Invitations Sent to 2,700 World War II Tuscola Co. Veterans

Letters are to be mailed early next week to approximately 2,700 World War II veterans in Tuscola county, extending to them a personal invitation from the Citizens' Committee, to attend the celebration in their honor on the first anniversary of V-J Day, Wednesday, August 14. The celebration is to be held at Caro, with all sections of the county uniting to make the party a success.

Enclosed in the letter will be handbills giving some of the details of the day's program. The point is stressed that although this "party" is primarily for veterans, everybody is invited. All entertainment will be free, and free sandwiches will be served with barbecued beef to veterans and their ladies. It is suggested by the Citizens' Committee that those attending bring their lunches for a basket picnic. As most of the program will be presented at the fair grounds, there will be ample space for those attending to have their picnic lunches there.

Through the Howard Bruce Amusement Booking Service, the committee has secured a number of performers who will present their acts in front of the grandstand afternoon and evening. The music to accompany this program will be the Kip Fraser orchestra and these musicians will also play for the pavement dances in the evening. Fred Gussell's orchestra has also been secured for the pavement dances.

Primary School Fund of $10 per Census Child Predicted

The September primary school fund payment probably will be $10 per census child, according to Eugene B. Elliott, superintendent of public instruction.

Elliott's forecast was based on the certification of John D. Morrison, auditor general, that the fund as of July 30 stood at $14,726,373 compared with $12,741,134 for the same date last year. Last year the first payment was $9 a census child.

The state's general fund beginning January 1 next, will contribute the difference between the primary fund and $50,000,000 which is the legislative appropriation for the 1946-47 school year.

Interlochen, Michigan—The idea that was impossible—a national music camp for talented boys and girls—has become one of Michigan's outstanding tourist attractions here at Interlochen, near Traverse City.

It is the only place of its kind in the United States—and, indeed, in the world.

Talk about the United Nations! Here is a representative UN right in Michigan with an enrollment this summer of young people not only from 42 of our 48 states, plus the District of Columbia and the Canal Zone, but from the following foreign lands: Bolivia, Canada, Chile, Columbia, England and Peru. Here is a global Golden Rule.

Teeming with energy of youth from early dawn until lights-out at night, this camp is as fascinating to behold as is a bee-hive in a clover field.

Concerts are held in a lakeside bowl each Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday evening at 8 o'clock. The admission charge is 60 cents. The final concert of the season will be presented Sunday, August 25, by an ensemble of approximately 1,000 performers.

Each Sunday at 11:15 a. m. a religious service is held. Then there are daily rehearsals at 8 a. m., 12:40, 1:30 and 4:30 p. m. to which visitors are welcome to attend. On Tuesday and Wednesday evenings at 8 o'clock are interesting demonstrations in music sight reading—also free.

Started in 1927 with a modest short-term loan of $15,000, the National Music Camp has grown to a half million dollar investment of land, buildings and equipment. Enrollment has climbed steadily from 115 in 1927 to more than 1,800 in 1946.

An indebtedness of $30,000 in debentures, due in 1934, was prolonged ten years at reduced interest. Then in 1944 when the debentures were to be paid off, the

Vacation for Vets Can Be Costly

Vacations for veterans can be costly!

This is the opinion of Gerald O. DeBoer, manager of the U. S. Employment Service Office at Vassar.

"Veterans who are 'resting' now, before they go into industrial or other employment are deliberately ruining their future prospects of employment, via the 'seniority' route," he said. "Every considerable plant which is organized by unions today, has a clause in its contract which protects the seniority of its employees. While today's veterans are resting, other workers, some of them non-veterans, are procuring employment and seniority which protects them against future layoffs. When the vacationing veteran is hired, he is likely to find himself at the bottom of the seniority list, and hence the first to be laid off in time of employment recession. Incidentally, his unemployment benefits, built up through working, will be smaller."

Farm Sheep Barn

By W. J. Dryden, WNU Farm Editor.

The principal requirements of sheep barns or sheds are good ventilation and dryness, freedom from drafts and good lighting. A shed with an open front to the south makes a very satisfactory sheep shed for mild climates. By placing windows in the front it will prove suitable for any type of climate or any condition.

In planning the building, convenience in feeding and herding must

A commercial farm flock may consist of as few as 30 ewes. The production of "hot-house" lambs is highly specialized and requires a definite kind of ewe flock, good barns, careful management and heavy feeding. A "hot-house" lamb is born between September 1 and January 1. These lambs are slaughtered when they weigh from 40 to 50 pounds live weight and range from 6 to 10 weeks of age. Only be considered, both in regard to plans and to location. Sixteen square feet of floor space is required for each breeding ewe, while half that amount will be sufficient for a feeder lamb.

Suitable equipment, conveniently arranged, saves time, labor and feed in the production of sheep and lambs. Most of the equipment can be built at small expense. All equipment should be so designed that any injury to the sheep or their wool will be prevented.

The sheep shed or barn should be so located that there will be sufficient suitable land for additions to be made to the shed. One continuous barn might prove a labor saver. It might be advisable, where large production is undertaken, to place a feed building in the center or at either end of the sheep barn.

If the sheep shed or barn is located near a larger building or wind-break, additional warmth and shelter will be provided. The earth under the floor, or the earth floor, is used, and foundation should be about six inches higher than the surrounding ground to prevent surface water from draining into the building.

Those who have had considerable experience should engage in this type of production—and then only when excellent buildings are available.

Among the various types of equipment required for raising sheep is a water trough with a guard to keep the sheep out; suitable winged panels for lambing pens; lamb creep—these are pens placed in the shed, barn or elsewhere with a small door which keeps the ewes out. Plenty of grain is placed in these lamb creeps for the lambs. Grain troughs for the lambs should be provided. Light movable racks for feeding in the field are advisable.

In some sections, it may be advisable to construct the front with windows that may be entirely opened when desired. These may be built to open inward on hinges or may be on a slide from left to right.

This type of sheep barn may find many uses. It makes a suitable storage for hay, grain or farm equipment when not needed for sheep. When building any type of farm structure, when possible, it should be of such a nature that it can be reconverted.

Sailors' Earrings

Native sailors of many countries have used earrings, sometimes as a mark of rank, and the men of 17th century Europe wore earrings for personal adornment. Seafaring men continued the practice, especially pirates whose preference was for the gold hoop. Apparently the tradition has carried over to modern navies the Pacific wearing earrings. If worn in the left ear the earring supposedly indicates the wearer is a survivor of a lost ship and wears it as a tribute to less fortunate shipmates, while if worn in the right ear it is a token that the wearer participated in the invasion of a Japanese island.

Rapid Growth Needed For Better Results

Fast Feathering Chicks
Cut Down Feed Bills

By W. J. DRYDEN

Efficient, rapid growth is best measured by the weight of the bird at an early age. Studies of the USDA on the growth of cockerels have indicated that the greatest variability occurs between 3 and 6 weeks of age, if a good diet is fed and the cockerels have access to direct sunlight and the equivalent of free range. This is the best period in which to make accurate selection of the most efficient birds by their body weights. At this age, Dr. Charles W. Knox of the USDA says there are maximum differences in weight between the slowest growing, the average, and the fastest growing individuals. The lesson from these experiments would indicate that culling should start when the chicks are still in the brooder stage. As Professor Rice once said—a real poultryman has the eye to cull and the heart to discard. Culling as an art of optimism—the art to see and the will to discard.

Know Your Breed Aberdeen Angus

By W. J. DRYDEN

History of the Aberdeen-Angus breed in the United States dates back to the importation in 1850 of a cow named "Dutchess" from Portlithen, Scotland. There is no record of any present off-springs from this cow. In 1873, George Grant, Elgon of Sunbeam, excellent type of Aberdeen-Angus bull.

Victoria, Kans., imported at least three bulls and ran them with common stock. This was really the foundation of the present breed in America, although many importations have been made since that time. The Aberdeen-Angus are bred and raised almost exclusively for beef, although some strains are fairly good milkers. They hold an enviable record in the feed lot and as fat slaughter cattle.

Control Corn Earworm By Proper Treatment

In order to prevent corn-earworm Cornell has found that an inexpensive medicinal type of mineral oil, heavy grade, will prove satisfactory. The ears should be treated after the silk has started to turn brown at the tip, from three to five days after silk first appears.

Apply the oil with an ordinary medicine dropper. Fill half full, about 20 drops, for small ears, and three-fourths full for large ears. Insert the dropper into the silk just inside the tip of the husk as shown. The oil penetrates the silk "channel" and kills the young worms as they enter.

DDT May Not Always Be Dangerous to Bees

Latest findings indicate that DDT may not be as fatal to bees as was formerly believed. It is true that if the hives are sprayed with DDT the bees will die. Tests at Michigan showed that bees in orchards which had been sprayed did as well as bees in an orchard where DDT was not applied. It was found in California tests that DDT proved no more harmful to bees than other sprays.

THE LITTLEJOHNS

What has proven one of the most entertaining, unusual and colorful offerings of the kind ever presented at any stage is that of The Littlejohns, coming to the Caro Fair as a feature part of the big event to be held Aug. 19th to 24th.

The Littlejohns, who juggle various types of Indian clubs, shiny lacquered disks, keen edged knives and flaming torches while rolling about the stage on huge, jewel-studded globes, have done their act in many parts of the world. The globes are costly affairs and make a brilliant sight at night, especially when lights from the stage strike them.

It is said The Littlejohns, while touring the Old World, made a long stay in Calcutta, for the special purpose of accumulating jewels of extraordinary beauty and brilliance. Not only are the globes studded with valuable stones, but all the paraphernalia used in the act, and their costumes as well.

Oak Bluff Breezes

For the past few weeks, several at the north end of the bluff have watched with interest the activities of a pair of phoebes, a rather uncommon and perhaps little understood bird. The phoebe is a plain, every day bird that has never had much recognition. There is nothing glamorous about her. Her clothes are strictly utilitarian in shades of gray and dull black. She is an inconspicuous lady compared with our cardinal or indigo bunting, smaller than the familiar robin but considerably more energetic. She builds her big, comfortable nest of sticks and mud in late spring in the shelter of an overhanging roof or similar well protected spot. She lays four or five white eggs and rears as many as three families in one season. The young seem to subsist on various types of insects and the older birds are kept continually busy supplying their constant demands. The call or song, if it can be called such, of the phoebe is a jerky, emphatic "Phoe-be" with the accent on the second syllable and is concluded with a quick jerk of the tail, which seems to be a sort of nervous condition. It is quite noticeable as she endeavors to keep her balance on a precarious perch of a dead twig or frail limb.

The display of aurora borealis (northern lights) Friday evening attracted all the local residents to the wide open spaces for an unobstructed view. We have not seen such a vivid display of color for several years. Scientists do not agree as to the cause or effect of this phenomenon, but amateur prophets always predict some radical change in weather conditions. However, up to the present writing nothing unusual has occurred. Perfect summer weather still prevails but the severe drought is not appreciated by local gardeners and our shrubbery is badly in need of rain and moisture. No rain of any consequence has fallen since June 15.

Local residents have been startled several times this past week by explosions from uptown way. Workmen have been clearing space near the town hall for some new store buildings and it has been necessary to blast several trees in order to remove them. It seems unfortunate that these stately pines and elms must be destroyed but so called local improvement knows no sentiment.

Bathtime Pedicure

Best time for a pedicure is just after a bath. Cut nails before soaking, then use a brush on them for a thorough soap and water scrub. Push the cuticle back gently but firmly with the towel as you dry them.

Black Onyx for Settings

Onyx in its typical form is composed of parallel black and white bands, the black bands probably being colored by organic matter. Good onyx is comparatively rare, hence the practice of artificial coloring. Advantage is taken of the banding in the engraving of cameos, the raised sculpture being cut from the white layer leaving the black layer as a background.

The Henry Vatter family reunion was held Sunday, July 28, in the Wheatland town hall, west and north of Deckerville, and was attended by 70 relatives. This was the first get-together of the family in 15 years. Games were played, pictures taken and a potluck dinner was served, including ice cream, watermelon and pop.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Kerbyson and son Gerald, of Cass City; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Medcoff and sons, Don and Jay; Mrs. Kenneth Kenney and Carol, all of Deckerville; Mr. and Mrs. George Vatter and family of McGregory; Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Craig of Pontiac; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gallagher, and daughters, Joan and Alice Ann, of Cleveland, Ohio; Mr. and Mrs. Albert Vatter and two grandchildren, Ruth Anne and Dick, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Rouse and family, Mr. and Mrs. John Vatter and Mrs. Lee Bondy, all of Port Huron; Mr. and Mrs. Orland Phillips and two grandchildren, Maxine and Nancy Phillips, Joseph Phillips, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Phillips and family, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Deenen and family, all of Pontiac; Mary Grimes of Lapeer; Mr. and Mrs. Robert List and family of Detroit; Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Make Rooms Bigger
Dark rooms make walls appear smaller, but light walls seem to expand the optical size of rooms.

HARD LANDING

Ellen Terry always felt that the efficiency of property men contributed as much to the success of a play as did the dramatic talent of the actors involved.

One night the audience sat in absorbed silence. Miss Terry was about to commit suicide by jumping from the high rock into the river. However, the property men had forgotten to place a mattress in the stage "river." Thus she landed on the bare floor with a loud thud. The audience's titters turned to roars of laughter when someone in the gallery shouted:

"What do you know—the water's frozen."

IDENTIFICATION POINT

Feeling thirsty, the professor crawled out of his berth and made his way through the silent railway coach to the water cooler. In his abstraction he had failed to note the number of his berth and soon found himself hopelessly lost in the maze of curtained compartments. "Can't you remember the number of your berth?" asked the conductor. "I'm — er — afraid not," was the reply. "Well, haven't you any idea where it was?" "Why, uh—oh, yes, to be sure." The professor brightened with a sudden recollection. "I did notice one time this afternoon that the windows look out upon a little lake!"

Oh Fudge!

Shocked by the language used by two men repairing telephone wires on the post, the chaplain reported them to the executive officer, who ordered the men to make a report of the incident. Here is what Private Smith wrote: "Me and Private Jones were on the job and I was up the pole and accidentally let the hot lead fall on him and it went down his neck and Private Jones said: 'Really, Private Smith, you must be more careful.'"

Broad Hint

"Daughter has arranged a little piece for the piano." "That's fine," commented Dad. "It's about time we had a little peace."

MEETING AT LAST

Groping downstairs in his bare feet, the British householder surprised an intruder packing the family silver into a bag. "By Jove, a real burglar! I say, wait a minute, will you?" "And you'll call a 'bobby!'" snarled the burglar. "Oh no, only while I call my wife. She's heard you every night for 20 years, and I'm sure it will be a real pleasure for her to meet you at last."

Breaking the Peace

Mrs. Thompson and Mrs. Williamson had been quarreling for years. At last, through the good offices of the local clergyman, they had been brought together at the parsonage and induced to shake hands in a mutual pledge of peace. After an embarrassing silence, Mrs. Thompson exclaimed, "Well, Mrs. Williamson, I wish you all that you wish me." "Now who's saying nasty things?" snapped Mrs. Williamson.

A Long Wait

When the Chicago subway was being dug a drunk stopped beside the excavation and called down to the man at the bottom of the pit: "Shay, watch doin' down there?" "We're building a subway," one of the men responded. "How long is it goin' to take to build it?" "Three years," came the answer. "Three years! I'll take a taxi."

Small Change

At a meeting Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes once attended, there were many tall men present. Someone said to the doctor, "You must feel rather small among those big fellows." "I do," replied the doctor, who always thought rather well of himself. "I feel like a dime among a lot of pennies!"

LAST IN STOCK

When a young lawyer first opened his office in New York he took a basement room which had been previously occupied by a tailor. He was somewhat annoyed by the previous occupant's callers and irritated by the fact that he had few of his own. One day an Irishman entered.

"The tailor's gone, I see," he said. "I should think he has," tartly responded the attorney.

"And what do you sell?" asked the visitor, looking at the solitary table and the few law books.

"Blockheads," responded the lawyer.

"Begorra," said the Irishman, "ye must be doing a mighty fine business; ye ain't got but one left."

Just an Accident

"Doc," said the old mountaineer, leading a gangling youth into the presence of the village medico, "I want you should fix up my son-in-law. I shot him in the leg yesterday and lamed him up a mite." "Tut, tut," chuckled the doctor disapprovingly, "shame on you for shooting your own son-in-law!" "Wal, doc," rejoined the mountaineer, "he warn't my son-in-law when I shot him."

Planting Signs

Long before phenology became a science, farmers discovered the advancement of the native vegetation in the spring furnished reliable guides to the best time for sowing and planting crops. One old-fashioned rule, probably derived from the Indians, was that corn should be planted when the leaf of the white oak was "the size of a mouse's ear." Several traditional rules of this kind are current among farmers, and one of the tasks of the phenologists is to check them up on the basis of actual statistics.

Woman's World

Outmoded Dresses Converted Into Well-tailored Play Togs

By Ertta Haley

THE bling sunshine is very much a us, and lazy, perfect summer days are indeed welcome to those who like outdoor sports. No active woman wants to stay indoors all day, and most want to plan at least some outdoor activity for every day that is seasonable.

Long ago we learned that if we are to take full advantage of perfect sunshine and fresh air, we must be suitably dressed for it. Yes, even if it's just weeding the garden or going down to the beach, wear something that's cool but comfortable, and do try to get your quota of the beneficial rays from the sun if you want to build health reserves for winter.

Whether you bicycle or golf, loiter around at the beach or picnic grounds, one of your first essentials is a playsuit. Now, that might be anything from a sun-back dress to a pair of shorts with a halter top or a large shirt, but it's definitely a must in the summer wardrobe.

If you feel that you don't want to go to the expense of buying a playsuit of some type, then check over the dresses you no longer consider suitable for wear as such, and make them over. Most dresses will provide at least the top of a playsuit, and others will give you perhaps the two or three-piece set, the latter one with a skirt to match or contrast the top.

Select Becoming Pattern

In Play Togs

Because sports clothing such as a playsuit is used either for active work or for lounging, it should be both comfortable and attractive. Armholes, for example, must be large enough to allow the arms to move around freely. Shorts for playsuits should never be tight, but should fit smoothly through the hips and waist, and must be large enough around the legs to allow for easy running or bicycling.

If you are making shorts for the playsuit it would be a good idea to fit the pattern to yourself, pinning it together to see that you have enough freedom of movement and still enough seam allowance to sew it together properly. Or, an even better idea is to baste together an inexpensive muslin pair of shorts cut from your pattern and fit them on before making pattern adjustments.

Never attempt to put together a pair of shorts or blouse without knowing for certain that the pattern will fit. It may correspond perfectly to the measurements of waist and hips, for instance, but think how much valuable material and work would be wasted if the shorts were not long enough to fit over the abdomen to allow bending and other exercises that are bound to come in sports.

The best type of seam for shorts—both from the point of view of the most comfort and also tailored appearance, is the flat fell or French seam. This is not at all difficult to make, and the shorts will fit easily together, hold well and permit ease of wear.

If there is a wide discrepancy between waist and hip measurement (more than seven inches), a good idea in shorts would be one with the straps—the short overall effect that is popular. In this case you do not need to nip in the waist so much as the straps will hold the shorts up

Summer Fashion Notes

Sleeves for both coats and dresses are loose and graceful. And another graceful note, particularly in summer coats, is the softly gathered waistline that ties easily at the front.

Princess styles are lovely for summer sports wear. They give the impression of perfect grace rather effortlessly, and they are not tightly nipped in at the waist so they permit freedom of movement.

Toddler Fashion

For this young miss of one to three years of age, there's this striped Yolande dress of fine madras tailored with fagotting. The Hope Skillman fabric is well handled with bias edges for the bodice panel, collar and cuffs.

very well. Interesting buttons can of course give the waist, top or straps a good decorative effect.

Some shorts do use zippers—and this can be done to give a good fit over the hips and waist—but another nice effect is to use a placket with buttons.

Action Back Gives Freedom in Blouse

Most blouses for playsuits carry the action back for a very good reason. An active sport like tennis, golf or bicycling requires plenty of shoulder action and unless you want to put undue strain on the garment an action back is the only answer. The yoke in this type of garment enables you to have a smooth fit over the shoulders, thus giving you comfort, but the gathering in the back of the blouse will give you extra room when back muscles are called into play.

It is easy to fit the yoke to the back of the blouse if you put small running stitches at the edge of the back part of the blouse and pull them to gather until they fit the yoke itself.

Sleeves must be eased in very carefully to fit properly. Here again it is best to make a small running stitch around the sleeve so that it can be gathered evenly to fill the armhole. All the gathers, however, should fall on top of the armhole, and there should never be any gathering underneath the arm.

Another idea which is gaining popularity in playsuit tops is the poncho style which you may have seen in blouses for suits. This style, too, permits plenty of freedom of movement. The tie at the waist front also offers an opportunity for decorative effect.

Make-over Ideas

Sleeves are the first giveaway to the age of the garment. If sleeves are worn, remove them entirely and cut sleeves from a contrasting material with a smart, new pattern and insert them. If the garment has long sleeves, cut them at the elbow or wrist and make short or "capped" sleeves from them.

Leftover sleeve material can be used for neck facings, pockets or even as reinforcements under the arm.

Old dresses—particularly if the tops show undue wear, can have the sleeves cut out entirely. In this case, make a brand new contrasting colored jacket to wear with them and no one will know whether the dress is old or new.

Too-short dirndl skirts for young daughter can be made to fit by lengthening at the waist or the hem. They are ideal when there is a wide contrasting colored hem. In this case be sure that the piece of material widens sufficiently at the hem so that it will look as if it belonged to the garment. If this is made double, it can be let out the next year if the girl has outgrown the length. Another idea is to put ruffing or an embroidered eyelet at the bottom of the skirt to add an inch or two of length.

Role of Rocket In War Is Told

Starting With Nothing, by End of War We Were in Lead With Weapons.

WASHINGTON. — At the outbreak of war, our armed forces were like kids without fireworks on the Fourth of July as far as rockets were concerned. But the handicap was made up in deadly fashion, says the United Press.

The army and navy lifted secrecy on more of their wartime rocket weapons. In a report issued jointly with the office of scientific research and development, they said:

"When the Jap attack on Pearl Harbor catapulted the United States into war, our army and navy had not a single rocket in service use. Plans for rockets were limited."

The report also frankly admitted that as late as June, 1940—after the fall of France—the armed forces showed only "mild interest" in suggestions of a civilian scientist that rockets could and should be developed.

Ideas Proved Sound.

The scientist was Dr. C. N. Hickman of Bell Telephone laboratories. He was one of the leading rocket scientists of the recent war, and every one of his ideas proved sound in combat.

We didn't start a rocket program until July, 1940, and we were well into the war before a single rocket missile was hurled at the enemy. We had to depend heavily at first on the experience of the British.

Nevertheless, the report declared, by the end of the war we had:

Fired millions of rockets ranging in weight from 3 pounds to almost 1,300, in velocity from 85 to 1,500 feet per second, and having ranges up to 10,000 yards.

Used rockets as weapons for foot soldiers, airplanes, jeeps, tanks, trucks and virtually every type of naval craft.

Wide Variety of Uses.

Employed rockets to smear submerged submarines; to knock out tanks and planes; to spearhead the Normandy break-through in 1944 and assault landings all the way from Oran to Okinawa.

Virtually created a special new powder industry.

Utilized rockets for specialized purposes such as propelling mine clearing and anti-radar devices; launching the American experimental version of the buzz bomb; offsetting the recoil of guns; furnishing high pressure gas for flame throwers—and even driving holes for telephone poles.

By V-J Day, the combined military services were procuring rockets at a cost rate of 1,350 million dollars a year.

The nation's rocket program was carried on jointly by the "rocket division" of the national defense research committee—a branch of OSRD—and by military scientists.

The NDRC group was headed by Dr. F. L. Howdy. Research activities were centered at George Washington university in Washington, D. C. and at California Institute of Technology, Pasadena.

NEW YORK. — United Nations documents will be printed in the five official languages—English, French, Russian, Spanish and Chinese. Day-by-day translations are given in the two working languages—English and French.

The documents will thus be headed:

Spanish—Naciones Unidas.
Russian—You need Russian type, but it would go something like this: O—nehh-hie haunn.

Chinese—It will be done by hand with characters, running vertically on the paper instead of in the conventional horizontal fashion. Delegates said they hoped to have a newly-developed Chinese typewriter operating here before the end of the year.

Starching Shirts

To get uniform results in starching shirts, gather all the parts to be starched together and dip them into the starch at the same time. Be careful not to use too much starch, as it will crack the fiber threads and cause the shirt to wear out much faster.

Thawing Frozen Fruit

When thawing frozen fruit, leave it in the sealed container, for exposure to air tends to destroy the fresh flavor.

$122,000,000⁰⁰ FOR THE "GENERAL WELFARE"

Through the ten years ending with 1945, The Detroit Edison Company paid taxes totaling more than $122,000,000. Those taxes were collected from us, under the authority of the Constitution, to "provide for the common defence and promote the general welfare."

More than $55,000,000 of that amount was paid to LOCAL units of government. That means it went to the cities, counties, villages and townships right here at home, in the territory which The Detroit Edison Company serves.

The tiniest village has Edison taxes in its treasury. The little red schoolhouse got its share of the $55,000,000. Edison tax payments were a major contribution to the funds necessary to meet the ever-growing governmental obligations of the City of Detroit.

In 1945, Detroit Edison's local taxes passed $6,000,000, for a new high, higher than our Federal taxes for the first time since 1940.

There is no intent either to boast or to complain about this record of tax payments. The Detroit Edison Company prizes its position as a private citizen, and with that position goes the obligation to be a tax payer rather than a tax consumer.

Let it also be made crystal-clear that you, the buyers of Edison power and light, paid that $122,000,000.

It was a part of your electric bill, but it was not a charge for electricity. It WAS a part of your cost of government.

entire debt was retired—thanks to a little guy by the name of James Caesar Petrillo.

Today the Michigan camp is enjoying its best season with an all-time high enrollment. A new auditorium, seating 1,800 people, will be ready for the 1947 season. The Kresge Foundation, financed by "five and ten" profits, is the donor. The Michigan Federation of Women's Clubs has contributed a fine arts building.

But how about Petrillo? What appeared at first to be a great misfortune—the loss of coast-to-coast radio publicity following the edict of Petrillo, national czar of the musicians' union—proved to be a lucky break for Interlochen.

Newspaper headlines carried the story, far and wide, of how one tyrant had forbade radio broadcasters from carrying any program of music performed by students at the Michigan camp.

The public became indignant. United States Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg sponsored action in Congress. Graduates and friends of the camp rallied to its defense. Contributions rolled into the treasury—more than $40,000 in 1945.

Sensing the value of Interlochen to Michigan as a tourist attraction, the Michigan State Legislature appropriated $8,000 each year to advertise the camp by natural color motion pictures and other methods.

Luncheon clubs everywhere began asking for these films which tell the story of an impossible idea—a national music camp for boys and girls.

Interlochen's fame spread throughout the nation. A weekly magazine ran a feature, illustrated with color photographs.

And so it went—a rising tide of favorable public opinion which prodded Congress to outlaw the Petrillo edict and which inspired new and greater gifts of usefulness for the Michigan enterprise.

The man behind the idea is a story.

James E. Maddy is the despair of the professional public relations counsel.

THE LOVETT FAMILY

Among the many acts to be presented at Tuscola County's Celebration honoring World War II veterans at Caro, August 14, will be that of the Lovett family. This group presents an amazing and amusing musical novelty act called "Instrumentalism". Artists of the group are four attractive girls and one man. They were recently on the radio program, "We the People", and "Hobby Lobby". All entertainment at the big celebration, which will include a monster parade, will be free.

conceived the nifty notion of publicizing Maddy as a musical genius wearing a long flowing tie. Maddy snapped "Nonsense!" and continued to be the portrait of any boy's father—a chuckling, effervescent man who walks rapidly with a bounding gait, talks incessantly about his life dream, and devotes every waking moment of his day to the boys and girls at Interlochen.

With his charming wife, Maddy holds receptions for students. He greets each one personally. His smile is infectious. It personifies the happy spirit of Interlochen—YOUTH!

Among the famous musicians who have contributed their services as guest conductors are Walter Damrosch, Edwin Franko Goldman, Ossip Gabrilowitsch, Percy Grainger, Ferde Grofe, Howard Hanson, John Philip Sousa and Frederick Stock.

A Detroit automobile company recently donated a fleet of new trucks.

There is a junior division for boys and girls, 8 to 14—new for 1946—featuring a symphony orchestra, band and chorus.

The high school division, with separate dormitories, includes a symphony orchestra of 240 pieces, a 150 piece band, a 150 voice choir, and classes in drama, dance, arts, craft—all combined daily with wholesome outdoor recreation.

When you are driving in the Grand Traverse region on Route 31, between Beulah and Traverse City, be sure to stop at Interlochen, just a few miles from the main highway. It will be well worth your time.

Kim Sigler last week went fishing at Copper Harbor. His companion, George A. Averill, editor of a newspaper at Birmingham, had been giving Kim some fine advice about the art. George prides himself as being an expert. And then what happened? George didn't even get a nibble; Kim lands a 13-pound lake trout and Kim's daughter, Madeleine, gets the next largest—a ten-pounder. All of which provided the season's best joke for John W. Rice, genial publisher-editor of the Houghton Mining Gazette, who furnished us with the lowdown about it.

Scottish Land
The value of farm land in Scotland varies from two shillings (40 cents) to 10 pounds ($40) an acre. Electrical Drying Soft Corn Practical

Ohio Farmer Develops Own Economical System

The problem of drying soft corn is not the difficult chore it once was, according to farmers who have experimented successfully with fan-operated, forced air systems installed in their own cribs. Heat is not an essential factor in most installations, particularly when drying operations are conducted in the fall or early spring. The danger in cribbing immature corn is that it may spoil before cold weather arrives to restrain spoilage processes during the winter, or mold during the first few warm spring days.

Forced air drying is practical and economical without heat in temperatures as low as 50 degrees. Higher temperatures, however, speed up and cut costs of drying operations. Karl Mohr, Ohio farmer, for example, reported having spent $10 for electricity to crib-dry 60 tons of immature corn by forcing air through it for 100 continuous hours during a period when daytime temperature reached 80 degrees.

Mohr's drying arrangement is typical of workable, successful types which farmers can install themselves.

His 35 by 10-foot, tight-sided crib has a slatted floor, with 1 1/2 by 2-inch slats installed edge-wise and spaced five-eighths of an inch apart. A 42-inch fan, driven by a 5-horsepower motor, blows air into a closed tunnel extending under the entire crib. Air, forced under the crib, moves up naturally through the slatted floor and out vents in the top of the crib, taking excessive moisture with it. Small fans and motors will work just as well with less extensive drying operations.

Mohr's crib vents serve a double purpose. In addition to being exhausts for air, they also serve as openings into which corn is elevated for storage in the crib.

Farm Made Wheelbarrow

Six pieces of scrap pipe, a few lengths of scrap iron, a standard rubber tired wheel, and a few minutes use of an arc welder will produce this handy wheelbarrow for the farm.

Short pipe sections fused to the front end of the pipe frame and handle members made ideal bearings for the wheel axle.

Know Your Breed Polled Hereford

By W. J. DRYDEN

Since 1902 American cattlemen have developed within the Hereford, a naturally hornless strain—the Polled Hereford. Since the early work done by Benjamin Tomkins in 1742, with English oxen, the breed is now classed as one of the greatest of beef cattle.

There are now some 200,000 on the official records. When original hornless bulls are mated with registered horned Hereford cows, about half the resulting calves are hornless. First known exhibit of hornless cattle was at Omaha fair in 1898. Today they take a leading part in every fair or show entered.

Vaccinate for Control Of Sleeping Sickness

Horses should be vaccinated in areas where sleeping sickness has been a problem in recent years. It is believed that the virus of the disease is carried over from year to year by birds, and it has also been found that chickens can harbor the virus, according to the American Foundation for Animal Health. Mosquitoes and other blood-sucking insects pass the virus on to the horses and human beings.

Cuts Use of Corn In Processed Food

15 Per Cent Limit Ordered By Government.

WASHINGTON, D. C. — The agriculture department ordered a 15 per cent reduction in the use of corn in manufactured foods.

The order applies to such foods as grits, corn meal and breakfast cereals, but not to items like canned sweet corn or popcorn.

The decree also curbs the use of corn, wheat or other grains by manufacturers of livestock and poultry feed and the purchase of grain to feed hogs, cattle and poultry. Most grain fed to livestock is grown by the farmer who feeds it, however, and the use of such feed is not restricted.

The action is designed to make more grain available for export to hungry people abroad. The department's statement said it also should help relieve feed shortages in some areas of this country.

The order prohibits the purchase of grain or grain products to feed hogs to a weight beyond 225 pounds, except for breeding stock, or to feed cattle better than grade A. This is one grade from the top, grade AA.

In the case of chickens, turkeys, ducks and other poultry, growers are limited in their purchases of grain or grain products to such amount as will feed 80 per cent of the number of fowl they fed in 1945. The limitation applies by months from April through September and the 80 per cent is to be calculated on the corresponding months of 1945.

The order does not affect feeding activities by farmers with grain they grow themselves.

Manufacturers of mixed feed are limited in their use of grain, grain products, and by-products each month to 80 per cent of what they used in the corresponding month of 1945.

Food manufacturers and dry processors are restricted in their use of corn or grain sorghums to 85 per cent of 1945, by months.

Use of sorghums by wet processors is limited each month to 80 per cent of the average monthly consumption for the first six months of 1945.

The order also imposes inventory restrictions on feeders and manufacturers and provides for appeals in hardship cases.

New Electrical Lamp Is Created of Fluid Metal

CHICAGO. — Walter S. Huxford, professor of physics at Northwestern university, recently demonstrated a new electric lamp that produces light of 1,000 watt brilliance from a bit of molten metal .003 of an inch in diameter. It is known as the concentrated arc lamp, is glass enclosed, and resembles a small radio tube. Lamps of much greater wattage have been made, Professor Huxford said. He helped to develop the lamp in the Western Telegraph company's research laboratories on Long Island, N. Y. It was used secretly in war research for three years.

Liquor Clerk Makes Sale To Man Who Held Her Up

CHATTANOOGA, TENN.—A liquor store clerk relied on habit to help her regain a small part of the loss in a holdup, criminal court records showed.

After a man relieved the cash register of $389.89 at gunpoint he ordered a fifth of whiskey, it was related during a hearing.

"That'll be $3.62," said the woman clerk. The man obediently counted out the amount from the store's money and handed it back to her.

The Weather Man Is a Funny Guy, Even in Italy

ROME.—A spy mystery involving a tiny radio dropped by parachute was solved before Romans could work up a real case of excitement. The "spy" was the weather man. Newspapers were asked to announce that the weather man is using American stratosphere balloon recording equipment—and will any one finding tiny radios turn them in at the nearest police station, please?

Dream Rival

By RAE RESNICK McClure Newspaper Syndicate. WNU Features.

DISGUSTED with his own cooking, George angrily pushed his chair back with his foot. If only Anna weren't such a strange little foreigner, he thought impatiently, his meals wouldn't be so tasteless, and the burden of keeping house, in addition to many of the farm chores, would fall on her instead of him.

With the odor of the barn still clinging to his clothes, he walked the short distance to the next farm to see Anna and speak to her cousin. Without knocking, he went into the living room.

The woman looked up from her mending indifferently, as if his visits were too frequent for him to be considered a guest. "Hello, George. You'll find Anna in the kitchen."

"Have you spoken to her yet, Mrs. Laud?" he asked.

"Well," Mrs. Laud said slowly, "I tried to, only she didn't seem to know what I was getting at." She paused thoughtfully. "Seemed more that she pretended not to."

"I see," he said wearily.

"I did tell her what a fine, honest man you are. But her only ambition right now is to visit a fortune teller." She laughed indulgently.

"A fortune teller?"

"Yes. Can you imagine? She believes in them. You see, in Europe a gypsy once read her palm. And Anna said that everything came true. Of course, I imagine little Anna helped out a lot by twisting everything that happened to her into the shape of that fater's prediction."

They talked a while longer about Anna, who was only twelve when the Germans invaded her country, and how Mrs. Laud managed to get her to Canada. George had often heard the story before. Soon he went into the kitchen. He leaned against the wall, faded blue overalls sagging on his awkward thin frame; his long neck tipped forward, his blond, sun-dried hair hanging over dull blue eyes.

As Anna washed the dishes George could almost see the dreams in her large eyes—dreams of a modern knight riding in the wind with her, the long thick braids of her hair flying behind her.

Her eyes sparkled. "I want see fortune teller."

"What for?"

"I want find out who my husband be."

Suddenly he had an idea, and he was overwhelmed by his own cleverness. What had Mrs. Laud said a little while ago? "She believes in them..." little Anna helped out a lot... she sure does swear by them now... His red face brightened with enthusiasm. After all, he thought, they would probably be married some day, anyway. No harm in hurrying things up a bit. "There's an amusement park fifteen miles from here," he told her.

On the bus Anna sat quietly in anticipation. George saw her lower her wide eyes modestly when she noticed the men staring at her shy loveliness. Failing to escape their glances, she took a white handkerchief out of her pocket and wiped away the lipstick with which her cousin had touched her mouth.

"Maybe they don't look now," she whispered to George. Naive. Thank heaven she was, he thought. For his plans were all the likelier to succeed.

At the park she walked close to him, asking every few minutes where the fortune teller was located. They came to a row of booths under a huge awning and he bought a ticket. "Wait here a minute," he said. "I'll be back soon."

He told the fortune teller to describe him to Anna when she asked about her future husband. He handed her some money. "Don't forget. Tall man, blond hair, blue eyes." Then he went out. "You can go in now," he told Anna.

While waiting for her, he laughed. Anna wouldn't doubt the oracle for a minute, he thought, amused. When she came out, she looked as if she were in a trance. Her large shining eyes were focused straight ahead. He fell into step beside her. "Well, what did she say?"

"Oh, she say wonderful things. She say I marry tall man. He have blue eyes with blond hair. And he be very good to me. I know he be the handsomest man in the world. And I wait for him," she said softly. "I wait for him forever."

Sheep Specialist Visits Co. 4-H'ers

An interesting session on sheep parasite control and blocking brought 4-H Oxford sheep members to the fair grounds at Caro Saturday, July 26.

Dr. Frank Thorp, Jr., who is in charge of sheep disease research at Michigan State College, gave a complete autopsy on a thin, sickly lamb, while the boys and girls watched in amazement. Upon investigation Dr. Thorp found heavy parasite infestation. Sheep ticks were thick over the body of the lamb and Dr. Thorp pointed out that the sheep cannot raise ticks and be growing normally too.

On the inside Dr. Thorp followed the digestive tract from beginning to end. He found a mass of stomach worms, round worms and nodular worms in the small intestine. These worms present one of the worst hazards to sheep raising. Dr. Thorp recommended ways of controlling these worms by the use of phenothiazine. He found nose bats in the upper passages of the nose and showed the boys where lung worms were found, another menace to sheep raising.

In the afternoon, Harry Crandell, Jr., former shepherd of the Michigan State College sheep flock, gave a demonstration on blocking a sheep for showing. This is a skill that few sheepmen can do well. Following this each boy practiced blocking one of their own sheep which they had brought to the fair grounds.

According to William Newland, assistant county agent, these activities were very helpful to members of the 4-H Oxford Club of Tuscola County.
