A Christian woman was seen going along the edge of a wood, every eventide, and the neighbors in the country so many cares and anxieties should waste so much time as to be idly sauntering out evening by evening. 'It was found out afterward that she went there to pray for her household, and while there one evening, she wrote that beautiful hymn, famous in all ages for cheering Christian hearts:

RAND, MENALLY & CO. . CHAPTER VII.

BY PERMISSION OF

HE COLONEL INformed his sisterin-law the same evening of the success of his expedition to Limehouse. He described his interview with Johnstone at some length, and with a good deal of dramatic skill.

"Then you entrapped the man rather than persuaded "I certainly did not intrust him with our secret," he replied. "That can be easily explained at any time before we reach St. Helena." "And you have no fear that he will draw back when he finds out the real nature of the service required from "He's not that kind of man. Besides, whatever he may be, let me once get him on board, and I'll answer for his higher capacity, you would of course proceed openly? The colonel saw the point of this question at once, and felt himself in a difficulty. He had as yet come to no definite idea of how Dick was to be gained: he glanced at his sister-in-law and saw an indignant resolve fore-our design, and asking him to join us." "Very well," she said, coldly. "You promise, then?" he asked. "Of course," she said; "but in any case he needs no warning against an open attempt." The colonel was inclined to think so too, but he said nothing, and-retired to consider the matter more attentively in the diplomatic atmosphere of his own

During the next few days nothing more was heard of the subject. Dick called several times, and the colonel noted with satisfaction his growing intimacy with Camilla The end of the week-the last before the start-was now drawing near. The time had come for the colonel to spread his net, and he was ready in his place, waiting only for the favorable moment.

It was not long delayed. On the Friday afternoon Camilla asked him whether he expected to be much occupied on the following day. "No," he replied; "I have no engagement whatever."

"I am told," she said, "that there are some fine Claudes and Watteaus at No. 9 Great Russell Street. The house is to be let furnished, and they allow one to walk in and see the pictures."

He bowed, to hide the cat-like eagerness of his eyes.

"I thought," she continued, "that it would be an agreeable way of passing the morning; and if you can come too, we might invite Captain Estcourt to accompany us. He said something about calling, and there's nothing to amuse him here. Then will you invite him?" she asked, after a pause.

"With pleasure," said the colonel, in his most formal and indifferent tone; and the subject dropped. After dinner the same evening he appeared in the drawing room with a sheet of paper in his hand.

"This," he said, holding it out to Camilla, "is a rough draft of the letter I propose writing to Estcourt, in accordance with our agreement of a few days

She took it and read as follows:

"My Dear Captain Estcourt: My sister-in-law and I have more than once hinted to you how deeply we are devoted to the service of the Emperor Napoleon, and how cruelly we have felt his exile. A favorable opportunity has now presented itself for attempting his liberation, and we are to start almost immediately for our base of operations. From what you have already told us of your views on his majesty's imprisonment, and from the cordial and Intimate friendship with which you have honored us, I am induced to hope that you will give us your loyal assistance in this expedition. If we may rely on you for this important service, will you be good enough to meet us at the time and place mentioned below, when I shall have the pleasure of introducing to you M. Carnac and M. le Comte de Rabodanges, two of our most trusted confederates. In case, however, you should unhappily feel unable to join us. may I ask you to destroy this letter at once, and not refer to it again? We shall understand your silence as a refusal.'

She weighed every phase and every word with painful care, then tossed the paper back to him without comment. "That meets with your approval, then?' 'he asked. "On the contrary," she replied, "the whole thing is a folly, and meets with my disapproval; but if a letter must go, by all means let that be the form of it.' You think it well calculated to achieve its object?" asked the colonel, with a pretense of anxiety. She laughed sarcastically. He put

And all the time, in the room beneath the colonel was relentlessly planning his downfall.

For no sooner had Dick and Camilla passed upstairs into the drawing room which contained the more valuable paintings, than M. Carnac and the count arrived almost together.

The colonel took them into the din ing room and closed the door. "You will remember," he said, "our last meeting, and the resolutions then arrived at." They bowed.

"I am happy," he continued. "to be able to report that my efforts have been crowned with complete success. I have engaged a daring and competent seaing at St. Helena."

M. Carnac looked flustered; this news had quite taken away the poor old gentleman's breath. But the count was enthusiastic, and warmly congratulated the colonel, plying him with strings 'I have made an appointment with him of eager questions. M. de Montaut for 11 o'clock tomorrow morning, at stopped him with a smile.

"Not so fast, my friend," he said 'the gentleman is in the house at this moment, and I shall have the pleasure of presenting him to you immediately Of one thing, however," he continued, "I must warn you beforehand. He has given, so far, no more than a tacit assent to my invitation to join us, and reference to the matter at present, beyond, of course, giving a cordial greeting to so invaluable an accomplice."

THE MAN WHO COOKS.

He Is a Much More Contented Husband

Than He Who Does Not. Did you ever notice how conceited a man is about his knowledge of housekeeping in general and of cooking in particular? But of course you have, for that is the one spot that you can touch quickly. He may make no pretentions apparently of such knowledge, but it is there and will come out if at all encouraged. And I do not know that it is entirely a conceit of his make-up either. It would probably be a wise plan, especially for the young wife, to man to work my submarine boat, and humor this soft spet. WOMAN'S WORLD.

A YOUNG WOMAN WHO MANAGES AND EDITS A DAILY NEWSPAPER.

The Hotel Housekeeper - The American Girl-Georgia Women Journalists-Mrs. Sheridan and Her Children—The Countess

The new woman is still branching out. She had tackled about every department on a newspaper outside of the business office and the mechanical departments, and now she has absorbed the whole outfit at one swoop. The woman to make this daring move is of course a western girl. She is Miss Nellie Madeline Davis, daughter of Colonel C. C. Davis, proprietor and founder of the Leadville Chronicle, which is one of the most influential evening newspapers in Colorado. Colonel Davis was recently ill as a result of living for many years in the high altitude of the famous mining camp, and his physician ordered a prolonged absence at sea level. There was no one

MISS NELLIE DAVIS. agement of his paper during a long absence, and he began to despair of his ability to follow the doctor's prescription, when the daughter suggested that she take the position of editor, manager and publisher.

It was a bold suggestion, and it won because of its boldness. A brief trial convinced Colonel Davis that the young woman was capable, and with an easy mind and a clear conscience he started on his tracks.

Miss vavis is not a girl of the

'M'liss'' type, if she does run a newspaper in a mining camp. On the contrary, she looks very like the conventional society young woman and confesses to a great foundness for social diversions-just like any other well balnuced, healthy, good looking and bright girl of 22. What is probably most to her eredit is the fact that she protests vehemently against being called a "new just what she is—a womanly woman.

The Hotel Housekeeper.

of the amusing signs of the times that the British matron, after having for years utterly disapproved of and loudly condemned everything connected with our young countrywomen, is now endeavoring to find out the secret of her attractions, and to teach her "little ways" to her own somewhat stolid brood. To tell the truth, she is fairly frightened at the influx of Americans into the peerage and the county families, and since she finds she cannot kill with disapproval she seems inclined to imitate. But here comes a difficulty, an insuperable obstacle of race. What an American can do, with a sort of airy audacity quite her own, is apt to become rather heavy horseplay with her English cousins. The explanation of this seems to be that the American type is more spirituelle. Our women may be eccentric. unconventional and even sometimes what might be called fast, but they are rarely, if ever, coarse. An innate refinement and coolness of temperament save them from vulgarity, and give to their manners the daring courage of originality that foreigners admire.

"I thought we would find you alto-gether English," said a friend to an American girl who had married a titled Englishman on her first visit to her native land after her marriage. "No indeed!" answered the latter in mock horror. "I consider my American accent and manners my most cherished possessions. They are my greatest cards over there! We had a fire at ____ castle, where I was stopping last year, and I lost a lot of my clothes. 'I hope you saved your pretty gowns,' said the prince to me afterward. 'I saved nothing but my American accent, sir,' I answered. "Well, then, you are all right,' he returned, laughing."—New York Trib-

Georgia Women Journalists.

The intense activity of the Georgia newspaper press superinduced by the Atlanta exposition has brought prominently into notice a number of women writers who have sprung up in that commonwealth almost entirely within the last decade. A careful comparison shows that they are fully equal to their sisters in New York, Massachusetts and Illinois who have had the advantage of an experience of about twice as long. There is not the same high pressure of life in Dixio as in Yankeedom. People down there have more leisure time than those up here, and the papers reflect it in giving more attention to social, literary and similar events. These fields are covered almost exclusively by women writers and are described in the public prints in a manner worthy of the first class dailies of the north. Signed articlos are more common also in the south. so that the public is much better acquainted with the personalities of the writers who entertain them day by day than they are in this part of the Union.

In Atlanta the leading women are Mrs. Mand Andrews Ohl, Mrs. William King, Mrs. Grady, Miss Isma Dooley, who are connected with the Atlanta Constitution; Miss Corinne Stocker, demently against being called a "new constitution; Miss Corinne Stocker, Miss Mary Louise Huntley, Miss Brent give instant relief. a lovely joke that an American countess should take a hand in fashion making, but anything for amusement, so at the Castellanes' the other night, when the cotillon was danced, madame's little plan was put into operation. Two sets of quadrilles, one with sleeveless ladies and the other with ladies in puffs, gigots, shoulder fans, etc., were formed, and judgment was passed on the effect, which will ultimately become the decision of Paris. The ladies had to draw lots, and though some of them were not pleased to cut out their sleeves, when they entered the drawing room with lace and chiffon falling gracefully on their arms from the necks of their low bodices, showing the perfection of shoulder line and the roundness of the bust, the murmur of admiration that greeted them must have been gratifying, if not convincing. Then the ladies with full sleeves trooped in, and a deadly silence greeted them. But by and by the waists seemed so tiny, the heads so well poised and the faces so youthful and admirably set off by the big winglike revers, that nothing could be decided, and, to her disgust, the young countess had not succeeded in settling the grand question of the hour. Probably the ladies whose sleeves had to be ripped out have been mad ever since, and their maids also because obliged to sew them all on

year a young man full of life and vigor left the farm in Calhoun county, for the more active life in City. Drifting into the the telegraph buisness he secured a Losition on the C. & N. W. R. R., at Republic Mich. In addition to his duties as eper ator, he was required to sell tickets. check baggage and make himself generally useful. Between the exacting officials on the one side and the inconsistant public on the other, he was worked and worried to such an extent that his health gave out and one day was carried to bis home. After a severe nervous spasm; he grew from bad to worse untill he had to relinquish his position, a physical wreck
The doctor could not cure him and told him so, but advised him to go to Ann Arbor and place himself in the charge of that world wide institution of charge of that world wide institution of learning, which he did He continued with their treatment constantly and faithfully for four years, receiving little, if any benefit. While in this condition, a friend gave him a bottle of Dr. Wheeler's Nerve Vitalizer, with an urgent request to use it. Not wishing to offend his friend he promised to do so, but did his friend he promised to do so, but did his friend, he promised to do so, but did not, because, as he argued with himself What's the use of taking that stuff' if the most learned nerve specialists can not cure me?" Dut as time passed would occasionly think of the negected bottle of medicine and he promised to use it. One day he picked it up and mechanically pulled the cork, measured out a dose and took it. A change seemed to come over him, his nervousness abated, his mind became clear and he thought he felt something of his old ime vigor He continued to take the Vitalizer until he was able to sit up, then to walk a few steps; the sluggish blood in his veins become active, color returned to his flesh and he felt need of more food. He soon improved so that he ought and become engaged in light abor and earned the first dollar in labor and earned the first dollar in nearly two years; hope attained its long vacated position in his brain and and his friends rejoiced at the wonder-ful change. An Earthquake Shock.

The Mississippi valley, from the headwaters to the gulf, was roughly shaken up by an earthquake shock which, while it did no serious damage, was quite severe in many places. At New Albany, Ind., a church wall fell in and crushed in an organ causing a loss of $2,000. In the vicinity of Gadsden, Ala., several persons were bruised by being thrown from their beds and several houses were partially wrecked. Near Charlestown, Mo. hundreds of chimneys were toppled down and windows in store fronts roken. The brick Methodist church there was also badly shattered and the plastering knocked from the walls of many dwellings. At Louisville, Ky. three severe shocks were felt and all the tall buildings are reported to have swayed like reeds. In Cincinnati the buildings shook as from a great explosion, and many people were flung from their beds. St. Louis, Mo., people were so badly scared that they left their homes and remained in the open air until numbed with cold. The publie library building in Cairo, Ill., was badly damaged, and many chimneys were shaken down. A swaving of buildings and a loud rumbling noise were perceived in Cleveland, Cracks a foot wide were made in the walls of the capitol building in Jackson, Miss Noises resembling thunder were heard in Nashville, Tenn., when the vibrations had ceased. Michigan felt only a brief rocking with an almost imper done beyond the breaking of a few dishes. Reports show that the seismic disturbance was manifest in various other parts of Indiana, Ohio, Illinois, Kentucky, Missouri, Tennessee, Louis iana, Mississippi and Georgia.

DURRANT WILL HANG.

The Murderer of Blanche Lamont Found Guilty-Jury Out but 20 Minutes.

W. H. Theodore Durrant was convicted of the murder of Blanche Lamont at San Francisco for which he has been on trial since July 22. The jury was out but 20 minutes and arrived at the verdict on the first ballot. As there was no recommendation of mercy the punishment was fixed at death. As the aged foreman of the jury, pale and trembling, read the words that fixed Durrant's fate, a low rumbling noise like the roar of a mob arose from the room, and the next moment men were cheering wildly, while women wept hysterically in excitement. Judge Murphy announced that he would pass sentence a week later and would then also set the day of the trial of Durrant for the murder of Minnie Williams. Durrant's attorney will appeal to the supreme court and it is expected that nearly a year will elapse before a decision will be

Henry H. Holmes, the most fiendish murderer that ever existed in the United States, was found guilty at Philadelphia of the murder of Benj. F. Pietzel. While the trial was one of eccentric surprises there were no sensations and when the state had made its case the defendant put in no testimony and after the attorney had delivered their addresses the case was given to the jury, who retired to deliberate at 5:40 p.m. According to one of their number they had reached their verdict before the doors of their room closed upon them. For hunger's sake they ate their supper first, then took a ballot and without hesitation every man of the 12 answered "Guilty of murder in the first degree." But however atrocious the crime however fiendish the criminal, it is hard to send a man to the gallows, in one minute's time. So, for decency sake they talked about the case for about an hour and a half. Then word was sent into court that they had agreed. Immediately after the announcement

Dun's says: The rapid recevery in cotton and and the rise in sterling exchange to the point at which the last exports of gold were made have not increased confidence. There is little better demand for most manufactured products, retail distribution is fairly encouraging, and the closing of many works is less significant at this season than it might be at others. It is a time of waiting and uncertainty may naturally continue for some weeks. Wheat has declined, as has corn, in spite of many adverse reports about winter wheat. The present large shipments from other countries, the small Atlantic exports and the large western receipts affect exports and the large western receipts affect opinions on wheat more directly than ideas about next year s yield. The Dog Answered the Steamer's Salute. From the Daily Eastern Argus: The excursion party from Biddeford on the excursionists Captain Oliver ran out by Wood Island. As he passed the light he saluted it with the customary three whistles. Scarcely Lad the echoes died away when a dog dashed out of the lighthouse and ran at full speed toward the fog bell. He was followed by a man. It is needless to say that the dog arrived at the bell first, and he immediately began to jump into the air as though trying to reach something. When the man arrived on the spot it was readily seen what was the trouble. The bell rope was hung upon a nail and the dog could not reach it. However, as soon as the man removed a camp of the Seminole Indians. How the Farmer has to Treat the Soil-A Sketch of the Seminoles and Their Everglade Homes-They Obey no Laws, Atlanta, Ga., October 22. Two or three days at the Cotton States and International Exposition has failed to find for us features of any the World's Fair. The exposition is simply a world's fair in miniature. We find many of the same exhibits. We find also the Plaisance in full operation-jokes of all kinds and some creditable exhibitions. In short, if one did not attend the World's Fair, the Atlanta Exposition is worthy of attention. It will not interest one who attended the fair for more than two days.

One is convinced at once upon getting upon a street car that Hazen S.

Pingree is not mayor of Atlanta He is further fully impressed that the street car companies must own the city government. With wife and child of Union depot and asked to be set down at the Boulevard House, about a mile distant. We tendered ten cents as car fare. More was demanded by the conductor. Thinking that he wished fare for our 10-year-old, we passed up ansteamer Forest Queen, Sunday, had an other nickle. That was not enough. Ten cents apiece all around was the car fare all the time and has been in Atlanta, and a most unsatisfactory service it is at that. The common council of Atlanta and the city government in general is stated to us by the citizens to be woefully corrupt. Our experience in street cars would seem to bear out this theory. Atlanta is a beautiful city, surrounded by a magnificent scope of miserable, poor country, as Georgia country goes. surface is very broken and the land worn out. We can see no use in such a section for so large and beautiful a while upon our trip down in Southeastern Florida we once brought up in was in the edge of the Everglades, up-on the New River, some six miles above Fort Louderdale. The Seminole is an Indian peculiar to himself. There are some 500 of the bucks left in the tribe, a few more squaws than bucks, and probably afew more "picannines. as they call their children, than bucks and squaws together. They inhabit the Everglades where they retreated during the early Indian wars, and where they have always and do still defy the government to capture and remove them to reservations. The Seminoles are the only Indians in the United States who still maintain their tribal relations, are not amenable to the laws of the United States and over whom the government has no control. The party which we come up with at New River were out on a trading expedition. They had come down the New River in their dug outs. One of the bucks spoke some English. We left him at night expecting to gain considerable information from him in the morning | acre for the Bermudas and his strawbefore our mule team was ready to berries anywhere from 50 cents to $2.50 leave. The Some of the railroad men at work upon the grade near by had supplied him with a bottle .The fellow's name was Tommy Tiger. He could read and write a little, having been at school at Tampa for a time. The night before we had promised to get Congressman Linton to secure his entrance to the Indian school near Washington, and he was to have given us our answer the question of education. He challenged us to a "clog" on the river bank, which was accepted, and as we assisted the poor fellow to wind off an Indian clog, our companion Johnson, of Springfield, Ill., snapped his "kodac" and immortalized the scene. These Indians obey only their own laws. The penalty of death is administered upon slight occasion. They are a moral people, entirely devoid of any broker tells the Observant Citizen that ing they located what they thought knowledge of religion, and for that when the excitement in Montana was was a swarm of bees in a hollow tree. matter of education. The bucks are magnificently built specimens of the human family. Tall, square-shouldered, deep-chested and strong of limb. They, as well as the squaws, who are very inferior physicalwere dressed principally in buckskin. The squaws wore immense necklaces of beeds, bears' claws, bears' teeth and periwinkle chells. The Seminoles subsist principally upon fish and game. They kill large numbers of deer, bear, panther, wild cats and otter. selling the pelts. The otter of Florida is a splendid specimen of this family, five dollars. Farming to some extent is engaged in. Our party came across a, number of patches of pumpkins squashes, sweet potatoes and other garden truck growing upon the small "hammocks" of rich land to be found requently in the pine woods. They were practically growing wild. They are never gathered except as needed, and are allowed to rot upon the ground and self seed in the case of squashes or several gardens of white people where the sweet potato and Irish potato had grown for several years without replanting. They dig them when they need them, thinning out the mature plants, leaving the green ones. This would seem queer to a northern farmer. It certainly struck us as a peculiar method of cropping. But they can do no other way. If dug and stored they would spoil. Cellars are not necessary and there are none.

Southeastern Florida is largely fine sand land. There are a few "hammocks" of small extent of a sandy loam nature. These are low places of muck land; but the majority is fine sand. In importance that were not observed at Michigan it would be worthless for agriculture. Only the climate of Florida makes it very valuable. A successful southern Florida farmer spends more than double the amount for fertilizers each year per acre than a Michigan man takes off his land in value of crops. In some places for certain crops he spends as high as $85 per acre for fertilizers. He cannot afford to do without this heavy fertilization. His farm produces no fertilizer as does the northern farm. He has no barnyard to furnish manure. He has no rotted straw. He turns under no cloverseed as he raises same. He does sometimes sow a heaving sowing of cow peas after he has taken off his garden truck in February or March and turns it under we boarded a street car at the before he plants his next crop in October-long enough before to allow it to about two tons per acre of cottonseed meal over the ground and rakes it in to produce the plant. Before the plant fruits he again goes over the ground andsprinkles into the head of the plant board, and at the request of some of price. And ten cents was the price for his phosphate for purposes of fertilization. If he has an orange grove and is near the coast he gathers seaweed and cultivates it into the soil and mulches the roots of the trees with it, and perhaps plows under two crops of cow peas per year. Yet with all this, which furnishes a heavy body for the land, he lacks phosphates, ammonia and some other ingredients to cause his fruits to ripen and fill perfectly. He may add the phosphates by catching shark, tarpon, Porpoise and several other kinds of fish, bury them until they decompose, and then add them to the soil for phosphate. But this must be done intelligently; he must know what his soil contains and what it lacks, then supply the deficiency in an intelligent man-This intelligence is easily acner. quired. Before a pinery is in bearing (twenty months) or an orange orchard produces fruit (four years) the man of average intelligence knows his business. His truck gardening is easily learned. His soil contains muck and lime only. The rest must be added. Any produce dealer will furnish the necessary ingredients. Remember that the high pine land or the muck land or the hammock land will produce good crops, farmed as the average northern farmer farms, the two latter for several years without fertilization; but a farmer cannot afford to do with an ordinary crop, where his muck land is worth from $500 to $1,000 per acre, as these lands are selling in places on Indian River, and where he can get from $3.50 to $7 per crate of three pecks for string beans, $4 to $8 per crate of three pecks for tomatoes, where his onions are worth say from $1,500 to $2,500 an soil never has a rest in Florida. If it is not growing a crop of vegetables or fruits it is growing a crop of weeds; a continual drain is constantly being made upon the soil. We have seen pig weeds, the red root, growing upon the muck lands at and near Lynton, fully fourteen inches in diameter. This is upon land recently reclaimed from the salt marshes by the drainage canal, belonging to the Florida Land Company at Saginaw, which is being sold in two and one-half acre tracts for $125, and is equally as good as the land on Indian River selling for $1,000 per acre, and has the advantage of being 200 miles of therebouts further south. There is a condition of atmosphere in southern Florida very peculiar—its dryness-while at the same time irrigation is not necessary, as is the case in soutern California. The rainy seasons are March and September. The March rains may be extended over into April and the September rains over into October, as was the case this year, but during the winter scarcely any rains occur, as is the case during the summer. In northern Florida the atmosphere is very humid. In southern Florida the opposite condition exists. It seems to be more like Arizona in this respect than any other section. For example, while passing by a meat shop at Lemon City, on Biscayne Bay, we noted that the butcher had a quarter of beef cut up into pieces of from five to eight pounds and hung up in the hot sun at the side of his shop. In response to inquiry he stated that he was curing it in the sun without first having been salted-was "jerking" it. The Indians in the Everglades cure their venison and bear meat by "jerking" it-sun curing. There were "no flies" on the beef we saw being sun cured. Yet in a climate as dry as this irrigation is not necessary for good crops. Some farmers think it pays well to irrigate, which can be done comparatively inexpensive. We gave some attention to one system used by a pineapple grower at Palm Beach. He had sunk a half dozen four-inch drive wells about fifteen feet deep. From these he pumped the water by a windmill into a tank elevated about ten or fifteen feet. From this tank two main lines of twoinch gas piping were conducted through the center of his "pinery." From these were conducted about every six rods other stretches of gaspipe about threequarters of an inch in size, from which arose standpipes of gas piping about six feet in height, at the tops of which were sprayers. Valves at the connections with the main pipes allowed tho man in attendance to turn on water at any particular point at any time. Forty acres of pineapples were irrigated in this way. This is an expensive method, but the owner said it paid well. Orange groves, lemon groves and truck gardens are irrigated in the usual manner-with trenches. This is done very cheap here. A half dozen shallow drive wells, with a never-failing supply of West Virginia. Kentucky and Missouri water, which is warmer than the atmos- and even in these states it, to a conphere in the summer, and a windmill, siderable extent, holds good and the expense is covered. All the muck land is high enough to be above pumpkins or to reproduce in the case high tide, yet low enough not to dry of potatoes and other plants. We saw out because of the twice-a-day irrigation it gets from old ocean. The salt water does not seem to affect the vegi- To Carry on an Almost Helpless Fight, tation. These muck lands are along the canal for the most part, and a greater portion of the water comes from "sweet" water streams, yet enough works in from the ocean to make it brackish. The tide on Biscayne Bay is from sixteen to twenty inches; at St. Augustine, from four to six feet.

er in northern and western Florida, the tide of emigration from other portions of Florida and from the northern states has turned to southeastern' Florida, south of Pierce, in Bervard county, where very little damage was done by the frost. Scarcely any damage was done in Dade county, and none was done south of Palm Beach. With a mean water tempertarure of 70 degrees and a mean summer temperature of 80 degrees, tropical plants, flowers and vegetables thrive. One peculiar feature of the climate is that frosts occur at 46 degrees. The gulf stream passes within a half mile of the coast along Dade county's ocean frontage. The waters of the gulf stream at this point have a temperature of about 88 degrees, winter and summer. Jack Frost is vanquished with such an immense body of warm water so near at hand. Vessels, in passing up the coast, take advantage of the gulf stream, which has a current—as given to us—of six miles per hour, and sail with it. On going down the coast they also take advantage of it by getting in the eddy between the gulf stream and shore, frequently sailing within forty rods of the we saw a full-rigged ship within twenty rods of shore. It may have been a greater distance away than twenty afternoon. rods, but it appeared to be very near at hand. At Biscayne Bay the trade winds

But that one month with the wind from the west, from off the Everglades, the temperature hangs close to 90, and the crop of mosquitoes furnished by the hammocks of the interior are very annoying-extremely so. Were it not for rushing back; he had forgotten his that one month of mosquitoes and hot overcoat, says the Youth's Companion. weather, and the hurricanes which are But no overcoat was there, for his son liable to occur during the spring and had come along from the smoking car, fall equinox, Biscayne Bay section, or even all of Dade county, would have no drawbacks. These are the objections to her climate. Yet the hurricanes very seldom do any considerable damage on shore. A 90 or 100 mile per hour zephyr for three days is liable to keep one a hustling to keep his hair on as it whistles through his whiskers. The new town of Linton, named after Congressman Linton, of Saginaw, mention of which was made in our last letter, is situated very handsomely upon the ocean front between Palm Beach and Miami, about thirty miles above the head of Biscavne Bay. The gulf stream passes nearer to Linton than to any other portion of Dade county. It is the only town in the county situated upon the ocean front. Palm Beach is sunk wearily back in the corner, her upon the west side of Lake Worth, about one and a half miles from the ocean. Miami, Biscayne, Buena Vista, Lemon City, Cocoanut Grove and Cutler are upon the west side of Biscayne Bay, fully ten miles from the ocean. Linton will be first fully set-tled by the Southern Florida Land ant spot, a no more commanding view of old ocean, can be found in Florida. than it to be had at Linton's ocean frontage.

The politics of Florida are in a somewhat mixed condition. Florida is a protection state, at least the sentiment of the people seems to be that way if we are capable of judging from personal observation among Democrats and by reading the Democratic newspapers. There are no Republican newspapers in the state of any merit. The Democratic party is divided into two factions. One faction, which for convenience, we will call the Conserv atives are "not in it" at present. This faction is composed of those who are opposed to railroads, canals, public improvements, the influx of northerners. in fact are opposed to any marked advancement. They call themselves the "Straight Outs." By the opposing faction they are called the "Strayed Outs." They are "outs" anyway just at present. This faction is largely with the administration on the silver question. They are represented by the Florida Times-Star of Jacksonville, as the leading organ.

The other faction are urgent in advancing the interests of the railroads

and drainage canals, the development of the country, are largely free silver men, and are "agin" his nibs at Washington. They are having their innings and the we prefer to call them the Liberals. With this faction the white Republicans work in all municipal, county, legislative, congressional and state matters. The negroe vote the Republican ticket, and if there is enough of them in any precinct or county to cause trouble, there is a neglect in counting their votes. Their votes are counted when it is safe to do so. This is a queer condition of politics. Yet it is one that will exist in Florida at least as long as the negro is not disqualified to a considerable extent by the passage of a constitutional amendment requiring an educational and property qualification. We will not attempt to defend or denounce the present system of counting the negro vote. We have views of our own on the question which would require too much space to set forth. We find this, that men of strong Republican sentiments, strong partisans, before they leave the north, fail to show up in the Republican ranks, composed of negroes and renegade white men when they get south. Their self respect keeps them aloof. The statement is freely made that the negro in politics is the one great element which keeps the north and south apart in politics. Were the negro removed from the political arena the interests of both sections would soon be cemented on some grand American principle. But the native southerner will never affiliate with the negro in politics. What is said of Florida is equally true of several other southern states, and all of mem except W. M. FEATHERLY.

For twenty years she has been afflicted with the various forms of kidney complaint and an enlargement of the liver. She was often confined to her bed for more than two weeks at a time suffering untold agony. She has doctored constantly, and have paid out in doctors' bills for her alone as much as $900.00, and then her relief was only such that she would be able o be around for a spell. Some time ago she felt the symptoms of another attack coming on, such as a pain in through the kidneys and back. I hardly know what induced me to get a box of Doan's Kidney Pills, instead of sending for the family physician; however, I got some and she commenced their use. It was a surprise to us both to see their action; the attack was warded off, and she continued taking them with marked improvement each day of their use. She is better now than she has been in years, the pain in the back and others in the kidneys have entirely gone. Hardly a day goes by that we do not men tion the great good Doan's Kidney Pills have done her. I was always opposed to patent medicines, but confess wife's experience with Doan's Kidney beach; yes, and even nearer. We think Pills has done much to change my opin lons. The train stopped in the great dark station of a New England city and a gentleman who had been dozing during the last hour of his journey got up in haste, seized his bag and hurried out of the car. In a moment he came recognized it and carried it out.

"Where's my coat?" exclaimed the owner, excitedly, diving under the seat and knocking off his hat as he rose. "This is my seat! I'm sure I left it

But the persons sitting near had just entered the car and took no interest in him; nobody answered. Out he hurried and again missed his son, who had gone into the station to inquire about tickets. He was sure his coat must be in that car. There was nothing for it but to go back, and back he went.

Meanwhile a lady attired in black, with a long crape veil over her face, entered the seat he had vacated and veil over her face. In rushed the excited gentleman. The train was about to start and if he was to find his coat it was now or never.

"There it is," he cried in triumph. "I knew it was there!"

KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 50c and $1 bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.
