Prof. F. E. Sinclair delivered a short address to the pupils of the high school Monday morning on "The paying quality of an education," in which he stated that every day's work in school is worth $10 to the pupil who takes four subjects, thus making each subject worth $2.50 per day. The figures were obtained from the president of Lafayette college and, he being a close observer of this important question, is taken as excellent The third and fourth grades are en- authority. Taking 40 years as the time of the average man's work, the laboring man receives $18,000. During the same time the educated man receives $40,000 thus leaving a difference of $22,000. The high school graduate can complete his education in 12 years. Therefore he receives this $22,000 for his twelve years of labor in school or $1,833 a year for school work, an average of nearly $10 per day. Can youafford to miss a day's schooling?

"For a court to stamp such a relationship with the seal of matrimony would be a disgrace and tend to the destruction of morality and destroy the sacredness of the marriage tie. These were the strong words of Judge Law, of Port Huron, in dismissing the suit of Marion Montross against James Montross, asking for the legalization of her alleged common law marriage to Montross. According to the finding of facts in the case, the woman came from Bay City in 1901, and posed as Montross's wife, and in her petition claimed to have been forced by her putative husband to the life of shame.

Rats Causing Damage.

Meter readers of the Kalamazoo Gas & Light Co., who make monthly trips to the basement of all the business blocks of the city, say that rats are undermining many of the older buildings of the city. Thousands of the rodents are in the buildings, and have been at work for years. The inspectors declare that there is danger of some of the buildings giving every some of the buildings giving away unless the rats are exterminated. They cite ten buildings in which they say the foundations are half torn away. In three buildings in the last year cement foundations have been put in to hold the buildings up. Not a building among the old ones of the city is free from hundreds of holes made by the rodents.

COVERT THREATS ARE MADE AGAINST KOMURA AND TAKAHIRA.

THE FAMINE DISTRICTS IN RUS-SIA ARE TO BE RE-LIEVED.

Ruination Forced.

The authorities in St. Petersburg have received official reports from the Siberian coast to the effect that the Japanese are pursuing measures which promise to result in the ruination of the inhabitants throughout the island of Sakhalin, north and south. They are forcing the people to sell their property of all kinds at absurdly low and arbitrary prices and sign receipts for it at good prices under the threat of death. As an example of the extremity of the Japanese methods, Gen. Senemovsky, commanding the district, reports that 180 Russian colonists were led into marshes by the Japanese and were there decapitated. The inhabitants of the southern portion of the island are being forced to emigrate, and those of the northern half are being plundered of their houses, cattle and crops, and must emigrate as they have nothing on which to live.

III Feeling in Japan. Considerable ill feeling has been stirred up against the Japanese government by reason of the large number of arrests made in connection with the recent rioting. The expressions against the government are not so openly made as before, but there can be no doubt that the sentiment is rapidly spreading. The antagonism to Baron Komura and M. Takahira shows no signs of abatement and many covert threats have recently been made against both envoys, particularly since the discovery of the clause in the treaty forbidding Japan to fortify the Soya straits and the reported ominous declaration of M. Witte in Paris that the new treaty would result in no modification of Russia's present policy, which is open to the interpretation that another war against Japan is contemplated.

The Famine Work. Special commissions from the department of agriculture and the ministry of the interior will take charge of the relief work in the famine districts of Russia. The cost of this hatemit hy the government at $20,000,000. No acute distress has as yet been reported and the government hopes by a prompt distribution of food, seed, grain and fodder and the employment of the famine-stricken populace on public works to tide over the people until the new harvest. An observer of the situation who returned from a tour of southern Russia states that bags of grain were piled up in perfect mountains at many stations. some of which were left over from the 1904 harvest, waiting for cars to move them.

Czar to Call Peace Conference.

The issuance of the call for the second Hague peace conference by the czar will be made with the full knowledge and consent of all the great powers. The matter has been under advisement and has been the subject of correspondence between the foreign office at St. Petersburg and the foreign offices of the powers and of the United States ever since Russia consented to send envoys to meet those of Japan, and it became practically certain that peace would be restored It is said here that it was a suggestion of President Roosevelt that the call should come from Russia. The American chief executive announced his willingness to father the next conference which it is hoped will practically make a great war impossible in the future, but he expressed the opinion that it would be better that the czar who had called the first conference should take the initiative at this time. While no formal action tunnel accident in October, 1904, when has as yet been taken, I am assured that all the powers, including Japan, have signified their willingness to send delegates and that in most cases they will be invested with more comcircuit court which opens at Sanilac plete power than has ever been granted before. South American Policy.

President Roosevelt is said to be preparing a message to congress in which he will declare for a new policy by which the United States can be assured of a permanent peace with Europe. It deals with a proposal to make the United States virtually the make the United States virtually the guardian for all the republics in the western hemisphere, with no European interference in the affairs of Latin America. The rough draft of the message has been read over to Senator Lodge and Ambassador Choate by the president, the general tenor being some definite arrangement by which all disputes between the United States and foreign powers are to be settled by arbitration. As to the republics, south of this country, he wants a policy of benevolent guardianship to be adopted. If they try to repudiate their honest obligations, or wilfully and maliciously involve themselves in disputes with foreign powers, it is to be the duty of the United States to intervene. In such a case the offending states will be forced by the United States to make due reparation, either by money payments or other atonements, to satisfy the offended European power. The Cuban Troubles. Nowhere are the ugly developments in connection with the Cuban presidential campaign watched with a keener interest than in Washington. The series of disorders, which culminated in the bloody fight at Cienfuegos has been the subject of a number of conferences between high officials of the navy and war and state departments and by special direction of President Roosevelt he has been kept in close touch with the Cuban situation. To Probe Army and Navy.

A new commission of investigation to probe the army and navy will benamed by the president. It will consist of Assistant Secretary of the Navy Darling and Assistant Secretary of War Oliver. These officials will dofor the military branch of the government what the Keep commission is doing for the civilian branch. They will ferret out any corruption that may exist and institute reforms of administration in order to do away with the excessive amount of red tape which now hampers the prompt and economical execution of business.

The naval estimates for the present. year now being collected by the secretary of the navy aggregate almost $130,000,000, and through the application of the pruning knife will be reduced to $100,000,000.

Tom and Dick were two poor little | soft, green grass beneath him, clover waifs. From morning till night they coamed the streets of the great city. Tom was the older and always took the lead in everything. He was a bright-eyed, handsome boy, in spite of his dirty face and tattered clothes.

He had taken care of himself ever since he could remember. First he The nearest he had come to it was had begged, but having been born with a faculty for getting along in the world he sold a few matches, bought | nition in his heart. But it cost money with his first savings. He knew he could polish shoes, but he never had a chance to try. He wished he could have a peanut stand, but he was only a little boy and that ambition seemed to him as lofty and unattainable as the stars. Meanwhile he plodded along, putting on as brave a face as he could when he was hungry, and whistling when bread was plenty.

He believed a living was to be had for the asking if anybody would work, but when Dick's mother died and he was left all alone in the world, he wondered what would become of him. for Dick could not talk, consequently he was unable to ask for work. Then he was not so old as Tom and did not know how to do anything; added to this Tom loved Dick better than anything or anybody else in the world, so ne opened his arms and said:

"Come, Dick, I'll take care of you, and we'll live together.' Now this was not a very munificent offer, for Tom lived nowhere or anywhere. Some nights he slept-in-an old box behind a great warehouse, or in a doorway if he could get in there unobserved. When the weather was warm, he lay down in one of the small parks where the grass was soft and the trees waved over his head Next to Dick he loved the trees. If he had known anything about heaven he would have said it must be full of trees and that one might live, under them forever. He would lie on his back watching the moon glide slowly upward, with the leaves dancing across its shining face, and dream of the village where he was born and which he only remembered as one recalls dimly a beautiful dream of a far off unknown country. However, such as he had he offered to Dick and it was joyfully accepted. Protection and love are gifts not to be despised. Selling a few matches would hardly feed two, and Tom, with ready invention tried other means of livelihood, and was pushed along by the crowd. He bought a harmonica and learned a Dick saw him waver a moment on the few of the popular airs he heard the hand organs play. He had often danced on the pavement in the evening with the other children to the music of those same hand organs, and he set to work to teach Dick to dance. The loss of one faculty often quickens the others and soon the two chums were able to do a little dance together, to the strains of the harmoni- the faces about him, uttering the shrill Then Dick would take a little plate and pass it around, and often the

THERE IS MONEY IN GROWING GINSENG

Prof. W. L. Howard of the Missouri State Agricultural College says: "I advise American farmers to cultivate Ginseng. Big profits may be realized. It is a hardy plant and is easily grown."-A recent bulletin issued by the Pennsylvania State Agricultural College in part says: "The supply of native Ginseng root is continually diminishing and the price per pound is correspondingly increasing, while the constant demand for the drug in China stands as a guarantee of a steady market for Ginseng in the future. The market for our cultivated root will exist as long as the Chinamen exist."—Counsel General W. A. Rublee of Hong Kong says in the U. S. Consular reports: "The sale of Ginseng root grown in America is very large here and the demand is so great that much more could be disposed of advantageously. The root is indispensable to the 400,000,000 Chinese as is their rice."

Ginseng is a staple on the market the same as corn, wheat and cotton. The present market price varies from $5.00 to $8.00 per pound according to quality, while the cost of production does not exceed $1.50. There is room in an ordinary garden to grow several hundred dollars worth each year. The plant is hardy and thrives in all parts of the United States and Canada, except in the arid regions. We are successful grows and can show you how to make money growing Ginseng. You can get a good start in the business for a small outlay, and soon have a comfortable income. We have several thousand choice roots for sale for fall delivery. The planting season begins in August and continues till the ground is frozen. Write us today for further particulars.

100% On Your Money Every Year For Twenty Years

This is the marvelously good investment that more than 650,000 users have actually found the DE LAVAL GREAM SEPARATOR to be.

With the average number of cows a DE LAVAL machine saves and earns its whole cost the first year, which it continues to do yearly for its established life of fully twenty years more to come.

There surely isn't another such investment, either on the farm or off it, open to anyone having cream to separate. Why delay making it?

As for the first cost, if you have the ready cash of course there is a fair discount for it, but if not any reputable buyer may secure a DE LAVAL machine on such liberal terms that the machine is actually free of cost for it will earn its cost and more while you are paying for it. Send at once for catalogue and full particulars.

The organs of the body are working poorly, or not at all, and you are not getting the nourishment needed. This soon impoverishes the blood and instead of throwing off the impurities, distributes it all through the body. This brings disease and misery.

Feed the nerves with Dr. Miles' Nervine, a nerve food, a nerve medicine, that nourishes and strengthens the nerves, and see how quickly you will get strong and vigorous.

"My wife suffered with nervousness previous to a recent attack of typhoid fever, but after her recovery from the fever, she was much worse, and could hardly control herself being exceedingly nervous when the least excited. She was very restless at night, and never had a good night's rest. She also suffered much from nervous headache. Dr. Miles' Nervine was recommended by a friend. After the first three doses she had a good night's rest, and at the end of the first week's treatment she was wonderfully improved. Continued use of Nervine has completed her entire cure."

CHAPTER XVII.

A Deep, Dark Mystery.

On the return of Mr. Carter and Mr. Hamilton, as I shall continue to call him, having phonetic objections to Mrs. Fry's expressive appellation of t'other one, Constance met them with a face so full of fear, dread, consternation, or whatever the feeling was that had blanched her face to the color of the white robe she wore, that they both started back with affright. "Bless my soul, child, what is it?"

"Constance are you ill?" "No, no; but I must tell you both I have sent the children away. Now, listen." And with a certain majestic sternness which robbed her words of all save the terrible significance of the manifestly truthful account, she related what had taken place at the house of Mrs. Fry. "Bless my soul, the man's stark, raving crazy! He'll have to be carried to Concord. Did you know he was crazy to begin with?"

"I don't know it now, Uncle Carter." "Bless my soul! She don't know it now. Vane. she says.

"I think she is right. It is something worse than insanity; it is scoundrelism of the deepest, darkest dye," said Mr. Hamilton, between his set teeth.

They all sat silent after that, as if words were futile at such a crisis, at such an astounding event. Mr. Hamilton was the first to recover himself, and, to their surprise, he spoke much in his usual tones.

"There is no sense in allowing such a man to move us from our usual ways. It is worse for him than for us. An attempt at blackmail so barefaced is not to be considered a moment. The fact of my having lost my sense of personality while away, no doubt, struck him as a reason why he or of her hair, and that she mistook could put in the same plea of forget- me for my brother. which was not satisfied. A few years ago deliverance came in the shape of the chemical compound, Calcium Carbide, from which, by the simple application of water, the gas Acetylene is derived. Acetylene meets all the requirements fully and admirably and is being generally used.

THOUSANDS OF LIVES SAVED

By "Mother's Medicine Chest" and Patent Prescriptions.

Commenting on attacks made by certain eastern publications on some of the best known and most valuable of the world's proprietary medicines, the Committee on Legislation of the Proprietary Association says:

"All through the country districts, in every state of the union, you will find in the farm houses the old family remedies, sometimes called 'patent medicines,' many of which have been in use in the same household for generations. Among such people the oldfashioned proprietary medicine, always at hand with full printed instructions for use, is one of the necessities of life.

"To families in the country many miles from a doctor such remedies are invaluable. 'Mother's medicine chest' has saved many a life and met many a threatening sickness at the threshold and turned it out of doors. So far from constituting self-prescription, as is often pretended, acquaintance with a 'patent medicine' often obviates the necessity of such a step; for here is a prescription already made up, the effect of which is well known. One of the greatest advantages of such medicine is that its constant formula gives it the character of a single drug, so far as uniformity of result is concerned, and the people who use it know from experience just what they can count on-which is more than can be said of many physicians' prescriptions frequently obtained at a far greater cost and trouble."

Another Poetic Idol Gone.

One by one our old poetic idols are being shattered by the utilitarian and practical of the fin-de-siecle woman doctor. The latest iconoclast is responsible for the asseveration that what is so poetical in poetry and the novels about the whiteness of the skin means something not so poetical. It is due, she says, to the languor of the muscular tissues throughout the body, and the slowness and languor that was so often characterized as a charming feminine attribute is associated with indigestion and is therefore thoroughly unromantic. It is one of the ironies of life that women as they stand in literature and romance are not true to life.—Chicago News.

Apples Long a Food.

The apple has been eaten by man longer than any other fruit. The lake dwellers of Switzerland used to preserve apples by cutting them lengthways, and drying them in the sun. The remains of these dried apples, so large as to be evidently a cultivated variety, have been found among the pile-prop ped ruins of the island dwellings of this ancient race.

It happened in an uptown Broadway restaurant. He and she used to dine together every night in a quiet, domestic way, for they had only lately been married. She was a strict teetotaler, while he-well, he wasn't exactly. They drank ginger ale with their meal, but hubby, by aid of a tip, inveigled the waiter into putting a good horn of whisky into his soft drink every night. All went well until one evening the wife was more than ordinarily thirsty. Finishing her glass of ginger ale, she reached over for her husband's glass, and before he could stop her she had taken a good average sip from it. She coughed and sputtered, gave the waiter a glance that froze what was left of the liquid, and-the subsequent proceedings interested only the husband .-New York Sun.

CHRONIC ERYSIPELAS

Cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, Although Whole Body was Affected.

Erysipelas or St. Anthony's fire is a most uncomfortable disease on account of the burning, the pain and the disfigurement; it is also a very grave disorder, attended always by the danger of involving vital organs in its spread. The case which follows will be read with great interest by all sufferers as it affected the whole body, and refused to yield to the remedies prescribed by the physician employed. Mrs. Ida A. Colbath, who was the victim of the attack, residing at No. 19 Winter street, New-buryport, Mass., says:

"In June of 1903 I was taken ill with what at first appeared to be a fever. I sent for a physician who pronounced my disease chronic erysipelas and said it would be a long time before I got well.

"Inflammation began on my face and spread all over my body. My eyes were swollen and seemed bulging out of their sockets. I was in a terrible plight and suffered the most intense pain throughout my body. The doctor said my case was a very severe one. Under his treatment, however, the inflammation did not diminish and the pains which shot through my body increased in severity. After being two months under his care, without any improvement, I dismissed him.

"Shortly after this, on the advice of a friend, I began to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, two at a dose three times a day. After the second box had been used I was surprised to notice that the inflammation was going down and that the pains which used to cause me so much agony had disappeared. After using six boxes of the pills I was up and around the house attending to my household duties, as well as ever.

NATION OF TEA DRUNKARDS

English Suffer From Complaints of Which They Know Not the Cause.

The public analyst of one of the London boroughs has recently been investigating tea inebriety. He states that, judging from the annual tea bill each individual in England consumes six pounds of tea every twelve months. This means that the average person swallows 3.6 grains of caffeine and 9.7 grains of tannin per

This is about half as much of the former and nearly as much of tannin as the pharmacopeia allows as an occasional dose. When to these amounts are added the caffeine and tannin consumed in coffee and other beverages, it is obvious that the present generation of Englishmen is saturating itself with these two poisons.

The symptoms of this form of selfpoisoning are seen frequently enough by physicians, but their cause is often overlooked. Many of the patients who suffer from palpitation of the heart, chronic dyspepsia, sleeplessness, emaciation and anaemia are simply tea or coffee drunkards.

Do Plants Throw Off Heat?

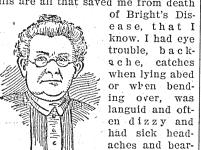

It appears that many do. A remarkable instance is offered by the alpine soldanella. Its flowers actually bore, or, rather, melt, their way through the hard snow. Sometimes, indeed, the flower opens before it reaches the surface, so that it actually blooms in a little hole in the snow. Usually, however, it reaches the surface and hangs | 66 out its pretty violet bells above the snow, looking as if stuck into it. Growing through the snow is due to the heat developed by the vegetative process

Black Sea Once Inland Lake.

The Black Sea, according to chronicles mentioned by Strabo and others, was once an inland lake, connected with the Caspian, till some catastrophe forced its outlet into the basin of the Mediterranean, cutting off communication with its eastern sister lake, which, indeed, has gradually shrunk, ever since, but, for awhile, may have flooded its shore lands far and near.

RESTORED HIS HAIR

Scalp Humor Cured by Cuticura Soap and Ointment-After All Else Had Failed.

"I was troubled with a severe scalp humor and loss of hair that gave me a great deal of annoyance and inconvenience. After unsuccessful efforts with many remedies and so-called hair tonics, a friend induced me to try Cuticura Soap and Ointment. The humor was cured in a short time, my hair was restored as healthy as ever, and I can gladly say I have since been entirely free from any further annoyance. I shall always use Cuticura Soap, and I keep the Ointment on hand to use as a dressing for the hair The mountains look on Marathon—And Marathon looks on the sea; And musing there an hour alone, I dream'd that Greece might still be free; and scalp. The Sturdy Spirit of the Northwest mistic, It Has Created Great Wealth Out of the Unbounded Opportunities of Nature.

The horseback era followed the navigation of the streams, and then the railroad came to hang the great spaces of the west with cities like long circuits of electric lights waving along a boulevard.

With the railroad the westerner passed away, leaving the American citizen proud of his section. With the railroad came the period of town building and town booming wherein the men from the west, traveling westward in a Pullman, endeavored to make fortunes overnight in real estate gambling. It took the collapse of the boom and the awful years that made Kansas bleed to teach them that they had found a new empire.

In these men are now blended the raits of the cowboy and of the real estate man, of the vigilante and the student of law, but added to all these is the conservatism of the capitalist and the responsibilities of success. They "plunge" less now, since they have more to protect. But they are the same adaptable, energetic, optimistic spirits who pushed the pioneer ahead and created for themselves great wealth where only opportunity | -World's Work.

Adaptable, Energetic and Opti- | awaited their coming. They are still pushing.

There are the men who have made that three-fifths of the nation which lies west of Chicago so safe that the cliff dwellers of Manhattan have grown richer by selling them their wares-from steel bridges to magazines, from life insurance to Massachusetts state bonds. Their one care is a constant watch for opportunity and their rule of honor is respect for every other man's right to try.

They laugh when they win because success in a successful country need not be taken too seriously. They laugh also when they fail, because failure amid so many opportunities is ludicrous. They are crude and they must meet their social problems in their wives' names. Their optimism is the optimism of plenty; their conceit grows out of their achievements.

The New Yorker scornfully says: 'Why should I go west? I have everything that is worth seeing right here in New York."

To this the American replies: "Yes, everything except the United States of America."

"You think you are the whole nation," says the New Yorker.

"No," says the American. "I'm only a part owner. But I know my country and my partners. You don't.'

Kaaba, the holy stone of Mecca, is worn and polished by the kisses of the crowding pilgrims; while the Do-ring of Lhasa, Tibet, marks another center of the universe.

There are other stones of legendary or historical interest which have played a practical part in national or chus as marking the center of the civil life. The Stone of Scone was originally supposed to be the ancestral god of the Irish Scots. It was kept in the gray old castle of Dunstaffnage until it was carried to Scone, and the Scottish kings were crowned upon it. Edward I. carried it to Westminster abbey, and it forms the seat of the coronation chair used by all the British sovereigns.

The London Stone marked the meeting-place of the Roman roads which Norwegian mountains cherished round | ran through the kingdom, and from it all distances were reckoned. It was supposed to have been brought from Troy, and is mentioned in very early records. To-day a fragment of it is embedded in the wall of St. Swithin's church, London, and protected by a strong iron grille.
