Origin of Circus

The circus originated among the Romans and first consisted merely of horse and chariot races; the name means ring or circle from the wrestling and other athletic contests were added and large sums of money were spent to bring wild animals from various parts of the country to be killed in the arena.

Think of Children, Not Only Yourself, When Buying Toys

Don't buy the toy just because it pleases your fancy. Keep the child in mind, too. Miniature dogs with wagging tails are fascinating to parents but they won't keep the child happy very long. Miss Elisabeth Irwin, who is principal of New York's Little Red School House, says large blocks, tool chests or hand-manipulated derricks make much better gifts.

Keeping in mind the child's age and taste, durability of the toy and a few well-chosen scientific principles, she offers these rules to you who are Santa Clauses this Christ-

1. Choose toys which stimulate the child's imagination, rather than mechanical toys. Trains that run by hand are an example.

This new Arabian pony, which scoots along as the rider bounces up and down, is a sample of the toy which helps children exercise large muscles.

2. Choose toys which help children exercise their large muscles, like large blocks, trapezes, boards to fit over saw horses. Roller skates, sleds, bicycles and other athletic toys are also good. 3. Find toys that don't break eas ily. If you buy tools, be sure the hammer head won't fly off. Inexpensive miniature automobiles may break down after a few trips around the parlor floor.

4. Buy games of skill, not of chance. Select games involving counting and building.

Santa's Gifts Censored

In S. Africa This Year They've cramped Santa Claus' style this Christmas in South Africa. Little Jannie may ask for a toy pistol and little Piet may want a box of lead soldiers. But they won't get them.

Toy soldiers, guns and tanks and pistols are now banned by

The reason: A recent outbreak of violence by young criminals frightened the legislature into harring any toy resembling a weapon, particularly a revolver. Water pistols are barred, and even the little percussion cap pistols are taboo.

Jap Villagers Kneel at Mound They Call Christ's Burial Place

OKYO.—Peasants in a remote northern Japanese village do not celebrate Christmas but they believe Jesus Christ died in Japan.

Nor are they Christians, but each car they kneel before a strange mound which they believe is Christ's burial place.

This takes place at the village of Herai where Buddhists or Shintoists gather each year around a mound surmounted by a pillar on which are three Japanese characters and a six-pointed star composed of interlocking triangles, like the Hebrew emblem.

How this strange tradition arrived in Japan is not known, but visitors notice that the village, which is located in Aomori, near the extreme tip of Honshu island, is no great distance south of Mount Yadaijin, which is pronounced almost like the modern Japanese word for "Jew."

The six-pointed star is completely foreign to the people, yet some peasants are familiar with the Biblical version of Christ's death. The Aomorian story, which they have believed for 20 centuries, is this: During the reign of the Emperor

Suinin, the eleventh emperor, a young white man came to live in the district. Twelve years later, at the age of 34, he disappeared. His name: Soraitaro. Fifteen years later he returned and told the people he had been to the land of his birth teaching religion and that, because of his beliefs. had been sentenced to death by cru-

Soraitaro is then said to have told the natives that his younger brother, Iskiri, sacrificed his own life on the cross. Then he traveled for four years, across Europe and through Siberia. Finally reaching Aomori again, he died at the age of 105 in the eleventh year of Keiko Tenno's reign.

Near the alleged burial mound is the ruin of a stone building which villagers call "Tsukino-Tatte," the House of the Moon. Many foreign articles are reported to have been unearthed from this place. People say it is the place where Jesus worshiped.

They do not worship His memory in a religious way, nor is the mound especially sacred. They describe Jesus as a "Sei-jin," a saint or wise

No. This Isn't Christmas Comes Santa, Kiddies ButOnce a Year-Almost Any Time!

Holland chooses December 5 as the eve of the festival day which the church has set aside in Saint Nicholas' honor. In Hungary Santa Claus pays his first visit several weeks ahead of the Yuletide, leaving boxes of candy in preparation for his second visit. Most of the unusual celebrations, however, come after December 25-indeed, fall after New Year's day. Remote Shetland islanders north of Scotland celebrate January 5, still clinging to the old Julian calendar and refusing to accept that of Pope Gregory which most of the world has used for two centuries. January 5 is also Christmas day in at least one part of the United States proper, isolated and windswept Rodanthe island off North Carolina. The custom, apparently a holdover from "old Christmas"the Twelfth night, or Epiphanythe occasion finds all 300 residents hanging their stockings and awaiting Santa Claus.

In Alaska, where mid-summer delivery of Christmas presents makes them suitable either for last Christmas or the coming one, part of the residents celebrate on December 25 and the rest, January 7. The latter date is observed chiefly by Aleutian islanders, which is populated by natives who were interbred with Russians hundreds of years ago. They use the Russian calendar, which has not been changed to conform with that used by the rest of the world. By this calendar, New Year's is celebrated January 14.

Men of Christmas

Postmaster General James A. Farley receives Christmas cards at the rate of 1,000 a day during the Yule season.

Vasco Da Gama, the great Portuguese navigator, was born on Christmas day in 1469, discovered Natal, Africa, on Christmas day, 1497, and died on Christmas eve-

Oscar Phillips, postmaster at Santa Claus, Ind., cancels a half-million pieces of mail each Christmas season

President Roosevelt gets a toothbrush and cake of soap in his stocking each Christmas—ar old family custom.

Edward Keenan, who has enacted the role of Santa Claus in Milwaukee since 1927, keeps a small herd of reindeer all year round for this purpose.

Meat Packer Donates Food to Needy at Yuletide

K. Sigman sometimes went hungry when he was an orphan boy in the streets of Brooklyn, N. Y., he now gives 50,000 pounds of meat each Christmas for distribution to needy families by a Denver newspaper. This custom, followed the past 10 years, has helped make the holiday season cheery for the destitute. There are 5,000 parcels of 10 pounds each. In the 10-year period, Mr. mutton and pork.

End Long Canoe Voyage

FAIRBANKS, ALASKA.—Richard Slobodin, 24, and Robert Fuller, 27. two New York "city slickers" who made an amazing 6,000-mile trek by canoe from New York to Alaska, can lay potent claims to any existing long-distance water-hitch-hiking records. Slobodin, an anthropological student, revealed he and Fuller, a sculptor, had "thumbed" rides on other vessels over lengthy portions of their 13-month trip. "We paddled along thousands of miles," said Slobodin, "but our progress last summer was helped by lifts on yachts, steamships, scows and barges."

Over one portion of their cruise, which took them up the Hudson river, through the Erie canal and the Great Lakes and through northern waters, their canoe was towed by a Syrian trader's scow from Fort Smith to Great Slave lake, Slobodin recounted. He and Fuller served as members of the scow's crew.

Once the two reversed the procedure and took a passenger, a gold miner bound for Yellowknife, down the Athabasca river with them in the canoe.

Christmas Play

By Katherine Edelman

HE town hall was wreathed with holly and mistletoe. Bright red bells hung from the old-fashioned chandeliers. Christmas candles sent their soft glow into the night. The whole place cried out welcome to the crowd who thronged through the doors.

By eight o'clock every seat was occupied. Small gossip and murmurs of expectancy ran through the crowd. The little town was proud of the boy who was taking the leading part in the play. They had known Ted Rawlings all their lives, Known him as an easy-going lad, interested in nothing more than fishing and hunting around the coun try, and later as an astonishingly changed ambitious fellow. No one seemed to understand how the quick transition occurred.

All eyes turned to the stage as the heavy curtain rolled upward. Three hundred pairs of eyes fastened themselves upon the moving, speak ing figures. "Isn't Ted wonderful," young girls whispered breathlessly to each other. Between acts, thunderous bursts of applause filled the room. Hands clapped with vehemence. Small boys made their approval known by shrill whistling.

"Ted, you were perfectly wonderful," Sally was saying.

Ted carried the audience with him, every step of the way. He seemed to enter, to merge himself completely in the character he portrayed. His make-believe was so intense in the last act, that there was a deep silence for a moment when the final curtain fell.

FOR the time it was no make-believe to Ted. He was living again all the agony of parting, of seeing Sally Howard go away without a word. He had been sure until her train pulled out that she would come and say how sorry she was for the bitter, reproachful words she had hurled at him. Words that had left their mark upon his soulthat had stung him into a mad, ambitious desire to show her what he could do.

He found no real satisfaction in the tumultuous applause that followed. In this hour of his triumph, his heart cried out for Sally. If only she was here! If only she had cared! He scarcely knew what he was saying in answer to the lavish congratulations.

Suddenly small hands pressed tightly around his arm, and a remembered voice spoke in his ear. "Ted, you were perfectly wonderful," Sally was saying, "wonderful, wonderful. I'm so proud-so proud of you."

"But, Sally, I don't understand. I thought you were in New York." "I was, until last night. I've been keeping track of you. I knew all about the play, and—and the way you have been working lately. I wouldn't have missed this for anything in the world "

"But the things you said, Sally? They hurt-they still do." "I wanted them to hurt, Ted. I know-I know it was cruel, but there seemed no other way. Someone had to give you the right kind of push to get you going. You know you were really lazy? But now, well, you've really put on speed." "Nothing like the speed I'm going to show in getting ready for a Christmas wedding. There's just two days left. We've got to make it a really big event. Let's give out the announcement now-while the crowd is still in the hall."

The First Santa Claus The first Santa Claus was St. Nicholas, Bishop of Myra, who started mysterious midnight gift-bearing iourneys. In the Fourth century he was famous because he was a rich man who enjoyed giving secret gifts to the poor. One of his tricks was to throw purses of gold into cottage windows and run away.

From Europe's Christmas Menu Take your choice of Christmas eats: Plum pudding in England, Pfeffernuesse in Germany, Vierknack in Denmark, Fatigman's Bakkels in Norway, Horse-shoe cake in Hungary, Speculaas in Holland, and Lutfisk in Sweden.

Getting a Shoeful in Holland Not on reindeer but on a white horse, St. Nicholas arrives in some parts of Holland, and instead of looking for stockings he searches for wooden shoes to fill them with gifts.

Blind Students Are Apt, Teacher Finds

Have Some Advantages Over Those With Sight.

PITTSBURGH.—There are advantages even to being blind, according to Miss Sarah Taylor, a music teacher for 49 years at the Pennsylvania School for Blind here.

"In my years of teaching I have observed students both with and without sight and in many ways I feel those without sight have some advantages," she said.

These advantages she enumerated as follows:

1. Ability to concentrate on a problem without being distracted by various colors.

happening at the time. 3. The necessity of learning every minute detail in the beginning—and thus obtain a better foundation than the student with eyesight, who may

2. Not being able to see what is skip elementary lessons. When Miss Taylor, who comes from a family of educators, first started to teach the blind she had only 20 students. Today she has 160, plus the satisfaction of having taught about 2,450 young people to do things formerly reserved for only those with sight.

But there were many problems to overcome. Teaching a blind boy or girl is quite different from instructing a normal pupil.

For example, the blind student must first have the piano and its parts explained, then there's table work, where the children learn about the notes before going to the piano. After that, actual lessons on the piano are started.

"To understand the blind child's problem I often sit at the piano, close my eyes and play, just to see what it is like, playing and learning without sight," she said.

Miss Taylor's greatest thrill is to have one of her blind pupils regain his sight. This has happened four times.

"To know they had attended school without sight and struggled through various lessons and then to have them regain their sight is the most wonderful thing I can imagine," she WISH we could do something exciting — something different at Christmas." Peggy looked out at the winter landscape as she spoke. "For instance?" Vivian Clark glanced up from the magazine. "Something like making someone terribly, tremendously happy." Peggy came closer to her sister as she answered, and Vivian saw that she was very much in earnest.

"I've been thinking," Peggy went on, "how wonderful it would be to bring something thrilling - something unforgettable—into someone's life. I don't mean like helping with the baskets and the entertainments at the church; we've always done that; but a sort of special something, for one particular person."

For a minute youthful voices surrendered to silence. The gay little clock on the dresser made audible sound. Suddenly Peggy jumped to her feet. "I've thought of something!" she cried breathlessly, "something really different! You know Sara Werby—she's been an invalid for 10 years—shut in from the world except for a few friends who run in every now and then."

"But what can we do for her? We always taken her a little Christmas gift. You know she's much too proud to accept charity."

"Who's talking of charity? What I have in mind is something that will just thrill her. I'm going to write to Mona Muir-you know, she runs that department on the Star-and I'm going to tell her how wonderful Sara has been, and ask a card shower for her."

Vivian whistled through her teeth. "Well, that is a grand idea, Peggy. I know she'll be thrilled."

"She's bound to be! Think of the postman stopping with loads and loads of mail every day." Peggy's blue eyes were dancing.

"But suppose people don't write? You know how busy everyone is at Christmas." Vivian's face reflected the doubt in her words. "But they will write," Peggy's voice was emphatic. "I'm going to hold the thought that Sara Werby will be just swamped with mail." TOGETHER they penned the letter to Mona Muir on the big city paper. Later, between snatches of shopping, they discussed the possible number of cards and letters that would be delivered at the lit- tion. tle cottage on Bank street. They both seemed to be more concerned with what Sara Werby was going to

"I've thought of something!" she cried breathlessly receive than about what they themselves were going to get. "It's funny how doing something for others gets a hold of you," Vivian said one day; "I wasn't nearly as enthusiastic as you at first, Peggy; now I believe I'm even more eager."

But their real happiness came on Sara Werby's bed and saw the radiance upon her face. Stacks of letters, cards, and packages were piled everywhere, with postmarks from almost every state in the Union.

"It's the most thrilling thing that ever happened in my life," Sara told them. "I never knew there were so many wonderful people in the world. It will take me weeks and weeks to answer them all, but it's going to be loads of fun." Her brown eyes sparkled like a girl's. "I imagine some of them will develop into lasting friends," Peggy ventured. "Vivian and I are so happy about it all-in fact, I think we're just about as excited as you

"You're pretty happy then," Sara Werby whispered softly, "for I don't believe there is anyone—anywhere —who is going to have a more thrill ing Christmas than mine.'

A Non-Partisan State News Letter By GENE ALLEMAN Michigan Press

Lansing-If the farmer thinks that Michigan's new milk marketing act is going to solve all his dairy troubles, he is badly mistaken!

It provides no panacea. Fixing milk prices for both producers and consumers is a daring innovation, legally upheld by the United State supreme court as being within a state's power. Whether the Michigan state constitution permits this is another matter; two suits now pend which challenge the Elkland and act's constitutionality.

But the problem of milk control is intricate.

are a few of them.

Changing World

grandfather's day) the farmer luck supper Thursday evening. milked his cows, transported milk to the customer's front gate, transferred it from his containers to those provided by the consumer, and thus pocketed a few pennies do visit her occasionally, and have profit on each quart. Surplus milk was converted into butter or fed to the cattle.

Then the village grew into an industrial center. Living became complex. The changed world produced the distributor with an elaborate pasteurization plant, a testing laboratory, and a fleet of delivery trucks and drivers. The farmer sold his milk right at his farm gate; "surplus" not needed for fluid consumption was converted into butter, cheese or condensed milk-nonperishable commodities which could be kept for months. From state agricultural colleges came the science of dairying whereby milk production could be controlled by proper breeding and care of cows. Labor discovered the weapon of collective bargaining. The distributor, anxious to have a ready supply of milk close at hand, encouraged farmers to increase milk production. Then a declining Wheat, No. 2, mixed, birth rate, due to the depression, curtailed consumption of milk. Thus you have the modern picture of production surplus, higher Six-row Barley, cwt. labor costs, and lagging consump-

The cry arose for government to intervene—to "save the day." It became the "political" thing to do, Michigan Navy Beans, cwt..... and thus Michigan's milk market- Light Cranberries, cwt..... ing act was born.

Farmers at Fault?

Instead of controlling milk production to meet a constant steady Butterfat, pound demand (peak consumption comes Butter, pound ..... from September to December, in- Eggs, dozen clusively), the Michigan farmer clined to breed his cows Cattle, pound so that they freshen in the spring Hogs, pound when pastures are green rather than in the fall when feeding costs are high.

Then the matter of better bred cows. The average production of dairy cows in Michigan is 2,800 pounds per cow per year. Yet state-owned dairy herds (which are maintained to provide a steady supply of milk for inmates and employees of state institutions) produce an average of 13,000 pounds per cow per year.

Quite a difference! Fewer animals are needed; feed and labor expense are less; the return of profit to the owner is greater.

These factors tend to increase production costs—costs which must ome out of earnings of the farmer.

Distribution Costs

On the other hand the milk distributor is open to criticism that he has encouraged farmers to increase Christmas eve when they stood by milk production so that a ready surplus of supply would be always available at a low price.

Because milk production lags during the season of higher consumption, the distributor is usually willing to buy heavily at this time He then curtails buying in the spring when production is up and hen consumption is down. Duplication in distribution costs another factor tending to keep up onsumer prices. A study made in Milwaukee showed that seven companies maintained deliveries in the same 147 blocks; six companies did so in 146 blocks. The alternative to free competition would be to create a milk utility like that for the telephone, electricity, gas or transportation. Who wants that? Distributors also cater to consumer whims. To retain a customer, the distributor will send a truck on a special trip to deliver a bottle of milk—a trip which means additional expense eventually added to the consumer's bill.

Consumer Is Next

We pointed out last week that Detroit labor took as much out of the consumer's milk bill (homedelivery price) as did the farmerproducer. Detroit milk truck drivers, for example, have probably the best organized C. I. O. union in the city—the only large union which has a check-off whereby the distributor deducts dues from wages and hands them over to the union.

Next is the consumer, interested in getting a good product and in paying a fair price (the lower the

There is some evidence that the price of fresh-delivered milk since 1933 "has been higher than the index of the entire cost of living." (Quotation from Fortune Magazine survey, November, 1939).

Then per capita consumption of milk dropped 6.89 per cent between 1929 and 1936. Why? Fewer babies were born during hard-times; family earnings were less; milk prices declined 22 per cent in 1932 while consumer income went down 40 per cent.

The 1939 milk marketing act, now functioning in Michigan, is of two years' duration. Being an experiment, its permanence will depend upon how well it works, or does not work. As such, it bears close watching by the public.

HORSE SHORTAGE EVIDENT IN U. S.

Would Be Unable to Meet Wartime Demand.

Additional warfare in Europe would find America unable to supply the enormous number of horses for cavalry and transport which she did in the last World war, according to a report by the American Foundation for Animal Health.

"Our horse population has suffered a marked decline in the last decade and is growing smaller year by year," the foundation says. "Last year there were 328,000 fewer horses than the year before and 61,000 fewer colts were foaled last year than the year before. Despite this fact the value of these farm animals is exceeded only by that of dairy cattle. This means that if European armies come to America for their horses as they did during the last war, good horses will be harder to obtain and prices will rise more rapidly.

"Because horses are today more scarce and more valuable than they have been for a number of years, they should be given the best care possible. "Most farmers are on their guard against the current wave of sleeping sickness, but any horses which have not been immunized should be protected immediately. When one realizes that the horse population is decreasing steadily and that it takes nearly two years to produce a new colt, the importance of safeguarding those horses which we do have is increasingly clear."

Electric Lights Fail To Fool 'Old Biddy'

At the usual current cost, using electric lights in the chicken house to stimulate egg production is a paying proposition, but it definitely does not put anything over on the birds, says Cora Cooke, extension poultry specialist, University farm, St. Paul. It will not raise the total year's egg production, but, if used on well-matured pullets, will advance the production to the fall and winter months when egg prices are highest.

If a flock lays very well in the winter, they are not likely to lay quite as well in the spring. However, it is a mistake to assume that a flock that produces very few eggs in the winter will make up for it in April and May.

Miss Cooke corrects the idea that the lengthened day causes the chickens to eat more, which, in turn, produces more eggs. In fact, she says, it is the assimilation of light that stimulates production and makes the hens eat more feed.

For farm flock use, the 12 to 14hour day is generally preferred over all-night lighting, but it doesn't make any difference to the hen whether the day is lengthened in the morning, evening, or both. The important factor is that the person in charge of the flock should adopt a regular procedure and stick to it. cautions Miss Cooke. The most ponular practice is to use morning light with an automatic time switch to turn the lights on at the required time. Morning light does away with the need for a dimming system, which is necessary for night lighting, and calls for less actual attention on the part of the operator. When lights are used at night they must be dimmed before being turned off. This helps the chickens find the roosts.

Cattle 'Ear-Tagging' Aids Herd Improvement

Equivalent to finger-printing in humans, is the "ear-tagging" system for dairy cows. Many states co-operate with the bureau of dairy industry in permanently identifying all animals in dairy herd improvement associations. The purpose of the identification and permanent records is not only to apprehend the dairy criminals, he says, but to eliminate the unfavorable influences in breeding future dairy cattle. Every cow is put on her own production record and farmers get a complete analysis of breeding efficiency which reveals the value of every bull in every dairy-herd improvement breed.

The system locates and identifies outstanding brood cows for selection of breeding stock and provides a means of tracing family strains.

Radio Fails Farmer

Reading that a Japanese farmer had increased the milk yield of his cows by playing the radio to them, a farmer in Udny, Scotland, followed the example by placing a new radio set in an empty stall in the cowshed.

When jazz began one bossy after another kicked her heels in the air and protested loudly. One kicked the bottom out of the milk pail and another sent the milkmaid flying from the stall.

Dry air, it is explained, causes rapid evaporation from a person's skin. Thus in dry air a person may feel uncomfortably cool when the temperature is 68 to 72 degrees, although this should be a reasonable temperature range.

The water pan of a hot air furnace permits some addition of moisture to the air. #### It's a Big Coal Pile That Has No Ending

And there are very few of us who are able to command such a huge pile of coal. However, we have a solution that might help out.

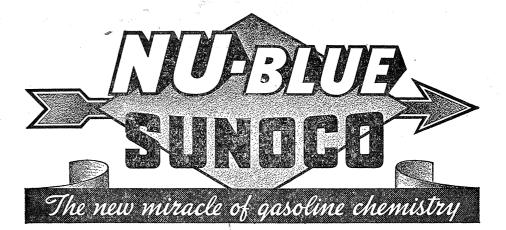

When you burn low grade coal it seems like the only thing done is a continuous buying of coal to replenish that which has gone up the chimney.

If you would but stop and consider the mythical coal pile that has no ending, you will find it in a pile of QUALITY COAL that lasts much longer because it gives off that much needed supply of heat units, going farther at actually less

yet it sells at regular gas price

Within the last two months, 1475 users of premiumpriced gasolines were asked to test an unidentified, colorless gasoline which was really Nu-Blue Sunoco with the coloring left out. From Florida to Canada, these tests were conducted, not by us, but by independent, unbiased research authorities, and when the returns were summarized, it was found that these motorists voted 9 to 1 in favor of Nu-Blue Sunoco! 9 out of 10 proclaimed it equal or superior to the premium-priced gasolines in road performance.

To make a fair test, don't dilute Nu-Blue Sunoco with other gasoline. Let your tank run practically empty. Then put in Nu-Blue Sunoco. Compare it particularly with premiumpriced gasolines. We'll rest our case on your findings.

A Christmas Snowstorm

By Sarah Jane Clark

HREE hours late, the snow bound train reached Chicago. Mary Lou gathered her baggage together and took the bus across to the other station, to find her connecting train had left on schedule. The folks would drive in to town to meet the train unless she could head them off.

Her message put through, Mary Lou sank down on one of the benches to collect her thoughts and make her plans until train time. Five o'clock, and no train until 9:30 the next morning.

"Going out soon?" a cheery voice near her asked. She looked up to find the chief usher standing beside her. A middle-aged, friendly looking fellow. Mary Lou told him of her missed connections.

"Here, Eddie, look at this!" a red cap interrupted her story. He was leading a three-year-old child, a dear little girl with big blue eyes and yellow curls.

"What are you doing with the kid? Is she lost?" Eddie asked sharply, turning away from Mary Lou.

"Might as well be. She came in from Denver, in charge of the stewardess. They missed the train north, and the stewardess is celebrating Christmas by having her appendix out, emergency case. They told me to turn the kid over to you," the boy grinned as he handed her over to the chief usher.

Eddie took her clumsily. "See here, what can a bachelor like me do with a kid like this?" He looked appealingly at Mary Lou.

Mary Lou's eyes filled with tears. Then she held out her arms toward the youngster. "What is your name, dear?" she asked.

"Annette Pollard. I am three years old and I am going from Cheyenne to Rio, Wisconsin, to my grandma Pollard. My daddy is there." It was a lesson she had been taught.

Mary Lou held her close. "I had a little girl almost as old as Annette when she died," she said brokenly to Eddie. "Let me keep the child tonight, and take her to her home. I missed the same train she did." Eddie studied her face. What he saw satisfied him. Still he hesitated for a moment. "That sounds good to me. But I'd better get the conductor to authorize it."

T WAS soon decided that Mary Lou should keep her. But she must not leave the station. "It won't be very comfortable for you, ma'am, but the kid can curl up on a bench here and be dead to the world in no time. There are some rocking chairs in the far room there. Why, of course there are some cots there, and baby beds.

"We ought to telephone the child's relatives," Mary Lou suggested. "Of course we should. Here is the address and telephone number. You do it for me, will you, please, ma'am? I've got my last minute shopping to do. I'm mighty glad you came in on this train. Eddie'll take the kid while you telephone to Rio," and the conductor was off, after turning over the child's money to Mary Lou. But not until Mary Lou had made him promise to send a big doll back for the child's Christmas.

"We'll let Annette say hello to her daddy herself, if she wants to," Mary Lou exclaimed. And so it was done. Mary Lou heard the voice of Annette's father, tense with concern, and then joyful as he realized where his baby was and heard her childish treble over the phone. "Her mother's parents sent her back here to have Christmas with me. Her mother died two years ago," he added.

The sun was shining dazzlingly bright the next morning when the train stopped at Rio. The red-haired man who was waiting expectantly on the platform had only time to thank Mary Lou, and get her address, before the train pulled out leaving him holding Annette as she waved a good-by to Mary Lou.

But the trip home was much easier. Mary Lou forgot the burning pain at the loss of her own little daughter, the aching loneliness since her own husband's death, as she remembered the soft kiss of the baby lips of the motherless child who had been in her charge the night before. And the look in the face of Annette's daddy made her sure she would see Annette soon.

Growing Pains Indicate Need Of Correction

By DR. JAMES W. BARTON

WHAT was called "grow-ing pains" in my boyhood was believed to be due to the fact that when children were growing, most of the TODAY'S growth was and so near a part of a joint. A few years later when infection of teeth and tonsils was found to be a cause of rheumatism those growing pains were believed to be due to rheumatism and parents were warned that heart disease might follow these growing pains.

While there is no question but that pains in knees and muscles in youngsters may actually be due to rheumatism following infected tonsils, nevertheless, it is now believed that rheumatism is not the cause of these growing pains in most cases.

Dr. J. C. Hawksley, London, England, in Medical World, states that

"growing pains" is not commonly related to rheumatic fever or sub-acute rheumatism (early stages) and does not finally cause heart

"Children affected with 'growing pains' usually give a hisof frequent colds and coughs, and during these attacks the amount of

Dr. Barton pain is increased.'

Treatment Indicated. Such children are benefited by removal of the tonsils and treatment of their colds. Many of these children do not gain weight. They frequently present signs of poor health. The commonest cause is some slight deformity such as flat-foot, knockknee, spinal curvature, sway-back. Improvement is rapid when these conditions are corrected.

"Inflammation of the ends of the muscles where muscles are attached to bones — fibrositis — is a cause of growing pains. Tiredness is a frequent cause of growing pains and is seen in children who have long distances to walk to school or who stand for long periods."

Insufficient sleep is also an important factor in causing these pains. Growing pains should always receive the attention of parents. The pains may be due to infection of tonsils, which may be followed by rheumatism and heart disease.

Stuttering— Causes and Cures

As youngsters there was always a laugh when a stuttering boy got up to do some reading. I believe we thought stuttering was a mental defect. When I got older I was one of a number seeking a certain scholarship; the student who won it over all of us stuttered very badly. I corrected my idea that stuttering was a mental defect. However, it is only in the last 10 to 20 years that research workers studying stuttering (and many of these workers were not physicians) discovered that stuttering was due simply to nervousness. They discovered that under certain circumstances, such as the quietness of the home, there was no stuttering, no hesitancy in speech. This showed that there was nothing wrong with the mouth or vocal chords or stuttering would be present always.

Instead of waiting for children "to grow out of the habit" of stuttering, physicians today recognize that the stutterer is a very nervous individual, one who looks in on himself, one who is self-conscious in the presence of others, and so try to draw him out of himself. 10 Per Cent Have Defect.

Dr. James Sonnett Greene, New York, in his editorial as guest editor, Medical World, states that there are 13,000,000 (10 per cent) of the population of the United States who have some sort of speech defect or voice abnormality. The stutterers alone number over a million. Dr. Greene says that careful investigation usually will disclose that the majority of stutterers are products of homes in which the parents are themselves very nervous. The young stutterer very often gets scolded and even whipped for stuttering, which makes him afraid of every new person or circumstance. Stuttering is really an outward sign of the youngster's feeling of inferiority or inability to compete on equal terms with

At the Medical-Social clinic in New York, of which Dr. Greene is a director, the child is treated as if no speech defect were present. The atmosphere and surroundings are of "friendly" nature. However, at the same time, the surrounding atmosphere and circumstances have been so arranged that the stutterer has to face, in the physician and the other stutterers of the group, the real things of life that he has been trying to avoid.

WARS SELDOM HELP FARMER

Expert Advises Adherence of far in financing a war. To Crop Schedule.

By Dr. V. R. WERTZ

Regardless of whether or not the armies of the world decide on stepping up the pace of war, many American farmers are willing to try and cities. To participate in ana gamble which appears to be a losing proposition unless economic laws are repealed by mass hysteria of the world's inhabitants. This would seem apparent from facts available to the rural economics department of Ohio State university.

It may be possible that mathematics are blown out the window when wars occur but it is a matter of historical record that numerals through taxation. have their old values when wars end. The farmers who are betting their judgment against statistics are the farmers who are abandoning their planned crop schedules to plant an unusual amount of wheat this fall and coming spring.

These farmers give two reasons for believing that extra acres of wheat will be profitable; first, rapid increases in grain prices occurred immediately after this war began; and second, wheat prices started upward in 1916 and continued to rise until pegged at a bonanza figure.

Such increases as may occur in United States and Japan. grain prices are no more than the farmer deserves, but it is doubtful if duced to Rotarians by M. B. Auten, the planting of a markedly increased acreage of wheat is the proper method to add dollars to the 1940 farm income. Several reasons present themselves for doubting that unusually large wheat harvest next year will be profitable for its producers.

The chief reason is that the granaries of the world already are bursting with the largest stocks of wheat Mrs. Alvin Smith died in Pleasant ture. that have been known since records Home Hospital Monday night. were kept. #### Local Seeds Best Seeds from trees in the backyard or along a neighbor's fence are likely to produce better trees than those from distant places, says R. W. Graeber, forester of the North Carolina State college extension service.

The reason for this, Graeber explained, is that trees must be thoroughly adapted to the climate of the planting site. Seed of even the same species gathered at great distances from the planting location cannot compete with the home-grown prod-

Sooner or later, the State college forester said, a variation occurs in the size of the seedling trees and in their survival, usually in favor of the home-area seedlings. Local seed are considered to be those obtained within a hundred miles of the planting site and with a difference in elevation of not more than

Soil-Erosion Is Now

Nation-Wide Problem Although "man-made" soil erosion increased year by year in this country as settlers moved west, it was not until 1933 that the problem was attacked on a nationwide scale. In that year the soil erosion service, now the soil conservation service, was organized.

During the past six years, 175 demonstration areas have been established in 45 states and Puerto Rico, the service says in a current statement. Erosion control work is going forward under technical supervision of the service near more than 350 CCC camps. Hundreds of individual farms are being replanned for soil conservation in co-operation with state extension services.

Over the country as a whole the soil conservation service demonstration program includes co-operative agreements with nearly 70.000 land-holders and covers more than 12 million acres of privately owned land.

Deer Problem

In a number of eastern states. the excess high population of whitetail deer is proving to be a serious problem to the farmer. Pennsylvania has erected many miles of deer-proof fences. Michigan is now experimenting with electric fences to keep deer from damaging crops, the National Wildlife federation reports. One Michigan farmer, given permission to kill trespassing deer shot 14 in one field, then quit in disgust with the deer still coming.

Dear Son:

We welcome you and Helen back from your honeymoon. After you've settled a bit, we'll drop in to see your new home.

I remember the day, some thirty years ago, when your Mother and I came back to our first home. I split kindling for the cast-iron kitchen stove, and it took Mother all afternoon to bake some bread. Instead of her vacuum cleaner, Mother had a broom . . . and how she made it fly. But our prize possession was in the parlor . . . a real talking machine, with chubby cylinder records and a big morning glory horn.

We used to march for miles all over town on our shopping trips. How I fidgeted while Mother shopped. We were both worn out.

Things have changed a lot since then, all right—and you'll both be better off for it. Helen won't have to spend half her days in the kitchen like Mother used to. The advertisements in the newspaper will save her those punishing miles of shopping. They'll keep her posted on current values, give her the names of dependable products, tell her all about special sales. When you come home nights you'll find her fresh as a daisy. . . . ' ready for a jolly evening with your friends.

I'll trade the "good old days" for the good new days any day.

But enough of reminiscence . . . I rejoice in the exciting years of youth that are ahead for both of you.

Affectionately,

DAD.
