace.

"The arguments for our position, which is, of course, widely held, can be briefly stated. To repeal the arms embargo for the announced purpose of taking sides is obviously a long step toward involvement, which the American people want to avoid. Arguments over the meaning of the word 'neutrality' are beside the point. What we all want is to stay out of this war, no matter what the policy is called. To become the arsenal for one side and reap the profits of a brisk trade in munitions is involvement. It is moral acceptance of the war as 'our' war. We shall be called pikers then if we don't send our conscript soldiers to Europe's trenches.

"When it is argued that there is no vital distinction between arms and war materials, the answer is equally simple. A war boom in guns and shells and bombing planes is peculiarly artificial, since the plants, dies, etc., for munition manufacture must be created for this purpose alone at great cost. Hence a war boom in arms and ammunition, once started at the expense of foreign nations for cash, will be kept up at America's expense as was done in 1915, if a major financial crash is to be prevented.

"A war boom in steel, oil, cotton and other so-called 'secondary war materials' is in a wholly different category, although bad enough. We have the plants and the products already available. Speeding up the sale of these commodities and then relaxing it will not cause a fundamental disturbance in our national economy.

"The insistence on cash is vital unless it is our nation's deliberate wish to finance another war, which is unlikely when the debts from last war remain unpaid and uncollectible. We cannot be paid for what we shall sell in Europe during the next five years if this war lasts so long, because the belligerents will produce nothing for export that we want. They will be obliged to pay with their gold or securities. Their whole productive machine will be used for war purposes. The few billion dollars in gold and securities that they have here will pay only for starting a war, not for finishing it.

"Since there is almost unanimous opposition in this country to paying for another European war, it is only fair to Great Britain and France to give them notice at the outset that it must be 'cash on the barrel head.' This will encourage early mediation."

things into the pastor's ears just before he enters the pulpit, for the people will receive a better message.

5—Blessed is the congregation whose members take the time to call on the new minister and his family in the very beginning of his pastorate. They shall have a richer and more beautiful pastorate.

6—Blessed is the congregation that lives up to the items of the call. They will pay the pastor's salary promptly "that he might be free from worldly cares and avocations" and they will do "whatever else is needful" for the honor of religion and his comfort among them.

7—Blessed is the congregation that prays for and works with the pastor in his enlarging plans for the progress of the kingdom of Christ in their midst. Surely it shall make great advances.

8—Blessed is the congregation where love abides between the pastor and people, for in such a church everyone will be thoughtful, kind and considerate of the feelings of others, the Golden Rule will be practiced and Christ will be, in truth, the Head of that church.

At the close of the service, Rev. Mr. Hastings, his mother and the visiting clergy stood in front of the pulpit and were greeted by those present, after which refreshments were served.

Before Painting Floors

To make a paint job on a floor last longer, first be sure that the surface is clean and smooth and that all nail holes are plugged with putty or filler. Remove all grease spots before applying the new paint, and, when the paint has dried, go over it with wax to give additional luster and longer endurance. Renewal of the wax coating at regular intervals is wise maintenance.
