A FATAL ACCIDENT.

Martin Klein is Caught Between the Bumpers of Box Cars, and Expires Within Thirty Minutes

A very sad accident, which caused the death of Martin Klein, aged about 17 years, occurred Wednesday forenoon. Martin was assisting others in pushing by hand two box cars on the elevator side track, and when passing between the cars he was caught by the bumpers and so severely hurt that he died in about half an hour after being taken to his home. The cars rebounded sufficient to allow the unfortunate boy to release himself. and he walked about a rod before falling. He came here about a week ago from St. Joseph, Minn., where he had been studying telegraphy with an uncle, and at the time of the accident was an assistant of Station Agent Edgar. He leaves a father, mother, brothers and sisters to mourn his loss.

The funeral will be held this forenoon at the Catholic Church, Gagetown.

STAR SPANGLED BANNER." It Was First Sung by a Boy on the Streets of Baltimore. In Lossing's 'Pictorial Field Book of the War of 1812' it is recorded that the "Star Spangled Banner" was first sung in a restaurant in Baltimore next door to the Holliday-street Theatre, by Charles Durang to an assemblage of patriotic defenders of the city, and after that, nightly at the theatre.

This statement, says the Brooklyn

Eagle, is slightly inaccurate, and though it is of no great historical importance it involves a matter of sufficient interest to justify a correction. The first person to sing that spirited song-which, though given a foreign air, and commemorating a single escapade in our country's history, has filled millions of American hearts with patriotic emotion-was a lad twelve years of age, the scene of his childish effort being neither a restaurant nor a theatre, but the street in front of Captain Benjamin Edes' printing office in Baltimore on the second day after the bombardment of Fort McHenry. It is wo thy of record too, that, the person how first "set up" the song. printed it and distributed it to the citizens of Baitimore, was also a boy-an apprentice of Captain Edes—the whole thing being done while the gallant Captain was still out of the city with his regiment, the Twenty-Seventh Maryland Infantry, which three days before had acted with conspicuous bravery at the battle of North Point.

The name of the apprentice boy. then seventeen or eighteen years old, was Samuel Sands. He lived, a much respected citizen of Baltimore, to a very old age. The little singer was James Lawrenson, who afterwards for nearly seventy years was connected with the postffice department, and was employed for probably half that time as a writer for the National Intelligencer, the Philadelphia Ledger and Baltimore Sun. He died in 1811 nearly n nety years old at his home in Baltimore, universally loved and honored.

TALMAGE PREACHES ON THE COLUMBUS ANNIVERSARY.

The Discovery of the New World was Made in the Name of the Father of Heaven and Earth-"Lift Up Thine Eyes Westward."

BROOKLYN, Oct. 9 .- The Rev. Dr. Talmage's discourse to-day was occasioned by the Columbus observance now taking place. In the overflowing audience were many who had come to ceremonies. The subject was: "Half a Planet," the text being Deuteronomy 3:27: "Lift up thine eyes westward." So God said to Moses in bible times, and so he said to Christopher Columbo, the son of a wool-comber of Genoa, more than four hundred years ago. The nations had been looking chiefly toward the East. The sculpture of the world, the architecture of the world, the laws of the world, the philosophy the world, the civilization the world, the religion of of the world came from the East. But, while Columbus, as his name was called after it was Latinized, stood studying maps and examing globes and reading cosmography, God said to him: "Lift up thine eyes toward the West." The fact was it must have seemed to Columbus a very lop-sided world. Like a cart with one wheel, like a scissors with one blade, like a sack on one side of a camel, needing a sack on the other side to balance it. Here was a bride of a world with no bridegroom. When God makes a half of anything, he does not there. He makes the other half. We are all obliged sometimes to leave things only half done. But God never stops half way, because he has the time and the power to go all the way. I do not wonder that Columbus was not satisfied with half a world, and so went to work to find the other half. The pieces of carved wood that were floated to the shores of Europe by a westerly gale and two dead human faces, unlike anything he had seen before, likewise floated from the West, were to him the voice of God, saying: "Lift up thine eyes toward the West." But the world then, as now, had plenty of Can't-be-Done's. That is what keeps individuals back and enterprises back and the church back, and nations back-ignominious and disgusting and disheartening Can't-be-Done's. Old navigators said to young Columbus, "It can't be done." The republic of Genoa said, "It can't be done." Alphonso V., said, "It can't be done." A committee on maritime affairs, to whom the subject was submitted, declared, "It can't be done.' Venetians said, "It can't be done.' But the father of Columbus' wife died, leaving his widow a large number of sea charts and maps, and as if to condemn the slur that different ages put upon mothers-in-law, the mother-in-law of Columbus gave him the navigator's materials, out of which he ciphered America. After awhile the story of this poor but ambitious Columbus reaches the ear of Queen Isabella, and she pays $80 to buy him a decent suit of clothes, so that he may be fit to appear before royalty. The interview in the palace was successful. Money enough was borrowed to fit out the expedition. There they are, the three ships, in the Gulf of Cadiz, Spain. If you ask me which have been the most famous boats of the world I would say, first, Noah's ship, that wharfed on Mount Ararat; second, the boat of bulrushes, in which Moses floated the Nile; third, the Mayflower that put out from Plymouth with the Pilgrim Fathers; and now these three vessels that on this, the Friday morning, Aug. 3, 1492, are rocking on the ripples. I am so glad it is Friday, so that the prows of those three ships shall first of all run down the superstition that things begun or voyage started on Friday must necessarily prove disastrous. Show me any Monday or Tuesday or Wednesday or Thursday or Saturday that ever accomplished as much as this expedition that started on Friday. With the idea that there will be perils connected with the expedition, the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper is administered. Do not forget that this voyage was begun under religious auspices. There is the Santa Maria, only ninety feet long, with four masts and eight anchors. The captain walking the deck is 57 years old, his hair white, for at 35 he was gray, and Ask his face is round, his nose aquiline, and Travelers convenient pocket size 25c. Ask his face is round, his nose aquiline, and your druggist for SHILOH'S CURE. If your his stature a little taller than the average. I know from his decided step and the set of his jaw that he is a determined man. That's Capt. Christopher Columbus. Near by, but far enough off not to run into each other, are smaller ships, the Pinta and the Nina about large enough and safe enough to cross the Hudson river or the Thames in good weather. There are two doctors in this fleet of ships and a few landsmen, adventurers who are ready to risk their necks in a wild expedition. There are enough provisions for a year. "Capt. Columbus, where are you sailing for?" "I do not know." "How long before you will get there?" "I cannot say." "All ashore that are going," is heard, and those who wish to remain go to the land. Now the anchors of the three ships are being weighed and the ratlines begin Gall stone, brick dust in urine, pains in urethra, being weighed and the ratlines begin straining after urination, pain in back and hips, sudden stoppage of water with pressure.

Some of them came on under four months' advance pay and others were impressed into the service. For sixteen days, the wind is dead east, and that pleases the captain, because it blows them further and further away from the European coast, and further on toward the shore of another country, if there is any. After a while, there comes a calm day, and the attempt is made to fathom the ocean, and they cannot touch bottom though the line and lead run down 200 fathoms. More delightful sensations for those who are not good sailors! A fathom is six feet, and two hundred fathoms, one thousand two hundred feet, and below that it may be many hundred feet deeper. To add interest to the voyage, on the twentieth day out, a violent storm sweeps the sea, and the Atlantic ocean tries what it can do with the Santa Maria, the Pinta and the Nina. Some of you know something of what a sea can do with the Umbria, the Mayou must imagine what the ocean could do with those three small ships of olden like the morning, but often it is the Archangel of Wrath and its most rollicking fun is a shipwreck. The mutinous crew would have killed Columbus on shipboard that he was the only one that could take them back home in jestic, the Teutonic, the City of Paris, and time. You may judge what the ocean was then by what it is now; it has never changed its habits. It can smile had it not been for the general opinion safety. The promise of a silk waistcoat and $40 in money to the man who should first discover land appeased them somewhat, but the indignation and blasphemy and threats of assassination must have been awful. Yet, God sustained the great sailor commanding the Santa Maria. Every evening on shipboard they had prayers and sung a vesper hymn. But, after all the patience of those on board the ships had been exhausted, and the great captain or admiral had been cursed by every anathema that human lips could frame, one night a sailor saw a light moving along the shore, and then moving up and down, and then disappearing. On Friday morning at 2 o'clock, just long enough after Thursday to make it sure that it was Friday and so give another blow at the world's idea of unlucky days-on Friday morning, Oct. 12, 1492, a gun from the Pinta signalled "Land Ahead." Then the ships lay to, and the boats were lowered and Capt. Christopher Columbus first stepped upon the shore, amid the song of birds and the air a surge of redolence, and took possession in the name of the Father and the Son and the Holy Ghost. So the voyended with Gloria in Excelsis Dei. On his way back to Spain the ship was so wrenched by the tempest and so threatened with destruction that he to work in a Belgian mine. Leander Brooks is now one of the wealthiest men of New Haven, Connecticut. He obtained his start in life by an act of courtesy. When young and very poor he got on the cars to go from Newark, New Jersey, to New Haven. At a way station an old lady got on. She walked the entire length of the car and no one gave her a seat until she came to young Brooks. He promptly arose and gave her his place. She entered into conversation with him and took his address.

Next Christmas he received a letter from her containg a check for $1,000 and proffer of future aid if he should need it. He opened a store and has steadily prospered ever since. He is now very wealthy and gives away large sums in charity. The truest help is that extended to that of the sick and suffering. A single bottle of Reid's German

The Town of Howell Visited by a Big Fire and Three Citizens Killed by Falling Timbers---Saloon Keepers to Participate in State Politics.

An appalling disaster, over which the entire place mourns, has befallen the town of Howell. Accompanied by a crash of glass and puffs of smoke the cry of fire startled the business section and soon the flames were spreading over an entire block of the prominent over an entire block of the prominent business places. The fire originated in the Union Alliance store and with great rapidity communicated to an ad-joining saloon, then to two stores owned by Gov. Winans and occupied by lickey & Goodnow's dry goods house. Mr. Hickey and the clerks with a few brave citizens went to work to save some of the goods. Large crowds had congregated on the opposite side of the street. Suddenly there was an ominous cracking of timbers, followed by a cry of horror as the roof fell in upon the Hickey store with a terrific crash, sending a shower of sparks a hundred feet in the air. At once the apathy left the onlookers and bravely springing toward the burning building they commenced their heroic work of rescue. Time and time again they dashed into the burning and dismantled store only to be driven back by the heat and smoke. Abandoning the other stores the firemen at once concentrated their efforts on the Hickey store and soon had the flames sufficiently. ciently under control to enable the rescuers to extricate from the partly ruined building its imprisoned inmates. The upper floors falling had caught Mr. and Mrs. Hickey, Charles Good-now, Misses Emma and Carrie Webercht, Ora Beach, A. L. Cook and John Culver. All were extricated except Mr. Hickey, who could not be

Mrs. Hickey, who was almost frantic with grief, said that when the crash came she was standing near the counter with her husband and was knocked to the floor partly stunned. That was the last seen of Mr. Hickey alive. The Lansing fire department responded to a call for help and when the flames had been quenched a search was made of the ruins, and the workers were horrified to find two bodies instead of one. They were the bodies of F. G. Hickey and E. D. Wines. William Isaacs, while heroically working to save Mr. Hickey in the heat of the flames was struck by a falling timber and sustained injuries from which he died in a short time. The total loss in money will be about $50,000, partially insured.

Liquor Dealers to Enter Politics.

The liquor dealers of the state have determined to jump actively into state politics this fall. They are becoming alarmed at the general opposition throughout the state, and propose to organize and fight the men who are in any form trying to restrict their traffic. It is the wholesale and retail liquor dealers' association of the state that is acting, and a confidential circular has been issued from Saginaw calling a state convention to be held in that city on the 18th and 19th of the present month. There are over 5,000 liquor dealers in Michigan, and it is underwill be dropped in contests for the legislature, and the men supported who will best serve the liquor interests. The convention, it is understood, will indorse a gubernatorial candidate.

Believed to Have Gone Down With All on Board,

The barge Ryan, which was in tow of the steambarge Nashua, arrived at Port Huron and reports that the latter foundered off Goderich. She let go the tow line about 10 miles north of Goderich, after having lost her deck load of lumber and having disabled machinery. Later on she was flying a signal of distress. The Gratwick searched for her for four hours, but could find nothing of her or the crew. The Nashua was commanded by Capt. Richard Miller, and was owned the Sturtevant Lumber Co., of Cleveland, where she was built in 1868. She was valued at $15,000. Mrs. Capt. Millen and Mrs. Capt. Shepard were on board, in addition to the crew of a lozen men.

LATER.—The steam barge Nashua has been sighted by a tug eight miles from land, off Bayfield, Ont. The wreck was abandoned and was affoat bottom side up. It is now almost certain that the entire crew were lost. The names of the victims so far as known are: Capt. Archie, pilot, Port Huron; Capt. Richard Millen, Detroit; Mrs. Richard Millen, Detroit: John Putnam, engineer, Detroit; Charles Shepard, mate, Brockway, Mich.; Mrs. Charles Shepard, Brockway, Mich. There were, in addition, two wheelsmen, two watchmen, two firemen and two deckhands, and the second engineer, making 15 people in all. Men have been ordered to patrol the beach in search of the crew.

Died to Save a Dog.

About eight months ago Augustus Hopp, of Lansing, was killed by a Michigan Central train while trying to cross a track. A few days ago his widow was on her way to Mount Hope cemetery to place some fresh flowers on the grave. As she reached the Michigan Central track she saw an express train coming south. While waiting for it to pass her little dog ran out on the track in front of the train and she made an effort to chase it off, but she was struck by the engine and instantly killed.

Killed by the Cars.

Charles Stanford, a brakeman on the Flint & Pere Marquette railroad, was killed at Evart while making up his train. He was coupling cars and appearances indicate that he fell in such a manner that the wheels cut off both arms and the greater part of his head. He formerly lived in Saginaw, where he had a family.

A Monroe widower, while out riding in a top buggy, espied a pretty widow ahead. He knows a chance when he sees it, so before overtaking her, he knocked the ashes out of his corn cob pipe and placed it beneath the seat. Soon afterwards she remarked that it was a sultry day, and he dissented. Then he pulled up in a hurry, lifted her out and rolled her in the grass until the fire was extinguished, and she now says she will never marry a man who smokes a nasty corn-cob pipe.

ALL BRITAIN MOURNS.

LORD TENNYSON, THE POET LAUREATE, IS DEAD.

The Passing Away was Very Peaceful and Calm-The Scene Almost Dramatic-He Sang of Love and Nature, Lived a Grand life and Died a Grand Death.

The poet laureate of England, Tennyson, is dead. Immediately after the death of Lord Tennyson, Sir Andrew Clark, one of the physicians who attended the poet-laureate, said the Lord Tennyson's death was the most glorious he had ever seen. There was no artificial light in the room and the chamber was almost in darkness, save where a broad flood of moonlight poured in through a western window. The moon's rays fell across the bed ipon which the dying man lay, bathing him in their pure pellucid light and forming a Rembrandt-like background to the scene. All was silent save the soughing of the autumn wind as it gently played through the trees surrounding the house, a fitting requiem for the gentle poet who sang of love and the beauties of nature. Motionless, Lord Tennyson lay upon his couch, the tide of his life gently and slowly ebbing out into the ocean of the slowly ebbing out into the ocean of the infinite. No rocks of pain or sorrow checked its course or caused a ripple upon the outgoing tide. As peacefully and as gently as he had lived, so he died, looking until the end into the eyes of those dear to him.

All the members of his family were by his bedside and Sir Andrew Clark remained by his side until he breathed his last. So gentle and painless was his passing away that the family did not know he had gone until Dr. Clark broke the news to Lady Tennyson, who ore the closing scenes of her great trial well, in spite of her extremely Alfred Tennyson, D. C. L., F. R. S., poet laureate, third son of Rev. G. C. Tennyson, was born in 1809, at his father's parsonage at Somerby, Lincolnshire. He was educated by his father, and in due course went to Trinity College, Cambridge. In 1829 he gained the chancellor's medal by a poem in blank verse, entitled "Timbuctoo." His real growth of fame dates from 1842. "Morto d' Arthur," "Locksley Hall," "The May Queen" and "The Two Voices" placed his name among the highest of English poets. In 1850 he was made poet laureate of England. In December, 1883, Mr. Tennyson of Aldworth, Sussex, and of Freshwater, Isle of Wight. In his 81st year he produced "Demeter, and Other Poems," which has been very popular with both the English and American public.

Both Man and Wite Took Poison.

Both Man and Wife Took Polson. A succession of shreiks and groans from the house of David Lafountain, a blacksmith of Bay City, caused considerable excitement among the neighbors. Bursting open the doors they saw Mrs. Lafountain on the floor in the sitting room in a nude condition insensible, and in an adjoining room her husband on a bed writhing in agony. A physician was summoned, who found both suffering from arsenic poison, which had been prepared by the woman.

The woman died in a short time, but the man, having a weak stomach threw the poison off, and will live. Lafountain had been on a drunk for some lays. He says they agreed to poison themselves. He got the drug and she prepared it, each drinking half of the poisonous concoction. The deceased was Lafountain's fourth wife. He was taken to jail as the scheme was found to have been concocted by him.

The Rule Worked Both Ways.

William Minnie, a farm laborer of West Oxford, Ont., recently disappeared, leaving a young wife and wo children. For some time Minnie's whereabouts could not be ascertained, out the police finally located him in Michigan and induced him to return. In the meantime George Watson, a divorced Englishman, had been paying narked attention to Mrs. Minnie, who, supposing her husband had deserted her, had decided to share her joys and sorrows with another. Minnie course demanded the return of his wife, but Watson, it is said, declined to give her up. The new union appeared to be mutually congenial and William was no longer "in it." He drove to town to consult a lawyer, when his wife and Watson made a hurried exit and were soon on their way to Uncle Sam's domain.

A Remarkable Damage Suit. Byron F. Lockwood, of Jackson, has filed a bill of complaint in the circuit court. He is attorney for himself. The suit he commences is against the Masonic and Oddfellows' fraternities of Grand Rapids and the world, and he lemands $50,000 damages for injuries he claims to have sustained to character and feelings by reason of being blackballed several years ago. His bill covers 40 pages of closely written legal cap, and he accuses the fraternities of using mysterious and unearthly methods of discovering secrets, and says that they hypnotize the applicants for admission to the orders and otherwise behave in uncanny ways. The suit is by long odds the most unique ever filed in court.

Largest Gathering of Troops Since the War, The troops at Fort Wayne, Detroit, have been ordered to attend the dedicatory services of the World's Fair, October 21 and 22. DREAD DALTONS DOWNED. The Famous Robbers Tackle the Banks o a Kansas Town---Nine Deaths Result. Coffeeville, Kansas, has two banks ind it has long been known that the famous Dalton gang had their eyes upon the wealth contained in them. Both banks face on an open square and the gang arranged a plan for a raid. Six of the gang entered the town just as the banks were opening for the day's business. consequently they were at once recognized and their business was at once surmised. City Marshall Connelly summoned the business men to arms and stationed them in the square facing the two banks. The robbers had meantime entered the banks. "Texas Jack's" quartette found a time lock on the vault of the bank they tackled and as it only lacked a few minutes of the hour of the opening of the vault they resolved to wait. Meantime the Dalton brothers gathered the wealth of the other bank in a bag and marched out with the bank employes ahead under cover of their revolvers. As soon as they showed their faces outside the door a Winchester rifle spoke and Bob Dalton fell dead Emmett escaped around the alley The shot aroused "Texas Jack's boys and they hastened out and opened fire. A fierce battle raged for a few moments and soon there were no robbers to shoot at. Five had been killed and one escaped on horseback. Four citizens are also dead. A Bloody Battle Between the Government and Rebel Troops in Venezuela.

Advices from La Guayara, Venezuela say: A desperate battle has just taken place at Los Teques, a small town on the railroad line to Valencia, at a distance about equal between that place and Caracas. Six hundred are killed and many high government officials captured, Crespo has struck another decisive blow which, following upon his previous successes since the revolution begun in last March, means victory for the Crespists.

tory for the Crespists. La Guayara is still in the hands of the government, but it cannot hold out against the victorious Crespists if Caracas, as it undoubtedly will, opens its gates to ex-President Palacio's old and unrelenting enemy, Crespo. Foreigners out here are now in jeopardy. It may be impossible to control the murderously inclined populace and the ruffianly element of the soldiery. Americans may, however, feel somewhat secure, as the Chicago is close in shore with her guns loaded and trained and ready to protect Uncle Sam's sub-

A Remarkable System of Heating. Boise City, Idaho, is to be heated with water and in that respect will be the most remarkable city in the world. About a mile from the city great volumes of boiling water gush out of several deep artesian wells. The water possesses no medicinal value and heretofore has been used only for bathing. Now a six-inch pipe will be laid from the springs into the town and the hot water will be conducted into nearly every business block and residence. The cost of heating with hot water, it is estimated, will be 50

A serious accident occurred on the Northern Pacific railroad, between Winnipeg, Man., and Minneapolis, Minn., an express colliding with a freight train. The two firemen, the engineer of the freight train and two, if not more, of the passengers on the express were killed, and the engineer of the express is not expected to live. It is said that 12 men were taken out of the debris more or less injured.

Hudson's Marshal Suicides. Ira C. Wyckoff, city marshal of Hudson, suicided by hanging him self. There is a possibility that he was overburdened with duties, as he was clerk of the water board, collector of village taxes and water rentals and had charge of all water connections. He was a member of Daniels' battery in the war and was buried with Masonic honors.

REBELS VICTORIOUS.

THE VENEZUELA GOVERNMENT COMPLETELY OVERTHROWN.

Crespo's Victorious Army Takes Possession of Caracas, the Capital, and the Government Officials Flee the Country---U. S. Admiral Walker to the Rescue.

Dispatches from Caracas, the capital of Venezuela tell the following story: The war of the rebellion in Venezuela is over and the revolutionists are the victors. Caracas, the capital, is fallen. Acting President Villegas Pulido, his cabinet and other government officials have hurriedly left the country. After defeating the army of the government at San Pedro General Crespo began his march upon the capital which he entered without opposition. Had the advance troops of General Crespo's army been angels of peace instead of messengers of war their advent would not have been more welcome to the people of Caracas. After the crushing defeat at San Pedro confusion and disorder reigned. Hundreds of persons joined the army of fugitives which started for La Guayra. Then all semblance of order was at an end. People who had been too cowardly to fight either for or against the government and many of Pulido's soldiers took advantage of the situation to begin rioting and pillaging. Scores of houses were sacked. Those who had the manhood to protest against such outrages were menaced with instant death. Many were cruelly clubbed and beaten for daring to protect their property. The rioters were no respect-ers of persons. When the Spanish minister ventured to remonstrate with a gang of plunderers he was grossly insulted. Acting President Villegas Pulido and the members of his cabinet took advantage of the confusion to slip out of the city. It is thought that they embarked on ship in the harbor of La Guayra, perhaps on one of the government vessels. It is impossible, however, to trace their movements. Then with no restraint whatever the rioters violence knew no bounds. The followers of Crespo. as soon as they reached the city, at once devoted their attention to restoring order and soon succeeded in repressing all open demonstrations of lawlessness. Before Crespo's triumphant hosts reached La Guayra that city was also filled with rioters, robbers and murderers. Pillage and plunder soon became general. Many houses were and there was much wanton ooted destruction of property. How far things might have gone it is impossible to say if Admiral Walker, acting with admirable energy and decision, had not landed a force of soldiers and marines to hold the mob in check and perserve order. The sailors were warmly welcomed by all who were not themselves seeking plunder. There is no doubt that much property and perhaps many lives were preserved by the landing of the men from the cruisers Chicago and Kearsarge.

Five Killed by Steamers Colliding.

The Canadian Pacific Navigation company's steamer Premier was struck by the steam collier Willamette in a dense fog off Whidby Island, about 10 miles south of Port Townsend, Wash. badly wounded. The steam tug Goliah arrived at Seattle with three of the dead, all of the wounded and other passengers after having spent several hours in an attempt to save from the wreck the body of an unknown passenger wedged in there. The captain of the Premier says he was blowing his whistle continually and cannot understand why the Willamette did not hear it and reply. It is thought the Willamette is also badly damaged.

A Four Week's Fast.

Sixteen mules which had been at the bottom of the Twin shaft at Pittston Pa., for four weeks have been found. They were alive and in fairly good condition. There was a fire at the mouth of the shaft and falling timbers choked it up, leaving 39 mules confined in the mine, The 16 that were found alive had broken out of their stalls and lived on such straw and fodder as they could pick up, beside chewing the bark from mine props and railroad ties and eating some old leather. They were fed with gruel and soon after brought Five pistol shots in quick succession woke the echoes of the otherwise quiet town of Dundee and half the population started for the principal street, from which the sounds pro-ceeded. New York special: It is not alone that the public health is jeopardized by the ravages of cholera in foreign lands and its threatened invasion of this country, but business interests are likely to be affected thereby. Militia Called to Settle County Seat Trouble A county seat war is in progress in Culbertson, Hitchcock county, Neb. An injunction was issued by the supreme court to restrain the county offi-cials from removing the county records from Culbertson. The county treasurer and clerk disregarded the order and proceeded to remove the records of their offices, but were stopped by the citizens before many records were taken. At night a mob attempted to steal the records, when the citizens of Culbertson again defeated their object.

The next day a posse of citizens of Trenton, led by the county treasurer and and deputy clerk, again made a raid on the court house and succeeded in loading a portion of the records on the wagon, when the citizens again interfered and a number of shots were fired. The Trenton posse retreated. The sheriff telegraphed the governor for the state militia to quell the dis-turbance. Serious trouble is expected.

WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW.

WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW.

New York, October 10.—R. G. Dun & Co., in the weekly review of trade say. The first week of October shows more activity in spite of the near approach of the presidential election. Business is distinctly better at the south on account of the improvement in the price of cotton, more active at the west with improved crop prospects and only slightly retarded at the east. The expected reaction from the extreme low price of cotton helps business at the south. In general speculation has disturbed legitimate trade much less during the past quarter than is usual at this senson, although the transactions in cotton have been exceedingly heavy. The business failures occurring throughout the country during the past seven days number 220. For the corresponding week of last year the figures were 270.

MY ENEMY'S SKULL.

·I presume that a man of your sceptical mind and iron nerve has a great contempt for people who believe in ghosts or in other supernatural terrors?"

"I had such a contempt once, but I was completely cured of it years ago." "You surprise me. May I ask whether you healed yourself or employed the services of some other physician?"

Dr. Weymouth caught the humor in the remark of the young medical student who was questioning him, and laughed.

·I was cured by something worse than a physician." he replied.

.What was it?" "A human skull."

"Your story must be as trange one." 'It is; but I will not tell it to you unless you will solemnly promise not to repeat it."

Why so much secrecy?" "It is not necessary to satisfy your puriosity now. My reason will be plain to you when my narrative is anded. "Very well; I promise." 'To give you a thorough understanding of my singular experience, It is necessary for me to recall a series of events which preceded the supernatural horror which I shall describe. ·When I began to practice medicine in a small inland city, I became acquainted with a beautiful girl, who to charmed me that I sought her society frequently. I have since learned that she then regarded me with favor, and no doubt I would have conducted a regular courtship which would have ended in a happy marriage, had it not been that entirely unexpected circumstances suddenly separated us. My father was stricken with a fatal illness, and my presence was required at his home in Massachusetts until his death, which took place after I had been with him six months. When I returned to the West and resumed my medical practice. I learned to my great chagrin that Miss Wilkins, the girl to whom I had been so attentive. was engaged to be married to a young lawyer named Godwin. He had been as rapid in his love affair as I had been slow in mine, and I then learned the bitter lesson which many other young men who have been dilatory in courtship have also learned, that if a prompt and zealous rival appears, and is highly attractive, he will win the prize during an absence of even a few months on the part of the dilatory

"Of course there was nothing for me to do except to accept the inevitable. I bore my disappointment as best I could and gave assiduous attention to the duties of my profession. Meanwhile I learned that I was not the only disappointed suitor. Mr. Callahan, a handsome photographer, had tried to win the hand of Miss Wilkins during my absence in Massachusetts, but he soon found that Godwin was preferred to himself. Callahan was a moody and disagreeable fellow in spite of his good looks, and I was decidedly glad that he had been unsuccessful. Knowing what his disposition was I was surprised to observe that after Miss Wilkins had become Mrs. Godwin he cultivated the husband's acquaintance, and within a few months became his intimate friend. I often saw them together, and used to wonder whether Callahan was sincere in his friendship. Several years nassed away and brought about interesting changes. Godwin, who was a pleasant fellow, but was not a man to heed the claims of morality when they strongly conflicted with his inclinations, fell an easy victim to the wiles of fair adventuress. He kept his infatuation well concealed from his wife. however, and she was entirely unsuspicious until she finally discovered his unfaith ulness in a most singular manner. One night, while Mr. Godwin was absent on a long journey. his house was entered by a burglar who went to the library and broke open a desk in which Mr. Godwin kept private papers and letters, and which was never left by the owner unlocked. In the morning Mrs. Godwin found the contents of the desk scattered on the floor, and among them a package of love letters from the adventuress. The cat was now out of the bag, and the wronged wife instituted proceedings for a divorce, which was granted. Soon after she had accomplished her object, the community was startled by the news that Callahan had been arrested on the charge of having committed the burglary. At the trial, during which the court room was crowded, on account of the high social standing of the prisoner, his guilt was skillfully proved by a chain of circumstantial evidence. It was shown that the photographer a ter breaking into the house had committed but one He had opened the offense. desk and scattered the papers that he had found in it, but he had stolen nothing. The mystery was great until the prisoner confessed that he had entered the house for the sole purpose of furnishing Mrs. Godwin with evidence that her husband was untrue to her. His intimacy with Godwin had enabled him to dis-thought out his mean plot by which he effected the scattering of the letters, so that Mrs. Godwin, for Mr. Godwin he knew was away, would be certain to discover them the next morning. Of course the natural supposition would be that the house had been entered by a common burglar, and that before he had been able to steal anything he had been frightened away by some noise. But in spite of his precaution the photographer failed to conceal his guilt, and only part of what he desired happened. The divorce had been brought about, but (allahan's hope that he might subsequently marry Mrs. Godwin, an I derive benefit from the large fortune which she held in her own right was blasted. He had cultivated her husband's acquaintance for years, for the purpose of finding an opportunity for he gratification of his evil desires. The opportunity had at last come, but in his attempt to use it, he had been thoroughly thwarted. "Although he had stolen nothing, the act of breaking into the house constituted burglary and he was sent to prison for a few years. It is here interesting to note that the manœuvres which brought ill-lu k to Callahan brought good luck to me. Soon after he went to prison, I married Mrs. Godwin and have since lived happily with her. During his imprisonment the photographer brooded over his troubles, and when he was released he was in a murderous mood. One evening, while my wife and I were walking in a thinly settled district of the city, we were startled by two pistol shots fired in rapid succession by some one behnd us. I turned around and running a few feet back grappled with our assailant. I threw him upon the ground, and succeeded in holding him there until two men who happened to be in the vicinity hurried to my assistance. The villain was Callahan, who had secretly followed me and my wife until there was a favorable opportunity for him to attempt murder. He cursed me in a frightful manner when he found that he was a prisoner. A second time he was punished by being incarcerated. Three years later, knowing that he had a disease that would soon end his life, he bequeathed his remains for anatomical purposes to the physician of the prison, to whom he had taken a great liking. I was well acquainted with this doctor, and as a token of his esteem he presented me with Callahan's skull, he being well aware that I was at that time engaged in making a choice collection of skulls of all sizes. "The skull was placed in my collection which was kept in a closet connected with my office, and I thought no more about it until one day I was seized with the desire to see how the skulls would look when arranged so that they could all be seen at once. Accordingly I placed them in three rows on a broad table in my office. Callahan's being in the center of the front row, being accorded, as it were, the place of honor. he is pretty sure to do so if the girl I had just seated myself in a chair for the purpose of gazing at the array in an admiring manner, when a messenger arrived and asked me to visit a patient whose symptoms had suddenly become alarming.

> ·It was late at night when I returned to my office. I lighted a gas jet, but turned on so little gas that the flame was small. I seated myself in the chair which I had left when disturbed by the visitor and gazed at the skulls which were about ten feet distant. THOSE OF THE WILD WEST IN THE FORTIES.

Toxas Jack" Laid Away With Mest Imposing Honors at Leadville_The Minister Wore a Uniform and Carried a Sword.

For one who passes along the streets of Leadville now there is just one feature in particular that serves as a mark of comparison of the Leadville of to-day and the mining camp of thirteen years ago. Leadville now is respectable, staid and as solemn as a mining city can be; but it isn't the solemnity in the abstract that strikes one now. It is a specific solemnity which concerns itself with funerals, says the New York Advertiser.

In 1879 the town was wild. Everybody carried a gun." Not in his pocket, mind you—only the natural born fool did, and he rarely lived to repent it. The weapon was stuck in his belt right handy for immediate action. As a consequence, rarely a day passed without a violent death.

Rev. T. J. Mackey was the most popular clergyman in town at that time. He was loved by the good people and respected by the gamblers and miners, but that doesn't imply that the miners were not in themselves reputable people. Whenever a miner or sporting man died it was Parson Mackey who was called in. There was one day in particular when the parson held four funerals and that was the record. Four was frequently equaled, but it stood as the Lay Templeton's opera company was playing an engagement in Lealville then, and Fay agreed to supply her company to act as choir. When the services were over he found they had provided a horse for him to lead the column. The preacher ly array of grinning skulls, listened wasn't the most remarkable horseman in the world, but he was game, and he mounted and started away. RETRIEVE THE DISMAL SWAMP

A Wealthy Virginian Who Hopes to Render Useful a Famous Region.

The famous Dismal swamp, of Virginia, has been sold to Thomas Ballentine, a millionaire farmer of the state, for $10,000-a good deal of ground and water for the money. If the farmer is energetic, the Brooklyn tle known to white people and for the stagnant ooze or falling, exhausted with hunger and travel, amid enbee" is to take place begins his tangling vegetation that shut out the land of liberty.

By the digging of the canal some of the ponded waters of the swamp were 'making" of new ground on which to ployed in the maintenance of the road The first care of the farmer is to and 'truck' gardens for small farmprocure the necessary timber, most of ers who supply the men. These which he obtains from the forests of patches of good ground have spread his farm; the boards and shingles he and grown until there is something of a permanent population in the swamp When the spring work is completed and capacity for more. A northern the rattlesnakes and moccasins out for the night; but people inured to the climate and conditions perhaps through generations, seem to thrive as well there as others do on dry plains and salubrious hills.

There are thousands of square miles of this country that figured on the maps of 1850 as the arid and uninhabitable, and an enormous tract between the Missouri and the Sierras was labeled "the great American desert." Franklin, with the far-seeing eye of the philosopher drew his pen through this title when he found a map that bore it hanging in the study of the king of France. It might not have been good manners, but it was done in the interest of what the scholar felt instinctively to be the truth. It required a century to justify the act, but it has been justified and on the soil that buffaloes had beaten into a crust during their ages of wandering up and down the continent and that Lieutenants Pike and Long reported would never be capable of supporting a population, except Indians," crops grow luxuriantthe plain with happ/ homes and send afor the hum of prosperous labor.

A Puent Mana. Gigsley has often been told that he was the meanest man in the world. In fact, he has a red headed sister complete the great bulk of work the and couldn't well escape being told so, but many of his friends doubted until he was married. They all bethe dearest loveliest most innocent trusting affectionate creatures that ever longed for a strong manly bosom to rest upon. They were married two weeks ago, and, as Gigeley Romolo Gessi Pasha, in his 'Seven doesn't believe in wedding tours, they began housekeeping immediately out on the avenue. The second day of their wedded bliss had passed and Gigsley had just finished the supper which Mrs. G. had spent all the long, torrid afternoon in preparing, when one day a soldier came in to say he he took his hat and cane, kissed the had seen several of the animals in little woman tenderly, and started for the neighborhood. The temptation the door. "Why, Charlie, you arn't was too great and, in spite of the going out, are you? said the sweet excessive heat, Signor Gessie, with a creature, with a tremor in her voice. "Why-yes," was the rather unconcerned reply. And leave me all alone?" A suspicious moisture of the eye accompanied this appeal. .Oh, advantage of the wind, which blew I won't be gone long," he said reassuringly. 'I'm only just goingdown animals. When we were within eight town to get something to eat." Chicago Times.

Her Case Was Hopeless. Hartford girls are renowned for their beauty. It must be admitted that there are a few plain women in town, but they were born elsewhere. One of the latter, who is really painfully homely, called on a physician who is as plain in his speech as his patient is in respect to her face. He tried to cheer her; her ailment was a triffing matter, he said. Oh, doctor," she groaned, "I feel worse than I look." "Then my dear young lady I fear there is no hope for you. Hartford Post.

Druggist Charles Maynard and wife, of Gagetown, were callers in town Sunday Reuben Beach's little three-year-old boy at Gagetown was very severely hurt

Tuesday by being trampled upon by a team which Mr. Beach was driving. The ittle fellow's recovery is doubtful. Last Monday James Tindell brought suit against Village Marshal Robert Miller, to recover damages for being placed in the lock-up on the evening of Sept. 22, without sufficient reason. The suit was tried before Justice Wales, who on the tollowing day rendered his decision, giving the plaintiff a judgment of $50 and costs. John Regan, candidate for county treasurer on the Democratic and Popu list tickets for Sanilac county, has left for parts unknown, leaving several thousand dollars in debts. He is a defaulter to the township of Maple Vailey, bieng treasurer for the past two years, to the amount of $1,000. The last heard of him he was in Cheyenne, Wyoming.

Many of our readers are at this time up to their ears in politics. The year of 1892 is to stand out prominently in history for many reasons. In the first place we have our regular quadrennial presidential election. Republicans and Democrats alike are sanguine of victory or their party, while the Peoples Party and Prohibition party each expect to cut a suprising figure in their returns next November. All are working hard every point they can, and if politics were the only factor to occupy our minds aside from business, we would have plenty to interest us. But in addition to the political campaign, we are on Octtober 21st to dedicate the buildings of the World's Columbian Exposition. This is by far the greatest enterprise in the nature of a fair ever undertaken by any nation, and according to all outlooks it is bound to be an enormous sebulous state. The platforms adopted at Minneapolis and Chicago promised us a square. unequivocal contest between the two great parties upon the broad issue of a protective tariff. The Chicago convention did not adopt its tariff plank with the usual passive acquiescence in the report of a committee on resolutions but it fought the question out in open debate; and amid great enthusiasm, by a large majority, it adopted a plank denouncing protection as a fraud in practice and as a violation of the Constitution in theory. But candor must compel the comment that the Democrats are now waging their campaign upon the Chicago tariff declarations, and that they have thus far given the country no clear indication of the practical policy they will adopt when they come into power with the executive department and both houses of Congress in their control. The entire Democratic press has now assumed a tone of great confidence, and this is fully shared by the socalled independent press that joins in support of Mr. Cleveland. They promise us that the Republicans will be forced to surrender both the White House and the Senate, and that the Democrats will easily return enormous preponderance in the House. In view of this abounding confidence it would be somewhat reassuring if the country could know to what extent a Democratic Congress and MIS: E. K. WICKWAIG.

what extent a Democratic Congress and Administration would overhaul Mr. Mc-Kinley's tariff. It is not really probable however, that the party would proceed in a spirit of great violence. Responsibility has almost invariable made every American party cautious,—[Review of Reviews.]
