THE INAUGURATION OF ROOSEVELT WAS A BRIL-LIANT AFFAIR.

FIFTY-EIGHTH CONGRESS HAS DONE ITS WORK AND EXPIRED.

ARGER APPROPRIATIONS THAN LAST YEAR HAVE BEEN MADE.

The Inauguration.

Theodore Roosevelt became the twenty-seventh president of the United States on Saturday, March 4. The oath of office was administered by the Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court in the presence of thenands of citizens from all parts of the country. He repeated the oath other the chief justice in a clear voice and at the concusion he slowly and spl-cumly lowered his head and kissed the open page of the Bible held cut before him. At that moment breath-less silence prevailed. Every eye was upon that sturdy figure, but for a brief moment in an attitude of reverential humility.

At the completion of the president's address the pent up enthusiasm of the vast throngs broke out and the air became filled with the clamor of count-less bands and wild cheering, flags began to wave, soldiers, civic organi-Riders, Porto Ricans, all began to march hither and thither, preparatory to falling in line for the grand parade the crowds that had been waiting for hours began to surge forward upon the police lines, and all the population of the city of Washington and nearly 200,000 people from all parts of the United States began to cheer.

President Roosevelt led his inaugural parade in quick marching time from the capitol to the White House. No president in recent years has been as prompt in moving from one end of the avenue to the other. The troops marched in ideal weather, the sky being clear, the sun warm, and a fair breeze blowing. The president lost no time in formalities. The splendid triumphal pageant preceded by a platoon of mounted police, moved up the avenue amid the frantic applause of the thousands who packed the line of march on either side to view the spectacular and public feature of the day.

The inaugural festivities closed at midnight with a ball that in splendor, attendance and artistic effect fittingly ushered out a brilliant, spectacular day. Thousands of handsomely gowned women with escorts from every state in the union and nearly every civilized country, in the grand illuminated court of the pension building, paid their social devoirs to the nation's chief executive of the next four years. The setting for the bail was beautiful with a riotous wealth of color in flowers, evergreens, lights and plants. Closing Scenes in Congress. The 58th congress came to an end it noon Saturday. As all important legislation had been completed last night, there was little save formal business to be transacted during the two hours both houses were in session. The presiding officers announced their signatures to the bills which had passed and these were hurried to the president. When signed by him they were returned to the houses in which they had originated, thus completing the formalities necessary to make them laws."

Only one bill, which passed both houses and was presented to the president, failed to receive his signature. This bill amended the present antismoke law of the District of Columbia and intended to be less severe upon these who have not complied with the present law in abolishing smoking chimneys.

The closing ceremonies in the senate were of more than ordinary interest. because the end of the 58th congress was merged into the special session of the 59th congress and Vice-President Fairbanks was inducted into office. This ceremony took place in the presence of the president and his cabinet, the diplomats representing foreign governments, the sunreme court of the United States, the house of representatives and many distinguished visitors from all parts of the country.

In the house the usual action preceeding the closing of the session was taken. Mr. Hemenway (Ind.), chairman of the committee on appropriations, in accordance with custom, gave resume of appropriations made during the present congress. The total permanent and annual appropriations. he explained, were $697,048,104, while the estimated revenues for the next were no additional expenditures there would be a surplus at the close of the next fiscal year of $28,542,410. "It now looks clear beyond question," he said, amid loud applause, "that there will be no deficit." The presentation of loving cups to Speaker Cannon and Mr. Williams, the Democratic leader, were made. Both made feeling responses. After the adoption of the usual resolution of thanks to the speaker and his farewell remarks the house adjourned

Theodore Roosevelt was on March 4 transformed from president by chance into president by choice; from president through an assasin's bullet into president through the ballots of the people. Under the shadow of the graydomed capitol, gazing into the placid marble features of Greenough's statue of the first president, the twenty-sixth president of the United States swore faithfully to execute the laws and to preserve, protect, and defend the constitution.

There were represented in the throngs that had journeyed to the capital to greet President Roosevelt men from the North, South, East and West, and from distant islands of the seas; from the Philippines, from Porto Rico, from Hawaii-from every land where floats the emblem of the Republic. In the great parade there rode governors of states, both North and South. The president's old rancher friends, with lariat and chaparejos and wiry bronchos, made strange contrast to the stiff-backed, pouter chested young men from the national military schools. Rough Riders from San Juan Hill, volunteers from Santiago, jackies from Manila bay shared the plaudits of the multitude with modest, everyday soldiers, for whom the title Regular is distinction quite enough. Political clubs from East and West, milltiamen from North and South, blue-clad veterans of the sixties, heroes of the Spanish-American war, miners from Pennsylvania, the entire legislature of the state of Tennessee, the president's neighbors from Oyster Bay-all contributed to the national character of the splendid pageant.

There were waiting for the president when he emerged from the white house thirty picked men from the Rough Riders under Gov. Brodie. With the crack squadron A of the First Cavalry, U. S. Army, they formed his escort to the capitol. As they swung around the treasury building into Pennsylvania avenue a division of the G. A. R., with Gen. O. O. Howard and staff in the lead, which had been standing at salute, wheeled into the column, while the cavalrymen checked their pace to accommodate the slower footsteps of the aged veterans. A mighty wave of cheers swept along the avenue as the president's carriage came in sight. Throughout the whole route the president, with hat in hand, kept bowing in acknowledgment of the greetings. On his arrival at the capitol he was conducted to the president's room, in the rear of the senate chamber, where he began at once the signing of belated bills. At noon he entered the abode of the senate to witness the installation of Senator Fairbanks as vice president. This ceremony cencluded, he proceeded to the stand on the east front of the capitol to receive the eath from Chief Justice Fuller and to deliver his inaugural address. Immediately upon its conclusion the precident was escorted back to the white house, where, after lunching with the officials of the inaugural committee, he took his position on the stand in front to review the formal inaugural parade.

Inauguration Ceremonies. The broad plaza whose level surface stretches east from the national capitol can accommodate an army. For hours Washington poured its own population and a vast increment of visitors into the front yard of the seat of government. Eight acres of humanity spread fan-shaped from the focus made by a little covered shelter, open at the sides, where the president was to stand. Over toward the imposing facade of the congressional library it extended, literally a "sea of faces." There may have been only 50,000; probably there were nearer 100,000 in sight of the president when he took the oath.

After a brief pause, Count Cassini, the Russian ambassador and dean of the diplomatic corps, marshaled forth the ambassadors and ministers of foreign countries.

Mrs. Roosevelt and Mrs. Fairbanks were next escorted to seats just outside the tribune. .The president's children were with Mrs. Roosevelt, and Mr. Fairbanks' two sons, students at Yale, and his daughter, Mrs. Adelaide Timmons, were with Mrs. Fairbanks. Mrs. Roosevelt was gowned in a severely plain tailored suit of electric blue; the round skirt was trimmed in bands of lighter shade panne velvet, and the short, modish jacket had a vest of the panne braided in silver. Mrs. Fairbanks wore a beautiful dress of brown velvet, trimmed with chiffen and white ermine. Her hat and gloves were also white. Secretary Hav and other members of the cabinet were ushered to their chairs, and at their heels came Admiral Dewey and Lieut. Gen. Chaffee. Billows of cheers greeted Admiral Dewey, and the hero of Manila bay showed that he was pleased.

The governors of states and territories and the other invited guests followed in indiscriminate fashion, and in a short time all was in readiness for the coming of the chief executive.

President Roosevelt advanced from the door of the capitol, arm in arm with Chief Justico Fuller. Instantly, from all parts of the eight acres of humanity, arose a prolonged, tumultucus shout. Behind the president and his white-haired companion came James H. McKinney, clerk of the supreme court, bearing a ponderous Bible. When the demonstration ceased, Chief Justice Fuller, his snowy locks falling to his shoulders, pronounced the oath. President Roosevelt's voice was easily audible at some distance when he repeated the formal declaration prescribed in article II of the Constitution: "I do solemnly swear that I will faithfully execute the office of president of the United States, and will to the best of my ability, preserve, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States." A second later he bowed and pressed his lips upon the open pages of Holy Writ. Again erect, he faced the people, and for an instant perfect silence held. A signal had been flashed from the dome of the capitol to the navy yard, whence came the boom of a ten-inch gun, first of

Mr. Fairbanks then delivered his inaugural address, and, at its conclusion, he instructed the secretary to read the president's proclamation convening the extraordinary session of the senate. Next the new senators were called to the secretary's desk and took the oath.

President Roosevelt was then escorted back to the executive chamber, adjoining the marble room, preparatory to going to the east portico, himself to take the oath of office. The other distinguished visitors filed out of the chamber in the order of official precedence, and went to the seats assigned them for the president's cere-

The Great Parade.

With standards waving, guidions whipping in the breeze, and regin ental colors flaunting, infantry, cavalry, and artillery tramped, pranced, and rumbled through historic Pennsylvania avenue.

Experienced observers declared that the procession beat all its predecessors, even that of McKinley's second inauguration. Not since the review of the Federal army after the Civil war has the Avenue seen so many and such variety of soldiers. There were between thirty-three and thirty-five thousand men in line. For three hours the mobilization progressed along First street, Pennsylvania avenue, and confluent streets

In order to prevent disputes as to precedence each state contingent came in alphabetical order, so that Alabama, with a single company of her Third regiment, led the way. Indiana, Vice President Fairbanks' home state, had only a company to her credit, sixth in line, while the president's state, New York, with the largest quota, three full regiments and several separate bodies, totaling nearly 4,000 men, was tenth in order.

Although soldiery was the chief feature, the civilian organizations forming the second section of the parade showed up strong in numbers. Marching in the open order affected by political clubs, they spread all over the avenue. There were about 15,000 in line. They seemed to be passing an interminable time, mostly wearing

The decorations of the ball-room cutdid anything that ever before has been attempted. Walls, columns, windows and every nook and corner were covered with greens and cut flowers, palms and ferns, flags, banners and bunting, so that the thousands of guests might lock with interest upon something else of beauty than dazzling gowns and glittering jewels.

The doors of the Pension building were thrown open at 8 o'clock, but the president and his party did not arrive until 9 o'clock. They went immediately to rooms specially prepared, carpeted and decorated for their reception, and a half hour later the grand march commenced, President and Mrs. Roosevelt leading. All festivities closed sharply at midnight, because it was believed best to trespass no Sabbath principles. Thus the usual practice of the president's leaving at midnight and turning the hall over to the populace to dance until daybreak had to be abandoned.

Concerts will be given at the Pension office next week, so that those who do not attend the ball may have Democratic State Ticket.

BILIOUSNESS CONSTIPATION CURED BY THEDFORDS BLACK-DRAUGHT

Because the liver is neglected people suffer with constipation, biliousness, neadaches and fevers. Colds attack the lungs and contagious diseases take hold of the system. It is safe to say that if the liver were always kept in proper working order, illness would be almost unknown.

Thedford's Black-Draught is so successful in curing such sickness because it is without a rival as a liver regulator. This great family medicine is not a strong and drastic drug, but a mild and healthful laxative that cures constipation and may be taken by a mere child without possible

The healthful action on the liver cures biliousness. It has an invigorating effect on the kidneys. Because the liver and kidneys do not work regularly, the poisonous acids along with the waste from the bowels get back into the blood and virulent contagion results.

Timely treatment with Thed-ford's Black-Draught removes the dangers which lurk in constipation, and kidney troubles, and will positively forestall the inroads of Bright's disease, for which disease in advanced stages there is no cure. Ask your dealer for a 25c. package of Thedford's Black-

I spent hundreds of dollars for him, without relief. After about lifteen years he became so bad that we sent him to Longcliff hospital for the insane, at Logansport, Ind. He was there nearly three years, but he continued to grow worse, so we brought him home July 30, 1902, in an awful condition. He had lost his mind almost entirely. He hardly knew one of the family; could not even find his bed; was a total wreck. He had from 5 to 10 fits a day. We were urged to try Dr. Miles' Nervine, and before the first bottle was used, we could see a change for the better. We have given it to him ever since, and he has had but two very light spells since last August, 1903, and then he was not well other ways. We pronounce him cured, as he can work and go anywhere. If any one wishes to ask any questions concerning this, they are at liberty to do so."

Cured of Backache.

Member of the Businsss Men's League and one of the best known business men in St. Louis, Mo. Read what Mr. Wand has to say about Dr. Fenner's Kidney and Backache Cure:

"I know what it is to be afflicted with backache and I sympathize with fellow sufferers. After swallowing various and frequent nauseating doses of this and that prescription I decided that if Dr. Fenner's Kidney and Backache Cure could not rid me of those backaches it at least would not do me any harm and I procured a bottle.

"Now the first bottle didn't stop those wearing backaches, but it did afford me great relief. The second bottle, however, did effectually put a stop to those racking backaches. Occasionally they returned when strenuous business affairs exhausted the physical forces, but a dose or two of Dr. Fenner's Cure gave instant relief. Respectfully,

The sin farrly in the deductions through which Sherlock Holmes reaches his conclusions sustains these claims. deductions through which Sherlock Holmes reaches his conclusions sustains these claims.

PEARSON'S MAGAZINE FOR 1905

PEARSON'S PIACAZINE FOR 1905

The editorial policy of Pranson's is, in a nutshell, to combine entertainment with instructiveness. While the publisher always tries to present in each magazine an attractive prospectus of the coming number, he always insists upon the articles and stories thenselves being better than the prospectus.

Magazine readers have come to look upon Pranson's as the percedical in which they claways find some fiction character of such in assual strength as to become a popular hero of the day. The most am ous of these Pranson-mire characters are CAPTAIN KET'LE.

MONSIEURA V., THE INTERNATIONAL SPY, and LCD. Q. Plans for the coming year include a new series of siteries by the cathor of Captain Kettle, and a new reries of historic Mysteries by ALLEN UPWARD, the author of "Tie Revelations of an International Spy." H. G. WELLS, Coff "The Wars of the Wolds" famel will be a prominent contributor with a series of his initiable short stories built upon such semi-vientific flues as to give to his most extravagant plots of fletion the form of convicting truth. F. DEIRKELEY SMITH will create a rew Pranson hero of pronounced character from the type of the careless-minded sons of the very rich Americans who dwell in Paris for anusement's sake; but who at heart have the true plack and clean spirit of their countrymen, HENNY GEORGE, JR., has in preparation for Pearson's a ticemedous series of articles entitled: "The Pacinic of the Republic." These articles will show the United States as it exists, socially and politically to-day. They will draw parallels between the conditions of to-day and those of the ancient times, when the very prosperity, and seeming callgalerment of the people of Babylon, Lome, Atheas and Pompell, with the attendant extravagant and arrogant viciousness was a forcrunner to downfall and ruin.

attendant extravagant and arrogant viciousness was a forerunner to downfall and ruin.

There will be no general attack upon wealth, which is legitimate, just, and in every way to be encouraged,—but against special privileges, which are foreign to the concepts of the Fathers of the Republic and destructive of American political and social principles and ideals.

The vast system of laws of special privilege in the United States explains the vast private fortunes on the one side and the poverty of the masses on the other—a poverty in face of extraordinary and unexampled material progress and general growth of power to produce wealth. Lincoln's declaration that a nation cannot long exist half bond and half free applies as well to a condition of industrial as to one of chattel slavery.

This must daunt every thoughful, patriotic man and woman who realizes what enormous power is in this country to day or level it he hands of the 'Prince of Privilege and to what a state of dependent the large proportion of our population is reduced. #### How to Listen to Music.

People often get intensely excited In listening to music-letting their emotions run rampant and suffering In consequence a painful reaction of fatigue, says Leslie's Magazine. If they would learn to yield so that the music could pass over their nerves as it passes over the strings of a musical instrument, and then, with the mew life and vigor derived from the enjoyment, would turn to some use-Mul work, they would find a great exmansion in the enjoyment of the music as well as a new pleasure in their work. If we enjoy good music and gloat over our personal pleasure in it. so to speak, it takes the life out of us. If we let the music carry us along unstead of trying, in our excitement, to carry the music, it brings new life to us.

CHAPTER XIV.

My Rose. I found that night had fallen during ry talk with his Majesty. I had rought with me no linkman, and I mmediately set about getting that nost necessary attendant. Not a difficult task, for numbers of them came clamoring about me as soon as I set eot outside of Whitehall. There rowds of linkmen oft awaited the clated petitioner at court.

My high spirits were in the ascendent. I felt fey. Was not good fortune kissing me? I was ant to halloo before I was out of the woods, in other words, to be too sanguine in the affairs of life. That day I let my gayety be seen; it ran away with me. I engaged all the linkmen, who presented themselves for hire. As we went down the streets doors were opened, maids threw up windows and questions were asked as to the reason for such an illumination-whether it was a wedding or a funeral, or some great man's entrance into town. The men entered into the fun and treaded with a military step, keeping rank, vithout a smile upon their grimy faces. And so we marched along with the solemnity befitting a state uneral, which no doubt was the grandest event these fellows had ever been called up to participate in. When I reached the house where Mistress Rosemary Allyn stayed, I hrew a handful of coins among the men-it dissipated every trace of solemnity. Such a scampering, pushng, and pommeling as ensued-it was amusing-I could not help laughing till my sides ached. The man who came off victorious, most of the coins n his brawny fist, was a sturdy felow and worthy of his hire. Him I engaged to attend me. The rest I paid and dismissed. idmitted that Mistress Allyn was lone and would see me. I was ushered at once into her presence. She was lovelier than ever! I thought what could be the beauty of Lady Felton-although the toast of the townliken one rose to another. She resire at Mistress Rosemary Allyn.

The color flouted itself in her face "I understand not your similes," she murmured.

"No?" I questioned. "I will put it plainer. In all this garden of beauti ful women there is only one I desire -my queen rose-sweet Rosemary Allyn.'

"Would you not better, sir, be off with the old love first?" she asked.

"I think you know the story-love played no part in it," I said severely. The part we men played was not admirable-I assure you I would have returned the paper to Lord Felton that night, had I not been so incensed at Raoul Dwight's remarks. Will you not listen to my love, Rosemary?" l pleaded.

"I would wait, sir," she said, "until that little paper is no more-women are fickle. Lady Felton may refuse to give you your freedom."

"Set your mind at rest on that point," said I. "I have not even seen ner-she may know nothing of the paper-I assure you she wants no such unworthy a lover as I am. She has all London to choose from."

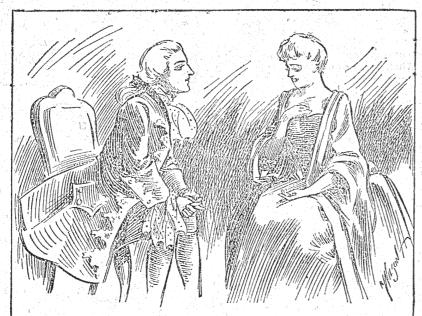

"Who shall say what a woman wants?" she muttered. Then: "I am fastidious enough, sir, to wish to wait until you are free; until that paper is out of your hands into the hands of the lady mentioned in it-given up freely by the man who won it."

"Then shall you wait but twenty minutes, ere I am back again," I cried starting up.

"Ah, you are in a hurry," she said 'At last your appetite is whetted by a desire to see the fair Lady Felton,' and she sighed.

Men have many pockets in their clothes where they store away numerous little articles of small value or use, while women without one manage to secrete and successfully, too, any thing they wish among the frills of I was told by the lackey upon being their bodice. Out of such a hiding place Rosemary took the paper I had lost at Castle Grout and handed it to me.

"You know it is not so-I would fain linger," I said, and I looked longingly at her lips, "Still," I straightened as compared with Mistress Allyn—as myself. "disagreeable things are sooner over for being done quickly. Au eived me none too graciously, but revoir.

"Why not come in cap and bells?" she asked. "That part would not suit my comolexion," I retorted with a shrug. Her eyes twinkled, and I saw the imples play hide and seek about ner mouth.

"I like not brawling in front of the nouse," she demurred. Evidently the window facing the street had not been without its occupant.

"I beg your pardon for that," said I. The boy will out sometimes in spite of me.'

I scated myself beside her on the couch, saying, "With your permission? "Mistress Gwyn informs me that you have in your keeping a slip of paper that belongs to me," I said. "And if I say yes?" she questioned. "I would request it of you," I replied. "Ah! you would make use of it to force the lady?" she asked jealously. "Not so," I answered quickly; "I would present it to her with my best wishes, and advise her to give it and herself at the same time to 'Cousin

Raoul. I smiled as I mimicked the lady of my heart.

She queried softly: "You give her to him? Do you not know she is an heiress, besides being the toast of London? And that little paper won from her fortune would hold good?"

"I know all that and yet I say, may he be happy," I went on. "It seems I must settle a difficult question for him. He hangs with equal amorousness over two roses undecided which one to pluck, poor fellow!" I let a little sarcasm ring in my voice. "Now I am not so constructed, I know my own sweet rose! She has thorns! I have felt them! But what care I as she give herself into my keeping, she may prick my heart's blood and it nlease my lady." I looked with de-

I bent over her hand and kissed it although her ruby lips were so near. I was sorely tempted, but I overcame myself and hurried from her presence.

CHAPTER XV.

Lady Felton.

I walked down the street which separated the fronts of the two estates; Lady Dwight's and Lord Felton's. A narrow alley divided the kitchen gardens in the rear. A few houses faced the intervening streets. It had been dark when I entered the Bow street mansion, it was darker now. My linkman, who rejoiced in the symphonic name of Pat, walked ahead. I nugged the wall and kept my eyes

We met a daudy coming from or going to some grand function he was so gorgeously attired and bewigged. His servant accompanied him lighting the way. The usual tussle took place between the men as soon as they met each trying to jostle the other from the wall. If the fellows were quar relsome their masters were not less The fop came at me with his SO. sword. He was quick, but I was quicker, and ere I had parried his two thrusts I sent his sword spinning. When he felt it leave his hand much against his wish, he lurched forward to regain it, uneffectually, however. In doing so, he slipped upon the slimy street, and came cheek by jowl to an undesired acquaintance with it. Pale blue satin with much soilure on knee and sleeve was not a pleasant sight to contemplate, nor was the derisive hissing of the victorious linkman, a pleasant sound to hear.

The man's impotency overpowered him, and he burst out swearing like a buccaneer; swearing alike at his servant and at me.

From the voice I recognized, "Cousin Raoul." Never again "Cousin Raoul," but brother Raoul, I thought bitterly. There was nothing in my possession I would not have parted with cheerfully at that moment not to have had that encounter, and only hoped the light had been too dim for him to see who his antagonist was. I walked off so burriedly in my smrprise and wish not to be recognized that no doubt he thought I was running away. I desired neither an encounter with swords to the death, nor yet was I ready for explanations; and knew if his sharp eyes detected who had bested him, it must mean one or the other. I did not look back until I was far down the street; then saw that the light of the linkman as he made search for his master's

I would call upon his mother to-morrow before the hour set for the duel, and request his presence, when I should tell her and I prayed heaven to give me in the telling a fluent tongue—the reason why Lord Waters had deserted and then divorced her. How she would take it I let myself not dwell upon that, only I hoped for my father's ake in the gentle spirit of forgive-As for Sir Raoul Dwight, he no doubt would find the pill hard to swallow, but I trusted that after I had een Lady Felton she would notify im of her release, and it would pave

I rang the knocker of this most pretentious mansion, which I had oft ooked at with interest, and wondered vhether I should ever have a nearer acquaintance with it or its occupants. A lackey ushered me into a drawing room of magnificent proportions. Then e retired to see if milady would reeive me.

The lady was capricious and kept ne waiting. At first my thoughts welling as they did upon my encouner with Sir Raoul Dwight and my rospective meeting, were not pleasant ones. The room was dimy lighted with wax candles and the air was heavy with perfume. Lady Telton sat in state at the far end of he boudoir, as became a great lady and great beauty. She held a hand screen before her face.

I smiled and thought, milady fears her beauty will overcome me: no doubt she will gradually unfold its plendor to my profane eyes.

She was small, dainty, and most sumptuously attired in a shimmering gown, reckless of the many yards of lace with which it was covered. This I noticed as I bowed low before her.

I expected but a cold greeting; I got none. So I spoke:

The Man Who Loves Words. "Other folks, of course, have their poor pleasures," says Richard Le Gallienne in Harper's, "but for a man who loves words no joy the world can give equals for him the happiness of having achieved a fine passage or a perfect line. When Thackeray struck his fist on the table, as the story goes, when he had finished the scene of Col. Newcome's death, and exclaimed, 'By God, this is genius,' there was no empire he would have accepted in exchange for that moment. We often hear that your true artist is never satisfied with his work. His ideal escapes him, the words seem poor and lifeless, etc., compared with the dream. Whoever started that story knew very little about the literary temperament or he would have known that-the words are the dream. The dream does not exist even as a dream, or only very imperfectly, till it is set down in words. Yes, the words are the dream."

Tombstone, Arizona, Well Named. The people familiar with the history of Tombstone, Ariz., are inclined to believe that there is something in a name. Tombstone in 1878 became the center of attraction in Arizona to the body.' pioneer prospectors when the first mines were opened up at that point. The population quickly increased to over 6,000 and it became the center of mining activity in the Southwest. The last census gave the population as 400. The mines are worked out and the population has drifted away to more prosperous camps. Therefore the town has indeed come to merit its name, for it marks the burial spot of many blasted hones.

Many another Western mining town has had the same history, though few have so aptly told it to the world in their titles.

The meeting house in Hillshoro, N. H. when the early settlers worshiped, like most churches at that time, had no arrangement for heating. After a time some of the members expressed a wish to purchase stoves, and make the house comfortable. There was much opposition, and a meeting was called to consider the matter. Gov. Failing this the body should, at any rate, be horizontal, so as to irrigate the brain well. ## THE TRICKS.

Coffee Plays on Some. It hardly pays to laugh before you are certain of facts, for it is sometimes humiliating to think of afterwards. "When I was a young girl I was a lover of coffee but was sick so much the doctor told me to quit and I did but after my marriage my husband begged me to drink it again as he did not think it was the coffee caused the troubles. "So I commenced it again and continued about 6 months until my stomach commenced acting bad and choking as if I had swallowed something the size of an egg. One doctor said it was neuralgia and indigestion. "One day I took a drive with my husband three miles in the country and I drank a cup of coffee for dinner. I thought sure I would die before I got back to town to a doctor. I was drawn double in the buggy and when my husband hitched the horse to get me out into the doctor's office, misery came up in my throat and seemed to shut my breath off entirely, then left all in a flash and went to my heart. The doctor pronounced it nervous heart trouble and when I got home I was so weak I could not sit up.

"My husband brought my supper to my bedside with a nice cup of hot coffee but I said: 'Take that back, dear, I will never drink another cup of coffec if you gave me everything you are worth, for it is just killing me.' He and the others laughed at me and -said:

"'Well,' I said, 'it is nothing else but coffee that is doing it.' "In the grocery one day my husband was persuaded to buy a box of Postum which he brought home and I made it for dinner and we both thought how good it was but said nothing to the hired men and they thought they had drunk coffee until we laughed and told them. Well we kept on with Postum and it was not long before the color came back to my cheeks and I got stout and felt as good as I ever did in my life. I have no more stomach trouble and I know I owe it all to Postum in place of coffee. "My husband has gained good health on Postum, as well as baby and I, and we all think nothing is too good to say about it." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

is not necessary for a person to die because he has consumption. Thousands of men and women have been sacrificed who might have been alive today if only the right procedure had been adopted. That which is necessary for the mastery of this disease is to return to nature—to live naturally in the fresh air, develop the lungs and eat proper food.

Tuberculosis is a low-level disease. People are not subject to it until their tissues have become vitiated and their whole bodies weakened.

To live a natural life is the only safeguard against tuberculosis. One climate may do as well as another if only one lives out of doors, gets plenty of cold, fresh air, bathes the body with cold water several times a day, and takes as much exercise as he can

Child Labor in Factories.

The physician in attendance at a nunicipal lodging house in Chicago nas within the past year been making a careful inquiry into the history of the tramps who have become the city's guests. He has found that a large proportion of the tramps give a history of having been employed in factories or in other debilitating occupations in boyhood. Our artificial modern life s making multitudes of human wrecks, one class of whom is represented by the homeless, friendless, disheartened men known as tramps. Fortunate, indeed, are the boys and girls who live in country homes and have the opportunity of growing up in contact with nature.

How do You Eat?

It is safe to say that modern cooking develops business for both the saloonkeeper and the undertaker. When a boy eats mustard plasters in the form of fcod that is almost saturated with fiery spices and irritating condiments, a thirst is created that nothing but liquor or cigarets will satisfy. Man is admonished to "eat for strength, and not for drunkenness," but in these days anything that will tickle the four square inches of taste surface is considered good food, although it may centain scarcely any of the elements that nature requires to replace brokendown tissues and to rebuild the wornout brain. As a consequence, the vi-In Holland the women work hard, tality and physical resistance soon reach such a low ebb that the individual falls an easy prey to any microbe with which he may chance to come in Tent Life Cures Consumption. A doctor in Denver some time ago made some experiments with consumptives. A tent colony was established a little way out of Denver, and the patients progressed fairly well during the first part of the winter. But by A Welsh magistrate has decided and by there was a blizzard, and the that in a liquor transaction, or any thermometer went down to 20 degrees other purchase and sale, a sale takes below zero, and then they began to place when the money is paid for an improve very fast. One woman did article. So one may pay for his drinks not seem to improve at all until the temperature reached this mark, and and take them in the hours during then she improved rapidly. She had had no appetite, but that 20 degrees below zero weather gave her an appetite, which was an indication that the body was beginning to work naturally, that the assimilative processes were being resumed, and from that time she kept on improving.

> Metal will rust if not used, and the body will become diseased if not exercised .-- Exchange.

Condiments Create False Appetite. There is absolutely no food value in mustard, pepper, ginger, capsicum and such things, and some of them, spiced pickles, for instance, are indigestible as sawdust. But these things, people say, have a relish. Those who have a good, healty appetite do not feel the need of anything of that sort for a relish.

A condiment is something which creates a false demand for food. It enables us to eat when we really have no appetite. Appetite is an evidence of gastric juice with which to digest food. Lack of appetite is an evidence that one is not in a condition to digest food. But a condiment often produces a false impression resembling appetite, making one think that he is ready for food when he is not. It is, therefore, a deceiver, to be especially avoided by those who have no appetite. Mustard, pepper, spices of all sorts are enemies to health.

If my next door neighbor chooses to have his drains in such a state as to create a poisonous atmosphere, which I breathe at the risk of typhus or diphtheria, he restricts my just freedom to live just as much as if he went about with a pistol threatening my life.-Prof. Huxley.

Natural Cure for Tuberculesis.

A Swedish doctor some fourteen or fifteen years ago succeeded, by a very crude method, in curing patients who have been given up to die. His practice was first of all to rub the patient three times a day with a towel wet in very cold water. A little later he put the patient in a tub of water at about 60 degrees, rubbing him vigorously for about a minute, and later, as the patient became better able to endure the cold water, he was plunged into a tub full of ice water. This was done three times a day. Think of those poor consumptives! Neverthe-such a powerful reaction that the Tuberculosis can be suppressed. It whole body was stimulated to increased vital activity and recovery followed.

Here is another case: A young man in New York who was getting ready to go to the Klondiko went into practice, to convince his friends that he would not freeze to death. Out of a large buffalo robe he made a bag, pitched a tent in the back yard and slept in the tent in the buffalo bag, all the winter, without suffering any injury from the cold.

And another: A cultured lady in New Jersey who made up her mind that she needed a little hardening, slept out of doors all last winter. She had her bed put out on the secondstory veranda, and an awning put up, with a net around it to keep the night hawks away. Plenty of clothing was provided, a cap worn to keep the ears from freezing, and she got along so well that she slept out of doors the entire winter.

A National Error. Our cities are growing so rapidly that only about one-half of our population are now living in the country. Dr. Gould, speaking of the wrong of shutting men and women up in houses and forcing them into sedentary occupations, says: "There is enough land and opportunity, if both were allowed and utilized, to give every human being a livelihood that will permit life of a normal length." He adds, that with proper hygienic living, especially in youth, and with right lung expansion and development, no person should have tuberculesis.

Home Sanitariums.

In New York city consumptives are building little huts on the tops of the houses, and are recovering. Outside New York, Boston, and other large cities, tent colonies, where consumptives can live out of doors, are being established. Every city ought to have outside it a camp where tubercular patients can live and get well. The air inside the city is not so good as it is outside; but on the tops of the houses, where the sun can shine, it is a great deal better than it is in the damp, dirty buildings in which most city people live.

Some "Don'ts" About Dress. Don't dress the neck too warm when soing out in cold weather. A little extra protection is required for the ears, but it is not necessary to muffle up the neck with thick furs to protect the ears. Warm wrappings about the neck cause the skin of the neck to become moistened with perspiration. When the wrappings are removed indoors, the slow cooling which takes place in consequence of the evaporation chills the part, and may produce ore throat or nasal catarrh. Don't wear rubbers indoors, nor out of doors, except when it is necessary o prevent wetting the feet. Rubbers, being impervious to air, prevent evaporation, so that the perspiration is retained, and the shoes and stockings become damp from the perspiration. When the rubbers are removed, evapcration chills the feet, the same as if they had been wet by the rain or by walking on a wet pavement. On removing the rubbers after they have been worn for some time it is a good precaution to remove the shoes and stockings and put on dry ones. If this

Mash the three hard-boiled yolks, add three tablespoonfuls of lemon juice and two of olive oil; beat until smooth. Pour this over the salad. Garnish with either lettuce or parsley.

Five cups of tart apples, chopped fine; five cups of protose, minced; one cup of prune marmalade (prunes thoroughly cooked, seeded and pressed through the colander); two cups boiled apple juice (boil the juice down until it is almost as thick as syrup); one cup of crushed nuts (walnuts or pecans); one cup of malt honey, onehalf cup of sugar, one cup of raisins, butter the size of an egg. Woman's Kidney Troubles TOLIVE LONG AND WELL Many Persons Have Catarrh of Kidneys, Or Catarrh of Bladder and Don't Know It.

> President Newhof and War Correspondent Richards Were Promptly Cured By Pe-ru-na.

Mr. C. B. Newhof, 10 Delamare street, Albany, N. Y., President Monteflore Club, writes:

"Since my advanced age I find that I have been frequently troubled with urinary ailments. The bladder seemed irritated, and my physician said that it was catarrh caused by a protracted cold which would be difficult to overcome on account of my advanced years. I took Peruna, hardly daring to believe that I would be helped, but I found to my relief that I soon began to mend. The irritation gradually subsided and the urinary difficulties passed away. I have enjoyed excellent health now for the past seven months. I enjoy my meals, sleep soundly, and am as well as I was twenty years ago. I give all praise to Peruna."—C. B. Newhof.

Suffered From Catarrh of Kidneys, Threatened With Nervous Collapse, Cured by Pe-ru-na.

Mr. F. B. Richards, 609 E. Street, N. W., Washington, D. C., War Correspondent, writes: "Exactly six years ago was ordered to Cuba as staff corres pondent of the New York Sun. I was in charge of a Sun Dispatch boat through the Spanish American war. The effect of the tropical climate and the nervous strain showed plainly on my return to the states. Lassitude, depression to the the states. Lassitude, depression to the verge of melancholia, and incessant kidney trouble made me practically an invalid. This undesirable condition continued, despite the best of treatment. Finally a brother newspaper man, who like myself had served in the war, induced me to give a faithful trial to Peruna. I did so. In a short time the lassitude left me, my kidneys resumed a healthy condition, and a complete cure was effected. I cannot too strongv recommed Peruna to those suffering with kidney trouble. To-day I am able to work as hard as at any time in my life, and the examiner for a leading insurance company pronounced me an "A" risk."

In Poor Health Over Four Years. Pe-ru-na Only Remedy of Real Benefit. Mr. John Nimmo, 215 Lippincott, St., Toronto, Can., a prominent merchant of that city and also a member of the Masonic order, writes: "I have been in poor health generally for over four years. When I caught a bad cold last winter it settled in the bladder and kidneys, causing serious trouble. I took two greatly advertised kidney remedies without getting the lesired results. Peruna is the only remedy which was really of any benefit-to me. I have not had a trace of kidney-trouble nor a cold in my system."

Pe-ru-na Contains No Narcotics.

One reason why Peruna has found permanent use in so many homes is that it contains no narcotic of any kind.. Peruna is perfectly harmless. It can be used any length of time without acquiring a drug habit. Peruna does not produce temporary results. It is permanent in its effect.

It has no bad effect upon the system, and gradually eliminates catarrh by removing the cause of catarrh. There are a multitude of homes where Peruna has been used off and on for twenty years. Such a thing could not be possible if Peruna contained any drugs of a narcotic nature.
