The Reese Review, under the management of G. C. Higdon, is coming to the front. It is now one of the best papers on the Bad Axe division of the P. M. road.

The Caro Journal of last week contained a very creditable write-up of the Caro fair. However, the so-called snapshots, which "were not taken especially for the occasion," gave the entire front page a bummy, vandyville appearance. Without any extra charge, neighbor, we would advise

Cass City May Secure a Sugar Factory in the Near Future. Business Men Are Awake.

Cass City is looming up. The prospects for industrial developments are growing brighter every day. The agitation which has been going on has not been in vain. Matters are shaping themselves very satisfactorily. Cass City will win out with flying colors.

Last Monday night a well attended business men's meeting was held at the Exchange Bank. The meeting was called by our enterprising citizen, A. A. McKenzie, who has been largely instrumental in securing present results. The Chronicle is not at liberty at this time to publish every detail of what transpired at Monday night's gathering. Suffice it to say eastern capital is sufficiently interested to insure the building of a sugar factory. Every requirement has been met thus far. The gentlemen present unanimously voted to secure a site and the necessary acreage. All things being equal, our village will experience a boom even greater than the most sanguine have yet imagined. We trust our farmers will join hands with the merchants and do their share, as the profits of beet raising will be realized more by them than anyone else.

Let's get up steam and run the thing for all it is worth. Results will follow. Borrow no trouble, but all unite and make Cass City the biggest town in the Thumb. Do business.

FIRST--CLASS FAIR

The Show Was Formally Opened Yesterday. Exhibits, Races and Everything Complete.

The T. H. & S. Fair is now in full blast, and so is everything that goes with it. Tuesday was moving-in day, but on Wednesday evening as we go to press everything is in full bloom.

An immense amount of work has been done by President Kefren and his corps of helpers and if no preventing providence, he will have the satisfaction of seeing the biggest crowds on the grounds that have ever attended the fair. The rain on Tuesday night laid the dust and everybody is hoping that the balance of the week may be favored with fair weather. The floral hall is well filled with all kinds of exhibits, flowers, needlework, dry goods, pianos, and things of interest. The stock sheds are filled up completely. Secretary Ale says that the society never had a better exhibit in this department.

Superintendents Pettinger, Moden, Mead, Parr, Knight, Murphy, Wood, Livingston, Reid and McGeorge are busy, but good natured people. Everything is expected of them and hence it takes much tact and patience to keep things running smoothly. There are plenty of good horses, cattle, sheep, hogs, and poultry. Despite the bad fruit year the exhibit is capital.

The new dining hall managed by W. C. Janks is doing a flourishing business. The management did wisely in erecting this building. The racing feature is highly successful. There are about thirty racers entered. In speaking of the races which will be pulled off during the week Sept. McGeorge, with a smile in his left eye, remarked, "You'll see some pretty fast ones on this track before the fair is over." The track has never been in better shape. Martin Anthes is receiving praises for the wholesale for having taken so much pains in getting the track in shape. Morgan Jones said, "It's the best track in the Thumb today." And he, certainly, ought to know.

The vaudeville bill from all appearances is complete. Prof. Chandler's diving feats, Sidonia's midair comedies, the aerial artists, and the Glass sisters' singing and dances are greatly applauded by the crowds.

The string of fairs and shows, with some exceptions are a nuisance, but as one man remarked, "It all helps to make up a show." All in all, the fair is up to the standard of the best county fairs and much better than most of them.

The stock departments are full and overflowing and demonstrates the fact that this part of the Thumb is a stock growing country. Early Wednesday morning, President Kefren, was compelled to engage carpenters to build more sheds and stalls for the accommodation of the increased stock exhibits. The entries of cattle, sheep and hogs have never been so large as at this fair. They are all prize winners too. The following well-known stock breeders are represented: Jno. Marshall & Son, W. H. Murphy, Thos. Murphy, Ephraim Knight, Ira Reid, Frank Terry, A. Boulton, Wm. Webster, Joel Wither, O. C. Wood, John Pettinger, John Elliott, Geo. Gray, Mr. McDowell, J. D. Allen, Wm. Balch.

FLORAL HALL.

The floral hall without an exception, presents the very best exhibits it has ever presented not only in the number but quality of the numerous exhibits. The enormous number of plants, palms and flowers has made it necessary to occupy every available space in the hall that is not otherwise occupied. The fancy work is such as would please the eye of any young lady who has any taste in that direction. The usual amount of space is being used for this work. Battenburg and point lace seem to reign supreme while drawn work embroidery and fancy work of every description is there in abundance. The paintings, including china painting and crayon work, seems to make about the same appearance as usual. About two-thirds of the southeast side of the hall is occupied by Fairweather Bros. is making a very fine display of both dry goods and groceries. The front of their booth is very prettily draped and the whole display shows that much time and effort has been used in making their fine exhibit. J. L. Hitecock & Sons are also represented, having on exhibition several very fine stoves and various other articles in their line. Geo. Matzen displays a booth which would certainly appeal to the eye as most picturesque and dainty, the flowers and palms giving the required finishing touch. Robb & Coon are also there with a very complete exhibit of their goods, including pianos, organs and sewing machines. This booth is an attraction owing to the music rendered by Mr. Robb. The exhibits made by the above business men show a certain amount of push not only in the matter of dollars and cents but it shows they are awake, enterprising and interested in the success of the fair.

HORSES.
The exhibit of horses exceeds in number that of last year, and some very fine animals are shown. Among them are several registered imported stallions which shows that the farmers in this neck of woods are alive to their interests in improving their stock of horses. The following gentlemen have horses on exhibition, Cass City Horse Breeders' Association, Neil McLaren, Wm. Little, A. Webster, L. Kennedy, W. Brown, Motz & Ackerman, Ed Eaton, John Dickhout, H. Wettlaufer, Amos Sansburn, Robt. Agar, Mr. Henderson, Ed Flint, Wm. Day, B. Bingham, Geo. Gray and Michael Race.

POULTRY.
There is a small but exceptionally fine exhibit in this department. S. Bigelow, Wm. Balch, A. A. P. McDowell, John Walden and Stanley Striffler are making a creditable showing with their birds.

VEGETABLES AND FRUIT.
In this department the exhibit is not so large as in previous years but the specimens of apples, pears, corn, potatoes, cabbage, pumpkins, melons, roots, and seeds of every variety are first-class. Those Rural New Yorkers are corkers.

RACES.

FACTS FOR SICK PEOPLE.

MAY 11, 1901.

I was suffering from general paralysis as a result of diphtheria. I had treated with the best physicians of Tuscola Co., with no benefit; in fact I grew worse under their treatment. I was entirely incapacitated for work, when I consulted the Detroit Clinic at Vassar, on March 13th; two months' treatment has completely cured me, and I am able to do my work. I advise any one suffering from chronic diseases to consult this clinic.

(Signed) JOHN F. ALLEN,
Vassar, Mich.

Mrs. Grant McConnell, of Cass City, Mich., had a large growth of a cancerous nature growing on the inside of the mouth. It had been removed several times, but always returned. She had it removed by the surgeon of the Detroit Clinic, and without the use of a knife and with no pain, it was permanently removed in less than 30 days.

(Signed) JOHN HORNBER,
Novesta, Mich.

I have been growing deaf in both ears for the past six years as a result of La Grippe. I consulted the Detroit Clinic during their monthly visit to Cass City in January, and one month's treatment restored my hearing so that I could hear a watch tick five inches from my ear.

(Signed) C. C. JONES,
Rochester, Mich.

For 10 years I was a terrible sufferer from chronic rheumatism. I did everything possible, but found no relief, until I commenced treatment with the Detroit Clinic. Three months of their treatment cured me.

(Signed) Mrs. C. M., of Birmingham, Mich.

Mrs. C. M., of Birmingham, Mich. was cured of Bronchitis and Catarrh after she had been given up by several physicians, who said she had consumption.

Mrs. L. C. Smith, of Detroit, was cured of Epilepsy (or fits) after having had this terrible disease for seven years.

The great success with which the Clinic treats all kinds of diseases is the wonder and admiration of all scientific men. The specialist in charge is noted for his skill, and the care with which every case is treated. No case that is not curable will be treated, but curable cases are treated with the latest scientific methods, and in no case does it interfere with the work of the patient.

Remember, it costs you nothing to consult this specialist, such an opportunity does not offer itself very often to people outside of large cities, and our citizens will certainly do well to take advantage of this one. It is best to consult the specialist personally, but question blanks will be sent on application, and all communications will be given prompt attention, if they are addressed to

Craig Ronald.

Craig Ronald, No. 8457, Vol. 13, No. 17111, Vol. 6, No. 8662, Vol. 9, Pure Bred Imported Clydesdale Stallion. Craig Ronald is one of the best and most popular bred Clydesdale Stallions ever imported from Scotland, as he is the Great Grand Son of his Sire's side to Prince of Wales (673) and Great Grand Son on his Dam's side to the Great and Famous Darnley (222), the two greatest horses in the generation just passed. Though possessing different sires, they were nevertheless of the same blood, the dam of each being a daughter or Logan's Twin (741), they were yet remote enough so that the produce of each could successfully be bred together. No bluer blood was ever carried in a Stallion's vein than this. Some others are as good, but none better. The property of Neil McLaren, Cass City, Mich. This horse took second prize at the Carro fair.

WASHINGTON LETTER

[Special Correspondence.]
Coal exportations from the United States during the fiscal year just ended, as shown by the treasury bureau of statistics, amounted to $22,317,496 against $19,502,813 in the fiscal year 1900, $13,051,028 in 1899, $11,008,043 in 1897, $10,040,062 in 1896 and $8,391,020 in 1891. Thus the value of coal exportations from the United States has doubled since 1897 and nearly trebled in the decade. These figures relate to values. Measured by quantity, the increase has been even greater, the exports in 1901 being 7,676,140 tons against 2,390,039 tons in 1891, thus making the total exports of 1901 in quantity more than three times as much as in 1891. The United States now stands third in the list of coal-exporting countries of the world. The coal export figures of the principal countries of the world in 1890 show that while Belgium slightly exceeded the United States in the total number of tons exported her imports were more than one-half as great as her imports, making her net exportation of coal much less than that of the United States.

Preparations in Washington Theaters.

Washington's new fire chief, Mr. Dutton, who was formerly a newspaper reporter, has added another to numerous excellent devices for fire protection. He has issued an order detailing a fireman in full uniform to be stationed on the stage of every theater in Washington during every performance. This fireman is specially instructed in the duties incident to his position, so that in case of a fire he can instantly turn in an alarm, take command of the theater force trained to use the stand pipes, chemical extinguishers and other means of putting out a fire with all possible promptness. This fire sentinel is also to be charged with the duty of seeing that all the apparatus for fire protection is in order from day to day, so that in case of necessity there will be no risk from any cause that could be well anticipated.

Oil Test Too Expensive.

The plan to test oil as fuel for naval ships has been abandoned by Rear Admiral M. T. Endicott, who has the matter in charge. He had arranged that the test should take place at the Mare Island navy yard, and it was intended to construct at once large steel tanks for the storage of the oil.

It was expected the cost of the preparations would not involve a greater expenditure than $2,000. Estimates received from the officers at Mare Island, however, indicate that a plant sufficient to make an adequate test of oil as a substitute for coal would cost fully $10,000. The bureau of yards and docks does not possess a fund for any such liberal equipment, and the bureau chief is compelled to defer the test. He still has faith in the possibility that oil may be profitably used as fuel at navy yard plants, and it is possible that the bureau estimates of next year will include an item of such amount as will permit full experimentation.

An Army War College.

An army war college will probably be established in Washington. Secretary Root was authorized by the last session of congress to detail a board of army officers to look into the question of the organization and establishment of an advanced school for army officers, the scope of which would correspond to that of the Naval War college at Newport. The board has held a number of sessions in the past year, with General William Ludlow as president, and the conclusions, based on advice given by army officers and the examination of similar institutions in Europe, have been submitted to Secretary Root, who will probably recommend in his next annual report that congress provide for a college to be located in this city, where it is intended to be placed under the military information division of the war department.

Tight and Loose.

Speaking of naval reprimands, an old wardroom story, its truth not vouched for, has been revived about Rear Admiral Stephen B. Luce since the mention of his name in connection with the Schley court. It seems that as a young man he was a great beau and highly popular among the gay set surrounding the naval station at Newport. On the same ship was a rather grim and severe senior officer who did not approve of social dissipation in the service and was on the constant lookout for any dereliction on the part of the youngsters. One evening after a round of pleasure Luce came back to the ship to find this martinet on the deck as he stepped off the gangway. The elder man looked the youngster over with the eye of disapprobation and remarked sharply:

"Mr. Luce, you're tight!"
"Pardon me," was the quick retort.
"If Stephen B. Luce, how can he be tight, sir?"

Brazilian Coffee in Porto Rico.

A decision of importance to the coffee industry of Porto Rico has been rendered by the treasury department. The appeal from the island for the imposition of a 5 per cent duty upon Brazilian coffee entering Porto Rico is denied on the ground that the law guarantees it free admission on the same basis as though it was brought directly to the United States. The Porto Ricans are attempting a boycott of Brazilian coffee and are quite successful in getting the merchants of the island to promise not to import it. An appeal will undoubtedly be made to congress at the next session for relief, as Brazilian coffee will eventually destroy the industry in Porto Rico.

John Hyde, the statistician of the agricultural department, has returned from a tour of Europe, where he visited for the purpose of arranging a system for the exchange of telegraphic crop reports.

CARL SCHOFIELD.

HUMOR OF THE HOUR

Superstitious.

"My wife is very superstitious," said Brown. "She is constantly on the lookout for signs that portend dire results; but, unfortunately for her peace of mind, every sign has its antidote. For example, if you see a black cat with one white foot something dreadful will happen unless you say the name of some dead friend backward. Yesterday at dinner she accidentally overturned the salt. Now, this is one of the worst things that one can do, according to her, and she hastily seized a handful of the salt and threw it over her shoulder; but, quick as she was, she was not quick enough to ward off the awful consequences of her act. Just at the moment that she threw the salt over her shoulder Mary, the hired girl, chanced to be standing at her back in the act of passing a plate of soup. The result was that Mary got the soup down her neck. I supposed this broke the spell, but it seems it didn't. Mrs. Brown announced that her gown was ruined and that I would have to buy her a new one.

"My dear," said I mildly, "I had nothing to do with spilling the salt, and I see no reason why I should be brought under the hoodoo."

"You laughed," she snapped.
"Come to think of it I did, and it seems that the only antidote I can apply to ward off trouble is to buy her a new gown."—Detroit Free Press.

Strange, Isn't It?

"Queer she never got married. She's so capable and resourceful a woman, so earnest and forceful."

"Is she?"

"Oh, yes, indeed. She's the kind of a woman who can look out for herself. Why, she knocked a man down once when he tried to flirt with her, she took a horsewhip to a fellow who spoke of her in a derogatory manner, and she drove a peddler four blocks with a mop."

"Yes, yes," he returned thoughtfully, "it is strange that no one ever has seemed to want her for a wife, isn't it?"—Chicago Post.

Wasn't Plump Enough.

Missionary—I've come among you to try to do you good.

Chief—Well good ob you, sah, but I've afraid you won't be any good to us till you get more fatter.

Only Natural.

The sentimental bride on the park bench was watching the sun set.

And she murmured:

"See, darling, how phosphorescent?"

"It's no wonder," responded the matter of fact bridegroom, "when you think how many matches are made here."

Then as the sun sank to rest her head sank likewise on George's shoulder—and all was still.—Chicago Tribune.

Catching a Feminine Fish.

"Do you really think there are mermaids in the sea?"

"Certainly," said the dime museum man.

"Then why hasn't anybody besides you succeeded in catching one?"

The Stolen Diamond.

The other evening a well dressed man put up at a hotel in Buffalo. On the middle finger of his right hand was a heavy gold ring in which was set a diamond of unusual brilliancy. It was the first thing one noticed about the man. It shone and sparkled in quite a wonderful way. The hotel clerk was interested in him and his gem and elicited his story.

"My name is Lee—Charles Lee," said the man. "I am from Savannah. This ring I have worn on my finger for 20 years. It is no wonder you are interested in it. I believe it is one of the finest diamonds in Georgia. I showed it to a jeweler awhile ago, and he offered me $10,000 for it. So you see it is as valuable as it looks. There have been scores of people who have asked me about it, but I have very seldom told the story which it recalls. I cannot tell its entire history, and what I don't know is very likely more interesting than what I do.

"When I was a boy, I lived with my uncle down on a Georgia plantation. One day, while prowling through the garret of the big house, I found a trunk which was unlocked. I opened it. It was filled with old laces and women's clothes of a fashion of years before. Down toward the bottom I saw a small jewel case. Inside I found this stone. I left it there and went down stairs and asked my uncle about it. He wouldn't believe my story. He went up to the garret to see for himself, and he was a surprised man when he came down again. Several days later he told me all about it.

"My uncle was an old man then, but when he was a boy he had been a sailor and had been all over the world. When he was on board ship, he made friends with a man named Galvin. Galvin was a wayward sort of man and not to be depended upon. Once the ship touched at Havre, and he ran away. My uncle did not see him again for 15 years. Then, one day, a broken down man, looking much older than he really was, came to the old Georgia homestead.

"My uncle had a long talk with him in the library. The man was Galvin. He said he was being followed by the police for implication in some big robbery, and he wanted my uncle to protect him. He had been such a good friend to my uncle in former days that my uncle did not have the heart to turn him away. He gave the man a home for a few weeks. By that time the robbery had been almost forgotten, and Galvin went away. Before he went he gave my uncle this stone. 'I picked it up somewhere,' he said, 'I don't know what it's worth, but I want you to take it for what you've done for me.'

"So my uncle kept it. He did not know its value. He laid it away somewhere and forgot all about it. He was not particularly fond of jewels and never wore them himself. "Years after that he received a letter written in a large, sprawling hand. It was from Galvin. He had sent it from some place in Kansas, which was then out in the wild west. He wrote that he was sick and likely to die and had repented of his crimes. And he wrote the interesting information that he had stolen the diamond from a big house in London, where he had fallen in with a gang of housebreakers.

"It had been stolen with the other jewels of a wealthy young woman who was about to be married. Her name was Vincent. He asked my uncle to make a search for the young woman, and if he ever succeeded in finding her to return to her the diamond with Galvin's compliments." "My uncle happened to be in London on a pleasure trip two years later, and he spent several days trying to find the young woman. He searched through old police records and did everything in his power, but it was a hopeless task. He got trace at last of a young woman who had married an army officer and who had died in India soon after her marriage, and there were certain bits of information which led him to believe this might be the person he wanted. But he was unable to find anything more about her. He could find none of her friends or relatives. "Soon he had to leave London, and the search for the missing Miss Vincent was never continued. If ever I go to London, I think I will make a try at it myself, just for curiosity. It is 50 years ago that the stone was stolen, and I don't suppose I would have any success. Still it would be an interesting search, and if I did succeed what a story it might bring to light. If the owner of the ring is alive, she must be at least 70 years old. In ten years from now there will not be a chance left of success.

"To tell the truth, I have been glad at times that the owner never was found, for I would hate to part with a $10,000 diamond.

"My uncle was always careless about things of that sort, and he lost track of it. He had not been able to find it until years later, when I made the discovery in the trunk. Shortly before he died, some 20 years ago, he gave the stone to me on the condition that I would return it to the rightful owner if she should ever be found. I have worn it ever since."—Exchange.

A Martyr to Principle.

"Ah, poor thing! Her end was sad in the extreme."

"Indeed!"

"You know, she always revolted at the idea that there could be anything in common between her and the lower classes."

"So I have always heard."

"Well, she caught cold from her cook and was so ashamed that she refused all medical aid and died."—Life.

THE PASSING OF A DREAM.

A wan and wishful hope was mine,
Whistling on earth didst hold thy place.

A WAGON-LOAD OF FIRE.

By Lewis B. Miller.

On a pleasant day in early winter, about a year after we had settled on the Little Peconic Creek, I yoked up Lep and Coaly, the oxen, and put them to the wagon.

Two miles from home I came to the house where Sinclair McCarty, a boy of my own age, lived. As he was a good hand at stacking or loading straw, father had suggested that I stop and get him to go with me.

I drove on. Johnson would help me load the straw; but while jolting through the woods, I saw McCarty's dogs run across the road, and knew that Sinclair was near.

"Well, what do you think of my new gun?" was his first remark, as he held the weapon up for inspection. "Traded my saddle for her," he explained.

"How does it shoot?" I asked. "Don't know. Just got my ammunition this morning, and haven't seen anything to shoot at yet. She's all right, though; you can tell that by looking at her."

He consented to go with me, and as we jogged along, he showed me his new powder-horn, which he had made himself. It was a large one, now nearly full of powder. It hung on one side of him, and an ammunition-bag of undressed deer-skin on the other.

"It's got two pounds in it," said Sinclair. "The musket wasn't a patch!" to what that powder'd do when it goes off, it'll blow everything sky-high."

"O goodness! The oxen will be killed and the wagon blown to pieces!" Since the explosion Lep and Coaly were running faster, and the flaming load of straw was bouncing and swaying down the road.

"No danger—now!" cried Sinclair, breathlessly. "Let's catch 'em—if we can!" We increased our speed. The blazing straw scattered by the wagon was setting fire to the prairie, and we had to keep on one side. Soon the oxen circled to the right, making straight for the ridge. We cut across the prairie, saving a few hundred yards, and were again near the wagon.

"If we can—only—only—over—over—take 'em!" I gasped, as we ran. "Wagon's gone—I guess—but we can—we must—must save—the oxen! Won't do to—let 'em—bur—bur—to death!"

"No—that it—won't!" panted Sinclair. "And if we can—only—get—get her out—before she's—she's burnt—too much—I can—trade her—for—a—"

"What do you want to leave me for, Jane?" asked the mistress. "I am very much pleased with you, and I thought you were quite comfortable here."

"Yes, mum, I'm quite comfortable enough in a way, but—" The cook hesitated and fidgeted about.

"That's so, Sink," I said, "but don't worry about the old thing. Hunt up another one. The owner will be glad to trade it to you for a pocket knife. It was a pity, though, that you lost so much good powder. What tickles me is the way that wagon was saved. If we'd stopped the oxen before they upset it, as we tried to, we couldn't have got the load off, and straw, wagon and all would have burnt up before our eyes, in spite of everything we could do. Lucky turnover for me."

DOOMED TO OBSCURITY.

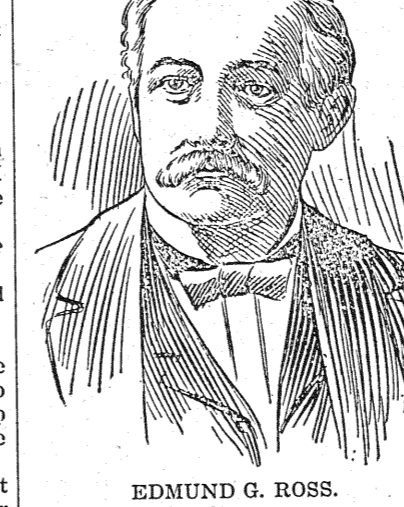

HARD LUCK OF A ONE-TIME SENATOR.

Who Still Bears the Penalty for Having Voted Against the Impeachment of President Johnson—Now a Farmer and Printer.

Dividing his time between a little fruit and alfalfa farm on the outskirts of Albuquerque, N. M., and a printing office in that place, living a life of comparative obscurity, is a man who once was prominent in the political life of the nation, who occupied a seat in the United States senate and whose vote saved Andrew Johnson from being removed from the Presidency.

Gov. Ross, as he is known to the people of New Mexico, is one of the ubiquitous Ohio men. He was born 75 years ago in Ashland, Ohio, near the birthplace of Senator William B. Allison of Iowa. Gov. Ross is one of the oldest printers living. When 8 years old he began learning his trade.

Barriers and ditches are constructed at intervals across the track, and, though a novice would in nine cases out of ten regard the elephants' efforts to negotiate these with conclusions of laughter, devotees to this form of racing become far too absorbed in the fortunes of the contest for the ludicrous side of it to appeal to them.

EDMUND G. ROSS.

He had shown no indication of aspiring to national leadership. He was popular in the senate. His future was full of promise. When the congressional leaders at length determined upon impeachment as a means for disposing of President Johnson they never doubted that they could rely on the Kansas senator to the utmost.

Rumors of corruption and undue influence began to fly about Washington. Letters and marked editorials instructing the senator how to vote came to him by the thousand. Re-election or political ruin were held up as the two alternatives. But to no avail. Ross adhered to his determination to decide the case upon its merits as best he could, and refused to commit himself.

His refusal to commit himself in advance made Senator Ross the marked man of the trial. When the vote was taken on the famous eleventh article, on May 16, 1868, the eyes of the great audience, as well as of the nation, were centered upon him. When he joined with his insurgent colleagues in pronouncing the President not guilty there burst about his head a storm the like of which has never assailed any other public man, and he was cast into the wilderness of obscurity.

Upon his retirement in 1871, Mr. Ross made several successive newspaper ventures in Kansas, all of which were failures, and a short time sufficed to find him again eking out a precarious existence "at the case," as in his early manhood. In 1882 he went to Albuquerque and shortly became foreman of the job department of one of the local newspapers, where he remained for the next three years.

Soured by his summary dismissal from the ranks of the Republican party, Senator Ross became a Democrat, and this change in political faith enabled President Cleveland in 1885 at least partially to reward Ross by appointing him governor of New Mexico. Upon his retirement in 1889, Gov. Ross fitted up a small job printing office in Albuquerque. Much of the time he was the only workman employed. In the humble routine of printing sale bills, circulars and advertising "doggers," he spent the next 10 years.

Two years ago Gov. Ross sold his printing office and purchased a fruit and alfalfa farm of a few acres in the outskirts of the city. Here in a little Mexican adobe house he is spending the sunset years of his life, going into town occasionally to work at his trade.

Blessing Crops in England. In the village of Castlere, in Norfolk, England, they have revived the old custom of blessing the crops. The parishioners gather at the church and form in procession, headed by the vicar and choir. After parading the village they visit the fields of growing corn, at one of which a service is held, hymns are sung and a blessing is pronounced by the vicar.

The opening play given by the Hunt Stock Co. on Monday evening was very poorly attended but the performance was up to the average company's of its class.

Eddie Gougherty, living east and north of the city, was brought to town last Saturday to have a broken arm set. We did not learn how the accident happened.

Anna Rutherford accidentally fell from her wheel last Saturday evening on Main street and was painfully injured about the head. She lay unconscious for some time.

Mr. Heffelbower cut five acres of heavy dent corn with the McCormick corn binder in one half day with one span of horses and never sweat them or never missed a bundle in tying.

John Tuekey, Mitchell, South Dakota, a former citizen of Cass City, was a pleasant caller at the Chronicle office on Monday. Mr. Tuekey is here looking after his business interests.

A. G. Berney, Detroit, is here looking after his business interests. He wears the same pleasant smile and receives a hearty greeting from his many friends here. No one need be surprised to see him return here in the near future.

B. C. Wilkinson, Deford, last Friday surprised the Chronicle force with a bunch of red raspberries which he picked in the woods. Mr. Wilkinson says he picked about a pint of berries on Thursday. Who says Deford hasn't a productive soil?

The Caro fair, it is reported, passed off very successful. The weather was favorable throughout. The receipts are considerable ahead of last year. The following officers were elected:—President, F. B. Ransford; Secretary, W. N. Leonard; Directors, R. S. Jammerson, Andrew Campbell and John Elliott.

The latest exchange which comes to this office is "The Wolverine," a representative weekly published by the students of the University of Michigan. It appears in magazine form and is brim full of well arranged news matter. R. J. Brumm, who was head push in the Chronicle office for several weeks, is the literary editor.

If sufficient interest is manifested a shorthand class will be formed at that time. A slight fee will be charged for instruction in this class and all money thus received will be used in purchasing library books and apparatus for the school.

Mrs. Thos. Flint, nee McLisch, whose sad death was briefly mentioned in last week's Chronicle, was an excellent lady beloved by all who knew her. Mr. and Mrs. Flint were married only a little over a year and their short journey was full of bliss and happiness. Mrs. Flint had an attack of the grippe and from thence on she began to fall until finally death relieved her suffering last Wednesday. Mr. Flint has the sympathy of a large circle of friends in his bereavement.

Treasurer Young, of the State Fair association, has issued the statement of the receipts of the fair. The adult tickets sold were 42,521, half fare 3,202; school tickets, 1,655; grand stand tickets, 12,467. The receipts at Grand Rapids last year were $13,472.65. President Anderson makes the statement that Pontiac more than fulfilled all pledges that were made at Lansing at the time it was decided to have the fair there. It is proposed to make extensive improvements on the grounds before the opening of next year's fair.

W. C. Janks has an eye to business. On Monday he had the finest lot of beef on the hook that was ever seen inside a Cass City meat market. Here is the list. A nine-weeks-old calf, weight 268 lbs.; 4-year-old steer, purchased of Joe Botsford, weight, 1,215 lbs.; a fat cow, purchased of Lou Denning; a 3-year-old cow, raised by Frank Bond, weight 1,420 lbs; and six steers weighing 1,160 apiece, purchased of P. McDonald. Speaking of the meals which he will serve during the fair Mr. Janks said: "This meat will be served by me at the dining hall during the fair."

Dr. Jas. W. Graves, one of Caro's leading practitioners and one of Tuscola County's oldest doctors, died last Friday morning. The Tuscola County Advertiser in speaking of his last illness says the Doctor was found prostrated in his office suffering from hemorrhage of the stomach. He had been in that condition for some hours, and was so weakened as to be unable to summon aid. The floor for several feet around the couch was covered with blood. He was quickly removed to his home on a stretcher and soon after passed away.

It is unfortunate that so many local fairs are held at the same time, not only for exhibitors, but for those who like to make the rounds. Many from this locality would have attended the state fair at Pontiac this week, but loyalty to their home fair kept them away. Next week they must take their choice between Cass City, Sebawaing and Vassar, and the close proximity in which they are held doubtless will tend to keep many away who would otherwise attend. In our opinion the local fairs should begin with the first week in September and continue in succession through the entire month.—Tuscola County Advertiser.

Late Saturday night some forlorn and shipwrecked sister was seen pacing up and down our streets apparently in search of someone who would lend her assistance. At last J. D. Crosby acted the part of the good Samaritan and went searching with her. No one seemed to know where she hailed from or where she was going. J. D. had spent all his energy and could find no one who was willing to keep her over night. He left her in the hands of the nightwatch but as soon as he had a chance he ran away into the darkness leaving her in the lurch. The last that was seen of her she was going off resting on the strong right arm of the newsboy.

Dr. Morris has in his possession a Canadian postal card which is suggestive of the intimate relations which exist between Great Britain and the United States. The vignette is composed of a globe showing the American and English possessions with the headline "Anglo Saxon." The globe rests on the Star Spangled Banner and the Union Jack, under which is the apt sentiment, "One aim, one goal." Then follows the usual sign of friendship; the chaste forms of two virgins representing liberty and protection; the national emblems of the eagle and the lion; and the coat of arms of the two nations. Possibly the day is not so far off when Canada will fly but one flag—the "Stars and Stripes."

The plant of the Peninsular Sugar Refining company at Caro, which has been undergoing repairs during the past two months, preparatory to the fall campaign, has presented an unusual busy scene this week. The bookkeepers and others of the clerical force, besides numerous employees, have arrived on the scene this week and are getting ready for active operations. Tickets were given out for the delivery of beets on Thursday of this week and unless something unforeseen prevents, the fall campaign will open on Thursday, October 3. The machinery has all been given a trial and the management expects no trouble in getting the mammoth plant in operation. With nearly one-half larger acreage than was secured last year and with fully as heavy a yield, it is expected that this season's campaign will be at least sixty days longer than last season.

The Chronicle, under the date of Sept. 20th, published an item in regard to H. G. Thorndale, Gagetown, who is accused of having made "a few anarchistic utterances with reference to the assassination of President McKinley, etc." On Monday, Sept. 23rd, the Chronicle was informed that the report was false. Immediately we wrote to Mr. Thorndale asking him for a correct statement of the affair which led to an assault between Messrs. Thorndale and Proudfoot, thereby causing a public disturbance on one of the thoroughfares of Gagetown. For some reason Mr. Thorndale has failed to answer our inquiry. However, in order to show our sincerity and good will towards Mr. Thorndale the Chronicle makes use of the following clipping taken from the Gagetown Times of last week: "Editor Times:—Kindly allow me through the medium of your esteemed and valuable paper, to thank the friends who so ably defended my good name against the malicious and vile slanders circulated against me a few days ago. No one deplures more than I the sad end of our noble and beloved president and no words of mine are strong enough to express my hatred and abhorrence of the assassin, Czolgosz. Neither have I thought or uttered words at any time that could be construed by reasonable persons to favor anarchy. Yours truly, H. G. THORNDALE. Gagetown, Sept. 26, 1901."

Card of Thanks.

I desire to extend my heartfelt thanks to my many friends and neighbors, who by word and deed so kindly assisted me during the long sickness and death of my beloved wife.

About Lingerie.

The latest notion for a corset cover is a fichu slightly shaped to the figure, the ends tied in a knot in front, which helps to produce the effect of the blouse front. Even nightgowns are now cut low at the neck, and these and chemises have transparent yokes of narrow lace and insertions. Empire nightgowns are the mode, and the coat nightgowns which open down the entire length of the front. The sleeves are full to the elbow and then form a frill. Very few of the modern nightgowns button high round the neck, and the profusion of puffings of narrow and wide lace is something wonderful. Some of them have a turned down collar at the neck which forms a V. Wash petticoats are not by any means so much in favor as silk and satin, but when they are made they are just as elaborate, the upper part cut in vandykes with innumerable founces below.

A French Idea.

The skirt of this dress is of embroidered lawn and the corsage of Louis XVI printed taffeta, with striped pattern.

INDOOR DRESS.

The fichu is of embroidered lawn and the waistband of black velvet.—Paris Herald.

The Latest Hats.

The torador hat has been revived for traveling, but it shows very little trimming indeed—in fact, nothing more than a rosette of very soft satin and a couple of quills. This shape is not universally becoming, but it is really smart when properly adjusted. The newest toque of all appears to be a plateau shape folded in two, the principal trimming, generally a wreath of flowers veiled in tulle, being found between the two brims, with a bow of velvet ribbon at the back resting on the hair.

Henry Braydon, Harris, N. C., says: "I took medicine 20 years for asthma but one bottle of One Minute Cough Cure did me more good than anything else during that time. Best cough cure." A. Bond.

Remarkable Book Bargains

FOR CHRONICLE READERS.

We propose to make the Chronicle, for the coming year at least, cost its readers "less than nothing," by saving them more than it costs in books, some of which every home wants.

Here is one of a series of good opportunities which, by arrangement with John B. Alden, Publisher, New York, who has done more than any other man to lessen the cost of high-class books, we propose to offer:

Nearly 400 Volumes to Choose From.

We offer a series of nearly 400 volumes of the best and most popular works in fiction, poetry, history, biography, travel, science, religion and education, from which you can select.

They are cloth bound, gilt top library editions, good paper, generally large type, books formerly published at $1.00 to $1.50 each, and costing now to manufacture within 5 or 10 cents as much as the popular $1.50 books, such as David Harum, Eben Holden, Alice of Old Vincennes, etc.

The Terms to You.

Now the books are reduced in price by the publishers to retail at 60c. and 75c., but by special arrangements with Mr. Alden, we are able to give you
