

Governor Urges Orderly Economic Development

Lawmakers Hear Kim Sigler's Program in Message to Legislature

Governor Kim Sigler urged orderly economic development of the state and the elimination of questionable practices in government in his message to the legislature at Lansing Thursday.

The governor postponed for "three or four" weeks the presentation of recommendations on state finance, which he describes as "one of the most important problems before us," and one "upon which the solutions to so many other serious state problems depend."

He said he would appear before the legislature with his financial program after "further deliberation" and conferences with legislators.

Lists Proposals.

Governor Sigler outlined a program for legislative action which included the following recommendations:

1. Legislation outlawing the sale of political influence, and prohibiting members of the legislature from appearing as counsel for interested parties before state boards and commissions, and from taking a fee to prepare and introduce a bill in the legislature.

2. Strict regulation of lobbying.
3. Reimbursement of "proper personal expenditures" by legislators "incurred in maintaining themselves reasonably while performing their duties."

4. Stronger legislative and administrative control of state boards and commissions.

5. Elimination of the present State Planning Commission and substitution of an economic development agency, with broad powers, to plan for both immediate and long range development of the state to meet the competition of other states.

6. Consolidation of agencies dealing with labor into a coordinated department of labor and industry to eliminate duplication and confusion. Administration of the Workman's Compensation Law would be separate to remove danger of "pressure of one faction for the other" on judicial interpretations.

7. Enactment of a "more adequate" child labor law, to meet industrial, economic and social changes which have occurred since the present basic laws were passed in 1909.

8. State financing of research, inspection and certification of farm products to extend agricultural markets; revision of laws relating to agriculture; standardization of

Pictures of European Countries Shown by Rev. D. Mosure

Rev. Dudley Mosure of Decker, former Methodist pastor in Cass City, spoke and showed moving pictures of scenes in France, Germany, Belgium and Holland, at the Evangelical United Brethren Church here on New Year's night.

Rev. Mr. Mosure was a chaplain with the Army and saw overseas service both during the war and with the occupation forces. The pictures were taken by him during the past year and he kept up a rapid-fire description of them as they were placed on the screen by Mrs. Mosure.

Mr. Mosure said that it is doubtful if a future war in Europe among the many small nations there could be avoided. The hatred between the nations and the peoples is so great, so intense and of such a long-lasting nature that it seemed impossible for them to live peacefully together under present conditions. The Russian philosophy of communism will undoubtedly be adopted by some European countries, particularly Germany and France, he said.

Holiday Mail at Local Post Office Greatest in History

Considering the number of pieces of mail handled, the December quarter at the local post office was the heaviest in history. Postmaster Alice Bigelow ordered 40,000 one and a half cent stamps for the holiday business, but found it necessary to increase the order and approximately 10,000 more were sold bringing the total of that denomination to 50,000.

In dollars and cents, the volume for the last three months of 1946 was $4,280.45, while during a similar period in 1945 it reached $4,408.95. Last year there was a larger volume of overseas mail which brought in greater cash return.

Unemployed in Tuscola County Increased to 455

The Vassar office of the Michigan Unemployment Compensation paid unemployment compensation benefits to 455 unemployed people in Tuscola County for the week ending Dec. 28, according to W. H. Baughman, chief claims examiner.

This figure includes 277 unemployed veterans paid readjustment allowances and 178 industrial claimants paid from the Michigan Unemployment Compensation Trust Fund. Included among the industrial claimants were 45 women.

Mr. Baughman said there were 98 who filed initial claims for the week, an increase of 58 since the previous week.

Of this number 21 were veterans and five women.

Four Severely Bruised in Auto Collision

A collision of automobiles a mile west of Cass City on Christmas day sent Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Parker and Paul and Peter Hilleker, all of Colwood, to a local hospital for treatment. All four were severely bruised, but two children of the Parkers escaped injury. The Hilleker car's front end was badly damaged.

The lad, weighing seven and a half pounds, was born at 2 a. m. Wednesday and has been named Roy Carl.

Michigan Dairy Industry Makes New Records

Production Per Cow is Above Pre-War Averages and Milk Demand is Strong

Michigan's increasing importance as a dairy state is graphically depicted by the Milk Industry Foundation in a new survey.

Michigan's 1,027,000 cows produce $157,382,000 cash farm income for dairy farmers. The utilization of this milk shows the tremendous economic asset that dairying is to the state with a yearly production of 2,670,000,000 quarts.

Principle uses of this milk in addition to fresh milk were for making 55,457,000 pounds of creamery butter, 25,300,000 pounds of cheddar cheese and 21,093,000 gallons of ice cream. Pictorial charts or figures based on final totals for 1945, now complete, indicate the growing importance of the milk industry.

A chart of the milk distributor's dollar shows 61.14 cents going to dairy farmers for whole milk, including transportation to plants; 5.29 cents to plant and delivery supplies; 3.22 cents, bottles, cans, cases; 1.29, other expenses; 1.98, insurance and depreciation; 3.98, taxes and licenses; 7, advertising; .98, officers' salaries; leaving a net of 1.98 cents representing less than one-third of a cent per quart of milk.

Milk production per cow is above pre-war averages and demand for milk and dairy products is strong. As an economical food containing vital components of the diet, the ever-widening use of milk seems destined to bring about an increased scale of milk production on Michigan farms, the Foundation says.

16 College Students Guests at Rotary Luncheon Tuesday

Sixteen Cass City boys home from college for the holidays were luncheon guests of the Rotary Club Tuesday.

Harry Little, publicity man for the committee promoting a county health program, presented a moving picture prepared by the Michigan Department of Health which showed the methods employed to safeguard the health of the people of the state. In remarks following the picture presentation, Mr. Little said the cost of maintaining a county health program in Tuscola County would be between $28,000 and $35,000 a year, which would be met by federal, state and county governments. The staff would include seven nurses and a sanitarian. Petitions are now being circulated requesting the board of supervisors to place the proposition of a county health program on a ballot at the spring election.

Saginaw County Health Dept. Outlined by Board Chairman

C. L. Bougher, chairman of the Tuscola County Health committee, released a letter from George R. Brush, chairman of the Saginaw County Board of Supervisors, pertaining to Saginaw County's Health Department. In view of the interest in a health department in Tuscola County, the letter should be of general interest to the people of this county.

Jan. 30, 1946.

Dear Sir:

"In reply to your recent letter regarding the operation of Saginaw County Department of Health, I would like to say that we are proud indeed to have it be the second county in the state to organize a County Health Department."

"I would like to start by saying that several years ago one of our neighborhood counties considered establishing a Health Department. They visited our County and inquired from the chairman of our Public Health Committee how Saginaw County could afford to have a Health Department. The reply of the chairman was most interesting. He stated that Saginaw County could not afford to be without a Health Department. The people of Saginaw County are depending upon the County Health Department in every phase of the health problems because we appreciate the fact that so many health

The incubator equipment has a capacity of 4,200 eggs.

Flint Couple Married in Georgia

A wedding in which Cass City friends will be interested took place in Georgia Sunday, Dec. 22, when Miss Kathleen McCallum became the bride of Dr. Sydney N. Lyttle, Jr. Dr. Lyttle, son of Sydney N. Lyttle, Sr., of Flint, is stationed with the Army Medical Corps at the Fort Benning Hospital. The ceremony was performed in the chapel at the post.

The bride, daughter of Mrs. Andrew Woldan of Lapeer, and the late William A. McCallum, is a Hurley Hospital graduate and was supervisor of the surgical floor at that hospital.

Dr. Lyttle was graduated from the University of Michigan and interned at Hurley, as well as being a resident physician.

The bride wore an aqua street-length dress, sequin trimmed, an off-the-face brower felt hat and brown accessories. Orchids completed her ensemble.

The couple will come to Michigan in January for a short stay, returning to make their home in Columbus, Ga., while Dr. Lyttle is in the service.

Distribution Method of Highway Funds Among Counties

As the entire source of revenue for maintenance of county highways and streets within incorporated cities and villages comes from motor vehicle license fees and gasoline taxes, every person should understand the method by which this money is distributed to the several counties. A. Paul Kreaeger, engineer-manager of the Tuscola County Road Commission, says:

"One-eighth of the vehicle license fees and $2,550,000 of the gasoline tax is divided equally among the 83 counties. The other seven-eighths is divided among the counties in proportion to the amounts received from owners of registered vehicles within the respective counties," says Mr. Kreaeger.

"It is very important for every motor vehicle owner to purchase his license plates in his own county so that his own county shall receive the full amount to which they are entitled for their highway work."

Kim Sigler, one-time Nebraska cowboy, became the 56th governor of Michigan this week.

Dubbed the "maddest man in Michigan" by Karl Detzer in a national magazine, Sigler did not appear to be particularly mad about his meteoric rise to greater responsibility and new opportunity.

One year ago he was a grand jury prosecutor, widely proclaimed for his fearlessness and legal skill. He was ready to release new batches of indictments in slot machine and chain banking cases. And after the trials, he contemplated a return to an excellent and profitable legal practice in Battle Creek.

What happened in the spring of 1946 was significant to the Sigler administration. It now casts shadows of coming events.

Sigler became overnight the most talked about man in Michigan.

Yes, such was the case despite two major reverses. Frank McKay, still placed in the villain's role in the Siglerian drama, was acquitted by a court jury. McKay's acquittal led to an unexpected state senate investigation into Sigler's conduct of grand jury affairs. This inquiry, headed by a Mt. Clemens legislator, led in turn to Sigler being fired as grand jury prosecutor by Circuit Court Judge Louis E. Coash.

Loss of the McKay trial was bad enough. But being kicked out as grand jury prosecutor was a climatic insult. Instead of being a hero, Sigler was pictured as a bum. He didn't like it; in fact, he was madder than a wet hen.

This writer tries to watch the Lansing parade of personalities and events with some objective detachment. We always regard the governor as a public servant in a democracy which needs full enlightenment of facts if it is to

Deford Boy Hit by Car in Florida Is Critically Hurt

Eldon Field and Son, Allen, Were Fixing Tire at the Time of Accident

From Deford correspondent. Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Field and family left Deford recently for Sebring, Florida, where they will spend the winter and where Mr. Field will continue his work as an apirist. On Dec. 20, they had reached the city of Tampa about 100 miles from Sebring, on their journey, when they met with a serious accident. The latest communication received by Mr. Field's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Field, of Deford, says the injured have passed the danger point.

The Tampa Daily Times gives an account of the accident in the following paragraphs:

"A boy was critically hurt and three men injured less seriously in an early morning traffic mishap on Nebraska Ave. near the Elm St. intersection. Traffic Officers Mullin and Curnick reported.

"The boy, whose condition was described as 'critical' at Municipal Hospital this morning is Allen J. Field, Sebring, nine-year-old son of Eldon W. Field, 37-year-old Sebring beekeeper, who also was injured in the mishap but was reported 'improving.' Frank E. Weeks, 1910 Louisiana Ave., 21-year-old driver of the car which struck Field and his son, was treated for a knee injury and Charles Davis, 22, 110 W. Warren, a passenger in Weeks' automobile, received a slight chest injury.

"Officers Mullins and Curnick said the accident occurred when Weeks, traveling at a high speed south on Nebraska Ave., collided with the rear of Field's truck, which was parked, and then struck the man and his son who were fixing a flat tire on the left rear of the vehicle.

"The officers reported that Weeks, who is held pending the outcome of the condition of the Sebring man and his son, was exceeding the speed limit at the time of the mishap and traveled 291 feet after striking the truck and the pedestrians. The truck was knocked four feet forward by the impact, they said.

"The boy, who was knocked or dragged 21 feet by Weeks' vehicle, suffered a brain concussion and severe scalp lacerations. The older Field received a fractured nose, dislocated shoulder and deep lacerations on the lip and leg. The Sebring man was knocked 51 feet by the automobile. Hospital attendants said his condition today was 'pretty good.' The accident occurred at two o'clock."

Frosted Vegetables

Tender vegetables and fruits may be used as food after they have been slightly touched by frost, but few of these damaged products will store well for the winter season of eating. Tomatoes, peppers, squash, pumpkins and sweet potatoes are among the garden crops that need care in the frost season. Crops in small gardens can be protected from light frosts by a covering of burlap or other cloth.

function for the welfare of the people.

We clearly foresaw the logical reaction to the Sigler mind. This observation appeared in our column of March 21, 1946, prior to Sigler's candidacy: "Why should Sigler want to run for governor? It is human nature for an individual, who is frustrated by opponents, to seek vindication of his position in some manner."

The only avenue available to Sigler was to run for the governorship.

With no organization back of him, he accomplished a political impossibility. Why? Largely because of the public's admiration of a fighter. Kicked out as prosecutor, Sigler was 'smeared by a report of the senate legislative committee. The smear hit the press at the eve of the election.

While Sigler did not get a majority of the primary vote, he did lead other contestants by a hefty margin—enough to prove that a lot of Michigan men and women, independent in their political thinking, resented what appeared to be grossly unfair accusations.

These accusations were deemed unfair because the accuser himself was suddenly indicted for alleged graft and corruption in his own county — an overnight development that crystallized public sentiment like a rolling snowball.

Sigler, the political miracle man, owes his election to the acquittal of McKay, an arch enemy.

The above background of events is important, as we see it, in judging the new personality at Lansing. The Sigler administration promises to reflect the same grand jury temper: An independence in office that may approach a bold disregard for political traditions; a fearlessness in ferreting out graft and corruption and in establishing preventive fences to minimize their existence in the legislature.

Sigler's message to the legislature was no surprise to anyone who has followed the Lansing one-man grand jury. He demanded that steps be taken to check graft and corruption in public office. Lobbyists should be regulated; legislative committees should function openly; legislators should get higher pay.

The greatest handicap of the Sigler administration is the threat of a huge treasury deficit. When the voters adopted the sales tax diversion amendment and the veterans' bonus amendment, they placed the State of Michigan in a financial strait-jacket. Instead of diverting one-third of the 8-cent sales tax to local governments as many voters apparently thought, the tax amendment put the state in the unenviable position of being the ONLY state in the Nation where the legislature has less than 25 per cent of a major state tax available for legislative appropriations.

How the administration can lead the state out of the wilderness of a staggering deficit is perhaps the A-1 problem of Governor Sigler and the state legislature. Some NEW tax appears to be inevitable. What kind of a tax it will depend upon many factors which we will try to report and to interpret in succeeding Lansing news-letters.

The new governor has displayed great zeal in meeting the new challenge.

He is a fighter. Right or wrong, he is going to do what he thinks is right.

Two MSC Extension Service Shows Open Tour of Michigan

Two Michigan State College extension service expositions aimed to help rural people with their farm and home planning, start their showings this week end.

In the lower peninsula, the Michigan State College Rural Progress Caravan, opens its three-month tour on Friday, Jan. 3, in an Ingham County premier at Mason.

In the upper peninsula, the Farm and Home Show, designed to be of special interest to farmers in the northern Michigan area, will have its first showing in Delta County on Saturday, Jan. 4. It is under the supervision of J. G. Wells, Jr., assistant county agent in charge of the upper peninsula, and a committee of county agricultural agents and extension specialists.

The 1947 Caravan is made up of panel displays of the exposition type. Many extension specialists will accompany the show from town to town and confer with visitors during the showing.

Fertilizer Picture Is Both Bright and Dark, Millar Says

C. E. Millar, head of the soil science department at Michigan State College, sees both a bright and a dark side of the commercial fertilizer picture for the coming year.

On the bright side, the professor points to the fact that so many more farmers have learned that they can use fertilizer profitably. Most farmers are ready to agree that their soils need the plant food supply replenished after many years of cropping.

The dark side of the picture is the fact that farmers will not be able to buy fertilizer in the quantities and types they need and desire, Dr. Millar says.

Manufacturers have increased production 50 per cent in recent years. Farmers have increased the use of fertilizer by a far greater margin. The soil scientist gave credit to manufacturers for great accomplishments in expansion, but cited that it takes time to develop potash mines, and expand and rebuild sulphuric acid plants. Transportation problems and lead shortages have entered in the picture, as have strikes.

"Farmers should take delivery on their fertilizer whenever they can get it during the winter months. Store it in a dry place. Fertilizer should not be more than seven packs high as there is a tendency for fertilizer to harden," Dr. Millar suggests to the Michigan farmer.

Muck farmers and fruit growers may face a serious problem in getting fertilizers of the proper analysis.

Begin Study of Atom in Spring

Huge Army Site Now Being Prepared; Nine Colleges Will Participate.

NEW YORK. — The 3,700-acre site of Camp Upton, where thousands of men were received into the army to fight in two world wars, has been transferred to the war department's Manhattan district and now is being transformed into a vast experimental laboratory where scientists will study the effects of atomic energy for the peaceful pursuits of biology, medicine, power and metallurgy.

Actual research work at the project, newly named the Brookhaven National Laboratory after the township in which it is located, will get underway "to some extent" in the spring, it was reported by Dr. Philip M. Morse, director. It is expected that the laboratory will be operating "full blast" by next fall with a staff of possibly 1,000 technical and non-technical workers.

Scientists from several universities will conduct their experiments on a scale that cannot be duplicated with the facilities normally available in any individual school.

Financing Cared For. No equipment has been assembled as yet at Brookhaven, but plans call for the construction of a first chain reactor pile for the production of radioactive materials and the generation of neutrons, building a "small" cyclotron capable of generating from 20 million to 30 million volts, and possibly a large cyclotron with a 500 million volt capacity.

This and other construction work at the laboratory will be financed through an initial governmental appropriation of five million dollars under a contract that has not yet been signed.

One of the major problems faced by the scientific staff is housing. According to present plans, the staff will live in the reservation "for a year or two" until the housing shortage lessens.

The large non-technical staff will present no such problem, it was explained, because it will be recruited from neighboring towns.

Objectives Outlined.

Explaining general aims of the laboratory, which are "to conduct studies, experiments, investigations and tests in the field of atomic and related sciences and to train personnel in those fields," Dr. Morse declared that the implications of nuclear research might be more important in 10 years in the biological field than in physics.

Immediate objectives of the research in biology and medicine, he said, would be production and use of isotopes as tracers and to discover the effects of neutrons on organisms. In engineering "the big problem is atomic power." He indicated that another chain reactor pile might be built "in several years" to be devoted to the power problem. Dr. Morse declared that no experiments of a military nature would be conducted. "There will be no dangerous experiments," he added.

As soon as the necessary equipment is assembled at Brookhaven, the research work will be started on three levels. Permanent staff members of the laboratory will carry on fundamental research.

Income of U. S. for 1947

Put at $175,000,000,000

WASHINGTON.—Bureau of agricultural economics predicted that the national income will climb to a record peak of 175 billion dollars in 1947 but start tapering off toward the end of the year.

Such an income would be about six per cent above this year's estimated 165 billion dollars, the highest on record to date.

The bureau's 1947 estimates were in a report prepared for the agricultural department's outlook conference of farm officials. The bureau said a high level of domestic industrial activity and relatively full employment during most of 1947 will contribute substantially to higher consumer incomes.

It said industrial production, as measured by the Federal Reserve board index, may average as much as 10 per cent higher than this year and close to 85 per cent above the 1935-39 average. This prediction was hedged with the provision that production is not retarded by major labor-management disputes.

The bureau looks, however, for somewhat of a decline in industrial production during the latter part of the year, as a backlog of consumer demand for industrial products becomes more nearly satisfied. Such a downturn in production would be reflected in lower incomes of workers in affected industries.

All but Essential Work

On Ships Halted by Navy. WASHINGTON. — The navy has halted all alterations to its ships except "essential work," as part of the economy program arising from budget cuts.

An order to all navy yards from the bureau of ships directed that alterations — which were defined as changes in the characteristics of a vessel — must stop unless they affect immediate safety of the ship undergoing yard repairs.

Garden Contest Dinner for 4-H'ers

Twenty-five Garden 4-H Club members of Sanilac County were guests of Sears-Roebuck & Company's Port Huron store at a luncheon and program at 12:00 noon on Thursday, Jan. 2. The meeting was held jointly with the same number from St. Clair County, and was held in Yale. These 25 members were selected by club leaders last spring. They competed for honors in both the farm garden contest and canning contest sponsored by that company, in which they canned produce from their garden. County Agent C. E. Prentice and Home Demonstration Agent Isabel Raynard accompanied the members. Also guests were the leaders of the 4-H clubs from which these members came. The names of the members and community are:

Dairy Changes Noted
In Northern Counties

There's a trend toward fewer farmers keeping dairy herds in the upper part of the lower peninsula of Michigan.

But A. C. Baltzer, extension dairy specialist at Michigan State College, reports the farmers with dairy herds have increased the number of animals milked to nearly make up the difference.

Many dairy herd operators, particularly those in advanced years, have dropped the business of dairying because it demands such a large volume of labor, Baltzer reports. On the other hand, he says, younger farmers, seeking a better income, have increased the size of their business operations.

The MSC dairyman is a bit concerned, however, over the fact the Michigan butter output has been so reduced that the state continues to increase butter importation. The demand for fluid milk, is a partial reason for less cream being sold for buttermaking.

Baltzer says market milk areas are reaching farther away from areas adjacent to large cities to get production to satisfy the increased demand for milk.

Kills Japanese Beetles
Used either in traps, or as a spray or dust, DDT has proved to be one of the most effective killers of Japanese beetles. Traps in which the beetles drop through the baited top, to hit a surface or wick loaded with DDT have saved much trouble in emptying traps, yet kill all the beetles.

Conservation Districts
There are now considerably more than 1,600 organized soil conservation districts in the nation, with new districts being organized at the rate of almost one a day. These farmer-managed districts are assisted by trained technicians who help the farmers put conservation practices to use on their land.

Record Is Set
By Paper Mills

Product Now Rolling Out
At the Highest Rate in American History.

NEW YORK.—Exclusive of newsprint, paper and paper products now are rolling from American mills at the highest rate in history, and the gap between supply and demand in most categories may be closed by the end of the year. One of the major shortages, according to industry leaders, appeared to be in paper for the book and magazine trade.

Chief difficulty in this division was not to determine supply — estimated to be about 400,000 tons greater this year than last—but to guess the future demand, since the recent hike in OPA wood pulp ceiling prices of about 10 per cent could work two ways:

Production might be spurred by attracting more pulpwood from farm woodlots and adding profit incentive at the mill level.

Cost May Go Higher.
But, at the same time, the cost of paper might go to a point where publishers would drop some of their marginal publications and print fewer books.

Total U. S. production of paper and paperboard in August was estimated at 1,715,710 tons by Dr. Louis T. Stevenson, economist for American Paper and Pulp association. Daily average production was running about 17 per cent ahead of last year.

The industry entered 1946 hoping to produce at a rate of about 18 million tons domestically this year. Present production is at a rate of more than 20 million tons a year.

Estimates for 1946 have been revised as follows: Domestic production, 18,620,000 tons; imports, 3,100,000 tons; exports, 478,000 tons; giving American consumers 21,245,000 tons of paper and paper products.

The gap between supply and demand has been steadily narrowed. One industry source estimated that at the end of June supply was running one million tons behind demand, but the association believes that the gap should be "whittled down to reasonable dimensions by the end of this year."

Future Trouble Spots.
There are, however, several future trouble spots.

Swedish pulp, on which American mills have depended in the past to fill the gap between American production and American needs, has practically stopped coming in, and the OPA price rise of 10 per cent—designed to meet the 10 per cent increase in the value of the Canadian dollar—fell short of meeting a 14 per cent hike in the value of the Swedish krona.

The Swedes shipped about 200,000 tons to the United States so far this year, and Finland 9,000 tons. If the price incentive boosts total domestic production by 8 per cent, loss of the Swedish shipments would be offset. Little more is expected from Sweden because American mill owners pointed out the Swedes can sell all their pulp in European and South American markets at prices above the American ceiling.

Consumers of paper noted with satisfaction that several pulp mills being built in Canada are about ready to start production.

Catholics Are Translating
Bible Into Modern "American"

BOSTON. — First "American" translation of the Catholic Bible is under way in this country, complete with "phrases and spelling proper to ourselves rather than to the English," reports the Rev. Matthew Stapleton, former head of the American Catholic Biblical association, which is charged with the translation.

So far, the group of Catholic scholars has put the first five books of the Old Testament into modern "American" from the ancient Greek and Hebrew texts.

To preclude possible bafflement of Bible readers outside the United States, two other Old Testament translations into English are in progress in England.

Soybeans Are Free and
5 Cents to Take 'Em Away

FREDERICK, OKLA. — A grocery store ran this advertisement in a Frederick newspaper:

"We can't pull rabbits out of a hat or change your home to a castle, but we can pay you five cents a can to come carry these darn soybeans away. A genuine five cent piece, U. S. standard mint, is taped to every can of these soybeans. We can't sell 'em and we can't give 'em away. So-o-o we will pay you five cents per can to come and get 'em."

Volcanic Eruption Destroys
Principal Village of Island

SUVA, FIJI ISLANDS.—Volcanic eruptions have burned out the main village of Angaba, on the isolated Tonga island of Niuafoou 450 miles east of here.

There was no loss of life in the eruptions, but all government buildings, the wireless station, stores, sheds, missions and boats were destroyed. Volcanic activity was subsiding.

A Long Face
A beggar knocked unsuspectingly at the door of the town marshal. The door opened and with head bent, the beggar began telling his sad tale.

"I didn't eat yesterday," he whined, "and I haven't eaten today." He raised his eyes and noticed the blue-uniformed legs. "And," he ended, "I don't care a hang if I don't eat tomorrow either!"

Modern Manners
"Good morning," breezed the telephone operator blithely, "this is Furdle, Hot, Tiff, Meyers, Glupps, Glinzbriff and Fnerft."

"Oh," cried the voice at the other end, "Good morning, good morning, good morning, good morning, and of course, good morning."

Eye-Filling
The pretty young lady took the pen from its holder on the hotel's desk. But before she could use it, the young clerk shook his head sadly and said, "I'm sorry."

"Don't I register with you?" she asked.

"Lady, you sure do," he replied with a gaze of admiration, "but it doesn't matter how I feel. There's still no room."

Not Her Fault
"So you deceived your husband?" said the judge gravely.

"On the contrary, Your Honor, he deceived me. He said he was going out of town and he didn't go."

A LONG, LONG TRIP

A house agent had a farm on his books which was supposed to be haunted, and to prove the rumor wrong, he decided to engage a man to stay there for one night.

The following day he was up early and went around to see how the man had fared. But the man was not to be found. On the lawn he discovered the remains of a window, sash and shutters completely wrecked—but there was no sign of the watchman.

Four days later the house agent came across him tramping along a country lane three miles away.

"Hello, George!" he cried. "Where have you been all this time?"

The man wiped the perspiration from his brow. "Boss," he replied, "I've been coming back."

OLD MR. WHISKERS

A famous professor of English literature was being conducted about the movie lots. He was finally taken to see an actor's dressing room. On the wall was a picture of Longfellow.

"Ah, I see you are fond of Longfellow," he said to the actor.

"Who?"

"Henry Wadsworth Longfellow. That's his picture there."

"Oh, is that who it is?" said the actor. "I just look at him when I make up. Wonderful study in whiskers!"

Difficult Choices

A California laborer was sent to a psychiatrist, who asked him the nature of his job.

The laborer replied: "I'm a sorter at an orange grove."

"What's that?" asked the psychiatrist.

"I stand at the foot of the sorting machine," the patient explained, "and sort the oranges as to size and quality."

"Why should an easy job like that trouble you?" inquired the psychiatrist.

"Doctor," shrieked the patient, slapping the palm of his hand against his forehead, "such decisions."

Clever Trap

Lyle Hamilton was in trouble. In a moment of weakness he had loaned a friend $500 without benefit of written receipt. He consulted Charlie Kump.

Charlie—"That's easy, me lad. Write him and say you need the $1,000 instantly."

Lyle—"You mean the $500. Charlie—That I do not. You say $1,000 and he will write back that he owes you only $500. Then you will have it in writing."

Turn About

A Scotchman was strolling along the waterfront with his dog. The inquisitive animal stopped and began nosing at a fisherman's basket. Suddenly a lobster clamped onto the dog's tail. The dog ran off, yelping. For a moment the fisherman was too surprised to speak. Then he yelled to the Scotchman, "Whistle to your dog!"

"Hoots, mon," rejoined the other, "whistle to your lobster."

OUT OF THE NIGHT

"Well, little man," inquired the kindly old visitor, "when did you first see the light of day?"

"Two years ago."

"But you're much older than two."

"Sure—we lived in Pittsburgh the first five years."

Room for One

The Scotch minister had preached for an hour and a quarter on the prophets—all the greater prophets and then the minor ones in turn.

"Now we come to Habakkuk," he said. "Where shall we put him?"

"He can have my seat," said a weary listener. "I'm awa' hame."

Under Her Thumb

Men Can Stand Blast of Atom

Bikini Tests Show Soldiers In Dugouts and Tanks Bear Up Well.

WASHINGTON. — That the Bikini tests indicated that soldiers in dugouts and tanks could weather the blast and heat of a near-by atomic bomb and go on fighting, is the opinion of General McAuliffe.

Their artillery and heavy equipment, and even their ammunition when kept in containers, also apparently would still be usable, he continued.

The general, member of the joint research and development board concerned with tomorrow's weapons, based his conclusions on his own observations as deputy commander of the joint task force, at Bikini and on a recently completed report of army ground forces.

He emphasized the incalculable value of the atom bomb for strategic attack against cities, war plants and naval bases, but explained that it probably would not become useful as a tactical weapon against troops in the field. At the same time, he noted that the Bikini tests might not be entirely conclusive as related to army equipment because they were carried out primarily under conditions of naval warfare, against ships.

Protection in Dugouts. Analysis of experiments with army ground force equipment at Bikini, in which precise measurements of blast, heat and radiation were made, indicate that dugouts should give good protection against blast and heat, even fairly close to the bomb, according to General McAuliffe. The degree of protection against the instantaneous radiation of high-penetration rays or later radioactivity would depend, among other things, on the relative position of the dugout and its construction.

The general said that study showed that tanks, artillery and other heavy equipment close to the aerial burst of the first test bomb were "practically undamaged." He added:

"From that you would conclude that heavy equipment as close as 500 yards from a bomb burst would still be usable and could continue to fight or get away from the area."

Even though radiation might penetrate to crews of tanks they might be able to carry on for some time before becoming casualties.

Ammunition Unfired.

Although heavy equipment resisted the atom bomb blast, lighter paraphernalia — amphibious "duck" trucks, jeeps, searchlights, radio equipment — did not; it was "heavily damaged" at distances as much as 1,200 to 1,500 yards, General McAuliffe said.

Quartermaster stuff — clothing, blankets and similar material — suffered from a still unexplained freakishness of the bomb. Material located at "very great distances" caught fire and burned.

On the other hand, experiments with ammunition belied some forecasts. In only rare instances did it catch fire or explode and then only when exposed without containers close to the blast.

Plastics changed texture, caught fire or fused under the flash of fierce heat and the pressure of the blast — but rubber tires on vehicles near the target center showed remarkable resistance.

Much of the packaged foods and other small supplies showed no effect of radiation. Exceptions included some soap and powders which seemed to retain radioactivity longer than other stores.

Cop, Protege of Benton, Quits Beat for Art's Sake

KANSAS CITY, MO.—A policeman, with the help of Missouri's famous artist Thomas Hart Benton, is quitting his beat for art's sake.

For the last five years 33-year-old Charles M. Murray has been a patrolman by day and an embryo painter by night. Now he is heading for the open spaces around Phoenix, Ariz., to devote his full time to the canvas.

Murray had been with the police force two years when another officer's landscape painting attracted his attention and sent him to the easel, where at first he had more trouble than he found on his beat. Then some one suggested he seek Benton's help.

"After that, whenever I was in trouble, Benton helped me out," he recalls.

In five years he has produced 20 Missouri landscape scenes and as many more of police work. In Arizona he hopes to link the West's colorful past with the present.

Benton, dropped in at the police station to bid Murray goodbye.

The building was described as a classroom-office-laboratory building with 74,000 square feet of floor space. It has been part of the Washburn ordnance plant at Burns City, Ind. The building will be removed to the Michigan campus at Ann Arbor.

GOVERNOR URGES ORDERLY ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT

Concluded from page 1. the dairy business; modern legislation to guard against the spread of new insect pests; and agricultural products advertising.

9. Legislation providing for retirement for judges in courts of record.

10. Prompt action to set up machinery for payment of the veterans' bonus, although the problem of financing will be left for the discussion of the state's fiscal problem.

Face Deficit.

Declaring that "the state's fiscal outlook has suddenly changed from one of surpluses to one of prospective deficits" because of the sales tax and bonus amendments, Governor Sigler said the problem "requires a solution at the earliest possible moment consistent with good judgment."

He told the legislators that he now believes "the solution will be found in a more equitable distribution of our income and responsibilities among local units of government on all levels, and NOT in the levying of new taxes, the postponement of the inevitable by incurring deficits, or in the curtailment of vital services."

Asking for the abolition of the State Planning Commission, whose members he said have "given much of their time in an earnest effort to carry out their function," Governor Sigler said "the state should plan for long range results while pushing an economic development program for immediate gains."

He warned that "the competition of other states in economic development is real and is growing," and that "Michigan is late in meeting this competition."

He said that "many of our furniture factories have left Michigan. Grand Rapids and other cities are well aware of this fact. One of our greatest corporations is building 14 new plants outside Michigan. Western and southern states particularly are doing their utmost to lure industry from Michigan."

The new development agency would assume responsibilities of the present Planning Commission, make economic surveys, encourage industrial surveys, provide a clearing house for information on economic and business opportunities, conduct a "sensible" industrial development advertising program, and coordinate all agencies having anything to do with advertising the resources of Michigan.

Governor Sigler described as a "deplorable condition" the practice of "legislators appearing as counsel for interested parties before certain boards and commissions."

Legislator-Lobbyists.

"It cannot be expected that a legislator can fairly represent a client on one hand and the people upon the other," he said. "No legislator should take a fee from any client to prepare and introduce a bill upon which he, as a legislator, must later vote."

The governor said that "in numerous cases" a senator appeared before the State Public Service Commission, representing clients, and others had appeared as counsel before the Liquor Control Commission.

The present system of boards and commissions, which he described as putting administration of many departments beyond the "effective control or jurisdiction" by the administration or the legislature were termed by the governor a "series of invisible governments."

"I am wholly in accord with the thought that certain phases of the government should be removed, as far as possible, from politics, but in our enthusiasm in that direction, let us not swing so far that the people themselves have nothing to say about the manner in which departments of government are operated and the business of the state conducted," he said.

Governor Sigler recommended that the governor approve the appointment of directors of all commissions, that the legislature have some jurisdiction over "rules and regulations having the effect of law," and that actions of all boards or commissions should be subject to review by the courts.

Labor Program.

Declaring that "we have already too much government," Governor Sigler said his labor program would be guided by "two basic fundamentals: First, management and labor must solve the problems of relations between themselves; second, the level of government closest to a social problem should have the most direct responsibility for facilitating its solution."

A result of the consolidation of agencies dealing with labor, he said, would put in each community of "any size" a clearing house to which "workers and their representatives and employers and their representatives may go for assistance in matters relating to labor."

The governor told the legislators that "it would be presumptuous for a governor just taking up his duties to assume a knowledge of all that should be done," and therefore would not present his entire program in his first message.

He postponed, until some fiscal decisions are reached, discussions of law enforcement, the liquor business, state highways, child welfare, education, public health, public assistance, aviation and the building program.

PRACTICAL FARM BUILDINGS

Feeder Barn

By W. J. DRYDEN, WNU Farm Editor.

This combined storage and live-stock or feeder barn was developed by the University of Illinois. It will prove satisfactory for general purpose use on farms where stock cattle or feeder cattle are kept.

This type of barn includes room for work animals and milk cows, but the space is adaptable in that the entire shedded portion can be used for cattle, or one side may be equipped with stalls for dairy cows.

The roofs will last longer if the ridge runs north and south than those which have one side exposed to the north slope. The hay door, if possible, should be in the north end. If horses are to be kept in the barn, the ceiling height should be at least nine feet, otherwise eight feet will be sufficient. Care should be exercised in planning barns so that girders will not decrease the head room over horse stalls.

Feeder Barn Suitable for General Conditions.

The central storage part is suitable for long hay, chopped or baled hay or bedding. The usual plan has a 24-foot hay space and 18-foot sheds. The length is variable, depending upon the number to be fed. The roof may be gable, gambrel or arched. The material may be of any type that is economically available. If it is also to be used as a dairy barn, then local milk inspection

The roof may be of any quality material available locally. It may be of galvanized, wood shingles, composition shingles, roofing paper or slate. The quality obtainable as well as local price should determine the type used.

regulations must be complied with. In such case it is likely advisable to have concrete floor, at least on the dairy side.

Barns so placed that alleyways run north and south will be cooler in summer than those running east and west. This permits summer breezes to pass through the barn.

Saginaw County Health Dept. Outlined by Board Chairman

very remarkable improvement has been gradually achieved because the mothers are now far more familiar as to the ways of taking care of themselves and how to provide better health supervision for their babies. It might be of interest for you to know that from 1930 to 1934 the infant mortality rate was 57 per 1,000 births, from 1935 to 1939 it was 53, and from 1940 to 1944 it was 36.

"We have had no deaths from whooping cough since 1938.

"We have had no deaths from scarlet fever since 1938.

"We have had no deaths from typhoid fever since 1937.

"In the last 10 years we have had two deaths from diphtheria, both of them occurring in the same family and one of the cases died three hours after seeing the physician for the first time.

"We have had several cases of smallpox brought in by Mexicans from Texas or Mexico. Because of the health department in its effort to vaccinate possibly several thousands people who might be contacts, an epidemic of smallpox was averted and thousands of dollars of economic loss would have been inevitable had an epidemic of smallpox developed.

"In the field of infantile paralysis by having had Public Health Nurses, we have been able to be of every possible assistance in hospitalizing victims of infantile paralysis and also providing the patients with the necessary assistance toward securing the maximum benefits. We are proud of the number of children that have had infantile paralysis who have made a great deal of progress toward complete recovery.

"In the field of tuberculosis, our results are particularly gratifying. Ten years ago the tuberculosis death rate was 38 per 100,000 population. In the year 1945 the death rate was 12 per 100,000 population. Our supervisors know that the reduction in the tuberculosis death rate was almost 300 per cent and we are well aware that it not only saved a number of people from dying but also that the earlier cases of tuberculosis were hospitalized the less they have to stay in the hospital. These financial reasons alone make the employment of Public Health Nurses a very economic one because in our own county sanitarium we have observed that early cases of tuberculosis stay less than a year while advanced cases stay two years and sometimes up to five years. In other words one case of tuberculosis found by a nurse in an early stage and hospitalized will result in a saving of more than a nurse's yearly salary. Needless to say that in a year's work a nurse finds a great many cases which by proper attention prevent disability, eliminate suffering and economic distress to the family and to the community.

"In the venereal disease control, the problem as we know is difficult, but the nurses are contributing a great deal by tracing the sources of infection by placing all venereal disease patients under the care of a physician so they could not continue to be a source of infection.

"In the field of maternal health expectant mothers are taught the principles of healthful living. The advantages of securing deliveries in the hospitals are explained to them and they fully appreciate the benefits of this service. I am very glad to say that for the last 10 years the percentage of women having hospital deliveries has increased from 34 to 90 per cent. This means that mothers are getting more adequate care at the hospitals than they could possibly receive at home from relatives and neighbors.

"In the field of school health several thousands of children are examined either by nurses or doctors. During the year 1945, 1,871 physical defects were corrected. This means that this large group of children were freed from handicaps some of which could create a lasting physical disability and it also means that the healthy child is a much better student in school, more capable of learning, and healthier.

"In the dental field, several thousands of children receive dental service from the dentists of the Children's Fund of Michigan.

"In the field of orthopedics, we take care and provide every possible service to the county crippled children. The Crippled Children's Society and the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis are providing funds for this service.

"In the field of sanitation, we are attempting to protect the food, milk, meat and water supply and send our sanitary engineers out to a great many schools and food handling establishments. The control of water and milk is greatly contributing to the safety of our community.

"The health department's nurses and sanitary engineers are doing their very best to make Saginaw County a healthier place to live in and we cannot think of any better investment we have made than when we are supporting an organization such as the County Department of Health.

"My own feeling is that the County Department of Health is the most important department of the County Government because if our citizens and our children do not have good health all other advantages which we might offer to them would be of no benefit to anyone.

"If you have any questions I shall be glad to answer them, meanwhile, you are at liberty to suggest to any supervisor to contact the Saginaw Department of Health, or any one of us, and we shall be glad to tell them what we think a health department will do for the community.

"Very truly yours,
George R. Brush, Chairman,
Board of Supervisors,
Saginaw County."

Dig Before Frost

Usually it is best to dig sweet potatoes before frost. Be sure to dig the sweets quickly if frost has hit the leaves, since the rotting of the dead tops may spread down into the sweet potatoes under the ground. White potatoes may be left in the ground after frosts have killed the tops, but not into weather so cold as to freeze the ground.

Drying Herbs

For finest flavor, dry herb leaves rapidly in a well-ventilated, dry, dark room, such as an airy attic. The tender-leaf herbs such as basil, costmary, tarragon, lemon balm and mint especially need rapid drying away from light to hold their color and flavor and prevent molding. The less succulent leaf herbs such as sage, rosemary, thyme and summer savory contain less moisture and can be partially dried in the sun without affecting their flavor.

Some Like Them Bold

By ARTHUR M. YORK

WALTER GATES sat straight as a rod, although it was nearly four hours since he had started waiting to see the managing editor. He was poised hopefully on the edge of the chair, as if he expected each minute might bring back the copy boy with the news that Mr. Pool was ready to see him about the reporting job.

But, instead, the photographer came around the corner for the fourth time from the direction of the clacking city room. Walt stopped him. "You'll never get to see the old man sitting here, Matey," the photographer informed him. "He hates appointments. Funny that way."

"Then how does anyone ever see him?" Walt inquired. His forehead was furrowed deeply, up to the line of his thick blond hair. He explained he had had a little reporting experience before Army service. Now that he was discharged, he wanted to get back into newspaper work. He shifted his weight from one foot to the other, proving to himself again that the artificial legs they pass out these days are no handicap.

The photographer stepped closer to Walt and spoke softly from the corner of his mouth. He suggested Walt break in on the chief. "But don't let on you know who he is," the photographer schemed. "I know a guy who got a job that way, only he didn't know he was talking to Pool, see?"

"But I couldn't do that," Walt protested.

"What's to stop you? Pool's a quiet guy, but he likes 'em bold."

"... But I think the paper is too neutral."

As Walter descended to the pressroom where the chief was, the acrid odor of the etching acid reached him. He had always thought it displeasing. But now he recognized it as part of the nostalgia every enthusiastic reporter has for a newspaper office. It was akin to the unkempt appearance of city rooms and the crippled typewriters about which the reporters always complain.

Walt casually observed the blur of newspaper threading through the presses and, pretending he belonged there, from the corner of his eye he hunted for Mr. Pool. All the men wore the handmade boxlike caps which most pressmen fashion for themselves from a piece of newspaper—except one.

Walt looked at him more closely. He stood with his hands behind his back, doing nothing but observe moaning machines. He fitted exactly the photographer's description of Mr. Pool. He wore large black-rimmed glasses and his graying hair was parted far to one side. Walt strolled casually up to him and they watched the presses together. After waiting for Mr. Pool to speak first, Walt ventured: "There's no end to the excitement of seeing the paper go to press, is there?" He had to shout to be heard. The man merely glanced at Walt coolly over the dark rims of his glasses.

"I like the Post," Walt resumed. "It's a good solid paper. Lot of tradition behind it. But..." here's where he took the photographer's cue. He searched self-consciously for ideas that were not his own. "... But I think the paper is too neutral. It never gets excited about anything. Know what I mean?"

There was still no remark from Mr. Pool.

"It ought to have definite policies. Ought to guide the thinking of its readers on important topics."

"Yeah?" The man looked Walt sternly up and down.

"I think the Post needs new blood," Walt went on. "Young blood." He considered giving himself as an example, but decided against being too obvious. "Of course it's the men at the top who count where policies are concerned. Perhaps the Post needs a new managing editor." He was sorry as soon as the bold words had passed his lips. But his comments had brought the man's head around with a jerk.

But now, with Mr. Pool glaring at him in apparent anger, Walt could only add weakly, "What do you think?"

"I think you're batty as a loon," Walt felt his cheeks burn. He sought some way to escape as gracefully as possible. "But I wouldn't know," the man added. He brought his hands from behind his back and placed a boxlike paper cap on his head. "I'm only a pressman myself."

Showed Ambassador What Iowa Land Does

The Newburns of Eagle Grove, Iowa, showed the British ambassador what real productivity is. One look at Iowa corn, hogs and so on convinced Sir Archibald John Clark-Kerr that no nation on earth can rival the United States in agriculture. It all started when Roger Newburn, 21, met the ambassador in Washington on a student tour and got into a friendly argument. "Come out to our farm and see for yourself," invited Roger. Sir Archibald took him up on it, and spent three days with the Newburns. Picture shows, l. to r., Edward, Roger and Francis E. Newburn.

TAKE MY WORD FOR IT!

By FRANK COLBY
Bell Syndicate.—WNU Features.

READERS' CORNER

From E. G., Los Angeles:

Oh, Colby, dear Colby, please come to my aid.

I'm asking you, brother, to join my crusade.

I pray that you won't turn your back on my plight;

(I've spent the best years of my life in the fight).

Come fly in the face of a popular trend

And help me get rid of "our mutual friend."

Answer: You've talked me into it. But it may be just another lost cause.

It's hard to believe, but "mutual friend," which is incorrect, according to modern usage, may be laid at the door of Charles Dickens who used "Our Mutual Friend" as the title of a novel. Because of Dickens' literary eminence, "our mutual friend" was accepted as correct by many persons. The truth is, however, the book title is a quotation of illiterate usage by some characters in the story.

Mutual should be avoided in the meaning of "shared in common." Strictly speaking, mutual means "reciprocal; interchanged; reciprocally given or exchanged." Thus, two men may share a mutual friendship or hatred; they may work together to their mutual advantage; they may obligate themselves by a mutual pledge of friendship. Also, they may be mutual friends—their friendship is reciprocal or interchanged. However, to say that A and B are "mutual friends" is redundant. The mutuality of their friendship is clearly expressed by saying: They are friends.

Now A and B have a friend, C. But C is not their "mutual friend," for the reason that he is not reciprocally given or exchanged or owned by A and B.

Let us put it this way: A and B have just been introduced (they are not yet friends; in fact, they may dislike each other from the very first). They discover that they both know C, who lives in another city. To say that C is their "mutual friend" (a friend shared between them and only them) is clearly nonsense. Correctly speaking, C is the common friend of A and B.

From A. E. K., Louisville:

Now when a guy says "DEK-rativ."

(A most peculiar twist).

The question is, should he be spanked.

Or slapped upon the wrist?

Answer:

Unless he gives to "a" the sound

As heard in "deco-rator,"

I'll sick on him old Dr. S.,

My daft collaborator.

Youngstown: What is the origin of the word "dolly"?

A. In the London Spectator of January 24, 1712, it was said that the dolly was named "after the famous Dolly," a London draper.

Thawing Frozen Vegetables
Most frozen vegetables can be cooked without thawing. Vegetables such as peas, corn, green beans and lima beans fall apart quickly after starting to cook, so it is not necessary to thaw them. Vegetables such as greens and asparagus cook more evenly if thawed just enough to separate the leaves or stalks.
