Farmers' Week to Feature Fat Steer Show, January 29

Visitors at the 1947 Farmers' Week at Michigan State college will have opportunity to see a fat steer show featuring excellent quality, according to an announcement made by Graydon Blank, MSC animal husbandry specialist.

Over 90 calves from 59 farms have been entered in the annual beef feeding project, sponsored by the animal husbandry extension department of the college. They were weighed in the project last summer during the first week of July. Steers making the required 2 pounds of gain per day over the approximate 200 day feeding period, and weighing at least 700 pounds at the close of the project, are eligible for the show and sale which will be held Thursday, January 29th.

Because of the high standards of the project, not all steers are expected to qualify for the show. However, the number will be large enough to make the show one of the largest and most competitive for beef men in the state.

Enrollments by breeds show 33 Herefords, 31 Shorthorns, 30 Angus and three Red Poll. Annual meetings of the beef breed associations will be held on Wednesday, January 28, the day before the show and sale.

Records Disclose Winter Increases Death on Highways

Accident Rate in Michigan Was 50% Higher in Winter than Last Summer

With the arrival of winter driving hazards, State Police Commissioner Donald S. Leonard is appealing to motorists to remember that "ice and snow mean take it slow."

"The accident rate per 100 million miles of travel in Michigan was 59 per cent higher last winter than during the last summer, and the death rate was 21 per cent higher," the commissioner said. "Six out of ten fatal accidents occurred on highways which were wet, snowy or icy. Seven out of ten occurred during hours of darkness. All of which means that to be safe you must be more careful and be more cautious."

Leonard listed the following safe driving rules for winter:

1. Adjust speed to the "feel" of the road and weather conditions, and slow down well in advance of intersections. Snow and ice increase the danger of skidding.
2. Drive with normal flow of traffic and follow cars at a safe distance. It takes 8 to 12 times farther to stop on icy or snowy roadways than when they are dry.
3. Prevent skidding by avoiding quick acceleration or deceleration and sharp turns on slippery roadways. Apply brakes with gentle pumping action. If skid starts, turn front wheels in the direction the rear is skidding.
4. Use anti-skid chains to reduce braking distance 40 to 50 per cent on ice or packed snow.
5. Remember that bad weather conditions and more hours of darkness greatly increase pedestrian hazards. Give special consideration to children.
6. Slow down after sundown.
7. Remember the dangers of carbon monoxide and always provide some fresh air within the car.
8. Observe the golden rule toward the other driver.

Guild to Contribute to United Church Relief Project

About thirty-five were present Monday evening when Mrs. B. F. Benkelman, Jr., entertained the Presbyterian Guild Society. Mrs. Arthur Holmberg conducted the devotions, using the Thanksgiving theme.

Harold Oatley was guest speaker and gave an interesting account of the University Fresh Air Camp at which he assisted, held the past summer at a large lake near Ann Arbor. The camp was for delinquent children.

For the December meeting, members are urged to bring unperishable food or usable clothing for the "United Church Relief" project. In case members are unable to attend the meeting, their contribution may be left with Mrs. K. I. McRae.

At the close of the meeting the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Orion Cardew, Mrs. Ernest Croft and Mrs. Betty Asher, served cake, tea and coffee.

The December meeting will be at the home of Mrs. L. E. Townsend.

MUSICAL PROGRAM HEARD BY WOMAN'S STUDY CLUB

Mrs. H. H. Koffman gave an interesting article on the subject of Jewish holidays. Roll call was answered by current events and remarks concerning Thanksgiving.

Another interesting feature of the afternoon was an art display by the kindergarten and all the grades through the junior high.

Mrs. Don Seeger was accepted as a new member.

The next meeting, Dec. 2, will be at the home of Mrs. Fred Maier.

Lively Discussions and Addresses Made Conference Profitable

With a program worthy of a much better attendance, the conference on Christian Education, held under the auspices of the Cass City Council of Churches here on Wednesday, had representatives of 18 churches from 12 towns in the Upper Thumb. Six denominations were represented and the registration at the day sessions at the Presbyterian Church was 63. At the evening session at the Methodist Church about 175 people attended.

Five groups interested in different phases of church school life and youth work assembled at the morning and afternoon sessions and lively discussions made them unusually interesting and profitable.

In the evening, the address of Rev. Laurence Taylor of Lansing on "Challenging Times for Home and Church" and a dramatic production entitled "The Protestant Church on Trial," presented by a local cast under the direction of Mrs. Ivan MacRae, emphasized the weakness of denominational divisions and the necessity of church folks working together as Christians and be larger than their denominations.

V. A. Poker

Tired of reading and the radio the two patients in a veterans' hospital called for a deck of playing cards. The nurse didn't have any. "What's in that little box?" asked one impatient patient. "Just filing cards," she replied. "Let's have 52 of them," said the patient. "We'll get by." Poker was played with fervor and a pot got hot. Real money was piled between the fistfuls of phony cards. The showdown patient No. 1 spread out a full house—3 appendectomies and 2 hernias—and reached for the currency. "Take your hand off the dough," said No. 2. "I've got 5 transfusions."

Just Hot Air

The disconsolate-looking farmer stood on the steps of a midwest town hall during the progress of a political meeting. "Do you know who is talking in there now?" asked a stranger, pausing for a moment. "or are you just going in?" "No sir. I've just come out," the farmer answered. "Congressman Tallow is talking in there." "What about?" "Well," continued the countryman, passing a knotted hand across his forehead, "he didn't say!"

MODERN CHILD

The chairman told about a little girl who went to the church for the first time. Afterward, the minister asked her how she liked the service. "Well," she said, "I thought the music was very nice, but your commercial was too long."

Very Specialized

Father was in his sober, lecturing mood. "George," he said, to his youngest, "This is the age of specialists. I hope you will be an expert at something, and know your specialty better than anyone else in the world. Is there anything, George, that you can do better than anyone else?" "Yes father, there is," replied the quick-witted youngster. "I can read my own handwriting."

Wide Awake

Fu Lung, who had just opened a laundry on one corner, gazed appreciatively at the signs on the business establishments on the other three corners. On the bakery was a sign, reading: "We never close." Over the garage, the sign read: "We stay open all night"; and over the restaurant: "We never sleep." The following morning over Fu Lung's laundry appeared the neat handprinted sign: "Me Wake Too."

Japan Forging Ahead in Peace

Report Discounts Danger Of Economic Collapse In Defeated Nation.

TOKYO, JAPAN.—On the second anniversary of Japan's surrender, General MacArthur declared that Japan had become one of the few places in a distraught world where, despite an economy of critically short supply, there is a minimum of fear, of confusion and unrest.

He attributed this to an occupation policy in which "right, rather than might, has been the criterion" and urged that a peace treaty "be approached in the same tolerant and just atmosphere."

General MacArthur said the treaty should insure that this defeated country has the opportunity to become self-sustaining, rather than reduced to a condition of mendicancy. Japan should not become a burden on the economy of any other country, he said.

No Danger of Collapse.

Japan, he added, "is in no danger of economic collapse," and it "given a just opportunity to live in freedom and peace with her neighbors in the community of nations, there will be no threat to the survival and strengthening of the democratic processes here inaugurated under the occupation."

"For democracy, once firmly rooted in the human heart, has never voluntarily yielded before any other conflicting ideology known to man. If liberty and public morality do not bring national stability, nothing can."

A year ago, MacArthur's anniversary statement by contrast discussed bluntly what he then termed "the dread uncertainty arising from impending ideologies which now stir mankind."

Discussing the peace treaty, MacArthur said history had proved that "a people, given a fair chance, will reach the niche in human society to which their own industry, their own skill and their own perseverance entitle them, without largess from others—that largess stultifies rather than quickens the private initiative and individual energy so essential to human progress."

"It is, furthermore, a false concept which contends that democracy can only thrive if maintained in plenty. On the contrary, history shows that it springs from hardship and struggle and toil, to flourish naturally in the hearts of men who cherish individual freedom and dignity—or not at all. A spiritual commodity, it is neither for purchase nor for sale."

Economy Rebuilt.

Saying that there "need be no concern over fears recently expressed of imminent economic collapse" of Japan, he said the nation's economy actually collapsed during the war, and since had been rebuilt so that industrial production "has now risen to over 45 per cent of the prewar normal and the improvement can be expected to continue."

The Japanese people, he said, "are diligently endeavoring to expiate the breach of peace for which their nation stands universally condemned, to overcome the poverty left by war and defeat, and to elevate themselves to trusted and useful membership in the family of nations."

The occupation policy has avoided "vengeance, intolerance and injustice," he said, and has "rested squarely on the fundamental concept which finds immortal exposition in the Sermon on the Mount."

Occupation headquarters posted its first prices on Japanese export goods and readily agreed with the sour comments of American buyers that costs were high, quality poor, styles old-fashioned and quantities scanty.

British Gunboat Powered

By Gas Turbine Engine

LONDON.—The admiralty has announced that the British navy is conducting satisfactory trials of what it said was the world's first naval craft powered by a gas turbine engine. The vessel is a 110-foot triple screw gunboat.

The engine uses oil fuel and its "motion is entirely rotary," the admiralty statement said, adding: "This obviates the vibration and certain other inherent disadvantages of the 'push-pull' motion of the conventional reciprocating internal combustion engine. The engine combines the advantages of the smooth steam running turbine with economy in weight and space." A naval officer emphasized that the experimental craft was not jet propelled.

Curiosity of Mongrel Dog

CHICAGO.—A blue-eyed, red-haired baby boy is safe at St. Vincent's orphanage because Pal, a mongrel dog, insisted on rescuing him from the basket in which he had been abandoned in an alley.

Pal and his master, 9-year-old Jack Hand, were passing down the alley behind their home when Pal stopped and began sniffing at a basket. Jack and his mother, Mrs. LaVerne Hand, called police.

Doctors said the baby, in robust health, apparently had been born without medical help about six hours earlier.

HOWDY FOLKS:

Did you hear about the girl who was so dumb that she thought a football coach had four wheels? (By the way, how many wheels does it have?)

And then, there were the people who got so rich that they instructed their butler to bait the mousetrap only with real imported cheese.

It's all right to break into song once in a while, but it's a lot easier on the other folks if you get the key first.

And it's a lot easier on your car, if you will make it a point to bring it here regularly for gas, oil and our A-1 Lubrication service. It will put a lot—and we do mean a lot—of smooth riding into the old bus and add a lot—and again we mean a lot—of extra miles to its life.

Longer Range for Jet Planes Sought

Important Problem Put Up to Aviation Scientists.

WASHINGTON. — The difficult problem of getting more effective range out of America's jet-propelled military planes is being wrestled with by aviation scientists.

The jets are fast but they won't go far without refueling—a serious matter for an air force relying heavily on the concept of long-range strategic bombing and concentrating most of its power in this country.

The national advisory committee for aeronautics revealed that its researchers are giving priority attention to means of increasing range by reducing drag, or resistance, of planes at high speeds.

There are at present four American jet bombers of which there is public knowledge.

They are the B-45, which is in production, and the experimental XB-46, XB-47 and XB-48. The air force says their tactical radius is more than 800 miles, speed more than 480 miles per hour and bomb load more than 10 tons.

None of these bombers, therefore, appears to have much more than half the range of a B-29 superbomber, although they are twice as fast and carry a similar bomb load.

This leaves them in the category of shorter-range tactical bombers which must operate from forward bases.

If they had the range, they should excel the B-29 and other propeller-driven heavies like the B-50 and the B-36 in striking at strategic industrial objectives deep in enemy territory. Their speed would make them harder targets.

Recurrence of Ulcers Stopped by Pig Extract

PITTSBURGH. — A certain kind of pig muscle may be the answer to the recurrence of stomach ulcers.

A report made by Dr. Morton Grossman, assistant professor of physiology at University of Illinois, reveals that "excellent results" have been obtained from the use of a new drug in curing ulcers.

Grossman, who estimated that ulcers recur after healing in 7 out of every 10 cases, said he has slowed the rate considerably by using the intestinal extract from a pig.

"Out of 27 cases I obtained excellent results from 23 of the patients," he said.

He Couldn't Play Violin; So Copies Stradivarius

SALEM, ORE. — When Lawrence G. Prescott was a youth, he aspired to be a famous violinist. But an accident cost him four fingers of his left hand and his dreams vanished.

Today at 75, Prescott is one of the most skilled violin makers in the nation, but the craft is "just a profitable hobby" with him. He can't play them but he can make them.

His instruments sometimes are confused with original Stradivarius violins but it does not surprise Prescott. He works from blueprints copied from originals by the famous 17th century Italian craftsman.

Prescott's violins are made of fine-grained spruce and curly maple from the Oregon woods.

Here's Chance to Buy Locomotive You Wanted

NEW YORK.—War assets administration blandly announced it had a few locomotives it would like to sell.

Persons interested in obtaining one—without tracks—were advised they could buy a steam oiler model at $1,200; two 80-ton steam coalers at $6,000 each; a 15-ton gas engine switcher at $2,200; two 30-ton diesels at $5,100 and $3,250, and a 60-ton bargain built in 1907 for only $1,250.

The WAA office also offered 10 hand-push railroad cars (aching back type) for $10 each.

Chinese Takes Eight Days To Find $1 to Pay a Fine

SHANGHAI. — Chou Chu-fu, a blacksmith, thought himself fortunate when the judge fined him one Chinese dollar in a slander case, but the smallest change he could find in Shanghai was a $10,000 note. Single dollars have been out of circulation almost two years and it now takes 400 to equal one United States cent. Chou offered the court a $10,000 note (25 cents, United States) but the judge said the fine was $1, no more. Eight days after he was fined, Chou found a $1 note.

Pain in Stomach Brings Fine and Judge's Advice

NEW YORK.—Merwin Lasner, 40, drove past four red traffic lights before police caught up with him and charged him with dangerous driving.

Lasner explained in traffic court that he had pains in his stomach and was looking for a doctor.

Magistrate Henri Schwob said a man who gets pains that bad should not be driving a car. He fined Lasner $25 and suspended his driver's license.

His Interest

A man dashed into the police station at midnight.

"My wife," he gasped. "I want to find my wife! Been missing since eight this morning. Oh find her for me!"

"Particulars?" asked the sergeant. "Height?"

"I—I don't know."

"Do you know how she was dressed?"

"No, but she took the dog with her."

"What kind of dog?" "Brindle bull terrier, weight 53 pounds, four dark blotches on his body, shading from gray to white, three white legs and right front leg brindle all but the toes, a small nick in his left ear."

"All right," yelled the sergeant. "We'll find the dog!"

OBVIOUS NUT

Miss Halsey, the English teacher, had barged in on them. The rest of the gang had beat it safely before the teacher had had a chance to recognize them individually, but Jim knew it was all off with him when, as he ran, he heard her say: "I didn't recognize any of them, but here's old Nixey, James Varden's dog, asleep in this corner, so at least we know James was one of them."

Mom was still there in the swing when he was knitting and between every few knits and purls her eyes would stray toward Jim. Suddenly she said: "Say, Jimmy, your gun is out in the garage. Why don't you go hunting sometime? It would do you good."

Jim didn't feel that he particularly wanted to go hunting. He just didn't seem to want to do much of anything, it seemed. But Mom was trying so hard to be helpful he didn't have the heart to say no.

"OK, Mom." He got up and sauntered around toward the garage. "Come along, Nixey!" The old dog just rolled his eyes under drooping lids and went back to sleep.

The shotgun rested on some pegs on the back wall of the garage. He lifted it off, broke it down and squinted through the dusty bore. Rummaging around through a drawer, he found his ramrod and ran a rag down the barrel.

He took his hunting jacket from a hook and dusted the cobwebs off it. In one of the cavernous pockets he found several shells. He slipped the coat over his shoulders, picked up the gun and strolled back through the house, dipping into the bulging cookie jar while in the kitchen. Mom was still on the front porch.

"I guess I'll go out to the lake and use up these shells," he told her. "All right, Son," she said, and added just as she always had done when he was still a kid. "But be careful, won't you?"

Nixey rolled his eyes, then lifted his head, and the next instant he was all over Jim, licking his face and scampering madly about. Joyful little yelps punctuated all his actions.

Jim gulped back a knot that was sliding up into his throat. "Mom, he knows me for sure now!" He rumbled the old fellow's ears. "Look! him, Mom!"

Tears were in Mom's eyes. "I-I'd hoped the gun and your jacket would wake him up. Three years is a long time for you to be away, even for the rest of us, but for old Nixey it was much longer. . . ."

"Yeah," Jim agreed. He cradled the gun under his arm and strolled off. Nixey skipped along lively at his heels. And Jim Varden thought that he had never felt so happy and care-free in his life before.

It was the needed touch for the old time to come back.

"What did you think of the big fight last night?"

"Fight? Say if me and the missus put on a show like that, the kids would have booed us."

Nixey Awakens

By Harold Monroe

JIM VARDON, ex-boatwain's mate second class, United States Navy, luxuriated on the end of his spine and the back of his neck in the old arm chair, lugged out there on the porch especially for his comfort by his dad.

Mom was looking down at the foot of the steps where Nixey, the dog, stretched in the sun, and Jim could see that worry or something was clouding her pleasant face. He stirred and his mother turned to face him.

"Jim-Jimmy, Dear." She blinked her kind grey eyes. "Jimmy, are you happy—really happy I mean."

He grinned at her. "Happy? Why of course I am, Mom." He went over and gave her a hug, then stooped down to towle the dog's ears. The old dog hardly opened his eyes, and Jim went back and dropped heavily into the arm chair.

Presently a soft glow began to warm him. He was recalling his boyhood and he thought of the time Nixey had followed him into Fowler's Funeral Parlor where the high school band practiced on Sunday afternoons. How the dog managed to sleep through all the tootings and squeakings and blarings of the ambitious and youthful musicians he would never know, but Nixey had.

And the time when, instead of going into the big hall at the Masonic Temple where the high school was giving a reception and dance for a visiting basketball team, some of the gang had slipped off into one of the smaller lodge rooms for a secret game of craps, and prim

Woman's World Save Old Blankets, Woolens To Make Youngsters' Robes

By Erta Haley

WITH youngsters growing out of their clothes so rapidly, mothers with several children have quite a tussle with the clothing budget just about this time of the year when so many warm things are needed for them.

They don't have time for sewing the fine seams, they argue, and yet the budget doesn't permit buying a lot of ready-made things. One of the easiest ways to solve this difficulty is to buy the things that require fine tailoring and fine seams, and then make those things at home which can be put together quickly and easily.

In the latter classification comes the bathrobe, which is an essential item. If you have any kind of material that can be salvaged, such as your own old robes or Daddy's, or even some old blankets, then you will not need to buy the fabric.

You won't need any time for careful fitting because bathrobes should fit loosely. Construction should be sturdy for youngsters' robes, as they will spend some time playing in them before bedtime, but this is easily assured if you use the machine.

There are no fancy trimmings necessary, so the time you spend in making the robe is cut down to a minimum. You can probably turn out at least one robe in just an hour or two of good work. Save more time by buying ready-made cord for the belt, and if necessary have the buttonholes made commercially to save some more of your time.

Select Fabric, Style
For Its Usefulness

If your youngster wears a bathrobe mainly in the morning before getting dressed, and in the evening after a bath, a good cotton blanket material will be good. You may also use a part wool and part cotton blanket, but select one that is absorbent and quite warm.

Flannel, or flannellette, is another good bet, especially for the girls. These are not so sturdy as the blanket materials, but if the child is not too rough on the robe, they will be practical. For girls, too, they're just a little bit softer and they will look a bit more feminine.

Chenille is also being used extensively for robes, as it is sturdy as well as washable, and for its source you can look to bedspreads which have outlived their usefulness. The main thing to remember in the use of chenille is to make certain that you will have a nice pattern, and you'll want to use care in the cutting of this.

If you are working with weary, faded materials, plan to dye them

Be Smart!

Ever-friendly wool jersey takes on an arrestingly new look when elasticized shirring is used, with Frances Sider's deft touch, to dramatize that long torso line. The pleated skirt swings into beautiful contrast with the shirring—both very flattering.

Draped Peplum

The draped peplum, accentuating the hips, the nipped waistline and the rich contrast of rhinestone buttons, makes this lovely dinner suit a new addition to the dressy wardrobe. The fabric is Martin crush-resistant velvet, newly important in the fashion field for dinner and evening wear.

an attractive color. Usually I suggest dyeing before sewing, but in this case it's perfectly proper to dye the finished garment. I say this because it will probably be easier to dye the finished robe more smoothly than it would be to dye a large blanket of which you will use only a part of the material.

Suggested Routine
For Sewing Robe

If you are sewing from a pattern, as you probably will be, make all the adjustments as to shortening or lengthening, sleeve adjusting and width and length of the back before you start cutting. Make certain the overlap is sufficient and the robe comfortable in general.

You'll find the raglan type of sleeve most comfortable for youngsters, and for you it will be easier to sew firmly as well as sturdily with a french seam.

For youngsters you will not need interfacing, as they like the more casual type of robe. However don't ignore their color or decorative preferences as they, too, should be allowed to enjoy their clothing.

An eight-year-old girl may want some gay plaid on her robe "just like big sister." Maybe a ten-year-old boy would like a miniature of his Dad's robe made of maroon flannel with dark blue binding for contrast. All of these little things are mighty big for little folk, and they're easy enough to cater to.

Baste the seams unless you are absolutely certain of your sewing. Then sew on the collar and the pockets, and adjust the sleeves if you are not using the raglan type which will be done before the side seams are even basted.

Before stitching the side seams, adjust the lower portions of the robe for proportion and length. Have loops for the belt or cord, whichever you're using, and have these properly set at the waistline. A hanger at the back of the neck—simply a loop of the same fabric—is a necessity, especially if you are trying to teach the youngsters to keep their things hung.

Any other decorative touches, such as a monogram, may be added to the robe after it is sewed. Frequently children make, or have in their possession already, some insignia which it might be clever to attach to the pockets or breast, and you would be wise to include this on the robe. It endears the garment to the child and makes it seem more brand-new than a make-over.

Tips For Using Old Blankets

When you're using an old blanket for a bathrobe, place the pattern on it so that all edges touch the binding. When the button edge, sleeves and collar are cut this way, the robe will be partly finished before you even join the seams. You need do no facing and when you turn the hem the blanket edge will be already bound.

It's best to bind the armholes on fabrics such as this because they need to take lots of wear, and in this way you can prevent straining.

WHERE ROOTS BELONG

A CERTAIN exceedingly wealthy and extremely ancient Chicago dowager, whose ambition seems to be to live forever, annually entertains a huge army of expectant heirs at a big party. They keep hoping that this party will be the last, and that their next meeting will be for the reading of the will, but Mrs. Moneybags keeps rolling along.

At her latest party, which occurred recently, the old lady looked down upon the gathering from her improvised dais and, with considerable relish, remarked, "What a wonderful sight it is to see such a number of branches flourishing from the same root!"

Whereupon one poor relation remarked to another, "The branches would flourish a darn sight better if only the root were under ground!"

That is why it is an ideal floor for factories, offices, schools, stores and all places where a non-splintering, long-wearing resilient wood is the primary requirement. Maple will outwear stone, yet gives the resilient footing which is an essential to the maximum of human efficiency.

Sixty Million Goats

India has a total of 60 million dual-purpose goats, principally of two breeds, Jamna Pari and Beetal. The former averages 540 pounds of milk per lactation period, with a butterfat value of 5.2 per cent, and the latter averages 356 pounds containing 4.5 butterfat. Another breed, the Kamori, yields 4 to 12 pounds of milk per day.

New Cottonseed Pigments

Eleven new pigments have been discovered in cottonseed, which was believed to contain only one. Certain toxic properties of cottonseed that have always been attributed to that one—gossypol—may turn out to be due to some of these other pigments. It is plain now that the blue-black and red-black discoloration observed in cottonseed meats and oils is caused by some of the 11 rather than by the light-yellow gossypol. Three of the new pigments have been isolated and are purple, blue, and orange.

Army-trained men get more out of college

says E. R. Silvers, Dean of Men, Rutgers University

This long-experienced educator advises young men to take advantage of the training opportunities in the Army and Air Force before entering college. Here's what his new book, Son of Tomorrow, says:

Recent high school graduates are handicapped

"The tempo of scholastic life has quickened and most of our recent high school graduates find the pace too fast for them. They become followers, with little opportunity of developing the qualities of leadership which a college should give."

Army experience enables student to go ahead faster

"The average seventeen and eighteen-year-old now planning to attend college would get much more out of college and contribute much more to it, if he first gave himself a chance to broaden his experience by going into service for at least eighteen months."

Now's the time to step up production and take advantage of seasonal prices

Egg prices reach their yearly peak in late fall and early winter. You'll profit from this upswing of prices when you use hen-house lighting to lengthen the working day of early-hatched pullets.

It's easy to have efficient hen-house lighting. Provide about 14 hours of light daily—enough in the morning to get the birds off the roosts and keep them off—at least 15 minutes of dim light at night so that the birds can roost before "lights out." Whether you prefer manual switches or automatic clock controls doesn't matter . . . the important thing is to look to your lighting—to make sure your poultry is giving top production.

Your Edison Man
Recommends:

40-watt lamps, fitted with shades and hung six feet from the floor, are usually best. Use one watt per five square feet of floor space. A hen-house 20 x 40 feet, for instance, should have four 40-watt bulbs. For further assistance, see your Edison Farm Service Advisor.

Miners Verify Report

Of Arctic Gold Strike

FORT ST. JOHN, B. C.—The Canadian press said that prospectors of the Far North had a fabulous story of new riches, of solid gold nuggets found on the Firth river in the western arctic, 400 miles north of Dawson City, Yukon.

Eskimo hunters brought word of the find, due north of the storied Klondike gold fields, to Aklavik during the summer, and Ernest Maxwell, a Yellowknife mining engineer, who made a dangerous plane flight, has returned to verify the reports.

Eskimos told of finding solid gold nuggets, worth more than $100 apiece, along the river banks, and Maxwell said he washed gold along the Firth and its tributaries.

The Firth arises in the extreme northeastern part of Alaska, crosses the boundary into Yukon territory and flows into the Arctic ocean. It is in forbidding country where game is scarce.

Attorney General Clark Aids

Entry of G.I. Chinese Kin

WASHINGTON.—Atty. Gen. Tom C. Clark ordered the immigration and naturalization service to speed up the processing of Chinese women and children arriving in San Francisco to join their G.I. husbands.

His action followed complaints that they were being detained for prolonged periods without opportunity for the husbands and fathers to meet with them.

Since the war ended, 1,200 Chinese women and 2,000 children, offspring of the G.I. marriages, have arrived in this country.

Early Wooling by Seals

To Cost Many Fur Coats

WASHINGTON.—Because a lot of seals started wooling early this year, a lot of men won't be able to buy their wives sealskin coats.

The interior department said that only 61,447 skins were harvested this season, far less than average.

The reason: Young male seals—the ones that get skinned—began "mingling with the young females earlier than usual."

To keep happy homes intact, the season was abruptly ended several weeks early.

Smiling Annie

By Sue Reckefus

THE GIRL behind the counter wasn't pretty. She knew it and she didn't mind. It was easier to talk to the soldiers who came in for a sandwich and coke between trains. Not being pretty, she could joke with them and listen to their stories without flirting with them. When you were pretty, you felt you had to flirt a little.

They called her Annie. Annie with the smile. She wasn't smiling now as she wiped the counter. The place was empty and she had a chance to think about this morning. Mr. Jacobs had been mad, and sorry he was mad, which made him sound even worse. He had worked hard for his tiny restaurant and he was proud he was finally making a profit. He often spoke of his son overseas and how much he wanted enough money saved to give his boy a start when he came back. Lately he had begun losing money and it was Annie's fault.

She had begun in a small way not charging a few boys for their food and putting the money in the cash register herself. She couldn't resist the look on a boy's face when he realized a stranger was being kind. For the last few weeks, however, she didn't have enough to balance and Mr. Jacobs had found out. He had given her the last warning to-day. Once more and she would have to leave.

The girl wasn't pretty. She didn't mind. When you were pretty, you felt you had to flirt a little.

The door opened and a soldier walked in. He was tired, but he had a glow about him and his eyes were smiling.

"Hello," he said. "I know just what I want. I'll have two tall glasses of orange juice. Real orange juice not canned or anything else. I want to see you squeeze them and I want to smell the rind."

"Golly with the build-up, I hope we have some. I'll have to look."

She opened the refrigerator and peered into it. Way in the back were a dozen of the biggest oranges she had seen for a long time. Funny, she didn't know they were there. She must have missed them so far back.

WHEN THE first big glass was in front of him, he said, "Now I know I'm home. I wasn't too sure for a while." He slowly drained the glass and put it back on the counter. He finished the second glass with a sigh of satisfaction and stood up to pay. Annie said recklessly, "It's on the house, soldier."

Turning toward the door, he said softly, "Yep, I'm really home."

Mr. Jacobs stopped by his restaurant to get some things he had left in the refrigerator and to see how Annie was making out. He gave her a cheerful greeting.

"Annie, did you see the oranges I asked you to save? I am sure I put them in here."

"I am sorry, Mr. Jacobs, I forgot. I gave them to a customer; a soldier. He was thirsty," she added helplessly, "I'm awfully sorry. I'll go get some more."

In a tired voice, Mr. Jacobs said, "I waited in line early this morning for these. They were the best in town. By the way, what did you charge for them?"

"Can't you please take it out of my next week's salary? I won't give for free any more. I couldn't help it this time. It was different somehow."

"It always is," he said flatly. "This was the last time. I'm sorry, too, but I'll have to let you go."

He walked out the door, not wanting to see her bleak eyes.

Halfway down the block, he started to run toward a tall figure in khaki. He hugged his son and they started laughing together and sat down talking.

"Say, Pop, I stopped by the place before I got home. I thought maybe you would be there. But I couldn't have had better service if you had. A really swell girl made me some orange juice, just like I used to dream about. I knew I was home then. Boy, it was something. And by the way, she didn't charge me. That made me feel even better. If that kind of thing is your contribution to service morale, you couldn't have picked one better."

"You don't know how many fellows get on the beam again, just from somebody being nice to them who doesn't have to."

Natural Gas Storage
Two members of the Northwestern university's faculty have developed a new method for storing natural gas in liquid form that will cut storage space by almost 99 per cent. Under the method, which uses refrigeration, 800 cubic feet of natural gas may be contained in one cubic foot of storage space.

Keep Tools In Shape
Tools should be kept in good condition. An old ax or hammer may have a loose head that will fly off and strike a bystander. Sharp tools properly used and stored will do more work with less effort than tools in poor condition.

Now Without Any Strings
What ever happened to the old-fashioned string bean? Well, when agricultural scientists went to work on it, they developed varieties without "strings" that will snap like a stick of peppermint candy. So it is now the "snap bean," but it has not lost any of its old flavor and food value. In fact these same scientists have produced a better bean in flavor and food value.

Comfortable Baby Garments Are Easy To Make at Home

By Ertha Haley

A LOT of study has gone into the making of baby clothing during the last few years and the main things that emerge from this study are easy to understand. Simplicity and comfort are the basic considerations, and this is the main reason that the elaborate layette is a thing of the past.

Mothers now understand that it is just as important for baby to be comfortable as it is for her. Too loose things may be just as uncomfortable on baby as they are on her because baby rolls around and is very active even during the early months. Too tight a sleeve treatment can be just as uncomfortable for him as it is on a dress for her.

Most babies dislike being dressed, and for this reason it is important not to have too fussy garments. The youngsters do not like having things slipped over their heads if they are too tight, and for this reason we now have shirts, kimono and gowns that go on easily and slip off readily.

Then, too, there's a word to be said about fastening materials. You'll find that the new snap-on buttons are quickest and easiest to use, and ties are next in preference. But make certain these ties are of broad or heavy material so they do not become knotted and make themselves difficult to remove.

Bear in mind the temperature of the home when selecting clothing for the infant. If the house is not very warm, select a good grade of

Simple Elegance

Black crepe jacket dress is smartly styled by a New York designer for a woman's figure. Self fabric ties at the neckline are run through coral tabs embroidered in aqua and gold. Gold buttons fasten the jacket which has its sleeves tapered from upper fullness.

the stitching so that this will not pull out.

Avoid ribbon and silk ties as they do not stand frequent washings. To add a touch of daintiness to the garment, you may embroider something dainty and baby-like on the yoke.

If you are making your own diapers, see that corners are well constructed because of their frequent washing. Thread number 50 is also good to use on them for this very same reason.

Slips, pads and bibs should also be machine-stitched to withstand both wear and laundering. Slips may be of lighter material, but the pads and bibs should be sturdy.

Make Infant's Dresses Roomy and Dainty

A baby does not need many dresses for they are quickly outgrown. Two is sufficient and four is the maximum you should need. These are not used when the baby is at home unless, on a special occasion, you want to bring the baby out. The main reason for having dresses at all is for the few times the baby goes out, and for christening, if that is the custom you follow.

Bishop dresses are regarded as most popular because they have the raglan type armhole which will not be too tight for the active infant. Then, too, the sleeves are easy to sew on with french seams, and a sleeve will not have to be as carefully fitted in as in the other type of dress.

It is most important that baby dresses have fullness for comfort. Sleeves should be easy to get in and out of, and the neck can be made large enough for the head to go through readily if there is a long enough slit in the back that buttons daintily.

Use the simplest of laces, but be certain to have them dainty.

Gathers and tucks will solve the problem of fullness but they should be made as dainty as possible. Machine-made tucks may also be used to save time, but they should be tiny enough to make the dress as attractive as possible.

The usual length for the baby dress is from 48 to 54 inches. The slip is two inches shorter than the dress, usually. The very softest of materials such as lawn, batiste or voile may be used. Organza is not used until the child is older, as the starchiness of the material may irritate the infant's tender skin.

Eiderdown or Flannel Used for Bunting

In the cooler weather you'll find that a bunting is a very practical item for the baby's wardrobe. If you live in the warmer climates, a sheer woolen or fine corduroy may be sufficient, but for really cooler climates a heavy wool flannel or eiderdown is essential. The bunting may also be lined for baby's comfort.

For the older child you'll find that it's practical to make a bunting with sleeves so that he does not keep poking his hands directly into the cold. Be sure to have a zipper all the way down the front as this is of great value when you're bundling him up to take out of doors.

Make a hood for the bunting out of the same material. The hoods which attach to the bunting on the inside back can be kept firmly anchored.

OFFICE OF VETERANS' AFFAIRS LANSING

Veterans Entering Business May Secure Help

Veterans planning to establish and operate their own businesses should avail themselves of the assistance offered by the Detroit District Office of the U. S. Department of Commerce. This office maintains a library of valuable statistics, reports, pamphlets, and publications. It is, in fact, a comprehensive record of results of the fact-finding facilities of the Department of Commerce.

Available to any veteran for a nominal fee of from fifteen to fifty cents each are manuals on establishing and operating small businesses. These manuals serve as guides in establishing and operating small businesses and service establishments in a number of fields. In businesses requiring mechanical skills, it is assumed that the prospective businessman is a thoroughly experienced skilled worker. Therefore, in this series of manuals, the mechanical side of the business is not covered except as it applies to management.

The series covers such subjects as organization and management of the business, operating costs and record keeping, getting business, financing, buying, arrangement and display, pricing, credits and collections, and employee relations. A complete list of the books available is in the hands of all veterans' counseling centers, or the information may be secured by writing to the U. S. Department of Commerce, Detroit District Office, 1038 New Federal Building, Detroit 26, Michigan.

Thanksgiving Driving

It's an old American tradition for the entire family to get together for Thanksgiving dinner. For some of the family it may mean just a trip around the corner; for others, arriving at that table laden with turkey, pumpkin pie and all the other favorites, may mean a day's trip.

This year, as other Thanksgivings, there will be people who never reach the family gathering because they will be involved in a traffic accident. If this year is like others, some of the family will not make it home after the dinner. The reason is the same as before: traffic accidents.

Make this a safe and happy Thanksgiving for yourself and your family. In a line of traffic keep enough distance between yourself and the other fellow so you can stop without crashing into the car ahead. Do not pass unless the highway is free of oncoming traffic for enough distance to permit overtaking and passing in safety. When passing, always sound your horn unless you are in a business or residential district.

Three-Eyed Tuatara The New Zealand tuatara has a third eye on the top of its head.

"Opposition in Michigan rural areas to the European lending program and the food saving program is very strong," writes a newspaper editor who specializes in agriculture and who is recognized as a leader in his field.

"Farmers see the real purpose of the food-saving program as an effort to cut prices. They feel that prices are not too high when compared to other costs."

This editor's frank comment is of timely interest. This week at Washington the Congress of the United States received a historic message from the President. It concerned the so-called "Marshall Plan" whereby 140,000,000 Americans would give a helping hand of dollars and foodstuffs to Western Europe's 270,000,000.

With the President's message last Monday, the people of the Nation began a great popular debate. As Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg said November 3 at Ann Arbor, "Foreign policy is a legitimate subject of frank debate by our citizens. Foreign policy belongs to the people."

It is not the intention, nor policy, of this column of news interpretation to offer our personal judgment, to attempt to arrive at any omniscient conclusion. We do believe that several observations should be offered at this time, factual premises upon which we may intelligently discuss the issues of the hour.

First, the need of food for Western Europe. We believe it to be an honest statement of fact to say that Western Europe faces a general grain shortage in the third post-war winter now gathering momentum.

Reports from impartial, unbiased newspaper correspondents, Congressional investigating committees and Presidential fact-finding groups all substantiate these shortages. Basic cause of the grain shortage was the 1947 weather, ranging from floods to drought. Supplementing cause was the black market, nourished by government food rationing whereby growers may profit by withholding grain for higher prices.

The Associated Press was criticized by a newspaper editor at the Associated Press Managing Editors' national convention in Detroit for using phrase "hungry Europe" in a Washington dispatch. The editor said the A. P. had fallen for "administration" propaganda.

Rehman Morin, chief of the Washington bureau, defended the phrase as accurately portraying an economic condition today in Western Europe. He said the preponderance of information as gathered by newspaper correspondents in Europe and by a majority of traveling American congressmen attested to the existence of food shortages overseas.

Drew Middleton, veteran correspondent of the New York Times, reports that such food shortages are widespread throughout Western Europe. He says the grain shortage exists from England to the Balkans.

Our Michigan newspaper editor friend insists that "practically every small town restaurant in the state is ignoring the (food-saving) program" and that "meat markets sell as much meat on Tuesday as they ever did."

Methods used to save food may be justly unpopular. The poultry fiasco is a good example. However, we do accept as premise No. 1: Western Europe will go hungry and cold this winter unless aid is forthcoming from the outside. The question of food saving then is not whether there are shortages of food in Europe, but rather whether we, as Americans, want to try to make up some of the difference between the amount of food Europe has grown and the amount it will need for minimum physical good health and survival.

How is food saving at home linked to American foreign policy? This question will be discussed next week.

MAGICAL DEMONSTRATIONS OF BIBLICAL TRUTHS

In Pennsylvania, Mr. Hostetler had a curious yen to know how magic was performed and proceeded to find out. He is today one of the most adept in this sleight of hand performance which he uses to portray truths from Scripture. He is an experienced Sunday School superintendent and Bible teacher with a background of thirty years appearing before church and school groups throughout the United States and Canada. He finds that one can't afford not to be a Christian in the fullest sense of the word and claims the greatest magic is when Christ takes a vile sinner and makes him to be a new creature; a mysterious change which is only evidenced by expression of a Christian life of service.

Mr. Hostetler says, "God's work is important to those who assume responsibility for its direction and should give it the same enthusiastic support and zealous effort which is necessary to do a task well in business."

ROAD BLOCKADES TO CHECK ON CHRISTMAS TREES

This is the season of the year when one begins to think of Christmas trees and we must also remember the provisions of the Christmas Tree Law (Act 124 PA 1933) which governs all cutting, removing and transporting of these trees within the state's boundaries. C. A. Boyer, Chief of the Bureau of Plant Industry, State Department of Agriculture, again this year will establish road blockades to check on trees being transported by car, truck and trailers. For approximately six weeks these blockades will render 24 hour service for the convenience of anyone wishing to move trees.

Anyone wishing to cut or transport Christmas trees, holly, and evergreen or other decorative boughs, must first obtain permission from the property owners, securing a legal bill of sale, which must accompany the trees at the time they are in transportation.

No Game For the Poor

The laws in the old world were enacted for the comfort of a privileged class, and it was hardly to be expected that the poor would obey, without complaint, laws which protected the wild creatures from the fowling pieces and snares of the poor, in order that there might be sport for the nobility.

Britain's Bid for Power Electric power plants have received from the British government first call on the nation's annual steel supply of 13 million tons.

County 4H Leaders Met at Court House

Sixty 4-H Club leaders and teachers were present at the fall leaders' training meeting on Nov. 12 at the court house at Caro. Nevels Pearson and Mrs. Corrine White, assistant State 4-H Club leaders, Michigan State College; the Detroit Edison Company and the County Extension Staff all contributed a great deal toward making this a very educational and worthwhile meeting. Mrs. White demonstrated methods of sewing and finishing dresses which should make clothing exhibits much better in the future.

Mr. Pearson did his work with handicraft which was of interest to many leaders who will be helping 4-H club boys and girls this winter.

The Detroit Edison Company helped the 4-H club members with both girls and boys electrical projects.

As part of the program, the group divided up into groups and discussed the subject, "Are County Wide 4-H Club Officers Training Meetings Worthwhile?"

Dinner was served by the ladies from the Evangelical United Brethren Church. Music was furnished by Miss Roma Lee Humm; at the piano, while the leaders ate.
