HOTLY CONTESTED GAME.

Between Deckerville and Cass City Won by

Quite a large crowd gathered at the fairgrounds Friday afternoon to witness the ball game between Deckerville and the home team which was won by the latter at a score of 9 to 3. The visiting team, having won several games on this tour, was over-confident and evidently expected to win in a walk-away.

Up to the fourth inning they were n the lead, having two scores while their opponents were not credited with any. But the fourth proved a disastrous one and the locals piled up six against them which evidently relieved the "Reds" of a good deal of heir confidence and enthusiasm. During the remainder of the game the locals had things more their own way and allowed the visitors but one run, while they succeeded in making three more in the sixth inning.

Several neat catches were made by the fielders on both sides. Two of them, one by Hargraves and one by spectators. The battery work of the ocals featured, McLaughlin pitching nice game. He received strong support. Doan, the pitcher on whom Deckerville staked so much confidence, nardly came up to the expectations of the spectators.

Deckerville fans were much in evidence. Argyle, which lies between the two towns, also contributed a number of interested spectators.

IN MEMORY OF BELLE MCALPINE.

Tis hard to part when friends are dear, Beyond this vale of death There is no union here of hearts, That finds not here an end. Sleep on, dear Belle.
May the sods rest lightly on your breast,
May your blessed soul ascend
To everlasting rest.

You'll meet your loving parents Among the saints on high, Like you they never had a foe Our true and faithful Belle,

You have left a blank behind you, You have left a vacant room, In all your youth and beauty You are sleeping in the tomb. Long, long days we'll miss thee Long, long days for thee we'll weep And through many nights of sorrow Will many vigils keep:

One torpedo boat destroyer put into Chefoo, where she was boarded and captured by the Japanese

The battleship Czarevitch, the cruiser Novik and a torpedo boat have arrived at Tsingchou, at the entrance of Kiao Chou bay, the German concession on the southern shore of the Shantung peninsula. According to other dispatches the cruiser Askold is also at Tsingchou, but advices to the German foreign office do not include her. Another Russian cruiser and a torpedo boat desiroyer are reported as near Shanghai and four battleships are off the Saddle Islands, about 70 miles southeast of that port. Chefoo reports say that one Russian orpedo boat was captured off the Chinese coast, and Tokio hears that a number of the vessels of the squadron have returned to Port Arthur. The German foreign office has given instructions that the uninjured Russian warships at Tsingehou must leave port within 24 hours.

The Japanese system of communication has heretofore been so perfect that there can be little doubt that the government is thoroughly informed of the position of the various vessels of the escaped fleet and will be able to either drive them into neutral ports or attack them with overwhelming force. Russia has already formally protested to Japan, through France, against the action of the Japanese torpedo boat destroyers in attacking the Russian torpedo boat destroyer Ryeshitelni at Chefoo and towing her away from that port, and the protest has been communicated to the powers.

If the expedition was a genuine cutting out one, then there is no qustion in the minds of the officials here that the Japanese have committed an offense against international law, by violating Chinese neutrality and in addition have broken the agreement they entered into at the beginning of the war, at the instance of the United States government, to limit the field of warlike operations to Manchuria and Korea and their waters. Should this prove to be the case, the results probably would be grave and Arjess. The number of soldiers killed vexatious.

AN HEIR.

The Port Arthur Fleet Shattered and Now Russia Has a Chance to Rejoice. A son and heir to the Russian Dispatches from various points in throne has been born. The empress event occurred at 12:30 o'clock Errday, the 12th. The child will be christened Alexis. The christening of the heir will take place in a fortnight. It will be a ceremony of the most elaborate sort. In accordance with Russian imperial law there were present besides the emperor, Baron Fredericks, the master of the ceremonies, and Prince Dolgo-rouky, grand marshal of the court-Dr. Rolt, the emperor's family physician, was in charge, and Dr. Hiruch was the surgeon in attendance. The announcement from Peterhot was immediately followed by a salute of 101 guns from the imperial yacht lying at anchor off the palace, but it was 2:45 p. m. when the guns of SS. Peter and Paul fort, opposite the winter palace here, conveyed the tidings to the people of the Russian capital. The effect was electrical. With the boom of the first gun the people in the streets, who had been momentarily expecting the event for 24 hours, stopped to listen and count the guns. Only 31 are fired for a girl. When the thirty-second boomed and the people were aware that at last an heir to the throne was born there were scenes of rejoicing everywhere, and before the salute was finished the whole city had blossomed with flags and bunting, and the shipping in the harbor was dressed. Then the bells

ATHLETIC SPORTS IN INDIA.

Men Are Adept in Whatever Requires

Suppleness and Balancing. As is only to be expected, consid ering their national diet, the physique of the natives of India will not compare with an Englishman's, though they possess a litheness of form and quickness of eye that we lack, and which makes them among the finest gymnasts and jugglers in the world.

Such perfect balancing powers have hey, that, even supposing them bereft of the tenacious grasp of foot posessed by all barefooted races, there yould be still left much to admire in heir skill.

Even a slip is of little consequence o such clever tumblers; they seem to ave all the climbing powers of a cat. As runners their staying power is most remarkable; a dak-wallah deems the task of running twenty miles a

It is strange that in games pure and simple they do not display the same excellence, though the cricket of the Parsees is meritorious.

Of other native pastimes the one which may cause the most surprise is football, as it seems essentially a game fitted for northern climates only. Yet it is not merely played, but played rather extensively, considering its somewhat recent introduction into the country.

Its growing popularity is still more surprising on account of the hard nature of the ground and the heat of the atmosphere, conditions which scarcely rayor either the playing or players The usual rules and regulations are in force, but the natives play barefooted -C. B. Fry's Magazine.

No Place for a Dragon Fly. A big brown dragon fly floated eisurely into a Sixth avenue department store the other day and zigpagged its way to the lace counter, where it made one of the midair pauses so common to the insect and so startling to the spectator unac quainted with its ways.

The pause was made directly in front of a blue-eyed young woman with auburn hair, rampant, a la pompadour, who stood behind the counter.

The blue-eyed young woman was so amazed at the fierce-eyed, quivering apparition that she was speechess; but when the dragon fly, satisfied with its inspection, made a wild dash toward that rampant head, the owner sent up a shriek which at once communicated itself to the other young woman, behind that and adjacent counters, until it would have been thought that wholesale murder being done there.

"Sh!" said some one at last who seemed to know something. "It's only a harmless dragon fly looking for

The blue-eyed young woman with the ambitious pompadour rose to the occasion promptly. With unmasked indignation she tossed her flamboyant head and said: "The very idea! There ain't no flies on me!"—New York Sun.

Smoked Glasses for Hay Fever. In Worcester, Mass., there is a doc tor by the name of Stowell. This doctor has long been subject to hay fever. In studying his own case he noticed that hay fever came and went in a very capricous manner, and he reached the conclusion that it was mostly a nervous disease. Somehow or other he reasoned himself into the belief that the sun's rays produced hay fever by acting in some way upon the eyes. So he thought to try smoked glasses for the eyes, to see if that would not prevent his hay fever. He reports that the smoked glasses gave instant relief. But if he went out in the sun without the glasses he was sure to have hay fever again. So now he wears smoked glasses and is happy. Fe has no more hay fever. He says he has tried the glasses on two or three other patients, and claims that the same relief is obtained. We like to report such cases, because it is seldom that doctors ever admit that any one is cured by anything except the action of drugs. So harmless a remedy as smoked glasses should be welcome, if it be found to contain any virtue.-Medical Talks.

The Lift of the Heart.

When we stand with the woods around And the great bounds overhead; When the wind blows cold on our forcheads heads

And the breath of the pines is shed;
When the song of the thrush is ringing—
Wonderful, rich, apart—
Between the sound and the silence
Comes a sudden lift of the heart.

When we seek with the clearer vision That grief the revealer brings For the threads that are shot together In the close-wrought web of things, And find that pain is woven Into love and joy and art—Between the search and the solace Comes a sudden lift of the heart.

And when life's farthing candle Gutters and flares and sinks; When the eye no longer wanders And the brain no longer thinks; When only the hand plucks idly

And the brain no longer times, When only the hand plucks idly

CLOUD BURST.

One Hundred Lives Lost in a Railroad Wreck.

One of the most terrible catastro phes in the railroad history of the Arkansas valley happened Sunday evening when train No. 11, of the Missouri Pacific railroad, which runs over the Denver & Rio Grande tracks be tween Pueblo and Denver, crashed through a trestle near Eden, eight miles north of Pueblo, carrying the smoking and chair ears, which were filled with passengers, into the swirling, surging torrent which rushed underneath. So far as learned, between 80 and 100 persons perished.

Dry creek, which is one mile north of Eden, is 50 feet wide, 16 feet deep and has steep banks. A cloudburst had filled the creek and water was flowing over the trestle as the train started acress. The engine got almost over, but slipped back, and the baggage car, smoker and chair cars plunged into the torrent. The engine fell on its right side. The chair car was carried half a mile down Fountain creek. The baggage and smoker were washed down this stream and have not been found. The diner and sleeper did not go down. Dry creek empties into the Fountain less than a half mile below the wreck. There was no water in Dry creek two hours after the accident.

Liao-Yang, which is now seriously menaced by the Japanese armies, with the surrounding country, is shown in the map. It is a walled town of probably 50,000 population, and is situated on the Manchurian Railway, about forty miles south of Mukden. The road to Antung, on the Yalu, starts from Liao-Yang, and there are other highways that make it the center of commerce of the surrounding country. Gen. Kuropatkin has his headquarters at Liao-Yang, and immense stores of war munitions are also believed to be in the city. Should the Russians be compelled to abandon these supplies, their loss would be a severe blow to the czar's forces.

now in the midst of its splendid sea-Colossal, complete, cosmopolitan, it commands the attention of the world as no other enterprise of the present year. From all nations there are pilgrims coming to this shrine, and from all our states and territories there is a constantly growing throng of visitors. United States Senators, Governors of States, men eminent in science, art and letters-all express unqualified admiration for the Exposition and free acquiescence in the oftrepeated statement that this is by far the greatest and best universal exposition ever held. During July a well-known magazine and newspaper writer from New York, Mr. Addison Steele, spent a week at the World's Fair, inspecting the grounds, buildings and various attractions as thoroughly as was possible in that limited period. Returning home, Mr. Steele published in Brooklyn Life the following appreciative comments on the Exposition:

In the expressive language of the cay, St. Louis "has the goods." I had expected much of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition, for I had kept in touch with the making of it from its very inception, five years ago; but after nearly a week of journeying through this new wonderland I must confess that in every essential particular it is far beyond my expectations. The biggest and best it was meant to be and the biggest and best tains-which look very real as the at St. Louis than he feels that he can of architecture and general grandeur. Then again in the ground plans and bird's-eye sketches-the only possible manner of showing it—the ran-shaped arrangement of this group looked stiff and unsatisfying. Far from that, it is quite as remarkable in its way as the famous Court of Honor of the Columbian Exposition. In one respect it is even more notable, for instead of two grand vistas it offers a dozen. The main vista is, of course, the one looking up the Plaza of St. Louis-whose crowning feature is the great Louisiana Purchase Monument-and across the Grand Basin to the Cascade Gardens. On the right are the Varied Industries and Electricity buildings and on the left Manufacturers and Education, these-with Transportation and Machinery still further to the right and Liberal Arts and Mines beyond at the left-making up the body of the fan. For its handle the fan has the Cascade Gardens-rising in a grand terrace to a height of sixty-five feet above the floor level of the buildings mentioned and crowned by the great Festival Hall, the Terrace of States and the East and West Pavilions—and

> It is a case of dine at the German Pavilion and die at the exposition. In a beautiful Moderne Kunst building adjoining Das Deutsche Haus the best fcod and the highest prices on the grounds are to be found, the table d'hote lunch and dinner costing two and three dollars, respectively. There is also a la carte service. Everything considered, the prices are not excessive, and at least one meal should be taken there for the experience. Another should be taken at the Tyrolean Alps, either outdoors or in the gorgeous dining-room in the mountainside. The best French restaurant is at Paris, on the Pike. Lower in prices and in every way admirable are the two restaurants conducted by Mrs. Rorer in the pavilions of Cascado Gardens. Why Birds Live Long.

Why do birds live so much longer than mammals, which are often a hundred times their size? Possibly, among other things, because they have beaks instead of teeth. All carnivorous beasts become weak and liable to starvation, as their teeth drop out or break. Neither are the herbivorous animals in much better case. Old horses would probably die of starvation if wild, for their teeth would fail them; indeed, in some stony countries wold horses have to be killed because their teeth are worn away by cropping grass close to the rock. Rodents constantly die from injuries to teeth. But a bird's beak neither wears out nor drops off, and as it constantly swallows fresh grit to aid in grinding food in the gizzard that needs no repairing where the colored waiters give especially good service, but always expect acequate remuneration for the same from the guests, a waiter was especially officious the other day in serving a man from whom he expected a liberal tip. When the meal had been served and he was standing off at one side, eagerly looking for an opportunity to be of service, he said to the guest:

"Didn't yo' have a brothah heah last veek, sah?"

"No," said the one addressed, "I be lieve not."

"Well," continued the waiter, "theh was a gem'man heah at mah table what looked ve'y much like you, and he was so well pleased with the service that he gave me 50 cents when he left."

The guest had by this time finished his meal, and as he arose he said to the expectant servitor:

Representative Brownlow of Tennessee tells that once he was running a country paper during campaign times and was printing "fighting" language every week. One day, just after the paper was out, a big man, armed with a club, walked into the sanctum and flercely inquired if the editor was in. The frightened Brownlow had wit enough to answer that he was not, but that he would go out and hunt him up. He started for the street and at the foot of the stairs met another irate fellow, who asked: "Will I find the editor of this dirty sheet upstairs?" "Yes," said Brownlow, "he's up there at his desk just itching for a fight." The second man went up and Brownlow disappeared. New Story of Forrest tamer, Herr Driesbach, and one evening the two were sitting together in a restaurant, conversing upon the subject of fear. Of course any one would be willing to admit that a man who could go alone into a cage of wild beasts was not a person who would be likely to be frightened by anything, but the tragedian insisted that there were people in the more peaceful walks of life who had as little fear in their composition as any lion-tamer.

As a proof of this, Mr. Forrest asserted that never in his life had he known what it was to be afraid of anything. No doubt of the truth of this statement was expressed by Herr Driesbach, and after some further conversation he proposed that the tragedian should accompany him to his home. When they entered the house a gasjet was burning low in the hall, and having closed the front coor, Herr Driesbach put up his hand to turn on more light; but, apparently by accident, he put it out, so that the two men were left standing in absolute darkness.

Exclaiming at his stupidity, the master of the house declared that he had no matches about him, and asked Mr Forrest if he could give him one But the tragedian never carried matches, as his companion probably knew, and Driesbach asked him to wait where he was for a few moments while he made his way to the back of the house to procure some.

Edwin Forrest, the tragedian, was feetly still, for if he attempted to well acquainted with a German lion- move he might stumble over something; and while thus quietly waiting for his host to appear with a match, he heard a curious sniffing at different points around him, and then something cold, like the nose of a dog, touched him on one hand, after which he was brushed by what seemed to be a long and heavy mass of hair. On the bare floor he heard the muffled taps of heavy paws. He perceived the odor of the breath of beasts. He knew that he was standing there in the dark surrounded by lions, moving freely about him, and sniffing and smelling at him to find out whether they knew him or

The blood ran cold in the veins of the tragedian, but he did not move, he did not call out. As if he had been a statue of a man he remained motionless, feeling that if he showed the slightest sign of fear the beasts would be upon him.

Presently-it seemed many, many minutes to Forrest-Driesbach appeared with a match. The gas was lighted, and the pale tragedian saw near him three or four large performing lions who had been quietly liberated from an adjoining room.

"You are a brave man!" exclaimed "You have proved the lion-tamer. you have no fear."

The reply of Forrest cannot be set down here, but he speedily left that house and never entered it again. The friendship between the two men was at an end. Such an unwarrantable test of courage could not be forgot-

Too Hot for Tenderfoot

From time immemorial the bath tub ! has been an honorable institution in how he visited a Japanese friend on Japan. Instead of a cold dip in the at home day and accepted the offer of morning, the Japs take their baths hot in the afternoon, at about 5 o'clock, and, beginning at 100 degrees, the tendency is to raise the temperature as one becomes acclimatized, so to speak. One traveler tells of the, at a well near by. Now the regula-Kawarayu bathers, who stay in the tub for several weeks at a time with stone in their laps to keep their bodies floating while they are asleep.

The usual thing is to have the tub on the lawn with a charcoal fire beneath it, so that one can get into the water at 80 degrees and sit in it until it reaches 100 degrees. At this point a "griffin," which is to say a newchum, a greenhorn, or a tenderfoot, usually has to get out, for it becomes literally too hot for him. But, after a year or two of practice, he can manage 115 or 120 degrees. The Japs tnemselves can enjoy a bath even at 128 degrees.

A traveler tells an amusing tale of a bath on the lawn. He got in when the water was tepid and enjoyed it immensely up to ninety something. Just as he was thinking of getting out his friend's wife and daughter put in an appearance and began to wash rice tion bathing dress of Japan is like a bunghole without a barrel around it, and our traveler hadn't it with him at the time. And stole her young,
You gloried in such prowess?
Why was it,
While yet your Day was dawning,
You paused beside the brook
That drove the mill.
As one entranced by sound and scene, Hearing naught, seeing naught, save but a distant vision,
Filled with vain spires,

English University Students Evidently

Are Not Literary. At the English universities the libraries are so little used that they have become famous as places of unbroken solitude. One yarn told to illustrate this is to the effect that an elderly fellow of Caius college, Camfootless stocking without a leg, or a bridge, got tired of life and determined to put himself quietly and unostentatiously out of the way, so that the world in general and Caius college in particular should know him no more. Being a man with a great love still for his college, he made up his mind that no scandal should be caused by his sudden departure. So bathes in puris naturalibus. It is their he debated in his mind on the ways way, and it is not till a European has and means. His decision was an inspiration. He bought a decent length of rope and hanged himself in the college library. But his hopes were doomed to disappointment. He was discovered a year and a half later.

American Snakes

There are only few varieties of venomous snakes in this country. The chief of them are the rattlesmake and the copperhead. In the South is to be found a variety of rattlesnake, the diamond-black rattler, and a variety of copperhead that lives around ponds and rivers, called the water moccasin. Farther west, on the other side of the Mississippi river, there are several other varieties of rattlesnake

Free From the Slugger Brought Out a Fact.

"During the time I was a coffee drinker," says an Iowa woman, "I was nervous, had spells with my heart. smothering spells, headache, stomach trouble, liver and kidney trouble. I did not know for years what made me have those spells. I would frequently sink away as though my last hour had come.

"For 27 years I suffered thus and used bottles of medicine enough to set up a drug store—capsules and pills and everything I heard of. Spent lots of money but I was sick nearly all the time. Sometimes I was so nervous I could not hold a plate in my hands! and other times I thought I would surely die sitting at the table.

"This went on until about two years ago when one day I did not use any coffee and I noticed I was not so nervous and told my husband about it. He had been telling me that it might be the coffee but I said No, I have been drinking coffee all my life and it cannot be.' But after this I thought I would try and do without and drink hot water. I did this for several days. but got tired of the hot water and went to drinking coffee and as soon as I began coffee again I was nervous again. This proved that it was the coffee that caused my troubles.

"We had tried Postum but had not made it right and did not like it, but now I decided to give it another trial so I read the directions on the package carefully and made it after these directions and it was simply delicious. so we quit coffee for good and the results are wonderful. Before, I could not sleep but now I go to bed and sleep sound, am not a bit nervous now, but work hard and can walk miles. Nervous headaches are gone. my heart does not bother me any more like it did and I don't have any of the smothering spells and would you believe it? I am getting fat. his hand on his mother's arm. Katherine, with an undefined dread of something, breathed heavily in con-

Another second and the imperial messenger entered the room. Going directly to General Karsicheff, he handed him a large envelope of an ominously official appearance.

The minister, taking the envelope, tore it open with feverish anxiety, and with sinking heart and burning eyes read the following:

"To Constantine Karsicheff, Minister of Police.

"Sir: His Imperial Majesty has been graciously pleased to make the following orders:

"I. Constantine Karsicheff is hereby removed as Minister of Police and deposed from all other authority heretofore vested in him as such mnister.

"II. Paul, the Count Nazimoff, is hereby appointed Minister of Police to succeed Karsicheff, deposed, and will take possession of the official seal and assume all powers of such ministry at twelve o'clock this day, pre-

"Given under the great seal of the Chancellorie, Gortschakoff, "Prime Minister."

With a deep groan, Karsicheff dropped the paper. "Good God, it is the blow I feared," and he sank back in his chair. Nicholas picked up the paper. "Give it to me," said the countess, as she almost snatched the document from his hand. A glance told her its contents. She looked at the clock. It wanted but ten minutes of the time-of the hour of noon. "His excellency, Paul, Count Nazimoff," announced a servant. Katherine stood erect in a moment. She would of her hitterness of heart, however deeply she felt the Count Nazimoff approached and extended his hand. "Believe me, my dear Karsicheff," he said, "I was not desirous of this position. But his majesty having sent for me and having proffered the honor, it was not to be refused."

The suggestion of a smile passed over the pale face of the deposed minister. "I am quite sure the position cannot be in better hands," he said. Katherine looked at the clock. It was within five minutes of noon.

She looked at her husband and he understood the meaning.

"I have finished my work," said Karsicheff, turning to Count Nazimoff again, "for, as you doubtless know, I have succeeded in capturing the leaders of the Nihilistic conspiracy. His majesty. I had hoped, would have recognized my services in a different way," he said with a bitter smile, "but his majesty knows best. It is my last duty to prove my loyalty by sentencing the enemies of my sovereign and I shall do it to the end." He naused. Katherine was furious. She determined to take matters into her own hand. "General Karsicheff," she said to the count, "is still minister." "Until twelve o'clock," replied the count; "it still wants a few minutes of the hour." "Then bring in the prisoners and let the general finish his work," said

Katherine, looking toward Radaloff. The latter opened the door and with a file of four soldiers guarding him another prisoner was brought in and placed in position before the minister of police. Count Nazimoff took a seat by the side of Karsicheff and gazed curiously at the scene. "This is another of the vile gang of conspirators captured this morning," said Karsicheff to the count, and then, turning to the prisoner, whose face was concealed by the hood of his greatcoat, he assumed a tone of judicial severity, and said: "Drop your hood, prisoner. What is your stood like a statue as he answered, "Alexis Nazimoff!"

"Alexis Nazimoff!" was repeated by all in the room-all save Ivan and Ilda.

With a cry of bitterest anguish from his breaking heart Count Nazimoff staggered to his feet. For a moment he vainly essayed to speak, but his tongue refused to utter a sound.

"Oh, my father!" The cry was wrung from the surcharged heart of Alexis as he stretched out his shack led hands.

Paul Nazimoff, weak and trembling, found his voice at last. "Alexis, my son, my boy," he cried in anguished tones, "what does this mean? Oh, my God, my God!"

He pressed his hands first to his heart, then to his throbbing brain. "Father!" said Alexis.

"Speak, speak out! Oh, God, speak out!" cried the stricken count. "You. you, my boy here-here-charged with crime-with plotting the assassination of your sovereign! Speak, Alexis; say that it is false! Don't you see my heart is breaking?"

"I swear to you, father, it is not true. I am innocent. "You hear," faltered Count Nazi-

"He is guilty whoever he may be," spoke up the officer in command, "for I myself found concealed on his person, in his cigar case this sign-the sign of the assassin chosen to kill." He held up his hand! The Red Rouble!

"My God!" Paul Nazimoff fell back and buried his face in his hands. The clock showed that it wanted but a minute of the hour.

"Quick," said Katherine, rushing to her husband's side. "You have ample proof of his guilt. Sentence him to Siberia-it will bring him and Olga together.

Karsicheff sat stunned! The terrible disclosure of Alexis' identity had shaken him. "Quick," urged Katherine, "it is your last chance!"

The iron will and relentless purpose of his wife swayed Karsicheff now as they had often swayed him before. It nerved him to a deed that, left alone, he would never have

The clock began striking twelve, and as the strokes rang out they fell like a knell on the ears of nearly all pres-Turning to Paul, Count Nazimoff, Karsicheff, taking a bunch of keys from his pocket, said, "My work is finished. Count Nazimoff, to you I resign my seal, my keys, my powers. I have done my duty to the end -the rest is yours!"

Radaloff approached Count Nazimost-Count Nazimoss, the new minister of police-and as he passed the countess he gave her one look that repaid all the insult she had heaped upon him less than an hour before. "What is your excellency's command regarding the other prisoners?" he asked, saluting Count Nazimoff. "There is one more to be disposed of. She says she is the wife of that man." and he pointed to Ivan.

Katherine caught the word. His wife! Ilda's brother's wife. She too must suffer. None of them must escape.

"Count Nazimoff," she said, "my husband laid down his work while engaged in meting out justice to this gang of assassins. There is one more -that man's wife. She too should be punished here and now."

Paul, Count Nazimoff, looked up slowly. He had aged ten years in less than two minutes. "Not now," he said faintly; "not now. We have had enough ofof-" He could say no more.

Katherine spoke again. "It ill becomes the minister of his sovereign to show his weakness at such a time as this," she exclaimed. 'My husband, at the expense of his feelings, nerved himself to do his duty-now do yours. Russia needs an example now!"

Almost involuntarily Count Nazimoff raised his hand. It was to beg Katherine to be silent.

Radaloff saw the motion and interpreted it to mean that he should produce the prisoner. In another moment he had left the room and a second later re-entered it with a heavily draped figure clinging to his arms. He had to support her or she would have fallen. Katherine pointed to the trembling figure supported by Radaloff. "She is the wife of that man," exclaimed the countess, indicating Ivan. "There can be no excuse for delay. She was captured with the rest-is it not so?" and she turned fiercely to the officer in command.

"It is so, madame, and she was arrested while standing by the printing press, upon which we found this proclamation."

As he spoke he displayed the placard in red.

"You see-you see, Count Nazimoff," exclaimed the countess, "there can be no doubt. Act-and a heavy sentence too." "Poor giri." The count glanced at the veiled and shrinking figure before him. "She may be innocent. She--' "She cannot be innocent with the proof of her guilt in that treasonable rope.

"Mercy, mercy, mercy!" Katherine, fairly groveling at his feet.

"I sentence her," said Count Nazimost, "to Siberia-with her parents!"

Three days after the events nar rated in the preceding chapter the doors of the great prison of Petropavlovsk in St. Petersburg swung open. The Latest Type of Stein.

Ingenious manufacturers have in recent years brought out music boxes concealed in a variety of recentacles other than the prosaic case of fancy wood. Thus we have had alubume, clocks, jewel cases, etc., within which was secreted the necessary mechanism for the rendering of one or more familiar airs-some too familiar, as many a weary listener can testify. New comes the musical stein, for this favorite ornament of the grillroom or bachelor's den has been pressed into service by the enterprising manufacturer of the music box. There is nothing about the exterior of the musical stein to indicate that it is other than the ordinary variety and one is of heavy ware sort in green and russet tones with a windmill decoration on one side. Those who like music boxes and at the same time are partial to steins for decorative use will doubtless approve of this newest device.-Brooklyn Eagle.

Letter Writing a Lost Art.

To one who closely studies human nature letters constitute the best literature. They reveal the little idiosyncrasies which go to make up character. They expose the heart, especially if written without the thought case of the correspondence between Robert Browning and Elizabeth Barrett, it seems a sacrilege to lay bare to the world so much of private confidence. In other instances, as in the letters which Liszt and Wagner wrote to each other, the world is the distinct more sheltered valleys. In spite of gainer by the publication. In fact, so rich is English literature in epistolary wolves, whom hunger drive down to writing as a lost art. The truth, however, forces itself upon us and we must accept it, endeavoring to console ourselves with the thought that what we have lost in genuine correspondence we may have gained in other things.

LEHR PIANO YLE ORGAN

APPEARANCE

The case exactly resembles a handsome upright piano, has seven and one-third octaves of keys. The finish is hand polished and hand rubbed, the same as on the best pianos.

The cases, keys, actions, veneered sounding-boards, etc., are all of the highest grade materials and construction throughout.

The player can vary the tone and render the most beautiful effects and pleasing contrasts by means of the wonderful yet simple method of controlling the action.

IN TOUCH

The keys respond with extraordinary quickness and elasticity.

THE BELLOWS

Being large and powerful, produce a full tone the entire length of the key-board and are so easy to pump that a small child is able to sustain the full power of the organ with ease.

That great independent and eminently fair newspaper, the Detroit Tribune, has just completed a work of much historic value to the state of Seeger street recently vacated by L. Michigan. The work is the official Jackson of the fiftieth anniversary of the monster mass meeting held under the Jackson oaks July 6, 1854, at which Michigan placed herself squarely against the extension of slavery and formed the republican party. The book contains the official proceedings of the celebration, a history of the republican party and portraits of many eminent citizens who took part in that historic event of 50 years ago. It also contains engravings of the chief participants in the celebration, of many leading citizens of Michigan. Being bound in leather, the work will form Mrs. Henry Allen and three child- a lasting memento and a valuable his-
