

High Awards Are Presented at Scout Court of Honor

County-wide Swimming Meet Here Saturday Proved Attraction for 65

The court of honor, a high spot in the activities of Boy Scouts, and a county-wide swimming meet at Cass City proved interesting and attractive features for the youthful organization of Tuscola County Saturday afternoon and evening.

Sixty-five Scouts participated in the swimming events in the afternoon for which Cass City business men provided cash prizes.

The program opened with a talk on water safety by Harry L. Little. Prize winners were:

Fifty yard free style—1st, Dean Karr; 2nd, Duane Kettlewell; both of Cass City.

Relay (free style)—1st and 2nd, Cass City. Duane Kettlewell and Larry McClorey were captains of these teams.

Diving for 16-lb. shot put—1st, Albert MacPhail, Cass City.

Water polo for non-swimmers was declared a tie for all contestants.

Albert MacPhail gave a demonstration showing different styles of swimming. He was first and Dick Wallace of Cass City second in the list of swimmers who gathered in the most cash of the $7 in coin thrown into the pool. Clarence Roth of Reese was first of the non-swimmers in this contest.

"This is fun fellows and I'm not kidding" yelled a fat little visitor several times at the edge of the pool and he expressed the sentiments of the group.

Cash garnered by the groups participating in the events at the pool showed the following amounts: Cass City Troop, $19; Caro Troop No. 156, $5.50; Vassar Troop, $4.50; Caro Troop No. 160 and Unionville, each $3.50; Reese Troop, $3.00.

Alex Liberacki, chairman of the troop committee at Unionville, put the Boy Scouts in good humor with a program of magic which opened the evening's activities. Glenn McCullough, chairman of advancement in this district, was in charge of the court of honor. He presented Scout officials who made award presentations.

"Mickey" Stein, scoutmaster at Reese, presented third and second class awards. Alex Liberacki gave first class honors to others, and Walter Mann, troop committeeman of Cass City, presented merit badges to another group.

Dr. Swanson, a member of the troop committee at Vassar, gave the Star award to Victor Schwab of Vassar. Carl Handel, Scout executive from Saginaw, announced life awards to John Kim and Gerald Priekorn of Cass City. John Kim, being absent from town, the award was entrusted to his father, the Rev. Mr. Kim, chaplain of the Cass City troop. The Eagle Scout award, the highest in the organization, was presented to Jim Baker and Dale Reid, both of Cass City, by Harold Oatley, local scoutmaster.

Harold Buchanan, field man for the Tuscola district, gave a talk on Camp Rotary as the concluding number of the evening's program.

Local arrangements were in charge of Edward Baker, general chairman, Harry L. Little and Glenn McCullough. They were assisted by Athletic Coach Arthur Paddy.

A large quantity of ice cream was distributed during the evening and helpings were plentiful and frequent, so much so that many a lad cried "Enough!" And that's an unusual state of affairs in boyhood.

Church Rites United Couple June 29

In a double ring ceremony performed June 29 at the Sandusky Presbyterian Church, Miss Winifred M. Hyslop, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Rich of Sandusky, became the bride of Mr. James J. Sommerville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Pettinger, of Cass City.

Miss Hyslop entered the church on the arm of her father who gave her in marriage. Mrs. Hale of Sandusky played the wedding march. The Rev. C. B. Kennedy performed the ceremony at four o'clock before the altar decorated with palms and garden flowers, in the presence of about 100 guests.

The floor length gown of the bride was of white marquisette with sweetheart neckline, long sleeves and tight bodice. Her fingertip veil was held in place with orange blossoms and her only ornament was a strand of pearls, the gift of the groom.

The maid of honor, Miss Eileen Sommerville, sister of the groom, and the bridesmaid, Miss Gertrude Miller, close friend of the bride, wore dresses made of pink and blue net skirts over satin with tight lace bodices and short puffed sleeves. Their three-quarter length veils fell from cap-shaped headpieces and their bouquets were of pink and white carnations.

The bridegroom's attendants were Robert Hyslop, half brother of the bride, and Wm. Juhl, cousin of the bride. Jack Sommerville, brother of the groom, of Tyre and Jack Matthews, cousin of the groom, of Sarnia, Ont., were ushers.

Mrs. Osro Campbell sang "Because" and "I Love You Truly", accompanied by Mrs. Hale.

Mrs. Rich chose black and white Jersey with white accessories for her daughter's marriage and Mrs. Pettinger wore blue and white crepe with white accessories. Each wore a shoulder corsage of red roses.

A dinner for 60 relatives and close friends was served in the basement of the church. The bride's table was centered with a four-tier wedding cake and cut flowers were used on each table.

A reception was held at the Juhl hall in the evening for about 200 guests who came from Gary, Ind., Detroit, Sarnia, Ont., Saginaw, Bad Axe, Cass City and Tyre.

The bride wore a suit of pale green, light wool with brown accessories for travelling. The newlyweds left for a trip to northern Michigan. On their return they will live at 2012 Ninth street in Port Huron.

The bride taught rural schools for two years in the Sandusky area. The groom was recently discharged from the army after serving one and a half years in the European theatre of war.

Miss Caroline Ward has started work at the King's Daughters' Home for Children in Flint and is making her home with Margaret Harrison at 726 East Margaret St. Children from one to five years are cared for at the home.

Local Dairymen Plan a Red Dane Cattle Association

At a meeting held in the Cass City High School Wednesday evening about 35 dairy farmers were present to hear an explanation of how they might organize a Red Dane dairy cattle breeding association.

Harold Clark, assistant county agent of Sanilac County, was the principal speaker of the evening. Mr. Clark, who also is secretary of the National Red Danish Cattle Association, described the development of the Danish Breed here in the United States since the original importation of 20 heifers and two bulls about fifteen years ago. All progeny of these original animals has been and continues to be in control of the United States Department of Agriculture. In 1938 a few bulls were leased to an association of Sanilac County farmers to be used on grade cattle in their herds. The fifteen farmers in this association now have a total of about 1500 head of cattle carrying 1/2, 3/4 and 5/8 Red Dane blood, respectively, in the first, second and third generation crosses. Only a few of the third generation stock is on hand yet, the oldest animals being about breeding age now.

Breeding service from proven Red Dane sires is now available to dairy farmers breeding associations through the facilities of the Michigan Artificial Breeders' Association, Inc. Requests for breeding service for a minimum of 800 cows must be subscribed by any local dairy breeders' association. Each member is also required to join a dairy herd improvement association and keep production records on all females in the herds. A tour is being arranged for those interested to visit the Sanilac County herds.

Cottons Steal the Spotlight For Cool-as-a-Breeze Fashions

By Ertta Haley

KEEPING cool is the first consideration for summer clothes. The other consideration, which in the past has too often been neglected, is style or smartness.

Style is difficult to achieve in a summery dress because no matter how lovely, it can take on the appearance of a ruffled, dowdy thing within an hour after you've put it on, simply because the weather takes all the starch out of you and your dress.

Because it is difficult to keep cool and at the same time look well-groomed, I'd suggest you concentrate on the simpler fashions for summer. Pleats are very nice, but they're hard to keep well-pressed when the temperature's soaring. Ruffles may look very nice on a blouse for a dressy suit, but they wilt easily when you're perspiring.

All this is said to suggest you consider the choice of a summer afternoon dress carefully. Look at the work of the country's best designers and you will always see simplicity the basic note, the guiding factor in a dress, suit or coat.

Another factor that has an important bearing on your style is the fabric you use. You would hardly consider a waffle weave for a ruffled effect, nor would you consider the cool but weighty mesh prints for lots of furbelows on a dress.

If you want to look cool and collected, then you'll choose your print and color with a lot of care. Unless you want to appear very gay, don't buy red unless it's relieved by plenty of white or neutral. Nor do I suggest you choose a very warm shade, like orange or yellow-orange.

Take your pick from the pale yellow tints or cool colors like green, blue and violet. Brown and black with touches of white or neutral are also very attractive. White is difficult to keep clean in some sec-

Tailored Interest

The skirt of topas brown with a flat-seamed center panel is teamed with a taffy gabardine jacket to make this a smart selection from Molly's collection. Notice the fine interest in detail and careful tailoring.

If you have dress-length material. . . tions of the country, but it is cool to wear, and particularly nice for dress-up.

Cut Your Pattern With Architect's Precision

Remember there's nothing hard about any part of sewing if you work as a professional. Naturally this will permit no slipshod cutting or careless fitting.

If you are working very carefully and with fabric which is quite expensive, it may be best to cut and fit your pattern of inexpensive unbleached muslin. This can be run together on a machine with long stitches — just well enough to hold it through a good fitting, and then ripped and used as the pattern.

The easiest way of keeping the material from which you are cutting in a straight line and even fold is to tack it lightly on your working table. Clerks try to keep material straight when they cut it for you, but some fabrics are so slippery, this is impossible. It is better to take a little time to get it in line, "to lie straight" before cutting than to have a dress that does not set well.

The little notches on your pattern which are designed as tucks and darts are mighty important in making the garment fit you. The neck-line may require more than one or two darts to make it snugly. The darts at the waistline may have to be a little smaller than shown in the pattern. Perhaps the undershirt darts should be just a little deeper to give you good line. All of these little things can be determined by basting first, then fitting.

A recent bit of news suggested that we women were spreading across the hips much more since the war than our designers anticipated. And, they tell us, that does not apply only to the older women, but to the teen-aged youngsters as well.

Because the skirt fit is so important it's a good idea to baste the entire skirt in place before attempting any sewing. Slip the garment on, and if the seam allowance has been too generous, you can always let it out. If the garment is too snug, it may be necessary to place panels at the sides to give more room. At any rate, it's better to know just what the score is before you put in those hard-to-rip stitches.

Don't feel that just because you're sewing on cotton that you can afford to be careless. Whereas cotton used to be an inexpensive material before the war, it is anything but that now. A good piece of material deserves just as good treatment as you can give it.

Care of Fabrics

For washing woolen garments use a neutral soap. Soaps with alkali have a harmful effect on woolen garments. Use as little friction as possible when washing, as it may ruin the fibers. Squeezing gently in lukewarm suds is the best method. Hang the garment where air circulates freely and is neither too hot nor cold.

These same precautions are necessary for washing silk. To prevent yellowing, hang silk in the shade.

Cotton and linen wash easily, although alkali cleaning agents should be used carefully. Sunshine tends to whiten both of these fabrics and they can withstand the higher temperatures fairly easy in washing.

Soft water and mild soap are the essentials for washing rayons. Two sudings should be used if necessary. The fabric should not be rubbed or twisted. Ironing with just warm heat is very important.

Bemberg fabrics are handled like silk, wrapped in a towel and ironed with just a warm iron.

Fashion Notes

Button interest is paramount for summer clothes. A simple cotton dress receives elegance from rich, frosty white buttons or jet black ones.

Black skirts with pink blouses make nice dress-up costumes, that are bound to be arresting. Don't forget black poplin or linen-like fabrics with white embroidered touches for dressy and smart suits.

Skirts of cocoa or blue chambray are nice business like affairs when teamed with yellow or pink blouses. Easy to keep looking neat, too.

You'll be seeing more frills and furbelows on women's clothing now that some Civilian Production administration controls have been rescinded. The main features restored by this are french cuffs, pocket flaps and all types of belts.

See Crippled Vets Walk Again

Doctor Said They Could, So Soldiers Are Given New Lease on Life.

ATLANTIC CITY.—They laughed when he got up to walk. So he went to the deserted basement of the army's Thomas M. England General hospital at night and walked anyhow—on legs that were labeled "useless," says the Associated Press.

With him went other wounded veterans—boys hit in the spine by bullets or shrapnel. They had been doomed to spend the rest of their lives on their backs until a young doctor from Highland Park, N. J., Capt. William Kuhn Jr., 30, talked them into believing they could walk again.

These men are paraplegic patients—more technically known as victims of transverse myelitis. Their spinal cords wholly or partially severed, they are without muscular control from the waist down.

General Patton became such a paraplegic as a result of the auto accident in Germany, but the former commander of the 3rd army lost his last battle when pneumonia set in.

The army's public relations office has released the dramatic story of the hospital's paraplegic ward, and of Captain Kuhn, ward officer for the paraplegic section.

All Now Walking. A year ago, not a single paraplegic patient was on his feet, and only two could use a wheel chair. Today, all of the 93 men—comprising the largest paraplegic ward in the country—are walking.

They are driving automobiles. They are wheeling themselves up and down this resort city.

"A year ago these were the forgotten men," Captain Kuhn said. "Their morale was so low it didn't exist at all, and the mortality rate was high. They knew that of the paraplegics of the last war, only 1 per cent survive today."

"Our goal for the 1,400 army paraplegics of World War II is at least 90 per cent survival. We'll make it."

Many, he said, already have been discharged, and are self-supporting civilians.

Mortality Among Paraplegic. "I told these men what they were up against," he said. "I told them it was up to them to do something about it, and that they could if they would only try."

"It was tough at first, but one by one they tried to walk. Now look at them."

Walking, for a paraplegic, is a difficult and arduous process. Without muscular control in the hips and legs, the actual work is done by the muscles of the chest and arms now marvelously developed in most of them.

Laughed at First.

"When we first tried to teach these men to walk, other doctors and patients laughed at us, so we went at night to the basement where the amputees practiced during the day."

"There, in the privacy, we taught these men, first, to regain their sense of balance, and then to raise and swing forward one side of their bodies, raise and swing forward the other, until they were 'walking.'"

"We salvage what is left of their bodies, and overtrain it to perform the functions of the 'dead' portions."

Unfamiliar with paraplegics when he was assigned here, Captain Kuhn employed no new medical techniques, but resorted to a combination of "personality and psychology." The men, taught to be independent, are given a minimum of physical assistance.

Army to Make Tests to Learn About Space Ships

WASHINGTON.—Tests to determine whether "space ships" can be made a reality will be conducted by the army this summer.

An army ordnance officer said 15 Nazi V-2 rockets will be fired straight into the air as part of the tests.

They will be equipped with various scientific recording instruments which, it is expected, will be freed and parachuted to earth before the projectiles explode.

The officer said that "many other factors will be tested with the launching of the Nazis' terror weapon at White Sands, N. M., far from human habitation."

The rockets were assembled, he said, from parts found or captured in Europe.

He said the rockets are expected to reach "a minimum height of 30 to 35 miles."

Army Planning National Guard of 425,000 Men

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Army plans for a postwar national guard with initial strength of 425,000 enlisted men were disclosed recently by members of the house military committee.

While the initial objective of the guard has been set at 425,000—exclusive of officers — committee members said the army hopes eventually to increase the personnel to a total of 750,000.

Typographical Errors That the eyes of the average person are not trained to observe typographical errors is revealed in experiments upon a group of students. Typewritten sheets with omitted letters, wrong letters and blurred letters made by typing an "X" over them, were given to the students to read. The average reader detected only 40 per cent of the omissions of letters, 22 per cent of the incorrect letters and 14 per cent of the blurred letters. The errors were best detected when at the beginning of words.

U. S. Monopoly

Helium, useful the world around, has been a United States government monopoly. Despite constant search, other countries have found no sources that begin to compare with natural gases of the American midwest containing 1 to 7 per cent helium.

Try heating the stuffing in a pan before it is put into a chicken, duck or turkey. You'll find it cuts the roasting time.

Mineral-Rich British Malaya is ribbed with cave-pitted limestone hills, and mountains of granite and quartzite ranging up to 7,000 feet. The greatest mineral wealth is usually found in connection with granitic formations, mainly in ores of tin, tungsten (wolfram and scheelite) lead, and iron. Gold is found in quartz veins, and in association with tin ore. The country has long ranked as the world's leading tin producer. Coal is mined from thin seams.

Bread Waste

One way to prevent bread waste is not to overbuy. Because bread becomes too stale for many people's taste in a few days, it should be purchased in small quantity. At home keep bread cool and well covered to prevent mold and drying out. If there isn't room in the refrigerator to store your well-wrapped loaf, keep it in a ventilated bread box in a cool place.

WINDSTORMS vs. PRESENT HIGH COSTS

Have YOU looked over your Windstorm Insurance Policies recently? It will take more money today to replace property destroyed by windstorms than it did a few years ago! That's because of the present high costs of materials and labor. It will be smart on your part if you take care of this before the next windstorm!

Oak Bluff Breezes

The white pines, graceful green goddesses of the tree family, are now in blossom. The tiny rust colored blooming filled with deep yellow pollen cover the tips of the branches and nestle among the dark green needles. When the Indian roamed the Northeast there were great forests of Pinus Stro-bus. The white man found many uses for the white pines when he began to make a nation in the wilderness. They were sacrificed for log cabins and for barns, for homes and for mills, for stores and for furniture. The queens among them were marked for the masts of great sailing ships. A few stands of these fine trees still remain but they are decreasing. The white pines wear a beautiful dress of dark green needles arranged in groups of five. The branches sweep out horizontally and the needles have small but distinct whitish lines on the lower surfaces. The dark brown cones are things of beauty from the time of formation until the scales open and the small seeds sail away on the currents of air. The goddess of the trees hums a constant song among her branches. The pines stand calmly and speak gently in a world where men make discord and confusion.

Those arriving for the week end were greeted with welcome breezes and perfect beach weather.

Sebacous Glands Sebacous glands, whose job is to lubricate, occur in groups of tiny bag-like structures, with ducts which usually lead to one of the hairs which are on most parts of the body. There are probably over two million such glands in the average skin. Yet there are places where they are completely absent, such as the palms and soles. And many of us know, to our regret, that they are particularly abundant on our scalp, nose and along the median lines of the trunk. Yet we would be in bad shape without these tiny, constantly working glands for the sebum they deliver is essential to keep the skin's protective layer flexible and watertight.

Shell Action Is Seen by X-Ray

Radio Specialists Shown How Shrapnel Breaks Bone Without Contact.

NEW YORK. — Pictures of a pressure wave breaking a bone, of a supposedly armor-piercing shell defeating its own purpose and of anti-personnel bombs in the act of exploding, were shown to members of the Institute of Radio Engineers at its meeting here, says the Herald-Tribune.

The pictures were taken with an x-ray machine that can operate in one-millionth of a second—20,000 times faster than a blink of the average eye. The machine was developed before and during the war by Dr. Charles M. Slack, assistant director of the lamp division research laboratories of the Westinghouse Electric corporation, and Donald C. Dickson, a Westinghouse research engineer. It was used extensively during the war by army and navy ordnance experts and by scientists working on the atomic bomb.

Pressure Wave Breaks Bone.

One of the uses to which the machine was put helped to solve the wartime mystery of how a small piece of shrapnel can break a human bone without touching it. The leg of a small animal was placed before the machine, a tiny piece of shrapnel was shot into the leg, and the picture was taken at the proper moment. Although the shrapnel stopped in the flesh some distance short of the bone, the picture showed a pressure wave sent ahead of the fragment with shock enough to break the bone.

The machine was especially useful to ballistic experts, who were able to study the behavior of bullets and shells moving through the muzzles of guns, in flight, or striking targets. The story of the frustrated armor-piercing shell was shown in slides recently by Mr. Dickson. Pictures taken by the swift x-ray showed the armor-piercing cap breaking from the shell under the impact of firing, followed the two broken pieces in flight, and caught the main body of the shell in the act of catching up with and shattering the cap.

Tells of Peacetime Uses.

Mr. Dickson, who read a paper prepared by Dr. Slack and himself, said that the peacetime uses of the x-ray device include the study of machinery used in refrigeration and electric appliances, and in arc welding. X-ray penetrates smoke and flame, and pictures may be taken of the rapid transfer of metals during welding, he said. The heart of the super-speed machine, he explained, is a tube designed especially to jerk electrons out of a cold metal cathode at a rapid rate when a high monetary voltage is applied. A vacuum metallic arc is created, supplying the electrons which crash into the anode at 100,000 miles per second, pouring an x-ray barrage through metal to make the exposure.

Other technical papers read during the final session included one on the development of a system for radio transmission of instrument readings in radio-controlled aircraft. The system, known as radio telemetering, was explained by David W. Moore Jr. of the Fairchild Camera and Instrument corporation. It consists of magnetic devices which may be fitted over dials on the instrument board of the remotely controlled plane or missile to transmit continuous readings over conventional radio equipment to the receiver, which may be mounted in another plane or on the ground.

Hessian Fly Always Troublesome Factor

Proper Sowing Dates Protects Winter Wheat

By W. J. Dryden

Until recently little damage has resulted to spring wheat from the hessian fly. With winter wheat it has been another question.

In the past two years several states have reported outbreaks

Hessian fly maggots beneath leaf sheath in the soil.

among spring wheat. After a succession of cool seasons with good rainfall several outbreaks were reported. At the North Dakota experiment station it was found that the Mida variety of wheat showed a high degree of resistance to the hessian fly. The Mida was not immune to the hessian fly, but its resistance was strong enough to make loss negligible.

Kansas State college found that the Pawnee is highly resistant to the hessian fly in that district. Other strains have been developed in other states.

With winter wheat, the USDA has determined the fly injury may be avoided by safe sowing dates. These dates range from September 16 in the latitude of central Michigan to October 27 in that of central Georgia. The exact safe date in any locality may be determined from state agricultural specialists.

Portable Saw Aids Pasture Expansion

Converting waste brush and timberland into profitable green pastures is an important job being performed by new portable power saws developed in the southwest as an aid to farmers whose land is covered by undesirable undergrowth.

In field operation the cutting blade is horizontal. For cutting logs to length, the blade can be raised to a vertical position. The Kraft Foods company are assisting farmers by making the portable saw available on a loan basis. By this plan they hope to assist dairy farmers to produce more milk on available acreage.

Wolf of Gubbio

In the early part of the 13th century, so it is told, a ferocious wolf struck terror in the hearts of all inhabitants of Gubbio, in Italy. To satisfy his great hunger he would devour some of the people on his periodic visits to the city. St. Francis of Assisi, however, was able to extract from the wolf a promise that he would not injure the people of Gubbio any longer and they, in turn, would provide sufficient nourishment for him, other than themselves, of course. Luc-Olivier Mer-sen portrayed this legend in a painting entitled "Le Loup d'Agubbio" which is in the museum in Lille, France.

PRACTICAL FARM BUILDINGS

Farm Machine Shop
By W. J. Dryden, WNU Farm Editor.

Farm machinery can be made to last many additional years if it is systematically overhauled, repaired and repainted. In order that this work be accomplished it is essential that a proper machine shop be provided.

The size of the shop will be determined by the needs of the individual farmer. The Minnesota type shown on this page will prove satisfactory on most farms.

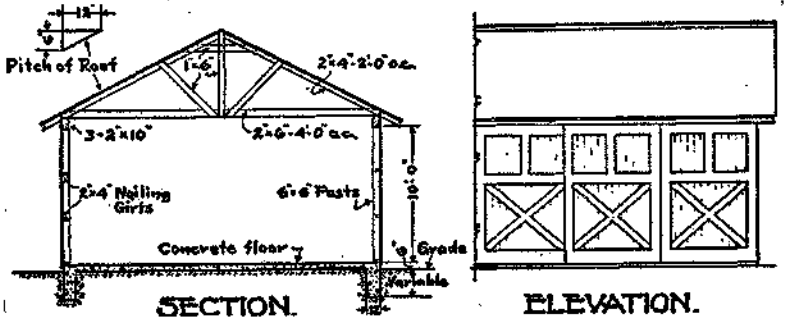

It is well that the farm shop be located with respect to other farm buildings. The type of building will also influence the location. A combination shop and garage should be located a short distance from the back door of the house. If the farm shop is a part of a building used for sheltering farm machinery, it should be located between the horse barn and the road leading to the fields, to save time in handling the farm machinery.

Machine shop should be large enough to permit farm machinery storage during repairs.

The shop may be made of lumber or plywood, or sheet metal, or it may be of brick, tile or concrete block construction. The foundation should be of concrete, extending about 18 inches into the ground. It should be 6 inches thick at the top and 10 to 12 inches thick at the base.

Concrete makes an ideal floor for the shop. It should slope about 1 inch in 10 feet toward the doorway. Driveway or rampway should be above the ground level and may be of concrete or gravel and soil.

Vertical boards with battens will make an inexpensive covering and will last for years. Either vertical or horizontal drop siding may be used. If the shop is to be heated, the walls should be boarded on the inside or covered with plywood. It might be advisable to provide insulated walls.

The type of building will largely determine the shape of the roof. If the building is a combination machine shed and shop, a gable or broken gable roof will be the most appropriate. The roof may be covered with wooden shingles, galvanized iron roofing, composition shingles or roll roofing. The best grade of wooden shingles, if laid 4 or 4 1/2 inches to the weather, will give splendid service. The galvanized iron roofing, if properly coated with struction jobs in wood, metal, leather, rope and concrete. Auto and tractor repairing, glazing, soldering, simple plumbing and electrical jobs can also be performed more readily because of a well-equipped shop.

Production of Hens Can Be Controlled

All Factors Must Be Operated Efficiently

The hen has long shared honors with the cow as being the world's most efficient machine. This model of the mechanics of the hen will give some idea of the egg factory.

When eggs are laid on consecutive days, the yolk of one egg is discharged from the ovary about 30 minutes after the laying of the previous eggs.

Hens must be bred with the internal capacity to produce eggs if they are to be profitable. But the best bred hen in the world will not be profitable unless well housed, well fed and well treated. No other farm animal will respond as rapidly to proper—or improper—management. In order that eggs complete the cycle every 24 hours, all working parts of the hen must be properly functioning. This takes a well-balanced ration along with ideal conditions.

Protect Farm Trees

There are several methods that have proven satisfactory in protecting young trees against rabbits and other animals. Tar paper may be wrapped around the tree, or chicken wire may be stretched to circle the tree.

An effective guard may be made from discarded garden hose, which may then be wrapped around the young trees. This guard may be used year after year, requires no fastening as the hose will always retain its cylindrical shape.

The use of paper is not generally recommended as it will not last long and some animals will find little difficulty in chewing through the tar paper.

Improved Safer Hitch For Power Machines

If a farmer purchases a new tractor or standardizes the power take-off of his old tractor with conversion packages, furnished by all manufacturers of farm implements, greater convenience, economy and safety will result. These A.S.A.E. hook-ups are available at all dealers for any make of tractor.

Rabbits Prove Big Forage Consumers

Young jack rabbits consume some dry feed as early as five days after birth, according to Arizona station studies. Following weaning, at three weeks of age a rabbit consumes an average daily ration equal to 2 to 4 per cent of its body weight. From 5 to 14 weeks of age, the food consumption averages 6 per cent of the light weight of the animal.

They reach their maximum food consumption between 14 and 28 weeks of age. On this basis, it would not take many rabbits to clean up an acre of growing crops.

Harvesting Asparagus By Improved Method

In the past asparagus spears were cut by using specially designed knives. The spear was cut from 1/2 to 1 1/2 inches below the surface. Specialists at Michigan State college say that this is all wrong. By holding the new growth of asparagus just below the tips between the thumb and finger it can be broken off down to the tough part. Grower will get a premium for asparagus so harvested.

Dust One

By ANEL C. JOHNS
McClure Newspaper Syndicate.
WNU Features.

THE strawberries were shipped in early. They were flat, heart-shaped. Pinkish red. The centers came out with the stem if Patti wasn't careful.

Patti shouldn't have bought them. But she couldn't resist. She had always brought home the first on the market since that time just after her marriage when Philip came home, smelling of gasoline. There was always hard grease on his hands and sometimes on his pug-nosed face. He stopped at the table, as always, for a preview of what was cooking and said, "Shortcake! Spring must be here. Spring, when a young man's fancy seriously turns to thoughts of love if he's married to a gorgeous dame like one Patricia."

But that had been four years ago. And strawberries always reminded her of the days Philip went away in the mornings and came back to her in the evenings. Never too tired to dance.

Patti loved the way they moved in unison. Philip holding her a little tight, saying, "You're like the music, Baby. You make me know that, if I never have anything more, I've got everything right now. For you I clean carburetors, patch flats. Pump gas. Pour oil. There's a ritz dame comes into the station about twice a week. She's a looker! But, Baby, you outlook her even in curls and cold cream."

Did Philip still feel like that? That she outlooked the lookers who danced with him at the USO clubs on his week-end leaves? The lookers who worked in canteens, doing their bit for the boys? The lookers who flirted?

He was sent with his crew to England and no doubt met new people with strange ways.

Patti was glad she had been a camp wife. That she had followed her Philip around, put up in a jail for two weeks in Georgia because there were no rooms available. Even slept in the back seat of the car at a filling station when she arrived in a town too late to find quarters.

She was glad that she had been with him the night he was shipped. The sergeant had let her stay. She and four other wives who had little to say that they couldn't tell with the pressure of their cold fingers.

Philip had looked into her face, upturned in the moonlight, until the tears stood at her lashes and her throat hurt.

"You're beautiful, Baby. Even now. I hate going before he gets here but I can't be the chooser in this game. Be sure to send me a cable. I'll be tough over there, waiting. I know I'll be tougher here."

It was horrible back in their house alone. She tried having the wife of one of Philip's pals live with her. But the girl was morbid. She doted on horrors, especially those of the war.

Philip had said, "Don't sit around fretting about me. Worry is bad. I'll take care of myself. If I see a blockbuster coming at me I'll run like the deuce. I want to come home and find you just the same."

Well, she wasn't the same. She'd been in the maternity ward without him to stand by. She'd come through the measles and a hand that little Philip burned when he pulled the percolator off the stove. The neighbors helped her when she had a bad appendix that the doctor finally removed.

Philip said, "Don't ever forget me, Baby. I won't forget you. The going will never be so rough that that can happen. I'll think of you every day. All day. And dream of you at night. Everything I do will be for you and the little one."

But all of that had been so long ago. She couldn't bring Philip back as she used to. At first she could make him sit in his favorite chair. Could hear his voice above the radio talking without words. Just the rumble of his deep voice. But she couldn't hear his voice any more. She had forgotten how he looked sitting behind the evening paper.

Suddenly her hands trembled. She crushed a luscious berry between her fingers. She was frightened. If she couldn't recall here, where Philip had been, how could he remember her, where she had never been?

How could he keep in mind their simple pleasures when everyone worked to entertain him and thousands like him? Time blots out everything.

She had tried to keep her hold on Philip. She had sent him pictures of the baby every month. Anniversary pictures, she called them. And snapshots of herself too. Being careful to look her best; careful to smile with the wrinkles in her nose about which Philip had teased her.

Little Philip came in from outdoors. His pug nose was red with the cold of early spring. His hands were smeared with a red sucker and there was a ring around his rosy mouth where he had licked the stickiness. His cap was gone and his reddish hair was every which way.

"Tan I have one, Muzzer? Dust one?" the little boy pleaded, standing on tiptoe to get better. Patti looked down. She had seen that face before. But it was older. She gave him the biggest berry she could find. "And one for Daddy," she whispered.

JUST MAKING SURE

The man knocked on the door of the rooming house.

"Good morning, madam," he said to the woman who answered his summons. "I'm selling that wonderful new stuff, DDT, for killing insects." "Don't need it!" snapped the woman. "We've no bugs here!" "Fine!" rejoined the visitor. "Then I'll take that room you're advertising."

Pure Amateur

This type of foot scraper utilizing an old wheel with a somewhat broad rim. The wheel is slipped over one end of a round stake which has in turn been driven into the ground. ## Vitamin Deficiency May Cause Pink Eye

Lack of vitamin A, brought about by long periods of drought or lack of green feeds often causes keratitis, or pink eye, to occur in range and pasture cattle. The condition may also be caused by injury to the eye which becomes infected with the normal staphylococci and diplococci. Treatments suggested include milk eye antiseptic and astringents. The cattle should be kept away from dust during treatment.

Bathtime Pedicure
Best time for a pedicure is just after a bath. Cut nails before soaking, then use a brush on them for a thorough soap and water scrub. Push the cuticle back gently but firmly with the towel as you dry them.

Fresh Bread

Hold onto bread freshness. A well-ventilated, washable box provides good storage. If you can make room in the refrigerator, cool storage is still better for delaying staleness and preventing mold. Wherever it is stored, wrap bread well in moisture-proof paper.

Fresh Ice Cubes
To be sure that ice cubes are fresh and tasteless, wash the tray with soap and water each time the refrigerator is defrosted. Scald before refilling.

Disguise Symptoms

Dosing members of the family for every complaint of illness is a dangerous practice; drugs disguise symptoms and thus delay diagnosis and treatment.

Rural Population Down

Elementary rural school population decreased 72 per cent from 1880 to 1943.

Vacuum Cleaner
To increase the life of your vacuum cleaner, empty the bag after each use. A regular cleaning not only enables a vacuum to "breathe" better but is your guarantee that moths aren't living off your bag. An old bag usually can be renovated and give you several added months of service. When it can't, replace it with a new one.

Soap Brush

Place a small hand brush, bristle side up, in the soap dish. Keep the soap on top of the brush and when you need to use the brush it will already be full of soap.

NO COMPETITION ?... THERE'S PLENTY OF IT

More than any other private business, the utility is in direct and continuous competition with the theories and, in some sections of the United States, with the works of those who would turn private business into government business.

The Detroit Edison Company competes for your business in your home, because there is nothing which compels the use of electricity exclusively in the operation of many household appliances.

Industries are free to build plants for the manufacture of their own electric power, and a few have done so.

Because of the existence of real competition, The Detroit Edison Company is required to produce so efficiently that the industrialist cannot afford to generate his own power.

Detroit Edison is required to serve the home so well that its occupants will PREFER electricity.

Beyond all this is the ever-present fact that our customers—you, the householder, the farmer, the merchant and the manufacturer—expect nothing less than the BEST from The Detroit Edison Company. We are in constant competition with that standard of price, dependability and service which you fix for us—with your idea of what Detroit Edison should be.

Upon our ability to meet that competition depends our right to survive and prosper.

Direct competition by another electric company is eliminated by law as a matter of public policy. That policy permits exercise of the economies of mass purchases and mass production without wasteful duplications. The safeguards of public regulation are combined with the enterprise and efficiency of private management.

The objective and the result—extraordinary service at reasonable cost.
