Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Memelo, of Pennsylvania, having taken up their abode in Cass City, and occupy rooms over the Exchange Bank.

Lulu M. Gilchrist has the thanks of the ENTERPRISE force for a basket of fine and very palatable plums, which were left at the office on Tuesday last.

Rev. Sam Bettes met with a serious accident at Caseville last Saturday evening. In alighting from a train he slipped and fell, receiving severe injuries to his back and spine, his legs being partially paralyzed.

An exchange recommends that when you buy a lamp chimney, to put it in a vessel of cold water, set it on the stove and boil it. You can never break the chimney unless you throw a flat iron at it and it won't break even then if you miss it.

J. F. Hendrick announces in a new advertisement that he will occupy his new brick store next week, where he will be pleased to meet his many customers and friends. A full force is engaged on the building this week, pushing it to completion.

N. W. Bridges, formerly of Novesta, but now of Washington, D. C., visited with friends in this vicinity last week and was a pleasant caller at the ENTERPRISE sanctum.

Master Dick Landon is visiting with friends at Oxford. Found—In Cass City, a folding key. Call at this office.

H. H. Chatter, of Flushing, was in town Monday, on business. Miss Eliza Wright is visiting her sister, Mrs. Somerville, in Holbrook.

Florence Clark is visiting her friend, Miss Dottie Leonard, at Bad Axe, this week. Jane McKenzie returned last Friday from a visit with relatives at Sanilac Center.

Winnie McClinton accompanied her cousin, Eloda Ferguson, to her home at Pt. Huron on Saturday last, for a week's visit. Misses Spurgeon and McConky of Cass City visited Miss Mamie Dredge on Tuesday and Wednesday.

These hard times one dollar saved is about two dollars made. Peruse our advertising column carefully and post yourself as the place to go to get the best goods the cheapest. Deal with live men.

G. Porter, of Pontiac, has been promoted to conductor on one of the passenger trains on the P. O. & N. Mr. Porter is a genial fellow and has the congratulations of his many friends along the line.

Alex. Fleming, living two miles east and one-half mile south of Grant Centre, will have an auction sale of stock and implements on his farm on Thursday, Sept. 6, at 1 o'clock p. m.

An Iowa youth smoked a thousand dozen of a popular brand of cigarettes and sent the empty boxes to the manufacturer, having been told he would receive a handsome present in return.

The latter part of last week Wm. Wallace, of this place, was arraigned before Justice Winegar on the charge of assault and battery, the charge being preferred by his wife. He pled not guilty and the trial was set for Tuesday.

An exchange says under the new game law, book agents may be killed from August 1 to October 1; scandal poets from March 1 to July 1; spring mongers from January 1 to December 31, inclusive; umbrella borrowers from February 1 to May 1.

E. L. Robinson, V. S., has exchanged his residence, barns and lots at the corner of Pine and Leach streets to D. Freeman, for his 80 acre farm ten miles north of Cass City.

For some time past the twenty-year-old son of B. F. Parker, a farmer living ten miles north of Cass City, has been seriously troubled with enlargement of the head. His father took him to two physicians, one living at Bad Axe, but they both refused to operate.

The ENTERPRISE has secured a live correspondent at Caro, who will hereafter furnish all the important county seat news each week, including circuit and probate court proceedings, real estate transfers and marriage licenses.

Elias McKim smiles a big smile—it's a girl. Mrs. S. Jamison is visiting relatives in Lapeer this week.

Miss Mary Reid, of Carberry, Manitoba, is at present visiting friends in town. Mr. Munson and daughter, Mrs. C. Hill, of Toledo, Ohio, are visiting Mrs. P. Hern.

Miss Mary Zavitz, of Almont, is visiting at her uncle and aunt's, Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Wood, this week. Mrs. W. J. Cloakoy and Miss Lucy Scott visited at Caro on Saturday last.

The Orange picnic held in Grant township yesterday is reported as being well attended and very enjoyable. The lodge at this place was well represented there.

Eaton Rapids has just passed a law fining a person $2 for every time he swears within the city limits. Were such a law in force in Cass City we have in mind a couple of men who, were they talking on the weather or any other subject for example, would fare as follows: "This is the $2, $2 hottest weather I ever saw $2, $2 if it aint. I don't see what in $2 they want it so $2 $2 hot or $2, $2 if I do."

Mrs. M. E. Emmett, of Howell, candidate for Great Finance Keeper of the L. O. T. M. which meets in annual review at Grand Rapids, September 13 to 15, is very highly commended for that position by the Howell papers.

We notice touching obituaries in the Lansing Journal and New Carlisle Gazette, on the death of Prof. C. F. Rittiger. The Gazette, which is published at the old home of the deceased, concludes its article thusly: "His career is a shining example to the youths of our community. His untimely death is inexpressibly sad. He was emphatically a self-made man. In him the words of Goethe truly are exemplified, 'Talent is developed in solitude, but character is the stream of life.'"

Oxford must be a pretty bad town, judging from the following item found in the Globe at that place: "Everything goes now in this corporation. Loud mouthed, obscene and horribly profane language is winked at and called good. Arrests are not wanted nor ordered by the populace, or offenders. It is a standoff between gnawing grasshoppers by day and howling bipeds by night, with honors decidedly in favor of the hoppers. The city dads better get a move on and see where they are at."

J. D. Crosby will soon use the entire lower floor of his building as double stores. The part now occupied by J. F. Hendrick as a jewelry store—to be vacated next week—will be filled with a fresh and complete stock of clothing and everything appertaining to that line. The two stores will be connected with a double, arched doorway, making it very convenient, both for proprietor and customers.

If there isn't a boys' ward in the county jail, one should be provided. At present there is a young lad confined in the jail awaiting trial at the September term of the circuit court. He is by no means a hardened criminal yet he is confined with others awaiting trial, who have grown old in the ways of wickedness.

J. F. Bolles, a Tennessee farmer, drew $1,000 from the bank a few days ago and hid it under the edge of the carpet. At midnight two masked men gained entrance into his house, covered Bolles and his wife with pistols, and demanded their money. Bolles refused to tell where it was. The robbers bound and gagged Colles and wife, and with a pair of pinchers began to pull his toe nails out. After suffering the most horrible agony Bolles disclosed the hiding place. The robbers scoured the money and skipped.—[Evening News.

Another excursion will be run over the P. O. & N., to Chicago and the World's Fair on Sept. 11th. Train leaves Cass City at 7:37 a. m. standard time. 9-1-2

Samuel Striffler is a World's Fair visitor. Mrs. J. Dorn, of Grand Rapids, is here on a visit to her sister, Mrs. Chas. Rohr.

Rev. Jas. MacArthur returned last week from a ten day's visit at the White City. Henry Stewart is in the vicinity of Fairgrove-to-day, attending to county drain matters.

Mr. and Mrs. Lane, of Millington, were visiting their daughter Mrs. P. Hern, last week. Up to yesterday of this week, A. G. Berney had shipped six carloads of wheat and one of oats.

The premium lists of the Tuscola, Huron & Sanilac Fair will be completed this week, and can be had by applying to Secretary Stewart.

Lost—At or near Cumber, ladies' gold watch. Finder will be liberally rewarded by leaving same at Mrs. Jos. Brown's, Cumber, or this office. F. A. Boomhower left on Wednesday for Grand Traverse county where he will resume teaching. He is one of the enterprising young men from Sheridan whose departure is regretted.

Pockets in ladies' dresses first appeared in England during the reign of Edward III. The time when pockets in ladies' dresses first disappeared is not known, but if you think they have not disappeared just endeavor to find one.—[Boston Transcript.

Edward Karr, proprietor of the Sheridan House at this place, and Miss Minnie Lamb, of Dakota, were united in marriage at the home of the bride in the above state the latter part of last week. Mr. and Mrs. Karr returned to Cass City on Wednesday.

The North Branch Gazette is of the opinion that the P. O. & N. Ry. would receive a better patronage if they would turn about and run their Sunday excursions to Detroit instead of Bay Port. The Gazette thinks the people would prefer Belle Isle for a change.

The band and a number of others from this place attended the Catholic Society's annual harvest festival at Gagetown yesterday. The weather was pleasant, the crowd orderly and all seemed to enjoy themselves. "Pus" Kenyon carried away most of the prizes offered in the athletic contests.

While the ENTERPRISE power press was throwing off copies of that paper at a rapid rate yesterday afternoon, Eli Travis stepped upon the frame of the press to oil the overhead shafting, when the projecting end of the rod which operates the feed guides caught his left heel and he was thrown to the floor with considerable force, striking upon his shoulders. Had the belt not slipped off of the overhead pulley when his heel caught it is hard to tell what the result might have been, but Eli was glad to escape with a spoiled shoe and a few bruises.

Rev. Sam Bettes, the St. Clair county evangelist, held a camp meeting at Brown City last week. He used arguments which gave the saloon keepers of the town offense. They determined to waylay him and give him a thrashing. Five of them met him on a back street and informed him that they were going to make mince meat of him. Rev. Sam had prepared for the meeting. He pulled two revolvers and pointing them at the men, said, "Run, or there will be five strange faces in h—l in two minutes." It is said the saloon keepers are running yet.—[Mayville Monitor.

Say, young man, there is one thing you can't do. You can't make a success of life unless you work, says an exchange. Better men than you have tried it and failed. You can't loaf around street corners, saloons, smoke cigars, tell foul stories or sponge on some one else without making a failure in life. You must learn a trade or get into some honest business; if you don't you will be a chronic loafer, despised by all, producing nothing, simply making yourself a burden to your parents or state. There is no place in the world for loafers. The ripe fruit is all at the top of the tree and you must climb if you would get it. If you wait for it to fall at your feet, you will never get it. Smarter men will jump up and pick it all. Move, do something, no matter how small, it will be a starter. Help yourself and others will help you. There is no royal path to success; toll, grit, energy, and endurance are the requisites. Wake up and see what you can do.

Another excursion will be run over the P. O. & N., to Chicago and the World's Fair on Sept. 11th. Train leaves Cass City at 7:37 a. m. standard time. 9-1-2

Our Neighbors.

Sneak thieves done Vassar last week. Look out for them. P. L. Varnum, of Vassar, lost twenty tons of hay by fire last week.

The P. O. & N. Ry. is putting in a new siding two mile north of Leonard. It is proposed to rebuild the large elevator which was recently burned at Vassar.

Chas. Schroder, Jr., of Minden, had two of his ribs broken last week by being thrown from a buggy. The editor of the Crosswell Democrat found an umbrella and is now trying to find the owner. Can't be that he is naturalized yet.

Eva H., a Sanilac Center trotting mare with a record somewhere in the twenties, was sold last week to G. M. Gaige, of Crosswell, for $1,200. The horse was formerly owned by R. B. Elliott.

The Bay Port Hotel has closed for the season. It is said that the management barely paid expenses this year. Plenty of people visited Bay Port but few of them, however, could agree with a seventy-five cent dinner.

A small hurricane went whirling by Lexington last week. The large barn on the farm of Geo. Smith was in the way and was unroofed. Quite a number of fruit trees on the same farm went along with the gust and took their roots with them.

Mark Razel, one of the largest dealers in general merchandise of Bad Axe has filed chattel mortgages of $8,000 upon his stock and the same amount upon his real estate in favor of his creditors. Little Mark began business in Bad Axe with a small amount of goods ten years ago. He has prospered steadily, has steadily increased his stock, and finding himself growing richer has bought real estate. It is well nigh impossible to loan money at the county seat and ruin engulphs the little man. Mr. Razel lived in Sebewaing many years ago.—[Sebewaing Blade.

Up at Postoria last spring the high-way commissioner and a married lady got by the ears and have been talking ever since, the man foolishly endeavoring to have the last word. Last week the lady came to the conclusion that he was talking too much, and changed her tactics. She took a new whip which she purchased for the purpose went out into the streets, and lashed him across the face, and only desisted when he threw her down and used her for an ottoman. She cried "enough!" and he arose from his seat. The next instant she was upon her feet and the whip was again in motion. The commissioner seized the whip and broke it, and then there was fighting at short range until spectators took the woman away.—[Free Press.

Their Annual Festival. The Seventh Annual Harvest Festival of the Catholic society of Sheridan township, Huron county, will be held at the Sheridan Hall on Wednesday, September 6, next. The usual program of games will be carried out, and a good string band will be in attendance to furnish music for those wishing to indulge in dancing. Refreshments will be served. All are invited. COMMITTEE.

“German Syrup”

Mr. Albert Hartley of Hudson, N. C., was taken with Pneumonia. His brother had just died from it. When he found his doctor could not rally him he took one bottle of German Syrup and came out sound and well. Mr. S. B. Gardner, Clerk with Druggist J. E. Barr, Aurora, Texas, prevented a bad attack of pneumonia by taking German Syrup in time. He was in the business and knew the danger. He used the great remedy—Bosch's German Syrup—for lung diseases.

THE RIVAL EDITORS.
T. Jefferson Peters was the primary cause of all the trouble and vexation. He it was, who bought up half of the marsh land beyond Boggyville, filled it in, cut it up and advertised it as “The most desirable site for suburban homes ever opened to the public.”

A happyton? Oh, yes; he formed the Happyton Land Improvement Company. Twenty gentlemen with more wealth than wisdom, furnished the capital, and T. Jefferson Peters furnished the brain. This was very kind of T. Jefferson. Another noble act of his was to let the other members hold all of the offices and sign all of the checks; then, if a crash should come, he could slip out uninjured. If not, of course he would share the profits. So, on all the maps and advertisements of Happyton, one reads the name of the Hon. A. B. C. Denton, whose check book was most often open for the benefit of the company.

Just when Happyton was beginning to grow, a seeming calamity befell it. Some unknown man quietly bought the other half of the marsh land and adopting the tactics of Mr. Peters, filled the surrounding country with alluring statements concerning the beauties and advantages of Joyville.

Then the other company sent out books telling the most wonderful things about Happyton. Illustrated by six views of the only finished house in the place. These views were taken from six different points, and made to look as much as possible like six houses.

The Joyville company then got up a similar book and enclosed free railroad passes to Joyville; and this was followed by the Happyton people sending dinner-checks in their book. So it went on. When a man arrived at Happyton, he was met at the station by a gilt agent and driven about the “town” in a handsome dogcart. The agent pointed out where “Mr. Jones of your city” was going to build, and employed all his power of word-painting to impress the stranger with the certainty of a brilliant future for Happyton.

Often, however, the stranger failed to be impressed with the airy pictures, and started for home; but he was always captured by the Joyville agent and told what a narrow escape he had made in not buying of these Happyton people, who are regular swindlers, my dear sir. And one who was dissatisfied with Joyville, usually bought land in Happyton.

In a year, thanks to well-worked pamphlets and opposition, both villages had grown to a very respectable size; but, sad to say, the emnity that once existed between the land improvement companies was now shared by the villages. When one buried a brick church the other enered and built a stone one. When one started a fire department the other started an academy. If you should ask a Happyton man the way to Joyville he would declare that he had never heard of the place; and a Joyville man would go five miles out of his way rather than drive through Happyton.

Nevertheless, the people of both villages kept a sharp watch on each other. One day the Happytonites were driven into a fever of anxiety and indignation by the news that their enemies were going to have a village paper. “They're mean enough to fill their little sheet with lies about us, too,” exclaimed the postmaster, and before night it was decided that Happyton also should have a paper and an advertisement of “an opening for an enterprising journalist,” was put in the city papers.

ble over a dirty little sheet of paper, with the Drum printed on it from muddly type, and wonder where it came from, we would say that it is a vile thing gotten out by a human wreck that calls himself an editor, that is allowed to exist in a nasty little place called Joyville, or something of the kind. No doubt it will prove satisfactory to the six or eight forsaken creatures who live in Joyville, as they are not used to anything better.

“It calls itself The Drum; this is very appropriate. In the first place a drum is always beaten; second, there is nothing in it but wind; third, it always makes the same noise, which does not mean anything, after all.”

This strife went on without change of tactics until the Drum intimated that without mentioning its other serious faults, the Drumstick lacked that spirit of enterprise possessed by the American press in general and the Drum in particular. It proceeded to say that the Drumstick never printed an account of anything until the event was worm-eaten, and that its name ought to be the Burr—for it contained nothing but chestnuts.

This put the Drumstick editor in a bad humor. He kicked the goat—a servant as was to be published all day. The next morning, however, he appeared at the office with a quiet smile on his lips, and a keen twinkle in his eyes. He called the two reporters aside, and had a long talk with them; after which all three wore smiles and twinkles. Lest the reader think it strange that so small a concern should employ two reporters, we should confess that they were not above helping the compositor make up a form, or even holding a lamp under the press when the cold weather made the “nk hard.”

On the following night, Mr. Kendrick, the magnate of Joyville, while walking from the postoffice to his home, fell headlong into the ditch by the sidepath. He was able to call for help, and soon an excited and sympathetic crowd had rescued him and carried him home.

While a Drum reporter was interviewing the injured gentleman, who was saying that it seemed to him as though he had tripped over a string tightly stretched across the path, the excitement was renewed by a boy running down the street crying: “Extree! Extree! Great accident in Joyville!”

The Drum man rushed from the house, bought a copy and found to his great dismay that the Drumstick had issued a full account of Mr. Kendrick's misfortune. Over to his office he ran and found his editor, a picture of despair, reading the extra.

“How in the blanket blank did it come out so quick?” he roared. “Here I was sneering at his lack of enterprise. If we don't hustle the Drum's beat for sure!”

STRUGGLE WITH A PANTHER.
Prof. Dyche's Hand-to-Hand Combat Course. That follow over there came near taking my life once.” said Prof. Dyche, the taxidermist of the Kansas exhibit to a Chicago Times man, pointing to a mounted panther, one of the products of his skill.

“The way of it was this: In '87 I was hunting with an Indian guide in the wilds of northern New Mexico. We generally kept pretty close together and almost always slept in the same tent. On the night in question, however, for some reason which I have forgotten, we thought best to sleep about a mile apart. At dusk the Indian helped me pitch my tent and departed with his rifle on his shoulder. I closed the tent as usual, fastening the opening by means of large canvas-covered buttons. About this time I noticed that the side directly opposite the door had been torn in some way during the day so that an aperture was made large enough for a man to crawl through. But I was too sleepy to mend the rent, and didn't feel worried over it anyhow.

“I spread my blankets, lay down, and was soon fast asleep. I always sleep soundly for a few hours, and am wakeful during the remainder of the night. To this habit I attribute the fact that I did not long ago become food for that animal's digestion. I awakened several times after midnight. Each time all was perfectly still, and I quickly dozed off again. But the last time I awoke, although no sound could be heard, I was immediately conscious of the presence in the tent of some other living thing than myself.

“I turned over to see in the dim light of the morning what it was that had startled me. At the same moment a heavy body lighted upon me. Yonder panther had crept stealthily in at the hole in the tent wall and had leaped upon my prostrate form. My turning, however, had caused him to overshoot his mark somewhat, and he thus came to rise upon my knees before he came to me again. Then we grappled. I held his throat with both hands, trying to keep him at arm's length and prevent him from rending my bosom with his sharp claws. It required all my strength to do this, and I saw plainly that I should soon give out and that the panther's great endurance would triumph. Unable to reach any weapon, I began to despair of saving my life.

“I shouted. But what good could shouting do with the Indian fully a mile away? With strength born of despair I struggled fiercely with the infuriated beast, who had by this time torn my shirt to tatters and inflicted several wounds on my chest and arms. I was being pushed down, and I thought that in a few moments more I should feel the panther's jaws on my throat.

“At this juncture a singular thing happened. I hung my long-barreled Colt's revolver on a nail driven in the center post of the tent. It was my custom to do this, for I considered that I should always have time to reach it there. But the suddenness of the panther's attack and the necessity of at once grappling with him had rendered it impossible for me to get my weapon. At last, however, I was pushed over, and as luck would have it I fell against the center pole, jarring it to such an extent that the pistol dropped to the ground. Exhausted and bleeding, I yet had strength enough to snatch it up. The next instant my assailant lay lifeless on my feet. If you measure him you will find that he is 8 feet 2 inches from nose to tip of tail.”

OLDER THAN HE LOOKED.
The Little Fellow was a Voter and Didn't Care Much for Toys. Most New Yorkers are familiar with the figure of the little newsboy who sits in a perambulator at the corner of Twenty-third street and Broadway. He is always there in rain or sunny weather, and rumor says that he has made quite a little fortune during the last fifteen years. The other day a kind-hearted old lady stopped to buy a paper of him, and as she did so, deposited in his lap a small toy dog. The little fellow looked it over with an amused contentance. He showed it to the next customer, saying: “Now, will you look at that? Some of them gives me rattles,” and he laughed gleefully.

“Well, I guess I'm older'n you be,” said the little fellow. “I was thirty-two last August, an' I've voted for three presidents.” And then for the young man looked still more astonished the newsboy added: “Ye see, ye can't always tell how old folks is by the size of 'em. I shan't get no bigger if I live to be a hundred. An' I suppose if I was that old some of the kind ladies would go on giving me gimcracks like this.” And he laughed again as he turned to attend to another customer.

THE ADVERTISING COLUMNS.
There's Lots of News in Them for the Well-Posted Man.

The advertising columns of a newspaper are among the most important; for no man really becomes acquainted even with the news of the day until he has thoroughly perused the advertisements.—Harper's Monthly.

Perhaps some men smile at this statement. Women will not. They all read the advertisements, and are both entertained and instructed by the praiseworthy habit. Many men also examine the advertising columns patiently and regularly, and in this way keep well informed of movements in business and financial circles. To the practiced eye a short advertisement often affords a wealth of suggestion: it is significant—a slow showing the direction of the wind. If a person advertises frequently for additional help, and another seldom or ever does, the reader easily infers which is the more prosperous.

We contend, however, says the Troy Press, that from a news standpoint the advertising columns are important, interesting, and instructive; they disclose the trend of the times with remarkable accuracy. The trained reader of current advertisements can tell without reading anything else whether things are booming or bursting; whether crops are heavy or light, and whether a community is stagnant or energetic.

We defy anyone who is not an incorrigible prevaricator to read the advertisements daily, fully and regularly every affirmation herein submitted. The experiment is worth making. It will quicken the dull mind to the incomparable utility of advertising; it will open up a wide, varied field of new information to a person who is not an habitual reader of advertisements.

Harper's Monthly is right. To be thoroughly posted men and women must read the advertisements. There is no escape from this conclusion.

Curing a Snake Bite.
The hand and arm were first thoroughly cleansed in a hot medicated wash and the place where the rattlesnake's fangs entered were lanced, so that the poisonous blood might escape. It was again washed clean with a thirty-three and one-third per cent. solution of camphorated phenic acid was injected in some twenty-five places in the hand and arm. The only remaining treatment was to keep the parts perfectly clean. Any one bitten by a rattler should immediately suck the wound and spit out the blood, then tie a handkerchief tightly above the wound and open it with a clean penknife and let it bleed. While this is done not a moment should be lost in getting to a surgeon. The snake may also be killed while you wait.

For Summer Cookery.
Royal Baking Powder will be found the greatest of helps. With least labor and trouble it makes bread, biscuit and cake of finest flavor, light, sweet, appetizing and assuredly digestible and wholesome.

FEMINITIES.
Finland has women builders. There are spots on the sun, and yet some people expect a 12-year-old boy to be perfect.

The latest in house-furnishing is glass curtains, formed of tiny bits of colored glass hooked together. “This is a fine truck company,” remarked Hurdup, disgustedly, when the paying teller refused to give him $10 on tick.

The wife of Mr. Vanklecker of Leeds, Canada, recently gave birth to four children, two girls and two boys, one of whom has three hands. Madame de Valsayre, a foreign champion of woman's rights, has started a crusade for the admission of feminine writers to the French academy.

“Biggs was feeling pretty gay when he went to the club last night. How did he make out?” “He didn't make out at all; they had to put him out.”

The lowest people are generally the first to lad fault with show or equipage. Thousands walk the earth today who would be sleeping in its bosom but for the timely use of Loew's Elixir.

For a mild cathartic and efficient tonic, use Baxter's Mandrake Bitters. Every bottle warranted. Be thou the first true merit to befriend; his praise is lost who waits till all commend.

The Modern Beauty Thrives on good food and sunshine, with plenty of exercise in the open air. Her form glows with health and her face blooms with its beauty. If her system needs the cleansing action of a laxative remedy, she uses the gentle and pleasant liquid laxative Syrup of Figs.

It is vain to trust in wrong; as much of evil so much of loss, is the formula of human history. Sixty-five Bushels Per Acre. This remarkable yield was reported to the John A. Salzer seed company, La Crosse, Wis., by Frank Floss of Iowa, on a field of Salzer's World's Fair Winter Wheat. Speaking of wheats, this new variety takes the cake. Several farmers who tried it during 1893 believe they can raise 100 bushels per acre. His northern growth wheat sorts, as also his grass mixtures, can be sown with success as late as Nov. 10. Salzer will send free a package of World's Fair Winter Wheat and his full catalogue if you will cut this out and send same to John A. Salzer Seed company, La Crosse, Wis.

What A Noted Physician Thinks of Swamp-Root. “GREATEST REMEDY OF THE CENTURY.” An Effective Cure for all Kidney, Liver and Bladder Diseases.

When I discovered that Swamp-Root was not a patent medicine, but the favorite prescription of an old and scientific physician with which he had treated successfully thousands of cases, my prejudices were disarmed and I began to prescribe Swamp-Root in my practice invariably with the most surprising results, curing many cases which I had considered hopeless. Whenever I find any one suffering with pain in the small of the back, a too copious flow or retention of urine indicating Kidney or Bladder disease, I invariably prescribe Swamp-Root and it never fails to give benefit to the patient, even in cases of Bright's Disease. I have also used it in repeated cases of chronic diarrhoea which

It has never failed to cure after other remedies had proved useless. For all Kidney, Bladder or Liver diseases I consider Swamp-Root a perfect specific, and the greatest remedy of this century.” Dr. J. C. Brown, M.D., Suspension Bridge, N. Y.

When to Stop Advertising.

An English trade journal once requested a number of its large advertisers to give their opinions concerning the best time to stop advertising, and the following replies were received:

When the population ceases to multiply and the generations that crowd on after you, stop coming on.

When you have convinced every body whose life will touch yours that you have better goods and lower prices than they can get anywhere else.

When you perceive it to be the rule that men who never advertise are outstripping their neighbors in the same line of business.

When men stop making fortunes right in your sight solely through the discreet use of the mighty agent.

When you can forget the words of the shrewdest and the most successful business men concerning the main cause of their prosperity.

When every man has become so thoroughly a creature of habit that he will certainly buy this year what he bought last year.

When younger and fresher houses in your line ceases starting up and using the newspaper in telling the people how much better they can do for them than you can.

When you would rather have your own way and fail than take advice and win.

When nobody else thinks it pays to advertise.

The following from the Buffalo Mercantile Review, a copy of which was handed us by Wm. Fairweather, may be read with profit, no doubt, by some of our farmer readers: A striking feature of the lamb trade today was the number of buck lambs on sale.

The buyers this year are more determined than ever to give the buck lambs the go by, or if they buy them at all to take them at low prices. Farmers who raise lambs may find out some day that it will pay to alter their lambs when young, and the only way to impress the fact on their minds is for buyers in the country to refuse to take them unless at a big discount. All things have an end it is hoped that there will be an end to the run of trashy, common lambs and sheep before long. If they cost anything in the country the buyers must soon tire of buying them and sending them to market to sell at such low prices as are the rule at present.

You can never have a really good complexion until the impurity is cleaned from your blood. What you need is a thorough course of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which is absolutely free from all harmful ingredients, and therefore perfectly safe.

A Contractor Advice.

Messrs. Dullman Bros.,—Gentlemen—I take great pleasure in testifying in behalf of Dullman's Great German Blood Liver, Stomach, and Kidney cure. I can say that I never took such medicine as that to cleanse the liver, stomach, and kidneys I was suffering for years with biliousness, indigestion, and loss appetite and sleep. One bottle did me more good than six months' other treatment, and feel it my duty to testify in its behalf, so others may try it and get cured. Yours truly, Warren E. Russell, contractor and builder, Flint Mich. Sold by T. H. Fritz.

Many do know and all should know the merits of Brant's Balsam for Coughs, Colds, Asthma, all Throat and Lung troubles, which may be forerunners of Consumption. The cost of knowing its value is so slight, (large 25 and 50 cent bottles), you will be wise to test it, for its prompt use may save life. Mothers should know its value for spasmodic or Membranous Croup, which need quick attention or the child may die. It relaxes the contracted muscles or loosens the false membrane, causing the child to throw it off, giving quick relief. Sold by T. H. Fritz.

The greatest worm destroyer on earth is Dullman's Great German Worm Lozengers, only 25 cents per box. For sale by T. H. Fritz's.

Mothers and Daughters

Over twelve years I was afflicted with a very serious female difficulty and for the last sixteen months was under treatment of the very best physicians that money could employ. Under their skillful treatment I gradually grew worse until they decided they could render me no permanent help. One of my friends persuaded me to try a bottle of Dullman's Great German Ureine Tonic, and after taking three bottles, can say I am in better health than I have been for twenty years and am now sixty years old, but feel no young as at thirty.—$1 a bottle.
