A bell untimely, was not permitted, of man full of the Holy Ghost was he, course, to receive any response, and his name the synonym for all that is good, and kind and gracious, and benificent. Word comes to us of a scourge sweeping off hundreds and thousands of people, and there is a burden of sorrow. Sorrow on the sea and sorrow on the land. Coming into the house of prayer there may be no sign of sadness or sorrow, but where is the man who has not a conflict? Where is the soul that has not a struggle? And there is not a day of all the year when my text is not gloriously appropriate, and there is never an audience assembled on the planet where the text is not gloriously appropriate. "Cast thy burden upon the Lord, and he shall sustain thee.'

In the far east, wells of water are so infrequent that when a man owns a well he has a property of very great value, and sometimes battles have been fought for the possession of one well of water; but there is one well that every man owns, a deep well, a perennial well, a well of tears. If a man has not a burden on this shoulder he has a burden on the other shoulder.

There never has been a time when there have been such rivalries in busi-Somerville, Mass., is rejoicing in ness as now. It is hardware against the possession of a feminine military hardware, books rgainst books, chandlery against chandlery, imported article against imported article. A that the girls can snoot a bullet thousand stores in combat with anothstraighter than they can throw a er thousand stores. Never such advantage of light, never such variety of assortment, never so much splendor of show window, never so much adnewspaper man for having related roitness of salesmen, never so much that a certain citizen had died of acuteness of advertising, and amid all these severities of rivalry in business, newspaper man was correct. The how many men break down? Oh, the pneumonia may have invaded both burden on the shoulder! Oh, the burden on the heart!

You hear that it is avarice which drives these men of business through the street, and that is the commonly accepted idea. I do not believe a word of it. The vast multitude of these business men are toiling on for others. To educate their children, to put wing of protection over their households, to have something left so when they pass out of this life their wives and children will not have to go to the poor-energy in the street and store—the vast majority of that energy. Grip, Gouge & Co. do not do all the business. Some of us remember when the Central America was coming home from California it was wrecked. President Arthur's father-in-law was the heroic captain of that ship, and went down with most of the passengers. Some of them got off into the life-boats, but there was a young man returning from California who had a bag of gold in icine. If anybody had on him heavy house—that is the way I translate this his hand; and as the last boat shoved off from the ship that was to go down, that young man shouted to a comrade in the boat, "Here, John, catch this gold; there are three thousand dollars; take it home to my old mother, it will make her comfortable in her last days." Grip, Gouge & Co. do not do all the business of the world. Ah! my friend, do you say that God does not care anything about your worldly business? I tell you God knows more about it than you do. He knows all your perplexities; he knows what mortgaged is about to foreclose: he knows what note you can not pay; he knows what unsaleable goods you devil. have on your shelves; he knows all your trials, from the day you took that sale of the last yard of ribbon, and the God who helped David to be king, and who helped Daniel to be prime minister, and who helped Havelock to be a soldier, will help you to to see you through. When loss comes, and you find your property going, just take this book and put it down by your ledger and read of the eternal possessions that will come to you through our Lord Jesus Christ. And when your business partner betrays you and your friends turn against you, down on the table, put your Bible beside the insulting letter, and then read less forever when you may become the of the friendship of him who "sticketh closer than a brother." A young accountant in New York city got his accounts entangled. He knew he was honest, and yet he could not make his accounts come out right, and he toiled at them day and night until he was nearly frenzied. seemed by those books that something had been misappropriated, and he knew before God he was honest. The last day came. He knew if he could not make his accounts come out right, he would go into disgrace and go into banishment from the business establishment. He went over there very early, before there was anybody in the place, and he knelt down at the desk and said: "Oh, Lord, thou knowest I have tried to be honest, but I can not make these things come out right! Help me to-day—help me this morn-The young man arose, and ing!" hardly knowing why he did so, opened that lay on the deck or was a leaf containing a line of figures which explained everything. In other words, he cast his burden upon the Lord, and the Lord sustained him.

Young man, do you hear that? Oh, yes, God has a sympathy with anybody that is in any kind of toil! He knows how heavy is the hold of bricks that the workman carries up the ladder on the wall; he hears the pickaxe of the miner down in the coal shaft; he knows how strong the tempest strikes the sailor at the masthead; he sees the factory girl among the spindles, and knows how her arms ache; he sees the sewing woman in the fourth story, and knows how few pence she gets for making a garment; and louder than all the din and roar of the city comes the voice of a sympathetic God: 'Cast thy burden upon the Lord, and he shall sustain thee." Then there are a great many who have a weight of persecution and abuse upon them. Sometimes society gets a grudge against a man. All his motives are misinterpreted and all his good deeds are depreciated. With more virtue than some of the honored and applauded, he runs only against raillery and sharp criticism. When a man begins to go down, he has not only the force of natural gravitation, but a hundred bands to help him in the precipitation. Men are persecuted for their virtues and their successes. Germanicus said he had just as many bitter antagonists as he had adornments. The character sometimes is so lustrous that the weak eyes of envy and jealousy can not bear to look at it. It was their integrity that put Joseph in the pit, and Daniel in the den, and Shadrach in the fire, and sent John the Evangelist to deso ate Patmos, and Calvin to the castle of persecution, and John Huss to the stake, and Korah after Moses, and Saul after David, and Herod after Christ Be sure if you have anything to do for church or state, and you attempt it with all your soul, the lightning will strike you.

The world always has had a cross between two thieves for the one who comes to save it. High and holy enterprise has always been followed by abuse. The most sublime tragedy of self-sacrifice has come to burlesque. The graceful gait of virtue is always followed by scoff and grimace and travesty. The sweetest strain of poetry ever written has come to ridicuous parody, and as long as there are virtue and righteousnees in the world there will be something for iniquity to grin at All along the line of the iges, and in all lands, the cry has been: "Not this man, but Barabbas. Now, Barabbas was a robber." And what makes the persecutions of life worse, is that they com, from people whom you have helped, from those to whom you have loaned money or have started in business, or whom you rescued in some great crisis. I think it has been the history of all lives-the most acrimonious assault has come from those whom we have benefited, whom we have helped, and that makes it all the harder to bear.

Another burden some have to carry is the burden of bereavement. Ah! these are the troubles that wear us out. If we lose our property, by additional industry perhaps we may bring back the estranged fortune; if we lose our good name, perhaps by reformation of morals may achieve again reputation for integrity; but who will bring back the dear departed?

Then there are many who carry the burden of sin. Ah, we all carry it until in the appointed way that burden is lifted. We need no Bible to prove that the whole race is ruined. What a spectacle it would be if we could tear off the mask of human defilement. or beat a drum that would bring up the whole army of the world's transand the rapine and murder and the crime of all centuries! Ay, if I could sound the trumpet of resurrection in the soul of the best men in this audience and all the dead sins of the past should come up, we could not endure the sight. Sin, grim and dire, has put its clutch upon the immortal soul, and that clutch will never relax unless unless it be under the heel of him who came to destroy the works of the

Oh, to have a mountain of sin on the soul! Is there no way to have the hold of the first yard-stick down to burden moved? Oh, yes. 'Cast thy that sale of the last yard of ribbon, burden upon the Lord." The sinless one came to take the consequences of our sin! And I know he is in earnest. How do I know it? By the streaming temples and the streaming hands as discharge all your duties. He is going | he says, "Come unto me all ye who are weary and heavy laden, and I will give you rest."

Why will prodigals live on swine's husks when the robe and the ring and the father's welcome are ready? Why go wandering over the great Sahara desert of your sin when you are invited to the gardens of God, the trees just take the insulting letter, put it of life and the fountains of living water? Why be houseless and homesons and daughters of the Lord God Almighty?

Overheard in the Toy Closet. "Heigho!" said the Wax Doll, wearily. "I'm awfully tired. I sat through two dolls' teas this afternoon, and then stood on my head in the corner for one mortal hour. I don't know which is stupider—tea, or standing on one's head.

"They're both hard work," said the Rubber Doll. "But think of me. The baby left me in the bath-tub this morning, and I was under water for forty minutes. I never got such a soaking in my life. I'm afraid I've caught cold. Doesn't my whistle sound a little hoarse?"

"It is sort of squeaky," put in the Hoople; "but I'd rather be squeaky in my voice than dizzy. I was going round and round for an hour and a half steady this morning; and the worst part of my work is that the more I attend to my duties, the more the children hit me with a stick."

"I'm very sorry to have to hit you," said the Stick. "It hurts me just as much as it does you."

"I know, my dear," returned the Hoople. "You are as gentle with me as you can be. I suppose I ought to be glad you are not made of hard wood, like the Bat." "Yes, indeed, you ought," cried the ary Cure of Kidney Complaint-Fully Attested to by an Affidavit.

Almost everybody in Essex County knows Samuel Black, who has resided on the shores of Lake Erie, in the town of Kingsville, Ont. for the greater part of his life, Mr. Black is a much respected man in his community, and any business enterprise he endorsed was sufficient guarantee that such enterprise was one of stability and intrinsic merit. He is one of the few men in each community who succeed in inspiring the utmost confidence in all their undertakings. The patentee and proprietor of a well-known washing machine brought him in contact with everyone in the country for mile around. Not only prosperous but blessed wit the best of health, even at the age of three score and ten, until three years ago, when hi back suddenly gave way, his hard work seeme gressions-the deception, the fraud to tell on him severely, and he despaired of ever getting well again. From bad to wors until almost a cripple, he finally finds in Doan's Kidney Pills a relief and cure. Three boxes and away go the crutches! Read his own words and the affidavit which follows:

This is to certify that I have used Doan's Kidney Pills with great success. I commenced taking them for lame back, brought about by kidney trouble, and I can conscientiously certify that they will do all that is claimed for them. I am now 73 years of age. For years I was troubled with this complaint, but since taking the pills, which was about three years ago, I have never been so troubled. Before taking the pills I was almost a cripple, but now I feel as spry as ever, and capable of almost any endurance.

NOT ALLOWED TO REFORM. How Men Are Compelled to Remain Criminals.

If a horse falls on the street, men raise him up. If a man stumbles on life's pathway, men are too apt to spurn him and let him die. Those who have done wrong and repented often complain that the world is cold and merciless. It may not seem so to those of us who have received the golden mintage of life, who have not been under the world's ban and displeasure; but bitter experience is more able to testify of these things than we are. Speaking to a criminal who had served a sentence in one of our state prisons, I asked him how he did.

"I was guilty. I bore the penalty of my crime; but," he said, "men avoid me. If I sinned, I suffered. But men are not satisfied to postore me to their confidence."

'A jail bird!" The tit n's doom all too often have given years of repentance for the mad impulse of a moment, but an outcast once an outcast forever in his life.

It is difficult to make prison punishment reformatory, but if difficult, it is not impossible. And charity has no better, no more needed work than to give a man returning to society from a felon's cell every chance. Many criminals are made so be cause we partly demand they shall be criminals, says the New York Ledger. We say: You are a dog, a pariah, in whom I have no confidence, for whom we have no respect. Actions say this. And when a man has no repuapt to slide down. We deprive him of a mainspring of his morality.

It is well to be wise in treating the man who is down, but oh, don't be over prudent! There is charity which hesitates to relieve until the opportunity is lost.

"I stand here for the third time to be sentenced because no man has given me a chance since I first fell." So said an apparently hardened criminal to the judge of a state supreme court.

That man and every other like him, must have a chance. Give it to him, to use if he will do so, to abuse if still unreformed; but have it he must, ere our duty to God and man is complete. And when nearing the goal of life's journey, we look back upon the way our feet have trodden, our greatest satisfaction will hover around the place and time where and when we helped the man who was down.

He found no difficulty in getting leave of absence for a few days. He recalled the overheard gossip, sensitively, as he went about his preparations. Lieutenant Palmer had gone on leave of absence to visit his aged father in New Hampshire. Lyons, always on intimate visiting terms at Mrs. Palmer's apartments, went there more than ever, during Palmer's absence. Flossie was much attached to him. She was rather weakly, and was the object of her mother's tenderest solicitude. Every day, Lyons was to be seen, in the handsomest turnout he afforded himself, with Mrs. Palmer and Flossie, out for an airing. Of course, comment was to be expected, at the fort, but Lyons was quite unprepared for the malicious remarks that met his ear accidentally. He knew he was no favorite, that the officers called him foppish, because he had the means to indulge tastes and fancies that they were forced to suppress, and that he was considered a flirt among the ladies, but all this was trifling, compared with hearing his name linked with that of his friend's wife, in a dishonorable fashion.

He decided to slip away without good-bye, without even sending a note. Too many notes had passed the last few weeks. He knew now that every movement was watched, that prying servants had become suspicious and the consciousness of his own sentiments, which must be carefully repressed, made him more keenly sensitive. He would write a frank, open letter from New York, and offer his

But his conscientiously laid scheme was to be frustrated. He took his seat in the car, at the last moment. When the train glided out of the dim

Had the Fates conspired to head him off? Mrs. Palmer was bending over Flossie, anxiously. The next moment her eyes met his, with a bright glad look of recognition. He crossed to her side, in a moment,

"You on the train?" she said, as she crowded up the boxes and wraps on the seat opposite her, to make room for him. "I sent you a note, and expected you over. The doctor ordered Flossie away this very day, and I made no delay. She has been drooping dreadfully, with the heat. I have to take the train from New York to Equity, N. J. I don't want to alarm her father, and spoil his vacation if I can avoid it."

"I am going to New York also, in something of a hurry," he explained. Had she heard the gossip? Her unembarrassed manner and clear glance did not betray such knowledge. How sweet and true and womanly she looked, as she bent over Flossie anxiously. She had lost two darlings, and Flossie looked dangerously flushed and feverish. Lyons, watching them, cursed the idle gossip of the fort, felt resentfully certain that Palmer did not half appreciate his wife, called himself an idiot, and feeling pretty sore over the arrangeended by sharing the mother's anxiety over his little favorite.

"Won't you take me in your arms?" Flossie asked, and at his ready com- affair, on hearing a few of his repliance she laid her head against his breast contentedly.

He meant to see them aboard the train for Equity, and then leave them, me sing 'After the Ball.'" but Flossie seemed worse, and clung to him so piteously, because, as she said: "Mamma's arms were not strong enough to hold her," that he their destination.

Lieutenant Palmer opening the next morning's paper, was electrified by the startling headlines and the sensational article, that chronicled the elopement of Lieutenant Lyons and Mrs. Palmer!

It came upon him like a thunderclap. He winced under the minute circumstantial de lils, the references to his own domes. I life, the opinion that he and his wife did not "pull together" very well, the conjectures regarding his absence, since he had gone off two weeks ago, and left Lieutenant Lyons in possession of the

He had a deep reticent mature, while his wife was social, and demonstrative. He had unbounded faith in her, and had granted her large free dom in her male companionship, with a fearlessness, that seemed to challenge his social world to think

Had he made a mistake seemed to sometimes neglect Had she so far forgotten the dig of wifehood and motherhood, as to become infatuated with Lyons, who was so much more social and attractive than himself?

He took the 11 o'clock train for home. Along the route he fancied he was regarded curiously. He was the centre of a widening ripple, which was fast embracing the whole land in

In answer to his rather haughty questioning, he got information from the servants, that Mrs. Palmer had gone away with Flossie very suddenly. Their shrugs and significant glances, humiliated him. He forbore sensitively to question, except to make sure at the depot that the pair had taken the train for New York together. He followed them there.

He haunted the hotels and the Central depot. He wondered if he should not kill Lyons. He thought of Flossie growing up to blush for her mother, and was glad for the two lying under the daisies.

By a curious chance he succeeded in tracing them to the train for Equity. He found it a slow place, behind the times, and that the party he was in search of, were at Mrs. Hickson's four miles from the station.

He hired a team and driver. Under cover of a stretch of woodland near the house, he paid the man, dismissed him, and walked up to the low-roofed. rambling, roomy country-house, with doors and windows wide open.

He stepped over the low, worn front threshold, into a broad hall. A tableau met his eyes through an open door on

Palmer had no time to analyze the him, and flew to greet him, with a kiss. "Did you get my second telegram?" she questioned. "O, Fred," and she burst into tears upon his shoulder, "I-I-am afraid Flossie is going like the others. I delayed day after day to take her away, in spite of the doctor's warning."

Feeling rather unreal and shadowy, Lieutenant Palmer shook hands with his brother officer, who transferred Flossie to his arms.

The Great Hesper

BY FRANK BARRETT.

CHAPTER XVIII—CONTINUED. "Die! cursed dog, die!" shouted opened and slid away: Van Hoeck, with the frantic excitement of a man achieving at last the object of his life, as he attacked the upper rope with his knife. "Die, and know that all you cherish in the world shall be mine-wealth, and the woman you love. Die!"

And with that he severed the last strand, and I swept down through space. Clinging with desperate energy to the rope in my hands, I swung, cramping myself together in anticipation of a violent shock against the side of the precipice. Happily, the rock above projected a little, so that the blow was less severe than I expected. I rebounded. and swung to and fro like a pendulum in the pitchy darkness. For in order to get a firmer grasp upon the rope when I saw his intention of cutting it, I had dropped the torch, which fell like a spark of a rocket into the depths below.

What was I to do? I dared not try o pull myself hand over hand up the wet rope, for the slightest relaxation on my hold might allow the rope to slip, and I should be lost assuredly. "Dear, are you still there?" Lola called from above. "Yes," I replied. "Here is the rope—when I call you can trust yourself to it." At the same time I felt the knotted

"Not for long," shouted Van Hoeck from the opposite side, and I heard situation. His wife caught sight of the snap of the spring as he closed the breech-loader, and then the "click" as he cocked the piece. Would he shoot me or the girl? 1 asked myself in that moment He fired, and the ringing shot was above, and the cross piece on which more. She must have escaped, despite that cry, or she could not still have held on to the rope. But terrible as these thoughts that passed through my mind in those brief moments were, they were banished from my mind by a yet more terrific appeal to my senses.

Following almost immediately upon the crack of the rifle and Lola's cry, a mass of rock, probably disintegrated by the frost, and started from its place by the reverberation of the shot, slid down the face of the precipice, hurled against a rock, and some moments after fell with a deep

But as if this had been the keystone of the fabric that upheld the hungry, seated beside Lola. mighty weight of the enormous rock followed by the crumbling away and precipitation of others at intervals rapidly decreasing, their fall eventunating, and men are—susceptible, and ally becoming a continual downpour, marked now and then by a louder crash as some larger block gave way.

The roar of artillery, the peal of thunder, was not to be compared with the awful din as the great rock awe, "the Kid's gone." ie ked downward as the quartz shattering and grinding the opposand splitting the very heart of the mountain as it seemed. This fall was most violent at some distance away from us further down the ravine; only an occasional block, ground under the great mass as it jerked down, was shattered to pieces, and fell in dust and rubble about us.

The awful eruption had continued for some moments—scarcely so long as one might take to read this dea concert not many evenings ago, is scription—with increasing intensity. when suddenly, with an appalling crash, the great roof tilted up. I and then the upper lip of jagged rock reaching its highest elevation shot sidelong away, making visible the long strip of blue heaven between the towering peaks of the mountain. One last "pong" as the rock wedged itself afresh lower down the precipice, and then all was still. The sight of the blue sky, the sense felt that he must accompany them to warlike demonstration.—Detroit Free of relief, were too much for me. I trembled violently, and for a moment my dear," said he.

I thought I must relinquish my hold. But a piteous cry from Lola nerved me to fresh effort.

I saw now the two cut ropes, and grasping one in each hand, I drew myself up, using the knotted rope as slightly as I could; and so presently scrambled upon the ledge.

Lola was lying upon the ground drawn against the rock round which she had passed the knotted cord. The ball had struck her and she had fallen, but the devoted girl had passed the noose round her body. and so saved my life for the second time. I knelt beside her, and raised her head. She opened her beautiful eyes, and smiled, as she took my hand. She could do no more.

CHAPTER XIX. "I knowed it must go one day.

How fares it, pardner?" called Brace from the opposite ledge. Looking across, I saw him sitting on the bowlder binding his arm with his neckcloth.

"Lola is hit. The villain has done his work," I said. "He'll never do no more," Brace inswered, pointing up the ledge. Van Hoeck had tried to escape the way he came, after shooting Lola, and had got some distance along the ledge when the great rock

It was possible for Brace to reach him by going along the ledge. "Will you save him?" I asked.

"Not I pardner," he replied. "I leave him to providence, be his end what it may. The shot he fired at my poor youngster started the concern, and brought the whole thing down. 'Tis God Almighty's judge-

Van Hoeck let the rifle slip from his hand; how insignificant to us seemed the sound that came up from below, as the weapon struck a rock, after the mighty discord that had thundered in our ears, and yet to him how terribly significant! We could see his hand quivering

I held my breath; it seemed minutes before that hollow "pong" reached our ears, telling us that Van Hoeck was gone forever, and the Great Hesper with him.

There was cord, and to spare, in the coils. Weigthing one end with followed by a sharp cry of pain from a stone, I threw an end across to Brace, and when the ropes were I stood gave a little jerk, but no knotted, and a bridge once more formed, he crossed, and knelt down

We made a mattress of the rugs on the smoothest part of the rock and attempted to lift her upon it. But the movement gave her pain, and she motioned us to desist. Then pointing upwards she made signs for us to leave her.

"Not while you are with us, my poor gel," said her father, with more tenderness than I had ever heard in his voice.

We had the flask, and some food in a wallet. We eat when we were Then exhausted with fatigue, and the terrible strain we had been subjected to, we unconsciously fell asleep, with our backs resting against the rock. The last thing of which I was conscious was the pressing of Lola's lips upon my hand.

There was a ing rocks, and bursting away huge little stain of blood upon the rockfragments that struck from side to a drop further on, another close to side as they hurtled down, tearing the edge of the platform. She had kept her promise—she had been good: and now the sufferings of her short life were ended.

"She knowed it was no good our waitin'-p or little cuss.' I felt something in my hand; opening it I found a ring 1 had bought for Loia. She had slipped it there before she went.

Edith was charmed with all she saw.

"Is this my home?" she asked. I turned to Sir Edmund. "Well, we must go through the formality of looking at the books,

I had no hesitation in showing them, and when he had seen the splendid results they already showed, he formally sanctioned a renewal of our engegament; but we had not waited for that consent to let our hearts join in unconstrained delight. Our second engagement was happily longer than the first, but we were married the week after the vines were cleared.

Brace was at our wedding break-fast. When it was over, he took some of the flowers from the table, and disappeared for some days. I knew how he had spent the brief holiday. If I had entertained any doubt, it would have been dispelled when, on his return, he took the old agreement from his pocket and pointed to the postscript:

"It is understood between the bove partners that, in the event of a lucky find, the Kid shall not be forgotten."

And indeed in my wife I had found dearer prize than any I had dreamed of when I signed the com-

Bonaparte "A Supremely Selfish and

NAPOLEON AT PLAY.

The diary describing the journey of Napoleon to St. Helena appears in the Century. It gives more or less significant details of Bonaparte's conversations, and presenting the exile, says the New York Tribune, as a supremely selfish and particularly vulgar little man. During the first two months of his detention in the island he lived in a small detached building near the cottage of a Mr. Balcombe, who had two young daughters in their early teens. "These young ladies," says Mr. Glover, "in a few days occame perfectly familiar, and the general seemed highly pleased with their naivete, particularly with that of the younger (a pretty girl, and a most complete romp when out of the sight of her father). He occasionally so completely laid aside his imperial dignity as to romp with these young ladies, who during such diversions as 'blind man's buff,' etc., called him by the familiar appellation of Boney; indeed the younger, who appeared his favorite, said anything and everything to him her lively imagination dictated, asking every possible question, and he answered without the slightest apparent reserve." There is not much trace of the grand, gloomy, and peculiar captive about this picture.

A Small Boy's Big Scheme.

"Gent'men," said a bright-eyed, dirty-faced boy about 10 years old, who invaded a lawyer's office. 'I ain't beggin', but I'm out o' work an' I'm tryin' to borrow 'nough money to buy a gun."

"What do you want of a gun?" inquired one of the clerks. "Want to make a livin' wid it. I don't want a 'xpensive gun. I know wher' I can git one fur a dollar nat. an' I'll pay it back in two weeks. will, honest."

"How are you going to make living with a cheap gun, my boy?" "Killin' English sparrers. I'm one o' de unemployed, but I ain't got down to soup houses vit. I'll eat de birds an' git two cents apiece fur de heads. See?" He got the dollar and a half.

Vocal Capacity. Fine voices are seldom found in a country where fish or meat diet prevails. Those Italians who eat the most fish (those of Naples and Genoa) have few fine singers among them. The sweet voices are found in the Irish women of the country, and not of the towns. Norway is not a country of singers, because they eat too much fish; but Sweden is a country of grain and song. The carnivorous birds croak; grain-eating birds sing.

"Where ye going?" said one small boy to another. "Ter the foot-ball game."

"So'm I. My big brother's goin' ter take me.' "Humph. My big brother wouldn't go to a foot-ball game."

In Spite of Hard Times.

The decade between 1880 and 1890 was one of hardship and depression for farmers. ret census bulletins Nos 378 and 380 show that in spite of hard times our agricultural interests have increased steadily and enormously in value. The live stock industry perhaps suffered more than any other. The embargo against American pork was on its severity in Europe, and there was all the discrimination against other American meats that could be decently made by the foreign governments; consequently there were unprecendentedly low prices for our live stock at home and abroad. Pork suffered more than any other meat products, yet the hogs of the country increased in number nearly 10.000,-000, or 20.40 per cent. Horses increased in number 44.53 per cent, although never in the history of the world has horse traction been superseded by machine motive power so rapidly as during the last decade. The total value of live stock of all kinds increased 47.21 per cent. Live stock increased indeed much more than general farm products, showing that agriculturists are turning from grain raising somewhat to that of domestic animals. The increase of farm products was only 11.19 per cent since 1880.

The dairy industry leaped forward with a great bound. The first dairy state is still New York, with an annual value of creamery products amounting to $14,include only the butter, cheese, etc., made farms are not counted here. The amount in other villages. of butter produced on farms in the whole country, aside from creameries, was 1,024,233,468 pounds, an increase since 1880 of 31.78 per-cent, although the butter factories, not to speak of oleomarga- for twenty years but is unable to atrine, never increased so rapidly as from tend the meetings of the society now, as she is quite sick. 1880 to 1890. Evidently this is going to be the greatest dairy country of the world. It ought to be. Farm made cheese, on the other hand, decreased in quantity 81.33 per cent, showing that cheesemakng is given over mainly to the factories. The sheep and wool industry makes the poorest showing of all. The number of sheep in the country has increased since 1880 only 2.11 per cent. That looks ing before long. An American Academy of Sciences. Hon. Ainsworth R. Spofford, librarian of congress, has evolved an idea that among some as to what class they be-will waken a responsive thrill in every longed to. It had not entered our American breast. He has prepared a American breast. He has prepared a plan for the establishment of an American academy of arts and sciences. A hill asking the approval of congress as if there might be a boom in sheep rais-the scheme has already been laid before the house of representatives. It is to be sincerely hoped the bill will become a law without delay.

Librarian Spofford proposes to limit the number of members of our academy to 25. Perhaps he thinks we have not. nor can we have at any time in this country, more than 25 persons sufficiently distinguished in arts and sciences to be entitled to honor at the hands of the nation. There Mr. Spofford is wrong. The number should be 50, with provision that it should not be filled up in a hurry. The Spofford idea as laid down in the congressional bill is that a committee of six-three senators and three representatives—shall lay their heads together and cleet the first five members of the new Case, left with a carload of stock for academy from among the Americans illustrious for their services to literature, science, fine arts or invention. These five shall in turn choose 20 comrades, and this will be the beginning of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences.

We ought to have it. Other nations covering. thus distinguish intellectual achievement. The highest honor in France today-higher even than being president of the republic-is to be a member of the academy.

Chicago has evolved a new idea in city rapid transit. The Northwestern Elethe right of way and spending millions of dollars in the operation to pass its trains directly through the second stories of business houses along the route to the heart of the city. Thus a central depot be constructed, and the streets will not be obstructed or darkened. It will practically be an elevated arcade road, with the buildings along the route constituting the arches. This will not interfere with the business of those who occupy the houses, and if they are paid enough for the right of way they will probably not object. The whole plan looks as if it would work well enough after people become used to it.

It is encouraging to find that the gold production of Colorado is increasing. Last year the mines yielded $2,500,000 more than the year before, and it is confidently expected the addition to the amount will be still greater this year. Perhaps the increase will be enough to cover a single one of the large gold shipments that go out of New York from time to time every year. On the average the Colorado gold mines produce nearly if not quite $1,000,000 a month.

It was left for Senator John Sherman to discover that the income tax bill as passed by the house could be interpreted to impose a tax on building association funds. He recommended amending the bill so it should explicitly exempt bona fide building and loan associations in which wage earners deposited their savings for the purpose of getting homes for Michigan Woman's Christian Temperanc Union Convention Held at Ann Arbor -Supreme Court Strikes a Blow a Tax Title Speculators. - Items.

Woman's Christian Temperance Union. The twentieth annual meeting of the Michigan Woman's Christian Temper ance union was held in the Presbyterian church at Ann Arbor. There were 400 delegates present, including all the leading temperance workers of the state. Mrs. Mary T. Lathrap, of Jackson, the president of the union, presided at the meetings.

Reports from committees and district presidents showed the following facts bout the union: Total membership in Michigan, 7,779; honorary membership, 676; the number of unions in the state, 425, and Loyal Temperance legions, 110. The unions that showed an increase in membership during the year numbered 113, while 71 reported a decrease and the remainder just about held their own. The amount raised by the unions during the year is $14.850.57 The lines of work carried on are evangelical, preventive, educational, legal and social. The state press and churches have treated the union fairly and the temperance sentiment in the state has increased. The Mary T. ALathrap hall at Hackley park, Muskegon, had been finished during the year. The Michigan Union, the official organ of the association, had been conducted at a small profit during the year.

President Mary T. Lathrap found considerable to object to in the result of the unions' work and offered several recommendations, among which were the following: That we oppose the the local option, state regulation and Gothenberg systems as having within them the permission and partnership of the nation and state: that we seek closer alliance with other societies of women, that the influence of our principles may be brought to bear in the study of great public questions; that every token of God's providence points to the speedy enfranchisement of women; that we stand for the truth, and as an organization we show greater activity and help on every plan that looks to the ballot for woman in Michigan. The election of officers was practically unanimous. All the old officers excepting the treasurer, who refused a re-election, were elected and were as follows: Mrs. Mary T. Lathrap, Jackson, president; Mrs. Julia R. Parish, Bay City, corresponding secretary Mrs. Lizzie M. Johnson, Flint, recording secretary; Mrs. Jennie Voorhees. Ann Arbor, treasurer. Mrs. Emma H. May, Clio, was elected delegate-at-large to the national convention to be held in Cleveland in November.

Hard Blow at Tax Title Speculators. Tax title speculators, who have been in clover for some time, received another heavy knockout in the Michigan supreme court. The effect of the court's decision will be to render thousands of tax title deeds for the years 1887, 1888, 1889 and 1890 invalid. The court holds, in brief, that the tax laws years mentioned required the personal service of subpenas on residents of the state wherever possible, and it is a matter of common knowledge that in many cases the only notice given was by publication.

'Tis an Ill Wind, Etc.

Last year great armies of grasshop-pers infested the Grand Traverse region, and in some localities the crops were destroyed. They were so raven-ous they would attack fences and plow handles and eat great holes in soned hardwood. This army deposited their eggs, and for two weeks they had been hatching out. Millions o them had been noticed, but since the recent storm search has been mad and not a sign of one grasshopper can be found, for the cold rain and snow has destroyed them.

Ellis Downed by the Supreme Court.

The Michigan supreme court has filed an opinion in the case of Gov. Rich against the board of state canwassers. A mandamus is issued di recting the board to convene and re canvass the vote of 1891 on the Ellis salary amendment, making the correc tion in the vote of Gratiot and Gogebio counties. This will show a majority against the amendment instead of for it, and possibly deprive Atty-Gen. Ellis of nearly $5,000 salary he has therefore illegally drawn since 1891.

They Let Him Die.

Thomas McClough, aged 65 years, a farmer residing near Romulus, died from self-administered poison. An inquest was held. From the condition of the stomach it was evidently arsenical poisoning. From testimony taken from the members of the family it seems that they were aware that he had taken poison, but complying with his request, they neglected calling a physician until too late. The jury re turned a verdict of suicide.

Reed City Official in Trouble. Judge of Probate Lou B. W. Winsor, of Reed City, has sent his resignation to Gov. Rich. Fortunately no passengers were killed, although some were bruised. The cars were fired and entirely consumed. About 150 feet of track were torn up.

Huge Treasury Deficit.

Washington: The present depleted condition of the treasury and the discouraging outlook for the future are a source of considerable anxiety to the officials of the treasury department. Already the gold reserve, which had been brought up by the last bond issue to $107,390,842, has been reduced by exportations since March 10 to less than $80,000,000, with no indications that the foreign demand will cease until it has reached a much lower point. With the exception of the gold reserve, and counting every available dollar in the vaults in the treasury, the government has less than $80,000,000 with which to meet its obligations. Nor does the future show any signs of encouragement. On the contrary, the probable deficit of $6,000,000 for the month of May is likely to be increased by $15,-000,000 during the two succeeding months. The closest calculation that can now be made shows that the deficit for the fiscal year ending June 30 will be approximately $74,500,000.

Two Battles in Oklahoma

Oklahoma City, O. T.: The city of Enid recently retaliated for alleged discrimination on the part of the Rock Island road by prohibiting trains from than six miles an hour running more in the city limits. A freight train running 30 miles an hour broke in two and was forced to stop. Officers boarded the train to arrest the train men. The latter defended themselves, with couping pins and drove the officers off. Several of the latter were hurt, and wo have since died.

El Reno, O. T.: A posse attempted to capture two supposed train robbers at Yukon. A battle ensued, in which citizens named Farish, Nelson and Snyder were shot. Nelson will probably ecover, but the others will die. One of the robbers was shot off his horse and captured after a terrible fight. The other, although wounded, managed to escape. They are supposed to belong to the Dalton gang.

Amalgamated Assoc ation Officers.

The convention of the Amalgamated Association of Steel Workers was held at Cleveland. The election of officers resulted as follows: President, M. M. Garland, Pittsburg, Pa.; secretary, J. C. Kilgallon, Pittsburg; assistant secretary, Steven Madden, Pittsburg; D. Mullane, Youngstown, O.; Jol Pierce, Pittsburg; vice-presidents district, W. H. Carney; second district, Harry Hocking; third district, Rees W. Prosser; fourth district, J. D. Hickey; fifth district, Thomas Hanley; sixth district, P. H. McEvey; seventh district, C. H. Drumheller. President Garland and Jas. Brittel, of Mingo Junction, O., were chosen delegates to the next annual convention of the American Federation of Labor.

Kansas Town in Danger.

The Missouri river at Atchison, Kan. rose six feet within 48 hours. was great damage in East Atchison The town has been protected heretofore by a strip of land known as the "point," and which extended for several yards into the river. This "point" has been cut away, however, and the main current of the stream strikes the town almost directly from the north. Great excitement prevails there, and a great many persons have moved to the of the river for safety. Store buildings and houses which stood in the north end of the village are being torn down or moved by their owners.

Anthracite Mines Flooded.

The anthracite coal trade, like the bituminous trade, is at a standstill though from vastly different causes. The floods throughout the anthracite region in Pennsylvania have flooded many of the mines, forcing a suspension of work until the flooded mines can be relieved of the surplus of water. The result of the enforced stoppage, together with the curtailed production of the anthracite mining companies for several months past, has produced a scarcity of hard coal. Especially is this the case with the Reading company, which has been compelled within the past few days to decline orders.

They Didn't Want to Go to Prison. One of the boldest jail deliveries occurred at Cleveland at the county jail. Robert Clark, Geo. Anderson and Charles Snow, who had just been sentenced to the penitentiary for burglary, sawed through iron window bars an a blanket let themselves down to the roof of the court house annex, from which they easily made their escape. Snow and Anderson had just been tabtenced to seven years in the penitentiary for robbing the Home Security of $10,000 worth of diamonds and jewelry. Protection Causes a Failure London: The Standard says: Craven & Craven, worsted spinners of Bradford, have failed with liabilities amounting to £200,000. The assets are unknown. Several large failures are expected as the trade of the town has been half ruined by the McKinley bill and the delay in arranging a new American tariff.

BLOODSHED AT MINES

FIGHTING AT THE COAL MINES IN ILLINOIS.

Croops Called Out to Prevent Further vania in Which Five were Killed.

Strike Troubles in Illinois Coal Regions Lasalle, Ill: A mob of 1,000 coal strikers, none of them English speaking, raided the shaft of the Lasalle County Carbon Co. here. Sheriff Tayor warned them that they must keep back, but the mob with a wild shout rushed forward, throwing a volley of bricks and stones at the deputies. Sheriff Taylor was knocked down and badly beaten and kicked. Two deputies were wounded by bullets and one may result fatally. Three strikers were arrested, but one of them was released on the men threatening to tear down the fail and burn the city hall. A wild scene followed the lib eration. The mob marched down First street with the rescued man ahead, and, amid cries of "Vive l'anar chie" and similar expressions, deride 1 the respectable citizens and shouted lefiance to the officers.

Centralia, Ill: About 500 striking niners from Dequoin and the St. Johns mine arrived here and proceeded to the Big Four mine in the northern limits of the city. They demolished considerable machinery and filled the shaft with about fifteen feet of debris. Every glass and sash in the buildings were smashed. The total damage is about $2,000. The Big Four mine has for the past three days been running with about 30 men.

The striking miners held a meeting and left for Odin, eight miles north to shut down the mine there. The sheriff and about 50 deputies equipped with Winchesters took a special train and reached the scene ahead of the strikers who were given a warm reeption. Several shots were fired and the mob retreated. About 80 of them were captured. No one was injured workers of Pennsylvania has again been the cause of bloodshed. The Washington Coke company at Sickle secured enough men to start their plant, and had been running several lays when about 2,000 strikers, with flags and bands, and most all armed marched to the works and camped over night. At early dawn they accosted the workers going to the pit and a number were about to comply with the appeals when a force of depu ties armed with Winchesters made a rush for the men. In this part of the performance a deputy sheriff fired a shot, which opened up the battle. There was volley after volley fired by each side at close range. The strikers stood their ground while their comrades were falling one by one, but their ammunition giving out, and it equiring too much time to reload the shotguns and rifles, they were forced to give up the fight and flee to escape the rain of bullets from the fifty Win chesters. The wounded men, who fell under the first volley from the depuies, were taken off the field by the retreating strikers. Four dead strikers were left on the field. One deputy was fatally wounded. From all report it seems that the assault by the depu-ties was entirely unprovoked, but they had been instructed by the company to shoot to kill.

Sixty-six strikers were placed under arrest and put in box cars, which were closely nailed up, and kept there until evening, when they were brought to the jail in charge of deputies. The men arrested are nearly all native-born citizens, intelligent looking, and several of them are known to be men of nfluence and good reputation in the district. The situation at the mines is alarming and more serious trouble is expected.

Democrats, Grand Rapids, June 28. The meeting of the Democratic State Central committee for the purpose of naming the time and place of the state convention was held at the Hotel Cadillac, Detroit. After a great deal of debate Grand Rapids was selected and June 28 named as the date. The committee was instructed to include the call the nomination of two candidates for United States senator. Chair man Campau therefore issued a call for the convention at the above place inch and a half thick and by means of and time. Every county in the state is entitled to one delegate for each 500 votes cast for governor at the last general election, and one additional dele gate for a fraction of not less that 250 votes. CONGRESSIONAL NEWS.

speech was the feature of the session. Mr. Gorman and Mr. Brice have been credited by Gorman and Mr. Brice have been credited by the opposition with the joint authorship of the compromise amendments which consolidated the Democratic side, and Mr. Gorman especially has been subjected to much criticism both in and out of the Senate. This speech, replying in a measure to the attacks that had been made upon him, explaining the necessity for the compromise and defending the theory upon which the modified bill, now before the Senate, was constructed, attracted intense interest. It was regarded as an exceedingly able exposiwas constructed, attracted intense interest. It was regarded as an exceedingly able exposition of the conservatives. In answer to the charges of the Republicans, Mr. Gorman asserted that the bill had been constructed on the Democratic theory of a tariff for revenue with such incidental protection as Mr. Gorman asserted that the bill had been constructed on the Democratic theory of a tariff for revenue with such incidental protection as could be given consistently to the industries of the country. It followed strictly the course marked out by President Cleveland in his letter of acceptance upon which he was re-elected and the Democrats were intrusted with full power. Senator Gorman denied that any trust had dictated any part of any schedule of this bill. Justice to Louisiana had required the retention of the sug ir bounty. Upon the subject of the income tax Senator Gorman said: "In the matter of internal revenue, I may say that, personally, I am in full accord with the sentiments so ably and so eloquently expressed by the senators from New York and New Jersey regarding the income tax. Like them, I consider that it served its purpose as a war tax and has no fitting place in our fiscal system in a time of peace. I could not, I say frankly, vote conscientiously or consistenly with my judgment and convictions to make this method of taxation a part of our settled policy." Mr. Aldrich followed Mr. Gorman, commenting sareastically upon what the latter had said regarding compromises. Mr. Teller began a speech. He said he was interested in learning that the Democratic party was standing, not on the Chicago platform, but on Mr. Cleveland's platform. He had known that the party had abandoned the Chicago platform as far as silver was concerned at Mr. Cleveland's dictation, but he had now learned for the first time that Mr. Cleveland's utterances took precedence over the party platform on the tariff. Still, even after what Mr. Gorman had said, he was in doubt as to the condition of the Democratic side. The Maryland Senator had not said that all the Democrats would support the bill. He had said that a majority of the Senate would support it. How many Populists were counted on Aby. Mr. Gorman, to make a majority of the Senate? Were there any back-sliders among the Democrats? These were all interesting questions and in ord the tariff bill on the table. Mr. Teller's motion was like a bombshell. It created consternation on both sides. The bells rang and the pages were sent scurrying through the corridors to drum up every available Senator in order that the full strength might be polled on the event. The result of the ballot was ayes 28, nays 38. House.—Legislative appropriation bill. Nothing of importance transacted. SENATE.-135th day-Mr. Kyle urged the pas-

the mob retreated. About 80 of them were captured. No one was injured seriously.

LATER.—Centralia, Ill: Despite their defeat and the capture of a quarter of their number at Odin the strikers made another attack on the Centralia miners. Just about 3 o'clock in the morning about 50 of the strikers crept stealthily toward the mines which had been left lightly guarded. Suddenly there was a tremendous fusilade of bullets against the mine company's office. The guards returned the fire with their Winchesters, and the attackers took to their heels. So far as known no one was hurt. Assistance soon came to the guards and the strikers of militia arrived and went into camp. The presence of the troops had a quieting effect upon the strikers, but there were many small outbreaks and as the excitement is by no means past a serious conflict seems to be the only possible outcome.

More Bloodshed in the Pennsylvania age of his resolution declaring that it was not the purpose of the United States to use force consideration of the bin and it was reported to the house. The the appropriations for the civil service. The Hayes anti-docking amendment was defeated. The amendment of Mt. Enlose striking out the appropriation for the civil service commission was lost, amid Republican applause. The legislative bill was then passed. The House bill to incorporate the supreme lodge of Knights of Pythias was passed. A resolution was adopted setting aside Saturday, June 22, for culogies on the late Representative Houk, of Ohio.

> SENATE.-136th day.-The report of the Sente committee appointed to investigate the charges of attempts to bribe Senators to vote against the tariff bill and the charges of improper influences being used in connection with the sugar schedule was submitted so far as concerns the attempted bribery of Senators Hunton and Kyle. The report, after reciting the facts of Buttz's proffer of money to the son of Senator Hunton and to Senator Kyle, says: "Your committee are abandantly justified in stating that the facts have been established by the evidence, notwithstanding the denial on the part of Charles W. Buttz. There is no evidence to show the truth of Mr. Buttz's statement to Senator Kyle and to Mr. Eppa Hunton. Jr. that a syndicate of bankers and capitalists had raised a sum of money to be used for the purpose of defeating the pending tariff bill, or that there was an agent of such a syndicate in Washington for that purpose. Buttz denies that he made any such statement or that he had or has any knowledge of the existence of such a syndicate, or that he was the agent or representative of any one. He further denies that he has any money himself." The tariff bill debate was resumed and considerable progress made with the medal schedule. Holly against the tariff bill and the charges of imbill debate was resumed and considerable progress made with the medal schedule. HOUSE,—Nothing of importance done, the time being spent in committee of the whole on private bills. SENATE .- 137th day-Senator Hill, of New York; made a speech attacking the proposed duty of three-fourths of a cent per pound on lead ore and lead silver-bearing ore, and generally arraigning his Democratic colleagues for their refusal to stand by the Democratic doctrine of free raw materials. Mr. Vest, of Missouri, and Mr. Dubois, of Idaho, replied to Mr. Hill. His amendment was lost by a vote of 3 ayes to 52 nayes. Mr. Hill. rose, as if desirous of making an extended speech, but contented himself by remarking that he "desired to congratulate the distinguished Senator from Maryland upon the fact that he was now leading both sides of the Senate chamber with great unanimity." Senator Gorman, at whom ahis taunt was, aimed, was absent from the chamber and hothing was sake in response ito it except by Senator Aldrich. REIGN OF TERROR.

Crippie Creek Mine Strikers Explode Load of Giant Powder-11 Killed,

Eleven men killed, with a strong probability that the number of dead will be increased when all is known. is the record of the first day of trouble in the gold mines at Cripple Creek, Col., where a strike for better wages is on, although real fighting had not yet begun, as the deputies were awaiting reinforcements before begin ning active operations. Eleven started to work in the Strong mine, on Bat-tle Mountain. Shortly afterwards a large party of strikers blew up the shaft house with powder, causing a loss of $25,000, and then dropped 100 pounds of giant powder down the shaft, which was also exploded, killing all the inmates. Sixteen men who had been engaged to work in the Independence mine were surrounded and forced to surrender. They were all heavily armed and strikers took possession of heir weapons.

When the full force of deputies are inally massed and the two forces come loubtless be fought.

Dun & Co.'s weekly re view of trade says: Storms and floods, pro-longed strikes and large exports of gold have done their utmost to give business a vacation. But the wants unsatisfied during the past year, elated and much lessened, and yet greate than those of any other nation, have cau volume of trade quite large for the season. Prices of products still tend downward without much speculation. It is not surprising that farmers retain wheat at present prices where standing large receipts and insignificant ex-ports. Cotton has recovered a shade, though receipts for the week were nearly as large as receipts for the week were nearly as large as last year and exports much smaller. Pork products all declined with heavy receipts, and coffee is also lower. The astonishing cheapness of wheat and cotton will affect the rapidity of movement in the fall, and will also directly lessen the amount of money required in moving the crops. While the iron industry especially, and many others to some extent, have been restricted by scarcity of coal and coke, the number of works resuming has been greater than the numbers stopping from other causes. But it is a symptom not to be overlooked that the demand for manufactured products, instead of increasing, appears for the moment rather smaller than before. The number of failures reported the past week is 183 in Canada 28 against 14 last year, and again there are noted scarcely any of importance.

The unfavorable conditions prevailing in com-mercial and industrial circles throughout the country, together with the prospect for no ma terial improvement during the summer, mark the present season as probably the dullest relatively for 20 years. At no time since panic and business depression manifested themselves last year have reports as to the sales of mer-chandise, the manufacture of staple goods and the indiscretion of manufacture parelly to the indisposition of merchants generally to buy except for absolutely immediate wants, buy except for absolutely immediate wants, been so pronounced and so general throughout the country as during the past few weeks. Superficial examinations of business conditions as to the nearby future of trade have not been wanting, but, as a matter of fact, based on comprehensive and careful examination, the next few months promise a continuance if not an intensitying of existing conditions of extreme dullness and depression. The total number of industrial employes idle as a result of coal scarcity is placed at 210,000. In other industrial lines 25,000 men are reported idle as a result of strikes, making the total number now idle 235,000. An encouraging industrial feature is the probable settlement of next season's from and steel wiges scale without a strike. The price movement as to staples continues to seesaw, cotton, wheat, corn and dats all reacting slightly from former depressions, while wool, sugar, lard, coffee and live stock all show declines.

NEW YORK.—Bradstreet's trade review says:

Knights Templar was held in Pitts-burg with four commanderies as its guests, viz, the Detroit commandery; the Oriental, of Cleveland; the St. Andrews, of Norfolk, Va.; and the Grice, of Richmond, Va. There were about 3,000 knights in the parade on the second day and the Detroit, with 125 men, carried away the honors of the day. Their entertainers were so well pleased with the Detroit's maneuvers that they were invited to give a dress parade, which they did and added more honors to their list. The visiting knights were more than pleased with their entertainment.

REMEDY FOR ALL FORMS OF KIDNEY DISEASES.

Diabetes, Bright's Disease, and Other Terrible Allments No Longer Formidable-Remedy Soon to Be Within the Reach of All.

Medical research has lately been rewarded by the discovery that impaired kidneys cause many diseases never before ascribed to them. Rheumatism, dropsy, heart disease, paralysis and backache are samples of disorders due to diseased kidneys. Following this, came the discovery of a remedy that would so act on the kidneys as to cure all these diseases. It does not stop there, either. It cures every form of kidney disease, including Bright's disease and diabetes, which were, up ogether a most desperate battle will to the time of its discovery, considered incurable.

This valuable remedy was brought to light in the neighboring Dominion of Canada about two years ago. It has since been used throughout the whole length and breadth of that vast country. Physicians have prescribed it. Some of them have used it, and one it cured of diabetes after six physicians, in consultation, had decided he must die within a few hours. Thousands of people have testified that they owe their restored health, and many, their lives, to its use, Druggists and dealers in medicine all over the country, say that they never sold a remedy that gave such universal satisfaction. The reason is that it never failed to cure any case of diseased kidneys, or any disease due to disordered kidneys. It is the most popular remedy in Canada to-day, simply because of its sterling worth. It's name is Dodd's Kidney Pills.

The fame of this remedy has already reached the United States. Many on this side have obtained the pills from Canadian dealers, and have been cured of their disorders by using them. To obtain them from Canada entailed customs duties and delays, as well as heavy additional expense. To enable the people in this country to obtain the remedy without this extra expense and trouble, the proprietors of Dodd's Kidney Pills have established a branch office and factory at Buffalo, N. Y. It will be but a few days before every druggist in the United States will have the pills for sale, and everybody will have this great remedy within easy reach. Buyers, though, should be careful to see that they get the genuine Dodd's Kidney Pills. There are unfortunately some imitations on the market. Any one who can not procure these pills from his local druggist may obain them by writing, The Dodds Medicine Co., Ltd., Buffalo, N. Y., or Toronto, Canada. Sent postpaid on receipt of price; 50 cents per box, or six boxes for $2.50.

SWISS ANTI-SEMITISM. A Law Forbidding the Slaughter of Cat-The new law just adopted in Switzerland which forbids the slaughter of cattle by the Jewish method has naturally caused great indignation and consternation among the 8,000 or 9,000 inhabitants of the Hebrew faith. The law is to this effect: "The killing of animals without their being stunned before blood is drawn is forbidden, without exception, whatever be the method employed." Not a word in this enactment alludes directly to the Jews, but its object, says the New York Evening Post. was avowedly anti-Semitic. Prompted by societies which ostensibly have no other purpose than to prevent cruelty to animals, it is declared to be really the outcome of an anti-Semitic agitation imported from Germany. The victory was chiefly gained in German cantons, where Jewish trade competition is most severely felt-Zurich, Berne, Argau. and Thurgua. Those of Latin kinship - Valais, Neuchatel, Geneva. Vaud, Friburg-sided with the cause of popular liberty. Only about half the population — 300,000 out of 600,000—went the poll Even of this number it is supposed that but a small percentage realized what they were voting for. For twenty years an agitation has existed on the continent for the prohibition of the Jewish method of slaughtering animals, on the ground of its alleged cruelty. The movement met with a cold reception in the Berlin parliament. In Saxony it had better success. There the Jewish "shechita" has been declared illegal by an order of the ministers of the interior. The German societies for the protection of animals induced the municipal governments of Aargau and Berne to issue a similar order, but the national council revoked it. The cantonal fathers then carried their case before the federal assembly, which confirmed the action of the council. Thereupon the agitators availed themselves of the referendum. It is worthy of note that the anti-Semites found their warmest support among the Lutheran part of the population. but were opposed by the Roman Catholics children, and you shall hear a story about a beautiful shepin the mountains with A long time ago, when the earth was young, this shepherd boy was in the habit of watching the sparkling stars of heaven, when driving home his sheep at night. He was lost in a world of wonder at their beauty, and thought that strange people must live in them.

"I wonder," thought he, "will I ever be able to reach them? will I ever see the race of men who people those glorious golden worlds?"

But the notes of the huntsman's horn, sounding clear on the evening breeze, dispelled his lofty thoughts, and he wearily retired for the night. One lovely evening he saw a ladder, made of golden threads, slowly unfold itself from Venus, the bright star, and fall to the earth near his feet. He was so astonished that he thought he must be dreaming. But on examining the ladder, he saw that it was a reality, and that some one was descending it, coming from the star. What would he do? Seize the person who was coming from the star, and compel that person to let him climb the ladder; or would he tear the golden ladder from Venus, and become a rich man?

Perplexed in the extreme, he re solved to await developments. He did not have to wait long, for in a few moments a beautiful princess reached the end of the ladder and stood before

Oh! What a vision of entrancing loveliness! He had never before seen such a beautiful woman. Her blue eyes, golden curls and perfect form made his heart throb with love. What dangers he would brave to possess the fairy standing near him!

"Who are you?" he asked, at length. The princess smiled, and replied in a voice of melody:

"I am a princess; my name is Lvcia. and I came from Venus, the evening star, on an errand of great importance. Oh! lonely shepherd boy, will you aid me in a great undertaking?"

He thought there was something strange about her words and actions; but her beauty conquered his thoughts and he said: "I am at your command." But before I lift a hand to help you, tell me, O, tell me, princess of the evening star, are these-are there righter, greater, nobler beings, than the mortals of this earth dwelling in those lands of beauty above?" Her eyes sparkled with pride as she re-

"In Venus, the land of my birth, there is a race of people far greater than the mortals of this earth! their learning like the sun outshines all other things."

"Will I ever see them?" he inquired. "Yes, you will see them if you aid me to free my mother from a witch's charm." "I give you my promise. I will do all that lies within the limits of my power to free your mother from the enchantment. Lycia kissed his hand rapturously, and said: "You are too kind!-by what name are you known in these mountains?" "My name is Harold."

"Then, Harold," she continued, "I must tell you the story of my mother's misfortune. My father and mothor are the king and queen of Venus; and, although their power extends far and wide, it received a severe shock at the hands of the witch. She has charmed a certain part of the land, and whoever places his foot inside that mystic circle is enchanted. One day my mother unconsciously entered the witch's dominions, and since that time we have never seen her-

"But." cried Harold in surprise. "why don't your father assemble his guards, and drive the witch from the

"It is an utter impossibility. They would all be charmed the moment they would enter her dominions!" 'Then how can I free her? I would also be enchanted if I entered her dominions."

"Nay; you would not. A man of this earth can enter the witch's land, and be free from her magic. A man is the only one who can break the chains of enchantment and free my mother. Will you be her champion?"

"And if you succeed, you shall be my husband, and the prince of Venus, the evening star."

Harold could find no words in which to express his love; he merely folded Lycia to his bosom, kissing her again and again. "And now." she resumed, releasing herself from his embrace, "let us enter Venus."

They ascended the ladder together, and were soon in the star. How strange everything appeared!

What roads of silver dazzled Harold's eyes! What castles of gold were there! and what beautiful pearly clouds floated about in the azure sky of Venus. Lycia introduced him to her father, Kaldemar by name, and immediately a great banquet was prepared, at which all the people of the kingdom appeared, save the witch and her minions. The banquet lasted for six days and at the expiration of eyed beauty. Three days passed thus, that time Lycia told him that he must free her mother, because she feared that the witch would be torturing her mother to death. "I will go at once," replied Harold, and free her if it costs me my life!"

"But," said Lycia, "you will have severe trials to brave: the witch will endeavor to make you forget your promise to me; she will entertain you royally in her marble halls, where she keeps bands of beautiful women-and -and I am afraid that you will forget me and your resolutions in that whirl of fascination."

"Ah, lovely Lycia," Harold replied, 'do not entertain those thoughts of fear; I could never forget herd boy, who | you nor the vows I made; your mother's welfare shall rest in the temple of my mind-your love shall spur me on, and give me courage to brave all sirens' charms!"

"Then go at once Harold and free my mother. I give you six days in which to do it, at the end of that time, if you do not make your appearance, I will know that you cannot free her, and that you are charmed by the nymphs. Go-may the god's protect you!-with you goes all the future of Lycia."

They embraced, and Lycia gave him a rose, which he was to wear on his bosom, that it might help him to think of her, if the witch's nymphs succeeded in charming him. She was

Harold journeyed on all that night, and as he was crossing a silver mountain, a number of animals came up to him, and said strange things.

"He will meet with great misfortune if he persists in his present undertaking," said one. "And," chimed in another, "he will lose Lycia, and be made a prisoner."

"Ha!" put in a third. "You two are always ready to predict misfortune for a person. No doubt, he will have considerable trouble, but I'll warrant that we will dance at his wedding.' Pooh!" snarled the others." "You always say the same things over and over-you're an old gossip anyway!" And with that, they ran off into the

But Harold grew sad. What if the animals had prophesied truly? would ne persevere? would he remain true to his promise? Ah! yes; for a great reward awaited him -Lycia would be his wife. To possess such a beauty, he would brave a world of dangers As he journeyed onward, he descried castle towers and battlements in the distance; he saw bands of nymphs coming towards him with banners waving, he also heard music playing, and knew that the witch had sent them to meet him and escort him to her palace.

They stopped marching, the music ceased—and a dark eyed siren left the ranks and came toward him.

"Most gracious shepherd prince," she said, "our great queen the witch of the star, hearing that you were about to explore her lands, sent this deputation to attend and give you entertainment before you commence your work. Hoping that you will accept her invitation, we await your further orders, and trust that you will join us and march to her castle at

How beautiful she was! could he resist those soft, pleading eyes? Could he resist the temptation of joining them? No. It would be impossible; he was the slave of their wishes. He saw the exquisite beauty and grace of each one, and said:

"March on to the castle at once. I am anxious to see your queen's castle!" And as he marched on he thought: "I will only tarry at their palace for one day, and then I will look for Lycia's mother. Lycia would not deny me this little indulgence, and then I will have five days remaining in which to accomplish my purpose. So saying, he continued to walk with them until a halt was called, and then the dark eyed siren led him into the marble halls of the witch's castle. Such grandeur he had never beheld before, and he was lost in wonder until the witch hobbled down from her throne and came toward him.

"I AM A PRINCESS."

"You must remain with us awhile," she said, laying her hand on his arm. "New enjoyments shall be prepared for you each day, and I earnestly hope that you will be pleased with our endeavors to entertain you. It is seldom that we see such a handsome man as you and we cannot exert ourselves too much to gain your favor. Music! music!" she cried, turning toward her attendants; "let the pleasures begin!" And she vanished among the groups of lovely women that stood near him. The music began, and the dark-eyed beauty came to him again. "Come," said she, smilingly "come to the banquet hall."

He suffered himself to be led to the banquet hall, because he was powerless to resist the beauty who was exerting such an influence over him. Yes; he loved her. He forgot Lycia-forgot the vows he had made to her, and lived upon Marian's enchanting smiles: for Marian was the name of the dark-and Harold loved Marian more dearly every hour; he was unhappy if she left him for a moment, and the clouds of gloom on his brow were turned to looks of sunshine when she made her appearance again.

One beautiful evening, Harold and Marian entered "The Garden of Love," which was bounded on all sides by golden hills, where lovely fairy maidens fantastically danced until the midnight hour; at this hour of entrancing solitude, the lovers reclined on ivory couches, which were lined with the purest silver, and drowsily listened to the liquid notes of the plashing fountains; castles of flashing diaif by magic, and the sweetest music came whispering toward them; clouds of perfumed incense stole through the air of harmonies toward the sky of the star, which was turning from purple to green and red and gold; thousands of glorious lights shone through the incensed air and myriads of elves united in one great effort to load the evening breeze with the lulling music of enchantment.

In this world of joys, Harold forgot Lycia entirely. He never once paused to ask himself why he was in the star, or how he had entered it; all his looks, his words, his thoughts were lying like serfs at the feet of the fairy beauty-Marian. But pleasure cannot last forever; the greatest pl ures receive the severest blow fate! and so it was with Harold's. A grand dance was announced evening at which everyone attended. The music began, and all the people whirled gracefully over the marble floors; when the excitement at its highest point a was rose fell from Harold's bosom-it was the rose which Lycia had given

In that one moment, a revolution took place in his mind; in that one moment his love for Lycia, his promise, his dreams of future power, his oath to set Lycia's mother free, and all loomed up with startling fidelity as if in a vision before him. He recklessly wrenched himself free from Marian, and dropped on his knees near the flower. It was the flower of remembrance. Yes, he seized it, rose to his feet, imprinted a fervent kiss on its withering petals, and called it the flower of remembrance! Maddened by the enchantment he had undergone, he rushed madly from the hall-out into the cool evening-out into the air of

YOU MUST REMAIN WITH US AWHILE. "Hold!" cried a voice in the darkness. "vou can not escape me thus." And the next moment Marian was standing before him, breathless and

"Harold!" she sternly cried, when her breath was under control, "you must not think of escaping me! Oh, no! you must become my husband! The priest will soon be here, and we will be married."

"I think not," was Harold's cool retort.

"What?" she screamed with rage; "Am I not a fit companion for your future life? Have I not wasted my time with you? Will I not become an object of laughter to my friends?——' "It is no fault of mine. You lured me to your lovely shrine, and made me forget my sacred vows to Lycia, the princess of the star; you obeyed the commands of the witch and nothing more: you were to receive mo as a recompense for all your endeavors, but Lycia's rose has dispelled the threads of the magic web, which you were weaving around me, and I am free again! Farewell, Marian!"

And with these words he ran swiftly toward the gloomy prison tower, in which the queen of the star was placed. After a long search he found her in a horrid dungeon on the left wing of the tower. She could not speak because she was enchanted, and silently he led her from her pri-

The next difficulty which suggested itself to Harold, was to depart from the witch's dominions, free. If he succeeded in eluding her, golden showers of rewards would be heaped on him.

At length they entered a silver road which wound round the witch's castle, and led to Kaldemar's kingdom. If he could only pass the witch's castle without molestation, he knew that he could travel through the remainding part of the country with safety. As he came near the castle in question, he saw numerous dwarfs with torches in their hands, awaiting his arrival. He would soon know.

As he passed the first group of dwarfs, he heard some one behind them laughing mockingly, and turning round, he discovered that it was Marian. But he did not halt; fear lent speed to his feet, and in a few moments he stood outside of the charmed country!—he was free!—he was in Kaldemar's kingdom.

The moment that Harold and the queen passed the magic boundaries, his royal charge, shivered and said: "At last I am free! the gods were ture and separation from my family, they permitted you to release me! come; you shall be shandsomely rewarded." And when they had traveled on for a few hours, they saw a brilliant equipage coming toward them followed by hundreds of soldiers. It was a crystal carriage lined with strips of the brightest gold, and was drawn by eight white horses.

The servants seated Harold and the queen in the carriage, and then drove toward Kaldemar's royal city. Although it was late in the evening when they arrived there they were greeted by the shouts of the soldiers, ing fountains; castles of flashing diamonds rose up before their gaze, as of the joyful people. Fires were kindled in all parts of the country, and general rejoicing continued all night.

In the morning the bells rang and the music played; and Lycia fell weeping on Harold's neck-she wept tears of joy.

I WE COULD BE MAN AND WIFE. "Oh!" cried she, "what a brave soul you are; and the reward which you are to receive, is not what it should be!" "Nay, Lycia," he said, "do not speak thus. The greatest reward I could receive would be youmy dear treasure. I care not for the pomp and power of a ruler, nor do I sigh for the golden crown of a prince; Lycia," he continued seriously, "ifwe could be man and wife—that would be the greatest joy you could confer on me!"

"Let not sadness weigh down your noble heart—I am yours. Come; we will ask my father's blessing." And hand in hand they entered the throne room, where there was great rejoicing, and knelt before Kaldemar who was seated on his throne. "Father," began Lycia, "you beheld the nobleness of Harold here, who braved all dangers to free my mother from the witch's charms—'

"I did, my child," interrupted Kallemar. "and I intend to reward him. "Father, the reward he claims is myself—" "What!" thundered Kaldemar, rising in wrath from his throne, while the rattling of swords was audible in the room. "Does you miserable shepherd boy ask you to be his wife? Would you wed with a mortal of the earth, who cannot afford the means by which you should live in royal style? Would you disgrace the fair name of your ancestors? Speak to me, child; my heart is heavy."

"Father," Lycia said, "I know I am your daughter; and all daughters should bow in obedience to the commands of their parents; but if you only knew how I loved Harold you would not look down on me with such an eye of scorn.' "Lycia! Lycia! Your words like thorns have pierced your father's heart! I would like to see my daughter happy, but I cannot make her. I refuse. Harold, who was already in a rage, could withstand it no longer. The king had branded him with the name of viper, and the hot blood of injured pride mantled his cheeks. "Keep your daughter!" he cried out n ringing tones. "Although I love her to madness, I would rather be free from the union which would incur such enmity on your part!" "Stop!" roared Kaldemar in a rage 'Do you dare to brave me-the mighty king of Venus!"

"I hurl defiance at your crown! I am but a poor youth, but poverty in anger is greater than kings surrounded by their armies!"

Then turning round, he pressed Lycia to his bosom. "Do not weep," ne said, "I do not seek to marry you-"But I love," she softly responded. Would you leave me now?"

"No! Since you are true to me I will oe the same to you!" "Enough! enough!" thundered Kaldemar, while he rushed down the steps of his throne toward the lovers. 'Separate them!" he cried to his soldiers.

And the next moment they were forced apart.

"Farewell, Harold" said Lycia falthough we are separated, I shall remain true to you until death!" But Harold was not allowed to speak to her—to tell her he would also be true until death; the rough guards placed their hands over his mouth, and, in obedience to the commands of the king, hurled him from the star to the earth below, to a prison on a high rock near the ocean.

He cried for joy, when he found himself on earth once more; but his joy was turned to dismay when he saw that he was a prisoner. Rough iron bars were on his windows, and a door of brass separated him from freedom.

For twelve long years he was a prisoner. He tried to force the door open, but a hollow sound was the fruit of his efforts, and at last he gave up in despair. Food was always placed in his prison; but he did not know who brought it, nor did he trouble himself to find out. As time flew by he grew more and more despondent; but he was destined to see days of sunshine yet, and one day, when the monarch of the heavens arose and filled the land with fluid gold, when the birds sang merrily in the trees, and when everything seemed to rest in the fields of contentment, Harold heard sweet notes of music in the distance, they were like balmy sighs from paradise. The music seemed to possess magic power, for Harold fell fast asleep unler its influence. When he awoke he found himself in Venus, in the throne coom of Kaldemar's palace. Lycia stood beside him, her lovely eyes looking at him in the greatest happi-

Harold embraced her and led her to the altar where they were married. When they were coming down from the altar, music struck up in every direction; and every one attended the wedding banquet: the animals that prophesied Harold's misfortunes; the witch, who had become a good woman, and all her minions. Harold and Lycia were made the

The fashion was frequently adopted by other noted people of the stage and by statesmen on an electioneering tour. Very likely the increased demand for the luxury led to the invention of a car, the use of which was for sale at retail so to speak-that is, a chair in it to be rented to anyone who came along. The early efforts were constructed with a view to privacy, being a series of apartments of various sizes. The open room, which has been an encouragement to socibility, was quickly evolved. AN UNEXPLORED ISLAND. Its Queer Population of Indians, Probably of Mexican Origin.

James Millar, who has long resided on Prince of Wales island, and who. by reason of his being the first white settler and now controlling the largest interest, is referred to as the monarch of that island, is in San Francisco. Mr. Millar is located at Hunter's bay, where he has been for tour years engaged in the business of catching and salting salmon, says the San Francisco Chronicle.

The strange island of Prince of Wales, on which Mr. Millar has elected to make his home, lies at the mouth of Dixon's entrance, and only about three miles from the northern line of British Columbia. The island is about 200 miles long and from ten to thirty or forty wide. It is singu-"It means," replied Lycia, "that my lar in its make-up, having a fringe of lowland all around. Toward the center are ridges of mountains, some of them reaching lofty heights and covered with perpetual snow. There is magnificent timber in great quantities. It consists of spruce, fir, hemlock, splendid yellow cedar and a very superior red cedar.

"The island has never been surveyed nor explored," said Mr. Millar, "and some day it must prove, I think, a most inviting field for exploration. The Indians, of whom there are probably some 3,000, are in little villages, usually of about 100 inhabitants each. They consist Hydahs. There are between 300 and 400 of them at Hunter's bay, and they are quite industrious as fishermen and salters of the salmon. The the country, says the Boston Trans- Hydah Indians came up from the native tribe out. The former are very superior Indians. They are intelligent, and pick up anything very order to be free from the intrusion quickly. I think they originally came from Mexico, as they much resemble the Mexican race. Some of them, I have noticed, have as fine hinas faces as any white man, and as full

The Spread Eagle.

The spread eagle signifies an eagle ing to note that only within a short with two heads. Porney tells us the reason why the emperor of Germany bears an eagle with two heads, viz. "On the union of the kingdom pof Romania, its arms, which were an eagle displayed sable, being the same as those of the emperor, were united into one body, leaving it two wings as they are now. Charlemagne was the first emperor of Germany, and added the second head to the eagle for his arms."

That Tired Feeling.

I'm tired of infant prodigies,

Now tell me, are not you?
I'm tired of weather prophecies
That always miss their cue.
I'm tired of buying goods marked down,
Waydown their cost below;
Of building lots outskirting town,
That double value so.

I'm tired of ladies who remain Unmated from sheer choice; Of maids who sing, yet plead and feign To have indeed no voice; Of girls who never novels buy,

So classical are they;
Of youth just home from college high,
Who knows it all his way.

I'm tired of seeing ballet twirls
By girls whose sons can vote;
Of seeing fluffy golden curls
That peroxide denote;
Of clerks who know before I ask,
The very thing I want,
Of would-be friends, who 'neath the mask
Of bluntness hurl the taunt.

I'm tired of fatal accident By gun unloaded quite, Of tonic, "surely heaven sent," That puts all ills to flight; Of drivers and the motor men
Who never look my way;
Of him who borrows just a ten,

And quite forgets to pay. I'm tired of hearing old folks prate

O'er days perfection fraught;
Of never hearing, lose or take,
Of raffle tickets bought.
Of all these things, and many more,
I'm tired as can be, And as all rhymesters are a bore I know you're tired of me.
