Tuscola Ministers Held April Meet Here on Monday

The Tuscola County Ministerial Association met in the local Methodist Church Monday with Chaplain Wenger and Deputy Warden Carpenter of the State Prison at Jackson as guest speakers. The chaplain spoke in the morning on the corrective measures used at the prison and explained his approach to the men who are brought there. He showed how these methods are the ones best adapted to use everywhere because any one has attitudes which could grow into the very things which put those men there. He said every preacher should use some of the methods of the psychiatrist especially giving opportunity to tell one's hopes or one's troubles. Warden Carpenter spoke of the causes of the present high population of the prison attributing it to the breakdown and failure of the

Race for Top Team Bowling Honors Tightens

Seven Teams Still Are Given a Chance of Heading Season's Placings.

With three more weeks to go, the race for top team honors in the Cass City Bowling League is tightening and it looks like only the first seven teams have a chance now at the coveted prize. The Fritz team is still leading by one game even though they lost one of their three games this past week. They have won 20 games out of 21 played in the last seven weeks and look like real contenders yet anything is liable to happen for their remaining scheduled games are against the higher average teams. The Larkin and Landon teams won their three game series and are only two games out of first place with only nine games left to complete the schedule. Two other teams also won all three games. They were Coleman's and McIntyre's. Each week a few bowlers make history by lambasting the fables for sizeable counts and Fred Pinney led the group with a 568 total, G. Folkert 566, F. Novak 558, G. Landon 557, and Alex Tyo 553.

To Build Six Miles of Non-Skid East of Gagetown

The Road Will Extend Across Elkland Township
to Sanilac County Line.

In this number of the Chronicle appears a highway notice over the signature of Murray D. VanWagoner, state highway commissioner, asking for bids for the construction of 5.914 miles of non-skid surface treatment on the highway east of Gagetown. This stretch of road extends from the east village limits of Gagetown, across Elkland Township, to the Tuscola-Sanilac County line. Sealed proposals will be received by the state highway department from contractors until 10:00 a. m. on Saturday, April 20.

The Federal government has extended financial aid to the various state highway departments for about 20 years for the development of federal roads. Approximately 75% of the paved mileage on the present state trunk line system in Michigan has been constructed with federal aid. The federal government is now extending aid to counties for the improvement of farm to market or secondary roads, and Tuscola County has chosen to participate in the third program through the construction of 5.914 miles of non-skid surface treatment immediately east of Gagetown. This section of road was rebuilt last year with joint county and federal secondary funds in anticipation of placing a hard surface on the gravel base this year.

Tuscola County has also participated in the federal aid secondary program through the improvement of 12 miles of road between Cass City and Kingston.

Lakeview Players to Appear Here Sunday

The Epworth League of the Methodist Church is attempting not only to carry on the regular work of the league, but also to provide something of value to the community in the way of outside talent. Next Sunday evening at eight o'clock, the Lakeview players of Flint will give the beautiful and impressive religious play, "Simon the Leper." This play deals with the dark days following the Crucifixion of Jesus. There is nothing sectarian about this play and all churches alike may enjoy it. Those who have no other services to attend are cordially invited.

The Lakeview Players have several years' experience in giving these plays and are highly talented in this kind of drama. Their presentation of a play makes it a living sermon and, with unique costuming and lighting effects, the reverent dramatic situations bring a religious message not only to the ear but to the eye. Encouragement should be given to the league in this and other similar endeavors which are contemplated.

The Honorable Uncle Lancy

—By— Ethel Hueston

Bobbs-Merrill Co. WNU Service

Hilda, though she had not expected them for hours, received them dourly but without surprise. She did not even raise an eyebrow at sight of the girls, in swim suits, swathed in automobile robes. It was not easy to surprise Hilda.

"Where are the prizes?" she inquired, with irritable interest.

"Prizes!" boomed Aunt Olympia.

"Wasn't it a beauty contest?" said Hilda. "Seems as if to me they're dressed for it."

She helped Aunt Olympia give them hot baths and rub them down with rough warm towels; gave them all the hot lemonade they could drink and warmed their beds with hot-water bottles. Uncle Lancy telephoned the doctor to find what preventive measures should be taken and was relieved to learn that everything that had been done was the right thing, and that they need only be kept warm and quiet until they had thoroughly recuperated.

"And if they catch anything, we'll see what to do next," said the Doctor, which Uncle Lancy faithfully retailed to Aunt Olympia.

As a final precaution, Aunt Olympia made each take an aspirin and five grains of quinine. Hilda closed the windows and lowered the blinds.

"Now, just calm down, my dears, and go to sleep," said Aunt Olympia soothingly. "If you feel wakeful or nervous or a chill coming on, ring immediately for Hilda and she'll give you more hot lemonade and quinine. And thank God it's over. You've been to Waterloo and now you are safe and warm in your little beds on St. Helena. Don't get up tomorrow. You can have your meals in bed. There'll be quite a rumput and more reporters nosing around, but keep your door shut and I'll strangle a few, if necessary. Stay in bed a week if you want to. I'll very likely stay with you. And don't worry. I'll bring you Len Hardy's head on a platter first time I get my hands on him."

Then she turned off the lights and closed the door.

She headed at once for the room she shared, rather grudgingly, with the Senator.

"Another pitcher of hot lemonade for the Senator," she said to Hilda over her shoulder.

The Senator was already in night-shirt and bathrobe and warm slippers. He was smoking a cigarette.

"Did you take their temperature?" he demanded. "Did they have a chill?"

"I wish you'd be more grammatical, Del," she said irritably. "How can three girls have one temperature and one chill? Did you change to your flannel nightshirt?"

"My dear, it's a very mild night. You know I never change to flannel till the first snow."

"It's a chilly night, or I miss my guess! I've got trouble enough without pneumonia." She fished roughly about in a drawer and produced the flannels. "Change," she ordered briskly. "And be quick about it."

The Senator made the exchange rather than start an argument.

"Did they seem feverish?" he asked.

"If Limpy caught cold—and she's still shivery—I'll sue that louse," said Aunt Olympia, to whom suing was a far more menacing procedure than a mere wringing of necks. "In fact, I'm not sure but I'll stand on my constitutional rights and sue the American system. You'd better get in bed, Del. Here comes Hilda with your lemonade and whisky. You'd better take these two quinine, first."

"You only gave them one quinine," he remonstrated.

"More grammar. One apiece," she reproved him severely. "Anyhow, you're older than they are and have less reaction. . . . You don't feel anything coming on, do you?"

The Senator got into bed. "Yes, I feel a fade-out coming on," he said, with a smile that was not rueful. "And it was worth it. Did you hear me take the hide off Brother Wilkie?"

"If he just manages to trip over that carpet they blackmailed me into buying and breaks his neck, it'll be cheap at the price. . . . Give him two jiggers, Hilda."

"You've had a pretty easy summer, so it won't make any difference if you lose a little sleep to-night, Hilda," she said. "I want you to keep an eye on the girls and if any of them seems to be catching anything, you call me immediately and I'll phone the doctor. And don't disturb us. Don't ever disturb us again as long as we live. If anybody calls up, you say the Senator's running for chief shiek of the United Mohammedans and is in a conference with Allah. If reporters come, give them rat poison. We don't want to see anybody or hear anything for the next six months. If you need help, call the police."

"Won't you be wanting coffee?" asked Hilda, almost hopefully.

"Yes. Well be wanting coffee when we ring for it and that's all we will be wanting. Be sure to keep an eye on the girls and let me know if they start chills or fever. . . . Coffee, nothing else."

"Won't you be wanting the morning papers?"

"Heavens, Ollie!" ejaculated the Senator, and the unwonted profanity showed how wrought up he was. "I forgot the press. Do you suppose they got pictures?"

"Well, thank God the girls have straight legs," said Olympia. "No, Hilda. No papers! Never any more papers as long as we live! Good night, Hilda. Go and look in on the girls, will you? If they need anything, let me know."

When the door had closed on Hilda, Olympia turned off the lights and for ten full minutes a deep and serene silence held the room. But Aunt Olympia was uneasy. The Senator, poor dumb cluck, could lie there catching anything and never even recognize his symptoms. Unable to endure her uneasiness, she turned on the lights and gave him a straight look.

He was lying—bland, near-sighted eyes wide open—with a broad smile on his pink, seraphic face.

"Can I get you something?" he said, politely.

"No," said Olympia. "What are you smiling about? Do you feel hysterical?"

"Oh, no," said the Senator gently. And then added, with modest diffidence, "Ollie, did you notice the terrific wallop I gave Jim Allen? He went down like a ton of brick. I never realized my own strength."

"Yes, I noticed it," said Olympia, sadly, turning off the light.

"You know, Ollie," he went on, with shy boastfulness, "all my life I've dreamed of some Lochinvar who would knock out a state chairman. But naturally I never expected to do it myself. You know, Ollie, I know history pretty well, and as far as I know I'm absolutely unique. I never heard of a United States Senator retiring over the prostrate form of his state chairman."

"It's too bad it couldn't have been the Opposition chairman," said Olympia, dully, for she was bruised in spirit.

"That wouldn't be the same, Ollie," he said contentedly. "Not at all the same."

Lansing—Is anything wrong with the Michigan party system?

James Thomson, chairman of the Republican State Central Committee, has concluded that while the system is good, it could be improved. In fact, he proposes specific suggestions for changes in the state laws governing the selection of committee delegates and nominees. These changes, he believes, would obviate the need of large campaign contributions or assessment of political employees.

"Jim," the genial farmer-chairman of the Michigan Republican party, draws a line between party organizations and government. His philosophy of the whole matter is old-fashioned.

"Our American system of government is based on the existence of political parties," he said. "History has proved that we should have at least two major parties. It is all based on the theory that a public official is an employee of the unit of government which he serves, and that the closer the official is to the people the more apt he is to reflect public opinion in the conduct of public affairs."

Selecting Delegates

"It must be understood that party organization is a distinct and separate function from government, although a public official may be a member of the party."

"As the function of a party organization is to win elections, it is quite apparent that satisfactory administration of public affairs by the party in power is an absolute necessity. My conception of government is that the best party policy is to do the job well while the party is in power."

"Consequently the selection of ward and precinct delegates who will attend the county convention should be given close scrutiny. Likewise, the selection of delegates from the counties to the state convention should be approached with a view of selecting persons who have the interest of the entire public at heart."

How Nominees Are Chosen

"You are probably well aware that the governor and lieutenant governor are selected by direct primary vote of the people, while other elective state officials are selected by these party delegates who attend the state convention."

How are these delegates picked?

"The town and ward delegates are selected for two-year terms by direct vote at the September primary election. Following the primary election, the delegates meet in county conventions which in turn elect delegates to the state convention. Thus the state convention is not held until close to 30 days prior to the general election itself, permitting only a very short time for perfecting party organizations and raising of campaign funds."

"In the first place, the primary election in Michigan is held at such a late date (September) that it does not give more than 30 days of actual working time for formation of party campaign organization. I believe that perhaps a slightly longer period might be desirable in order to acquaint the voting public with campaign issues and with the qualifications of the nominee although this period should not exceed 60 days."

Mr. Thomson indicated that a primary election early in August would be preferable over the present time in September.

Who Picks Committees?

Who selects the ward and precinct committees?

"In Michigan the ward and precinct committee members are selected ordinarily by county chairmen and county secretaries of party organizations," the Republican leader explained.

Who selects the county chairman?

"After the primary election, the party nominees meet and select the county chairman."

"This method results in a loss of interest after the November election is over and the nominees for office who have selected the county chairman have either won or lost. I feel that if the township and ward committee members could be elected in the same manner as is used for election of delegates to the county convention, it would promote a wider interest in party affairs and result in a more wholesome attitude looking toward a better public opinion."

Campaign Contributions

"The haste of a campaign conducted in 30 days quite obviously makes it necessary that campaign contributions be forthcoming in sizeable amounts. Could the campaign be spaced over a longer period of time then smaller and more numerous contributions could be made available. These smaller contributions cause the contributor to take the attitude that he is a stockholder in the party organization and thus the party will receive the moral as well as financial support. Large campaign contributions sometime prove embarrassing after the campaign has been won. The most notable example in recent years was the substantial contribution by John L. Lewis of the C. I. O. to the Democratic National Committee which precipitated introduction of the Hatch bill and the new amendment now pending before Congress.

"The most desirable method of financing a political party would be small contributions by individuals without the odium attached to assessment of political employees. This could be accomplished if sufficient time elapsed between the primary election and the November election to enable enough approaches for individual contributions."

"The work of soliciting party contributions could then be largely entrusted to local party organizations. They (committee members) would not feel that if they were elected for a term of two years their value to the party was ended after the November election."

"This change would prove, I believe, very acceptable to party organization of either major party as the number of members of the state central committee—four to each congressional district—does not afford enough personal contacts in each district to promote proper organization work."

Convention Reforms?

As for county and state conventions, many suggestions have been advanced to insure responsive action. Among these are: 1—Require that the county chairman preside as chairman of the county convention. 2—Require that the list of official delegates to the state convention be transmitted to the state central committee by the county chairman within five days after the county convention.

(Mr. Thomson said he had heard of these suggestions which are aimed at eliminating "boss control" of county and state conventions, but he made no personal comments as to whether the reforms would be desirable or undesirable.)

Party Responsibility

Thomson's theory of political organization has been to decentralize party responsibility—get it as close to the people as possible.

With that objective in mind, the state central committee organized the Republican county officers' association consisting of all county officers who were elected on the Republican ticket.

In addition to this a more recent organization has been the Republican county committee officers' association which comprises the chairman, vice chairmen, and vice chairwomen, secretaries and treasurers of Republican county committees.

At present time the chairman of the Republican state central committee is serving as president of the county committee officers' association. These additional organizations have resulted, Thomson reported, in correlation of organization activity "the effectiveness of which has been shown in results of recent elections."

"No Dictatorship"

"It is my opinion," concludes the Republican state chairman, "that among people of Michigan and other states of the Midwest there is a desire for return of some sort of party responsibility."

"I feel that this is particularly true among us who expect to vote the Republican ticket in 1940. Our government is based on existence of political parties. It has been successfully tested by balances obtained through the executive, legislative and judicial branches of government."

"Individualists are bound to become provincial in their administration of public affairs."

"Individuality in executive capacity leads to dictatorship and we wish nothing of this sort in our United States of America."

Death of Daniel Cole—
Daniel Cole passed from this life Sunday morning, April 7, following but a few days of illness. For the past three years he, and Mrs. Cole, had made their home with their son at Van Dyke. About three weeks ago they went to the home of their daughter in Ellington, Mrs. Martin Keilitz, at whose home he died, and where the funeral services were held on Tuesday afternoon, conducted by Rev. Ray Wilson of the Methodist Church. Two selections were sung by Mrs. Walter Kelley and Mrs. Howard Malcolm accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Greenleaf. Interment was made in Ellington Cemetery.

About 30 years ago, and for several years following, their home was in the near vicinity of Deford, where many lasting friendships were formed.

H. C. Elford. The groom was attended by William Waxel of Wilmot and the bride by Miss Marian Hicks, sister of the groom.

Lloyd is a prosperous young farmer and the bride is a teacher in the public schools, having taught for two years at Deford and at present is teaching the Moshier School in Sanilac County. She is a graduate of Cass City High School, Tuscola County Normal School and Ypsilanti State Teachers' Normal. They spent a few days in Detroit after the wedding.
