Ir is religiously believed by many good road enthusiasts that the improvements they are fighting for almost match the school-house in their elevating and civilizing influence.

WHILE we do not advocate 'crael or unusual punishment," it is time that we stopped thinking and speaking of the criminal as an 'unfortunate." A few may have been .more sinned against than sinning." but the greater part of them have deliberately placed themselves in the position they now occupy, and have but little claim upon our sympathies.

THE future of the Indian is a problem of some difficulty. It is not to be expected that any people can leap in a generation or two from barbarism corners of Shasta, Modoc and Siskito civilization, yet their future depends largely on their power to adapt themselves to the demands of civilized life. Probably a people who have shown the vitality of the Iroquois, the capacity to survive where the weaker tribes of East and West have faded away, will be able to take care of themselves in future. The with a menacing block of ice in his descendant's of Cooper's Indians will hand. doubtless be a part of the population for many decades.

THE cargo of rags is something that might well be excluded from our shores as if it were carried by a plague ship. This is one foreign product which we can do comfortably without. It is one which carries within it a danger too great and too horrible to be worth risk. When the authorities at our ports of entry bes ir themselves to find means of properly disinfecting these dangerous consignments, it is a good time to direct public attention to this possibility of contagion. It would not seriously injure anybody, and it would be a great public safeguard at all times, if the importation of rags were prohibited.

EVERY boy, and, for that matter. every girl, should learn how to swim. The boy who is not willing to learn, if the chance be given him, has something wrong about him. Yet, while all the urchins who have access to the water acquire the ability sooner or later, some attain far greater proficiency than others. This is due partly to natural differences and part- back. ly to the fact that some pay greater attention to swimming as an art than hand, while holding something in the other. He should also become familiar with the various phases of right into the rock. It is arched, and drewning accidents, and should know how to attempt a rescue with the prospector's tunnel. The floor of the greatest chance for success and the greatest degree of safety to himself.

Ir is one of the anomalies of human nature that the noted brigands of the of devoted admirers among the youth impression on it. of all countries. It is also remarkable that their deeds should inspire ten feet above the floor, which is all admiration rather than horror. The fact is accounted for on the ground that their daring bravery of character and their lawless hardihood stir the romantic soul to emulate them ice is dry and clear. You can strike Dick Turpin to York has a noble counterpart in Sheridan's ride to victory in honorable battle. Rob Roy, freebooter that he was, has lived in song and story. Robin Hood is depicted nightly in the theater. These are bold outlaws whom our collegebred youth are not ashamed to admire. THE BREATH OF A GIRL.

AN INDIAN LEGEND ABOUT CALIFORNIA CAVES.

How the Savages Explain the Cause of the Natural Ice Found in the Caverns-Scientists Fail to Give the Cause.

Up in some of the northern parts of the state they have an arrangement by which ice cream and other cooling things are possible, even in midsummer, declares the San Francisco Examiner, and there is no such a thing as an artificial ice plant within 300 miles.

There are holes in the groundcrevices and cracks in the lava beds -where ice forms the year round. No one knows how or why the ice forms there. There is no water to be seen, and if there is anything hotter than a lava bed in July it must be the same place in June. There are a good many of these natural ice factories in the remote you counties.

The one that is the most patronized is about fifty miles cast of Sissou, fifteen miles from Little Hot Spring

Anybody that wants to can go there and study the mystery, notwithstanding the man with the rifle who appears to be standing guard, or his stern, threatening partner who stands

These are not the guardians of the mysterious ice caves protecting the frozen fairy queen, who has been imprisoned there by the ogre of the snow. They are simply natives who guided your correspondent to this tayern and who wanted to have their picture took."

Once upon a time this country was trembling, bubbling sea-not a sea of water, but of boiling, seething. molten rock. And the waves, as they rose and broke, became solid and fell back as blocks of lava. And when the surface was all cool the liquid fire inside burst through and tore it apart and now for twenty miles and more the country is covered with these torn, irregular blocks piled in fantastic shape on every side, and among them are strange gorges and corridors, out of which come vague, uncanny sounds.

The blocks ring like metal when your horse's hoofs strike them. It is a country of unexplained noises. From the bowels of mountains comes the noise of escaping steam. Out of the seemingly bottomless pits and gorges rises the rumble of what may be rivers, but peer into the depths until your head swims and you cannot see the water.

The ringing ground sounds hollow to your steps. It is hot walking over the lava beds, for, of course, you cannot traverse much of it on horse-

It is rather weird to toil over them they do to fun pure and simple. In almost ready to drop from heat and addition to the mere ability to propel break and find yourself standing on himself on the surface of the water ice, no man knows how thick. It is the boy should learn how to swim cool in the caverns-cool, though the under water with his eyes open, on sun that has caused you so much his back, on his side, and with one trouble and fatigue outside shines right in upon the glass floor.

The mystery of its formation is what first strikes a visitor to the ice cave. There is no water there. The within the laws. The famous ride of a match anywhere on the walls. There is a cool draught that comes from you can't say where. It is refreshing after the heat outside, but by no means chilling. Maybe the moisture-for, of course, the deposit must be water before it is ice-comes out of the atmosphere. The science sharps tell us that rain is precipitated by the sudden contact of a warm and cold current of air. So possibly the meeting of that draught from somewhere in the cellars of this earth with the sun-heated air that comes in through the mouth of the cave wrings the moisture from the atmosphere and it freezes on the floor. But there is another problem even if this is an explanation of part of the phenomena. Why does it freeze? This temperature in the cave was little cooler than it was in the shade anywhere about.

We remained in the cave for over an hour and were not chilled.

At last we left the cave. The man with the gun and the man with the There are several caves in the vicinity and all have the same featuresthe floor of ice and the apparent absence of reason for it.

Of course the Indians have a story by way of explanation of the mystery, though the skeptic white man may not believe it.

Under the ice there is a chief's daughter, who, when the big pines were little shoots, was the most beautiful, fleetest and finest generally in the world. She had lovers-oh, any quantity of them; but she was as cold as the snow on Shasta's summit and she would listen to none of them.

colder, and one night when she went to sleep in a cavern her broath froze around her, and she could not rise. Her breath went on freezing until the ice was thick above her. She has not died, because she is not that kind, but she is there yet, and her breath goes on freezing, and that is how the holes cut by the ice hunters fill up again.

This is a good explanation for if it should be that the Indian princess snores the mysterious noises might also be accounted for.

fully Sat on the Fence. I was the other day told a story about a member of the present congress, whom I will call James Smith, by one of his colleagues, whom also I cannot identify, says a writer in the Pittsburg D spatch. They are from one of the border states, and live near the line. 'Enlistments," says the member, 'were secretly going on in our neighborhood for both armies. Jim was an orator rather than a soldier. He never tired of addressing public meetings. But he was excitable, and apt to be with the crowd at the moment. One day he yelled for the old flag and the undivided union, and the next day he helped hang John Brown and Abe Lincoln in effigy. One morning when Jim was in town he was called on to harangue a hundred or two men who were assembled in front of the corner grocery listening to the latest news. He climbed into a wagon, threw off his coat and sailed in. I have but one message for you,' he shouted. Go to the front. Many of your neighbors are in the line of battle and are calling unto you. Why stand ye here idle? Freedom, which shrieked when Kiziosko fell, is in peril as never before. Fly to her rescue. Men may cry peace, peace, but there is no peace. Freedom's battle, once begun, bequeathed from bleeding sire to son, though baffled oft is ever won. Rally and organize a company right here—this day, this hour.' Well, stranger,' broke in the only man present who didn't know him, which army shall we join-nawth or south?' Either. either!' shouted Jim. Can't all think alike.' It made some fun at the time,' said Mr. M. C., who was in the confederate army afterward. . but I'll. be hanged if I wasn't talking to Jim about it the other day, and he insists that he was just right."

A Queer Steed.

Mr. Dennett, of Cape Elizabeth. Maine, who supplies cottages with milk, eggs and garden truck has a rig that attracts a good deal of attention. It consists of a two-year-old bull with a ring in his nose, bearing a crooked yoke on his neck, harnessed to a flatbottomed cart which will float in the water. The animal is driven by Mr. Dennett like a horse. Reins of rope are attached to the ring in the bull's nose; they pass up over the horns through rings attached to them. With this queer team Mr. Dennett makes the trip to the beach two or three times a week in summer, fording the Sperwink river at high tide. The bull swims the river like a dog and the cart will float like a boat and will sustain the weight of Mr. Dennett and his load of produce safely. When Mr. Dennett and his unique team are seen approaching, the cottagers throng the banks of the river to see him make the passage.

CROWNS OF ROYALTY.

THOSE WORN BY THE MANY RULERS OF ENGLAND.

Victoria Knew What She Wanted and In sisted on Designing Her Own Official Headdress—The Early Saxon Crowns.

The early Irish and Saxon sovereigns wore a fillet of gold, which was sometimes studded with jewels. The crown of the MacMurrough family, anciently kings of Leinster, in Ireland, which is still preserved in the British Museum, consists of a plain band of gold, rising in front to a sort of peak. It dates, without doubt, back to the tenth century. One of the oldest diadems still preserved is the famous iron crown of Lombardy. Contrary to popular belief the only iron in its composition is a solitary nail, said to have been rescued by the Crusaders from the wood of the true cross. When Napoleon conquered Italy he caused himself to be crowned with this mediceval relic, now more appropriately worn by King Humbert.

Offa, a mighty monarch of the West Saxons, who flourished in the eighth century, is depicted with a string of jewels in lieu of a crown. His successors on the English throne improved upon this primitive chaplet. and gradually the crown began to be roofed over. King Canute's crown. perhaps the very one he wore when bidding the irresponsive breakers to retire from Pevensey sands, is represented in the Cotton MS. It bears a quaint resemblance to a church stee ple, and was probably modeled from some such object. When the body of Edward, the Confessor was exhumed during the reign of James II its skull was encircled by a golden fillet, one in h in depth and perfectly plain. King Edgar, as well as Lothaire and the early French kings affected far when magnified you will perceive more elaborate diadems. Edgar's crown, as given by the Cotton MS., is highly ornamented with scrollwork, and appears to have been square, or at least rectangular in shape.

Queens of this epoch wore golden coronets, lightly fashioned and serrated a out the upper edge. The crown of Harold Inflex was decorated with floral arches and abundance of jewelry. Fleurs-de-1 s made their appearance on the French diadems with the Capets and were adopted by the English kings when they began their claim to the throne of France.

An effigy of Queen Matilda, consort of Henry I. existing at Rochester Cathedral, shows that pious Scotch woman with a crown quite as large as that of her spouse. Its ornaments have been defaced by time, but it would seem to have been a simple design. Richard Cour de Lion wore a aiadem adorned with trefoils, between which spread a fanciful pattern of honeysuckles. The effigy of his erly eaten raw by the Indians just as queen. Berengaria at the abbey of we eat cucumbers. Its medicinal virtues were discounted in the state of the state o l'Espar, gives an accurate idea of the diadem then allotted to royal females. Handsomely shaped its trefoils are surrounded by oak leaves and delicate tracery. A thick roll of gold runs around the base, and by comparing it with the face of the effigy its aepth must have been about three inches.

The crowns of Henry III and Edward I were comparatively plain, but were heightened by trefoils and crosses. Edward II, with his characteristic striving after splendor chose a more magnificent design. It represented four large and four small oak leaves rising in graceful curves from the jeweled circlet and having eight small flowers between each leaf. This handsome emblem was inherited and worn by Edward III and Richard II. The first of the house of Lancaster. Henry IV, caused a new crown to be made, larger than its predecessor and bearing eight large oak leaves and eight fleur-de-lis. The costly ornament was broken up and given to his barons by Henry V as security for his expedition to France. Its particles were subsequently redeemed by

HARD TO COUNTERFEIT. The Paper Money of Europe—Why I

Bothers the Counterfeiters.
The paper money of the United States is the least handsome in the world," said the proprietor of a money exchange to a Washington Star man. . That is because this government depends entirely upon the intricacy and elaborateness of the designs on its notes and certificates for protection against counterfeiters. In foreign countries, on the other hand, much effort is directed to making their currency beautiful with pictures and arabesques in the classical style. Not only are the results pretty to look at, but they serve their chief purpose better, for any engraver will tell you that real art work on a bill is far more difficult to imitate than any purely mechanical effect, no matter how complicated the latter may be made by the geometric lathe and other de-

"Most beautiful of all paper notes are those issued in France and Prussia. Here is a pretty Austrian bill for 100 florins, printed in blue ink, with the design mainly composed of two large standing figures of cherubic children and an oval of children's heads. That seems a queer notion from our point of view for the ornamentation of currency, but it is certainly both interesting and handsome. This is a Russian bill for 100 rubles, done in pink and green. Here you have a Scotch note, issued by the British Linen Company,' which promises to pay £5 on demand. In Great Britain the privilege of issuing paper money can be obtained by corporations other

To the naked eve even upon scrutiny. it seems to have no significance, but that it is wholly made up of the words one pound' in microscopic letters. From the superficial appearance of the Bank of England notes you would suppose that they could be readily imitated by photography or otherwise, inasmuch as their designs consist of very little more than lettering in black that is almost severely simple. But that great financial institution depends altogether upon the water marking of its paper, which is wonderfully elaborate, as you can see by looking at the light through it. This water marking has been imitated, but never with success." The Indian Cucumber. The Indian eucumber is a sort of lily, which grows in great abundance in almost every part of the country, and is said to be an excellent remedy for the dropsy. TALMAGE TALKS OUT.

TEARING THE MASK FROM RUS-SIA'S SLANDERERS.

He Has Nothing but Kind Words for the Czar of all the Russias and His Religion-The Intolerant Spirit of Our Times Gets a Stinging Rebuke.

Brooklyn, Oct. 16 .- Unusual interest attached to the ceremony preached by the Rev. Dr. Talmage this forenoon, it having been announced that he would devote the entire discourse to a review of his summer's journey. The great tabernacle building was crowded early by an expectant audience. Prof. Brown, the organist, during the service, rendered the Russian national air, the English national air, and our own national air. Among other hymns

My country 'tis of thee; Sweet land of liberty.

The subject was, "Observations in Russia and Great Britain," the text selected being: Psalm 136:9: "If I take the wings of the morning and dwell in the uttermost parts of the sea, even there shall thy hand lead me."

You all know why I went to Russia this summer. There are many thousands of people who have right to say to me, as was said in the bible parable: 'Give account of thy stewardship."

Now, we know nothing about famine in America. The grasshoppers may kill the crops in Kansas, the freshets may destroy the crops along the Ohio, the potato worm may kill the vines of Long Island, the rust may get into the wheat of Michigan, yet when there has been dreadful scarcity in some parts of the land, there has been plenty in other parts. But in districts of Russia, vast enough to drop several nations into them, drought for six consecutive years has devastated, and those districts were previously the most productive of all the empire. It was like what we would have in America if the hunger fiend somehow got out of hell and alighted in our land, and swept his wing over Minnesota, and said: "Let nothing grow here," and over Missouri, and said: "Let nothing grow here," and and over New York State, and said: "Let nothing grow here," and over Ohio and Georgia and Massachusetts and Pennsylvania and Nebraska and Dakota and the Carolinas, and said: "Let nothing grow here," and the hunger fiend had swept the same withering and blasting wing over the best parts of America in the years 1887, 1888, 1889, 1890, 1891 and 1892 and finally all our families were put on small allowance and we all had risen from the table hungry, and after awhile the children had only quarter enough, and after awhile only one meal a day, and after awhile no good food at all, but a mixture of wheat and chaff and bark of trees, and then three of the children down with hunger typhus, and then all the family unable to walk, and then crawling on hands and knees, and then one dead in each room, and neighbors, not quite so exhausted, coming in to bury them, and afterwards the house becoming the tomb, with none to carry the dead to more appropriate sepulchre-whole families blotted out. That was what occurred in Russia in homes more than were ever counted, in homes that were once as comfortable and happy and bountiful as yours or mine, in homes as virtuous as yours or mine, in homes where God is worshiped as much as in yours or mine. It was to do a little something towards beating back that Archangel of Wretchedness and Horror that we went, and we have now to report that, according to the estimate of the Russsian Famine Relief committee, we saved the lives of 125,000 people. As at the hunger relief stations, the bread was handed out-for it was made into loaves and distributed-many people would halt before taking it and religiously cross themselves and utter a prayer for the donors. Some of them would come staggering back, and say, "Please tell us who sent this bread to us." And when told it came from America, they would say: "What part of America? Please give us the names of those who sent it." Ah, God only knows the names of those who sent it, but he certainly does know, and many a prayer is going up, I warrant you, day by day for those who sent flour by the ship Les. Perhaps, some of us at our tables rattle off a prayer that may mean nothing, although we call it "Saying Grace," but I warrant when those people who received the bread which saved their lives "said grace," it meant something. Our religion may not demand that we "cross ourselves," but I have learned that while crossing one's self in some cases may mean nothing but mere form, I believe in most cases it means: "Oh. thou of the suffering cross of Calvary, have mercy on me and accept my gratitude." Prefer your own form of religion by all means, but do not depreciate the religious forms of others. From call I can learn, there were several good people before we were born, and I rather expect there will be several left after we are dead. I have traveled in many lands, but I tell you plainly, as I told Emperor Alexander III in the palace at Peterhoff that I had never been so impressed with the fidelity to their religion of any people as by what I had seen in Russia. and especially among her public men. I said respectfully to a Russian, when I saw him cross himself: "What do you do that for?" "O," he said, "when I do that I always say: 'God have mercy on me!" " I hold in my hand some thing very suggestive. What does that black and uncomely thing look like? That is what is called hungerbread from Russia; that is

It is a mixture of pig weed and chaff and the sweepings of stables. That is something which, if dropped in the street, your dog or cat might sniff at, but would not eat. That was the only food on which millions of men and women lived. You must look at that hunger-bread of Russia before you can get proper appreciation of what an attractive and beautiful thing a good loaf of bread is.

It was our joy this summer to hand over a shipload of material for gladdening many thousands of Russians with such a beatitude. But, I have been asked by good people in Great Britain and America again and again, why did not the prosperous people of Russia stop that suffering themselves, making it useless for other nations to help? And I am always glad when I hear the question asked, because it gives me an opportunity of explaining. Have you any idea what it requires to feed 20,000,000 people? There is only one being in the universe who can do it, and that is the being who this morning, breakfasted sixteen hundred million of the human race. The nobility of Russia have not only contributed most lavishly, but many of them went down and staid for months amid the ghastliness and the horror and the typhus fever and the small pox, that they might administer to the suffering. sat at the dining table in the house of one of our American representatives beside a Baroness who had not only improverished her estates by her contributions to the suffering, but who left her own home and went down into the worst of the misery, and until prostrated by fever: then reviving and toiling on until prostrated by the small-pox. She had come home to get a little strength, and in a few days she was going down again to the suffering districts, and she commissioned me to execute in America a literary enterprise by which she expects with her pen more money, all of which is to go for bread to those who lack it. Then there are the Bobrinskoys. They are of the nobility, not only the nobility of earth, but the nobility of heaven. You know we have in America certain names which are synonyms for benevolence-George Peabody, James Lenox, William E. Dodge, Mr. Slater and so on. What their names mean in America, Bobrinski means in Russia. The Emperor has made larger contributions toward this relief fund than any monarch ever made for any cause since the world stood, and the superb kindness written all over the faces of the Emperor and Empress and Crown Prince is demonstrated in what they have already done and are doing for the sufferers in their own country. When a few days ago I read in the papers that the Emperor and Empress, hearing an explosion, stopped the royal rail-train to find out what accident had occurred, and the Empress knelt down by the side of a wounded laborer and held his head until pillows and blankets could be brought, and the two wounded men were put upon the royal train to be carried to a place where they could be better cared for, I said to my wife: "Just like her." When I saw a few days ago in papers, that the Emperor and Empress had walked through the wards of the most served and grace retained can never lose virulent cholera, talking with the their charm or yield their empire. The patients, shaking hands with them preservation of our bodies in their original healthy perfection and compliness is a served. patients, shaking hands with them and cheering them up, it was no surprise to me; for I said to myself: "That to be sufficient to the blooming size of the course of the c anything in the way of kindness as- age will find her blessing the day she first cribed to them, and will join me in the used "Mother's Friend." Sold by all drugexecration of that too prevalent opinion that a tyrant is on the throne of Russsia. If God spares my life, I will yet show by facts beyond dispute that the most slandered and systematically lied about nation on earth is Russia, and that no ruler ever lived more for the elevation of his people in education and morals and religion than Alexander, the Third. So I put all the three prayers together: God save the President of the United States

God save the Queen of England! God save the Emperor and Empress of Russia! I will, whether in sermons or lectures. I have not vet decided. show that nineteen-twentieths of all the things written and published against Russia are furnished by men who have been hired by other countries to "write up" or rather write down Russia, so as to divert commerce from that empire, or because of international jealousies. Russia being larger than all the rest of Europe put together, you can see how natural would be the jealousies. I know of two prominent European newspapers that keep men on salaries to catch up everything unfavorable to Russia, and magnify the incident. And the stereotyped stories of Siberian cruelty in one case out of a hundred are true, but in nine ty-nine out of a hundred they are fabrication. And in the one case as soon as it is reported the official is discharged. They who have been sent "to write up" Russia and Siberia have done as that man would do who, sent to "write up" New York, should write up the slums as a specimen of what New York is, or sent to write up the American Congress should write up some depraved politicians as a specimen of American statesmanship, or sent to write up the sanitary condition of this country,

The Witches' Anniversary.

There is one anniversary this year that as yet has had little notice taken of it, though it is one of the most remarkable in history. This September witnesses the 200th anniversary of the hanging of a large number of so called witches in Salem, Mass. The year 1645 seems to have been the one in which the first suspicion of the presence of witches haunted the imagination of New England settlers. The accusations and trials gradually increased in number and severity until the year 1692 saw the tragic culmination of the witch business in Massachusetts.

The first execution for witchcraft was that of Margaret Jones, hanged in 1648 at Charlestown. The law under which this was done was the ancient statute of King James I, which declared that "if any person be a witch; that is, hath or consulted with a familiar spirit, they shall be put to death." Another law provided that if any person attempted by sorcery to discover hidden treasure or stolen goods he was to suffer imprisonment and the pillory, and for a second offense to be put to death. A much surer preventive of these uncanny doings has been the simple march of human intelligence on to the time when it is the fashion to laugh at anybody for a fool who resorts to "sorcery and gets fleeced, as he deserves. During the four months ending with September, 1692, twenty-two persons suffered death in Massachusetts colony for witchcraft. Nineteen were hanged at the fearsome old town of Salem, and two had died from ill treatment and exposure in prison. One Giles Corey met the awful fate of being pressed to death-a death one scarcely placed upon his naked body. On the. first day he was allowed "three morsels of the worst bread," on the second "three drafts of standing water," These were to alternate daily till he died.

Giles Corey stood the torture two days. On Sept. 22. 1692, eight persons wer hanged to one tree at Salem for being witches. It is on record that Rev. Mr. Noyes, pastor of the first church in Salem, pointed to the eight stiff, stark bodies upon the tree and remarked, "What a sad sight it is to see eight firebrands of hell hanging there!"

Prize Fighting and Culture.

It is quite the right thing to speak of the brutality of prize fighting, for it is the custom of brutes to determine which is master in the same way as prize fighters do-by matching their physical strength and skill and fighting to a finish. But the drunkenness, gambling and other evils that go along with human prize fighting are unknown among the quadruped champions and their friends, and in this respect man is lower than the brutes. Still there is one side of it that most people lose sight of. Prize fights, bad as they are, awaken a general interest in bodily culture and set us to using some of the means that go to perfect the race physically. If, leaving out the prize fighting, we could have some of the exercises and the robust and wholesome regimen and diet that bring the prize human brute into prime condition, it would be a good thing for the race.

The Americans, at least the Irish-Americans, have the physical championship of the world. The whole race of Americans can become and in time ought to become as beautiful and strong as the ancient Greeks, with an added Christian soul besides.

The death of George William Curtis and of Whittier within a week of each other removes almost the last members of the original abolition party. Parker Pillsbury yet lives, and Lucy Stone and Miss Sarah Holley, who teaches a school for colored children in Virginia, though Lucy Stone and Miss Holley are much younger than Whittier was. "Snow Bound" will remain the most remark able of Whittier's long poems. On the very spot in Danvers, Mass., which has been the poet's home of late years, lived Rev. George Burroughs, hanged as a witch 200 years ago this September. Whittier never was in Europe. His world was New England, particularly Massachusetts, and to his Meissonierthe force and exactness of his historical poems. If he had traveled like Longfollow, perhaps his power as a strictly New England bard would have been weakened. But most of all he will be known as long as the American repub-

Robert Vance, Jr. who has been sick for the past year died on the 13th. He was laid to rest last Saturday in the Novesta cemetery. Parents and friends have the sympathy of all.

Has the readers observed how a drunken tough was charged ten dollars for fracturing the cheek bone of an inoffensive plebeian with a stone; the village marshall fined fifty dollars for illegaly locking a man up for the space of thirty minutes-$1.66% per minute for wounded feelings. Now this may appear strange to the native born American, but to our mind it is more than passing plain. We were born on "Erin's sweet Ile," a land where they thought a "drop of good drink" no detriment, and fought to a finish with shillaly and stones, all three being held in high reverence as implements of punishment anddeath. If a man was injured by a gun his ass/ilant suffered the severest penalty of the law, but if an individual was transplanted to the "better clime" by the aid of a shillaly or a stone, the performer of the act was hailed as a hero among men. Mark you, the village marshal was sober and has never learned the use of sling shot or rock, while the tough was nerved for the occasion with "corn juice" and well knew the use of the stone. Then why shold he suffer ad eundem as a common officer of the law when arraigned before a "sprig of Blackstone," who is evidently a lineal decendant of the historic King Bryen Borne.

Homesteaders After Those New Lands. The homestead fever has broken out afresh by the publication at Marquette of an official description of the lands recently forfeited to the United States as being in excess of the grant to the Bay De Noquette & Marquette railroad, and comprising 12,600 acres. Hundreds in this immediate vicinity are already preparing to file applications on the date, still to be fixed by the officials of the Marquette land office, when applications for homestead entry on these lands will be received. The date will probably be near the end of November. Applications filed before that date will confer no prior right. The occupation of the land looker has received a great boom, hordes of lookers being employed to select choices for prospective filers. The lands are mostly in Baraga and Marquette counties, in the Huron mountain district, and are believed to be rich in minerals as well as timber. No systematic exploration for minerals has ever been made there.

60,000 Acres More to be Opened.

A special dispatch from Washington gives the following piece of good news for those who desire houses on state lands in the upper peninsula: Acting Commissioner Stone, of the United States land office has rejected the application of the Brule River Railroad Co. to select 60,000 acres of land in the upper peninsula of Michigan and directs the register and receiver at Marquette to receive entries therefore. This action will be good news to settlers, as it relieves from suspension a large number of homestead and other entries and applications which have been pending before the general land office for many years. Other applica-tions for selections by the company are in process of adjustment.

Assaulted a Prison Contractor. Samuel W. Phillips, owner of the Jackson prison broom contract, and partner of William Cuddy who was murdered with a hammer by Henry Blackman two months ago, was struck on the back of the head with the heavy end of a broom handle and knocked to the floor of the shop. His head was badly cut, but it is believed the injury is not serious.

The convict who committed the assault was Michael Mullen, serving a 10-year sentence from Delta county for assault with intent to rob. Mullen has always been a sullen, silent convict, who had no companionship and is rather feared. Mr. Phillips says, "I have not spoken to Mullen in a month. I had a conversation with a convict who works beside Mullen, and as I turned to go away I received the blow, which stunned me for a time. I can-not understand why he assaulted me. There has been no trouble between us.'

Disobeyed the Bishop.

The Ancient Order of Hibernans of Grand Rapids, were preparing for a bazaar and at the Catholic cathedral Father Benning, private secretary of Bishop Richter, vigorously denounced the scheme and forbade people having anything to do with the coming event The Hibernians were disconcerted, but not dismayed by the ban and went ahead with their arrangements. Two years ago St. Mary's church gave a bazaar and on the opening night Bishop Richter sent an order to stop it and gave the promoters 24 hours to obey. They obeyed by dividing the time into four sections and the bazaar ran four days, six hours each day.

Two Boys Drowned.

Walter and Thomas Moore, aged respectively 14 and 19, started from Bellaire in a small sail boat for a trip up river and across Clam lake. When they reached the lake they hoisted a sail and the boat immediately capsized. Both were good swimmers, but Walter was much the better of the two, nevertheless he as well as his brother was drowned. It is supposed that he was taken with cramps, as his arms were rigidly doubled up against his breast and his hands tightly clinched under his chin when the body was found.

Disgraceful Condition of Affairs. Owing to the overcrowded condition of the Michigan asylum for the insane at Kalamazoo all patients are now re fused. Eleven hundred applications are on the books that cannot be accepted. Every hall and room in the buildings are filled with cots to accommodate the patients with sleeping quarters, and the overcrowded condition makes it impossible to keep order or prevent disturbances. The trustees say the condition of affairs is lamentable, as hundreds of maniacs, unable to enter the asylum, are confined in jails and county houses.

Two Men Blown to Pieces by Their Own Careless Smoking.

August Damelson and Alexander Bosin, miners employed at No. 2 shaft of the East Norrie mine at Ironwood, were killed by an explosion of giant powder. The body of one of the men was torn to pieces. It is impossible to tell what caused the explosion, as the powder was in a box in a room in which the men were working. The supposi-tion is that they were sitting on the box smoking and that a spark from a pipe fell into the box igniting the powder. The bedies of the 10 men buried in the cave-in at No. 1 shaft at this mine Sept. 29 have all been taken out, with the exception of Sandquist, a timber-

FOUR NEGROES KILLED FOR THEIR AWFUL CRIMES.

Kill Their Aged Employer, Outrage and Murder His Beautiful Young Daughter and Burn the House-The Perilous Feat of a Venturesome Athlete.

Moses Johnson, aged 17, James Packer, aged 19, Samuel Jones, aged 23, and Moses Jones, aged 18, were taken from the jail at Montgomery, Ala., by a band of masked men and ynched for the murder of Richard T. Johnson and his daughter Johetta, who were found hacked to pieces and badly burned at Davis Ferry, in Monroe county.

Richard Johnson owned one of the best plantations in Monroe county and has always been looked upon by both black and white as an honorable, kindhearted man whose treatment of his black tenants and hired help since the war has caused him to be pointed out as an example by those who knew him. Not very long ago his daughter Johetta finished her course of study at an academy in Richmond, Va., and returned home a charming young lady of 18 to take her place as the head of her father's household, left vacant by the death of her mother. She was admired by all who knew her and the Negroes almost worshipped her. On the night of the murder the Negro farm hands, who live in the old slave quarters, were aroused by cries of help and a bright light shining through their windows. They rushed out half dressed to find their employer's home a mass of flames. The neighbors were also attracted by the fire and hurried to the scene, but too late to be of service. They were horrified to see the body of Mr. Johnson lying in the door with his blood and brains oozing from a gash in his skull. The heat was so intense they could not remove the body, but when the fire had burned itself out a search of the ruins revealed the horrlbly and a search was at once instituted for the criminal. Bloody clothes belonging to Moses Jones and Moses Johnson were found in their cabins and they were arrested as were James Packard and Sam Jones. Packard and

Johnson confessed. They said that they had been attracted by the beauty of Miss Johnson, and determined upon accomplishing her ruin. While Mr. Johnson was siting on the porch the four fiends crept up to to the back door and surprised Johetta in the dinning-room. BROKE BLONDIN'S RECORD.

Young Athlete Walks a Cable Across the Niagara in Seven Minutes.

Clifford Calverloy is probably the aost skillful cable-walker in the world, and is certainly the champion of this continent in that branch of athletics, for he proved his right to championship honors by performing a re-markable feat at the Niagara gorge, Niagara Falls. On a three-quarter inch cable stretched between the cantilever and railway suspension bridges, at a hight of 245 feet, young Calverloy—he is only 22 years old—crossed the gorge of Niagara in the astonishing time of a trifle less than seven minutes. The intrepid walker had undertaken to beat all previous records, and this he most effectually did, for his time is nearly seven minutes less than that of Dixon. who performed a similar feat in 131/2 minutes. The cable on which the athlete walked was 810 feet long. The banks are 245 feet high at the place where the cable was stretched and the cable sagged about 25 feet in the middle. Calverloy used a 20-foot balancing pole. He was dressed in sky-blue tights and pale-blue trunks, coll and cuffs trimmed with silver, and buckskin He is decidedly a good looking young fellow, with regular features, a bright, clear complexion and dark eurly hair. He is very modest in speak. ing of his various performances as a cope walker, but nevertheless he appears to be firmly convinced of his ability to beat all comers. Calverloy performed several difficult feats on the able. Ten thousand people witnessed the performance.

Hon. Robt. Lincoln's Ideas on the British View of the Monetary Question. Hon. Robt. T. Lincoln, United States minister to the court of St. James, London, is home until after election. When seen in New York City by a correspondent he was questioned regard-the feeling in England as to the forthcoming monetary conference. Mr. Lincoln was rather disinclined to talk for publication, but at length said: "It is impossible for me to answer any questions or express any opinion regarding English political matters. My position deprives me of any free-dom which other persons may have to do so. There is nothing connected with my official position that I feel I can properly speak about, except the forthcoming international monetary congress, in the arranging for which I had some share. "The question whether England should favor an increased use of silve in the currency of the world is not a party question in England, I feel that I may say, without impropriety, that there is a reasonable prospect of a sufficient departure by England from its hitherto strict monometallic basis to give great hope of practical steps being taken by the congress for the increased use of silver, and for their adop-tion by a sufficient number of the important powers. Personally I am a believer in bi-metallism on some basis to be approved by the concurrence of those most able to consider the subject, because I think that with gold alone as the standard international currency is inadequate and likely to become more so in consequence of the action of the Austro-Hungarian Empire. But I should personally deplore any attempt of the United States alone to adopt free coinage of silver without the assistance of those European nations whose aid is > Praises Gen. Alger's Generosity. Edmund Hudson in the Washington Post says: "I do not think General Russell A. Alger has had full credit for a very generous and kindly act at the time of the grand army encampment in Washington in September. General Alger at that time instructed the proprietors of some of the leading hotels of the city that if they found any of the old veterans in actual need of food and shelter they were to furnish it to them and send him the bill. The fact was not advertised in advance, because it might probably have led some men to take advantage of such provision who were not really entitled to it. The result proved that very few veterans needed to be taken care of in this way and General Alger's hotel bill was not a very heavy one. But it was a very handsome thing on General Alger's part, and the old veterans everywhere will doubtless so regard

Paper Men Protect Their Interests A New York dispatch says: Manufacturers and wholesale dealers in paper in this and others cities of the country have called a meeting to be held at an early day to take into consideration matters concerning the paper trade. The quarantine placed upon rags from foreign ports in consequence of the prevalence of cholera is having the effect of greatly stiffening prices in print and others papers, and the meeting soon to be held is for the purpose of determining what action shall be taken in concert to protect the trade. There has been already two advances from prices prevailing before the quarantine was ordered, and the end is not vet. Indeed, it is difficult to say to what extent manufacturers and dealers will have to go, in view of the fact that cholera is likely to prevail next year to a greater degree even than this season.

WAS THAT OF CHRISTOPHER COLUMBUS IN 1492.

The Four Hundredth Anniversary of That Event Celebrated in a Brilliant Man ner in New York City.-A Brief Synopsis of the Principal Features.

The celebration of the 400th anniersary of the discovery of America Christopher Columbus was begun in ew York City on the 8th by thanksgiving services in all the Jewish synagogues in the city.

On the day following religious praise and patriotic services were held in all the principal protestant and Catholic churches.

Thousands and thousands of people poured into the metropolis from all directions. Decorations were every-where in great profusion. From old Castle Garden to Harlem there was scarcely a break. The business blocks, the private dwellings, the hotels and places of amusement, were all gracefully, beautifully hung with bunting and flags.

The religious portion of the celebration having been completed the booming of canon from old Fort Columbus on Governor's Island, on the morning of the tenth, ushered in the beginning of the secular part. This day was given up to a grand and extensive pageant of school children and stu-

There were 30,000 youths in line in the parade and splendid order was preserved. Vice-President Morton, preserved. Secretary of the Treasury Foster, Gov. Flower and staff of New York, Gov. Tillman, of South Carolina and many local officials occupied a grand stand at Madison Square. The mayor and school commissioners occupied a stand at Washington square and at another there were 2,000 school girls dressed in red, white and blue singing patriotic Flags, flags; everywhere flags. entire bay and harbor of New York seemed a sea of color. The great naval pageant, which was a portion of the glorious celebration, was one of the most beautiful things of the kind ever witnessed. As the long line of mon-strous warships, trim merchant vessels and graceful yachts entered the narrows a grand salute of 21 guns was fired from either shore.

First in the line came the patroling flotilla manned by the naval militia of New York. The United States torpedo boat, Cushing, came next. This was a sort of a skirmish line to clear the way for the majestic fleet that slowly, grandly moved across the way. The United States flagship Philadelphia proudly led the way of the visiting nen-of-war.

The booming of cannon firing a salute as the parade passed up North river was followed by deafening cheers and hurrahs from the million of people witnessing it. The cannon joined again from many quarters and it seemed that the noise would shake the island from its foundation.

All these events were but preliminries to the greatest day of the celebration. Early on the morning of the 12th a great, big starry banner of this blest nation was run up a liberty-pole of great height erected in the battery wall. The colors floated gracefully out on the crisp morning breeze and caught the first glint of the sun rising over the Long Island woods. Just think of it. Here was the same old fireball which lighted that day of joy to Columbus 400 years before, but new banner, a new guidon, to a new people, a new hope, a new realization, a new humanity. realization, a new humanity.

The day was divided into three events. The military pageant, unveiling the Columbus monument and the "Columbian pageant" in the evening. It is estimated that 500,000 people outside of resident New Yorkers, wit nessed the events. The military parade was over 15 miles long and contained about 50,000 men. There were the U.S. troops and artillery from the near by forts; the finely disciplined and grand appearing cadets from West Point; New York City's famous Troop "A" composed of wealthy residents; a long line of blue jackets and marines the National Guard of New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Connecticut and a great host of Grand Army veterans, firemen, Italian and German societies, etc. And such a crush as there was to see this throng of brightly dressed men. The crush was simply terrible. Vice-President Morton, Secretaries Rusk, Elkins, Scofield, Noble, and Hayes, Gen. Howard and staff and Baron Fava occupied the reviewing stand. Other notables witnessed the parade from various stands.

A large portion of the spectators fter the parade had passed directed their ways to Central Park where the Columbus monument was unveiled. Among those who took part were Vice-President Morton, Governor Flower and staff, Senator Hill, Baron Fava, the the Italian minister, and the officers of the Italian cruiser Bausan. Archbishop Corrigan blessed the monument, and it was unveiled by Annie Barsotti, daughter of the president of the Columbus monument executive committee. During the ceremo-nies the bands played Italian and American hymns and the artillery fired the national salute of twenty-one guns. FORMRS. MAYBRICK'S RELEASE. A Dying Man Confesses the Crime for

Which She is Prison. London cable: Editor Stead, of the Review of Reviews, has written an article entitled "Ought Mrs. Maybrick to be tortured to death?" for his publication. The chief feature of the article 1s Mr. Stead's assurance that he has a copy of the death-bed confession of Henry Wilson, who says that he and a woman other than Mrs. Maybrick administered the arsenic that caused Mrs. May-brick's death. Wilson died recently in South Africa.

A copy of the confession is also in the hands of Sir Charles Russell, at-torney-general. Mr. Stead believes in the confession and thinks the punishment of Mrs. Maybrick is about to be considered by the United States government. In view of the prospective remonstrances from diplomatic sources and the great probability that Mrs. M ybrick is innocently punished, Mr. Stead urges that she be released before Christmas lest she die in prison. Home Secretary Asquith or the Earl of Rose-bery or Mr. Gladstone, he says, should act at once to save her from death in prison.

Mr. Yerkes became interested and the information has been made public that he authorized them to build for the university the finest telescope on earth, equipped with everything to make it the best. They were explicitly told not to mind the question of cost. Alvin G. Clark, the famous telescope maker, was telegraphed to and has already undertaken to cast the glass, which will be 45 inches in diameter, ust 11 inches greater than the glass of Lick. If all goes well, it will probably be turned on the skies for the first time from the Chicago university in the autum of 1895. The outlay which Mr. Yerkes will meet is estimated at a round half million dollars.

WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW.

NEW YORK, October 17.—R. G. Dun & Co., in their weekly review of trade, say: Once more it must be said that trade indications are entirely favorable. Even the shrinkage in exports has ceased, an increase of $1,500,000 appearing here last week, while imports continue surprisingly large and foreign exchange declines. Wheat is $6c stronger than a week ago, but corn it lower, oats 14c, hogs 20c and lard 15c per 100 lbs; cotton $6c lower, with sales of over 1,100,000 bales for the week, and oil $6c lower. Improved crop reports and heavy movement of produce push prices downward. The business failures occurring throughout the country during the last seven days number 215. BY MY HEEL.

Mr. Ransom, please tell us how it is that you are filling such a responsible position, and you not yet thirty years old?"

This quest on was asked by one of a crowd of four or five gentlemen seated in the handsome private office of Mr. Ransom, superintendent of transportation of the Chicago and Western railroad at Omaha, Neb.

"Well," replied the superintendent, a good looking young man of twentyty-six or thereabouts, if you will have the patience to listen I will narrate briefly how my heel caused my promotion and was the means of saving many lives."

··Five years ago I was station agent and operator at Hamlin on this road. The depot was the only building at Hamlin, consequently I had to do my own cooking and sleeping in the depot, getting my supplies from Rands, a place of about 500 inhabitants, eight miles up the railroad.

'It was about ten o'clock on a hot, sultry night in August. There did not seem to be a breath of air stirring. The windows were up and the doors were thrown open so as to admit all the air possible. No. 32, the fast mail had to be reported before I could get 'good night' from my dispatchers and retire.

·I had pulled off my shoes and had nothing on my feet but my stockings. As I was idly leaning back in my chair, my feet propped up on the instrument table and lazily drumming on the key with my heel, I heard a slight noise behind me. Before I could turn around to ascertain the cause a man's harsh voice rang out:

.. Move an inch and you are a dead man, and at the same moment I felt the cold muzzle of a revolver pressed against my head.

"Put your hands behind you, commanded the same voice sternly.

·· I obeyed with alacrity. ·My hands were seized roughly and bound securely to the back of the

He evidently thought it amusing. ···Come on boys, 'he yelled. 'I've to the door, walked in. Ha! ha! cap'n, you've got him.

have you?' and they all laughed .. Jim, 'soid the man addressed as "The captain then turned an addressed me.

· · · Young man, no harm is intended you if you keep perfectly quiet. Doubtless your curiosity is very much aroused as to our intentions. Well, it can do no harm to enlighten you, as the mischief will be done before you can give any alarm. We intend'and here the man's voice became absolutely fiendish—to take up two rails on that trestle out there. Let us see, the fast mail is due here at'-'My God! man,' I broke in with horror surely you don't intend to wreck the fast mail? Think of the lives that will be lost if it runs off at that trestle!' and great beads of cold perspiration stood out on my forehead as I grasped the full horror of the situation.

The trestle referred to was about 100 yards north of the depot, and spanned a very wide but shallow creek, fully seventy-five feet below. I knew if No. 32 jumped the track on that trestle it meant death to every person on board.

"Jim.' cried the captain. you remain here and keep your eye on this fellow. If he moves kill him. The remainder of you come and let's get to work.'

"Then all except Jim followed the captain out and soon I heard the metalic clink of the crowbar as it drew the spikes from the rails.

Oh. what could be done! ·My hands were bound so that I could not reach the key, and even if I tried the outlaw behind me would send a bullet crashing through my brain. How could I warn the crew of No. 32 of the impending danger.

·The station ten miles above Rands reported No. 32 on time. Soon it would be at Rands. Never did time pass so quickly. It was now 10:37 o'clock and No. 32 must be coming into Rands. Suddenly an inspiration flashed through me like an electric shock. Why could I not warn No. 32 with my heel? In my leisure moments I had amused myself by learning to send with my foot, never dreaming that it would ever be an advant-strangers. who they supposed had descended in their winged barks from the skies.

The caravels had fulfilled their mission. Humble instruments that they were, they had enabled the great navigator to confirm what was then deemed his extravagant theory of a new route to India.

Such, in brief, is the story of the caravels. In a modest way the United States government has sought to do them honor, and their port of departure has not been forgotten. They, together with the great admiral, as well as the humble sailor whose good fortune it it was to be the first to see the land of Western World, have all been remembered, and their names perpetuated in the United States navy list.

A fine line of battle ship of eighty guns, launched from the Waskington navy yard in 1819, was christened Columbus. She was burnt at Norfolk in '61.

The St. Mary's (twenty guns), named after the Santa Maria, was launced from the Washington navy yard in 1844, and is now the school ship of New York city. The Pinta, gun-boat, is at Sitka, Alaska. The Nina, tugboat, is on special service. The Palos, gun-boat, is on the Asiatic station. The Triana, tug, recently wrecked, was named after the poor sailor who missed the pension, but who, let us hope, received the velvet doublet.

Columbus' Cannon on Exhibition.

Two of the cannon which, it is believed, were at one time mounted on board Christopher Columbus' flagship were received at Chicago recently. The cannon are of the ancient and clumsy pattern of such guns turned out in the fifteenth century. Nothing but the body of the guns remains, the woodwork, of course, having rotted away centuries ago. The guns themselves are almost worn to pieces and are not much more than huge chunks of rust. Indeed, the cannon are put on the "scrap iron" list in the cannon house papers. These historic old pieces have been secured for exhibition at the world's fair. One of the naval officers who was detailed for work in connection with the Columbus exposition found the relies at one of the West India islands. Tradition and substantial proof showed that the cannon had been used in a fort erected by Columbus' son, and that they were brought from Spain with Columbus' fleet. The ruins of the fort are still to be seen.

When Jones read of "the finding of an abandoned schooner" he remarked example was followed by the rest. that it was probably empty.

COLUMBUS' WIFE.

Woman Whom He Loved the Daughter of a Navigator.

Laws like those which in chemistry govern the affinity of combining atoms in social intercourse produce personal affinities. The greatest of all discoverers was himself destined to wed the daughter of a discoverer. Columbus often went to mass on Sundays and other obligatory days. His residence in Lisbon being near the convent of All Saints, he resorted thither to perform his devotions, and in his assiduous attendance there it was his fate to be attracted by Dona Felipa Muniz until he sought and obtained her in narriage.

The affection of Columbus for the young Lusitanian doubtless possessed ride at the booms, and all the outward practical features also, in view of the sailor's desire to live for the realization in his riper age of the work already fully planned in the latter years of his exuberant youth. A NAVAL EXHIBIT of the Naval Exhibits. The Navy department has given to the World's Columbian exposition one of its greatest attractions, a model of one of our coast line battleships. This imitation battleship of 1893 is erected on piling on the lake front in the northeast part of Jackson park. It is surrounded by water and has the appearance of being moored to a wharf. The structure has all the fittings that belong to the actual ship, such as guns, turrets, torpedo tubes, torpedo nets and booms, with boats, anchors. chain cables, davits, awnings, deck fittings, etc., etc., together with all appliances for working the same. Officers, seamen, mechanics and marines are detailed by the Navy department, and the discipline and mode of life on our naval vessels are completely shown. The detail of men is not, however, as great as the complement of the actual ship. The crew gives certain drills, especially boat, torpedo and gun drills, as in a vessel of war.

The dimensions of the structure are those of the actual battleship, to-wit: length, 348 feet; width amidships, 69 feet 3 inches; and from the water line to the top of the main deek, 12 feet. Centrally placed on this deck is a superstructure 8 feet high with a hammock berthing on the same 7 feet high, and above these are the bridge, charthouse and the boats.

At the forward end of the superstructure there is a cone-shaped tower, called the "military mast," near the top of which are placed two circular "tops" as receptacles for sharpshooters. Rapid-firing guns are mounted in each of these tops. The height from the water line to the summit of this military mast is 76 feet, and above is placed a flagstaff for signaling. The battery mounted comprises four 13-inch breech-loading rifle cannon; eight 8-inch breech-loading rifle cannon; four 6-inch breech-loading rifle cannon; twenty 6-pounder rapid-firing guns; six 1-pound rapid-firing guns; two Gatling guns, and six torpedo tubes or torpedo guns. All of these are placed and mounted respectively as in the genuine battleships.

COST OF THE FAIR.

Together with an Estimate of What the Actual Profits Will Be. The total cost of the exposition structures alone is $8,000,000. This amount, however, represents less than one-half of the total expenditure for

Grading, filling, etc., $450,400; landscape gardening, $323,490; viaducts and bridges, $125,000; piers, $70,000; waterway improvements, $225,000; railways, $500,000; steam plant $800,000; electricity, $1,500,000; statuary on buildings, $100,000; vases, lamps, and posts, $50,000, seating, $8,000; water supply, sewerage, etc., $600,000; improvement of lake front, $200,000; World's Congress Auxiliary, $200,000; construction department expenses, fuel, etc., $520,-000; organization and administration, $3,308,563; operating expenses during exposition, $1,550,000; total, $10,530,-

This sum, added to the amount to be expended in the erection of buildings, makes necessary a grand total expenditure by the Exposition company of $18,530,453. This, it must be clearly understood, does not include any part of the United States government appropriation, or any part of the appropriations of the several States or foreign countries. Of this $18,530,453, it is estimated that $17,000,000 will have to be paid out before the opening of the gates of the exposition on May 1, 1893. The total expenditure of the Exposition company to date for all purposes is about $4,000,000.

The resources of the exposition are as follows: Stock subscriptions, $5,721,-230; City of Chicago bonds, $5,000,000; Prospective gate receipts, $10,000,000; Concessions and privileges, $1,500,000; salvage, $1,500,000; interest on deposits, $33,452; total; $23,754,682. The Dedication Day Parade.

The Dedication day parade or pageant will be headed by the Columbian guards, several thousand in number. Next will come the President and Vice-President, members of the Cabinet and officers of the exposition in carriages. Then the board of lady managers, civilians, secret societies and various industrial organizations. The parade will form on Michigan avenue and the side streets, will proa portrait of George Washington, made ceed to Adams, to Wabash, north to by Stewart, an American painter, Lake street, west to State, south to-Adams, west to Franklin, south tofair at Chicago. A Reply.

[Note—The following communication was received some time ago from N, Bentley of Fort Gratriot. Mich., in reply to a letter of John Ballagh, published in a May number of the Enterprise, but partially from the lack of space, and partially a sesire to investigate, publication has been with-held until this date. Inasmuch as Mr. Ballagh's epistle contained statements of a personal nature, reflecting on the character of Mr. Bentley, we deem it no more than justice, even at this late time, to give the accused an opportunity to vindicate himself.—Ed.]

FORT GRATIOT, Aug. 8, 1892. EDITOR ENTERPRISE, Dar Sir. A communication from your paper signed John Ballagh was sent me by a friend in Huron county, in which the writer says if Mr. Bently replys to it he will let the public know why he wrote it. Why did he not state it? I am not afraid to say to any person what I have to say before their face, and not as Mr. Ballagh has done, and grealy misued me in the columns of a Michigan paper., and without cause. I have paid my own money in journies to Virginia and Canada. Mr. Ballagh goes on to say that he could not see where I planted anything but four rods of tomatoes. The first spring on the place I chopped down 9 acres of old field pine and small oak; commenced to build a good sized house and finished it in Septembe same year. Too bad about his sight. While doing this had malaria fever owing to the want of good water to drink and proper drainage of the land. Would state here that my crops of grain and corn did not pay me for the labor bestowed upon it. much less the seed sown. Some was so short and thin that it would not pay for the cutting of it, and it was well put in the ground. I traded my village property with Peter Scott, Mich., for land in Prince George Va., not to land agents. Another misstatement of Mr. Ballagh. Virginia has longer growing seasons than Michigan that I will admit, but for grains of all kinds it is away behind. Irish potatoes do not do well, neither will they keep any time as I have tried them. Land around Petersburg is poor enough. Now if Mr. John Ballagh makes any more false statements backed by the land agents, they will get a bombarding of some hot and heavy shot. Now Mr. Ballagh you ought to be ashamed to write or publish such scandelous assertions which have not the slighest tings of truth. I have always used you well and was not personal in my former letter. I could have made personal (yet truthful) remarks in this letter about Mr. Ballagh which he would naturally dislike to have published, but it is not argument, and I refrain (this time at any rate) from so doing.
