LOCAL ITEMS.

Auction sale time has arrived and minister appointed for the Cass City the sales promise to be as numerous F. J. Benedict of Sanilac Centre as charge, has been stationed at Morenci as in former years. The services of for the past three years and formerly Striffler & McKenzie, our local aucwas at Vassar. He is unable to come tioneers, are in demand as usual. Next week, these gentlemen have five dress. sales to conduct. Their work as auctioneers meets with approval and the territory which they are required to cover seems to be rather unlimited.

While John Hamilton was leading a cow yesterday, the animal started on a run and jerked the rope from his hands. The rope was a long one and in running after the cow Mr. Hamilton stepped into the loop at the end. This threw him to the ground and he was dragged over 20 feet, striking against a telephone pole before the rope broke. He was fortunate in escaping without injuries. The ball game played between the Bloomer Girls and the local nine last Friday afternoon was a disappointment to the crowd which gathered to witness it. It was the poorest exhibition of ball playing ever seen in Cass City and the game was called off at the close of the fifth inning on account of darkness. The first two innings were pitched by a girl, and the other three by a gentleman. We refrain from expressing any sentiments about the playing of the "girls" as they have been pretty well "roasted" by the newspapers of the Thumb.

The following letter remains unclaimed in the Cass City postoffice for the week ending Sept. 17: Mr. William Ritchie. When calling for the above please mention advertised. H. S. Wickware, P. M.

PINNEY-HANES

Pretty September Wedding Solemnized Wednesday Afternoon.

From Owosso Daily Press American. The marriage of Mr. Edward Pinney of Cass City and Miss Ellen Elizabeth Hanes took place Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Hanes, 334 North Hickory street. The wedding was quite informal, the Cecil Karr of Kingston visited the The house was prettily decorated with potted plants, smilax and white asters.

Preceding the ceremony Miss Frances Jones softly sang "O Promise Me" with piano accompaniment by Miss Mabel Mack. Promptly at the hour the bridal couple, attended by Mr. Clark McKenzie of Cass City and Miss Ethel Hume of this city took their places and the beautiful ring service was used, Rev. Carlos H. Hanks of ficiating. The bride's gown was of simple white, as was also that of the bridesmaid.

After congratulations a delicious four course luncheon was served to about twenty-five guests, the following young ladies assisting in the serving: Miss Arizona Wimple at the bride's table, and Misses Hattie Detwiler, Beulah Hoenshell, Donna Watson and Ethel Hall.

The bride is one of Owosso's most charming and popular young ladies, ter, and has won many friends by her good exhibitions on the track. winning personality. She is a graduate of the O. H. S., class of 1901, and of the Michigan State Normal, and taught the past year at Sanilac Cen-

Mr. Pinney is a prominent young man in his home city, where he has many friends. He is a graduate from the literary department of the U. of M. and is associated, with his father, E. H. Pinney, in the banking business at Cass City. He is a Mason and an Odd Fellow.

The guests from out of town were: of the groom; Mr. and Mrs. David Grant, Mt. Clemens; Charles Hanes, Niles; Miss Ada Olive, Oxford; and Clark McKenzie of Cass City.

Mr. and Mrs. Pinney left on the evening train amid showers of rice and best wishes for a short wedding trip in the east. They will be at home after October 5 at Cass City, where Mr. Pinney has a prettily furnished home awaiting his bride.

PROTECTION FOR LITTLE ONES | DESTRUCTIVE CHICKEN THIEVES Parents Refuse to Allow Children to Cross Tracks on Way to School.

The parents of about twenty Charlotte children object to their attending a certain ward school because they have to cross the Grand Trunk railroad tracks. When school opened they were all sent to another ward school and promptly returned to their own building. Now the parents are keeping the children home, and the railroad must either furnish flagmen or gates at the several crossings or the board of education will have to construct another building. However, as is usually the case, the railroad company will have to stand the expense of protecting its crossings.

Irish Demonstration.

An Irish demonstration of some proportions, under the auspices of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, will be held in Escanaba Sept. 24. Judge O'Neil Ryan of St. Louis will be present and deliver an address. A public reception will be tendered him in the opera house, there will be a monster parade with several thousand in line, and the Escanaba Irishmen promise to outdo any similar attempt at an Irish celebration in upper Michigan. Celts from all over the state will be present.

Township Fair.

The Patrons of Husbandry of the township of Pennfield will inaugurate a novel exhibition this year, which is attracting much attention from other townships, and it is probable that their innovation will be imitated by other granges throughout the state. They propose to hold a township fair in October. The whole township is interested, and judging from the interest manifested the exhibition will be a large one. This will be the first township fair ever held in this state.

Business Men Organize.

St. Johns is coming to the front with other cities of its size and has organized a Business Men's association. Several other northern cities are planning to follow suit. In Laingsburg the merchants are organizing for protection against "dead beats," and after all honorable means to make them pay up have been exhausted they will be refused credit at every store in the town.

Northville Telephone Company. The annual meeting of the Northville Telephone company resulted in the re-election of the old officers and directors. The reports showed the company to be in a prosperous condition, with 186 'phones in operation, and twenty-five miles of lines, exclusive of its village service.

Strike Big Vein of Coal. While digging a well on his farm near Bellevue Charles G. Avery, a lo cal capitalist, struck a heavy vein of coal at the depth of eighty feet. The drill went down five feet into solid coal, and it is not known how thick the vein is. There is much excitement in that vicinity.

Theater Reopens.

Underwood's opera house, which has been closed since the Iroquois disaster in Chicago, nearly a year ago, has been reopened, having been remodeled and new means of exit provided to meet the requirements imposed by the board of building inspectors and common council.

Houghton Is Growing. The rapidly increasing population of Houghton has overcrowded the schools to such an extent that a new building will have to be erected by the board of education. It has an option on six desirable lots, which will doubtless be purchased.

More Coal Discoveries.

It has developed that several other large beds of coal have been discovered in the vicinity of Bellevue besides the one struck on the C. G. Avery property. There is considerable excitement over the discoveries.

Sparks Cause Costly Fire. Sparks from a threshing engine set fire to a large barn on the farm of James Munson of Fairfield township, Midnight Marauders Kill the Hens They Cannot Carry Off.

Andrew Anderson, an aged farmer living near Muskegon, lost seventy chickens which were killed or carried off in one night. The thieves did things systematically, as in the morning traces were found where a wagon had been brought into the yard to carry off the prey. They were evidently interrupted in their work, for about fifty chickens lay with their necks wrung, the thieves not having time to stow them away. They killed them all before startling to load them. Anderson is dependent almost entirely upon his chickens as a means of obtaining a livelihood.

Woman Sues Railroad Company. Mrs. Nellie Merren, of Sand Lake, has brought suit against the Grand Rapids & Indiana railroad for damages for being carried by her home station a year ago. She claims that she repeatedly warned the brakeman of the train to signal for Sand Lake, which is only a flag stop, but she was carried by and left in Howard City at midnight. Mrs. Merren had a lit-tle baby with her and found herself in a most embarassing position.

Public Park at the Soo. The government has purchased large stretch of the Soo's water front and next spring will commence the work of transforming it into a public park to correspond with other parks already maintained along the river. By the removing of the buildings on the property the Soo will lose many of its old landmarks.

Deer in Beet Fields. A story comes from the Soo that deer are unusually tame this year. Russians at Liao-Yang thwarted a plan to overwhelm the Japanese in one battle and raise the siege at Port Arthur, writes a correspondent with Kuroki's army.

SEPT. 14, 1904. Rain Prevents Battle—Reports from the seat of war say military operations around Mukdon are suspended on account of rains.

Lose Faith in General-Russians are beginning to lose faith in Gen. Kouropatkin because of the army's poor showing.

Cruiser Must Dismantle-America decides that the Russian cruiser Lena must either quit San Francisco on brief notice or dismantle until the end of the war. Fleet Does Not Sail-The departure of the Baltic fleet is again deferred, it is said, pending news from the East. Japs in Mad Charge-At the battle of Liac-Yang the Japanese charged madly on Russian artillery and infantry and took positions with fixed bayonets. Urges Intervention-The interparlia-mentary congress at St. Louis urges intervention in the Eastern war and issues a call for another Hague peace conference. May Call Reserves-Japan, it is said, may shortly call out part of the Japanese territorial army. Will Defend Mukden.-Kouropatkin will defend Mukden with 50,000 troops, according to the statements of St. Petersburg officials. His army is said to be 200,000 men, having been reinforced. The main body will continue its retreat to Tie Pass. Kuroki in Bad Plight-Kuroki's army nearly cut off the Russian retreat north of Liao-Yang, but found itself in the gravest danger of being routed and the battle was won by five days of the most desperate fighting. SEPT 15, 1904.

Ready to Sink Ship-An English warship is ready to sink the Russian cruiser Lena if she is forced from San Francisco and attempts to melest British merchantmen. Kouropatkin Reports-St. Petersburg has received the long-expected report from Kouropatkin on the battle of Liao-Yang, in which he says 17,000 Russians fell, 4,500 being killed. Blames Gen. Orloff-Gen. Orloff is blamed for the defeat of the Russian army at Liao-Yang in the detailed report of Gen. Kouropatkin to the emperor. The repulse of Orloff's men and warns Great Britain.

so it has three heroes, a heroine, an solemn enough just the same. Go and eccentric philanthropist and a score of supernumeraries of too little importance, so far as this incident is concerned, to be mentioned by name. The heroes are Mr. Swallow, Mr. Spilkington and Mr. Spiker; the heroine is, or was, Miss Honeygarde; the eccentric philanthropist is Mr. Wilson. So much for the introduction; now for the story:

Swallow, Spilkington and Spiker work for Mr. Wilson. On the 4th day of January last the three young men held an important interview with their employer. "What do you want?" said Wilson to Swallow. "A raise," said Swallow.

"And you?" to Spilkington.

"A raise." "And you?" to Spiker.

"A raise." "Can't have it," said Wilson. "You get $25 a week now." "I know that," said Swallow, "but that ain't enough. We are worth more than that. We want $30."

"Too much," said Wilson. "Still, I do not wish to discourage you. You are worthy young men, and I like you. I do not wish to leave you without hope. I will increase your salary on one condition. If you will get married I will pay you $30 a week."

Swallow, Spilkington and Spiker turned pale.

"Married?" they said. "This is very sudden. We must have time to think." They retired into an adjoining room and thought. After due deliberation they reported their decision.

"Sir," said they, "we refuse to accept prosperity on such onerous terms. Twenty-five dollars a week, according to our calculation, will go further for one than $30 for two. We prefer positive to potential evils. We will not get married."

Then Swallow, Spilkington and Spiker went back to their desks and continued to work for $25 a week, always bearing in mind the opportunity for advancement should they care to purchase promotion at such a cost.

Swallow, Spilkington and Spiker are good friends. Usually they lunch together. Last Monday that amicable arrangement would have been satisfactory to Swallow and Spilkington, but when they got ready to leave the office and looked around for Spiker they found that he had already gone. They saw him at the restaurant but they did not join him. Spiker was not alone. Miss Honeygarde sat opposite. Miss Honeygarde beamed upon Spiker and Spiker beamed upon her. They were happy. Swallow and Spilkington were not happy; they were enmim. They were on all sides, a famished, howling pack of devils, their white Langs and fiery eyes showing with horrible distinctness as they sprang at bim.

The rifle, swung with all his strength from left to right, and from vight to left, cleared a path for him and no sooner did one of the brutes Eall than a score of its fellows literally More it in pieces.

Alexis was becoming exhausted. It was too much for him in his weakened state.

One of the wolves, one larger than the rest, made a bound for his Exroat, but before it reached him sank in death agony with a bullet in its

At the same moment, by the overfizzened sleigh, Alexis caught sight of The object of his heroic quest.

It was a woman! With white face she stood there, revolver in hand, her back protected by the sleigh. Shot after shot rang and, and as each time, with unerring erm, the bullet lodged in the body of wolf, she gained a moment's respite from the cowardly brutes.

But the end was bound to come. The last shot but one had been Fred.

As if by some devilish instinct the wolves seemed to know that their vic-Eim was now defenseless, and they premared for a rush in all the strength of their numbers.

With a howl that could have been heard a league another pack of the brutes had come down from the hills and joined the others.

Then it was that the helpless womcan uttered the wild shriek of agony that had reached the ears of her rescner-had reached even to the courier in the etane.

Alexis sprang forward. He found that the arm was a magazine rifle, and with a prayer of thankfulness he spened fire. Shot after shot, a perfect Insilade followed, and half a dozen of the brutes were lying bleeding in the

Another moment and he had reached the woman. His face was covered with blood, his arms were forn, but he clasped her by a strong effort and began the retreat to a place of safety.

Repulsed by the shots, the wolves and given way for a time, and then had made a simultaneous rush to teast on the carcasses of those slain by Alexis.

But the feast did not last long. Maddened more than ever by the taste of blood, they sprang after Alexis and his now unconscious bur-

"He has saved him!" shouted the conrier at the moment, as he caught sight of Alexis, and then as he looked again he exclaimed: "My God, it is a woman! Men, men! to the rescue!" The soldiers waited no longer. The fact that a woman was in danger seemed to awaken all that was manly In their natures and they rushed to the rescue.

Another moment and it would have been too late.

A volley met the first of the ferogious, maddened brutes. The pack halted for a moment, and gave a long howl of rage. Another volley checked another forward movement. Alexis staggered along with his burden. Two of the soldiers sprang to his side. The doors of the ctape were thrown sopen. In another moment, bruised and bleeding and faint, Alexis Nazimoff staggered into the room; the courier held out his arms to receive the sense-Tess woman from her rescuer. Alexis, with a sigh of unutterable relief, breathed a prayer of thanks, and then as he gave the courier the woman whose life he had saved his brain recled, the light faded from his eyes, his knees trembled, a shudder passed Through his frame, and he fell at full

CHAPTER XVII.

The Courier's Mission. The courier bore the insensible form of the woman into the room occupied by Cobb and the baroness. As the door closed behind him, Earsicheff turned quickly to Nicholas and said in a whisper: "I have a plan-wait!"

Then ordering the guard to resume Their arms he gave the command to warch the prisoners to the kameras.

Marcall month months and month months and the confliction of the confl Alexis had revived sufficiently to move and was supported by two of the Cossacks.

> The injuries of Alexis were fortunately slight. The fangs of the wolves had reached him in one or two places on the arms and on one cheek, but the latter proved to be a mere scratch, though sufficient to draw blood, and the clothing had protected the arms. In answer to eager inquiries he explained that he did not see the face of the woman he had rescued, because just as he reached her she almost fell into his arms and in his struggle during the retreat he had not heard her speak.

But it was the presence of Cobbso entirely unlooked for, and so inexplicable—that furnished them a topic which kept them wondering for hours. That Cobb's presence had something to do with them, they felt certain, but now that he was here, how were they to let him know that they were near. It is the rule on the highroad to the mines for convoys to march two days and rest one; and as this was their resting place, they felt sure that the morning's light would bring some means of letting Cobb know that they were in the stockade.

But what had brought Cobb and the baroness-for they felt sure it was the baroness, Cobb having spoken of his wife-to that out of the way place? That was the puzzler, and it was to account for that fact that both Alexis and Ivan taxed their imagination.

While they are in suspense we will enlighten our readers.

General Cobb, after his marriage to the baroness, found himself in a position where he could afford to give up all the business interests that formerly occupied his time. From the moment Alexis had left St. Petersburg he had but one object in view-that was to rescue his friend from the horrors of Siberian exile, and if possible restore him to the position from which a chain of adverse circumstances had so cruelly deposed him. Or, if that were not possible, it was the intention of Cobb, the rescue of Alexis once effected, to take him to America, the baroness having expressed a strong desire to give up her residence in Europe and make her and it was determined to make an effort to effect the rescue of Ilda and

Ivan at the same time as Alexis. The blow to the pride of Count Nazimoff, who had seen his son sentenced like a common convict, had been a severe one, and shortly after his son had arrived in Siberia the count was seized by a severe illness, the result of the shock he had suffered. On his recovery his feelings had undergone a marked change. The tenderness and sympathy shown him on every hand had softened his nature, and the hard pride had now given place to a pitiful yearning for the son he had loved so well. Hence it was that when Gen. Cobb, having heard of Kirshkin's confession, and having brought influence to bear to verify the truth of the conspirator's story, appeared before Count Nazimoff to plead the cause of his son, he met with a reception the warmth of which pleased

An imperial commissioner was sent to each of the convicts captured in the Nihilist rendezvous. They were closely questioned as to the events that had taken place on that eventful night, and their stories, one and all, served to exonerate Alexis and Olga and Ilda, and to lift from the shoulders of Ivan the responsibility for any complicity in or sympathy with the extreme Nihilists who sought the assassination of the czar.

So it was that after months of persistent and diligent exertion General Cobb had the assurance that the subject had at length reached the czar. with a strong probability that the imperial clemency so earnestly sought would not be denied.

But even if his efforts in this direction failed, Cobb had made up his mind that he would still succeed. He secured through the American minister an imperial passport to Siberia, and a letter from the authorities giving him, as an American traveler favorably disposed and friendly to the Russian government, the right to visit prisons and other privileges not usually accorded. This letter, addressed to officials throughout Siberia, directed them to extend all aid and assistance to General Cobb and his wife and her companion, Caroline Cobb, who were to travel across Siberia if need be. And before he left St. Petersburg a passport for Caroline Cobb was in his possession. We pass over the long journey of Cobb and his wife. After many adventures and more hardships they reached Stralensk and there discovered Ilda. The letters which Cobb had in his possession made him a welcome guest at the house of the commandant at Stralensk and they had but little difficulty in obtaining a private conversation with Ilda. It was from Ilda they learned to their great delight that Ivan and Alexis were at Chitka and that they could reach that place with comparative ease. It was while on their journey to Chitka that their sleigh was overturned and they were attacked by the wolves almost within shouting dis-

Nicholas, "you have made a dangerous enemy of the courier, and the slightest mistake may prove our ruin. Try to conciliate him-anything, so there can be no pretext for his going to extremes. Think what would be the consequences if he should make a report to the czar."

Karischeff said nothing. He knew he had committed a grievous mistake in defying the courier and he felt ill at ease. The presence of Cobb and the baroness, too, was an additional source of danger. What if Cobb should discover the presence of Alexis! That he had not done so already was little short of a miracle. But if he should discover him and appeal to the courhimself had won the heart of the the result. Certainly the courier

Producing his notebook, the courier in a peremptory tone demanded: "What is the name of that brave fellow who saved the woman from the

"Then consult your lists and fine out," was the sharp rejoinder.

Nicholas saw that his father was gain getting on dangerous ground. He determined to come to his as istance.

(To be continued.) MOTOR CARS OF HIGH SPEED.

Spectators Able to See It Only Ninety Seconds as It Whirs By.

The world has not realized yet the full significance of the historic Morienfelde-Zossen high speed electric experiments conducted during 1901 and 1903. Speeds of 126 miles an hour mean something in the way of velocity and momentum.

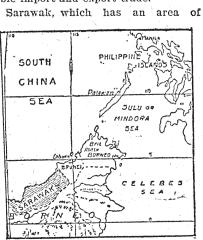

The track upon which the experiments were conducted is straight, yet on it the car, when running at full speed, was only in sight for a minute and a half. That is to say, from the moment the approaching car first became visible on the horizon, to the moment it disappeared in the opposite direction, less than ninety seconds elapsed. Spectators standing by the side of the track were able to see that men were in the car, but it was impossible for the eye to get sufficient impression to allow any one to be recognized. Despite the use of powerful brakes the car traveled over a mile, after their application, before coming to a standstill, so that alertness of the engineer in discovering obstacles on the track would count for little. It isn't probable he could discern such a mile distant, and any application of brakes within that distance would be inef fective.

As Others Hear Us.

A well known Oxford don was asked to speak into a phonograph, and was interested in hearing the reproduction. He listened throughout, then said with scarcely concealed disgust: "Through this machine I am able to ital wearying. The interior of the speak in a particularly bumptious and island was in rebellion against the affected manner." The worthy man Rajah, and his existence was in danhad heard himself as others hear him, that was all. It would be a good time. thing for many of us to study our method of speaking through the me-to take a civil service examination were asked where Sarawak is, he would, unless he had survived a youthful enthusiasm for stamp collecting, ier for Alexis—especially after Alexis fail disgracefully. Yet the history of Sarawak is the story of one of the courier-there was no question as to most remarkable examples of the rapid civilization of a savage people in would never leave Alexis and Ivan in these times, and to-day the principality, which is about the size of the State of Louisiana, has a considerable import and export trade.

about 50,000 square miles and a population of about 600,000, lies on the northeastern coast of the island of Borneo. It is a fertile country, drained by many rivers, and remarkable for its spices, tobacco, coffee, rice, gutta percha, sago, and, it should also be remarked, orang-outangs. Gold is exported and diamonds and coal are mined. Although it lies in the torrid zone, its lowest boundary reaching within fifty miles of the equator, it has a fairly good climate, and the fact that Europeans may live there comfortably is borne out by the long threatens danger. We must be on residence of the Rajah's family. Sarawak, declared independent by the first Rajah Brooke, the adventurer wnose story is as romantic as any that has found its way into print, in 1888 became a protectorate of Great Britain, and only its foreign affairs reernment. Sir James civil service employe of the East India Company, in the military service of which young Brooke entered as a cadet. He spent the early years of his active life in Bengal, and was later commissioned a lieutenant. In the Burmese war he was shot through the lungs, and returned home to recuperate. He recovered, but the ship in which he had taken passage back to India having been wrecked, he reached there the day after his leave had expired, and was told he had lost his commission. It was in vain that he explained he was a victim of a shipwreck. His explanation was not received, and the victim of red tape turned from his military career to one of adventure.

Turned from India, young Brooke accompanied the ship which had brought him out to China, and on the way he got his first glimpse of the wonderful Indian archipelago—of which "Twelve Thousand Isles" Borneo is the pearl. The idea of exploring the mysterious islands and the value of the products from them took his fancy, and upon his return to England his mind was made up; he had decided on a life of adventure. In 1838 his father died, and James Brooke succeeded to a fortune so handsome that his life of adventure was assured. He bought a schooner yacht, the Royalist, 142 tons, put a crew on board and then sailed into the Mediterranean, where, for several years, the crew was trained, and then selected with the care of a pirate chief. He wanted none but trusty lusty and true men aboard the Royalist. Finding a crew to his liking, he weighed anchor and set out for the China Sea. When he reached Singapore he decided to take a look at Borneo.

Borneo at that time was under the rule of the Rajah Muda Hassim, as fine an example of a cutthroat as ever ruled a native people. At the time the Rajah was residing at Sarawak, having found the tumultous and ever-increasing shouts for his life in his capger of an abrupt conclusion at any

Brooke heard of the Rajah's dilemma, and considered that he had ar-

If the average person who goes up | ing chorus was on, and it was plainly his cue to appear with a recitative. So the yacht Royalist set sail, with numerous presents for the Rajah. He found Muda Hassim to be generous and well affected to the English, and he found the rebellion had been underrated. The Rajah intimated that he would like to have him stay a while, but instead Brooke pushed into the interior and visited several wild tribes. He saw enough to convince him that Sarawak was a golden opportunity; but he left the country after having satisfied himself. In 1840 he paid another visit, and found the rebellion had increased. The Sultan of Bruni (Borneo) was bestirring himself, and the Rajah considered it time to make a move. He approached Brooke and asked his assistance in putting down the rebellion.

Brooke enjoyed the scheme, and led parties of Malays and Dyaks against the rebel chieftain, Shereef Moksain. He built forts in the jungle, and reinforced his native troops with men from his yacht; finally, after a terrific battle in which Brooke was wounded, he drove the rebels into a river. There was a whirlwind action in the methods of the European which showed the rebels that they were contending against training and skill, so they agreed to a truce, and in December, 1840, after four years of hostilities, a treaty of peace was signed Brooke made the rebels burn their stockades and surrender their arms, and as a conquest the affair was complete.

It was then proposed to transfer the government to Brooke, who showed he was more capable than the reigning Rajah. He assented to the proposition, and then turned his attention to the pirates which infested the coast. and soon that business, which had been an honorable profession for 2,000 years, was wiped out. Brooke began to organize a government. He ruled with fairness and firmness, drew up laws, had them properly executed, de-

And the man said he didn't stay awake long enough to know about that, but were they much ground off?

"More than they ought to be at your age," said the dentist. "You have worn the enamel off from some of them and got down to the dentine." "What's going to happen?" asked the victim.

"Why, if you keep on grinding them off," said the dentist, "the teeth will hollow out and we'll have to put plugs in them with gold tops to give them new grinding surfaces.' This wasn't a very pleasant prospect, so later the man sought to ascertain for himself whether he did grit his teeth unduly. And while he was still unable to stay awake long enough to find out, he did discover that he had a habit at times of gritting his teeth, in his waking moments, where he sat back from his work to think of something, for instance. And he made up his mind that he would stop that, anyway, and he hoped that he might thus stop grinding his teetn in his sleep, if he did so grind them For, fine as they might be, he didn't

VARIOUS KINDS OF DAYS.

Word Said to Have No Real Meaning Without Defining Adjective.

Five kinds of day are recognized, and it has been said that the word 'day" has no real meaning without an adjective defining what kind of a day is meant. There is a civil day, the astronomical day, the apparent solar day, the mean solar day, and the sidereal day. The civil day begins at the midnight preceding mean noon, and consists of twenty-four hours counted after twelve o'clock: the astronomical day begins twelve hours after the civil day, or at the mean noon of the corresponding civil day. These hours are reckoned from 0 to 24. It will be seen, therefore, that while 10hr. 12min., January 1st astronomical time, is also 10hr. 12min. January 1st civil time, yet 22hr. 12min., January 1st astronomical time, is also 10hr. 12min. a. m., January 2nd civil time. There are many anomalies growing out of this use of the civil day, and there are many arguments in favor of using the astronomical day. It is one of the reforms which undoubtedly will come some time.

The Reason Why.

Drummond, Wis., Sept. 19 (Special) -Whole families in Bayfield County are singing the praises of Dodd's Kidney Pills and the reason why is given in experience's such as that of Mr. T. T. Wold, a well-known citizen here. "I had such pains in my back that I did not know what to do," says Mr. Wold, "and as I came across an advertisement of Dodd's Kidney Pills I sent for a box. That one box relieved me of all my pains. My wife also used them and found them just what she needed. I recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills as a sure cure for Backache and other Kidney Troubles.' Backache is one of the earliest symptoms of Kidney Disease. Dodd's Kidney Pills cure it promptly and permanently and prevent it developing into Rheumatism, Dropsy, Diabetes or Bright's Disease.

"The Old-Time "Nanna."

A writer in a recent number of the Queen expresses the opinion (which is shared by many other people) that children are not one whit better brought up by the smart, whitefrocked, certificated nurses so much sought after nowadays than they were by the comfortable "Nanna" of the days gone by. The old nurse still holds a place in the hearts of the men and women who knew her loving care when they were children, and they will never forget her "treats" that used to delight their hearts. "Best of all," says a woman, "was lantern tea when all the lights were put out, and the nursery was illuminated by penny tin lanterns, containing colored candles, which cast weird shadows on the solemn faces round the festive board."

Irish Village of Baltimore.

Baltimore, in Maryland, gets its name from a small and unostentatious fishing village in Ireland. The word Baltimore signifies the "village that grew up about the big house" and the derivation is plain when one sees the ivy-covered ruins of the very remarkable big house that was once the stronghold of the O'Driscolls. It is situated upon an imposing height, a sentinel over the numerous little dwellings that have sprung up and increased in the vicinity of its wrecked and deserted life. From the village of Baltimore enormous catches of mack erel are sent to America.

Some Very Fine Results Follow.

The wrong kind of food will put the body in such a diseased condition that no medicines will cure it. There is no way but to change food. A man in Mo. says: "For 2 years I was troubled so with my nerves that sometimes I was prostrated and could hardly ever get in a full month at my work. "My stomach, back and head would throb so I could get no rest at night except by fits and starts, and always had distressing pains. "I was quite certain the trouble came from my stomach but two physicians could not help me and all the tonics failed and so finally I turned to food. "When I had studied up on food and learned what might be expected from leaving off meat and the regular food I had been living on, I felt that a change to Grape-Nuts would be just what was required so I went to eating it.

"From the start I got stronger and better until I was well again and from that time I haven't used a bit of medicine for I haven't needed any.

"I am so much better in every way, sleep soundly nowadays and am free from the bad dreams. Indeed this food has made such a great change in me that my wife and daughter have taken it up and we are never without Grape-Nuts on our table nowadays. It is a wonderful sustainer and we frequently have nothing else at all but a saucer of Grape-Nuts and cream for breakfast or supper." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Good food and good rest. These are the tonics that succeed where all the bottled tonics and drugs fail. Ten days trial of Grape-Nuts will show one the road to health, strength and vigor. "There's a reason."

CHRONOMETER PUT

It is Kept on ice to Secure Accurate Adjustment.

Each year the time chronometers of the United States navy are subjested to a test to determine their accuracy and to correct any irregularities. This operation commences in January and usually lasts until the middle of June, and during that time these delicate timepieces are kept on ice at the United States naval observarlory. It is not for any fear that they will spoil that they are subjected to this frigid experience, but it is necessary for the purpose of accurate adjustment that they should all be maintained in a constant temperature.

The necessity of having a ship's clocks all absolutely alike will be realized by the layman when he is reminded that an error of four seconds in the chronometer means an error of mile in calculating the vessel's location. The temperature varies at different times of the test from 50 to 90 degrees and the losing or gaining qualities of the chronometers under these conditions are accurately kept. Thus with a chart expressing in curves just what he may expect from his chronometer under different conditions of climate, and, with his thermometer and barometer close at hand, a sailing master may calculate to a nicety the correct time and get his location to a certainty

Earnings of Popular Novellst.

For "Castle Rackrent" Marie Edgeworth received only $500, for "Belinda" $1,500, for "Patronage," published in 1815, she received the large sum of $10,500; for "Helen," published in 1834, the price was $5,500. Miss Edgeworth gave away much of this money and spent the rest of it in traveling. Apparently she parted with her copyrights. Still, in comparison with Charlotte Bronte, who received only $7,500 for her books, Miss Edgeworth makes a brave show with her $55,310.

THE DEPARTED.

The departed! the departed! They visit us in dreams,
And they glide above our memories,
Like shadows over streams;
But where the cheerful lights of home
In constant luster burn,
The departed, the departed,
Can payer more return!

Can never more return! The good, the brave, the beautiful, How dreamless is their sleep, Where rolls the dirgelike music

Of the ever-tossing deep! Or where the surging night winds Pale winter's robes have spread

In the cities of the dead! I look around and feel the awe

Of one who walks alone,
Among the wrecks of former days,
In mournful ruin strown;
I start to hear the stirring sounds
Among the cypress trees,
For the voice of the departed
Is borne upon the breeze.

That solemn voice! It mingles with Each free and careless strain;
I scarce can think earth's minstrelsy

Will cheer my heart again.

The melody of summer waves,
The thrilling notes of birds,
Can never be so dear to me

As their remember'd words.

I sometimes dream their pleasant smiles

Still on me sweetly fall,
Their tones of love I faintly hear
My name in sadness call.
I know that they are happy,
With their angel plumage on,
But my heart is very desolate

To think that they are gone.

'M not worthy of her" cried Mr. Jackson, with dismal emphasis. "I never have been worthy of her, and I never shall be."

"Take care not to mention it," said young John Walmer, sagely, "and she won't guess. What is she like—to look at, I mean?"

"Charming." "Then what have you to grumble about?"

"You can tell," said John, "by the way a girl kisses you whether she's fond of you or not."

"She has never kissed me," said Mr. Jackson, "and I've never tried to kiss her. Is it usual?"

"An astonishing couple!" cried John: stopping to look at the decorations in Chancery lane. "Never heard anything

"I wish I hadn't," cried the other. He took the best man's arm. "John Walmer," he went on, "get me out of this somehow. I've been a bachelor such a long time. Do help me. You're a clever man; you're getting on wonderfully. Remember that I gave you a start in London ten years ago."

"You're giving me one now. You don't mean to tell me seriously that you want to back out of it? Why, she'll bring action against you, and your letters will be read in court."

"She's not that kind of a girl," wailed Mr. Jackson, "and there aren't any letters. John Walmer, at whatever cost she and I must not meet this morning at St. Paneras' Church in the Euston road."

"But I've bought a new frock coat." "It'll come in for something else."

Opportunities for transit were that day something less than perfect, but John Walmer, once persuaded, made his way up to Highgate with all convenient dispatch, almost carried away now and again by the strong tide of traffic that was making its way down to the line of route. He arrived rather warm from the walk up the hill, warm also from blaming himself for accepting a delicate and a difficult mission. There was not much time to spare, for as he entered the road two carriages drove up with drivers wearing white flowers in their buttonholes; these he intercepted, telling them that their services would not be required that day. The drivers said to each other that there would be a chance after all for them to go and give our good old Queen a cheer. John gave his features an appropriate twist to denote sympathy and knocked. "We are in the greatest possible trouble," said the weeping lady superfluously, as she opened the door. "Could you possibly call again some other time?" He gave his name. "Oh, come in then," she said, "I thought you were the rates and taxes. I'm so upset, and where my handkerchief's gone goodness only knows."

John entered into compettion with goodness by pointing out to the lady that she held her handkerchief in her hand, and she thanked him for his timely sagacity.

"Ro-wena!" she called, and disappeared. A slow swish of skirts came down the staircase.

"My name is Waimer," he said. speaking loudly in order to pretend that he was completely at his ease. "John Walmer, and I have a somewhat urgent message from Mr. Jackson."

form I've just written out."

John read it and slapped his knee. "He's such a good man," she went on with earnestness, "and I ought to have discovered before this morning that I didn't care for him enough. My sister is cross with me. She says this comes of putting off everything till the last moment." "The harm comes in putting it off later than the last moment." "I know that everybody will blame me, and I know how good Mr. Jackson was to father. But I don't care!" she said sturdily, "I won't marry until I find some one I really like."

"And that encounter-"Please give me Mr. Jackson's message," she said.

The elder sister had to be called down and invited to join in the general congratulations and to observe the wise and ingenious workings of Providence, and this she did, pointing out somewhat frostily that whatever might be said her day was thoroughly and completely spoiled. But John, declaring that this was a hasty anticipation of events, remarked that the mission over his day was now free and asked to be informed whether the ladies, under the altered condition of affairs, would care to see the procession. Elder sister replied that she for one was not going into the crowd to be torn into a thousand million pieces, and John said that being a man with some influence he had the right to three most admirable seats just on the other side of London Bridge, and-looking at his watch—if they could be ready in eight minutes he would gladly undertake the responsibility of conducting them to the point, looking after them while there, and eventually seeing them home again. Elder sister had a quarter of an hour since determined to stay at home and have a good cry, but Rowena answering for both said that if Mr. Walmer was quite sure he did not

London Bridge was closed, but John knew his way about too well to be baffled by this. How it was done the ladies never knew; what they did realize was that they crossed the river somehow, and crossed it by a bridge of some sort, and there they were, up a temporary wooden staircase, and in the division marked L and finding presently their numbers. The day was warm, but they had brought their parasols, and a friend of John's brought to the lady tumblers of some cool beverage with lumps of ice dancing a-top. The elder sister expressed a hope that it would not get into her head, but the day being special and the occasion rare decided to take the nounced as two hours of solid waiting, but appeared to John as two fleeting moments, the barrier at the city end of the bridge opened, the band nearer stopped playing, and John's friend called from his seat below that the procession had left St. Paul's. Soon across the bridge came mounted soldiers, mounted representatives of foreign countries, marching men from every land that owned Victoria as Queen, and presently through a wild, long boom of cheers, in an open carriage, a little old person, in her eyes tears of thankfulness.

"The dear soul!" cried Rowena. John lifted her up by the elbows that she might see well over the heads of other people in the stand. "This is better than any wedding." Bells clanging out from St. Saviour's, engines on the railway shricking congratulations, folk from Horsleydown and Rotherhithe at the top of Tooley street cheering everybody, from a popular British general on a white horse to the black police from the West Indies. It did seem to the ladies that town had no secrets from John. At Cannon Street Hotel he warned them that they might have to wait their turn for lunch; he would do what he could. As a matter of fact, there was plenty of room at the tables, and when John asked the head waiter whether they could have a cold fowl the head waiter replied that the supply was so much in excess of the demand that he would let John have forty cold fowls. They took it quietly after lunch. Had a rest first and then strolled out into the city to see the decorations. John showed Rowena the office where he had once been a junior clerk; she said it was a very interesting place. He told her how remarkably well he had been getting on the last two years.

"It's been a much happier day," she said at Highgate that evening, "than I thought it was going to be. I can't think of anything being jollier."

"I can," said John. "Excuse me, Mr. Walmer," interposed the elder sister, "but-if it isn't a rude question-are you by any chance engaged? Engaged to a lady, I mean."

"Dear me, no!"

"Then," announced the elder sister, impressively, "we're always at home on Sunday afternoons." John Walmer looked down at Rowena with a question in his eyes. "Please!" said the girl.-London Tat-

Old-Age Pension.

As young men are now filling the places of the old and middle aged, they should be asked to contribute to an old age pension fund. There are "Mine," answered Miss Rowena; "I old age pensions in New Zealand, as was going to telegraph it. Here's the well as other things which we might do well to study.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I can conscientiously recommend Lydia Es-Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to those of my sisters suffering with female weakness and the troubles which so often befall women. I suffered for months with general weakness, and felt so weary that I had hard work to keep up. I had shooting pains, and was utterly miserable. In my distress I was advised to use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable. Compound, and it was a red letter day to me when I took the first dose, for at that time my restoration began. In six weeks I was a changed woman, perfectly well in every respect. I felt so elated and happy that I want all women who suffer to get well as I did."—Miss Guilla Gannon. 359 Jones St., Detroit, Mich., Secretary Amateur Art Association.

It is clearly shown in this young lady's letter that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will certainly cure the sufferings of women; and when one considers that Miss Gannon's letter is only one of the countless hundreds which we are continually publishing in the newspapers of this country, the great virtue of Mrs. Pinkham's medicine must be admitted by all; and for the absolute cure of all kinds of female ills no substitute can possibly take its place. Women should bear this important fact in mind when they go into a drug store, and be sure not to accept anything that is claimed to be "just as good" as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, for no other medicine for female ills has. made so many actual cures.

How Another Sufferer Was Cured.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I cannot praise your wonderful remedies enough, for they have done me more good than all the doctors I have had. For the last eight years and more I suffered with female troubles. was very weak, could not do my housework, also had nervous prestration. Some days I would remain unconscious for a whole day and night. My neighbors thought I could never recover, but, thanks to your medicine, I now feel like a different woman.

"I feel very grateful to you and will recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to all. It has now been four years since I had the last spell of nervous prostration. I only weighed ninety-eight pounds at that time; now I weigh one hundred and twenty-three.

"I consider your Vegetable Compound the finest remedy made.
Thanking you many times for the benefit I received from your medicine.
I remain, Yours truly, Mrs. J. H. Farmer, 2809 Elliott Ave., St. Louis, Mo. Remember Mrs. Pinkham's advice is free and all sick women are foolish if they do not ask for it. She speaks from the widest experience, and has helped multitudes of women.
