And the Law with Its Relation to Rule No. 12, of the Engineers, Elucidated-Interesting Views for Employers and Employed on the Rail-A Decision Which Attracts Much Interest Among the Members of the Bar.

RAILWAY RECEIVER CALLED DOWN

MACON, Ga., April 10.—The decision of Judge Speer, rendered in the case of the petition of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Central railroad of Georgia to enter into terday in a personal triumph that Carter a contract with that organization for the Harrison has a right to be groud of and service of its members on that road, is reprobably is doing the subject justice in that garded by the Brotherhood as a signal vic- line. As when he ran some years ago tory for that organization. The receiver nearly the whole city press was against had refused to make contracts with the him, but this time he had a paper of his brotherhood, holding that such contracts own-The Times-which he did not have were improper and bad policy. Judge before. The Herald was away in front in Speer held that they were both proper and personal attacks on the Democratic cangood policy, and directed the receiver to didate; The Tribune, Inter-Ocean, News enter into a contract with the engineers, and Record were all at work for Sam Albut that such contract should not be lerton, and only the Mail, Dispatch and restricted to members of the brotherhood, Globe supported Harrison. but include all engineers employed.

Decision Approved by the Bar. The decision has attracted much attention and discussion among members of the bar, by whom it is pronounced to be the 19,000 with only twenty precincts to hear most far-reaching, important and satisfac- from. With the head of the ticket the whole tory decision upon the relations of capital list of Democratic nominees probably goes and labor yet rendered. After announcing into office, but majorities are not known his decision Judge Speer discussed at yet. Cregier, who bolted the Democratic length the interesting questions involved. | convention and ran on a labor ticket, gets He said: "It will not be safe for those en- about 5,000 votes as it looks at this writing. gaged in the maintenance of public order to ignore the immensity of the changes in Early last evening crowds as great as those the relations of the employing and the employed classes occasioned by the phenomenal development of commerce and the prevalence of labor organizations. We are in this case directly concerned with a corporation and a labor organization both engaged in railway transportation.

Immensity of Interests Involved. "In this department of industry it is reported by the interstate commerce commission that there is invested in the United States $9,829,275,015, or nearly eight times the entire national debt of the country. Last year the railroads transported 530,000-000 passengers, or more than eight times the entire population of the United States. The men employed by the railroads number 784,000, and it is no trifling testimony to the faithfulness and efficiency of this mighty army of railroad employes that of the vast population transported under their care only 293, or less than one two thousandth of one per cent. lost their lives. It is, moreover, true that no operatives of a railroad more than the locomotive engineers are charged with the preservation of life and property.

Refers to the Boycott Rule. After stating that members of the brotherhood were 80 per cent. of the end in the specific the most important difference between the parties to the case was the effect sion, the rest of the Democratic ticket of rule 12 of the brotherhood [which rule there being elected. be quoted-the celebrated boycott rule which has been printed in these patches]. The judge then proceeded: "In his testimony Mr. A. B. Youngson, the assistant chief engineer, frankly admitted that the effect of this rule, as applied to is charged it should be necessary to convey over the lines of the Central railroad a of women and the fact that a woman candicar belonging to a company on which employ of the receiver to refuse to haul Barnes, the candidate for mayor, receiving the train containing such a car; and if the a majority of nearly a thousand votes, the officers of the road insisted that the car whole ticket being elected by large marshould prooceed loyalty to the brotherhood requires that the engineer should also resign his station and abandon his duty.

The Boycott Rule Unlawful. "Now, there cannot be a doubt that this rule of the brotherhood is in direct and they did not cast their votes for Mrs. Potpositive violation of the laws of the land, and no court, state or federal, could hesitate for a moment so to declare. It is plainly a rule or an agreement in restraint of by women. It is estimated that 3,800 trade or commerce, as described in section 1 of the act of July 2, 1890, known as the Sherman anti-trust law. A combination of persons, without regard to their occupation, which would have the effect to defeat the provisions of the interstate commerce law, inhibiting discriminations in the transportation of freight and passengers, would be liable to the severe penalties of lines were drawn, which was the case in the statutes.

A Double-Edged Legal Sword. "Now it is true that in any conceivable strike upon the transportation lines of this country, whether main lines or branch roads, there would be interference with interstate or foreign commerce. It will be practically impossible hereafter for a body of men to combine to hinder and delay the work of the transportation company without becoming obnoxious to the provisions of these laws; and a combination or agreement of railroad officials or other representatives of capital, with the same effect, will be equally under the ban of these penal statutes.
"Organized labor, when injustice has been done or threatened to its membership, will find its useful and valuable mission in presenting to the courts of the country a strong and resolute protest, and a petition for redress against unlawful trusts and combinations which do unlawful wrong to it.

Conditions of Quitting Work. "While therefore any engineer may at any time exercise his right as an individual to leave the service of the receiver, he may not do so in such a manner as to injure the property or impede its proper management by the receiver. Six Round Match at Chicago.

CHICAGO, April 10.—Saturday night at Second Regiment armory Tommy Ryan, the welter-weight champion of America, and George Dawson, of Australia, boxed six lively rounds and quit on about even terms. The men had been boxing scarcely a minute when Ryan scored a knock down with a left hander. But as the contest progressed the crowd began to think better of Dawson. Both men quit little the the entire Republican ticket by at least worse. Since the fight $2,000 has been put up 1,000 plurality. There were three tickets for a finish fight next fall.

Gets a Plurality of 20.000. The result is the election of Harrison for mayor by a plurality that will probably reach 20,000. At late reports it was over at a presidential election gathered in front of the newspaper offices to see the returns. When Harrison's election was known the Democrats paraded the streets for hours cheering the elect, while a crowd of several thousands collected in front of The Times office. A bonfire was built, red fire burned and a general jollification held.

One District Goes Republican. LATER. - Returns from 790 precincts give Harrison a plurality of 19,695 over Allerton. The vote for north town officers is very close and it is possible that the Republica s will win in this district by a small majority.

CHICAGO COUNCIL REPUBLICAN.

Further Facts About the Election-Voting in Rhode Island-Notes. CHICAGO, April 6.—The Republicans Tuesday elected a majority of the city council, which stands: Republicans, 38; Democrats, 27; Independent Democrats, 8. Mayor-elect Harrison said the Republican majority would be kept in check, as he would personally preside, to which the Republicans reply that the check business will work both ways, as they will be on also defeated Crawford in the north divi-

CLEAN SWEEP AT KANSAS CITY. Republicans Also Hold the Elections in

Kansas State Mostly. KANSAS CITY, kas., April 5.-Great exthe properties in the hands of the receiver citement attended the municipal election and the engineers in his employ, would be as follows: If in the pursuance of the business of a common carrier with which the receiver test was the unusually large registration date for mayor was in the field. The result there was a strike of engineers it would be of the election was the most sweeping victhe duty of the brotherhood men in the tory ever scored in the city by Republicans, gins. Republicans also elected five of the six councilmen. Mrs. Potter Wasn't "In It." The women turned out en masse to cast their ballots, but strange as it may seem ter, the woman candidate, Mrs. Potter received only about fifty votes all told and of those not more than five were cast women, or 85 per cent. of those registered, cast their ballots, they casting a much larger percentage of their registered vote

Elections in Kansas State. Returns from many cities and towns throughout Kansas show that the Republicans have swept everything where party most of the principal towns. In Topeka there were four tickets in the field and the straight Republican ticket had a majority over all others. In Leavenworth the Republicans elected Samuel Dodsworth mayor and a majority of the council. This is the first Republi can mayor in Leaven-worth in thirteen years. Wichita was carried by the Republicans after a hot fight over the fusion Democratic and Populist ticket. Reports from Emporia, Ottawa, Fort Scott, Council Grove, Fredonia, Russell, Atchison, Wellington, Winfield and Arkansas City say that in all the cities the straight Republican ticket was chosen by large majorities.

Double Their Majority at Wichita. At Wichita the Republicans gained a great victory, electing their candidates by double the majority ever given for a Republican. The town is Governor Lewelling's home and the Populist administration was the issue.

REPUBLICANS WIN AT ST. LOUIS.

A Regular Ground Swell Gets in Its Work at the Bridge City.

St. Louis, April 5.—The returns show the first sweeping Republican victory for years in St. Louis. With the possible exception of Brown for auditor the Democrats do not seem to be in it at all. The Republicans have bagged about everything from Walbridge for mayor down, by majorities of at least 3,000. The Thirteenth turns from the state show a very general Democratic victory in nearly all cities, with a few scattering People's party gains. Dispatches received by The Republic show that Jefferson City went Republican except for marshal by a small majority.

Denver in the Same Bont. DENVER, April 5.-Probably the most hotly contested municipal election campaign ever experienced in Denver ended resterday and the result is the election of Van Horn, Republican, for mayor and the in field-Republican, Democrat and

HE RATIFIES RICKS CARTER HARRISON. Populist. Last fall the Democrats and Populist combined carried the county for Weaver, but they failed to fuse in the city campaign and the result is a sweeping Republican victory. Returns received are from Democratic strongholds and show the Democratic ticket running behind.

IN MICHIGAN AND WISCONSIN.

Republicans Elect Hooker-Returns from

Milwankee. DETROIT, April 5.—There is no doubt of the election of Hooker, Republican, to the supreme bench by a plurality of 10,000 or over, and the Republican candidates for regents have won a still greater victory. In the old Democratic strongholds, such as Wayne and Saginaw counties, the Republicans have made great gains. They have captured Grand Rapids, Ann Arbor, Manistee, Lansing and other cities former ly Democratic. The Democrats elect mayors at Ypsilanti and Port Huron, overturning Republican majorities. All the proposed constitutional amendments have undoubtedly carried, the opposition being inconsiderable.

Democrats Victorious. MILWAUKEE. Wis., April 5.-The election passed off very quietly, about 25,000 votes being cast out of a total registration of 49,000. The returns indicate the election of Mayor Peter J. Somers, Dem., over Alderman Theobald Otjen, Rep., to fill the vacancy in the house of representatives caused by the election of John L.

Mitchell to the senate by a plurality of about 1,500. Judge D. H. Johnson, of the circuit court, is re-elected without opposition. Judge Ludwig, Democrat, defeats Julius F. Roehr, Republican, by 2,500 and, Judge J. E. Mann, of the probate court, Democrat, is re-elected over Frank J. Lewihech, Republican, by 3,500. There were two nonpartisan candidates for associate justice of the supreme court. Judge C. B. Webb defeats Judge A. W. Newman in Milwaukee county by about 2,500.

Rhode Island Very Close.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 6.-In a considerably increased vote from last April there will be no election for general officers as a result of the battle of the ballots yesterday. It is believed that both Democratic candidates for congress have pluralities. With nine districts to hear from the vote is: Brown (Rep.), 18,641; Baker (Dem.), 18,324; Metcalf (Pro.), 2,845. No election possible. The assembly is in doubt. Byelections may be necessary to settle control of the legislature.

Republican Split in Massachusetts. Boston, April 5.-After one of the hot-tests fights in the history of the Seventh Massachusetts congressional district, the Republican convention at Charleston has dissolved with two nominees for successor to Henry Cabot Lodge, Speaker Barrett and Mayor Hayes, of Lynn, The latter, however, received a nomination as a bolter, the original convention nominating Barrett by a vote of 57 to 1.

West Superior Democratic. WEST SUPERIOR, Wis., April 5.-E. C. Kennedy, Dem., was elected mayor yesterday by a majority of about 400 over Martin Pattison, Rep. H. O. Walseth, Rep., probably re-elected treasurer by 200 or 300. Probably Judge Newman will have a small majority for supreme justice.

Results at Madison.

MADISON, Wis., April 5.-In the city the vote for justice of supreme count to fill vacancy by retirement of Chief Justice Lyon, resulted: A. W. Newman, 1,524, C. M. Webb, 630. John Corscot, Dem., elected mayor by 986 majority—the largest in the story of the city

Returns from forty-four of the large cities of Kansas show that the Republicans win in thirty-five instances, the Populists in four, the temperance question in four, while the straight-out Democrats were victorious only at Salina.

Comparative Work of Headsmen. WASHINGTON, April 10.-The following statement prepared at the postoffice department, showing the number of fourthclass postoffice changes in this and the last administration, has been made public: Total number of fourth-class postmasters appointed from March 4, 1893, to April 3, 1893, inclusive, 876, of which 506 were to fill vacancies caused by resignations and deaths, and 370 removals. Of the remov als 90 served four years and over. Total number of fourth-class postmasters ap pointed from March 4, 1889, to April 3, 1889, inclusive, 1,328, of which 502 were to fill vacancies caused by resignations and deaths, and 825 removals. At that time no record was kept of the term of service in removal cases.

Wild Winds Work Havoc.

CHICAGO, April 8 .- A furious wind and hail storm swept over the southern portion of the city last evening causing considerable damage. Trees were blown down, bill boards were leveled and hundreds of window lights were shattered. Severe wind storms accompanied by electrical disturbances prevailed in Wisconsin, Iowa and Illinois yesterday. In the southern part of this city several persons wese sev-

STURGIS, Ky., April 10.—All the persons arrested for the murder of Mrs. Henry Deaney (nee Oliver) have confessed their guilt except George Henry, whom they all exonerate. The eighth party to the crime, whose name the officials refuse to divulge, is still at large and has left the county.

The Extra Session of Congress. Washington, April 10.—President Cleve land said Saturday before leaving the city that he had decided to convene congress in extra session in September, although he might postpone the date until Sept. 15 or Oct 1. He did not think he should reconsider his determination.

"Billy Deutsch is back in New York, sick and on his uppers."
Such was the information recently given

He was born in New York 48 years ago and very early in life made money in the theatrical business and by speculating. He went to Paris in 1881 with fully $125,000 and was steered against a game. But the rest must be told in his own words:

"I was introduced into the Franco-Amer ican club and was initiated into the be witching game of baccarat, which I played with varying success, but never with the idea of steady playing, as I was forced to travel all over Europe on business. It was in 1884, while in Paris, that I had an inspi ration that I could win. I felt this inspira tion because my small stakes invariably brought me large winnings.
"Luck was with me. I won every time played. In three months I won $125,000 With that money I traveled through Eu rope. I took my horses and servants with me, buying everything in sight.

"On July, 25, 1885, I went into the Franco American club with $50-all I had. I got dinner, and with the remaining $30 I tried my chance at the game. In an hour I los every penny. Just as I quit Lorillard Spencer, John Garcia and another came in. Wo sat down to a game of whist. I won 30

As Deutsch told the story of his run his face lighted up and his eyes brightened He rose from his chair as he spoke.

"I played on every day for 32 consecutive days, barring Sundays," he continued. "I won almost every time. On Aug. 23 I won $12,000. That was the last day I played. An Englishman and a Spaniard owed me money. We had a row and I swore I would never play there again. I sailed for America and got here on Sept. 10, 1885. I brought my horses, carriages and servants with me I lived at the Hoffman House and staid here until Nov. 12. I brought over with me about $600,000 and took back $400,000. I lost the difference in Wall street and on dinners and friends.

"I was broke again in France in less than six months. On April 5, 1887, I was penniless. But my credit was good, although eventually I had to go to the wall. When that time came, I simply wrote an article for a Paris newspaper and closed it with this: 'Having neither the time nor the disposition to bid goodby to each individual riend and creditor, please tell them for me that in the event of their desiring to know about my financial or physical welfare they can write to me at the Hoffman House in America.'

"Where a man has a real passion for gambling it is far worse than the passion for drink. A man will stoop lower to gamble than to drink. Besides, the drunkard is irresponsible after a few drinks, and the gambler must have his wits. For a few coppers a man can get a drink, but for the gambler-adollar? What is it? Gambling works up the brain, the eyes, the nervesall. I am not preaching. Gambling is a disease—the hardest in the world to cure, harder than consumption.

"Just to show that a gambler will stoop to anything, will steal legitimately by bor rowing and never repaying, take the case of a cousin of Prince Barbarina. He was in Paris with us in 1885. He used to borrow 1,000 francs and repay it the next day. Fi nally his luck went dead away. He borrowed from the king of Servia's son, then borrowed from me to pay him, borrowed from another man to pay me, and so on. But that had to stop. One day he came to me and asked for 50 francs. I refused him. He said he was hungry. I knew he wanted the money to gamble. Finally he got down to 5 francs. I gave it to him and started out. I forgot my cane, and when I went back for it he was gambling. He won 3,000 francs off that dollar."

Well, to sum it all up, Billy went to smash in 1887, came up again and had $150, 000, lost it all and is now in the sanitarium dying slowly of phthisis. The physicians say his only hope is in a change of climate. and he is trying to collect what is due him, but so far his sporting friends do not remit, and so Billy Deutsch, worth $600,000 in 1885, must die in poverty.

Merry in Adversity. The actor out of an engagement at this eason of the year hangs upon the 'Strand" like the blasted fruit to the leafless orchard tree—overlooked or not closely buttoned summer coat about his per or shingles for the roof. The roof neck and the absence of an overcoat or the presence of one palpably made for somebody else. The jaws begin to work nervously and to look thin and hungry. Yet to hear him converse in a little knot of professionals similarly situated you would suppose that it was a matter of no moment. He is rarely gloomy of countenance, never of conversation. I have known men who hadn't the price of a glass of beer about them for days at a time who were very entertaining, and who would crack their best jokes at their

In hiding their own individual sorrows under the cloak of merry demeanor many an unfortunate is a greater actor than he would even claim to be behind the footlights. And this is saying much. But there are always clever men and women walking the streets of New York who are infinitely better qualified to entertain the public than half of their professional brethren who are drawing salaries. It is the lack of business tact or forehandedness or something aside from artistic merit.—New York Herald.

Caughey, Funambulesques," the weather, although it refused to do justice to the occasion by supplying sunshine, being dry and mild. The marble bust of the bard is placed on a pedestal near the Fontaine Medicis, one of the most picturesque corners of the garden. The face is lifelike and represents De Banville in a moment of inspiration. He is either meditating graceful verses or delivering some impromptu fragment of brilliant talk to his bosom friends.

The site of the memorial is rather Medicis, and not a few friends of the poet would have preferred to see the bust in a more secluded part of the Luxembourg. The monument was due to the initiative of M. Catulle Mendes, and the funds were speedily collectedthanks to the co-operation of the department of fine arts, the different literary and dromatic associations and the Comedie Française.—Paris Cor. Other Fields of Anthracite.

The Baltimore American prints a letter from Mining Engineer Robert B. Allen, of Harrisonburg, Rockingham county, Va., to a gentleman in Baltimore, in which he says: "Here in the Shenandoah mountains is a vast coal field (anthracite), within twelve miles of the Valley branch of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad and 140 miles from Baltimore, awaiting development. True, the coals are what is known as the 'Pocono, No. 9, in the column of Pennsylvania geology. Still there are three separate and distinct seams of from six to nine feet of as fine a coal as can be marketed. Time and again efforts have been made to induce capital to work these fields withou success, but notwithstanding all objections raised, the fact remains the same that the coal is there, of fine quality. very accessible, and it is certain that as long as no new anthracite fields are worked just that long will consumers be at the mercy of the rapacious 'coal com-

President Eliot's Views on Cremation. In answer to a question as to whether, in view of the fact that he had some connection with the Boston Cremation society, he intended to have his own body cremated, President Eliot, of Harvard, recently said: "No, I shall not be cremated. I subscribed for a share in the corporation, but it does not follow from that that I shall be incinerated. I have purchased a lot in a certain burying ground and shall be interred in the usual manner. Still I believe that cremation is a good thing, especially in time of an epidemic, and encourage the movement."--Boston Traveller.

It Is Plain But Very Convenient and buildings usually suit plain people, farmers, in particular; hence in presenting a design for a poultry building I have chosen a plain one. It is, however, substantial and practical, well adapted to the needs of a farmer keeping a few fowls. It is 60 feet long, 84 feet wide, 12 feet high, giving 6 pens, each 20 by 15 feet; room in each for 20 hens, or 120 hens in all. There are 3 pens on either side of the center to his party can have this woodchuck I hallway, extending from one end of caught on my way to school this morn-the building to the other. This arrangement should be tried to find its convenience in getting among your birds quickly or even when wanting to view them from the outside.

Storing dust from the road for the hens to bath their feathers and body is convenient; if put in barrels or boxes in such a room, it will be accessible at all times. Then your bone mill, meat chopper and cooking paraphernalia can be operated in this room, away from the fowls, and kept in better condition away from changeable states of the atmosphere. The building is conworth gathering. You may know him structed of plain weather boards over by the shortness of his trousers, by the

ABOUT CYPRIAN BEES.

Their Honey-Gathering Qualities Are Said to Be Unexcelled. Mr. Frank Benton, before the North

American Bee-Keepers association, de livered an address in which he said that Cyprian bees were raised on the island of Cyprus and were peculiar on account of their isolation. They were kept in mud-cylinder hives; movements were very quick-so quick, indeed, poiled by the propinquity of the Rue de | that they might flit on the nose. As to their honey-gathering qualities, they exceed all other known races; will often gather honey when others are doing nothing. The cappings of their comb hone y have a rather watersoaked appearance, and therefore were not suited for comb honey. They were prolific-more so than the Carniolans. Right at this point Mr. Benton wished to emphasize the fact that it was not a bad thing to have bees extra prolific, because an intelligent bee-keeper-one who knows how-could turn it to good account. As to the temper of Cyprians, they feared nothing. Smoke had no effect on them whatever; in fact, the more they were smoked the worse they became. They were very sensitive to light; and hence on opening a hive it must be done gradually. By working cautiously of course, under no consideration being without a veil he could get along with them very well. They winter better than Syrians and Palestines. For extracted honey, he believed they were the best bees in the world. If honey were to be extracted it would make no difference whether the cappings were water-soaked or otherwise. As the swarming mania has been bred into the Carniolans, so vindictiveness has been bred into the Cyprians on account of their natural environments. Wasps were their natural enemies on the island of Cyprus, and Mr. Benton has known them to pounce upon the weakest of the colonies, and so decimate their number as to finally cause their utter annihilation. Mr. Benton regretted that the Cyprians were not now to be

Function of the Bee's Sting. It will be a surprise to many to learn that, after all, the most important function of the bee's sting is not stinging. I have long been convinced that the bees put the finishing touches on their artistic cell work by the dexterous use of their stings, and that during this final finishing stage of the process of honey making the bees in ject a minute portion of formic acid in the honey. This is, in reality, the poison of their sting, The formic acid gives to the honey its peculiar flavor, and also imparts to it its keeping qualities. The sting is really an exquisitely contrived little trowel, with which the bee finishes off and caps the cells when they are filled brimful of honey. While doing this the formic acid passes from the poison bag, exudes drop by drop from the point of the sting, and the beautiful work is finished. - Baltimore News.

Would you know what caused the tumult,
Filled the city full of strie,
Wrecked the quiet little home beside the sea,
Made the tender; leving lassie
Leave the old hearthstone for life,
In despair an outcast far away to flee;
Know what made the midnight shadow
Cloud the sunshine of her youth,
And her young heart feel a grief beyond con

Hark! It was the awful Rum Fiend,
For she could not he the truth for she could not he the truth That her father was a victim of the bowl. CHORUS CHORUS.

There's a name that's never spoken,
While a mother's heart is broken,
And another home is ruined
By a loving lather's fall;
But the Rum Fiend still is living
And the people still are giving Him a license that is hanging on the wall.

From the dear old home the daughter
Has been driven far away,
And her noble, brave young brother now is

In her sorrow now lamenting all alone,
Waiting for her drunken hunband,

Then we lost a leving neighbor,
Friend and father all combined,
When the dealer hung his license on the wall.

Note the cities of the nation,
Governed by the lawless hand
Of dram dealers, who the souls of men degrade,
Will they not ordain a mandate
And declare the drink slave free?
While from mothers, wives and daughters comes the call,
"Freemen rouse! for God, for country,
Vete for Home, for Liberty,
And remove the Rum Fiend's license from the wall."

CHORUS.

Father's name will then be spoken,
Mother's heart no longer broken,
And the "good time" so long coming
Bless the nations one and all;
When good people sease from giving
The Rum Fienda legal living,
And his license hangs no longer on the

MUTINY, MURDER, PIRACY, WRECK

The Mate of the Hesper Butchered by Mutinous Seamen-The Wreck of the Lady Lampson-Seventeen Days In an Open Boat.

There seems to have been a carnival of crime, ruin and misery on the Pacific ocean of late. Stories of mutiny, shipwreck and long and tempestuous voyages come from there almost daily, and it appears as if United States consuls must be kept busy sending home mutineers for trial. Here is the story of one of the mutinies: The American bark Hesper sailed from Newcastle, N. S. W., Dec. 22 last, laden with coal for Honolulu. Among the men who shipped for the voyage were five who signed the register with the names of Thomas St. Clair, Herman Sparf, Thomas Green, Edward Larsen and Hans Hansen. To the of ficers of the vessel they were principally noticeable for their skill and unusual politeness. In the forecastle they told boast ful stories of bloody deeds in which they said they had been engaged, but these never came to the officers' ears.

MUTINEERS OF THE WILLIAM BAYHIS. The night of Jan. 13 was dark and stormy. Second Mate Maurice Fitzgerald was in charge of the deck, and St. Clair, Hansen, Sparf and Larsen were on watch. Captain Sodergren, who was in his cabin lying down, but not asleep, about midnight heard St. Clair call Fitzgerald forward to attend to a sail which he said had carried away. The mate went forward and was never seen again. St. Clair followed him and buried a hatchet in his head from behind. He fell to the deck, and Hansen beat his brains out with a heavy club. The captain heard a shriek, but thought at the time it was but the creaking of some of the tackle. Fitzgerald was soon missed, and a search for him began. The captain suspected foul play, and in the morning the telltale blood on the deck confirmed his suspicions. He at once put St. Clair, Hansen and Sparf in irons and began an investigation that resulted in the discovery of a diabolical plot, originated by St. Clair, to murder all the officers, seize the vessel and start on a piratical cruise in the China sea. St. Clair told the others that the captain had a large amount of money in his cubin, and this they were to divide among them. They would then put into some port in South America, sell the cargo of the vessel and refit her to prey upon the treasure steamers plying along the Chinese coast.

The captain sailed at once for Tahiti, where the prisoners were taken before the United States consular court. St. Clair and Hansen did not weaken in the least, but Sparf broke down on his examination, and on his admissions the court found that Le, St. Clair and Hansen did the murder, and that Green and Larsen were accessories to the crime. The five men were sent in irons to San Francisco for trial.

The other mutiny was not quite so seious. On the 22d of March the whaling bark William Bayhis anchored off Honolulu harbor, and the captain signaled, "Trouble on board." The United States consul and a guard of marines from the Boston went out to the boat and found that Captain Porter had 18 of his crew in irons for mutiny. The captain desired six of them, the ringleaders, taken ashore for examination before the consular court. These were Carl Hendryk, who had assaulted a mate of the vessel with a knife, and James Storey, D. H. Stanton, E. Mitchell, Richard Manning and W. Driscoll.

Captain Porter said the men had shown signs of dissatisfaction ever since December, when they left San Francisco. None of them committed any serious breach of discipline, however, until the morning of Jan. 18. Hendryk was at the wheel, and Fourth Mate Baptisto thought he was asleep at his post. As the mate approached to waken him, Hendryk attacked him with a knife, and before he could be disarmed Baptisto was severely cut in a dozen places.

Hendryk was confined in tirons for a couple of days and was then ordered to the mast for trial. On the removal of the irons he made a break for the forecastle and acted in such a manner that the captain thought him insane and ordered him confined again. He was kept in the lazarette alone until March 10, when the crew mutinied, and he was joined by several companions. Twenty-two of the crew marched aft that morning and told the captain they would refuse duty unless Hendryk were released. Cap-

MATE M'KAY OF THE T. F. OAKES. tain Porter sternly told them he was master of the ship and proposed to remain so. He then ordered those who were willing to work to step to the port side of the deck. Only four of them obeyed, and the 18 who refused were placed under arrest. There were not manacles enough on the vessel for all of them nor room enough in the lazarettes, so some of them were tied with ropes and confined in the blubber room.

Captain Porter told the consul he considered Hendryk insane, and that he would prefer charges only against him and the five ringleaders. He thought he could manage the rest of the crew if these "sea lawyers" were removed from the vessel. Hendryk was sent to an asylum, but in a day or two confessed that he was only shamming in- give none away.'

sanity, and then he was held for trial and ordered back to San Francisco with the others. They will be tried for mutiny on the return of the Bayhis from her cruise next winter.

The ship T. F. Oakes, Captain Reed, sailed from New York on Aug. 20 last and spent 195 days in making the passage to San Francisco. Besides being long, the voyage was very eventful. One of the men, a green hand lost his sife by falling from a green hand, lost his life by falling from aloft, where he was ordered to go by Mate McKay to do work that should have been intrusted to none but an able seaman. The stormy weather made the work very hard rounding the cape, and the brutality of Mate McKay made the life of the sailors anything but happy. He and the men were at loggerheads from the time of sailing till he was relieved from duty, but he seems to have selected the ship's cook, A. T. Peyton, as the special butt of his dislike. On Jan. 12 McKay went to the galley and got into a dispute with the cook, which ended in the mate's throwing a small paint keg at Peyton's head, severely lacerating his scalp.

The captain noticed the blood and called the mate to account, when the latter became mutinous and was put in irons.

It was on Oct. 18 that Scaman Charles Cook was killed. He fell from the main royal yard to the deck, a distance of over 150 feet. Cook was only 23 years of age, and it was his first trip to sea. He was buried at sea a few hours later. McKay admitted that the main royal yard was a rather dangerous place to send a green hand, but said the work had to be done, and Cook was supposed to be able to do it. McKay is also accused of tricing men up by their thumbs, kicking them and various other brufal acts. He will be tried in San Fran-

On the night of Jan. 16 of the present year the bark Lady Lampson was wrecked on a coral reef in the Pacific. The vessel seemed likely to go to pieces quickly, and it was decided to abandon her at once. Accordingly the crew took to the boats, of which there were but two. Of one Captain John Pederson took charge, and in it were his wife, one of his mates, two sailors and a cabin boy. The other boat was placed under the care of First Mate Muller and carried four members of the bark's crew. The boats were but poorly provisioned when they first left the wreck, and in their haste the men had filled the casks with foul water, which had been kept for scrubbing purposes. After nine days of drifting about together, vainly trying to make headway with the oars, the captain decided to turn back to the reef in the hope of finding that the Lady Lampson had held together or that he might at least find enough material among the wreckage to make masts and sails for the boats, which were without either. The wreck was reached, and the bark found to be in such good condition that it was possible to spend three days on her making preparations for the long cruise in small boats that was before them. Before their preparations were properly completed, however, the vessel gave signs of breaking up, and the unfortunates were compelled to leave. Though they were in better fix than on the first occasion, their plight was far from comfortable. The sufferings of the captain's wife and Willie Weedon, the cabin boy, were especially severe, for besides being less able to stand the extraordinary hardships Second Mate Brown, who was evidently insane, kept suggesting to them the most horrible ideas of what was likely to be their fate, and even went so far as to tell the boy he would have to be killed and eaten.

MATE BROWN AND WILLIE WEEDON. The boats kept together for three days rying to make Palmyra island, but on the third night a storm came on, and the captain and mate agreed that it was best to separate and try independently to reach Honolulu. Seventeen days were spent by those in the captain's boat in making the 1,600 miles necessary to reach their haven, but the boat in charge of the mate was picked up after a few days by the schooner Martha W. Tufts on her voyage from Sanoa to the United States.

Of the horrors of those 17 days no pen could give an adequate idea. Sometimes it was stormy, and there was danger of the boat capsizing. Other days were extremely hot, and there was nothing to keep off the rays of the blistering sun. Sleep was impossible day or night. Food and water the allowance was necessarily small. When they finally reached Honolulu, they all appeared to have aged 20 years in these long, weary days, and they had hardly recovered themselves when finally landed safely on American soil. SAM PURVIS.

How He Revenged Himself. Nearly 20 years ago Miss Sarah Young and Samuel D. Perkins of Eldredsville, Pa., eloped and were married. Miss Young was engaged to James W. Horton, a farmer's son, who seemed to take the jilting quietly enough, merely remarking that the woman would regret her course before she died. In 1890 Perkins died, and his widow and daughter, a young woman of 18, moved back to Eldredsville. Horton was still a bachelor and about a year ago married the woman who had jilted him. Last September he and his stepdaughter started for a camp meeting, which they never reached, and did not return. They had eloped. Mrs. Horton died three weeks later. Nothing was heard of the runaway pair until quite recently, when the daughter wrote asking a neighbor for news of her mother. A few days later the dead body of the young woman was found in a mill pond at East Wharton. A note in her pocket said: "Dear mamma's dead, dead, dead! And I'm not fit to live! I killed her!"

A Woman Moonshiner. A woman moonshiner, Mrs. Malinda Turner, was recently arrested in Georgia and sent to jail in default of a $300 bond. To a reporter Mrs. Turner said: "Don't keer w'er go ter jail er not. Look like ter me folks won't let yer 'lone long nough ter get off them doublins. During the siege of Vicksburg, an incident occurred which was a source of amusement at the time. An important artillery position had been assigned to a battery commanded by Maj. Schwartz, a German, attached to Gen. Grant's ommand. Late in the day Grant was in his tent receiving dispatches from the front, a German orderly made his appearance, earnestly inquiring for "Zhinneral Grant." After much parley his hearers, being convinced that his business with the general was important, admitted him to the latter's tent, where he made the announcement: "Schwartz' bathery ish took!" "Well," said the general, calmly, "did you spike the guns?' "What!" shrieked the little German

Gentlemen:—It gives me pleasure to speak a word of praise for your Tablets.

My son was strongly addicted to the use of liquor, and through a friend, I was led to try your Tablets. He was a heavy and constant drinker, but after using your Tablets but three days he quit drinking, and will not touch liquor of any, kind. I have waited our months before writing you, in order to know the cure was permanent.

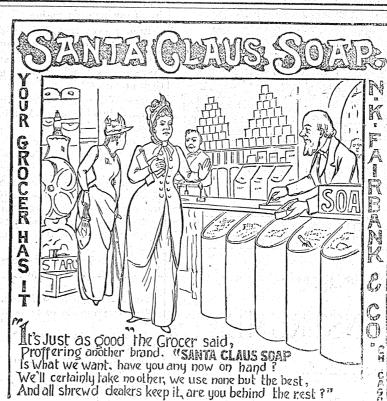

Yours truly

THE OHIO CHEMICAL Co:

DEAR SIR:—I have been using your cure for tobacco habit, and found it would do what you claimed for it. I used ten cents worth of the strongest chewing tobacco a day, and from one to five cigars; or I would smoke from ten to forty pipes of tobacco. Have chewed and smoked for twenty-five years, and two packages of your Tablets cured me so I have no desire for it.

You'd better go," I said. "I've had enough of it. Take your turn now. You know enough about it, and anything you don't know she'll soon tell you.

"Got a tongue?"

"A tongue? Oh, Lord!" "Hang it all, Smithers," I cried, "it's too bad to clap the virage on my shoulders.

"Can't help it, dear boy. You must take your share of the sweets as well as the bitters." "Sweets"

"To be sure. There, I cannot leave these deeds, and she'll only grow furious if you keep her waiting. Go and smooth the angel over." "But-"

"Look here; what are you grumbling at? Lovely woman in trouble; where's your chivalry? There, go on. You do. know all about the case, for I told you. Now then; cut!"

I growled, but rose to go into our private room where we saw clients. tightening myself up for my interview with the strong-minded virago, who would, I felt sure, threaten me with her great gingham umbrella and use a small Gladstone bagful of papers as a shield.

The next minute I was face to face with a fashionably-dressed, most graceful looking little body, who rose from her chair and then slowly subsided, leaning back, and I saw the flash of her eyes through a most coquettish In a sweet, clear, silvery voice, and with the most perfect aplomb, she said gently, as I hugged myself in the belief that my partner had made a mis-

"I was waiting to see Mr. Smithers."
"I-er-that is," I said, hurriedly, as a strange longing came over me to see that veil raised, and learn whether the face fitted the sweet voice, which put me in mind of Ellen Terry, Amy Fawsitt and Lydia Foote, "Mr. Smithers is particularly engaged, and he asked me to see you.'

A tiny foot-no, you could not if you were young and manly call it that. You were sure to think of the word "tootsicum" and of "five-headed baby soles, in presence of such a revelation -was jerked from beneath the folds of the rich robe in the most delicate of French bottines and then darted back again like one of the poet's mice; but the lady's next words were gentle, appealing and ringing as she said-almost

The lady sighed. "Will he be long?"

"Many hours, I am afraid," I said, eagerly; "but, of course, I am fully in his confidence, and you may trust me

For one side of the veil was unfastened and the other side refused to come while with my pulses going on in a most unprofessional way I had hard work to keep my tongue from saying: "Can I help you?" and rising to extract the hairpin which-small blame to itrefused to leave the delicious auburn tangle in which it clung.
"That's it," she said, with a sigh, as with her eyes looking through me she laid the veil upon the table, and just then I became aware of a sweet fragrance wafted through our dingy Lincoln's inn room. "But this is not the woman Smithers thought," I said to myself. Then I was puzzled.

"You, of course, know all about my unhappy case?" she murmured, with a soft sigh which seemed to waft the fragrance nearer to where I sat drinking it in greedily.

"Oh yes!" I replied, hastily, telling a legal lie.

"The Honorable Mrs. Amos?" she continued inquiringly, and as if I had not spoken. "It is she," I thought to myself; and I gazed at her wonderingly, while her lips curved slightly, and two of the prettiest dimples I ever saw out of a baby's face appeared in her cheeks.

"Yes," I said, striving hard to pull myself together, "I know your case by

"Ah, Mr. - Mr. -" "Small," I said, hastily.

"Mr. Small, I am a most unhappy woman."

There was so much appealing pathos in that voice that once more I was thrilled, and as manly bachelor wished to do battle with the masculine fiend who could behave ill to such an angel in fashionable costume as this. Then I literally jumped in my surprise, for she suddenly struck the table as hard as she could with her left hand, her eyes flashed, so did her pearly teeth, and a peculiarly vindictive look spread dimple away, as she cried loudly: "Mr. Small, he's a beast!" "My dear madam!" I faltered.

"He is! A vile, malignant, cruel torturing, cunning, cowardly, hateful beast, and- There, if I haven't split

"Is it some horrid dream?" I asked myself, as I gazed at the beautiful fairy and listened to her words, not with pleasure now, though the voice was soft and silvery still.

"You know how we were separated. Mr. Small," she continued, excitedly; "that is if it be a separation for a cowardly wretch of a man to forsake his home and wife. The wretch! What do you think he said?"
"I-er--really--"

"That, as we couldn't, as young married folks, agree, we would divide the house-he would take the outside and give me the in. And HE DID!" 'How cruel!" I said.

"Yes, Mr. Small; and, of course, I was not going to sit down and be treated like that. I hunted him everywhere, all through the continent, Greece, Egypt, back home, then to New York. I never gave him a mo-

"But, my dear madam," I said, as she beamed and sat gazing before her, beautiful and thoughtful, a most adorable woman when she was still; "you won your case-for the restitution of conjugal rights. Hon. Reginald Amos, by the judge's order, was forced to take you home. Surely, after the mutual screness consequent upon the unhappy division has passed away, the love of-excuse me, I am speaking legally and as I may say in loco parentis -two highly-born, handsome and refined people must return. Hon. Reginald cannot be blind to the personal charms-pray excuse me again-of the lady who bears his name. He-er-is,

I suppose, a little-er-hot tempered?" "He's a nasty, virulent, nagging, cold, sarcastic wretch, and I've come here to-day for Mr. Smithers to take immediate proceedings against the villian for his cruel treatment.

"Surely," I cried, indignantly, "he has not lowered himself by raising his hand against you?" "No. I wish he would: I'd forgive him that. He won't." "Really, my dear madam!" "Now listen to me, Mr. Small. As you know, the judge's order was made for him to take me home.'

"And as soon as it was all over, and we had left the court, what do you think he did?" "Went away-America-the Cape-hunting?" "No," she said, with her pretty lips tightened over her pearly teeth, "and I've never given him any cause. It isn't as if there was any mamma-inlaw to make things uncomfortable. But what do you think he did?"

I made a deprecatory gesture to show my ignorance.

"He stood there, outside the court, smiling, offered his arm, and led me to the carriage." "Come now, my dear madam," I cried; "the beginning of a most charming reconciliation." "Was it?" she said, dryly. "Wait a bit. He handed me into the carriage." "And went away?"

"No; he jumped in, and said: 'Home!' " "Quite right."

"Of course," she continued, "and I smiled at him as I sank back in the corner of the carriage. I am telling you because one speaks plainly to one's medical and legal advisers.' I bowed.

"Then he sank back in his corner of the carriage, and smiled nicely at me, and he did look handsome, Mr. Small. It was as if we had just come from the church once more instead of from that hateful court: and as soon as we reached one of the retired streets, as he would not take any notice of my ungloved hand which I had placed on the seat between us where he could see it, I threw myself upon his breast."

"Very naturally," I said. "You are his wife!" "And what do you think the wretch said?"

Again I made a deprecatory gesture. "Oh, he made my blood boil again," she said, with a shiver of resentment "'Don't do that, Petals,' he cried, pushing me away—Petals was my pet name, you know. He called me that, he said, because I was so blooming— 'Don't do that,' he cried, 'this is a clean shirt, and I don't want it crumpled. We've just been washing all our dirty linen in public; now let's keep it clean.'

"Horrible!" I ejaculated.

"Yes; and that's a specimen of his conduct ever since. He was obliged to take me home, and he has done so, and now he is trying everything he can do to make me sue for a divorce. But I won't. I'll have my rights. Oh! it's horrible. He will not get angry. He smiles at me before the servants, and calls me darling and dear, and goes out to dimner with me, and all our friends think we are quite reconciled; and all the time we are not reconciled a bit." "But does he ill-use you?" I said, as she waited for me to speak. servants and our friends. When we are alone he is nothing else but a cold smiling stone. He never utters a word unless I speak first; and no matter what I say to him he only smiles. If I am Bucksaw.

"I have given him time, and I can read him like a book; it's all his nasty, eruel, torturing, sarcastic way. He hasn't said so, but he says it with his eyes: 'Well, the judge has made his order, and I've taken you home, and I hope you are happy.' Ugh! I could kill him!"

"A most painful and peculiar affair," I said. "But I might suggest, my dear madam, that this is not a case for legal advice; you will excuse mo?"

"Anything, if you will only make me happy once again."

"My dear madam, the secret is in your own hands. Youth, beauty, a voice that would tame the savage beast -I beg pardon-savage breast.'

"Nothing, madam," I said, firmly. We deal with the laws of the British empire, and the judge has gone as far as he can; the rest remains with you.

Honorable Mrs. Amos rose, seated herself again, and tore off the damaged glove, skinning it off one might say, and then operating upon the other and throwing the pair towards the wastepaper basket before taking a new pair out of her tiny reticule bag, and putting them on.

I watched the operation in silence, and then saw her beautiful little fingers, in their new skin, cover the lovethe ends behind a pair of the most beautiful pinky shelly ears I ever saw.

and as I bowed her out and held the door open, I felt small-very small indeed-and I began to think that perhaps after all Honorable Reginald Amos had some excuse.

"Well, what do you think of the demon?" said my partner, entering. "What a temper!" I said.

"Temper? My dear boy, if there isn't a divorce there we shall hear some day of the Hon. Reggy finishing himself with a cup of cold poison." "If she has not given it to him her self." "Which she will not do," said Smithers. "And there cannot be a divorce there, for Amos is a perfectly honorable gentleman, and the lady loves him

-in her way." "And what a way!" I said. "Yes. One of the problems of life."

"Well, what's to be done?" "Humph! Can't say. Yes, I can: wait. The human body is entirely renewed in seven years. Perhaps the human mental organization shares in the change, and then she'll be all

"And nature helping her. Why, she ought to have been labeled dangerous. But it will all come right." It did, for I met them one day in Kensington gardens, where I was walking and smoking a cigar with Smithers.

"Hullo!" he whispered, "that's Honorable Reginald Amos and his lady." It was that fated pair, and I recalled the lady's words about her husband smiling; but she was smiling, too, as they both stooped to lead between them a tiny morsel, beautiful as the mother by its side, and this weakly strong little creature was liking them both with its hands.

A Strength-Giving Drug. Much has been heard of late of drugs, leaves of plants, etc., with the property of conferring upon mankind the power to withstand fatigue. A pastil which is said to take the place of food and drink was lately tested on a company of Roumanian soldiers who completed a march of seventy five miles in twenty-seven hours, and whose sole food during that time was in the form of these pastils. First, each man had a pastil every hour, and later on three every hour; at the same time the pastils dissolved in a small quantity of water were supplied to the horses which accompanied the troops. At the conclusion of the march both men and officers "Horribly! All this is before the declared that they felt no fatigue whatever, and spoke highly of the sustaining powers of the new preparation. PRESIDENTIAL PLUMS.

The President Basily Engaged in Filling the Offices.

The nominations sent in Tuesday were almost entirely confined to diplomatic positions. Following is the list: James O. Broadhead, of Missouri, minister to Switzerland; Bartlett Tripp, of South Dakota, minister to Austria-Hungary; Aben Alexander, of North Carolina, minister to Greece, Roumania and Servia. Consuls-James E. Neal, of Ohio, at Liverpool; James M. Dobbs, of Georgia, at Valparaiso; Q. O. Eckford, of Mis-sissippi, at Kingston, Jamaica; David M. Burke, of New York, at Pernambuco; Edgar Whidden, of Maine, at St. Stephen N. B.; Henry F. Merritt, of Illinois, at Barmen; Asa D. Dickinson, of New York, at Nottingham; Benjamin Lenthier, of Massachusetts, at Sherbrooke.

The men who were given public office Wednesday, so far as the president could do it were: James S. Ewing, of Illinois, minister to Belgium; Thomas T. Crittenden, of Missouri, consul general at the City of Mexico; Louis C. Hughes, zona, governor of Arizona; William T. Thornton, of New Mexico, governor of New Mexico; William M. Maize, of Obio, surveyer of customs for the port of Celumbus, O.

Ewing is the law partner and cousin of Vice President Stevenson; Crittenden is ex-governor of Missouri, and the man who hunted Jesse James to his death.

The long agony as to who would succeed General Raum as pension commissioner was relieved Thursday by the appointment of Judge William Lochren, of Minnesota, to that position. Other nominations were Hannis Taylor, of Alabama. minister to Spain.Postmasters—Frank L. Bills, Urbana Ill.; Thomas B. Powell, Vienna, Ills.; Clarence M. Hawkins, Marion, Ind.: Royal E. Purcell, Vincennes, Ind. Lochren' name was received with general satisfaction. He is a jurist of the first order and a veteran with a distinguished record. He was one of the first to enlist and abandoned a lucrative practice to do so.

The president Friday sent the following nominations to the senate: Caleb W. West, of Utah, governor of Utah; Dominick I. Murphy, of Washington, first deputy commissioner of pensions; Ambrose W. Lyman, of Montana, collector of interna revenue for the district of Montana; David G. Browne, of Montana, collector of customs for the district of Montana and Idaho in the state of Montana. West was governor of Utah during Cleveland's last ad mistration, so this is an exception to the "ex" rule. He was a good officer, and an ex-Confederate.

ANOTHER STRIKE AT THE FAIR Union Labor Will Probably Carry Ou

Its Full Programme. CHICAGO, April 10.—The union workmen of all branches at the fair are said to be determined to carry out their war against non-union men, even to the extent of stop ping the work at the fair grounds, if they can do so. The report is that today, or at any rate not later than Wednesday, they will quit work to a man unless the fair directory agrees to abrogate the agreement made at the beginning of the work and proscribe non-union men entirely. M nagers Determined to Fight.

It is also the report on good authority that the managers will fight the move and insist on the carpenters keeping their agreement; that if the strike takes place it will make no difference; that the man agers have anticipated its effect, as they have been looking for it for weeks: that there is nothing to do at the fair that can not be done by anybody who can handle a saw and hammer and that skilled labor is no longer necessary.

Therefore the managers will replace the strikers with unskilled men, who can do the work required as well as the others. "He must be a cold, smiling stone," I This is so far as the carpenters are conworkmen President Higinbotham says a contract is a contract, and that the conces sion will not be even considered, not if it should result in opening the fair before the work is complete.

> Liquor on Wisconsin Fair Grounds. MADISON, April 10-The senate has refused to adopt the report of committee postponing indefinitely the bill prohibiting the sale of liquors on fair grounds whose owners receive state aid. After the report had been voted down-136 to 18-the bill was ordered to third reading. The assembly passed the bill appropriating $100,000 the World's fair. The senate also passed the bili providing for the appointment by the governor of a commission to investigate the Torrens or Australian system of land title. The assembly bill for the establishment of an institution for the feeble minded was concurred in with but few dissenting votes.

> The Choctaw Militia the Aggressor. Washington, April 10.-Secretary Hoke Smith has received a detailed report from Agent Bennett, of the Union agency, on the present troubles between the factions of the Choctaw nation. The agent declares the militia at fault from the beginning and denounces them in vigorous terms. The secretary has asked that troops be sent to the scene at once.

> Another Shell Collapses at Chicago. CHICAGO, April 8.—Another big building n the World's fair district collapsed with surprising suddenness yesterday. It is what is known as the Panorama building, just outside the exposition grounds. A gale of wind struck it and it is no more. Nobody hurt. Recent Decisions Denounced.

NEW YORK, April 10.—At meetings held here Saturday and last night Gomp ers and others made speeches denouncing the recent decisions of Judges Ricks, Taft and Billings.

A Million Friends.

A friend in need is a friend indeed, and less than one million people have found ust such a thing in Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds.—If you have never used this great Cough Medicine, one trial will convince you that it has wonderful curative powers in all diseases of Throat, Chest and lungs. Each bottle is guaranteed to do all that is claimed or money will be refunded. Trial bottles free at Fritz's drugstore. Large bottles 50c. and $1.00.

Many do know and all should know the nerits of Brant's Balsam for Coughs, Colds, Asthma, all Throat and Lung troubles, which may be forerunners of Consumption. The cost of knowing its value is so slight, (large 25 and 50 cent bottles), you will be wise to test it, for its prompt use may save life. Mothers should know its value for spasmodic or Membraneous Croup, which need quick attention or the child may die. It relaxes the contracted muscles or loosens the false membrane, rausing the child to throw it off, giving quick relief. Sold by
