THE TRIAL

Viscount Ferdinand de Lesseps

And others implicated in the Panama Canal scandal, began in Paris, Jan. 10. The great engineer who originated and supervised the construction of the Suez Canal is eighty-seven years old, and the ruinous fiasco on the Isthmus which has swallowed up so many millions of French money has blackened the names of many men prominent in French politics.

STRONG-POINTS.

"And I will none of angels garb, unless of newest pattern."—Faust. Morals are so.

Another strong point with us is our ability to please everybody. The farmer can dress with us in Newest Patterns and Latest Styles at less cost than he must pay for out-of-style stuff. The clerk, the merchant, the banker, the lawyer and the doctor, the teacher and the preacher, each find with us Pleasing Patterns and Suitable Styles, made as if to measure by the best merchant tailor, but at little more than half the merchant tailor's prices.

We Are in Style

To everybody—the children, the boys and youths are suited and fitted as well as the men. We fit with ease and fit to please every one. Never before have we made prices so low for qualities as on our present winter stock. Come and see what attractions we offer.

McDougall & Co.

ONCE upon a time, there lived a man, one of those peculiar, eccentric, "know all" persons, and yet a man for all that who thought Winter Underwear an unnecessary burden, and to own an Overcoat the height of folly. Time rolled on. The January winds began to blow and the cold snow to fall, and this man got chilled. That was not all; he was taken sick. That was not all; he got well; but that did not end it; he had to pay a large doctor bill. At last, realizing his mistake, he was seen slowly but surely vending his way down Main street to McDougall & Co.'s to protect himself against future storms. There's a moral in this fable; don't you see it?

Caught On The Fly.

Henry Stewart was in North Branch several days on business.

Miss Florence Smith spent Saturday and Sunday with a Kingston friend.

Douglas McIntyre is in Wisconsin at present, on business.

Lou Wood has been making collections this week for a number of our business houses.

A special teachers' examination will be held in Cass City on the last Friday of this month.

The members of the "Happy Club" enjoyed themselves at the home of James Tuckey on Friday evening last.

Mrs. Helen Wilson, of Caro, was the guest of her sister, Mrs. E. H. Pinney on Friday and Saturday of last week.

Mrs. Ed. Leonard, of Bad Axe, has been visiting her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Hendrick, for the past week.

W. C. Sanford has been appointed general freight and passenger agent of the P. O. & N. railroad company. All communications relating to the traffic of the road should hereafter be addressed to him at Pontiac.

There will be a meeting of the "Ladies' Historical and Literary Society" at the residence of Mrs. J. D. Brooker, on Tuesday, March 14th, at 2 p. m. All members of the society and others interested in this work are requested to be present at this meeting. By order of the president.

L. C. Smith, who for about two years past has been employed in the drugstore of T. H. Fritz, left on Monday afternoon last for West Branch, Mich., where he goes with the intention of engaging in the drug business for himself within a few months, if everything is satisfactory. Lou is a wide awake, pushing young business man, and we most heartily recommend him to the citizens of West Branch. He has the best wishes of a host of Cass City friends for his future success.

J. H. Striffler made a large shipment of live stock to the eastern markets last Saturday.

The silver wedding of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Howe was celebrated on Saturday evening last.

Twenty-two new students have entered the agricultural college so far this spring, 10 in the agricultural course, 10 in the mechanical and two special. About 200 students have been classified.

Remember the "Brown Social." to be given by the Epworth League, at the M. E. parsonage, this (Friday) evening. No matter if you are "blue" attend the "Brown Social."

A large amount of local matter is necessarily crowded out this week on account of the publication of the amendments to our charter, the annual tax sale list, the report of the village finance committee and a statement of the expenditures of the street commissioner.

We were in error last week in stating that T. C. Quinn was elected chairman of the Democratic county committee to succeed G. H. Slocum. Mr. Slocum is still the efficient chairman. Mr. Quinn was chairman of the delegation to the State convention.

The repetition of a "Soldier of Fortune," last Friday evening under the auspices of the I. O. F. Lodge, was witnessed by a full house. The play was rendered much better than before. Vocal music by Mrs. McLean and Miss Wickware, and Messrs. Wood, Ale, Seely and Kile, with piano accompaniment by Mrs. Cloakey, formed and interesting part of the evening's entertainment.

The new Rogers locomotive for the P. O. & N. railroad, made its first trip over the line last week Thursday, drawing a special train with the officials of the road. It has a steamboat whistle and presents a nice appearance. A portion of the smokestack had to be removed in order to allow the engine to pass under the Chicago and Grand Trunk railroad bridge at Inlay City. This new engine weighs some fifteen or twenty tons more than any other engine on the road.

Pontiac Post: Thursday morning, while John Bayden, a blacksmith employed by the P. O. & N. railway, was examining a kake on a moving locomotive in the round house he was caught between the breast beam of the pilot and the round house door and sustained severe internal injuries in the region of the hips, the extent of which cannot now be definitely stated. He was removed to the residence of J. H. Smith on Railroad street and Dr. Chapman summoned who dressed his injuries, after which he was taken to his home on Oakland avenue.

The celebrated Mason & Morgan theatrical company, playing "East Lynn," are at present playing in the "Thumb," but we expect that they will, as usual, pass us by. Cass City is sadly in need of an opera house, or of a respectable hall for entertainments of this kind. They have proven paying investments in many neighboring towns having a smaller population than Cass City, and we see no reason why one would not pay in this place. Had we such a house, the many troupes which now give us the "go by" would stop here. Talk the matter over, citizens, and see if something cannot be done towards securing an opera house.

T. W. Dunn, the well known cheese factory man, and who has operated the Elkland and Cumber factories for a number of years, has rented his factory and farm, northeast of Cass City, to Wm. Wilkinson, of Lapeer, and will soon seek a more extensive field in which to labor. Mr. Dunn, during his residence in Elkland, has proven himself a capable and affable gentleman, and his dealings with our farmers have been marked with honesty and impartiality. He has the best wishes of the ENTERPRISE and numerous friends wherever he may decide to locate. Mr. Wilkinson is an old Canadian acquaintance of Mr. Dunn, who recommends him as a gentleman of strict integrity and as having had ample experience in the cheese making business.

Village Candidates.

Two caucuses have been held—a "citizens'" caucus Tuesday forenoon and a "village" caucus in the evening. Here are the tickets as nominated:

CITIZENS'. President—A. A. McKenzie. Recorder—Henry Stewart. Treasurer—Walter I. Frost. Trustee 1 year to fill vacancy—D. P. Deming.

Trustees 2 years—J. H. Striffler, Wm. Bentley, A. A. Frutchey. Assessor—L. A. DeWitt. Constable—Charles D. Striffler.

VILLAGE. President—H. S. Wickware. Recorder—Henry Stewart. Treasurer—Walter I. Frost. Trustee 1 year to fill vacancy—W. D. Schooley.

Trustees 2 years—J. H. Striffler, Edmund Brotherton, A. A. Frutchey. Assessor—S. Ale. Constable—Charles D. Striffler.

Vote "early and often" for the best men!

The Amendments.

The Amendment to Our Village Charter Passes the State Senate on Friday Last.—Twelve New Sections.

The bill to amend our village charter, by adding twelve new sections thereto, and which was submitted to the State Legislators some weeks ago, accompanied by a petition for its passage, signed by about ninety citizens, passed the senate on Friday, and received the signature of the Governor on Monday.

Below we publish the sections in full:

SEC. 1.—The People of the State of Michigan enact; that act number two hundred forty nine of the session laws of eighteen hundred and eighty three be amended by adding thereto twelve new sections to stand as sections six, seven, eight, nine, ten, eleven, twelve, thirteen, fourteen, fifteen, sixteen and seventeen, to read as follows:

SEC. 6.—The officers of said village shall consist of a president, recorder, assessor, treasurer, street commissioner, marshal, village attorney, constable, six trustees, and such other appointed officers as are provided for by the general laws of this state. The street commissioner, marshal and village attorney shall be appointed by the council and hold their offices respectively for the term of one year provided however said council may at any time before the expiration of said year by a resolution passed by a majority of said council at any regular or special meeting called for that purpose, remove any or all of said three last mentioned officers from office.

SEC. 7.—It shall be the duty of the recorder to perform all the duties of a village clerk as provided by the general laws of this state and he shall receive such compensation as the council may prescribe. He shall also be vested with the powers and authority of a justice of the peace for the trial of all cases arising out of a violation of the ordinances of said village and shall receive the same compensation and fees as are provided for justices of the peace in the trial of such cases.

The other officers of said village shall in the performance of their duties be governed by the general laws of this state defining the powers and duties of such officers except as herein otherwise provided.

SEC. 8.—The treasurer of the village shall be the collector of all taxes levied or assessed within the village and it shall be his duty upon receiving the annual tax roll or any special assessment roll to proceed to collect the taxes levied thereon as soon as may be, and he shall receive for such services the same fees as are allowed to village marshals under the general law for collecting taxes to be paid in the same manner. He shall be vested with all the powers and authority of a village marshal for the collection of all taxes levied or assessed within the village and all warrants required to be annexed to any assessment or tax roll of said village shall hereafter be directed to the treasurer and all returns to any of said rolls heretofore required to be made by the marshal shall hereafter be made by the treasurer except as hereinafter provided.

SEC. 9.—All public highways and bridges laid out, established or controlled by the township of Elkland within said village, are hereby placed under the control and supervision of the said village and it is hereafter made the duty of said village to keep the same in order and repair and to perform all the duties in relation to the same as heretofore required by law of said township.

SEC. 10.—All moneys hereafter raised by money tax upon taxable property within the corporate limits of said village upon the annual tax roll of the township of Elkland for highway purposes shall be paid by the township treasurer of said township to the treasurer of said village as soon as the time given by the warrant for the collection thereof shall have expired or as soon thereafter as may be, which money shall be used for highway purposes by said village and the common councils shall have the exclusive control of such money. Upon receiving such money from the township treasurer the village treasurer shall give to the township treasurer a receipt for the same bearing his official signature.

SEC. 11.—In case any person who shall refuse to pay to the treasurer of said village any poll tax charged upon the annual tax roll of said village against him, after the same becomes due and payable, it shall be lawful for the treasurer to collect the same by distress the same as provided by law for the collection of other taxes, provided, however, if the person so refusing has no property upon which said treasurer can levy and make collection by distress, or if the treasurer is unable to find sufficient property within said village upon which he can levy and collect such tax by distress it shall be the duty of such treasurer to commence suit in an action of assumpsit before any justice of the peace within said village for the recovery of such tax and said proceedings shall be conducted in the same manner as other actions of assumpsit are conducted and governed by the law governing actions of assumpsit before justices of the peace in this state provided further that the prevailing party in such proceeding shall in addition to all other costs be entitled to recover an attorney fee, to be taxed with the other costs of suit, of five dollars.

SEC. 12.—In all action brought by the said village to recover the amount of any tax levied against any person and appearing upon any assessment roll of said village the same shall be brought in the name of said village and said assessment roll shall be prima facie evidence of the validity of all taxes charged therein and may be offered in evidence on the trial of any suit brought for the recovery of any tax contained therein.

SEC. 13.—The common council of said village may prescribe by ordinance from time to time, limits or districts, within the village within which wooden buildings and structures shall not be erected, placed or enlarged and to direct the manner of constructing buildings within such limits or districts, with respect to the protection against fire and the material of which the outer walls and roofs shall be constructed.

SEC. 14.—Accounts and demands of all persons against the village shall when required by any member of the council be verified by affidavit and shall set forth the items thereof in detail with reasonable certainty which affidavit may be made before any member of the council or any other officer authorized to administer oaths by law or the recorder of the village. No such account shall be allowed until it shall be reported upon by the finance committee.

SEC. 15.—After extending the taxes as provided for in section 2395 of Howells' Annotated Statutes the assessor shall cause said assessment roll, certified under his hand to be delivered to the village treasurer with the warrant of the president of the village annexed thereto, directing and requiring the treasurer to collect from the several persons named in said roll the several sums mentioned therein opposite their respective names as a tax or assessment and authorizing him in case any person named therein shall neglect or refuse to pay such sum to levy the same by distress and sale of his, her, or their goods and chattels, together with the costs and charges of such distress and sale and directing him to make such collection by a certain day, therein to be named, not less than thirty nor more than fifty days from the date of said warrant which warrant may be renewed from time to time by order of the council and for such length of time as the council shall direct.

SEC. 16.—Within one week after the expiration of the time limited in the warrant for the collection of the taxes levied in the annual assessment roll or within one week after the time to which said warrant may have been renewed or extended, the treasurer shall make return by a sworn statement showing the amount of all taxes remaining unpaid and a description of all lands upon which the taxes remain unpaid and the amount delinquent upon each parcel. (The roll to be and remain in the hands of the treasurer) which statement shall be filed with the recorder of the village by the treasurer within said week provided however that if for any cause said statement should not be made and filed within one week as aforesaid it may be made and filed any time thereafter within ninety days after the expiration of said week.

SEC. 17.—The treasurer of the village shall preserve in a book to be kept by him for that purpose, a list of all lands returned by him in his sworn statement mentioned in the last preceding section of this act as delinquent for taxes assessed thereon as aforesaid; and upon taxes so returned, interest shall be charged at the rate of fifteen per cent. per annum from the date of said return until paid. If such taxes and interest shall remain unpaid for the period of one year from the date of said return, the treasurer shall cause the lands charged with the taxes and interest aforesaid or so much thereof as may be necessary to pay the tax interest and costs of sale to be sold at public auction for that purpose said sale shall (except as herein otherwise provided) be governed by and conducted under the provisions of the general laws of this state governing sales of lands within villages incorporated under the general laws.

Work of Michigan Lawmakers.

LANSING, March 6.—There was an unpleasant scene in the house Saturday. Ewing, of Hillsdale, declared that Speaker Tateum was a dictator who was using his official position to influence legislation. Tateum replied hotly and continued to talk in an undertone when Ewing shouted that he could "lick" any man who called him a "dirty pup," etc. Friends interfered to prevent a fight. Tateum is also in trouble with the Democrats. He refused to permit protests against legislation characterized by the Democrats as "viciously partisan" to be entered in the journal. Now Barkworth has determined to apply to the supreme court for a mandamus to compel the speaker to record a protest he made last week.

Grand Rapids and Indiana Railway.

CALUMAZO, Mich., March 2.—The annual meeting of the Grand Rapids and Indiana railroad was held Wednesday. The gross earnings were $3,253,874.69; expenses $2,801,351.92; net earnings, $452,522.77, an increase of $69,671.16 over 1891. Directors were elected: W. O. Hughart, Harvey J. Hollister, William R. Shelby, J. H. P. Hughart, James R. Barnett, Grand Rapids; Senator Stockbridge, Kalamazoo; Thomas D. Messier, James McCrea, J. T. Brooks, Charles E. Speer, Benjamin Thaw, J. N. Hutchinson, Pittsburg, and W. H. Barnes, Philadelphia. The directors will elect officers later.

Michigan Constitutional Convention.

LANSING, Mich., March 2.—In the house the committee on judiciary reported favorably Sullivan's bill providing for a constitutional convention, to convene Oct. 3, 1893, limiting the time to sixty days and the membership to 100. The rules were suspended for placing it upon its immediate passage, but some objection being made relating to cities. A resolution in favor of the annexation of Hawaii was ordered to third reading. In the house the speaker sent to the claims committee the bill to permit the sale of liquor on agricultural society grounds. The Dodge legacy law repeal bill was sent to third reading.

Michigan State Librarian.

LANSING, March 2.—Governor Rich has appointed Mrs. Henry C. Spencer of this city state librarian to succeed Mrs. Margaret Carter Calhoun, sister of General George A. Custer, who refused a reappointment. Louis K. Bishop of Grand Rapids and James A. Crozier of Menominee were appointed members of the board of control of the soldiers' home, and Alfred O. Mills of Kalamazoo and William M. Robinson of Grand Rapids trustees of the Michigan Asylum for the Insane.

AN UNKNOWN CHAMPION.

The Lesson He Taught in the Fourteenth Century.

HEY may well say that I ought never to have been born, for there seems to be no place for me in the world, and no work that I can do there."

These despairing words were spoken on a bright spring morning in the early part of the fourteenth century by a short, clumsy, hard, featured boy, who was lying on the brow of a low ridge in the north of Bretagne, or Brittany, and looking gloomily at the dark gray battlements of the ancient castle that rose above the encircling woods half a mile to his left.

"Many have thought thus before thee, lad," said a deep voice beside him; "but, trust me, there is in this world of ours a place and a work for every man living, if he will but seek it out."

The boy looked up with a start, and he started yet more when he saw who it was that had spoken to him.

By his side stood a gray-haired, stern-faced man in full armor (for in this stormy age no one ever went abroad unarmed), tall and strongly made, but disfigured by a deformed shoulder and a face almost as ugly as the boy's own; but, grim as he looked, there was a kindly look in his keen, gray eyes that went straight to the heart of the forlorn lad.

"Messire Yvon," cried the boy, passionately, "if it be as thou sayest, what place or work in life is there for me? My brothers mock me, and call me 'Bertrand de Land' (Ugly Bertrand), and shut me out from all their sports and pastimes. My father himself hates me and wishes me dead, and gives me no chance to learn knightly training or win knightly fame; and all because I am short and ill-favored, instead of being tall and goodly like themselves. Is it my fault that I was born ugly? And yet I feel that I could do somewhat had I but the chance."

"Sayst thou so?" cried the old knight, eying him approvingly. "Nay, then, there is no fear of thee, for he who longs to do worthy deeds, and feels that he can do them when a chance shall offer, will not wait long for the chance, be assured of that. As for their mockery, heed it not. Even so did men jeer at me when I had thy years, because of my crooked shoulder and uncomely face; and many a time have I thought (as thou thinkest now) that there was no hope and no place for me among men, yet here I stand this day a warrior and a knight. And such as I am shalt thou be one day, and thou wilt be a man, and not let thyself be discouraged by the laughter of fools."

"Thinkest thou so in very deed, messire?" asked the boy, somewhat more hopefully.

"Ay, that do I," said the veteran, heartily. "Now hark ye, Bertrand. Knowst thou aught of handling sword and lance, and reining a war horse?"

"Of how I tried," answered Bertrand, flushing. "But I have none to teach me, and who shall say whether I do aught or no?"

"Ah, that will I!" cried Yvon du Chatelet. "He that is willing to learn need never lack teachers. Come to me when thou wilt, and I will teach thee all I know of that which becometh a knight; I warrant thou wilt not be slow to learn. There is my hand on it."

The boy took the offered hand with a brightening face, and thus was the strange compact concluded.

Six years had passed since that talk on the hilltop, and they had brought many changes along with them. "Ugly rance against him. Gaston, the eldest, hearing this, said to Raoul:

"I waste not a good lance on yonder butcher's block. Go thou and smite him down."

Raoul rode forth with a scornful laugh; but he found it no laughing matter. They met in mid lists with a tremendous crash, and while the stranger sat almost unshaken, Sir Raoul bent back to his horse's tail, and was only saved from being unhorsed by the bursting of the laces of his helmet, upon which his foeman's lance had struck with the shock of a battering ram.

The crowd, which had no love for these overbearing brothers, gave a hearty cheer, and Olivier, the second of the three, rode out in turn, grinding his teeth with rage. But he had no better luck than Raoul.

The stranger's lance hit him full on the breast, and, losing his stirrups, he rolled on the earth amid a whirl of dust.

"Go thou and deal with him, Gaston," shouted the fierce old baron to his eldest son. "He who lets himself be beaten by an unknown man is no son of mine!"

Stung by the taunt, Sir Gaston threw his whole strength into the charge, and the two met with the shock of a thunderbolt.

It seemed to some of the lookers-on as if Gaston reeled in his saddle; but he recovered himself, and wheeled his charger for another course. But he was not to escape a second time.

The unknown champion's spear struck him on the helmet and hurled him from his saddle as if fired out of a gun.

This was more than the old baron could bear, and springing from his seat, he roared:

"Ho, there! Bring my horse—quick! I myself will deal with this nameless fellow, since these good-for-nothing boys have let him conquer them!"

"Nay, I must not fight with thee," said the unknown.

And opening his helmet he showed to the astonished baron the harsh features of his despised son, Ugly Bertrand!

"What! Bertrand?" gasped the old man.

Then Sir Yvon du Chatelet, who was the only man in the secret, said with a mischievous smile:

"Let this teach you, my worthy neighbors, that it is not well to judge any man by appearance, and that great deeds are done by a strong arm and a stout heart, not by comely faces and gay clothing. This youth, who hath begun so well, will make all France hear of him ere he end."

And so it was, for that despised boy became the greatest man in France, and the most famous soldier of his time. And you may see to this day, in the old Breton town of Dinan, the statue of an armed man, which—as any child can tell you—is the monument of Sir Bertrand du Guesclin, lord high constable of France.—David Ker, in Golden Days.

"THERE IS MY HAND ON IT."

Bertrand was still as ugly as ever, but Sir du Chatelet's private lessons (the secret of which had been so well kept that no one but their two selves knew anything of it) had already borne abundant fruit.

The lad could now wield the heaviest lance and the longest sword as well as Sir Yvon himself; the most vicious horse could not throw him when he was once on its back; and when one day, after many entreaties on Bertrand's part, the old knight rode against him in full charge, with leveled spear, and failed even to shake him in his saddle, the young warrior felt prouder and happier than if he had been suddenly made king of France; for he now felt that there was something for him to do in the world, and that he, too, might defend his country and serve his people.

As for his three brothers—who were now the most renowned tilers in the whole district—they still made fun of him behind his back as much as ever; but of late they had become rather shy of laughing at him, for his face, and for this there was a very good reason.

One day a great tournament was held in that district; and Bertrand's three giant brethren rode gallantly out to join the muster, leaving their youngest brother at home—for what business could "Ugly Bertrand" have at a tournament?

A fine picture they made in their glittering armor and waving plumes, as they pranced along the road on their splendid horses; and beside them rode their father, with his stout men-at-arms at his back and his ancestral banner floating over his head. But the old baron—who was already advanced in years, and had had his full share of glory—was going to the tournament only to watch the feats of his stalwart sons, fully expecting that these young giants, who had never met their match in single combat, would carry off all the honors of the day.

His sons were quite as confident as himself; and when the contest began, it seemed as if their confidence would be fully justified. Everyone who dared to face their lances was borne down, horse and man, or sent flying out of his saddle like a stone from a sling.

At last no more challengers seemed inclined to come forward, and the marshal of the lists—who was no other than the duke of Bretagne himself—was beginning to think of declaring the sports ended, and adjudging the prize to the eldest of the three redoubtable brothers, when suddenly the blast of a trumpet was heard from the far end of the course, and a single horseman, sheathed in complete armor, and with his helmet closed, rode slowly into the lists.

His appearance was greeted with a murmur of mingled wonder and amusement—and certainly not without reason—for his figure was so short and square that he seemed to be almost as broad as he was long, and he rode a horse quite as clumsily shaped as himself.

But some of the more experienced lookers-on remarked that this odd horse was immensely powerful in spite of its queer looks, and that its rider must be very strong likewise, for the spear and shield that he bore were so heavy that few ordinary men could even have lifted them.

Then the trumpets sounded, and the heralds proclaimed that this unknown champion stood ready to meet whichever of the three victors might first advance against him.

NOVESTA.

Elder Brown is holding revival meetings in the school house in district No. 5, at present.

Miss Farrar's school closed in district No. 3, Friday. She has been hired to teach the summer term.

Miss Jameson closed her winter term of school in district No. 5, last Friday. This has been her 15th term in that district. She must have given good satisfaction as she has been hired to teach the summer term.

J. Gemmill's new engine has arrived and he is once more busy cutting lumber.

Friends from North Branch visited at Wm. Justin's, Sunday.

J. S. Livingston and best girl visited at G. Martin's on Sunday. Oh! My, how that red sleigh did go!

Married, at the residence of A. Ferguson, Sunday, Mar. 5, N. W. Bridges to Miss Maggie Ferguson. They left for Washington, D. C. Monday morning, where they will take up their future home, as Mr. Bridges has a good position in the pension office there. May they live long and happy in their new home.

D. Livingston lost a valuable cow Monday from the effects of poison.

S. Kennedy has moved his family on his farm and will try farming this summer.

There is a man in district No. 5, who forbid the officers in that district from using the wood at the school house for religious meetings. We like to see people use economy but that is a little to close for us.

Joseph Mills has moved his family to the McArthur farm, which he has rented for a term of years.

ELMWOOD.

Somewhat like spring for a few days. Some report seeing meadow larks and crows are quite numerous, but no robins on deck as yet.

Our genial blacksmith Thos. Leach, has been confined to his house from some days with neuralgia.

Wm. Lockwood has been very sick but is improving at present.

We are not in with the other people since Cleveland is inaugurated, as we have not yet heard of any applicants for our postoffice. How is that? And yet we hear every one say they are all looking for an office.

RESCUE.

The impartiality of the weather is something remarkable. First a storm of wind and snow blocked the roads running north and south, now another storm has set and blocked the roads running east and west, making the distribution quite impartial.

The meetings at the M. E. Church still continues to increase in interest. One hundred have been forward and still there is room for others.

The social at Heron's school house last week for the benefit of the pastor, Rev. Keith, was a grand success. The contest for the quilt between two ladies—Misses Evans and Crow—was hotly contested, and netted the handsome sum of fifty three dollars, resulting in favor of Miss Crow. Twenty dollars were obtained from other sources making in all seventy-three dollars.

John Carroll had a ewe that gave birth to triplets on Sunday, two of which died. The third one is doing well.

Martin McKenzie is home from the lumber woods.

DEFORD.

We agree with that writer who said that "All men have their weak points which they cannot see themselves but are very plain to others." Now we know of but one way to brace up these weak spots in self. When we notice anything disagreeable in others mark it close and change in ourselves. If we are moping around with duck feed in the corners of our eyes, monopolizing the conversation by forcing others to listen to our tales of woe, aches and pains, then for Heaven's sake let some well wisher snuff our light with a candle. This meet that we die that others may not suffer.

There are cases when an article appears in the press where a point is almost entirely hidden when we must look at it longer and careful. We must read between the lines as it were.

The Caro mail did not reach here last Saturday. Blockaded railways the cause.

Some of our people talk of going to the "Windy City" in the spring to manipulate square and compass on the buildings still necessary for the great event.

Not long since we twinged an article in the Detroit Journal that read as follows: "Forty seven inches of snow has fallen in Detroit this winter. The side walks are in bad condition. In many instances profanity has been substituted for physical labor in clearing them off." When at Cass City last week we thought here too Satan's children have been at work.

In making a purchase of some writing material not long since the question of names of different kinds of paper came up for discussion. None present knew where the name of "fool's cap" originated. Will some one posted please give us the desired information?

Thanks to Bro. of Elmwood for giving age, etc. Let the good work go on.

A Contractor's Advice.

MESSES DULLAM BROS. — Gentleman: I take pleasure in testifying in behalf of Dullam's Great German Blood, Liver, Stomach and Kidney Cure. I can safely say that I never took such medicine as that to cleanse the liver, stomach and kidneys. I was suffering for years with biliousness, indigestion, and loss of appetite and sleep. One bottle did for me more good than six months other treatment, and I feel it my duty to testify in its behalf, so others may try and get cured. Yours Truly, WARREN E. RUSSELL, Contractor and Builder, Flint, Mich. For sale at Fritz's drug-store.

Lenzner is a Genius.

The Detroit Journal of last Thursday, contained the following "write-up" of Oscar Lenzner Sr., of this place:

It is not generally known that Cass City has a remarkable musical and mechanical genius. Oscar Lenzner was born in Adorf, kingdom of Saxony, Germany on St. Valentine's Day, 1825. He early developed an aptness for whittling and at the age of 11 years was placed in apprenticeship with an elder brother to learn the "arts, parts and points" of the mysteries of fine cabinet work. This was in the famous old city of Marknew-Kirch-en in the kingdom of Saxony, when every other house was a cabinet shop, and the intervening one occupied by a maker of musical instruments. Our subject made rapid progress in his chosen calling and at the age of 17 years was given his credentials as a master mechanic. He then took up the study of music and also turned his attention to the manufacture of musical instruments, particularly of the guitar. He emigrated to America in the spring of 1849. For 23 years he made musical instruments of various sorts at Lancaster N. Y., and in 1873 moved to Michigan and settled at Cass City. He is not only a maker of musical instruments, but an expert performer on many of them, and has been an instructor for years. As early as 1857 he began to compose music for the violin, guitar, organ and harp. Since that time he has composed 260 pieces of music, many of which are possessed of rare and unique features.

His shop in the rear of his dwelling is a sight.

About four years ago he began upon a new instrument, something unknown to the trade, a sort of a combination between a banjo and a guitar. After experimenting for some time upon the different sizes, shapes and woods he at last produced the "child of his imagination" in the form of the "banjo-guitarina." This instrument he has patented. Letters to this effect were issued by the United States patent office March 3, 1891. This instrument is likely to become celebrated, as musical experts are loud in their praises of it. It is a rare combination, and in the hands of the inventor is a musical charm. Another emanation from the busy hands and brains of this genius is a combination of zither and guitar, which he calls "King Davids Harp." It has seven strings, and has great depth and sweetness of tone. Mr. Lenzner works all alone in his shop, and everything is done in the most laborious fashion by hand work. He has no great and burning desire to become rich and famous, but is contented to plod along in his easy way, satisfied in the society of his music and musical pets. His shop is the most complete disorder and litter of half made instruments, pieces of wood of the different sort, in course of construction, broken instruments of all kinds brought to him for repairs and the various chips, shavings, strings and scraps resulting from his work. In the midst of this pandemonium our hero reigns supreme as he pulls continually at an enormous pile of fondles with loving care this or that favorite instrument or particular piece of choice wood. Great care is displayed by him in the selection and disposition of the different woods needed in his work. He makes a profound study of the combinations of different woods for the production of particular melodies in his instruments. He recently gave each of his children a combination writing desk consisting of nearly 2,000 pieces of wood of every conceivable grain and color.

Bad Axe Tribune: John Leonard lost a valuable horse Monday morning. Some few days ago it seems that in backing into the platform at the depot, the Morrow House bus accidentally struck the animal on the leg. It took the bus home however, and made a couple of trips more, but grew more feeble each day. On Monday morning when the hostler went out to care for it, he found it lying down with two legs broken. The theory is that at the time the bus struck it the bones were cracked, but the muscles held them in place for a time. On the discovery the horse was shot.

Caro Advertiser: The Saginaw, Tuscola & Huron railroad, is building an immense dock at Bay Port, which will be 24 feet wide and a mile long, and will extend to a point where deep craft vessels may touch. Freight will be loaded from the cars direct to vessels, and vice versa. By the construction of this dock the output of the Bay Port stone quarry, the Sebawa coal mines, and the product of the country lying along the lines of the Tuscola & Huron, F. & P. M. and P. O. & N. railroads will find a terminal point for shipment by rail to northern Lake Huron points and along the chain of lakes.

CLEVELAND RULES

And Democracy Takes the Reins
of Government.

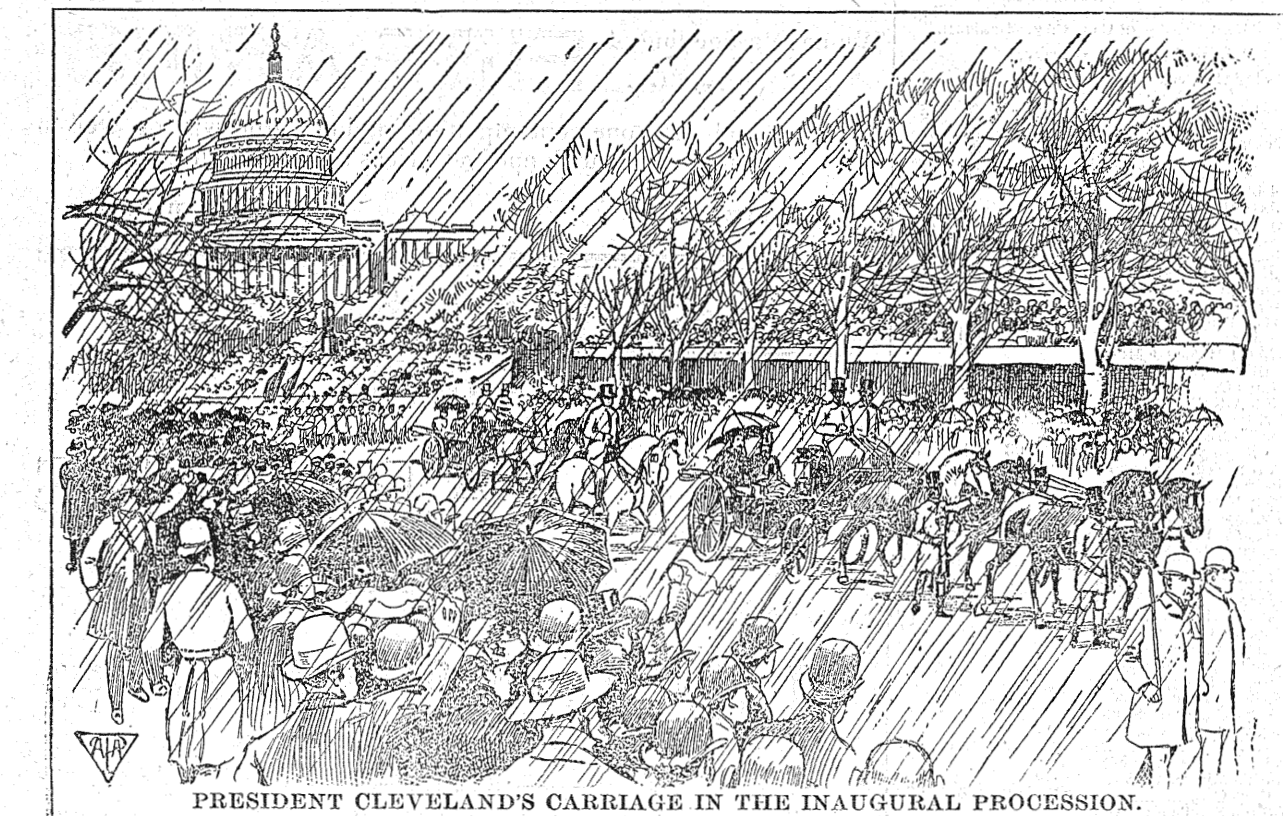

WILD ENTHUSIASM AT THE CAPITAL

The Triumphant Party Gives the New Administration a Great and Joyful Send-Off.

The March to the Capitol and Back to the White House—Ceremony of Installing Stevenson in the Senate Chair—A Distinguished Audience Present—Adjournment to the East Portico—The Great Event of the Day—Cleveland's Address Outlined—The Oath Taken and the Momentous Act Complete—Return to the White House—Notable Features of the Parade.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—"So help me God." These words, the conclusion of the oath, spoken by Grover Cleveland as he stood on the platform at the east portico
of the Capitol today
marked the culmination of all the eloquence, the enthusiasm, and the political agitation and generalship which began a year ago—
yes, two years ago—
and resulted in the groundswell and general political upturning of last November. And as he uttered them there was a sound as of the "gathering of the waters."

From a hundred thousand throats arose a cheer—not all at once, but gathering, growing until it had rolled from those standing close enough to hear the end of the presidential oath, out to the extreme fringe of the multitude.

PRESIDENT CLEVELAND'S CARRIAGE IN THE INAUGURAL PROCESSION.

Dense Crowds of Spectators.
It was about 11 a. m. when President Harrison and President-elect Cleveland entered the carriage of the former at the White house to drive to the Capitol.
All the morning
there had been marching to and fro of the military and other organizations which were to take part in the day's work. On every hand was heard the rattle
of the drum, the
call of the bugle,
the strains of the bands and the words of command. But those who were to YEREBY COMES! WHOOP!
march were not the only ones outdoors.
From the hotels, where some of the guests
had to pay good prices for a nail or clothes hook to hang themselves up for the night, and where a bath-tub was a real palace of a bedroom; from the boarding houses,
which were equally full; from the trains,
which were constantly unloading thousands of visitors, and from the private residences of the city, came the multitude.

Packed Along Pennsylvania Avenue.
The great avenue at the end of which is the Capitol and at the other end the White House was a sight to behold once in a lifetime. Except for a passage wide enough to permit troops to march company front there was not an inch of the thoroughfare unoccupied by a human form by 10 o'clock.
At the street intersections the crowd spread away to the right or left as far as the next corner. The lamp posts were not overlooked as points of vantage for those active enough to climb them, while trees within sight of the avenue were alive with boys and men. Around the White House and Capitol building there was a dense throng.
In windows and on roofs and porches—
at every point from which the line of march could be overlooked—were the faces and forms of sightseers.

The March to the Capitol.
President-elect Cleveland and Vice President-elect Stevenson arrived at the White House in separate carriages about 11 o'clock and a few minutes thereafter they, with President Harrison, the cabinet members of the senate committee of arrangements, General Schofield and Admiral Gherardi entered carriages and drove to the avenue, where the escorting division was drawn up, which, after saluting, wheeled into line behind the carriages, Grand Marshal McMahon with his sides leading the procession.

CEREMONIES IN THE CAPITOL.

Inauguration of the Vice President—Scene in the Senate Chamber.

The cheer which broke forth at the appearance of the president and his successor was continuous from the mansion to the Capitol. But neither gentleman paid any attention thereto by bowing or other acknowledgment, this course being a part of the courtesies of the occasion. In half an hour the head of the procession had arrived at the senate approach of the Capitol, and here the lighted party alighted and disappeared in the building, the escorting column meanwhile passing along around the Capitol and taking the positions assigned, ready for the return to the White House.

Notables in the Chamber.
The senate chamber had by this time been prepared for the ceremony. The galleries were full of the distinguished men and women of the land. The senators occupied the Republican side, and the notables of official life the Democrats side.
Vice President Morton then called the senate to order and the announcement was made that the president had no further communication to make to congress—the closing act of the outgoing administration.

Chief Actors in the Ceremony.
Then the announcement was made—"The president of the United States"—and Mr.
Harrison was escorted into the chamber and seated just in front of the vice president's desk. The next corner was the president-elect, who was seated beside his predecessor. The chief actor now appeared, for this assembly was for the purpose of administering the oath to the vice president-elect. He does not sit. He remains standing on the step to the right of the vice president's desk. A moment later the vice president arises and announces his suc-
cessor's presence; another moment and Mr.
Stevenson has taken the oath to support
the constitution of the United States, etc.,
"so help me God."

A New Hand at the Gavel.
The ceremony being over Vice President Stevenson took the chair and Levi P. Morton—no longer in official life, but a private citizen—retired. The first official act of new vice president was to read the proclamation calling an extra session of the senate for the purpose of confirming the new cabinet. The next was to swear in the new and old senators and then a recess was taken, for the hour of the momentous act of the day had arrived. With due decorum the body dissolved and proceeded it promises. Still another peril he faces in "immense aggregations of kindred enterprises and combinations of business interests, formed for the purpose of limiting production and fixing prices," and these he pronounces to be conspiracies against the interests of the people and in all their phases unnatural. He says that they should be "reached and restrained by federal power," so far as the general government can reach them.

Tariffs and Rights of Citizenship.
As to the tariff, changes in it, says the president, must be made, "wisely and without vindictiveness" and on the principle

PROCESSION ON THE AVENUE.

that "the necessity for revenue to support
the government furnishes the only justification for taxing the people." He adds that "anxiety for the redemption of the pledges which my party has made and solicitude for the complete justification of the trust
the people has reposed in us, constrain me to remind those with whom I am to cooperate that we can succeed in doing the work which has been especially set before us only by the most sincere, harmonious, and disinterested effort. Even if failure is caused by insuperable obstacles it will hardly be excused, and if caused by fault or neglect the people will hold us to a swift and exacting accountability." He also touches on the color line, saying: "The rights of citizenship should be protected, without regard to race or color" and the Indians should be led to civilizations.

Closing Act of the Ceremony.
Again the throng went wild and the cheers continued so long that finding it useless to wait for silence the president-elect turned to Chief Justice Fuller and announced his readiness to take the oath,
and amid a roar that almost made the words
inaudible to those repeating them, Grover Cleveland solemnly swore to his duty as president of the United States, and with the concluding "so help me God." Benjamin Harrison was a private citizen again and no nation had been given a new chief magistrate.

ominated: "Four Years More for Grover," was heard everywhere. The Democracy couldn't keep quiet on such a day as this and the air was vocal with all sorts of hilarious sounds.

CLOSE OF THE OLD CONGRESS.

Read in An Interesting Role—Complexion of the New Senate.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—The closing scenes of the Fifty-second congress were sleepy ones. Both houses had been up all night and in the senate it was so hard to get a quorum that Harris waxed wrath
and made a hot speech, in which he said:
"I want to say on my responsibility as a senator and a man that the proceeding of the last two hours is a disgrace to the senate that in the expiring hours of congress a sufficient number of senators cannot be held here to dispose of the public measures necessary to be considered." It was 6:30 a.
m. Saturday before the senate took recess and then only to 9:30.

Had Completed the Business.
But the business was completed. All the bills which had been in conference for so many hours had been agreed on, and the only thing done after 9:30 was the appointment of the usual committee to wait on the president, the delivery of the farewell speech of Chairman Morton, which was a graceful effort, and the passage of resolutions of thanks to the retiring president and president pro tem. Of course old Captain Bassett solemnly performed the act of putting the clock back, so that the senate should obey the law and adjourn at 12 o'clock (official time)—which was really 1
p. m. Before the inauguration twenty-five new senators were sworn in, among them
Martin of Kansas, whose prima facie right to a seat is subject to contest. After the inauguration the senate adjourned, having appointed a committee to inform the new president that it was at his service.

All the states have chosen new senators, either by election or appointment, to the senate of the Fifty third congress, except Montana and Washington. The Republican governor of the former will appoint a Republican to serve until the next legislative election, and a Republican is assured eventually from Washington, the legislative body of that state being largely Republican. Counting the senators from these two states, therefore, as Republicans, the senate will be composed of forty-six Democrats, thirty-eight Republicans, and four Populists.

Reed Has His Revenge.
In the house after the last conference reports had been agreed to a recess was taken to 10:30 and on reassembling the usual last-hour committee to wait on the president was appointed. Then Hatch took the chair while Reed took his revenge on those present who had denied him the conspire. Always accepted speaker, who he closed his term with the Fifty-first congress, and refused to vote him thanks.
He began by stating that the speaker was the office not the man; that it should be respected, and that no factional or party malice should ever strive to lessen the dignity of the office or the esteem in which the speaker was held.

An Example Not To Be Imitated.
He then proceeded: "No attack, whether open or covert, can be made upon that great office without leaving to the future
a legacy of disorder and bad government.
This is not because the speaker is himself a sacred creation. It is because he is the embodiment of the house, its power and dignity. If any efforts of that kind have been made in the past, if at any time in the heat of passion or the flush of resentment over unexpected defeat an action has been taken which has been thus inimical to the public good and the public order let us leave to those who so acted the honor or the shame, and in no way give to their example the flattery of an imitation.

Patriotism Above Partisanship.
"While, therefore, my associates and I have not forgotten the past, I am sure that I speak the sentiment of them all when I say that the Republican party, without regard to what any other party may do, or what any other party has done, will buttress, by the respectful behavior of each and every one of its members, this high office. [Applause.] Therefore, placing patriotism above partisanship, placing duty above even a just resentment, notwithstanding we do not approve of the parliamentary law of the speaker and his associates and deem that the system re-established is not democratic and is unwise, nevertheless, by offering the customary resolution, we tender to the speaker of this house
the expression of our belief that he, like all his predecessors, has performed the trying duties of his office with upright intention and honorable purpose."

Adieu to the Fifty-Second.
Crisp made a graceful response to the resolution which R-ed sent to the clerk thanking the speaker for his services in that office, and then the official clock having been allowed to mark 12 m. the hour of the Fifty-second congress adjourned sine die.

Death of a War Veteran.
MINNEAPOLIS, March 6.—Ex-Secretary of State Hans S. Mattson died yesterday of fatty degeneration of the heart. During the war he commanded the Third Minnesota volunteers and did active service at the time of the Sioux outbreak. He was 64 years of age. He served two terms as secretary of state.

A Republican from Montana.

A TAILLESS RHYME.

If you cannot, with your roaster,
Prove your power and station high,
If you want to make the people Feel your might as you go by,
You can cut your horse's tail off,
You can bang it with great care—
That will show the stuff you're made of,
That will make the people stare.

If you cannot run for congress,
Though you've wealth and gold unto
Any nabob of this nation,
There's one thing that you can do:
You can cut your horse's tail off,
You can bang it with great care—
That will show the stuff you're made of,
That will make the people stare.

If you cannot, in the scramble,
Find the place that you can fill—
If you'd show the world your value,
There's one way to fill the bill.
Go, and cut your horse's tail off,
Go, and bang it with great care—
That will show the stuff you're made of,
That will make the people stare.

If you'd like to prove, with Darwin,
Men have risen by slow degrees
From the ape to human stature,
Then descended back with ease,
Go, and cut your horse's tail off,
Go, and bang it with great care—
That will show the stuff you're made of,
That will make the people stare.

Do not wait a moment longer,
While there's such a work to do,
Time is rushing like a river,
Cannot stop for men like you;
Go, and cut your horse's tail off,
Go, and bang it with great care—
That will show the stuff you're made of,
That will make the people stare.

ABOUT SHEEP LAUREL.

A Weed That Is Often Fatal to Sheep Which Eat It.

Sheep laurel (Kalmia angustifolia), illustrated herewith, often called narrow-leaved laurel or lambkill, is eaten by sheep who have access to it, chiefly during winter and spring, and it is often fatal to them. It grows on low or dry grounds, and has narrow, oblong, short petioled leaves, opposite or in threes. It blooms in late spring, the flowers being small, and in color crimson-purple. The symptoms of poisoning are disinclination to move, frothing at the mouth and nose, staggering gait and blood-shot eyes. Immediate attention must be given, as they often die in twenty-four hours. The treatment is to dilute the poisonous food and expel it from the system as soon as possible. This may be done by giving two ounces of Epsom salts in warm water; also by injections of warm soap suds. But carefully removing these plants is the wisest plan to follow.—Orange Judd Farmer.

SHEEP LAUREL.

LIVE-STOCK NOTES.

In nearly all cases the farmer can breed a better quality and a more even lot of hogs than he can buy.

Usually all the pig wants to make him develop into a good, healthy porker is a fair chance.

One advantage with well fed hogs is that they are not so hard to control as those that must hunt for a living.

In very many cases more profit would be derived if corn was made the minor rather than the principal feed for hogs.

The pig that is well filled out all around, with muscles well and largely developed, sound and smooth, and still active, is a better pig for meat than one helpless, inactive and stuffed with fat.—Farmer's Home Weekly.

How to Treat Colic in Horses.

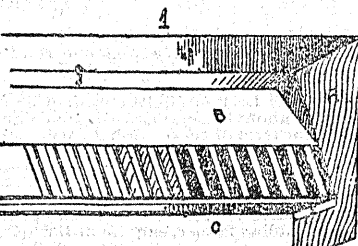

Slight touches of colic may be quickly relieved by giving the horse a tablespoonful of saleratus or baking soda in a glass of water. If it does not yield to this, 10 to 15 drops of anointment may be administered. It is easy to make most horses drink by holding their heads high and forcing the neck of a thick glass bottle containing the liquid into the side of the mouth. After the liquid has all left the bottle the head must still be kept up for a few minutes to compel the patient to swallow it and not lose it from his mouth.—Farm Journal.

MOVABLE SHEEP RACKS.

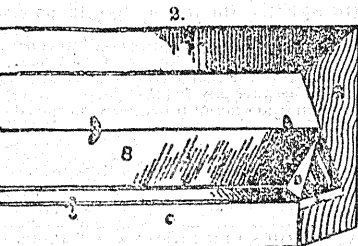

Two Kinds That Have Been Used with Good Results.

The illustrations are of sheep racks designed for use in barns and sheds and are combination grain and hay racks. A movable rack for the barn is much more desirable than a stationary one. In taking out the manure and when temporary subdivisions are made, it is often convenient to shift the racks. Both of those given are movable and each can be made double by having a trough for grain feed on each side and by making it twice as wide as those described.

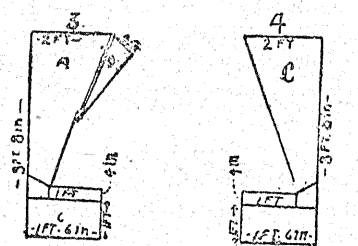

Double racks make good movable partitions. They can be any length desired, though 10 to 12 feet answers well, and are easily moved. Fig. 1 shows the first form arranged for feeding hay, the grain trough B is turned up and fastened by a hook. The hay is drawn out between the slats. The openings are not wide enough for the sheep to get their heads through and they do not stope out enough for seed and dirt to fall into the fleece badly. The trough, E, which is 1 foot wide, catches the chaff and loose hay which is drawn out. Fig. 2 shows this rack with the grain trough, B, down. Fig. 3 is the same in cross section and gives the dimensions. With this rack the grain trough is entirely free from the dirt and litter from the hay. A similar rack has been used by some western feeders and at the Iowa Agricultural college, all of whom report it satisfactory.

Fig. 5 shows the perspective of another form of movable combination rack. It differs from the first in having a solid board A instead of slats. It has a 5-inch opening below where the sheep draw out hay and the trough B is used for feeding grain. This rack keeps the fleece clean and does not break it. The trough must be cleaned of the litter that comes from the hay before grain is fed. This form of rack is also used by some western feeders and is the one used at Wisconsin experiment station. It has given general satisfaction. Fig. 4 represents the rack in cross section, gives its dimensions and shows the method of construction.

THE ART OF BREEDING.

To Master It Requires Intelligence and Hard Work.

It seems poor economy for farmers to attempt to pose as breeders and establish a herd of thoroughbreds on the simple knowledge of how to feed hogs for market, yet hundreds of men are doing it annually. As a rule, unless they are men who have that spirit in them that will not submit to a failure, they generally retire from the business the second year. To become a breeder means more now than it did years ago, says the Swine Breeder. The business has advanced, it is out of sight of the time when the ownership of a pig sired by a prize winner signified the breeding of fine stock. To do this a knowledge of the entire science is necessary. One must know pedigree, the standard, feeding and management, and these he must know, not as his forefathers, but fully up to the advanced knowledge of the active men of today. The signs of the time in everything point towards a record. In the breeding ring as in the speed ring, to be a success one must have a record and that record must mark high. The best records in the speed ring are made in front of the pneumatic sulkies. The best records in the breeding ring are made by those who employ every means to obtain knowledge; no one can to-day make much progress in the science of breed unless he takes advantage of all means that are now offered for studying the business and acquiring the work of the past years, and upon that foundation build up a business that will be in harmony with the standard and progress of the times.

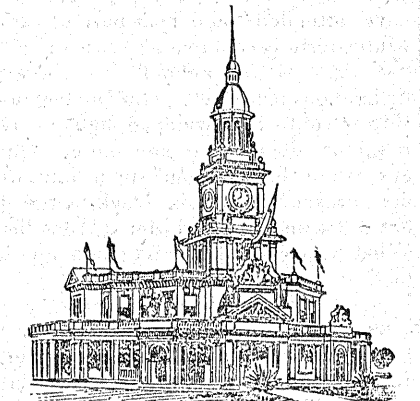

Economy in Feeding.

When dairymen feed for quantity and quality they will get better returns from sales than when they try to economize the feed and let the result be what it may. It is the profit of each dollar's worth of feed that a dairy cow makes, and the more feed we can get her to eat the more profit we get. The liberal feeder, who looks to the comfort of his cows, that they are well sheltered and well watered, is sure to procure liberal returns for all the care he can bestow upon them.

STATE BUILDINGS.

New Exhibits of Great Commonwealths Will Be Located at the Fair.

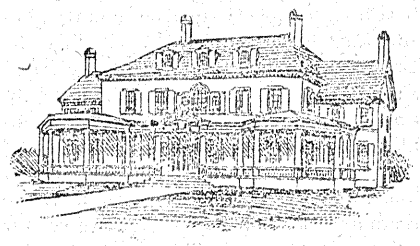

New York and Pennsylvania as the greatest states of the Union were given the front center of the tract reserved for state buildings at the Columbian exposition, and their structures face the great Art building on the south, New York having the eastern end of the plot and Pennsylvania the western. The latter's building, designed by Thomas P. Lonsdale, of Philadelphia, is a combination of various styles, the square and massive predominating. All the materials are of Pennsylvania production, and the cost is $60,000.

PENNSYLVANIA BUILDING.

The New Jersey building is, like most of the state structures, designed chiefly for social purposes and a place of writing and registration, and is made so far as possible representative of the state. It is modeled on the old house at Morris-town, N. J., which was Washington's headquarters, but there are additions for convenience sake. There are large and inviting piazzas front and rear, and the main entrance leads into a large hall two stories high, with a circular balcony around the second story.

The Texas building is meant to be emblematic of the state so far as possible. It is therefore large, massive and plain in the main portion, but topped with considerable ornament, and in its materials the visitor will find an epitome of the state. With some slight exceptions every particle of wood, stone and other material in it will be of Texas production. The cost is to be $100,000, and the location is a fortunate one to show the structure with the finest effect.

The Minnesota state building will be in the Renaissance style of architecture. The framework of wood will be coated with stuff to give the effect of stone construction. The main entrance will be in plain style, but the opposite side will more faithfully represent the state. The entrance there is through a portico having rusticated dome columns, and on the entablature over the center the name "Minnesota" will appear in a raised panel. Nebraska was fortunate in securing about the best site on the exposition grounds for her state building, as it fronts south on Fifty-seventh street, while a magnificent boulevard borders it on the east and a large lake on the west. It is 60 by 100 feet and two stories high, covers 6,000 square feet and has 12,000 feet of floor space. The east and west fronts have wide porticoes, on each side of which are wide steps covering one-third of the length of the building. Over each portico is a large gable on a line with the main cornice, and in each gable, in bas-relief, is the Nebraska state seal, five feet in diameter.

Vermont is to have a building which will indeed represent the state, as its walls are to be of blue, white and variegated marble from her various quarries, chiefly from those of West Rutland. The structure will have but one story, and be in the familiar Queen Anne style.

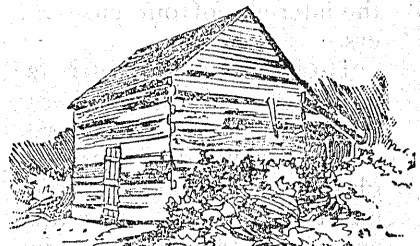

VERMONT BUILDING.

The cornices facing the windows and the heavy oak doors will be polished and elaborately carved. The plan was drawn by Architect Jarvis Hunt, of Weathersfield, and the expense will be borne by 100 prominent citizens. It will contain some great curiosities.

UNCLE TOM'S CABIN.

The Original Hut to Be Exhibited at the World's Fair.

Uncle Tom's cabin, the real cypress wood cabin, as the owner alleges, is to be exhibited at the Chicago World's fair. Its history is thus traced: The people about Nachitoches, La., have long insisted that Robert McAlpin was the original Simon Legree. His house and plantation were the only ones on or near the Red river exactly fitting the description in the book, and he the only man in the state who "filled the bill." He was intemperate and merciless and died before the war, leaving a memory for brutality to his slaves that is even now mentioned with horror.

UNCLE TOM'S CABIN.

On his place lived a faithful negro, sold from Kentucky, who suffered everything but actual torture to death, and Mr. S. Chopin, the present wealthy owner of the estate, has preserved the cabin with great care in the confident belief that in time it would be an object of national curiosity.

The cabin is of cypress logs and covered with cypress boards and sound as when built some forty years ago. It is to be presumed that Mrs. Stowe used the novelist's privilege of combining the experience of several negroes in one, but simply as a relic of the old slave times the cabin will possess great interest.

World's Fair Sculptors.

The list of sculptors employed on the different World's fair buildings includes Daniel C. French, Lorado Taft, Richard W. Cook, Edward Kemens, A. Phimister Proctor, M. A. Wagon, Carl Rohl-Smith, Karl Bitter, Philip Martiny, John Boyle, F. D. Millet, Robert Kraus, Mrs. E. R. Copp, Mrs. Edward Kemens and the Misses Alice L. Rideout, Carrie Brooks, Bessie O. Potter, Zulime Taft and Julia M. Bracken.

Classic Architecture at the Fair Grounds.

The work of the artists on the buildings for the Chicago exposition was necessarily delayed, as most of it had to be done after the structures were completed, but it has made rapid progress under the direction of Mr. Frank D. Millet. This gentleman, by the way, is of original New England Puritan stock, and does not thank anybody for calling him Mil-lay or mixing him up in any way with the noted French artist. Though but forty-five years old he is a veteran of the civil war, and began his art work with charcoal sketches while in the army. He selected the sculptors and artists for the separate details of work, and so far as completed the results surpass the most sanguine expectations.

As an illustration, the Agricultural building is here taken. The painted decorations thereon are by Mr. George W. Maynard, of New York, and the Pompeian style has been adopted as most in accord with the architecture, which is classic.

The main entrance is like that of an ancient heathen temple. On the right Cybele, mother of Zeus and Demeter (or Ceres, goddess of grain), is presented in her chariot drawn by young lions, and on the left is the latter's protegee, King Triptolemus, to whom she gave a chariot drawn by winged dragons when she sent him forth to teach mankind the art of agriculture. The accompanying illustration is a detail showing Cybele in her chariot.

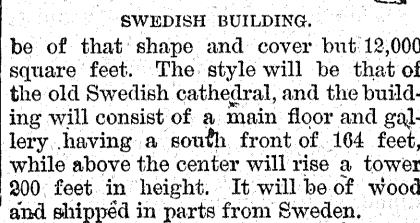

An Enterprising California Woman.

Mrs. Harriet W. R. Strong, of Whittier, Los Angeles county, Cal., is a woman of great enterprise. At the World's fair she will have two important exhibitions. One will be a "palace" twenty feet square, made entirely of pampas plumes. The other exhibit will consist of a working plan for a new system of irrigation, in which one dam is placed above the other. This will irrigate all of the orange and fruit orchards of the California state exhibit.

SWEDISH BUILDING.

Among the minor structures of the Columbian exposition of 1893 the Swedish building, though small, will be conspicuous. As the plot granted for the purpose was triangular and contains but 17,300 square feet, the building will also be of that shape and cover but 12,000 square feet. The style will be that of the old Swedish cathedral, and the building will consist of a main front and gallery having a south front of 164 feet, while above the center will rise a tower 200 feet in height. It will be of wood and shipped in parts from Sweden.

ORDER OF HEARING.—

State of Michigan, County of Tuscola, ss.: At a session of the Probate Court for said county, held at the Probate office, in the Village of Caro on the third day of February in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three.

Present, John C. Loring, Judge of Probate. In the matter of the estate of Elijah Kurr, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition, duly verified by Luther E. Kurr, praying that a certain instrument now on file in this court, purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased, may be admitted to Probate, and that Administration of said estate may be granted to Theodore H. Fritz or some other suitable person.

Thereupon it is ordered, that Wednesday, the eighth day of March next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs at law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate, may be required to appear at a session of said court, then to be held at the Probate office, in the village of Caro and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of the petitioner should not be granted: And it is further ordered, that said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate, of the hearing of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the Caro City Enterprise, a newspaper printed and circulated in said county, three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

JOHN C. LORING, Judge of Probate.

D. 1890, and on the same day recorded in the office of the said Register of Deeds in Liber 73 of mortgages at page 14, and afterwards by said Mary E. Wilson to Emily Wilson, said last mortgage duly assigned bearing date September 30, A. D. 1892, and on September 12, A. D. 1892 duly recorded in the office of the said Register of Deeds in Liber 73 of mortgages at page 320, whereby the power of sale in said mortgage contained has become operative, and no suit or proceeding at law having been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage and whereas said mortgage by its terms provided that any sums of money for taxes paid by the holder thereof in case of the default of said mortgagor to pay the several taxes assessed on said premises should be a further lien and thereby secured thereon, and has been by the mortgagor premises for the year 1888, on December 27, 1890, $5.74; on December 27, 1890, for the year 1890, $2.65; and on December 27, 1891, for the year 1891, $1.96; for the year 1891, on December 31, 1891, $1.74; and several other taxes having been levied under the general tax laws of the State of Michigan; and also the further sum of eighty-six cents on January 19, A. D. 1892, for the year 1891, and the further sum of eighty-two cents on July 19, A. D. 1892, for the year 1892, said last mentioned sums being for village taxes assessed by virtue of the provisions of the charter of the village of Caro, all which sums are payable with interest at ten per cent., and there is claimed to be due for principal and interest the sum of one hundred, ninety and five one-hundredths dollars ($199.05) and the further sum of sixteen and thirteen one-hundredths dollars ($16.13), because of taxes paid with interest thereon, making in all one hundred, thirty-five and seventy-eight one-hundredths dollars ($152.78) thereby secured. Notice is hereby given that on March 27, A. D. 1893, at ten o'clock in the forenoon at the northwesterly corner of the Court House in the village of Caro, Michigan, that being the building of the Circuit Court for the county of Tuscola is held, the premises in said mortgage described or so much thereof as may be necessary to satisfy the said debt, and taxes, with interest on each, shall be sold at public auction to the highest bidder by virtue of said power of sale in said mortgage. The premises hereby made subject to sale are in said mortgage described as follows: Lots one and two in block six of Charles Montague's subdivision of part of south-east quarter of Section three, town twelve north, range one east, Michigan, according to the recorded plat thereof and being within the village of Caro, aforesaid.

Dated February 10th, A. D. 1893.

Notice of Commissioners on Claims. STATE OF MICHIGAN. COUNTY OF TUSCOLA. ss.

Estate of Edwin A. Weaver, deceased. The undersigned having been appointed by the Judge of Probate of said county, Commissioners on Claims in the matter of said estate, and six months from the 14th day of January, A. D. 1893, having been allowed by said Judge of Probate to all persons having claims against the estate of said Edwin A. Weaver, to present the same to us for examination and adjustment: Notice is hereby given, that we will meet on Wednesday, the 22nd day of March, A. D. 1893, at ten o'clock a. m. of each day, at the Court House in the village of Caro, in said county, to receive and examine such claims.

Dated, January 17th, A. D. 1893.

WILLIAM GAGE, Commissioners.

PHILIP A. KOEPFGEN, Commissioners.

Execution Sale.

Notice is hereby given that by virtue of a writ of fieri facias issued out of the Circuit Court for the county of Tuscola, in favor of Angus D. Gillies, against the goods, chattels, and real estate of Henry Butler and Charles J. Lowrie, and in relation to the sheriff of said county directed and delivered, Daniel T. Randall, the sheriff of said county, did, on the twelfth day of June, A. D. 1893, levy upon and take all the right, title and interest of the said Charles J. Lowrie, (one of the defendants named in said writ) in and to the following described real estate situated and being in the township of Novesta, county of Tuscola and State of Michigan, to wit: The north-east quarter (4) of the southeast quarter (3) of section four (4) of township thirteen (13) north of range eleven (11) east, in said county, and the same was, by the said Daniel T. Randall, delivered and turned over to me, successor in office to the said Daniel T. Randall,

We are in the Procession right behind the Band. Come and see the difference between dealing with live and dead men. No honest man can sell goods cheaper than we do and stay here.

Our goods are arguments. Our prices are eloquence itself. Our aim is to make both goods and prices satisfactory every time. If you have tried elsewhere and failed, give us a trial and be convinced. We succeed where others have failed. We have but one grade, the best of everything.

A FAIR TEST.—Call at every store in town, then call on us. The just comparison you will then be able to make of qualities and prices, will preach a far more forcible sermon than anything we could say. This is a fair test. TRY IT.

FRIDAY, MARCH 10, 1893.

KARR'S CORNERS.

The weather is nice. Re-vival meetings again. Henry Masters and wife, of Caro, have been visiting relatives here during the past week. C. Scripture is moving to Cass City. Miss M. Doerr has been visiting relatives here for a short time. She returns to Pontiac this week. Mrs. Muma is on the sick list. Thos. Dunn has rented his farm. J. Fordyce was over this way last Monday looking after carpenter jobs. Mr. Lewis McPherson has gone to Canada.

Last week's correspondence. Mrs. Palmer Karr is somewhat improved, but is yet unwell.

On account of drifts the teacher did not get here and there was no school on Monday of last week.

Neil McLaren is breaking Daniel McKee's colt this winter.

Not being home we didn't notice the smile on John High's face last week, but 'twas there, and the boy is two weeks old.

John High and Wm. Waters, each lost a valuable horse during this winter. Yet horses are cheap.

Miss McMullan, of Cass City, Sundayed at John Muma's a week ago and was unable to reach Cass City until late on Monday on account of snow drifts.

James McArthur, of Cass City, took dinner with his friend, John Muma, on Wednesday last.

Geo. Dewey and Alf Crank spent Thursday of last week with their friends at Karr's Corners.

Charlie Weber's crew of hay pressers were in this part last week. They had a lively time trying to keep the press right side up.

John Muma bought the horse of Wm. Waters that was kicked and the animal is doing nicely now.

While pressing hay in this vicinity, one of Mr. Weber's horses was taken sick and was taken from L. Karr's home by the driver on Friday night. The last report is no hope of its life.

Mr. Jeneraux and Willie and Mr. Hutchinson, all of Wickware, took dinner at John Muma's on Friday last. Mr. Hutchinson has taken the job of building the wall for John Muma's house.

Two sleighloads of lively youths met at John Karr's last Friday evening and ate taffer. A good time reported.

The West Grant and Karr's Corners correspondent first opened his black eyes in an old slat house in Melvin, in the township of Speaker, Sanilac Co., on the 11th day of May, 1872. We have attended school a part of each winter term except one and as to the "World's Great School" we know little about it as yet. Our statement is yet to be developed, and as to religious liberty we are mute. Our eyes were black when small but are dark gray now; hair is black, size of hat 6 3/4 and tip the beam at 156 lbs. What we lack in head is made up in feet.

Tuscola County Farmers' Mutual.
The Tuscola County Farmers' Insurance Co. having no agent at Cass City at present, all matters pertaining to insuring property may be left with W. J. Campbell. Remember the growth of this company during the past year has been greater than our expectations. We have more risks to-day than any other company doing business with the farmers in the county. We charge one-half the rates that stock companies do, and our reserve fund is increasing. This company has saved the farmers of this county in the last three years nearly ten thousand dollars. We have to-day the best farm property in the county insured, and still they come. During the two months our office work has been such that we have required extra help and still we are behind. Work is accumulating faster than we can take care of it. Farmers wishing to insure will do well to see us as we can actually save them about one-half, besides we give you a better insurance. This we can easily show you if you will call on us.

Respectfully yours,
C. D. PETERSHANS, Sec.

HEADACHE, SLEEPLESSNESS, NERVOUS PROSTRATION.

Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind.

Gentlemen: I take pleasure in informing you of the very beneficial results which have followed the use of Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine in the case of myself and wife. For a year I was subject to a distressing pain at the base of the brain and upper portion of the spinal cord. I was greatly troubled with sleeplessness, recommended to me. My case had been so obstinate that I had no confidence in the efficacy of any medicine. Yet as a last resort I consented to give it a trial. Much to my surprise, I experienced marked benefit; my sleeplessness disappeared; my headache was removed; my spirits and general health greatly improved. I feel now as I never did before.

CURED THOUSANDS

GAINED TWENTY POUNDS. ALL THIS OCCURRED AFTER LEARNED AND WELL KNOWN PHYSICIANS HAD FAILED. My wife is taking the Nervine with the best of results. LOUIS D. VANDERVEER.
