If the ruination of any boy is desired, let him roam the streets at will. There is nothing that will ruin a boy so quickly as unwatched liberty. It is during these night carousals that he learns the vulgarism which later on will grow to something worse, and the idea of having so little respect for himself or those around him.

We can say "Amen" to the following entiment found in Bee Culture:-When I find a boy that raises popcorn or onions, I just like to take that boy by the hand and claim relationship. I allude especially to the boys who go out in the fields and work for themselves under God's clear sky, instead of hanging around the factories begging to be "bossed" around by some body.

[CHAPTER VI.—CONTINUED.—] "I can never thank you enough, my dear Mademoiselle. I do not know what it is, but I shall warn dear Roya at once. This comes of bestowing favors on unknown upstarts without parents or name. I hope the girl is innocent herself, whatever her father may have done."

"Oh, her parents were respectable; nothing that I hear is against their

"Listen. The child came from wreck-a ship on which there were-it was before your great civil war-some slaves from Savannah."

"You astonish me, Mademoiselle. It must be quite true. No doubt these people knew perfectly well to what race the girl belonged, and were quite willing to throw her off upon us. This comes of showing too much gratitude. We should have paid the girl a few dollars for saving my life and let her alone. I am deeply grateful to you for telling me in time. Dear Rova shall instantly break off all attentions to the wretched hussy, and the moment we land the Judge shall dismiss her from our house. A colored girl, indeed! I wonder I didn't think of it before. She is certainly very dark and shows her race plainly.'

At that instant there was a knock at the door.

"Who is it?" said Mrs. Gearing. "It is only me," replied her son, with refreshing disregard of grammar. "Wait a moment, Royal, dear. I'm busy now. Mademoiselle Rochet is here.

"Mademoiselle Rochet!" "Yes. Didn't you know she was on board? She's been confined to her room till to-day. And Royal, dear, please ask our steward to set a plate for Mademoiselle at our table at lunch. And Royal, dear, one thing more. Please find your father and send him

It was fortunate for the young man that the door was closed between him and the two women. If they had seen the look of mingled surprise, anger, and alarm upon his face, they might not have gone on, as they did immediately after, chatting carelessly of robes and habits and the latest modes. Fortunately for the young man, he was quite alone in the narrow passage way outside the state-room. She had come back. She had been to Paris,was on her way to New York,-with his own mother, -on the same ship. She had come back, too, just , when he had, after some fearful risks, nearly reached his prize. She had come back as he had learned that the prize was of far greater value than he had ever dreamed. Only that morning, in a talk with his step-father on deck, the "Governor," as he called him, had said he intended to settle $50,000 on Mai Johnson when she came of age. He wrenched open the round light at the end of the little passage and let the damp fog drift in and cool his hot face. He must recover himself before meeting people in the saloon or on deck. Presently he felt stronger, and went out to the saloon and found their steward. It would be useless to oppose his mother, and if Julie insisted on sitting at their table he must submit and say nothing.

"WHO IS IT?" SAID MRS. GEARING.

His next step was to look about and find his step-father. Knowing that he sometimes sat in Mai's room, he knocked at her door. The Judge himself opened the door. "What is it, Royal?"

"Mother wishes to see you, sir, in her room."

"Tell her, please, I am busy with Mai. I'll come presently."

The young man saw by the partlyopened door Mai seated by the berth and evidently in tears.

"What's up now?" said the young man, as he walked back towards his mother's room. "Governor closeted with Mai, and Mai crying. Wonder what she's been doing. She can't speak to him. They wished very much know anything about Julie. Cut her to do so, as the mist had shut out the up, of course, if she did know. Dare pilot-boat and hid en the back figure gav the girl's beginning to love me.

I've run risks enough for her anyway; however, nothing succeeds like success, and all's fair in love and war. I'll settle that Julie before we get ashore, and then for Mai."

The Judge closed the door upon his this young man to whom he had become a second father were like this strange girl to whom he would so gladly be a father! As he turned again towards her and sat down by her side, she said, slowly-"I thank you, sir, for telling me. I'm sure I feel for your great loss. It must have been sad for you to have her die in a foreign land among strangers. I wish I had known where she was "And the girl was the daughter of buried. I would have gone to the place with flowers."

"We do not know where she is buried. In her last sickness she tried to reach home, and sailed from Havre; but the ship was never heard of after it left port. You see, her father's illness called her home to Madrid, where they lived, and where my wife was born, and where I met her. He lingered on for weeks, and she stayed with him for six months. Then when he died she was taken ill, and it was then she tried to come back to me in New York. We were young then, and very poor, and it was for that reason she came by sailing vessel. A friend of her father's -an English sea captain-offered her a free passage home, and she accepted the offer-and never arrived." "And was there no woman with

"Only the captain's wife."

"And my voice is like her's?" "Yes, my child; that is the reason I wish you to become my daughter Your every tone, every syllable, is like my dead wife's voice. Sometimes, when I hear you speak in another room, I think my wife must be there, and I long to go to her, and do,-only to find you." "It is strange,-very strange." "Then, too, your singular discovery on this unknown ship seems to draw you nearer to me. The sea took my dead, and it gives me you. I do not know who your parents were. It does not matter-He paused abruptly. The ship had stopped. The sound of the engine had ceased, and then came that strange, awesome silence that may mean so much at sea. "Is there danger, sir?"

"No, I think not. It may be only a Sandy Hook pilot coming aboard." It is one of the curious features of life at sea that whether in sickness or in health, in joy and in sorrow, all on board move on to new horizons. Unresting the ship sails on, regardless whether the expected land be a land of promise or a grave. So there is besides the idle life of the saloon a other life on board, of work and business.

For hours those whose business it was to sail and guide the ship, and who regarded the expected port merely as a starting-place for another voyage, had been looking for a change in the monotony of their daily work. The pilot would bring a new face on board, or perhaps renew old friendships. He would bring news of the land-of events at home or abroad. The drifting fog lifted occasionally and gave a wider outlook over the water, and the eves on deck and bridge were strained to catch sight of the familiar schooner showing great figures on her main sail.

Silly and empty minds, not having thought enough of their own to keep them from mental fermentation, also kept a sharp lookout for the pilot-schooner. With the weakness of vacant minds, certain creatures in the smoking-room had laid wagers on the number of the pilot-boat, and among these, naturally enough, was young Mr. Royal Yardstickie. Not being able to earn money, he tried to win it on haphazard chances,-thinking, like his kind, that money won on bets was rightfully his, and not, as it is, a theft under a politer name. Suddenly there came over the smooth gray water a horn-like note. The steamer's big whistle spoke in reply, and then the horn spoke again. The few passengers on the wet decks peered through the mist, but could see nothing. The ship's people seemed to understand better what lay ahead, for the engine stopped, and the ship ploughed silently ahead, slower and slower, and then stopped. Again there was a curious conversation between horn and whistle then a long silence. At and last it came-the sound of oars through the mist-and slowly a shadowy rowboat came out of the fog and presently lay beside the vast black mass of the steamer. A rope ladder rattled down the ship's side, and then an elderly man with bronzed hands clasping the rounds of the ladder came nimbly up to the deck, and the row-boat, with one man on board, drifted off into the fog. A number of young men crowded round the gangway to catch a sight of the pilot. The ship's captain stood by the ladder, and several sailors were near, so that the passengers were able to see the pilot, yet had no chance to

to do so, as the mist had shut out the

the number of the schooner would be to ask the pilot. The captain knew this, and at once spoke to the pilot, bidding him welcome with mingled surprise and pleasure and at once leadng him away to the bridge.

One among the passengers stood apart and saw the pilot arrive. The instant his brown and smiling face appeared above the rail the passenger turned quickly away, as if not wishing to be seen. The ship resumed its way, and the passenger felt in its movement the approach of fate. His luck had turned. He had trusted too much in it, and humiliation and disgrace were at hand. He did not know it positively, yet he felt sure of it. He took out a little note-book and counted up his bets. Fifty pounds - twenty more than he could control. His faith in his luck had led him into this; and now Julie was on the same ship, and the man whom he had so deeply wronged. by some bewildering turn of the whirligig of time, was to guide the unworthy son with a sigh. If only ship into port. Of course if luck had turned in one direction it had turned in all. He must pay his debts of honorfoolish twisting of words-before they boat. If the number could not be ob--as if an honest debt could be declared "off" in any sense. He, for one, would certainly make no effort to find out the schooner's number, for he felt sure it would go against him.

There would be many hours before with mist, the Captain of the steamer invited his pilot to his chart-room behind the wheel-room.

"Come right in, Captain, and make yourself at home. I dec'are, I was never more surprised and delighted in my life. Must be six years since you used to take us in and out at Sandy Hook. Sit down and tell me all about it. What brought you back to piloting? All the family well at home? Let me see, you had a boy and a girl then. Quite grown up by this time, I suppose."

The elderly pilot seemed to be pleased at the hearty welcome accorded him, and, opening his big jacket, sat down in an arm chair, put his feet against the radiator, and made himself comfortable in the native American manner. "Cur'us, Capt. Floyd-most cur'us thing I ever seen. Very first trip out I make I run afoul o' you. Folks to hum well? Guess you had a girl 'n' a boy or two. Spect they're pretty spry by this time. Been well 'long back? Got first-rate ship, haven't you?"

The old pilot was, when 'upon a yarn," as he expressed it, reckless of words, and more than an hour passed before he completed the tale of his broken home and ruined hopes. Meanwhile, below in the fetid atmosphere of the smoking-room, Mr. Royal Yardstickie was meeting the first reverse in the change of his "luck." There had been a vigorous discussion among the holders of the so-called debts of honor as to what should be done. They had met the pilot-boat, but no one knew her number. By the common consent of greedy minds, all who still had faith in their own personal "luck," an informal meeting had been called to consider the momentous question as to how the money in the several pockets should be redistributed in order to make some poorer and others richer according to the silly laws of "honor."

LAUTY AND GENIUS.

THE BELLES OF THE PARIS MUSIC HALLS.

Beauty Without Talent Does Not Count for Much with Paris Theater Goers-Some of the Magnetic Sirenes Who Charm the French Capital.

EAUTY is a very thing, but when unaccompanied by magnetism it is like a scentless flower. Magnetism, however, does exist without beauty, and sweeps all before it, invincibly, unreasonably, mysterious ly. This positivism explains the continued ascendency of Yvette Guilbert in Paris. She is only a music hall singer a cafe chantant sketch artist, but Paris is true to her, and now, during her visit to London, the English papers are devoting columns to her praise. She has landed, or be branded as a man with-always been described as coming quietout honor by the honorable denizens ly out in a conventional evening gown, of the smoking-room. So far, none of singing questionable songs with a saintthem knew the number of the pilot ly air. She does nothing of that sort True, her gown is modest enough for a tained the debt would be declared off church bazaar, but the long, thin arms, bare to the elbow, in these days of balloon sleeves make one surprising note the sober, black gloves another; the plain, serviceable slippers another; the school girl simplicity of the looselyclasped hands another; the lack of false coloring on the undeniably red hair and the services of the pilot would be plain face a last one. You expect little needed, and, as the bridge was wet from such an ensemble. You are spellbound from the enunciation of her first line. Afterward you realize why, when you hear critics assert that her power as an actress is as great as Bernhardt's but put to a debasing use-a jewel in a dust heap. Guilbert's face is capable of quiet, diabolical expression; even her smallest gesture, wink, or lightest nod become somehow blatantly wicked. After her all the chattering, whirling, skirt tossing young women are violent and jarring, while in your soul you know well mannered velvet voiced Yvette. Her most popular song this season is "So I d.d. I was 'p'inted keeper of represent a night-cap-there is no other change of costume, no properties, no and gone gallantries in a crooning monof romance. Only five years ago she ful powers to delight her companions at lunch time. In her little world her fame spread and she began to look beyond its limits. She sought the stage. A goodtempered manager gave her a trial; her success was instantaneous. To-day she is famous-a shrewd business woman and very rich, writes Kate Jordan in Leslie's Weekly.

Otero, who danced in New York five years ago, has been at the Folies Ber reres since the Mi-Careme festival she was a beautiful woman, a Spanish Madonna in type. But "La belle Otero," is she is called, has changed all that The severity of hair has gone, and she wears it wild, befrizzled, like the thousand other theatrical lights of Paris who "Well, yes, and no. mous in their way as the bargains at the Bon Marche, is Otero's rival. No one knows quite what the secret of the leud is, but these two variety stage stars continually attempt to outshine each other. They were both at Monte Carlo in January, and in the surging. dusty, green-hued gambling rooms were centers of opposing, admiring crowds. Otero at one table was a briliant Spanish picture in crimson or yellow the buttons on her satin blouse sapphires as large as robin's eggs. Turnng from her your eyes were caught by blaze of white, fire-shot radiance from a table near by, where La Pongy stood with a quart of diamonds sprinkled over bare shoulders. Otero had a victory one beautiful, demoralizing little principal ity all heard the rumor that La belle Otero was winning twenty thousand francs a day. Her luck was phenomenal, and feverish interest held the crowd surrounding her spell-bound La Pongy's vanity was conquered by her desire for gain. On this particular night she boldly went to the rouge et noir table where the Spaniard stood repeating her former successes, and de-

But La Pongy had her revenge. A night or two following, when Otero dazzled all eyes with necklet, rings, sunbursts and pins in diamonds and sapphires, her rival entered in a simple, high-necked black gown, nun-like in ef-

For three years she was one of the coryphees at the Grand Opera, just a unit among lines of human butterflies, angels, or nymphs. Yet in every opera, whatever the costume, her hair, always the same, always unique, was an emphatic note. All of a length, this wonderful chestnut hair is always severely parted, down in low, loose bands quite over the ears, and loosely coiled behind At last De Merode's constancy to one set coiffure was rewarded. People be gan to ask who she was: photographers discovered that her profile was purely Greek, that she was beautiful; and it was not long before she became an ob ject of popular homage.

To-day her pictures are displayed everywhere in Paris. She is still a coryphee, but is paid extravagantly for sitting before the camera, and for an exceptional price has posed for one or two of the best sculptors. The oak growing from a little acorn is not more wonderful than De Merode's fame as a beauty profile might never have been discovered among the back rows on the big opera stage. She has now several imitators among Parisian actresses, and the De Merode coiffure has had an enthusiastic vogue in Paris.

Canadian Legislation.

The Canadian Parliament has voted down the bill to give Parliamentary suffrage to women, and also to raise the age of protection for girls to 18. The member who introduced the bill to raise the age of protection voted for the suffrage bill, and every member who spoke in opposition to raising the age of protection voted against woman suffrage. Another mediaeval decision against the rights of woman has just been given at Berlin. An antiquated law still exists which prohibits woman scholars and apprentices from joining starting from her low-drawn hair. With a political society. THEY WON THE RAISE.

The Directors Were Satisfied That Their Claim Was Just.

Once when the miners of a big anthracite mining company were desirous of receiving increased pay an effort was made to induce the local officials in the mining country to make such representations to the president of the company as would produce the desired effect. This was unavailing, however, and efforts in other directions were tried, Not party politics. Perhaps it will until the directors offered to meet a delegation of the miners in New York city and discuss the situation. A dozen of the brawniest miners in the region were selected as delegates-great rugged men, who would certainly make a favorable impression. The men met the officials and stated their case, which blood or matter of almost pure feeling, was that at the prevailing rate of wages they could hardly get enough to eat. The matter was held under advisement, and the conference adjourned to luncheon. Then came the most amazing display of appetites that has ever been seen before or since, and the colored waiters turned pale as they saw a dish are better than their party, but such intended for the entire party retained by one man, who speedily made away with the contents. Each man seemed as ravenous as though he had not eaten for a week, and the caterer was at his wits' ends to provide for them all.

BIG PROFITS Small Investments

Returning prosperity will make many rich, but nowhere can they make so much within a short on his wheel.

FOR EACH DOLLAR INVESTED can be made by our Systematic Plan of Speculation originated by us. All successful speculators operate on a regular system.

It is a well-known fact that there are thousands of men in all parts of the United States who, by systematic tracking through Chicago Brokers, make large amounts every year, ranging from a few thousand dollars for the man who invests a hundred or two hundred dollars up to $50,000 to $100.

It is also a fact that those who invest a few thousand.

It is also a fact that those who make the largest profits from comparatively small investments on this plan are persons who live away from Chicago and invest through brokers who thoroughly understand systematic trading.

Our plan does not risk the whole amount invested on any trade, but covers both sides, so that whether the market rises or falls it brings a steady profit that piles up enormously in a short time.

WRITE FOR CONVINCING PROOFS, also our Mannal on successful speculation and our pally Market Report, full of money-making pointers. ALL FREE, Our Manual explains margin trading fully. Highest references in regard to our standing and success,

Mt. Ignace Celebrates in Honor of Father Marquette Who was Buried There-Michigan Crop Report for August-Prison Parole System Recommended.

2,300 Soldiers at Camp Devlin.

The Michigan National Guard was greeted by heavy rain when they went into camp at Island Lake. The camp was christened Camp Devlin in honor of the late quartermaster general. There were 2,300 boys in blue in camp when the first day's work had been finished, including the Nineteenth infantry of the U. S army from Ft. Wayne, Detroit. Brigadier-General Mawley was in personal command and gave the boys 18 hours work daily. Several of the boys were arrested for warious offences and a court martial was mecessary to enforce discipline. Wm. Bowman, of the Fourth regiment, was dishonorably discharged and drummed out of camp for drunkenness and insubordination. Patrick Cunningham and Henry J. Hastings, also of the Fourth, were fined their camp pay for deserting their posts while on guard duty. The arrival of Gov. Rich, as commander-in-chief, was made the occasion of considerable display, and the old 10-pound howitzer which served in the famous Loomis battery during the war, was brought out to fire a salute of 19 guns. At the seventeenth gun a premature discharge occurred and Chas. McCullough, Frank Kelly and Ira Lent, all of Co. E. First regiment, received injuries which caused the loss of a finger to each.

In Honor of Father Marquette.

Father Marquette, the famous Jesuit missionary whose name is so closely woven into the history of Michigan, was honored by a splendid celebration at St. Ignace. The purpose of the event was to raise funds for the erection of a monument to the missionary of long ago whose remains reposed at St. Ignace for more than two centuries. The celebration opened with a parade in which were hundreds of Indians in costume. They gave a war dance after the march. The city fire department and civic organizations and four brass bands also participated.
The formal exercises were held in a big tent on the bluff and were opened by Mayor Connors. Rev. Father J. E. Keul, of St. Ignace, told of the discovery of Marquette's remains in 1877 in the buried ruins of the ancient Jesuit mission church. Gov. Rich, Hon. T. A. E. Weadock and Hon. W. M. Springer delivered addresses and Fr. Chebul spoke to the Indians assembled. About $2,000 was raised toward a mon-

"Hold Your Head up and Look Natural." The Photographers' Association of America held four a days' convention at the Museum of Art at Detroit. There were 400 members from the various points of the compass. On the first day the photographers did little busi-ness. President Schneider, of Columbus, O., read the annual address. The report of J. Ed. Roeche, of St. Louis, the treasurer, was read by Secretary C. M. Hayes, of Detroit. It showed the receipts last year were $4,787.56, and the expenditures $3,795. President Schneider's speech was brief, complimentary and encouraging.

The salon exhibits comprised some of the finest specimens of the photographers' art ever shown in this country and contained several hundred very fine photographs of all classes of subjects.

Parole System Adopted by Prison Board. The state prison boards in session at Mackinac island adopted the parole system authorized by the legislature last winter. The rules provide that the governor may release convicts on parole upon the recommendation of the board which shall be guided by the warden's report No convict shall be parolled until half his sentence expires and may not leave the state until the full time of sentenced is passed. He shall be deemed in the legal custody of the governor and by him may be ordered back to prison. In event of his refusing to obey he shall be considered an escaped convict. While on parole he shall be subject to prison rules and save or forfeit "good time" the same as if actually in conminement.

New Prohibition Committee.

At the meeting of the Prohibition state central committee at Jackson a resolution was adopted praising Chairman Fanning. Later Mr. Fanning presented his resignation to take effect when his back salary had been paid. Then the committee reconsidered its complimentary resolution and adopted another declaring the office of chairman vacant. A new executive com-mittee was elected: Chairman, John Gilberson, Clair; vice chairman, Dr. H. A. Reynolds, Pontiac; secretary, W. C. Shephard, Grand Rapids; treasurer, C. K. Perrine, Jackson; members, Dr. Paul T. Butler, Alamo: Brent Harding Bay City, and D. W. Grandon, Adrian Missionaries in China Continue to be in Great Danger of Their Lives from Fanatical Rioters .- Cuban Insurgents Form a Republic.

American Missionaries Slaughtered

Dispatches from Foo Chow, China, say: A mob has looted the American Zion chapel at Inghok, 50 miles from here. Unless prompt action is taken there is danger of great riots in other places. The Chinese soldiers sent to protect foreign property plundered the Stewart residence and the general sitnation is critical. There is no American protection and that government's neglect is infamous.

Hong Kong: The British and American missions at Fat Shan, near Canton. were attacked by a large mob and the hospitals were demolished. The missionaries fled for their lives. It is rumored that other missions will be destroyed.

More Missionaries May be Massacred. Dispatches from Fu Chow and Hong Kong says that the situation of Euro pean and American missionaries is critical owing to the open hostilities of the natives and native officials. If an outbreak occurs, the native officials will be unable to cope with the mob. Fu-Kien province is said to be in a state of rebellion and the mission of Fung-Fuk, in that province, has been burned. The missionaries have telegraphed for gunboats to protect the foreign settlement. The massacre at Ku Cheng was carried out in the most diabolical manner and it was evidently a premeditated and carefully arranged attack, entirely unprovoked, made upon the occupants of the missionary station while they were asleep. There are rumors of further riots at places nearer to Fu Chow then Ku Cheng This district includes the scations of the Church of England at Zenana, the American Methodists' stations at Fukhien, Fuhning, Layong, Ningtaik, Hokchiang and Huighwa.

United States' Hostility Toward Hawali Honolulu advices contain a copy of letter sent by U.S. Minister Willis to the Hawaiian government, demand that reparation be made James Durel, an alleged American citizen, of Negro and Indian blood, who was arrested last January charged with treason. In refutation of the demand the Hawaiian government will prove that Durel aided the queen; that he furthered the conspiracy to reseat the queen, and that his demand of $25,000 is exhorbitant. Hawaii is viewing this action of Minister Willis with serious appreension. They fear that it indicates active hostility toward them on the part of the American administration, and that it is designed to encourage and lead the way to a series of similar demands from Great Britain, and perhaps other powers, which would be ruinous to Hawaii to comply with.

An Extra Session of Congress, Maybe Washington: There is considerable talk of congress, or at least the senate, being convened in extra session, before the regular meeting in December, for the purpose of acting upon a nomina-tion for justice of supreme court, so that a full bench may assemble at the October session, which is deemed a matter of considerable public interest in view of important cases pending before that court. If both houses shall be convened, it will be because of the necessity for providing immeliate relief to the treasury by raising additional revenue. Other raids upon the treasury gold reserve are confidently predicted, and the belief prevails that the syndicate may not be able or disposed longer to protect it, n which event another bond issue will ecome inevitable.

Two colored women, refugees from Spring Valley, Ill., from whence they were driven by the Italian miners, have reached Chicago and the reports they give of the treatment of the colpeople at that place have infla ned the Negroes to the highest pitch. Over 500 excited Negroes in a mass meeting at Chicago passed resolutions demanding that Gov. Altgeld protect the colored people at Spring Valley, and asserting their determination to leave for that place with arms should the governor refuse to take action. The men were excited and the speeches were violent and determined. The sentiment so alarmed the Italian consul that he held a conference with Mayor Swift and Chief of Police Badenoch and it was decided to prevent the colored men from assembling an

REVIEW OF TRADE.

Dun's says: Business continues unusually active for midsummer, and though there is perceptible relaxation there are no signs of reaction. The one change of great importance which the past week has brought is eminently help ul—the amicable settlement between coal miners and operators in Western Pennsylvania, Ohio and Ind.ana. It is said that about 10,000 men will have their wages increased after October 1 by this adjustment, and while the collargement of purchasing power is of conseenlargement of purchasing power is of consequence, it seems even more important the quence, it seems even more important the chronic cause of controversy has been removed by the new agreement as to company stores. There is no important change in crop prospects. Wheat declined a fraction with scanty receipts influencing the market for the present more than the restricted exports. The concerted withholding of wheat by western farmers, if continued, would doubtless affect the price in the end, but it has already stopped Atlantic exports almost entirely, and when foreign markets have supplied their needs from other quarters the western farmers may find reason to regret that they did not ship their wheat at ordinary time. Corn tends to lower prices with more encouraging prospects, and the expectation of a heavy corn crop affects prices of provisions, which night be expected. The industries continue to make progress, and higher prices for iron and steel products prove that the supply has not outrun the demand. The anthracite coal market is completely demoralized and prices have again yielded a little to about the lowest ever known. Sales of wool are not as much inflated by speculation as they were during July, but they still considerably exceed the actual consumption in the manufacture. chronic cause of controversy has been removed

I sprang from my horse, but no one met me at the door. Then I hurried into the cabin.

There was a huddled figure sitting on a stool in one corner. As I entered the figure moved, and a haggard, ghastly face, with wildly-glaring eyes, looked up at me. There was no recognition in those

I kept at him till he was in much better shape than when I found him. Then we went out to search for the kidnaped girl.

The reader may not believe in luck, but I do. I have seen too many strange freaks of cards not to believe in it.

Luck was with us that day. Old Ferguson had scoured the mountains all about, and he did not believe his child was within hundreds of miles of his cabin.

We were riding through a canyon about twenty-five miles from the cabin. At our left ran a strong, deep stream. On either hand the walls of the canyon rose perpendicularly. A sudden scream caused us to look up.

ifle, and fired. With a hoarse shrick of horror the man fell outward, and came whirling down.

He passed the girl, who was descending swiftly but steadily, still clinging to the open umbrella, which served as parachute. Into the river I urged my horse. The man had struck with a great splash, and disappeared.

The girl followed. She relinquished the umbrella and

Their booty was stored there. Amid the stuff was a big government ımbrella.

LOSING THE EMPEROR. Why Napoleon Was Angry and Refused to Ride As to Maj. Poppleton's letter, dated March 15, 1817, it may be stated that some little sensation had recently been occasioned in the island by the reputed 'losing" of Napoleon by that officer when accompanying him on one of his daily rides, says the Gentleman's writes: "With regard to my encounter with his majesty, it is erroneously stated. We never exchanged a syllable. In consequence of his riding at a very great rate I lost sight of him altogether, but, being perfectly satisfied as to his ultimate safety. I did not trouble myself about him, but left him to return to Longwood when he pleased. This he did in due course. I afterward related what had happened to Admiral Sir George Cockburn and he desired of me "if we rode out again not to lose sight of the emperor, but to ride near him. In the course of a day or two he (Bonaparte) sent to me to say he wished to ride. I sent word to him that I should attend him with pleasure, but that for publican. the future I should ride near him if I chose, not as his servant; that I should behave toward him with every delicacy possible: that I would not interrupt nor listen to his conversation, and if a wish were expressed by him to be left alone it should be complied with. The horses were immediately unsaddled his breakfast equipage was unloaded and he gave out that he was unwell. We have never ridden together since. most terrible business was made of it all, but not a word of truth in the whole The French officers who were with him were determined at that time to misrepresent everything and to make him dislike the English. In this they completely succeeded for a length of time, but Napoleon has for some time past been of a contrary opinion and expressed himself highly pleased with myself personally. I have no doubt but that all I desired to be told him was misconstrued."

A Bicyclienne.

Saturday afternoon passengers on a north-bound limits car going past Lincoln park saw a large, odd-shaped object flitting among the trees and moving along a distant driveway in the same direction as the car.

"It moves like a bicycle, but the top part is too big for a man," said one. "Maybe he's got a load of hay on his back." said another.

"I bet that's the fat bicycle agent," was the inspiration of the man who spoke first. As the object sailed along people wondered. Suddenly there was an opening in the trees and the object darted out into the sunshine, disclosing a combination of bicycle and a large

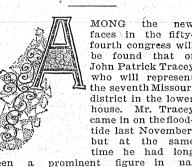

The Daily News reporter who was going to view the 500 feet extension of the lake shore speeding drive yearned to know more. The car steadily gained on the rider, and when it had got far enough ahead the reporter dropped off the footboard and started on a crosscountry move toward a spot where interception and an interview seemed plausible. But it was too warm for the nature of the undertaking and the bicyclienne had passed the point of arrival. The parasol had lace on it and she wore bloomers.—Chicago News.

REDHOT HAYMAKING.

Amateur's Experience Was Complete and Satisfactory In One Day.

The hottest experience I ever met with in the country was the day I helped to make hay. The farmer began to call us shortly after midnight, and after a long siege of intermittent yelling he succeeded in his design of getting us out of bed several hours before it was necessary. It was then 8 a. m. About two hours later we had had our breakfasts and were entering the hayfield.

When one gets into trouble, the open Minutes of regular meeting of July ing scenes are always alluring. A gorgeous sunrise was in full swing in the east. The dew lay on the grass, and the air was cool and invigorating. I could not but agree with the poets that the scent of the new mown hay was very tion which was laid on the table August | inspiring. I felt like a colt and was keen

The first heat consisted in bunching the hay after the rake, which the farmer himself drove about the field with many loud "gees" and "haws," but few 'whoas." The old rascal took a flendish delight in crowding us. It began to look a little like work.

When the hay was all bunched, the high ladder wagons were driven into the field. Being a novice. I was assigned the duty of loading. I stood upon the wagon and built the load as the hay was pitched to me theoretically, but on me actually. The first dose knocked all the poetry out of me. The blazing sun had sucked up all the dewdrops and was now high in the east. He seemed to focus his scorching rays on the wagons, and the hay crackled and sizzled about me like frying fat. It was noon 20 times all at once. I thought I was becoming liquified. I sank to my neck in the hay and roasted in a concentrated oven of absorbed solar heat. Not a breeze stirred. No friendly cloud hovered near to screen the orb of fire. vainly tried to fancy I was in the Arctic ocean and the wagon was a floating iceberg. The old pitchers, inured to the heat and the avocation, still fed on the

We were jerked into the barn-from the frying pan into the fire-and I was there barbecued for half an hour in the hot beds of the mow.

Out we shot again into the broiling field. All day long this process of slow torture continued. It was a little drama from the snowless land inserted into real life, the farmer impersonating satan, the pitchers his archangels and myself Charon's lost passenger.

- But, thank heaven, the farmer was no Joshua, and the sun at last completed his trip across the skies and disap peared beneath the mountain. The next day my place on the wagon was occupied by some other fool. -Philadelphia

The Bank of Scotland.

The Bank of Scotland, now 200 years old, naturally sought to encourage Scottish industries, and this is shown in the manufacture of its paper for notes. The first large notes were made in 1696, 20 shilling notes, as they were termed, being only issued on April 7, 1704. In 1729 the bank's paper was manufactured at Giffordhall, near Haddington. Attendants had to be present in the bank's interest, and their account was paid by the bank. One item was "ale and bread furnished to the workmen, 10s.," and another for "drink money to servants, £4 17s. 6d." The items are suggestive, although it is possible they only represented drink money in name. In 1735 the bank got its 20 shilling banknotes made at Collingtoun Miln (Colinton mill), and there is an "accompt for drink money" in connection with it. A barber came twice from compt for drink money" in connection with it. A barber came twice from Edinburgh to shave the officials and received 3s. for his professional attendance. Green tea must have cost at this time 24s. per pound, for in the bill a quarter pound sells for 6s. At this Colinton mill the bank appears to have kept all the employees in food during the time the paper was being manufactured. A man was engaged 12 days at the paper mill in dressing meat, and he cut up in that time 200 pounds of it. Meat and mutton cost only 3½d per pound in those good old days. A hen is charged at 8d., a duck at 9d., one "sollan goose," 1s. 8d.; a dezen eggs, 3d.; six chickens, only 1s. 4d., and a wild fowl, 10d.; cheese cost 4d. per pound and bacon 8d. per pound. In 1769 the bank's note paper was made at Redhangh Miln (Redhall mill).—Chambers Journal.
