last week.

H. S. Wickware is placing a stone foundation under his house on west Main Street, recently vacated by Geo.
Davonport.

Indications are good for a busy spring trade and every one will rejoice. The merchants who advertise will get the cream of the trade as usual.

Mr. and Mrs. J. McLean, of Ontario, spent the fore part of last week with Mr.
and Mrs. J. S. McArthur. They are spending their "honeymoon."

Elmer Yake has moved his family to Cass City where he has settled upon a farm. We wish him success in his new home.—[Deckerville Recorder.

Invoices of spring goods are being received frequently now by our various dealers. The shrewd purchaser will peruse our advertising columns before making his purchases.

Ernie Freeman was so unfortunate
on Monday as to fall and break his limb which was fractured some time ago and from which he had scarcely recovered.
Dr. J. M. Truscott attends him.

For the horse show at Detroit on

P. Lamotte has let the contract of improving his block on the north side of Main Street to McKenzie & McGillvray. The floor will be lowered one foot, new fronts put in, a balcony placed along the front and the clothing store extended at the rear.

Miss Emma Landon left on Tuesday morning for Toronto, Ont., after spending about a year with friends here.
During the greater part of that time she acted as organist at the M. E. Church and her efficient services in that capacity have been duly appreciated. She has the well wishes of many friends here.

We have received during the week a heart touching appeal for aid for the sufferers in Nebraska, which we would publish if space permitted. Anyone feeling able to assist in cash or otherwise can get particulars at this office.
Surely some of our well-to-do farmers could spare a few bushels of wheat or other grain for seed which is sorely needed.

The railroad from Pt. Huron to Lexington is again being agitated with considerable success. The opinion is expressed by several that this road
will eventually bring up in Bay City,
via Sanilac Center and, possibly, Cass City. We will watch developments with interest and believe such a road would be a great advantage to this section of country and our village.

In July, 1892, a hive of the L. O. T.
M's. was organized in this place and,
with others, Clara I. Hinkley, deceased, was one of its charter members, but in February last death relieved her of her trials in this world and took her to enjoy a better home in Heaven, and as a result of her death her husband, Warren D. Hinkley received, on Saturday last, from that order, $1,000, the full amount for which she was insured.

N. F. Monroe and Miss Kit Clarke attended a ball at Bad Axe Monday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. William Fairweather and family are visiting relatives at Imlay City.

W. M. Morris, V. S., has moved into

John Chyholm, of Oxford, called on friends here this week. He now travels for the Oxford marble works.

Wm. Fairweather shipped a car load of milch cows to J. H. Thompson, Northville, Mich., on Tuesday morning.

John Sweihler has just completed
a neat and durable sidewalk in front of his residence on Main Street east.

John Cain left last Friday for Cass
City, where he has secured a position with M. Sheridan.—[Bad Axe Democrat.

We would call your attention to the "ads" in this issue. Many have been changed and it will pay you to peruse them.

Jas. N. Dorman has returned from Marlette and is making necessary preparations for an extensive season's business at the Woollen Mills.

Geo. W. Howe, of Pt. Huron, is in town in the interests of the Royal Templars of Temperance, and will endeavor to organize a lodge here.

Wm. L. Wilson, D. G. C., K. O. T. M., of this district, will be with the Cass City tent this evening for a school of instruction. All Knights are cordially invited.

Jas. Curran, the Misses Curran and Mrs. Geo. Conley, of Caseville, were in town yesterday, getting some dental work done and calling on M. L. Moore and family.

Prof. Waterford, of Pt. Huron, has been ill at the Tennant House this week. Dr. D. P. Denning has been attending him and he is now improving nicely.

Spring house cleaning is at hand.
Just remember this office can furnish you with nice large clean papers for putting on your shelves or under carpets; 20 for 5 cents.

It appears we were in error in stating that the Elkland Advance was printed in Bad Axe, but we simply stated what the editor of that journal told one of our boys just previous to its appearance. If Don has an outfit sufficient to do his own press work, well and good.

According to the live stock census of the state, Tuscola county had on hand June 1st, last year 29,672 cattle Huron county had 36,500 and Sanilac county had 42,680. Out of this number Tuscola had 395 pure bred recorded cattle; Huron had 348, and Sanilac 154.
And still many farmers wonder why they are compelled to sell their stock at a low figure. Simply because they raise "low figure" stock.

There came into effect last Sunday at midnight a change of time on the P. O. & N. R. R. which is making no end of bother and confusion between here and the stations north. The noon train reaches here at 12:20 but instead of making the remainder of the trip to Caseville remains here until 3:10 p.
m. and returns to Pontiac. This change places all villages north of here at such a disadvantage that a tremendous master General, as under the present kick is being made. Petitions are being circulated to be sent to the Post-management they get but one mail a day and that arrives so late at night that scarce any one gets their mail until morning. In order to send mail north from this point it is necessary to post it in time for the south bound train at 3:10, which takes it to Leonard and it is then transferred to the north bound train. The morning train brings the mail from northern villages to this place where it is left until the 3:10 train. It is to be hoped that the railway will see fit to alter this state of affairs speedily.

Another change in "hotel circles" has—or is about to—take place in Cass City. We refer to a deal which has been made this week between G. S. Farrar, of the Tennant House, and J. W. Gordon, of the Elk-land. Mr. Gordon has effected the purchase of the hotel fixtures of Mr.
Farrar, and secured the lease of the house from Mr. Heatt, of Caro, and will take possession May 1st. For a time, at least, Mr. Gordon will conduct both hotels. Mr. Farrar, the retiring landlord, will occupy his residence in town, and, for the benefit of his health, see to the proper tilling of his farm in Novesta. He has conducted the hotel very successfully and has made many warm friends with the traveling public;
in fact it is quite George's fashion to make a success of whatever he undertakes. Mr. Gordon was formerly the landlord of the Tennant House and,
with his large amount of experience,
was not slow in establishing an enviable reputation for that house. This became so generally known that, not infrequently, some of the "Knights of the Grip" would hustle by towns south of here in order to get a "square meal with John."

church paper called the Star. Vol. 1.
No 1 will make its appearance this week.

The Tuscola County Union of Christian Endeavor societies will hold its second semi-annual convention at Fair-grove on April 23rd. It is hoped that every society in the county will be represented.

A little child of John Hicks, of Imlay City, ate a number of cough drops the other day which evidently contained opium or some other opiate, as the little one fell into a stupor condition from which it was resuscitated with considerable difficulty.

The revival services at the M. E.
church were formally closed last Saturday evening. That they have been productive of much good is generally admitted, and about ninety have been to the altar during the three weeks which they have continued. On Sunday the pastor received 45 into the church and 22 were baptized. Messrs.
Kerr and Johns are fine spirited men and leave behind them an excellent feeling. They expect to hold a series of meetings at Mayville in the course of a few weeks.—[Caro Advertiser.

Thomas Hall met with a painful and serious accident last Saturday. He was working at his mill five miles north and one and a half miles west of this village cutting shingle bolts and while trying to pick up a small stick which was near the saw struck his hand against it. The saw passed through his thumb diagonally between the first and second joints. He was brought to Drs.
Deady & Jackson's office and the doctors amputated the thumb at the second joint. After having his hand dressed Mr. Hall returned home and we understand is getting along nicely.—[Bad Axe Democrat.

The long established firm of Curran Flach and Conley has been dissolved by the mutual consent. James Curran having sold his interest to the remaining partners, G. A. Flach and Neil Conley.
The business has practically been under management of Mr. Conley since Mr.
Flach's election to stock holders. Register of Deeds for Huron County and he will endeavor to maintain the high reputation the "Company" store has always enjoyed for good goods and fair dealings. Here's success to the new firm of Flach & Conley.—[Caseville Critic.

Last Saturday Geo. M. Deady disposed of his drug stock to a newly organized stock company to be known as The Bad Axe Drug Co. The company, which will be incorporated under the state law, is composed of the following named gentlemen as stock holders:
Henry Bartley, E. P. Rowe, W. T.
Bartley, Geo. Carey, J. T. Hadwin, H. H.
Simpson, W. Braddock, F. W. Merrick, C. E. Pettit, Geo. M. Deady. The new company will take possession of the store
May 1st. The management of the business will be placed in the hands of C.
E. Pettit, who is well known to our readers, having been at one time a resident and successful business man in this village. The stockholders are all live energetic young men, who will without a doubt make a success of their new venture.—[Bad Axe Democrat.

PIGEON.

Louie Maier, the foreman of the stove mill, met with an accident, a log rolling upon his toe. He has to walk with crutches now.

In the course of a few weeks, Henry Moeller will plat an addition to the village of Pigeon, taking 40 acres upon the south side. On the north side lots will also be platted.

W. L. Webber came in town by a special train from Saginaw Tuesday, and selected the site where he will build an elevator. Several cars of Bay Port stone are here to build the stone walls.

Leipprandt Bros., of Berne, are fully decided to build an elevator at Pigeon, and have their plans ready. They own the store now occupied by McLean & Hasty and may use it in putting in a stock of goods.

Diebel Brothers planing mill, which

Our Churches.

EVANGELICAL CHURCH.

According to the report of the standing committee at the third day's session of conference at Buchanan, Mich.,
there are several changes to be made
which are of interest to our readers.
Rev. A. Bogen goes to Whitehouse, in the Detroit district. Rev. C. W.
Ross will fill this appointment. Rev.
B. F. Wade remains at Elkton.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

Appropriate Easter services were held here Sunday and the church was tastily adorned with flowers.

The social, given under the auspices of the Presbyterian Church, at the residence of J. D. Crosby last Friday evening, was largely attended and proved very enjoyable. The "culled gemmen" added much to the success of the occasion by the rendition of a short program.

METHODIST CHURCH.

Miss Hattie Wood has been chosen as organist and Myron Hanson as assistant.

Two probationers were admitted to full membership Sunday morning.

Seven members were received at the Epworth League meeting Sunday evening.

"The Three Friends" will be the E. L.
topic Sunday evening. Leader, Miss Mary Fisher.

The children's Easter service Sunday evening was an enjoyable occasion.
The children did their part well. Mrs.

timely remarks were made by Rev.
Fenn. The floral decorations aided materially to make all pleasant.

BAPTIST CHURCH.

Rev. S. G. Anderson returned from Ishpeming, U. P., Tuesday evening, where he has been for about two weeks past, having filled the pulpit in the Baptist Church at that place the past two Sabbaths. He has accepted a call to that place and has tendered his resignation as pastor of the Baptist Church at this place. Rev. Anderson, during his one year's stay at this place, has proved himself an earnest and talented minister and a good citizen. He had been invited to remain here another year, but found it necessary to seek more extensive fields. Ishpeming is a prosperous, modern city of 12,000 inhabitants, being one of the most important mining centers of the Lake Superior district. Rev. Anderson and family have made many warm friends
during their residence in this place, and will carry with them to their new home the best wishes of all.

Rev. Anderson will preach his farewell sermon next Sunday evening.

GIVE ME THE BABY.
Give me the baby to hold, my dear—
To hold and kiss, and to love and kiss,
Ah! he will come to me, never fear—
Come to the nest of a breast like this,
As warm for him as his face with cheer,
Give me the baby to hold, my dear.
Trustfully yield him to my caresses.
"Bother," you say? What! "a bother to me?"
To fill up my soul with such happiness
As the love of a baby that lures to the breast
Snuggled away where my heart can hear!
Give me the baby to hold, my dear!
Ah, but his hands are grimed, you say,
And would soil my laces and clutch my hair—
Well, what would pleasure me more, I pray,
Than the touch and tug of the wee hands there?
The wee hands there and the warm face here—
Give me the baby to hold, my dear!
Give me the baby? (Oh, won't you see?)
Somewhere, out where the green of the lawn
Is turning to gray, and the maple tree
Is weeping its leaves of gold upon
A little mound, with a dead rose near.
Give me the baby to hold, my dear!
—James Whitcomb Riley.

That Winter Night.

BY ROBERT BUCHANAN.

"Silence!" she said, in a voice so faint and low as to be almost inaudible. "Do not speak to me; I can not bear it."

"One word—only one," she heard him moan. "Is it possible you knew him—that Frenchman?"

The question recalled her to herself, brought back to her all the agony of her loss. With a face set like steel, she walked back to the bedside, and gazing into the man's face with tearless eyes, replied,
"He was my father!"

He shrank as if from a blow, and uttered a cry full of sorrow and compassion. At that moment she felt a touch upon her arm, and turning she saw the aged housekeeper, who had entered the room unperceived.
"Mademoiselle, it is I; I thought I heard you call. Mon Dieu! what is the matter?"

Blanche did not reply, but, shivering as if with cold, turned her face away; then followed by the dame, she walked into the outer room.
At last, recalled to herself by the cold breath of the night, Blanche pointed to the inner chamber and bade the woman go there and take her place. With terrible resolution she conveyed to her the doctor's instructions, word for word. "For," she thought to herself, "I will be justified before God. When I go to meet my father up yonder (and it may be soon) he shall know that even to the last extremity, I have returned good for evil, and fulfilled the written and unwritten law."

Fitting through the dark chateau, while the wind shook the walls, and the snowdrift heaped itself at the door, she reached her own chamber, threw herself wildly upon the bed, and sobbed hysterically, still with her father's name upon her lips.

CHAPTER XIV.

Between Life and Death.

Daylight came, and found the wounded man still living, and lying in a heavy sleep. The old dame sat by his side, worn out with watching. From time to time during the night she had administered the anodyne according to the instructions of her young mistress, and it seemed to have had an almost miraculous effect.

Early in the morning Dr. Huet appeared at the chateau, and went up to the bedside. He saw at a glance that the crisis was past, and after a careful examination and redressing of the wound, pronounced the patient out of immediate danger. During the examination the German awoke, and made a sign that he wished to speak to the doctor alone; so the old dame was dismissed, and the two men were left face to face.

"You have something to communicate to me?" said the Frenchman, seating himself by the bed. "Let me warn you to postpone the communication, unless it is very urgent. We have managed to subdue the fever for the time being, but it may recur if you submit yourself to any unnecessary excitement."
"Ah, monsieur," replied the German officer, "it is not of myself that I wish to speak, but of her whom God sent to save me in my extremity."
"Mademoiselle de Gavrolles? Yes, you are right; you owe your life to her."

"More than my life, monsieur!" cried the other, in a voice choked with tears. "Ah! you do not know. But when I have told you, my wife will adore her and pity me. Better if I had died! Better if I do not live to look again into her noble face! Charity so infinite is more than I can bear."
Huet looked puzzled, and began to think that the mind of his patient was wandering.

"Pray compose yourself," he said. "Where is she, monsieur?" asked the wounded man, eagerly. "Have you seen her?"

"Not this morning. Dame Fervocat tells me that the young lady watched during a portion of the night and then retired to her own bed-chamber."

"Not before she had saved my miserable life! Not before she had snatched me from death, though she knew that I, of all men, was the most undeserving! monsieur, I remember. I was sinking fast when she interfered and snatched me—me whom she should have left to perish!—me whom she has caused to hate so much!"

"Come, come," said the doctor, good-humoredly, "of course we know you are a German, one of the enemies of France. But a bullet, look you, absolves all such enmities; and we people of France do not carry our ferocities into the hospital or the sick-room."

"Monsieur, listen. Do you know—have you heard—that she has lost her father?"

"No!" cried the doctor, starting in amazement. "The chevalier? He is not dead?"

Woful beyond measure, in its utter misery and self-reproach, was the look upon the German's face as he replied:
"Yes, monsieur, I killed him."

Thunder-struck and horror-stricken, the doctor shook off the other's touch, and sprang to his feet.

"You killed the chevalier? Do you mean it? Grand Dieu, it is too horrible! How? how?"

In broken accents the German told his story—as he had told it overnight to Blanche, but more clearly and in fuller detail. He described the incident of the surprise, of the cutting down of Gavrolles, of the scene enacted afterward in the moonlight, when the dying man committed the medallion to his enemy's care. Dr. Huet who had known the chevalier well and esteemed him above most men, listened in simple horror.

"It is well for you," he exclaimed, when the other had finished, "that I did not know this before. I reproach myself now that you were not suffered to die like a dog. It is horrible—it is infamous! Even yet, when the truth becomes known to the people, I will not answer for your life."

"My life is nothing, monsieur," returned the sick man, with a groan. "I set no store by it, God knows, save for the sake of those whom I have left at home. It would have been better, perhaps, if I had died last night."

But Dr. Huet stayed to hear no more. With a cry, almost of impatience, he rushed from the room. In the lobby he came face to face with the old dame.

"Oh, monsieur, will you come to my young mistress? I have just been to her room, and I have found her lying there like one distracted. I am sure she has not slept all night, and she talks so strangely."

Greatly excited, Huet accompanied the woman to the chamber, and there, stretched upon the bed, her face worn with weeping, her hair disheveled, he found Blanche lying. Her eyes were open, but she seemed to see nothing; only at intervals, with strange monotony and regularity, she gave vent to that terrible moan with which she had heard the German's tale overnight. The doctor bent over her, and spoke to her, but she did not seem to heed. Then, as he placed his finger upon her pulse, his face darkened with ominous concern.

"It is cerebral fever," he cried.

"Look, she is quite unconscious. Poor child, poor child! It is fortunate that I came here."

Under Huet's instructions, Blanche was undressed and put into bed by the old dame, who wept freely at her task, for Blanche seemed to her almost like her own child. Returning to her chamber, the doctor found the poor girl lying with the same fixed look and uttering the same weary moans. Clad in her white night-dress, with her silken hair falling around her face and setting it in a golden frame, she looked strangely beautiful.

"Heavenly powers!" he murmured to himself. "What fatality! The man who killed her father, and the father's heart-broken child, both lying under the same roof—his roof—and under my care. It makes my head swim to think of it. Well, with God's help, I will save her if I can."
Fortunately, the good doctor had both skill and experience; and moreover, the information he had received enabled him to determine the character of the girl's ailment. There could be no doubt that it was, as he had rapidly diagnosed at the first, a kind of brain-fever, brought on by the excitement and horror of the previous night. He ordered the room to be darkened, and dispatched a message to the village for some necessary remedies.

As to the cause of so sad a business, he determined to keep his own counsel. "After all," he reflected, "it was one of the accidents of war. Such things take place every day, and it is only the complication which brought the man here that makes the affair so horrible. If old Hubert and the others knew the truth, they would give the fellow short shrift, I'm afraid; and though I could find it in my own heart to kill him myself, that would never do."

He walked back to the chamber where he had left the wounded man, who, as he entered, looked up wildly, and exclaimed:
"Monsieur, have you seen her? For pity's sake, tell me of her! The thought of what she must suffer is wringing my heart."

"She is unconscious," replied Huet, between his set teeth, frowning and drawing back from the other's outstretched hands. "You killed the father, and I fear you have destroyed the child. I doubt if she will ever recover."

Giving a great sob, the German turned his face away and covered it with his trembling hands.

CHAPTER XV.

The Germans.

While these things were taking place at the chateau, the surrounding district continued in a panic of excitement, owing to the near presence of the victorious Germans. A little experience, however, showed the country people that the ferocity of the enemy was, to say the least, exaggerated. True, a sharp example was made of those peasants who, not being formally enrolled in the French army, were caught with war-like weapons; and every now and again a spy, or some one suspected to be a spy, received his quietus. Otherwise, the Germans did their spitting gently enough, paid for what they consumed, and sided with the peasants in any clear case of brutality or robbery on the part of their own soldiers. Etretat was quietly occupied. Grave foreign officers in spectacles were found strolling on the sea-shore. There was no more fighting, as all the French troops, only a handful at the most, had retired along the coast in the direction of Dieppe.

Two days after the wounded officer of Uhlans had been carried into the chateau of Grandpre, a small company of cavalry, headed by an officer, rode up the avenue toward the chateau, and halted on the lawn beneath the terrace. The officer, dismounting, walked up the steps to the door, and knocked. After a delay of some minutes the door was opened by old Hubert.

"What may monsieur please to want?" asked the old man, quaking in every limb.

"You have one of our officers lying here wounded," said the German in French. "I wish to see him."

"Certainly," answered Hubert. "Will you be good enough to enter? And will you please to step softly, as my poor young mistress is very ill?"

"He is alive, of course?" muttered the officer, halting on the threshold.

"Yes, monsieur," answered Hubert. "On receiving this reply the officer beckoned, and another German, also in uniform, leaped from the saddle and ran up to his side.

"Yes; he is here. Come with me, Borgfeldt; you may be wanted."

With obsequious timidity, Hubert led the way upstairs into the sick man's room. He was lying in bed, propped up with pillows, and reading a book. One glance at the book showed its religious character. It was the Douay edition of the New Testament.

"Hartmann, old fellow!" cried the officer, with outstretched hands, "this is indeed fortunate. We had given you up for dead."

Hartmann smiled sadly, returning the kindly pressure.

"God has been good to me, as you see," he replied.

"I survive, while better men are in their graves. Ah, Dr. Borgfeldt, is that you?"

"What was it?" asked Borgfeldt, who was a tall, clean-shaven man in spectacles. "A bullet wound?"

Hartmann pointed to his heart, and the German doctor, stooping down, made a hasty examination.

"It was an ugly wound," he muttered; "the ball lodged close to the pleura, only just missing the left lung. Who extracted it?"

"A clever French doctor. Ah! he is here. Let me introduce him—Dr. Huet."

Huet, who had entered the room, bowed stiffly.

"How is mademoiselle, your patient?" asked Hartmann, eagerly.

"Better, I pray God?"

"Better—and worse," replied Huet, coldly. "The fever is leaving her, but from time to time are signs that she is beginning to remember. I dread the complete return of her faculties, for then—"

"Yes, yes; I understand," cried Hartmann. "Would to heaven I could comfort her! but, alas! it is too late for that. May God forgive me!"

In Fear.

Enoch Arden, after an absence of forty years, approached his humble cottage from the rear, but the most casual observer could not fail to notice that Enoch's suspenders were fastened with shingle nails and that there was a dearth of woman's care throughout his make up.

"Ah!" he sighed as he faltered on the back door step.

He raised his hand as if to knock, hesitated, covered his face and shrank away.

"I dare not!" he exclaimed.

He had suddenly reflected that he had forgotten to buy saleratus, as he directed upon the occasion of his departure long ago.

After he had gone the gibbous moon rose grandly above the tree tops just as if nothing had happened.

Sponges That Destroy Oysters.

Certain sponges (Cliona) bore into shells, especially those of the oyster, finally causing them to crumble to pieces. On the American coast Cliona sulphurea not only destroys the shells of oysters, mussels and scallops, but has even been known to penetrate one or two inches into hard marble. It has been uncertain whether this effect is mechanical or due to the solvent effect of some acid, but M. Latellier has lately shown the French academy that a purely mechanical action suffices.

The Difficulty.

Dramatic Author—Mr. Manager may I venture to ask whether my three-act play has been accepted?

Manager—Well, you see, the three members of the reading committee have gone through it, and they have come to the conclusion that one act will have to be struck out.

Author—Oh! there is no difficulty about that; it is not so bad after all.

Manager—No, but unfortunately each of the members wants to strike out a different act!

Division of Labor.

"When it comes to traveling," exclaimed the head of the family, "a man has to do all the real work. My wife has only packed the trunks, dressed the children, spread cloths over the furniture, and a few things like that, while every bit of information that has been got from the time table I had to attend to myself."—Detroit Tribune.

To Pay His Fare.

In ancient times in Greece it was customary to place a coin under the tongue of a dead person. This was to pay his fare to Charon, whose duty it then was to ferry the deceased over the river Acheron, in the infernal regions.

A WINDY DAY.

The dawn was a dawn of splendor,
And the blue of the morning skies
Was as placid and deep and tender
As the blue of a baby's eyes;
The sunshine floods the mountain,
And flashed over land and sea
Like the spray of a glittering fountain—
But the wind, the wind. Ah, me!

Like a weird invisible spirit,
It swooped in its airy flight;
And the earth, as the stress drew near it,
Quailed as in mute fright.
The grass in the green fields quivered:
The waves of the smitten brook
Chilly shuddered and shivered,
And the reeds bowed down and shook.

Like a sorrowful misereere,
It sobbed and it wailed and it blew
Till the leaves on the trees looked weary
And my prayers were weary, too;
And then like the sunshine glimmer
That faded in the awful strain,
All the hope of my eyes grew dimmer,
In the spatter of spectral rain.

All right, Bro. Shippey, of Evergreen, we take it for granted you saw the deer. We are pleased to find a man in Evergreen that considers truth to him so dear as to "gag blunt" on our frivolity and make us "cheese the racket." When we meet I'll buy the Havanas.

There can be no love without a jealous pang. Show us a pair that never quarrelled in courtship and we will show you a couple merely matched by the square and compass or figured together by the multiplication table. Earnest souls quarrel—not the quarrel that embitters and divides, but that which sweetens and cements and holds the fabric of souls together.

We are all admiring Crosby's add in the ENTERPRISE, and that is just what has got us into trouble and you Mr. editor must settle the question. Is that profile at the head of the add a true picture of J. D? Some aver that it is, while others declare that it is by far too good looking for him. The writer thinks it might have been taken from his negative of younger days before religious or political questions weighed heavy on his mind. Please let us know all in first issue as there are several bets up and we dangle on the thread of suspense.

[J. D. is such a hustler and is enjoying such a rush of business through judicious advertising that he hasn't time to give us the history of that picture but we take it for granted that at the time it was made he was too busy to stand for a picture.—Ed.]

The town is small and may be found on the railroad not many miles south of Cass City. Its secret societies are many and with but one hall to meet in the members have some strange experiences. About two weeks since a zealous Gleaner came into town with moistened brow and palpitating heart and made direct for the lodge room. He passed the first door into the ante room, but at the second door he was halted by the goat who had sniffed a stranger. The members all being so engrossed in testing the wine for Easter services that they noticed nothing unusual till now. As soon as the innocent intruder saw the collar on his goatship, marked K. O. T. M. instead of A. O. O. G. he muttered, "mistaken in the night," and then turned the toes of his No. 13s, making a noise like distant thunder as he disappeared in the darkness.

ALL FREE.

Those who have used Dr. King's New Discovery know its value, and those who have not, have now the opportunity to try it free. Call on the advertised Drug-gist and get a Trial Bottle, Free. Send your name and address to H. E. Bucklen & Co., Chicago, and get a sample box of Dr. King's New Life Pills, Free, as well as a copy of Guide to Health and Household Instructor, Free. All of which is guaranteed to do you good and cost you nothing. T. H. Fritz's Drug Store.

It May Do as Much for You. Mr. Fred Miller, of Irving, Ill., writes that he had a Severe Kidney trouble for many years, with severe pains in his back and also that his bladder was affected. He tried many so called Kidney cures but without any good result. About a year ago he began use of Electric Bitters and found relief at once. Electric Bitters is especially adapted to cure all Kidney and Liver troubles and often gives instant relief. One trial will prove our statement. Price only 50c. for large bottle. At T. H. Fritz's Drug Store.

Our better halves say they could not keep house without Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is used in more than half the homes in Leeds, Sims Bros, Leeds, Iowa. This shows the esteem in which that goods are held where it has been sold for years and is well known. Mothers have learned that there is nothing so good for colds, croup and whooping cough, that it cures these ailments quickly and permanently, and that it is pleasant for children to take, 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by T. H. Fritz druggist.

Tired, Weak, Nervous Could Not Sleep.

Prof. L. D. Edwards, of Preston, Idaho, says: "I was all run down, weak, nervous and irritable through overwork. I suffered from brain fatigue, mental depression, etc. I became so weak and nervous that I could not sleep. I would arise tired, discouraged and blue. I began taking

Dr. Miles' Nervine and now everything is changed. I sleep soundly, I feel bright, active and ambitious. I can do more in one day now than I used to do in a week. For this great good I give Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine the sole credit. It Cures."

Dr. Miles' Nervine is sold on a positive guarantee that the first bottle will benefit. All druggists sell it at 25c a bottle for 50c, or it will be sent prepaid, on receipt of price by the Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind.

Still Cooning.

EDITOR ENTERPRISE,

Dear Sir: I have noticed of late in your columns articles in which I have become somewhat interested, concerning a coon hunt which took place near Owendale, and as the truth has not been exhibited in the last statement of the matter I feel that I should have the privilege of correcting the errors therein. Now, Mr. Editor, the fact is I was out coon hunting. I have a large family of little, motherless children, which I have, in these hard times, considerable trouble to maintain, and as there was not much to do I resorted to hunting to help them through a little. Being out in the woods from early morning and coming to a lumber road I left my axe and started to go to my son's, who was living at Linkville. On my road there I saw a coon track leading across the road, and my little dog tracked it to the tree. It went up but I had no axe so I did not examine it closely, but went on thinking to get my son's axe and, perhaps, his assistance; but meeting Messrs Hinton, Grant and Dobin on a sleigh they asked me if I saw any tracks. I told them I had and had a coon in a tree just back a little way. Mr. Hinton said I had better come back and they would help me cut the tree and have a spot of fun. As they had an axe with them I said all right, and on examining the tree we discovered that the coon had gone up and down the tree. We saw another tree in which was a hole. Mr. D. said that looked like a den-tree and he and I started to see. I reached the tree first and told him that the coon was there. Mr. Hinton was chopping the first tree. We told him not to chop any more as this was the den. He stopped and I went and got the axe and started to cut the tree. We all chopped alternately, except Mr. Grant, your former writer. We succeeded in getting two coons, a large one and a very small kitten coon, which Mr. Hinton so ably displayed his talent in killing. Mr. Grant shot the other whilst attempting to come out its hole. I then said to the boys that there might be a coon in the other tree, and as Mr. Hinton had it half chopped I would finish it. I did so but got nothing. Whilst doing this Mr. Hinton bound the large coon on his sleigh. When I returned and saw what was done, I asked Mr. H. if he intended to take that coon. He said he did, so I told him if he took the big one he could take the small one also. They took it. As they were hard up for tobacco they trapped the coon for about one-half the value. Mr. Grant spoke of mice and my dog. This is contemptible and beneath my notice, but the dog performed as much manual labor as did Mr. G., for he sat on the sleigh and watched while we cut the trees and the dog laid on a log. The dog played the most horrible part, for as Mr. G. proposed to take the coon to buy tobacco with, the little dog concluded to have neither lot nor part in the matter, as he thought those gentlemen were not able to get candy or tobacco themselves, and that his master would feed him. Now, this is not only shameful but disgraceful for gentlemen—if they call themselves such—to do as they did and, as a bystander remarked to me, it was the smallest trick he ever saw performed by any man. I said that if there was enough manly principle in them to make a shaddow they would not have done as they did. I understand that Mr. G. made the proposition to take the coon and Mr. H. thought it would be fun to rob a family of little children of their rights. Now, for Mr. D. From the acquaintance I had of him and his ancestors I had taken him for a gentleman, but I fail to see a gentlemanly act in it, and from what I learn he is a little ashamed of the act, and I would advise these men never to think of this whilst standing by a two inch auger hole, or they may sink out of sight. I shall not reply to anything more that may be said, but if the coon is not settled for I shall send a copy of these proceedings to Indiana to see if these are representative men of that state. Thanking you for so long a space in your valuable paper, I remain,

Yours Truly,
Geo. A. Crouch.

The Proof Accumulates.

The evidence continues to come and all helps to prove our claim for Dr. Wheeler's Nerve Vitalizer.

W. C. Flick, ex-postmaster, New Garden columbian Co., Ohio, says: "about two years ago I was all run down, had no strength to work was listless, drowsy in day time and wakeful at night, and felt about as nervous and miserable as I could be and live. Sulem doctors applied a battery examined me closely and pronounced it a serious case of nervous prostration, for which there was no help except to keep as quiet as possible. I think that they didn't expect me to live long I spoke of trying a patent medicine, but the doctor said no patent medicine could help me. But as I steadily grew worse I had to try something, so got Dr. Wheeler's Nerve Vitalizer which was highly recommended for nerve diseases. I felt a good effect from the first use of it, and so continued to improve in health. Think I used six bottles and I believe I am perfectly cured."

Dr. Wheeler's Nerve Vitalizer is a medical preparation which cannot fail to help any nerve disorder or "run down" condition of health. Sold by T. H. Fritz and other druggists.

OWENDALE.

Last week's correspondence.

Tommy Hughes was numbered with the sick the past week.

J. D. Owen was in Elkton and Grasmere, Friday on business.

H. D. Hager was in Marlette on business most of the past week.

Thomas Taylor visited his brother in Chandler Township from Tuesday until Saturday.

Miss Minnie Ballagh, of Teeswater, Ont., is visiting friends in this locality at present.

Master Bruce Hager, of Marlette, was attending store a few days the past week during H. D.'s absence.

Thomas Davidson, of Caro, has been calling on friends and acquaintances in and around the Burg part of the past week.

Mrs. Corbett, of the east town line, has been dangerously ill most of the past week. A sister from Cleveland is waiting on her.

A wood bee at S. O. Sharrard's, of Grant, on Friday last—but, oh, brother of West Grant, I will Owen up that I am out of my latitude this time.

Robt. Kile, of Cass City, was in this part Wednesday with a view to trading some City property for R. Ballagh's farm and mill property east of town.

Jake Parr, of South Dakota, has leased the store and dwelling of Jas. Grenache, of Orange Hill, and is now doing a rushing business in that line. He deserves a call to prove that he is a hustler.

Mrs. R. Ballagh, received a despatch on Tuesday that her mother was lying at the point of death with no hopes of recovery. She took the first train here for her former home at Newcastle Durham County, Ont.

Ram's Horn.

No college ever made a saint.

The devil fears a praying mother.

Sin feels safe as long as it can hide its head.

It is right to fast, but it is wrong to look lean.

No fish gets away that bites at the devil's hook.

A sad countenance is the hypocrite's favorite mask.

A fool has to find out for himself that fire is hot.

The devil's favorite pew in church is near the front.

It is a waste of breath to talk any louder than we live.

No man is fit for heaven who wants somebody else kept out.

There are too many church members and not enough Christians.

It never hurts God's work any for people to get mad at his truth.

God can see jewels where we would see only common sand and gravel.

An extravagant man loves to lecture his wife on the beauty of economy.

Next to hearing a hypocrite pray, the devil loves to hear a stingy man talk in church.

God will give us strength to resist temptation if we will use it to walk away from bad company.

Wise and Otherwise.

Keep your troubles to yourself; when you tell them you are taking up the time of the man who is waiting to tell you his.

Flattery works sometimes but its hard to convince your wife that she is handsome enough to do without a new spring bonnet.

A Waterloo man purchased some caustic potash to deprive his young calf of its horns, and when all was ready discovered the animal was a "muley." His wife and neighbors are now using the potash on their corns, with good results.

A western paper has the following for a motto: "Our aim—tell the truth though the heavens tumble. Our paper—Of the people, by the people. Our religion—orthodox, with a firm belief in heaven. Our motto—Take all in sight and hustle for more. Our policy—to love our friends and injure our enemies."

A wife will insist that her husband shall not go out of the house on cold raw days, without two under shirts, a liver pad and a muffler on, in addition to his regular clothes. Yet as soon as he is safely down town she will rush out of her hot kitchen bare-headed and bare-armed and hang out the clothes so as to get ahead of the woman next door; or will tramp off down town and from house to house on some society or church work with nothing on her head but a little sauce pan of a hat and shoes not thicker than a news-paper.

Those who never read the advertisements in their newspapers miss more than they presume. Jonathan Kenison, Bolan, Worth Co., Iowa, who had been troubled with rheumatism in his back, arms and shoulders, read an item in his paper about how a prominent German citizen of Ft. Madison had been cured. He procured the same medicine, and to use his own words: "It cured me right up." He also says: A neighbor and his wife were both sick in bed with rheumatism. Their boy was over to my house and said they were so bad that he had to do the cooking. I told him of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and how it cured me, he procured a bottle of it and cured them up in a week. 50 cent bottles for sale by T. H. Fritz, druggist
