What makes a Beautiful Woman.
Elkhart, Ind., July 1st, 1891.
Dullman's Great German Medicine Co.: My daughter has been afflicted with a female trouble for over six years and I have paid out over $750 in vain trying to find relief for her. A lady friend advised her to secure a bottle of Dullman's Great German Female Uterine Tonic and she has been completely cured by it. We gave it a fair trial and the results were wonderful. We cannot recommend it too highly to all ladies who are afflicted.

JOHN SCHWABERER.

Peck's Bad Boy will be let loose on Monday evening next at the Caro Opera House. The funniest play ever written. It contains more mirth and melody in two hours than any ten plays combined. Don't fail to see the great grocery store.

Caught On The Fly.

Lots of auction sales. Is this Indian summer? Winter clubs are clubbing. J. D. Brooker made a business trip to Caro on Wednesday. H. C. Wales, of Elkton, was a caller in town on Saturday. Kezzie Moore, of Bad Axe, is visiting Florence Clark this week. Chas. Robinson, proprietor of the woolen mills, reports business as rushing. Drain Com. Stewart has been attending to business in Caro several days this week. Postmaster Seed and wife, and Mrs. A. A. McKenzie left on Monday for a visit at the World's Fair. Prepare for a cold snap. Landlord Farrar, of the Tennant House, is getting a very large pile of wood. Miss Jessie and Master Howard Deming have returned from their visit with grand-parents at Oxford. Mrs. Thomas Toohy, and sister, Miss Leonard, of Gagetown, visited friends in town Tuesday and Wednesday. Mina McIntyre was treated to a "surprise party" by a large number of her young friends on Monday evening. It was her birthday.

I. A. Fritz will represent Cass City Lodge of Odd Fellows at the Grand Lodge to be held at Lansing next week Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. Henry M. Marshall, presently living northeast of town, will soon move into the house between the forks of the Cass River—west of the "red bridge." It was stated in these columns last week that partridge and quail can now be shot. We make a correction. The season for those birds opens Nov. 1, and closed Dec. 15. Arthur Whitney and sister, of Port Sanilac, visited their uncle, A. G. Berney, the fore part of the week. The former, we understand, will return at an early date and enter the employ of Mr. Berney. Don't fail to see "Peck's Bad Boy" on Monday evening next at the opera house, Caro. New songs and dances and mirth-provoking situations. In act 1st will be represented the best grocery store scene ever produced on the stage. After people have been back from the World's Fair long enough to have a confused remembrance of what they saw, and a realizing idea of what they spent, they somehow don't appear so widely enthusiastic as they were. —[Caro Advertiser.

J. A. Keith, formerly one of the publishers of the Caro Jeffersonian, (now Democrat), but who a few years ago purchased the "Mt. Clemens Press," is meeting with splendid success. He has commenced the erection of a fine double brick block, part of which will be occupied as his newspaper office. Congratulations, J. A. Unless the farm animals are well nourished when young they will never be able to procure a good growth afterward with any profit. It is well to let them run at large, thereby encouraging growth of bone and muscle, and strengthening the constitution, but do not leave them to an existence from bare pastures. —[Farmers Guide.

The marriage of Homer C. Weydemeyer, formerly of this place but now of Pontiac, to Miss Flora McLean, an estimable young lady of that place, took place on Tuesday last, Rev. Jerome officiating. The marriage took place at the home of the bride, and was quietly solemnized. The groom has the congratulations and best wishes of his many friends here. Mr. and Mrs. Weydemeyer will spend their honeymoon at the World's Fair.

Mrs. James Montague, sister of R. G. Orr, Mrs. A. Walsley and the late Mrs. H. Seed, of this place, died at her home in Caro on Wednesday afternoon, after a long illness. The funeral will be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Cass City Presbyterian Church, and the remains will be interred in the Elkland cemetery. Mrs. Montague spent a great portion of her girlhood days in Cass City, and her many old friends will be grieved to learn of her death. She was an estimable woman.

Fine weather again. Is it to be an open or shut winter? Send your orders for tax receipts to the ENTERPRISE office. Don Wales has discontinued working at Elias Killins' store. Supervisor Landon is attending the meeting of the Board of Supervisors at Caro this week. The death of Mrs. Fred Orr, of Caro, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar O'Kelley, of this place, occurred on Wednesday. According to the report of Statistician Robinson, of the Department of Agriculture, the only good crop, harvested in Tuscola county this season was hay. S. Ostrander, of Wickware, passed through town yesterday on his way home from North Branch, where he has been soliciting orders for fruit trees. The excursion over the P. O. & N. to Detroit on Thursday of last week was well patronized. The P. O. & N. can keep things moving and bring out the crowds. There should be a bounty offered on dogs' heads, judging from the number of sheep reported killed by dogs lately. But then dogs, those indispensable animals, must be given a chance. Duggan Bros. finished burning another kiln of brick yesterday. This will be the last brick manufactured this season. Duggan Bros. have turned out a large amount of brick of good quality this year. A. Frutchey has been in attendance at the Sand Beach races this week, with his pacing horses, Barney C. and Milo. In Wednesday races Barney C. won third money in the 2:20 trot or pace, and Milo second money in the 2:34 trot or pace. Chas. Ale has sufficiently recovered from his recent severe illness to leave for Saginaw the fore part of the week. He has been tendered a good book-keeping position at that place, which he contemplates accepting as soon as health will permit. Jerry Simpson will address the students at Ann Arbor November 4. Unostentatious Jerry, the people's sockless champion, only asks a $100 bill for it. He will find himself trotting in the detested millionaire class very soon if he is not careful. —[Journal.

Owing to lateness of the season and delay in getting the necessary amount of brick only the first story of the new Hitchcock building will be finished this year. Next spring and summer will witness its completion and the erection of another building. Geo. Davenport, who has lived on a farm northwest of town for a number of years, will move to town and occupy the Metcalf house at the corner of Main and Sherman streets. Mr. Davenport contemplates purchasing the property from the owner, H. S. Wickware. A number of the young ladies of this place met with Miss Pinney on Monday evening last and organized a literary and amusement society, to be known as the "Club of Clubs." Meetings will be held on Monday evening of each week. The officers are as follows: President, Miss Pinney; Vice-Pres., Miss Howe; Secretary, Miss Eva Wickware; Treasurer, Miss McKenzie. The Saginaw board of trade has appropriated $500 to pay one-half the expense of testing for coal in the vicinity of Saginaw, the other half of the expense to be paid by private parties. An experienced coal digger from Ohio has been secured, and the test holes will be put down at once at Foster's station, on the line of the Cincinnati, Saginaw and Mackinaw railroad, eight miles south of the city. Probably the most original and forceful plea for silver that has been made in this exciting campaign, where so much has been said, is advanced in the October Review of Reviews by Edward B. Howell. By means of carefully prepared charts showing the amount of silver and gold, of cereals and cotton and other staple products he aims to show that the production of silver keeps approximate pace with the production of cereal crops. Furthermore his evidence goes to show that while silver does vary about as the goods which we buy with it, gold does not keep pace with them. In other words, Mr. Howell's very interesting arguments would lead to the conviction that we should be talking of a $1.50 gold dollar instead of a $0.60 silver dollar. While put forward in a very concise and unpretentious manner, the charts which this young Western political economist has prepared, form a very valuable addition to the literature of the much-vexed currency question.

Weddings are numerous. The merry-go-round has been housed for the winter. It's Pingreously uncertain who the next Mayor of Detroit will be. It is estimated that 150,000 people were landed in Chicago last Saturday. The railroads were almost "swamped." This is the time of the year when fires are apt to break out. Of course the fire apparatus is already for action? Edwin Eno has about completed the addition to house on his farm one-half mile west and one-half mile south of town. Little Ora McKim, while on her way to school last Monday, and when passing the street north of the creamery building, was knocked down by a horse which Herman McPhail was riding on a gallop. She escaped much better than might be expected considering the nature of the accident, receiving only two or three not dangerous cuts about the head and shoulders. Dr. McLean was called to attend the child. Agents are now taking orders for a book just issued called the "History of the World's Fair." A hasty inspection of the book is enough to satisfy us that the volume is all that its title implies. It contains over six hundred pages, which are richly embellished with numerous half tone pictures of the principal buildings of the exposition, the most curious curiosities, etc. The book is endorsed by Hon. Thomas W. Palmer, president of the Exposition, and is one that will increase in value as years pass by. Many of our boys are anxious for their school days to close that they may enter some kind of business. The chances are that a boy of fifteen or sixteen years of age has any where from fifty to sixty years of active life before him. The year or two he spends in school in extra preparation have a mighty influence in fitting him for getting the most out of his after life, no matter what his vocation may be. It may give him fewer productive years, and he may think that to remain at school is to lose time in which he might be making money, but his better education will enable him to make a much more profitable use of after years. Most of the failures in life's battle are due to beginning the fight without a "good ready." Go to school boys, as long as you have the opportunity. Caledonian games were held on the Driving Park grounds in this place Tuesday afternoon, by a troupe from Canada. Prize were offered by the manager for the successful competitors in the different contests, viz: Dancing Scotch reel, etc.; putting shoulder stone, throwing hammer, hurdle jumping, pole vaulting, and foot racing. Competition was announced as open to all, but of course the troupe was composed of professional athletes, which was sufficient to discourage opposition from amateurs. The program was highly interesting and demonstrated what can be accomplished by physical training. The affair had been poorly advertised and the attendance was about half as large as it would otherwise have been. The troupe left here for Bad Axe where they gave a like entertainment yesterday. The weather of last week greatly interfered with the success of the Caro Fair. A drizzling rain prevailed all day Tuesday, and for this reason the fair was announced to continue on Saturday. Wednesday and Thursday were pleasant days and the attendance was very large and the attractions good, but on Friday forenoon another shower came and it was necessary to declare the races off for that day owing to the wetness of the track. A large crowd had already gathered by noon on this day, and was greatly disappointed in not seeing the races, but pleasantly accepted the inevitable. The weather on Saturday was threatening, but we understand, was a successful day for the fair. Cass City was represented throughout the week, and many of the visitors remained in the evening's and witnessed the plays given at the opera house by the Frost & Fanshawe Co.

Letters That Tarry. The following letters remain unclaimed in the postoffice at Cass City for the week ending Oct. 7th: W. F. LeRoy, Frank Genack, Chas. A. Fox, Stanley Brown, John Blooming, John Chisholm, William Richardson, Phil Strohecker, Miss Nomia Marsh, Miss Hattie Fournier, Miss Dora Fox. Persons calling for any of the above please say it is advertised. A. W. SEED, P. M.

Our Neighbors.

What They Are Doing.—News Notes of Interest to All.

Port Sanilac people are starting a new bank at Forestville. The Vassar postoffice now closes at 7:30 o'clock, standard time. G. E. Cousins, of Indianapolis, is the new proprietor of the Ft. Austin Post. Carsonville has a chemical fire engine and will organize a company to manipulate it. A short time ago the village of Marlette received a scorching by fire, and now the council is talking of establishing fire limits. The jewelry store at Columbiaville, this county, was recently burglarized and about $850 worth of goods stolen. No clue as yet. "Little Mark," of Bad Axe, is closing out his stock of general merchandise, and contemplates engaging in the produce commission business. Ella Richardson, aged 14 years, of Vassar, has for waywardness, been sent to the Industrial School for girls at Adrain until 21 years of age. John Gratz, an old and respected citizen of Verona, was killed last week by being thrown from his wagon and run over. His chest was crushed in. W. H. Farr, owner of Jennie Lind Mystic and other trotting horses has decided to move to Bad Axe. For the present he will clerk for John Leonard. The six months' old babe of Mr. and Mrs. John Snell, of Bad Axe, had its arm broken last week when being lifted up from a couch by the arms. There's a right and a wrong way even in handling babies. Burglars blew open the safe in the store of Lamb & Folsom, at Dryden last Friday night. They secured fifteen dollars for their trouble. The proprietors had, fortunately, made a deposit in a bank that evening. The Bad Axe Tribune says that while R. A. Brown, president of the Huron County Agricultural Society, was drilling for water on his stock farm in Sand Beach township last week, he struck a solid bed of salt at a depth of 100 feet. Edward Poole, of Sanilac county, is at present standing trial in the circuit court at Sanilac Center on the charge of seduction, preferred by Miss Rachel Wright, 18 years old. The case involves neighborhood scandal in great quantities, and there are hordes of witnesses on both sides. The Detroit Free Press contained the following dispatch concerning the recent troubles at the Sebawaing coal mines: "The coal mines at Sebawaing, which have been idle for some time, have resumed, the troubles with the miners relating to the adjustment of the wage scale having been arranged, according to a scale made by the operators. Help is short, and 100 more miners could obtain permanent employment there."

A shooting affair, with murder intended, took place at Sebawaing at 5:30 o'clock Tuesday evening. A miner, whose name is not known, employed in what is known as the Chappelle mine, was slightly injured while at work in the mine, and resolved to quit work. He went to the house of W. T. Chappelle, manager of the mine, after his pay. For some reason Mr. Chappelle declined to pay the man immediately, and an altercation resulted, when the miner swore he would kill Chappelle, and drawing a pistol, fired at him. The bullet went through Mr. Chappelle's arm. The miner was disarmed and arrested. It is not yet known how seriously Mr. Chappelle is injured.

Auction Sales.

C. W. Hildie will offer his stock and implements at auction on Tuesday, Oct. 24, the sale to commence at 1 o'clock p. m. J. H. Striffler, auctioneer. At the farm of George Davenport, 3 miles west and 2 miles north of Cass City, on Thursday, Oct. 19, at 1 o'clock p. m., will occur a sale of stock and implements. J. H. Striffler, auctioneer. Anthony Doerr, living 6 miles north and 1/2 mile west of Cass City, will have an auction sale of stock and implements on Friday, Oct. 20, at 1 o'clock p. m. A. A. McKenzie, auctioneer. Mr. Doerr has rented his farm.

Henry M. Marshall will have a sale of stock and implements at his premises 1 mile east, 2 miles north and 1 1/2 miles east of Cass City, on Monday, Oct. 23, at 1 o'clock sharp. Among the stock offered for sale is a span of two-year-old Clydesdale colts. J. H. Striffler will officiate as auctioneer.

County Capital News.

From our Special Correspondent. The supervisors are in session this week.

R. D. Hobson was helping Mrs. L. J. Ladd during the fair.

Caro people were glad not to have liquor sold on the fair grounds as was intended.

Ottis Greenleaf and sister Pearl were with friends in Caro last week, taking in the fair.

W. A. Calback has gone to Sand Beach this week to win all monies put up at the races. Good luck, W. A.

A. L. Hunt has discontinued working the late B. V. White's store on account of the latter's death. The business will be closed up.

Caro fair was a success for all we had bad weather. We had a larger crowd any one day than Vassar all through the fair.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Klunger, of Akron, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Hunt during fair week, as was also Herman Oesterly, of Akron.

The music hall was filled to the utmost capacity during the fair. They charged ten cents admission at the door which kept out a lot of "toughs."

G. H. Slocum is a hustler as a newspaper man or fair officer or any where or in any place. He is one of the best officers the Caro Fair Association ever had.

There were very few intoxicated men were to be seen during the fair week. But, how would it have been had they allowed the sale of liquor on the grounds as was intended?

Some one was unlucky enough while attending the fair, surely, as they lost a "tenner" and a Caro boy was the lucky one to find it. We do not call that fisherman's luck for the one who found the ten spot.

Frost and Farshaw show troop were the center of attraction at the fair in their comic make-ups, and we hope they enjoyed themselves for others did who witnessed them. They played at the opera House all the week and had full house every night. James Bullen has bought Palace Meat Market of Mr. Renolds. This is the fourth time in the same market. He is a good man for the business. Mr. Renolds leaves to-day for Detroit, his home. During Mr. Renolds stay in Caro he has gained a great many friends and everybody dislikes to see him leave.

The four prizes which were offered at the Caro fair was a white sewing machine, roadwagon, set of silverware and set of single harness. The road wagon was drawn by Henry Ogger, of Caro; the sewing machine by M. McMullen, of Minden City; the silverware drawn by Warren Richard's, of Caro, and the Harness by Geo. Turner, of Watrousville.

Our Churches.

Pastors are invited to contribute. The Bethel M. E. Church sheds are being repaired and improved so as to afford better protection during the winter months.

The young people of the Baptist church will give a social at the residence of Mrs. Seeley, Monday evening, Oct. 16. All are invited to attend.

Baptist young people's prayer-meeting Sunday evening next, at 6 o'clock. Subject, "The Importance of Little Things," led by Miss Effie Tuckey. All are cordially invited.

A special meeting will be held in the M. E. Church this (Friday) evening, at 7:30 o'clock, at which an effort will be made to form an Epworth League reading class to take up the reading course as arranged by that organization. All interested are invited.

A very enjoyable time was spent on Tuesday evening, at the residence of Fred. Randall, some two miles west of town, the occasion being an "Exposition Reception" under the auspices of the Epworth League. One of the pleasing features of the evening's program was the description of the World's Fair buildings, exhibits, etc., by several who had been there. Refreshments were also served. About 125 were in attendance.

SWING HIGH AND SWING LOW.

Swing high and swing low
While the breezes they blow
It's off for a sailor thy father would go,
And it's here in the harbor in sight of the sea
He had left his wee babe with my song and with me.
Swing high and swing low
While the breezes they blow!
Swing high and swing low
While the breezes they blow.
It's off for the waiting as many days go
And it's off for the heartache that smiteth me when
I sing my song over and over again:
"Swing high and swing low,
While the breezes they blow!"
"Swing high and swing low," the sea singeth so,
And it waltzeth anon in its ebb and its flow,
And a sleeper sleeps on to that song of the sea,
Nor heedeth he ever of mine or of me!
"Swing high and swing low
While the breezes they blow.
'Twas off for a sailor thy father would go!"
—Eugene Field in Chicago News-Record.

The Kafirs Thought It a Joke.

I once took some Kafirs from their desolate island home in the Himalayan gorges beyond the mountain ranges to the more civilized south. Like most savages, they looked with stupid indifference at the marvels about them, and once only were they excited by an incident which opened their eyes to what they considered a most extraordinary and unnatural state of things.

They were descending a road when one of them chanced to remark that he was hungry, and the English "sahib" bought him some food at a wayside shop. The Kafir saw the money change hands.

"How is this?" he inquired in surprise. "Do you have to pay for food in this country?"

"Certainly," cried the man in amazement. Then after pondering awhile he continued doubtfully: "Suppose a man had no money in this country. He might starve!"
"It is quite possible."
The Kafir shook with uncontrollable laughter. It was the best joke he had ever heard. He then explained the ridiculous system to his companions, and they roared in chorus:—"Where Three Empires Meet."

Raising Talking Parrots.

The talking powers of a parrot depend to a great extent on its being taken in hand at a very early age. This would be one advantage of rearing these birds in confinement. Under such conditions also it would be practicable to vastly improve the speaking faculty by mating the best talkers together for generations. Thus would be produced such feathered conversationists as are unknown up to date. It would certainly be profitable to breed and raise the parrots known as Carolina parakeets. These are rare now and bring high prices, though they used to be very common as far north as Pennsylvania and Illinois. At present the few survivors are almost wholly confined to scattered localities in Florida and the Indian Territory. They have been successfully bred in captivity. The green Australian parakeets of the sort used by strolling fortune tellers on the streets are among the easiest of birds to rear.—Washington Star.

Farm Home Reading Circle.

For Promoting Agriculture and Kindred Pursuits.

In December, 1892, the faculty of the Michigan Agricultural College appointed a committee to prepare a course of reading especially adapted to the requirements of farmers, gardeners, fruit growers, stock breeders, etc. The course was outlined and circulars issued. So many expressions of appreciation have been received, that the managers have been encouraged to carefully revise the course and take steps to widen its scope and increase its influence. The State Board of Agriculture have made provision for the printing, correspondence, postage, etc., connected with the course, so that the only expense to members is for books.

The primary object of the F. H. R. C. is to promote agriculture and kindred pursuits. The circle offers a systematic course of reading. It furnishes books through the secretary at greatly reduced prices. It acts in a limited manner, as a bureau of information on agricultural subjects. All cannot enjoy a course at the Agricultural College, but no one is so situated that he cannot cultivate habits of observation and study. The aim has been to supply a course which shall furnish practical information and assist those who desire to secure some knowledge of science as applied to agriculture. It is believed there are many who are ready to embrace the opportunities offered by such a course.

The course is not limited as to age or occupation. All persons interested are invited to join. Old and young, fathers and mothers, boys and girls, send in your applications. Farmers' boys and girls are especially urged to undertake systematic reading. You are surrounded by a great laboratory. The fields, gardens, orchards and meadows are your class rooms. Interest your fathers and mothers. Ask questions. If you are unable to find an answer by consulting the index of your book, write to the secretary and he will refer it to the proper authority. No one is too old to join the circle. Let us all undertake the regular thoughtful reading of good books, in place of the aimless, careless reading which is so prevalent.

While it is recommended that granges, patrons' lodges, alliances and other farmers' organizations form circles for reading and discussion, yet the great value of the course will manifest itself to those so situated that reading in circles would be impossible. As the name implies, it is a "Farm Home Reading Circle." Do not let the coming winter season pass, without taking up the work in one or more of the classes.

Five classes are offered: Soils and Crops, Live Stock, Garden and Orchard, Home Making, and Political Science. These classes were outlined by men prominent in their special lines, and so far as it is possible, are arranged progressively. It is urged that the course be taken up, as recommended, and finished. However, if for any reason, books further along in the course are desired, they may be ordered and credit will be given for their completion. No requirement is made as to the order in which classes shall be taken up.

she drew the line.

No, she wouldn't do it. The very ideal! Would she sacrifice her womanly dignity? Could she lock the door of her pleasant home and go forth on such a mission with the prattle of her innocent babes sounding in her ears? No, a thousand times no. She could die easier. She never could bring herself down on the level of a vile man and go to the polls and vote. Her bonnet and gloves are tossed in a corner, and as she retires to the back yard to split the wood for the morning's fire she heard cheerfully humming, "What Is Home Without a Mother?"—Buffalo Express.

The "God bless you, Dr. Wheeler," of Geo. W. Cooper, 15 Lawn St., Cleveland, Ohio, is genuine and from the heart. He writes, July 28th, 1892: "My son commenced to have fits when 10 years old. He had them three or four times a month, and as high as 19 in three days. I had him treated the hospital and by different doctors, but it done him no good. Sixteen months ago he commenced to take Dr. Wheeler's Nerve Vitalizer, and has had only one fit since. I think him entirely cured. Will gladly answer any questions about your great medicine." Deserving Praise.

We desire to say to our citizens that for years we have been selling Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Dr. King's New Life Pills, Bucklen's Arnica Salve and Electric Bitters, and have never handled remedies that sell as well, or that have given such universal satisfaction. We do not hesitate to guarantee them every time, and we stand ready to refund the purchase price, if satisfactory results do not follow their use. These remedies have won their great popularity purely on their merits. T. H. Fritz.

WEAK, NERVOUS & DISEASED MEN.

Thousands of Young and Middle Aged Men are annually swept to a premature grave through early indiscretion and later excesses. Self abuse and Constitutional Blood Diseases have ruined and wrecked the life of many a promising young man. Have you any of the following symptoms: Nervous and Dependent; Tired in Morning; No Ambition; Memory Poor; Easily Fatigued; Excitable and Irritable; Eyes Blue; Pimples on the Face; Dreams and Drains at Night; Headaches; Backache; Looking Blue; Stomach Sour; Throat; Hair Loose; Pains in Body; Sunk in Lethargy; Distracted and Lack of Energy and Strength. Our New Method Treatment will build you up mentally, physically and sexually.

Chas. Patterson.
Read What DRS. KENNEDY & KERGAN Have Done.

"At 14 years of age I learned a bad habit which almost ruined me. I became nervous and weak. My back troubled me. I could stand no exertion. Head and eyes became dull. Dreams and drains at night weakened me. I tried seven Medical Firms, Electric Belts, Patent Medicines and Family Doctors. They gave me no help. A friend advised me to try Drs. Kennedy & Kergan. They sent me one month's treatment and it cured me. I could feel myself gaining every day. Their New Method Treatment cures when all else fails. They have cured many of my friends."

CURES GUARANTEED OR MONEY REFUNDED.

"Some 8 years ago I contracted a serious constitutional blood disease. I went to Hot Springs to treat for syphilis. More or less almost killed me. After a while the symptoms again appeared. Throat became sore, pains in limbs, pimples on face, blotches, eyes red, loss of hair, glands enlarged, etc. A medical friend advised Drs. Kennedy & Kergan's New Method Treatment. It cured me, and I have had no symptoms for five years. I am married and happy. As a doctor, I heartily recommend it to all who have this terrible disease—syphilis. It will eradicate the poison from the blood."

15 YEARS IN DETROIT. 150,000 CURED.

"I am 33 years of age, and married. When young I led a gay life. Early indiscretions and later excesses made trouble for me. I became weak and nervous. My kidneys became affected and I feared Bright's disease. Married, life was unsatisfactory and my home life was a failure. I tried everything—all failed till I took treatment from Drs. Kennedy & Kergan. Their New Method built me up mentally, physically and sexually. I feel and act like a man in every respect. Try them."

ELMWOOD

A goodly number of our people attended the fair at Caro last week.

Mrs. Lacine is on a fair way to recovery, and is improving every day.

The school in Cedar Run district began Monday, with Miss P. E. Webster as teacher.

Some of the farmers have cut their clover for seed, but it is hardly worth the cutting. The dry weather affected it badly.

The new seats were placed in the school house on last Saturday. They are a late pattern of adjustable seat. It should be a pleasure to go to school now. It was a much needed improvement.

WICKWARE.

Geo. Burt is on the sick list.

Paul Freshenry had a very sick horse last week.

Sam. Brown, who has been sick the past week, is not much better at this writing.

Mrs. Chas. McAvoy, of Bad Axe, is visiting with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Haggerty.

D. Jeneraux came home from John Muma's last Thursday, very ill, but is some better.

Wm. Burt has gone to Minden City, where he will work as apprentice for Mr. Stipe in his blacksmith shop.

Mr. and Mrs. Jno. McPhail's youngest child, whose illness we mentioned last week, died Friday morning about 2 o'clock. The funeral occurred at the house Sunday afternoon, the Rev. Gerit Huyser, of Cass City, officiating.

RESCUE.

We expect to have a Maccabee Tent in the near future.

Robert Stedman has sold his farm to Mr. McCaug, of Teeswater, Ont.

The fall of the leaves in the fall of the year is proof that fall is here.

Mr. McCudgill, of Teeswater, Ont., is visiting with his uncle, Richard Parr, Sr.

Business is unusually dull this fall. Poor crops and poor prices makes it hard for the farmers.

Ye scribe has been sick and could not attend the fair or other important occasions. We are improving.

The marriage bells rang out musically last week for Hector McDermott and Bessie Patterson, who were united in the bonds of matrimony by Rev. Sedwick. We wish the young couple all the pleasures, comforts and prosperity that life affords.

Allen McDermott and James Dono intend leaving here on the 13th for Ohio to take a college course in the University of Ada. Though sorry to lose the society of the young people, our best wishes for success go with them. Andrew McDermott returns to Montana at the same time.

CASEVILLE.

There was a rag bee at P. Conaton's Saturday night last.

A large crowd from here attended the Pigeon fair last week.

Old Mrs. Duffy is very sick at this writing. But little hopes of her recovery.

Mr. Murdock and wife and Mr. Crawford and wife started Friday afternoon to take in the sights at Chicago.

Neal Conley and wife, Mrs. J. R. Poss and daughter Ada, and John McLane started for the World's Fair Monday morning.

Mr. Buckingham thinks he has the largest potatoes in the county. He has twenty potatoes that weigh 3 1/2 lbs., and one that weighs 2 1/2 lbs.

When any one tries to beat a woman they generally get left. That must be what a man here thinks since he refused to give his wife money to go to the World's Fair with. She went all the same and he didn't know it until after she had gone.

Mrs. John McKinley came very near having a fatal accident happen to her last week Friday. She was using gasoline in her washing, and it exploded by the heat of the stove and burned her hand quite badly. It was very lucky that the house wasn't burned.

OWENDALE.

R. Ballagh was in Cass City between trains Monday.

Geo. Crouch, of Caseville, was in this part Saturday evening.

Thomas Cosgrove is at the county seat this week on business.

A. Roberts east of town is preparing for a trip to Canada, shortly.

M. Hager, of Marlette, is at present the guest of H. D. Hager.

Jos. Shoefelt was one of the many visitors at the Berne fair the past week.

Joseph Body and his best girl were one of the many couples that enjoyed the Caro fair Friday last.

James Yong was called to his former home in Kent Co., Ont., recently by the serious illness of a sister.

John McCallum took the north bound train Monday for Caseville. There he is stationed by Mr. Owen as hay buyer and shipper.

Murry Sharrard and Joseph Laing have returned home the past week from the Canadian Northwest, and feel content to remain in Michigan for the winter season, at least.

CANBORO.

Company at Henry Whetlofer's.

Mrs. Hanes visited with her parents the last week.

Albert Dumlage has company at his house this week.

Mr. Annis Lown, of Gagetown, was at the parental home Sunday.

The next Union sabbath school review will be held at Killkenny.

Mrs. Wm. Huff has gone to Ontario on a visit to relatives and friends.

Miss Jennie McTaggart teaches in the Cedar school house on the state road.

Mrs. Wm. Adair, of Cass City, was up in this burg visiting at your quill driver's home.

Forgot to mention the return of Fred Taylor from Canada. He attended the Toronto fair.

Revival meetings are being carried on at the Baptist Church by Abbey, assisted by Elder Suttton.

The Sunday school of this place attended the Union Sunday School review at Rescue last Sunday.

Miss Wadsworth, of Bad Axe, preached here in the Baptist Church two nights last week and again this week.

Holden Nizely, Henry Winegar's nephew, had the misfortune to fall from a ladder and break his left arm just above the wrist.

Mat Smith's young colt jumped on the picket fence at home, which gave the farrier a job of taking one hundred stitches in his hide.

KARR'S CORNERS.

Marcus Karr was in this locality last Wednesday.

Geo. Charter drew his hay to Cass City last week.

Alex. Marshall had some sheep at Caro fair last week.

Pat Landrigan has taken a part of Archie Mark's place to work.

M. P. Karr has gone to work for Mr. Summers, south of Gagetown.

Mr. Maxfield's mother has returned to her home in Oakland county.

John High has purchased a fine horse from John Williams, of Gagetown.

Mrs. Chas. Karr has returned home from the World's Fair. She reports a good time.

Owing to the rain last week, some of the people who had stock at Caro fair had to bring them home on Sunday.

James Ward has purchased a horse from John Muma to drive on his meat wagon. James is doing a good business in the beef line.

John Wright and Joan Mark went to Watrousville, last Thursday, and were joined in the holy bonds of matrimony. They were accompanied by several of their friends and relatives. The good work was done by Norman Karr, formerly of this place. We wish the couple joy and happiness all through life.

ELLINGTON.

E. J. Balsh is working at mason work in Cass City.

Darius Gould took 13 first and one second premiums on his fowls at the Caro fair.

Alexander Smith, who has been troubled with heart disease for a long time, died Sunday night.

Julius Oosterle has sold out again. This time it is to Frank E. Manly, who bought it for a residence. Consideration $350.

From a letter received this week from the new state of Washington we learn that times are much harder in that state than in Michigan.

Samuel Elliott's old log barn is no more. He has taken it down, and is now, with the help of J. H. Moshier, framing timber for a cattle shed by the side of his large barn.

Julius Oosterle has purchased five and one-half acres of land of E. T. Balch, upon which he contemplates building a house immediately. It lays beside the lot he sold. Maybe a village has started. Who knows?

WEST GRANT.

James Proudfoot has gone to the White City.

M. Sharrard returned from the West last Thursday.

W. J. Winson had seven sheep killed last week. The sheep thief has not been caught as yet.

J. Etherington raised 15 bushels of onions on 5 rods of ground. Who has beat it?

Miss Frances Burnett has returned home from Chicago and Battle Creek where she has been during the summer.

A large number from this place took in the box social at Geo. Cross' Wednesday evening. A large crowd and a good time.

Only the Scars Remain.

"Among the many testimonials which I see in regard to certain medicines performing cures, cleansing the blood, etc.," writes HENRY HUDSON, of the James Smith Woolen Machinery Co., Philadelphia, Pa., "none impress me more than my own case. Twenty years ago, at the age of 18 years, I had swellings come on my legs, which broke and became running sores. Our family physician could do me no good, and it was feared that the bones would be affected. At last, my good old mother urged me to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I took three bottles, the sores healed, and I have not been troubled since. Only the scars remain, and the memory of the past, to remind me of the good Ayer's Sarsaparilla has done me. I now weigh two hundred and twenty pounds, and am in the best of health. I have been on the road for the past twelve years, have noticed Ayer's Sarsaparilla advertised in all parts of the United States, and always take pleasure in telling what good it did for me."

Shooting Affair at Traverse City Over a Girl.—Women's Annex to the Soldiers' Home.—Lake Superior Horror.

"Puss" Liked the Boys.
W. D. Germaine shot and seriously wounded Ellis Ramsdell at Traverse City because the latter was paying attention to "Puss" Germaine against the brother's wishes. Germaine was arrested, jailed and afterward released on bail—$5,000. Ramsdell will recover.

Last spring Miss "Puss" Germaine attended the World's Fair in company with Ramsdell. G. V. Pelt, a former lover, visited her there and tried to make up, but the girl declined. Then Pelt went to his hotel and shot himself through the heart.

A grand jury dispatch tells another story: Miss "Puss" Germaine, whose brother shot her lover at Traverse City, was well known in Grand Rapids. For some time she has been dividing her affections between Ellis Ramsdell, of Manistee, and Edgar counter clerk in Grand Rapids, with a few others between times. She is not yet 20.

Justice Long's Pension Again.
Justice Long, of the Michigan supreme court, who was dropped from the pension list by the pension commission, has applied for a mandamus to the United States supreme court of the District of Columbia to compel the commissioner to reinstate him. In his petition, the judge says he has received official notice that he had been dropped, and he was therefore given no opportunity to make a statement of his side of the case; and says the suspension was not made on the authority of the secretary of the interior. After describing the nature of his wounds, Justice Long says the commissioner has no authority under the rules of the department, the law or the constitution of the United States to suspend pensioners without first giving the pensioners a hearing. This is to be a test case.

Women's Annex to the Soldiers' Home.
At a meeting of the Soldiers' Home board at Grand Rapids rules were adopted for the women's annex. It was decided to add one woman from each senatorial district where there are applicants, and when more than one applicant applies it is to be left to a committee of the Woman's Relief Corps. All women who receive pensions may remain in the annex, but in excess of that must be paid in for the maintenance of the institution. Veterans, inmates of the home, will be excluded from the annex except on written consent of the commandant. A resolution was adopted providing that the Grand Army and Relief Corps to furnish rooms in the annex, the cost not to exceed $75.

Killed by a Falling Wall.
R. B. Humestone, a workman on the new Congregational church being erected at Olivet, was instantly killed by a portion of the west wall. The recent heavy rains had weakened the newly laid stones. As the wall slipped the unfortunate man, who was at work on the scaffolding near the top, evidently thinking that the scaffolding itself was falling, endeavored to save himself by grasping the wall. In so doing he left a place of safety for one of certain death, and fell some 40 feet to the ground, where he was buried beneath a mass of stone. He leaves a widow and three small children.

Michigan Congressman Injured.
Senator Strickland, of Michigan, met with a serious accident in Chicago. He attempted to get on board a north-bound Wabash avenue cable car at Peck court, when he was struck by a south-bound car, thrown to the ground and dragged for 20 feet over the rough stones. The senator was unconscious when picked up and was found to be bleeding from a wound in the head. He recovered in a few minutes, and was taken by a friend in a cab to the Richelieu hotel. The cuts on the head did not penetrate to the skull, but are simply flesh wounds which will quickly heal. The bruises on his body are only superficial.

Two Drowned in Lake Superior.
Willard A. Carpenter and his brother-in-law, Ed Carpenter, aged 19, left Whitefish Point in a sail boat for Lake Superior. The boat was loaded with pound nets and some household furniture. The wind was fresh from the southeast, with smooth water along the shore. A squall from the north-west must have struck the boat off Grand Marais late in the evening. The boat was picked up eight miles west of Muskegon station by the life-saving crew; both men were drowned. Willard Carpenter leaves a widow and two children, aged 8 and 2 years.

Farmers' Alliance.
Delegates from 45 counties attended the Farmers' Alliance convention at Jackson. The membership of the sub-alliance has fallen off a little during the past year. The principal officers elected were: President, Robert McDougall, Hillsdale county; vice-president, J. M. Houghton, Oakland; secretary, Miss Monica B. Wilson, Jackson; lecturer, John T. Stricker, Branch; member executive committee, A. E. Cole, Livingston.

The medical, dental and chemical departments have numerous co-eds, while the law freshmen class is half girls. It is now believed that the total attendance at the university will be as large as it was last year.

THE CORUNNA LYNCHING.

ATTORNEY GENERAL ELLIS HAS INVESTIGATED.

Sheriff Jacobs, of Shiawassee County Charged With Sympathy With the Mob and His Removal Recommended.

Attorney-General Ellis after long delay has taken action in the Corunna lynching case. As a result of his investigations he has filed a complaint with the Governor against William B. Jacobs, sheriff of Shiawassee county. The complaint is sworn to by George Cook, of Lansing, a brother-in-law of William F. Sullivan, the man charged with the murder of Layton Leech, and who was lynched by the mob at Corunna. It is endorsed by Prosecuting Attorney Watson, of Shiawassee county, who certifies that he has examined the complaint, and in his opinion the case demands investigation. The complaint is drawn under the statute providing for the removal by the governor of the county officers in certain cases. Three grounds are charged in the complaint:

First, that Jacobs is incompetent to execute properly the duties of his office. [His lack of effort to protect the life of Sullivan in this particular instance as in the other counts.]

Second, that he has been guilty of official misconduct in the discharge, and in neglecting to discharge his official duties.

Third, that he has been guilty of willful neglect of his duties as sheriff of Shiawassee county.

It is stated in the complaint that immediately after the hanging, Jacobs asked what would be done, and he notified the party inquiring in substance that nothing would be done, because the parties who had done the hanging were all friends of his.

The governor will probably order the attorney-general or prosecuting attorney Watson to conduct an investigation and if Jacobs is found guilty as charged he will be promptly removed from office.

CADILLAC EXCITED.

A Suspicious Character Arrested With a Gun Full of Gold.—A Suspicious Character in Cadillac as C. H. Smith, without any residence, was arrested on a charge of carrying concealed weapons, but really as a suspicious character, who is thought to be wanted somewhere. Soon after his arrest, a large low bought a revolver. This, together with his actions, aroused the suspicions of the hotel clerk, and he notified the officers, who kept a strict watch of him and his room was searched.

A grip full of gold was found in a large amount of valuables, including several gold watches and other jewelry, and over $1,700 in money. The grip also contained four revolvers, and two more were afterwards found on the man's person. He was carefully watched again and taken into custody as he was about to leave the town. He is rather short, about 40 years old, weighs about 175 pounds, has black hair and beard, probably dyed, wears good clothes, and appears to be a very intelligent person. The police believe the man is one of the Kendallville, Ind., train robbers.

Ionian: A person answering the description of Smith was here during the fair, spending money very lavishly. He had over $2,000. When he came to his beard and hair was red, but he had them dyed black. He had no business and said he was attending the fair. While here he purchased a gold watch and chain of R. K. Bedford, jeweler.

Washington's Sensational Will Contest.
Leonard B. Rosier, of Webster, has begun suit in the circuit court at Ann Arbor through his attorneys, to contest the will of his father. The bill filed in the case alleges that his brothers, sisters and relatives, viz., George B. Rosier, William F. Rosier, Clara D. Rosier, Lottie Rosier Alley, Wirt Cushing and Ella Cushing, years ago entered into a conspiracy to cheat him out of his share of his father's estate.

The complainant is 43 years old and up to 1879 worked for his father on his farm in Webster. In November of that year, although he was a guardian of his father's property, he was declared insane and confined in the Eastern Michigan insane asylum at Pontiac. He remained there 13 years and escaped last August. The alleged conspirators had him taken back to his father's home, secured his release and since then his relatives have refused to recognize him or give assistance.

The complainant asserts that his father died in December, 1890, and left an estate of $23,000. He claims that his father was a moribund eater and incapable of making a will legally, yet after his death a will was probated which the complainant avers was made by undue influence over the father, by those who he complains have conspired against him. In this will Leonard B. Rosier gets but $10. The peculiar feature of the case is that the will has been probated and the estate divided up, the complainant receiving no share of it, although a guardian of his father's property.

The complainant has been notified to act for him, nor has he even notified that the will was to be probated. These acts, he claims, were all done in carrying out the conspiracy charged.

Veteran's Pension Restored.
Charles Murray, of Vassar, who went insane over the loss of his pension, is now on the list again. Willard Stearns, of Adrian, interested himself in the matter, and Congressman Whiting brought it to the attention of Commissioner Lochren, who ordered the name restored. It is believed the old man's mind may now be restored.

A Chicago traveling man named C. L. Wilson was held up at Coldwater and robbed of $45.

J. Sturdevant, a farmer two miles northeast of Smith's Creek, near Port Huron, dug a well 75 feet deep and struck oil, which is flowing steadily.

Carl Bennett, of Traverse City, is only 10 years old, yet a hero. He saw a little playmate in front of an approaching train, and picked him up and threw him out of danger's way.

Rev. Milton Bradley was installed as pastor of the Presbyterian church in Richland in 1843, and is still there. He preached a jubilee sermon at the age of the fiftieth year. His is undoubtedly the longest continuous pastorate in the state. Mr. Bradley is over 81 years old.

CONGRESSIONAL NEWS.

SENATE.—Fifty-first day.—Mr. Morgan, Dem., Ala., reported from the foreign relations committee a bill making appropriations to enable the secretary of the treasury to enforce the Chinese exclusion act, and to carry out the provisions of the act of March 3, 1882, which are now in force, held over. The resolution heretofore passed by the Senate, providing for information as to pensions paid to persons residing in foreign countries, was taken up and agreed to. The repeal bill was taken up and Mr. Butler, Dem., S. C., addressed the Senate in opposition to the bill as did Mr. Blackburn, Dem., Ky., and Mr. Call, Florida. Mr. Martin, of Indiana, secured the adoption of a resolution cutting out of the secretary of the interior for information as to the number of pensions allowed and rejected since March 4, 1882. Mr. Ewer, of Nebraska, asked for the immediate consideration of a resolution for the appointment of a committee to investigate reports that agents of the interior department, under the guise of detectives, were running down evidence upon which to base the suspension of persons from office, and to have a joint resolution by Mr. Houck, of Ohio, expressing to foreign governments participation in the World Fair celebration, the acknowledgment of Congress under qualifying conditions of admission to the bankruptcy bill, Mr. C. C. Carey reported the substitute for the Everett bill amending the act of March 3, 1882, relating to the establishment of all town sites within the limits of the bill, and the establishment of the bill was discussed and before the House and passed. The bill introduced a substitute which strikes out the section of the revised statutes relating to the suspension of persons from office, and repealing all laws relating to the suspension of persons from office, and the bill was passed.

2,000 PEOPLE PERISH.

TERRIBLE SOUTHERN CYCLONE AND A TIDAL WAVE

Sweep Hundreds of Residents of Louisiana's Gulf Counties to Their Deaths.—A Wail of Devastation.

Over 2,000 killed and nearly $5,000,000 of property annihilated is the record of the great gulf storm in Louisiana. There has never been anything approximating it since the country was settled. More than half the population in the region over which the hurricane swept is dead. Everything is wrecked while the survivors are left in the most destitute condition, without food or even clothing, for most of them were sleeping in their beds when their homes were crushed by the wind or waves.

Grand Island lies directly south of New Orleans. It is about sixty miles in the Gulf of Mexico, at the entrance of the Bay of Barataria. Chenier Caminada lies across the bay from Grand Island and is struck out in the gulf, and when the storm came up the mighty waves of the ocean washed over the face of the stricken land and swept everything before them. The Chenier settlement was even more thickly populated than was Grand Island. It was the home of fishermen and storekeepers, and it comprised a colony of 1,400 souls. Matthew Ertzev and Dominick Mirgovich, two sailors, were rescued by an oyster lugger, and the storm they tell is almost incredible. They were living on the island at the west end. Far out at sea, as the flashes of lightning would vividly illuminate the darkness of the night of storm, could be seen a mammoth wave traveling with wonderful rapidity toward the island. Closer and closer it came and brought with it a noise of thunder. On, on came the terrible thing, growing larger each moment. The island was in the stillness of slumber. These men being too frightened to go to their homes remained in their boat during that terrible night. Horrified, they watched the tidal wave approach the island, until, like a flash of lightning, it struck. Then all was darkness and grand silence. The eye could reach, was covered with water. The next flash of lightning found the two fishermen far off to the north of the island and, looking about in the direction of the island, they found nothing but a sheet of water, the island having totally disappeared.

Matthew Schurtz was one of the survivors of the Chenier Caminada calamity, who was rescued and he told a harrowing tale of his experiences and the loss of life at Chenier. Mr. Schurtz went to the island about four weeks ago and was boarding in a house with 25 others on the night of the storm. As the wind increased in severity the hourly rain began to go to pieces. The wind picked the roofs off as though they had been shaved from the rafters with a great carving knife. Then the buildings began to rock violently and one by one they were torn to pieces, crashing down upon and killing their occupants. They were rapidly drifting away with the terrible current that was sweeping across the land.

Suddenly there was a fearful crash and the roof caved in, burying nearly every one of the party, only Mr. Schurtz and a Negro escaping. Mr. Schurtz clung to floating debris until he saw a light twinkling in a house not far away. He swam to the house and was admitted. There were 25 people in this house. Mr. Schurtz had hardly entered, however, when the structure went to pieces and only Mr. Schurtz, a lady and a child escaped. Mr. Schurtz succeeded in getting the lady and child to the shore, but the party stayed till 4 o'clock in the morning when the wind began to abate. The Negro managed to reach the pole to which the fishing smacks are usually tied and clung to that during the whole of the night, finally being rescued. At Chenier Island he counted but five houses standing out of a total of about 300 while the land was covered with corpses.

Mr. Schurtz assisted in that gruesome work of burying the dead in trenches, and during the hour he participated in the internment of not less than fifty persons, men, women and children, some of them having not a mark upon their persons to show who buried their deaths. Others on the contrary were badly lacerated. Into one grave Mr. Schurtz assisted in placing six people. There was little time for the ceremonies usual on the burial of a human being. They had no time to build coffins. If there had been time there were no tools, no boards that could be nailed together, no receptacles for the bodies lying anywhere. So the living merely hunted up shacks and great trenches in which to deposit the remains.

On Simon Isle, in Grand Bay, there were 18 inhabitants who were waiting for the return of the oyster fleet. Sixteen of them were drowned. Near by another station, called Razor Island, here a camp of five men were all drowned. On Bird Island, which is more exposed to the heavy surf, lived about 150 people. They were all drowned. On Grand Bank there were eight persons killed. At the time the storm visited Chenier Caminada 120 fishing vessels were in the gulf fishing. Not a word has been heard from them or their occupants. Along the Mississippi the loss of life was to some extent due to falling buildings. In the bay it was caused wholly by drowning.

Rev. J. B. Rowell, the young Baptist minister at Chenier, who fired a bullet into his left lung with suicidal intent may recover. It is now said that church troubles and love were the cause of the deed.

An unknown man was killed by the Flint & Pere Marquette at Saginaw. Superintendent of Public Instruction Pattengill has divided the state into 21 districts and will hold a conference in each one of them some Friday during the fall and winter. After the conference a public rally will be held, with a teachers' institute the next day.

Something caught in the wheel of Lowe's flour mill at Hudson and an investigation revealed the fact that two large eels had clogged the wheel. Twenty-one eels, whose combined weight was 104 pounds, were taken out of the flumes. Most of them were three feet long.

NEW YORK CONVENTIONS.

Democrats and Republicans Both Name Candidates for State Offices.

The Republican state convention of the Empire state was held at Syracuse. Among the big guns present were Hon. Chauncey M. Dewey, Thomas C. Platt and Frank Hiscock. Patrick W. Culinan, of Oswego, caused great enthusiasm when he referred to McKinley and his tariff bill. Dewey's speech was the feature of the convention. The nominations were as follows: For secretary of state, Gen. John Palmer, Albany; for comptroller, James A. Roberts, Buffalo; for treasurer, Addison Colvin, Warren; for attorney-general, Theodore Hancock, Syracuse; for judge of appeals court, Edward T. Bartlett, New York; for engineer, Campbell W. Adams, Oneida.

At Saratoga the Democrats of New York named the following ticket: Secretary of state, Carl Meyer, Queens county; comptroller, Frank Campbell, Steuben county; treasurer, Hugh Duffy, Cortland county; attorney-general, Simon W. Rosendale, Albany; judge of appeals, Isaac H. Maynard; state surveyor, Martin Schneck, Rensselaer county. The platform, after congratulations to the party and the people of the state for the way state matters have been managed since the Democrats came into power, refers to national affairs and President Cleveland, and says: "To the federal issue and policy we reaffirm the principles of the state and national Democrat platforms of the people last November. Mrs. Lillian Devereaux Blake made a short address on her claim of women for representation.

A PUBLIC DEMONSTRATION.

A Plain Proof That Consumption is Curable Given the Profession.

The physicians appointed by the press of Cleveland to report on the public demonstration of the Amick treatment, which has been in progress at Cleveland for the past two months state that of the ten consumptives one died, three are apparently cured, being now free from all symptoms of the disease, four show marked improvement, and two are in progress. The greatest increase in weight was three pounds in four days. The demonstration has not yet ended, although Dr. G. B. Sturgeon admitted that the treatment had already accomplished more than the Chicago discoverer claimed it would. Thirty or more local physicians are testing the treatment with outfits of medicine such as Dr. Amick is distributing to doctors everywhere, but this is more to show their patients what the treatment will do for each of them. The majority of the profession interviewed evidently believe in Amick but many of them accuse him of violating the code.

Thirty-Four Soldiers Burned to Death.

The Newbury infantry barracks at Roslavi, province of Smolensk, Russia, were burned at night. Before all the men could be aroused the flames had spread through most of the building. About 400 men ran out in their night clothes. Of 60 who were driven to the roof and obliged to jump for their lives, 11 were killed and 8 were injured so severely that they will die. Twenty-three men and five non-commissioned officers were arrested in the halls or rooms by the smoke and heat and were burned to death.

THE BRAVEST BATTLE.

The bravest battle that ever was fought,
Shall tell you where and when?
On the map of the world you will find it not,
'Twas fought by the mothers of men.

Nay, not with cannon or battle shot,
With sword or noble pen,
Nay, not with eloquent word or thought,
From mouths of wonderful men.

But does in a walled-up woman's heart—
Of women that would not yield,
But bravely, silently bore her part—
Lies there that battle field.

No marching troop, no bivouac song,
No banners to lean and to wave,
But all these battles they lost so long—
From babyhood to the grave.

Yet faithful still as a bridge of stars,
She lights in her walled-up town,
Fights on and on in the endless wars,
Then silent, unseen—goes down!

O ye with banners and battle shot
And soldiers to shout and to fight,
I tell you the finest victory's fought
Are fought in these silent ways.

O spotless woman in the world of shamet
With splendid and silent soul,
Go back to God as you came,
The kindest warrior born!

—Joachim Miller.

The triumphs of women over the men students of the horticultural college recently established in England attest their ability to grasp the practical side of scientific subjects. Two out of three diplomas conferred at the first year's examinations were gained by two sisters, and this year one young woman has wrested the diploma from forty-two rivals of the sterner sex, and each lady finds an advantageous post awaiting her as soon as she graduates. The professors of the college speak very highly of the religious and wholesome influence the women have over the men by working with them, and never shirking the rougher work. It is now deemed advisable to establish a fund for a scholarship for women.

The commercial side of gardening as an occupation for women is not more important than the benefit gained by the bracing effect of this employment. It is said that the health of the women who are always in the open air is found to be a wonderful nerve tonic, a medicine which is constantly in demand and upon which fortunes are spent every year since women have become so burdened with innumerable little cares that they cannot give themselves time to rest. This practical means of relief for the prevailing complaint of the nerves may not meet with the approval of the fastidious women who object to labor of any sort. However, the fact that they can be immensely improved in appearance by a few months of this rustic work may possibly appeal to their vanity with encouraging results. The improvement is so marked that it has been suggested at the college that they have their pictures taken on entrance and departure. The physical strain demanded is said to be too heavy, and one physician contemplates starting a market garden for the benefit of nervous women.

The statement that women far surpass the men in difficult examinations necessary before a woman can become a physician can be gained with hardly be credited by the opposite sex. Still one of the professors encouragingly adds that they "might equal them if they were only dead." But, with hearing fully developed, they are always listening when they are not talking to others, so very little attention is paid to their studies. For all time women have been accused of never allowing a "man to get in a word edgewise," and no end of ridicule and sarcasm has been heaped at them for the gibes use of their tongues, but there seems to be one case on record where they have distinguished themselves by significant silence and superior application to business.

The Colors to Wear.

Black makes a woman look slender; it is the thinnest color a fat woman can wear. It also makes a person look old. It is the worst color an ageing woman can wear. When a kindly disordered employment agent is anxious to place a young nurse girl in a responsible position, his always tells her to get a black dress, knowing that it will make her appear 20.

In the religious orders of the different churches the black uniform is adopted, not for economy but to protect the gentle nuns and novices from admiration. There is no color so generally leveling and unbecoming as black. Black is awe-inspiring. Black is also depressing; it has a disagreeable effect upon men and animals. Dogs and babies will make friends more readily with brightly-dressed people than with those in black garments. In normal colleges pupil teachers are advised not to dress in black any in return is necessary. No physician of the present day would wear a black-garbed nurse to care for a serious case.

White makes a woman look big, wholesome, innocent, winsome and amiable. White is a favorite color with designing women of the world. The woman in white is generally the one who takes away another woman's husband, while the girl in white, with a blue ribbon under her chin, is the one who has all the beaux of the party. Slim, sleek, care-worn and colorless women look best with velvet bonnet strings and a lace ruche or scarf about the neck.

A woman with red hair should beware of pink, strawberry blonde, a soft blue above her waist is apt to make an unpleasantly strong contrast. Green is her color, white will be her standby, and there are red, browns, coffee, oak and copper that will make her a model for an artist who dotes on beauty.

A fat woman should leave plaids, flounces and ruffles alone and a thin woman must avoid stripes. Red will brighten any woman but a red head; it is the most charitable color in chromatic. Invalids on their "up" days look their prettiest in red robes. More than one pale patient, with a crimson silk lounge coat, has caught her physician's fancy while convalescing and married him.

On Wheels Through England.

Miss Carrie L. Hodson of Lawrence, Mass., and Miss Edith M. Keniston of Concord, N. H., are making a bicycle tour of England for a press syndicate and are incidentally demonstrating that Saratoga trunks are an outgrown luxury. The entire amount of their luggage for the five months during which they will be away from home is confined to a bundle that may be strapped to their bicycles. This bundle, says the Philadelphia Ledger, contains two cambric wrappers, which are either night dresses or dressing gowns, an occasional demand; one silk union undergarment, one silk waist and a box of toilet articles. Their costumes consist of a full round waist, buttoned on the skirt, which is cut walking length and arranged with hooks and eyes to be caught up to a convenient length for riding. Three large pockets are hidden in the fullness of the skirt, and a fancy one for notebook and pencil adorns the front of the skirt. A wide belt and a jaunty Eton jacket, faithfully trimmed with braid, complete the costume. In place of the usual petticoats, Turkish trousers are worn. These are fashioned of the same material as the dress, and are extremely full and gathered to a ruffle below the knee. As the young women declare with a good deal of pride, these contain "just as many pockets as a man's," in which are to be stored away numerous small articles. The outer pockets will contain among things, pocket dictionary, itinerary of trip, pocket maps, etc. The trousers button to a black silk under waist, which takes the place of the white waist usually worn. It is made of wash material.

Longevity of Noted Men and Women. Darwin was an invalid all his days, and so were Young, Keats, Lamb, De Quincy, Burns, Dickens, Herbert Spencer, himself, has long been on the invalid list, suffering with indigestion. While deploring the invalidism and early death of so many prominent men we point with pride to the distinguished women who have reached the 70s and 80s. Amelia Opie, Miss Edgeworth, Caroline Herschel, Mary Somerville, Marj Mitchell, George Eliot, George Sand, Harriet Martineau, Harriet Beecher Stowe, Frances P. Ware, Charlotte Cushman, Fanny Kemble, Mrs. Emma Willard and her sister, Mrs. Almira Lincoln, both thinkers and writers on many scientific questions, and many others, have enjoyed sound health through long, laborious days.—Elizabeth Cady Stanton.

Pigeons With Green Peas.

Roast four pigeons for ten minutes. Take a ham of peas and split them, and lay them in a saucepan with three ounces of butter. As soon as the butter has melted, pour in a pint of young peas, add a little salt, a pinch of white pepper and two or three drops of the essential oil of sage. Stir for twenty minutes, shaking the pan frequently while cooking. Serve pigeons in the middle of the platter, surrounded by the peas and sauce.

Floating Island.

Beat thoroughly the whites of six eggs, add half a box of guava jelly, and half a tumbler of currant jelly. Beat together until well incorporated. Set on ice. Make a rich cream custard, and when cold and ready to serve, pour it into a pretty glass dish, and drop the island by tablespoonfuls on the custard. Serve it with cake or crackers that have been buttered and browned in the oven.

General Hints.

It is a great mistake to rodden by biting or brighten by wetting the lips. Aside from being an untidy habit, the lips are made sore and supersensitive to contagion.

Every member of the family should have his or her own towels for the toilet and the bath, to be considered as the exclusively individual property as the tooth brush.

It is dangerous to bathe after eating. At least two hours should elapse between a meal and a bath, and three hours between the dinner table and the toilet. Bathing in cold water immediately after eating injures digestion, and a hot bath has frequently been known to bring on an apoplectic fit.

A woman physician, with a dimpled face and a complexion like a mountain of snow, was recently called for "biliousness and a bad face." A pint of hot or cold water drunk every morning, to cleanse the stomach, esophagus, and intestines; ten minutes' walk before a mouthful of breakfast is eaten and ten hours' sleep every day of your life.

Women Everywhere.

Albani, the great cantatrice, is studying astronomy. She has been a great deal of a star herself.

Mrs. Little Devereux Blake treasures among her possessions a yellow brocade silk dress worn by Theodosia Burr.

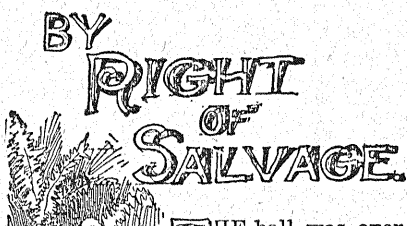

Whenever Mrs. John Jacob Astor gives an entertainment her favorite flower, the American Beauty rose, is very much in evidence.

Miss Anna Gould, daughter of the late Jay Gould, goes in for physical culture; she is a member of the Berkeley Ladies' Athletic Club.

Mark Twain's oldest daughter has written a clever satirical play dealing with financial matters. Her father calls it "an allegory on the banks of Connecticut."

For the first time in the history of public dinners a woman has responded to the toast, "The Army." The occasion was a dinner in honor of the British trained nurses, and the response was by Miss Loch, superintendent of the Indian army nursing service.

About forty French women have been decorated at different times by the government. The first was Serenette Virginie Ghequiere, who fought in the wars of the empire until she received a wound which led to the betrayal of her sex. Rosa Bonheur also wears the cross of the Legion of Honor.

BY RIGHT OF SALVAGE.

THE ball was over, and the many diverse types of people that can be found only at a fashionable seaside resort gradually emerged into individuality as the merrymakers slowly disintegrated. Now that the music had ceased, the dull, steady roar of the breakers became more plainly distinguishable. Some of the participants lingered on the wide piazzas of the hotel long after the greater number had gone to the rooms or had disappeared across the broad lawn in the direction of the cottages, the sounds of animated conversation and light laughter floating back out of the darkness. The knot of men gathered on the porch around a little vision of lace and flowers, and the petted beauty rested her dimpled hands upon the railing and supported herself by leaning her arms, upon one of which a great jeweled bracelet sparkled under the gaslight.

"Now, Miss Granby, you must, you really must give me that program as a souvenir." So fair a promise from one so fair must not be spoiled by breaking.

The young woman laughed gratefully. "Carl," she replied, somewhat irately, "do you see that Japanese lantern down at the end of the walk? That one in the shape of a dragon? I want you to bring it to me. Mr. Jones, Mr. De Funak and Willie Watkins will go with you to keep away the ghosts."

"To hear is to obey," quoted the messenger, "but what recovery can I get for doing your behest?"

"The consciousness of a good deed well done," laughingly retorted the maiden as she took the proffered arm of her sole remaining retainer and made a tiny obeisance.

"Lucky boys," remarked her escort, as he led her to a seat in the now almost deserted pavilion, beneath which the surf rolled and tumbled; "why don't you ask me to do something for you?"

"Now, Sir Granby, that is characteristic of you. When I send all that crowd of idlers away just to get a few minutes' peace Mr. Jack Romaine must fancy himself especially badly used."

The countenance of the young man underwent a sudden change. "You don't mean to say you sent the boys away just to give me the opportunity of being alone with you?"

"No, certainly not. I do not mean to say anything of the kind," retorted the young woman perversely, "I wouldn't say anything about it at all, but if you choose to draw your own conclusions, I am sure I cannot help it."

TO THE RESCUE!

"How strangely the ocean appears at night," she remarked, as they gazed across the white-capped waves toward the light house many miles away. "Ugh, I am afraid of the sea; take me away."

Romaine carefully adjusted a light shawl over her bare shoulders and obediently led her toward the hotel. "Ston," she cried imperiously, "let us sit down here," pointing to a bench half hidden by a clump of shrubbery.

"Just think how jolly it will be for poor Carl and I to sit here when you return, and I promised to sing for his special benefit that tiresome song, 'If You Love Me, Darling, Tell Me With Your Eyes.'"

"Do you think it quite right to treat your devoted admirer's remarks so lightly?" Romaine, seating himself at her side. There was a trace of scornful bitterness in the tone as well as the words of her reply. "Very devoted, indeed. To-night it was 'You really must give me that program as a souvenir.' This polka is mine." "May I not mark the seat?" she asked, happy by allowing me the lancers, and before I have been away a week half of them will have forgotten even my name."

She concluded with a little cynical laugh, which jarred upon her companion's ears. "Miss Granby, you are too severe. You know that I am at least one who will never forget this evening."

Slowly unfastening her eyes, their gaze met. "I believe you," she said, simply and quietly. A moment after she spoke again in her former jesting tone. "But then you did not even ask me to dance at all."

Next day at noon, when the bathing was at the highest and the fun at the maddest, no one notices a natly figure in a dark green robe, with her hair covered by a kerchief of the same hue, which separates from the crowd in the surf and valorously swims away toward the lifeboat. It is a long stretch even for a strong, able swimmer, but the young woman industriously plods away. She is now too far from the beach to be recognizable, but one by one the loungers notice her and point out with admiration the plucky swimmer, vaguely conjecturing who it can be.

A tall man in a bathing suit who has been talking to a group of acquaintances on the sands and at the same time lazily scanning the horizon with a pair of marine glasses, starts slightly as his gaze falls upon the distant swimmer. Looking intently for a moment, he tosses the glasses into the lap of the nearest of the party and, without a word, stalks off, leaving a somewhat nettled trio behind. His powerful strokes so fully force him through the breakers and he gains steadily upon the young woman, of whom only the green kerchief upon her head can now be seen. Straining every nerve and muscle, he keeps his eyes fixed upon that goal. Heavens! it has disappeared. Battling the waves with frenzy, he strives to increase his speed, but a faintness comes over him and for an instant sight fails. Then, strong and energetic, he catches a momentary glimpse of a white arm extended upward scarcely a dozen feet away.

With a last almost superhuman effort he leaps forward, diving under a huge wave and catches the drowning girl at least a fathom from the surface. "By jove, that was a narrow escape this morning," remarked a man that afternoon. "Who were they, I wonder?"

"The lady is Miss Granby, and the rescuer Jack Romaine. I fancy his wife would make a stir if she were here."

A year later Miss Granby was in London scoring wonderful success in grand opera. One day a flashily dressed woman, whose features bore evidence of the life she had led, confronted the young cantatrice at the stage door.

"So you are Louise Granby, are you?" she sneered. "Nice respectable person you must be to try to take away another woman's husband." "I do not understand you at all," replied the singer coldly, as she endeavored to pass to her carriage.

"Oh, you do not, eh," retorted the stranger; "possibly you will not be so dense when you learn I am the wife of Jack Romaine."

Louise Granby recoiled. "Impossible!" she ejaculated.

The woman laughed coarsely. "It's true," she replied, "and my faithful consort is here in London playing guardian angel to his darling wife." "The kind of angel?" she asked, with her words and continued: "He thinks a great deal of me, hubby does, almost as much as he does of you."

At this juncture a special officer happened upon the scene, thrust the creature to one side and escorted the half-fainting singer to her carriage.

It is summer again at the seaside. A pretty young woman with a score of trunks, satchels and bags all still bearing the labels, "Paris, first cabin," has just arrived at the hotel with her maid. In a little private parlor she greets a tall, swarthy man who came down only yesterday. He speaks in a low tone and calls her attention to a notice in a London paper three months old. She reads it slowly, and then looks up, her hazel eyes full of a sudden determination.

"Mr. Romaine, Jack," she murmurs softly, "now I mean to reward you for saving my life last summer. I have waited three years for this, and you will accept a gift—this late day."

His eyes answered eloquently. "This is what you caught that day," she whispered shyly, thrusting her tiny hand into his great one, first "and under all maritime customs it is yours by right of salvage."

And so they were married.

GETS IDEAS FOR PREACHERS.

A Collegian After Many Failures Has Finally Got a Good Job.

The Cincinnati Times-Star has found a man who holds the position of agent for a popular preacher. He was a college graduate and had studied law, theology, horses, music, the drama, and almost every other thing, all without success. Then he made the discovery that the preachers were the hardest pushed of all professional men for ideas to incorporate into their sermons. The old, old story is all right as a foundation, but so many changes have been rung in since the year 1 that it takes an extraordinary man to conceive an original view of it.

"Now, this," says the agent, "is what I do. A preacher hires me to consider about a dozen reports to him little incidents or queer ideas that strike me. He takes these and weaves them into his sermons. For instance, a preacher who has a large congregation with much visiting to do could not, if he were so inclined, visit all the public meetings, the resorts of gamblers and drunkards, the factories and slums of the city. I am the eyes through which he sees these things and using my information he speaks learnedly and intelligently of all phases of life and sets his congregation a wondering where he gets time to see so much. He is then enabled to interest every element in his congregation, appearing to the sportsman as a sportsman, to the athlete as an enthusiast in athletics, to the musician as a musician, and to the theatre-goer as one well versed in the plays of the day. I also tell him what the people are saying about him, and so he is enabled to talk to the different classes in a way that leads them—ignorant of my office as a go-between and think him really wonderful in reading their thoughts. I am liberal in my ideas. One month I serve a Methodist, the next may look at the same things again with Baptist's eyes, or a Presbyterian, or may do service for a heretic. I am at present working for a preacher in the city whose sermons are very much noted by the papers and who is noted for his original ideas, which I furnish, but for which I am well paid.

Freemason overture.

"I am in a dreadful fix. Do please lend me ten marks."

"But you have got a diamond ring; why don't you pawn it?"

"I cannot find it in my heart to do so, the ring is a memento of my deceased aunt."

"Really? Well, then, my money is a memento of my deceased father."

HOUSE BOATS IN ENGLAND.

Many Are Extravagantly Fitted Out. Though Economy Is Easily Possible.

The house boat is a comparatively recent invention, and, being patented, its multiplication and improvement go on yearly, until now some of them are veritable floating palaces, and a prince might envy the London sybarites who live in this style "upon the river" during the season. Lovers of fast yacht sailing will, perhaps, fail to see much to admire or desire in the commodious and slow-proceeding house boat, but, according to Frank Leslie's Monthly, the seeker for genuine enjoyment and luxury will find more comfort "to the square inch" aboard one than on the swiftest-speeding and most perfectly appointed yacht. An average Thames house boat may be twenty or thirty feet long, "cover all," as yachtsmen say, and is drawn, like a canal boat by horses plodding along a towpath by the river. Small-sized house boats are drawn by hand, which requires some skill on the part of the substitute for equine labor, and also are propelled by poles. The boat itself is a sort of barge, a large flat boat upon which is constructed the "house," a cabin of several apartments, comprising, according to the dimensions of the house boat, one or two sleeping rooms, a dining saloon and sitting-room, kitchen, bath and necessary offices and a roofed veranda, front and back. A flight of steps leads from the forward deck up to the top or "roof" of this one-storied house, and here, as on an upper deck, sheltered by a gay, multicolored awning, the passengers sit and amuse themselves variously, reading, chatting, sewing, sketching, as pleases individual fancy.

Some of these Thames house boats cost a "pretty penny" and are fitted up with every elegance and luxury that a fastidious and extravagant taste can require and modern art and ingenuity supply; yet "house-boating" is not necessarily an expensive luxury. A renovated old canal boat or barge, with the hold planked over, is sometimes made to do duty as a house boat. Upon the body of the boat a long room, some fifteen or twenty by seven or eight feet, is built, allowing passage ways of about two feet each side, so that the coxswain may pass safely from bow to stern of the boat. Lockers, which also serve as seats, are built around the inside. In the center the dining table, with folding leaves, is secured to the flooring, and at either end of the cabin or saloon are contrived staterooms of moderate size, with hinged bunks, wire frames for wash-stands, and square, oil-burned seats which are lockers in disguise. When the house is built and the roof tinned the whole boat is painted a glossy white or some attractive light color, her name lettered in bright colors across the stern, and the national colors run up the towpoles, which rises about five feet above the roof.

Smart But Thriftful.

He entered a small haberdashery store the other day, and called for some shirts.

"Vat size you wish?" asked the Hebrew proprietor. "Fourteen and a half!" Dot we haf not got, but you dakes der fourteen and a half! our size and soaks dem, and dey comes out your size, mine friend."

"Will dey shrink?" asked the customer, doubtfully.

"Will dey shrink? I dells you dey shrink like ter tell!"

He took them, but a day or two after he came back with blood in his eye and transfixing the proprietor with a glance, he said:

"I had these shirts soaking all night and they ain't shrunk a bit. They must be cotton."

"Did I tell you dot dey shrink?" inquired Isaacstein, meekly.

"Yes you did. You told me they'd shrink like the devil."

"Well, mine friend," said the Jew, triumphantly, "did you efer know ter tell to shrink at ennythings?"

Blifkins Wrote Balloon Stories.

"Mr. Blifkins," said the managing editor severely, "your services are no longer needed."

Mr. Blifkins tried to look resigned, but he felt compelled to venture the question: "Nothing the matter with my work, I hope?"

"Yes there is," snarled his late superior. "You wrote too many balloon stories."

"Why, you must be mistaken," expostulated Mr. Blifkins. "I never wrote a balloon story in my life. I—"

"Mr. Blifkins," the managing editor interrupted with a frown that indicated he was not to be corrected. "Mr. Blifkins," he repeated tartly. "I say you do write balloon stories. They're all full of wind."

And Mr. Blifkins was too shocked to reply.

Peduncle's Little Inconceivance.

Maud—How do you like that young Mr. Peduncle?

Irene—I don't like him at all. He's either very stupid or he's an impudent upstart. I said to him at the party last night that I didn't feel like eating anything, and he said: "Why, Miss Squires, you certainly look well enough to eat."

"Well, what of that?"

"Why, he should have said I looked good enough to eat."

THE SOLDIER'S VISION.

STRANGE SIGHT SEEN IN A CHURCH IN VIRGINIA.

Aroused From His Slumber in the Shelter of the Consecrated Building to Witness the Return of a Ghostly Wedding Party to Its Old Haunts.

In the early days of the late war we were living with our family in a great country house in one of the border counties of Virginia, so called, as it was near that line of flame, the sad, fatal, fluctuating war.

Near our house was a church, a noble edifice and monument of the days gone by, when stately ladies and grand gentlemen composed its congregation. The old church, built in early colonial times, had seen the growth of our strong, young republic, and near its hallowed precincts were buried the descendants of princes, nobles and titled dames, the old cavaliers of Virginia. The wind made sad music through its sounding galleries and the raindrops spattered like tears of memory on its ruined walls. The church had been used as a barracks by passing troops in two wars, who found safety from storms in its massive walls, and it could be used as a fortress of defense in sudden attack. In the swift flight of years it had fallen frequently into ruin and been again repaired, and once, while removing the rubbish, the workmen found a box hidden far back in an embrasure of the ruined tower, which contained a rich bridal garment, in a fashion of bygone years. The rare and costly fabric was blood-stained, and every evidence pointed to mysterious murder, but in an answer to the question, "Who did the deed?" "Who was the victim?" the echoes from nearly two centuries brought no reply.

One quiet night in June while we were sleeping after watching and praying for weary hours for loved ones in the army who might never return, we were startled by a knock at our front door, and on opening it a dark determined man stood there and asked for shelter, which in a Virginia house is never refused. His uniform was dark brown, the color of dead oak leaves; his cap was knit of black and gray worsted, the color of dead moss and lichens of forest trees; his rifle was long and bright, and a sheath knife glittered in his belt. As he stood in the weird light of the faintly dawning day he looked like a ghost of one of the old knights of Sherwood forest in the days of old Robin Hood, but we knew him for what he was, a Texas ranger so famous in the guerrilla warfare of the South. The color of his uniform so blended with the color of the woods that no one could suspect his presence.

After a hasty salutation he said: "I have seen strange things to-night, that make me doubt my own identity, and I have come to you, not with war stories and news of battles, but to ask the explanation of what I saw. I am acting as a scout for General Stuart and have been sent forward to obtain what information I can. I have passed quickly and quietly from one position to another, my presence not even suspected, and last night came on, tired out, I sought refuge in the old church so near you. I suppose I must have fallen asleep from utter weariness, for apparently I awoke to the sound of weird music, so plaintive and ghostly in its nature that all the superstitions I had learned from my negro nurse on the faraway old plantation possessed me at once.

It was that wild, low strain, a wedding march or a funeral dirge; in its tones, tenderness, regret, sorrow and pity seemed blended. All at once the massive doors of the old church were swung open by unseen hands and the dim moonlight lit the old building with a ghostly light, and a phantom train of stately cavaliers and pale, lovely women entered the ancient sanctuary.

Solemnly down the aisle the dim procession swept. I could hear the taps of the high-heeled shoes and the rustle of the ladies' trains as they passed over the old, damp stones, and the night winds too of their waving plumes, and the low, dirge-like music kept time to their stately stepping.

There was one among them fairer than all the rest. Surely the pearls in her golden hair and the shadowy veil had been arranged in delicate beauty by spirit hands; the soft, mournful eyes had a far-away look of grief, and at her side walked one dark and stern as midnight.

The procession paused before the ruined chancel, and it seemed to me that bridal vows and deep sobs were mingled with low imprecations and muttered curses; the wail of a sad, low voice, a quiver and a shudder passed through the phantom and the vision mingled with the shadows of the night.

"Thoroughly aroused, I arose and went out into the moonlight; far away in the east the first rosy tints of the new morning were faintly glowing, while the sentinel stars still kept watch over the sleeping earth;

but nature could not explain the ghostly meeting."

Such was the Texan's story. Was it an explanation of the moldering box that the workman found in the ruined tower, and were the blood-stained garments those of the murdered bride of long ago, who had come back to the old church in the midnight to act again the tragedy of her unknown sorrow and mysterious marriage, or was the vision only a phantom of the tired brain of the man whose life was spent amid scenes of blood, and the music only the soling of pines as they stood witnessing the desolation of the land, all the shuddering of blood, and helpless to do more than wail and toss their giant limbs in the winds?

IN THE HOP FIELDS.

Features of Life Among the Hop Pickers of New York.

Perhaps in no section of the United States is there a more prolific hop territory than may be found in the counties of Schoharie and Otsego, says the Albany Argus, where nearly every available foot of ground is studded with the poles under which thousands of young and old people annually earn and enjoy their vacations. Albany county, too, has a number of hop fields. The agents point out this feature of the hop-picking pursuit as the main argument in enlisting recruits.

Each yard is invariably equipped with a dancing pavilion, and in the evening the pickers, men and women, metamorphosed into oases, the fun, by the way, forms a large section of the recompense for the day's labor, the money consideration being of such slight proportions as to form no considerable matter of worry.

Albany generally furnishes the bulk of assistance to the farm owners in the persons of girls, women, young and old, men whose regular avocations do not demand their services at this season of the year, and who find this the only available means of taking a vacation.

One of the agents told an Argus man recently that the main troubles to be contended with in the business were the hop lice and the bug juice, the former on the vines and the latter in the pickers. There is no known remedy to suppress the hop lice evil, but the bug juice tenancy has been successfully contended with by the application of the summary dismissal principle.

In the vicinity of Cooperstown and all around the shores of Lake Otsego in the early September evenings the jolly parties in the various hop fields, may be heard in ulging in all kinds of gay and pleasurable proceedings, marked mainly by the sound of song and the squeak of the country violin as the various groups send vocal incense to Apollo, or beat in merry cadences their pedal tribute to Terpsichore.

Some of the pickers make lots of dollars at the hop yards. The ways taken by this money are various. Some who believe that industry, frugality and economy lead the way to wealth put by the proceeds of their hop-picking. Other pickers only go for the jolly times. The Albany police have a tradition that when the hop pickers come back arrests are plenty.
