The spring poet affliction is lost sight of in the hideous shadow of the spring bloomer.

France is having so many crises these days that there is no little danger of her getting her dates mixed and being called on to face two crises at once.

The will of Benjamin Franklin was up for official recognition in Boston a few days since. It was made 108 years ago when he bequeathed to the city of Boston $5,000 to be used for the benefit of the city a hundred years later. The $5,000 has grown to $111,000, which well illustrates how money will make money.

A great convention of the International Medical congress is to be held in Moscow in 1897. Many of the English doctors are incensed because French has been made the official language of the congress and in that language all official work is to be done. Before the local assemblies papers may be read only in French, Russian or German. The English are wondering why the language of the Anglo-Saxons is slighted.

Oh, woman, in your hours of ease, uncertain, coy and hard to please, here's a young German in New York who seems to have pleased fifteen of you anyway, and to the extent of making that fifteen his money-surrendering sweethearts. His name is Joseph Schmidt, and the fifteen sweethearts are now camping on his trail. And the strange part of it is that Joseph is a plain, squat fellow, awkward and unprepossessing, his prowess as a "lady-killer" backed only by unfaltering assurances. Is it this that wins you, oh, woman, in blushing blocks of fifteen?

Nobody is surprised to learn from Mr. Paderewski's manager that the gifted Polish gentleman with the basketful of blonde hair cares not a cent for America; and nobody, save possibly Mr. Paderewski and his manager, would be surprised to learn that America cares not a cent for the eminent pianist. Mr. Paderewski comes here to make money, and no sane person ever dreamed of assigning another motive for his coming. On the other hand, America gives Pederewski money because he has a knack of pounding the piano which Americans admire and are willing to pay for, just as they are willing to pay to see Mr. Sandow lift a interference all belong to the superhorse. What the opinion of Messrs. Paderewski and Sandow may be about America or about the Roentgen rays or the currency question or any other subject under the sun aside from piano playing and horse lifting is something that nobody would think of inquiring about.

The messenger boys of New York have been forbidden to wear whiskers and in issuing the inhibition the A. D. T. company has once more demonstrated its fatal inability to keep in touch with the times. It is a most singular fact that the prohibition was uttered in the belief that the public would have suspicions of the swiftness of a messenger boy with a full gray beard. Why bless the A. D. T.'s good old soul, doesn't it know that the public long ago relinquished the idea of celerity as a feature of messenger service. There was a time, as ancient history shows, when the people looked for swiftness in messengers and for a fountain of perpetual youth in Florida. They were twin dreams of a world in its nonage. Nobody nowadays expects a messenger to be fast nor to find an elixir of life. Certainty is what the world expects of the messenger service. Ages ago it might have been well to forbid the messengers to wear whiskers. Now it would be well to have all messengers bald headed and of patriarchal aspect.

The national government seems about to take up the question of good roads. The house committee on agriculture has a bill before it which provides for the creation of a special road commission to have a general supervision of the efforts to direct the construction of better roads. One of its duties is to decide to what extent the work can be helped by the general government. The materials to be used and the cost of construction will be questions constantly before it. Not that the government is to begin the the only four-track railway drawbridge outer drum are each 24 inches in diambuilding of roads on its own account, though this might be done when the roads ran through several states, but it is to work with the states and local powers in a betterment of the general conditions. This is a movement that will be endorsed by every enthusiastic American. We want to make of this country a paradise as nearly as possible. Better roads will be a means to all kinds of improvement. Good roads bring neighbors close together. They promote education to a very great extent, for they make it possible to concentrate the energies that are devoted to the education of the children, especially in the country.

The name of the new salvation army is now the "American Volunteers," and these volunteers are bound to make it very uncomfortable for the old organization. They have opened out in Chicago in fine style, many of the old army people joining in the hallelujahs.

COL. INGERSOLL'S LECTURE AT CHICAGO.

The Great Expounder of Agnosticism Talks on the Questions of the Day to a Church Audience-What He Under stands by "Real Religion."

Robert G. Ingersoll preached at Chicago Sunday from a pulpit and to a church audience. During the course of his long talk, he said: "For many ages man in all directions has relied upon and sincerely believed in the existence of the supernatural. He did not believe in the uniformity of nature. He had no conception of cause and effect, of the indestructibility of force. For many centuries his only conception of mortality was the idea of obedience, not to facts as they exist in gence." nature, but to the supposed command of some being superior to nature. During all these years religion consisted in the praise and worship of the invisible and infinite, of some vast and incomprehensible power-that is to say, of the supernatural. We now know that in mechanics the natural is supreme. We know that man cap by no possibility create a force; that by no possibility can be destroy a force. No mechanic any supernatural aid. He knows that he works in accordance with certain facts that no power can change. "So we in the United States believe that the authority to govern, the au- not favored active distribution of spring thority to make and execute laws, comes from the consent of the governed, and not from any supernatural hands in a large number of establishsource. the people, where they could find the principal newspapers and periodicals of the world. Its auditorium should be like a theater. Plays should be presented by home talent, an orchestra formed, music cultivated. The people should meet there at any time they desire. The women could carry their knitting and sewing, and connected with it should be rooms for the playing of games, billiards, cards, and chess Everything should be made as agreeable as possible. Now it seems to me that such a congregation in a few years would become the most intelligent people in the United States.

"The truth is that people are tired of the old theories. They have lost confidence in the miraculous, in the supernatural, and they have ceased to take interest in 'facts' that they do not quite believe. There is no darkness but ignorance. There is no light but intelli-preciated. Every man comes to be val-

OU cannot keep a good man down God has decreed for him a certain point of elevation. He will bring him to that though it cost him a thousand worlds. You sometimes find men fearful they will not be properly ap-ued at just what he is worth. You cannot write him up, and you cannot write him down. These facts are powerfully illustrated in my subject. It would be an insult to suppose that you were not all familiar with the life of Joseph. How his jealous brothers threw him into a pit, but seeing a caravan of Aaracamels, with spices and gums that loaded the air with aroma, sold their brother to these merchants, who carried him down into Egypt; Joseph was there sold to Potiphar, a man of influence and office. How by Joseph's integrity he raised himself to a high position in the realm, until under the false charge of a vile wretch he was hurled into the penitentiary. How in prison he commanded respect and confidence. How by the interpretation of Pharaoh's dream he was freed and became the chief man in the realm, the Bismarck of his century. How in the time of famine Joseph had the control of a magnificent storehouse which he had filled during seven years of plenty. How when his brothers, who had thrown him into the pit and sold him into captivity, applied for corn, he sent them home with the beasts of burden borne down under the heft of the corn sacks. How the sin against their brother which had so long been hidden came out at last and was returned by that brother's forgiveness and kindness—the only revenge he took.

You see, in the first place, that the world is compelled to honor Christian the world, yet Joseph rose in his esti- generous and reasonable men-to gathhouse were committed to his charge. From his servant no honor or confidence was withheld. When Joseph was in prison he soon won the heart of the keeper, and though placed there for being a scoundrel, he soon convinced the jailer that he was an innocent and trustworthy man, and released from close confinement he became general superintendent of prison affairs. Wherever Joseph was placed, whether a servant in the house of Potiphar, or a prisoner in the penitentiary, he became the first man everywhere, to honor Christian character. There are those who effect to despise a religious life. They speak of it as a bility. They say he has bemeaned this is hypocrisy. There is a great any man not to admire and confide in sham of religion. I was at a place a few hours after the ruffians had gone into the rail-train and demanded that the passengers throw up their arms, and then these ruffians took the pocketbooks; and Satan comes and suggests to a man that he throw up his arms in a hypocritical prayer and pretension, and then he steals his soul. For the mere pretension of religion we has abhorrence. Redwald, the king, after baptism, had an altar of Christian sacrifice and an altar for sacrifice to devils; and there are many men now attempting inconsistency of its professors. You may have a contempt for pretension to religion, but when you behold the excellency of Jesus Christ come out in the life of one of his disciples, all there is good and noble in your soul rises up into admiration, and you cannot help it. Though that man be as far beneath you in estate as the Eyptian slave of whom we are discoursing was beneath his rulers, by an irrevocable law of your nature, Potiphar and Pharaoh will always esteem Joseph. When Eudoxia, the empress, threatened Chrysostom with death he made the reply: "Tell the empress I fear nothing but sin." Such a scene as that compels the admiration of the world. There was something in Agrippa and Felix which demanded their respect for Paul, the rebel against government. I doubt not they would willingly have yielded their office and dignity for a thousandth part of that true heroism which beamed in the eye and beat in the heart of the unconquerable apostle. Paul did not cower before Felix; Felix cowered before Paul. The infidel and worldling are compelled to honor in their hearts, although they may not eulogize with their lips, a Christian firm in persecution, cheerful in poverty, trustfull in losses, triumphant in death. In find Christian men in all professions and occupations, and I find cessful. John Frederick Oberlin al- | thousand tongues, and they will blan leviating ignorance and distress: Howard passing from dungeon to lazaretto with healing for the body and soul; Elizabeth Fry going to the profligacy of Newgate Prison to shake its obduracy as the angel came to the prison at Philippi, driving open the doors and snapping loose the chain, as well as the lives of thousands of followers of Jesus who have devoted themselves to the temporal and spiritual welfare of the race, are monuments of the Christian religion that shall not crumble while the world lasts. A man said to me in the cars: "What is religion? Judging from the character of many professors of religion I do not admire religion." I said: "Now suppose we went to an artist in the city of Rome and while in his gallery asked him, 'What is the art of painting?' would he take us out in a low alley and show us a mere daub of a pretender at painting? or would he take us down into the corridors and show us the Rubens and the Raphaels and the Michael Angelos?' When we asked him, 'What is the art of painting' he would point to the works of these great masters and say, 'That is painting.' Now, you propose to find the mere caricature of religion, to seek | sion, some bloody knife that whispered bian merchants trudging along on their after that which is the mere pretension of a holy life, and you call that religion. I point you to the splendid men and women whom this gospel has blessed and lifted and crowned. Look at the masterpieces of Divine grace if you want to know what religion is."

We learn also from this story of

Joseph that the result of persecution

Instead his malicious brothers, and his false of consulting as to the best way of getimprisonment, Joseph never would have become a governor. Everybody accepts the promise. "Blessed are they that are persecuted for righteousness you will tell it yourself. There is an sake, for theirs is the Kingdom of Heaven." but they do not realize the fact that this principle applies to worldly as well as spiritual success. It is true in all departments. Men rise to high official positions through misrepresentation. Public abuse is all that some of our public men have had to rely upon for their elevation. It has brought to them what talent and executive force could not have achieved. Many of those who are making great effort for place and power will never succeed, just because they are not of enough importance to be abused. It character. Potiphar was only a man of is the nature of men-that is of all mation until all the affairs of that great | er about those who are persecuted and defend them, and they are apt to forget the fault of those who are the subjects of attack while attempting to drive back the slanderers. Persecution is elevation. Helen Stirk, the Scotch martyr, standing with her husband at the place of execution, said: "Husband, let us rejoice today; we have lived together many happy years; this is the happiest time of all our life; you see we are to be happy together forever. Be brave now, be brave. I will not say 'Good night' to you for we shall seen be in the kingdom of our Father and is an illustration of the truth I together." Persecution shows the heay down, that the world is compelled roes and heroines. I go into another department and I find that those great denominations of Christians which have been most abused have spread the system of phlebotomy by which the most rapidly. No good man was ever man is bled of all his courage and no- more violently maltreated than John Wesley-belied and caricatured and linked together. You who are aged himself. They pretend to have no more slandered until one day he stood in a men look back and group together a confidence in him since his conversion pulpit in London, and a man arose in thousand things in your life that once than before his conversion. The state sometimes said to the church, "Come take my hand and I will help you." What other event in our life. Our losses may was the result? The church went back and it lost its estate of holiness, and it became ineffective. At other times the state said to the church, "I will crush you." What was the result? After the storms have spent their fury the church, so far from having lost any of its force, has increased and is worth infinitely more after the assault than before. Read all history and you will find that true. The church is far more indebted to the opposition of civil government than to its approval. The fires of the stake have only been the torches which Christ held in his hand, by the light of which the church has marched to her present glorious position. The Story of Trilly.

This particular story concerns a cat in the far west-Oakland, Cal.-which rejoiced in the name of "Trilly"-not Trilby, for this was before her day. She belonged to Ina D. Coolbrith, the well-known poet. Trilly had been absent at her usual breakfast hour, and when her mistress was preparing to go out for the day the cat appeared, bearing in her mouth a fish dressed for cooking, which she hurriedly deposited at her mistress' feet, looking up proudly for an expression of approval. But her mistress only stooped quickly and laid the fish on the glowing coals, fearing it had been prepared with poison to trap unsuspecting kittens that had propensities to make free with neighbors' larders. Trilly seemed to consider the proceeding as lacking appreciation and courtesy, and slowly walked away, disapppearing over the garden fence.

When Miss Coolbrith returned and was trimming her rose bushes in the twilight, one of her neighbors called her name, and looking across the lot she saw Trilly curled up on the neighbor's back porch, sleeping the sleep of the contented, if not the just.

"Do you know what your cat has been doing?" she asked to Miss Coolbrith. Trilly's mistress could not imagine, although the episode of the morning flashed across her mind, causing her grave apprehension.

"Well, she has been carrying fish cross my lot a good part of the day." "Fish? But where could she get so many? She didn't eat them all, I

"No; she brought them one by one. and stood on the top of the fence mewing loudly until she had all of your my porch and ate it herself, carefully washing her paws when she had finished, and lying down to sleep. She has not stirred since." Miss Coolbrith hastened to where Trilly was lying, and picking up the Some long years ago ere I swerved cat to ascertain if it were still sound

A Noble Deed. A writer in the Interior tells of a noble deed once performed by Edward Everett Hale: A few years ago, a man who has now made a name for himself, found himself in London, utterly discouraged, and, as the phrase goes, possible for him to hold the pen. When he stepped on the gang-plank of the steamer, whom should he see but Dr. Hale! Now, this gentleman had met Dr. Hale but once in his life, and had no claim on him, and no reason to believe that the reverend doctor remembered him at all. But, before he had a chance to even test the recognition he was grasped by the hand, and Dr.

Hale said: "I am delighted, Mr. —, to see you. I had no idea that I should know a soul on board, and now we'll have a

Hale hunted this unhappy passenger up, and put him on his feet.

Love Unto Death. Professor Henry Drummond has meetings in Edinburgh university. On source of contagion. one occasion he touched his audience deeply by the following anecdote reported by the London Christian:

"Some years ago, in the university, Cromwell.' I paid my 2 pence, but a there was a fine, manly fellow, a medical student, a very Hercules in strength, but as gentle and lovable as he was strong. He was immensely popular, the captain of the foot-ball club, and not a cricket-match was conretort; 'this is Oliver Cromwell's skull sidered complete without him. He was man of good intellectual gifts as well. He caught typhoid fever while attending the Royal Infirmary, and soon he lay dying in a private ward.

Bicycles and Railroads The bicycle is coming to the front as a model in certain lines of railroad traffic. It is all very well to talk about high speed and crowding on steam enough to make a hundred miles an hour, but this can only be done in exceptional localities and with exceptional facilities. The entire plan of the railroad as it stands to-day is not fit for any higher rate of speed than that already attained. For successful travel at any rate much above the present, a complete overhauling of road-bed and teristic sympathy, Dr. Hale had learned | rolling stock is necessary. A substantial trestle would cost no more to equip and Then, when they arrived in Boston, Dr. keep in order than the ordinary roadbed, and its advantages would be manifold. Grades could be reduced to a minimum except in mountainous regions. Heavier rails are necessary and curves must be done away with. The weakest points of the best railroad tracks to-day are the joints. It is quite easy for the watchful ear to detect the instant when the wheels meet the joints in the rails. There is a little concussion which necessarily means a certain amount of retarding of the motion. Just how this is to be remedied inventors have not yet shown us. This is one of the undeveloped features of railroading and one on which much of the high speed of begin to die at the tips and then genfuture train service depends. A well-constructed track should give not the slightest sound as the train passes over the joints of the rails. It is estimated that a train of ordinary Pullman cars carries one and one-half tons of dead weight for each passenger: the hicycle carries twenty pounds dead essential to the ideal fireproof building weight to the passenger, and at a much higher rate of speed. Comparing these figures, it goes without saying that there is a radical defect in the construction of Pullman cars; indeed, they have for many years been looked upon as cumbersome, stuffy and unsanitary. Who can tell the amount of disease spread by these incubators of deathdealing bacilli. These cars were well enough when they were first built, for they had to encounter all sorts of buffeting on all sorts of rough and badlyconstructed roads, but they are now almost as much behind the times as the stage-coach. What is needed is a by reducing the window space, buildstrong, light, clean, carefully-planned | ing the walls with a facing of the very car weighing perhaps one-tenth as best fire brick and furnishing every much as the present cumbersome and window with a plate or roller shutter lumbering means of transportation. of steel. Dyspeptic Oranges. A mysterious disease which has at tacked many orange trees in Florida has been discovered to be indigestion. The department of agriculture in its year book pays special attention to dyspeptic oranges and describes the disease and its cure. Its cause is the same as that which so often brings on dyspepsia in human beings-overfeeding. Excessive cultivation and too much nitrogenous manure affect the orange tree just as too many heavy table d'hote dinners affect a man. Instead of looking pale and taking pepsin tablets, however, the orange tree turns a very dark green and a reddish brown sap exudes from the twigs. The tips turn up and shape themselves into S-like curves. The fruit turns a lemon yellow color before it is half ripe, and has a very thick rind. As it ripens the fruit splits open and becomes worthless. The reddish brown resin gets on the fruit before it is ripe and renders it unsalable. Most of the diseases of the orange tree are due to a lack of cultivation and it was thought that a tree would not take more nutriment from the soil than it required. This is not so, for the tree takes up all it can get and then, like a small boy who has eaten too much plum pudding, becomes sick. The dark green color which the foliage then assumes is very handsome but it means no oranges, or at least none that are any good. The disease is known as die-back, because the twigs cure the disease all that is required is disease has gone too far and gum pockets begin to form on the bark there is no cure for it.-Kansas City Journal.

Fireproof Construction. Three primary conditions are enumerated by the Scientific American as -viz.: It should be proof against any attack from without; the skeleton frame, consisting of steel columns and horizontal girders, should be enclosed in some thoroughly fireproof material, and, third, it should be such as to render it practicable to localize a fire and confine it to the particular floor upon which it originates. The writer remarks that in the case of the majority of buildings there is evidence of an attempt to fulfill the third condition, a partial attempt at the second, and none whatever at the first. The first condition can only be met and every main girder with high-class and the metal a space that shall be been conducting a series or revival public by removing a most fruitful filled in with a preparation of asbestos similar to that now used on the steam piping or some similar non-conducting material and the third condition can be attained by fire brick floors with cement finish, abolishing all woodwork and using metal window casings and sashes, providing each clevator landing with plate steel doors and lastly placing on each floor a powerful water supply.

The Destruction of Trees. Attention is called to the fact that a great many trees through which electric wires pass are dead. After heavy ains many of these trees begin to droop and de. The leaves, saturated with moisture, lead the current down into the body of the tree. The companies claim that all of the wires are insulated, but constant swinging among the branches cuts off the covering, and the wire becomes bare. A great deal of complaint is being made, and suits are to be brought against the electric comparies. Certain it is that if there is good ground for complaint, something ought to be done at once, as our beautiful shade trees should not be sacrificed in this way.

After some discussion of the question, a committee of three was appointed by the president to consult with the state printer, and if satisfactory arrangements could be made, then the proceedings to be published in monthly parts, with four to eight pages of timely matter each month as a distinct feature of the work. The committee reported favorably to the publication of 400 copies each month, with 4,000 additional copies for gratuitous distribution in April and November. The report of the committee was adopted, and by vote Mrs. Vie H. Campbell, of Evansville, was chosen as local editor, leaving the editing of the transactions solely with the secretary as formerly. After receiving several applications for the summer meeting, which were referred to the executive board, the society adjourned sine die.

We are informed by one writer that swine were fed on dried figs and honeved wine in order to produce a disordered or diseased liver.

A Horse Slaughter House Closed .-We learn that the establishment for the canning of horse meat, located at Portland. Oregon, has shut down for an indefinite period. Its path has not been a smooth one. Much of the meat was shipped to Belgium, but a hue and cry was raised there against American horse meat, and the Belgians prohibited the entry of the meat. Some that was shipped to Japan was thrown into the sea, there being no market for it, Therefore the factory shut down after it had disposed of about 7,000 horses.

Look after the Back: A Fall, a Strain, a Constant Sitting or Stooping Position Brings Backache-Do You Know This Means the Kidneys are Affected? How few people realize when their back begins to ache that it is a warning pro-vided by nature to tell you that the kidneys are not working properly. You have a severe fall, you strain yourself lifting or perhaps you are compelled to maintain a sitting or stooping position for long intervals at a time, your back begins to ache, then your head, you become listless, tired and weary, but do you understand the real cause? We think not, else you would not use plasters and liniment on the back, which only relieve but do not reach the cause. If you would rid yourself of the pain and cure the root of the trouble, at the same time save many years of suffering and perhaps life itself, you will take a kidney remedy that has been tried and proven that it will cure.

Mr. John Robsoin of 661 Russell Street, Detroit, says: "As a result of exposure during the war I have suffered ever since with rheumatism and kidney trouble. Pains would start in my hip and go around to my back. Highly colored urine denoted kidney disorder. The pain in my back was often so bad I had to give up work until the severity of the attack passed away. I have used many liniments and other things, but received very little relief. Some time ago I started using Doan's Kidney Pills and they have worked a wonderful change in me. My back is all right now and I owe it all to the almost magical influence of Doan's Kidney Pills."

HAD TO RELEASE THE PETS.

soldiers Collected Specimens of Nearly All the Animals of the Country. "There were some very amusing sights at Vera Cruz when the French and Belgian troops were evacuating that city and leaving Mexico for their foreign home after the collapse of the attempt to place Maximilian on the throne," said General Joe Shelby, the ex-confederate to a Kansas City reporter. "During the campaign in Mexico these troops had been pretty nearly all over the interesting portions of that wonderful country, and as they continually saw new wonders they were continually selecting novelties to carry back home with them. They had col lected specimens of pretty nearly everything animate and inanimate that wa in the country and every company was loaded with them. They had young mountain lions, ant-eaters, armadilloes birds of rare plumage, little animals and big ones, and curios galore, quite enough to load many wagons. "The officers never intended the specimens should be carried away by the men, but they had hesitated to order them to dispose of their collections during their march for fear there would be trouble. "But when they were ready to embark and leave Mexican shores the brigades were marched down to the wharf. They were lined up and ordered to ground arms. Then came the second order to release all animals held captive by the men. They were all lined up under the muzzles of the frowning cannon from the fort, and were unarmed, and there was nothing to be done but to obey the order, and the animals were released and such a collection as went skipping off was a surprise to the officers who were in command. The men had the smaller animals concealed beneath their capes and coats, perched on their shoulders and hidden in every other manner imaginable, and the whole collection resembled the march of Noah's collection in the ark. The men grumbled at the order, which they declared was useless and unreasonable, and went away without their pets. There were loads of curiosities left lying in a promiscuous heap on the wharf after the men left. It was one of the mos

ovel sights I ever saw."

Little Incident of New York Day the Atlanta Fair.

There was one toast drank at that little dinner which Capt. Loury gave to Mayor W. L. Strong at the Capitol City club in Atlanta to which only one man responded and he was the man who proposed it, says the New York Press. But what it lacked in the music of the clinking glasses it made up in its fervency and warmth.

All the evening the north and the south had been throwing oral bouquets at each other. The south had healed its old wound in the warmth of the captain's good wine and had pledged tself again and again to eternal friend-

The north forgot all about Bull Run and Andersonville in the same bubbling elixir and returned the pledges with extravagant eloquence.

Then some one proposed a toast to the new south and every one had something to offer. Its praises were sung from one end of the mahogany to the other, and the new south, with its new vitality and its new prosperity, was extolled in prose and verse. They praised its wonderful energy and its deliverance from bondage.

And the man who drank the silent oast sat out in the cafe and listened. He was tall and gaunt and straight, with bushy bright eyebrows and a limp in his right leg. He got that when he was a major in the 13th Georgia and he had never forgotten that he was a major or that he was in the 13th Georgia. He listened to the eulogies of the new south as long as he could and then he limped over

"Now, majah," he said, and a new light came into the old eyes, "you and I, sah, will drink to the old south, to her ol' shif'lessness and her doggone happiness."

Locks of All Colors.

An Atchison young man gets a lock of hair from every new "steady" and has collected an elaborate array during the ten years he has been in the market. The color of the hair in his collection varies from a bright red to a coal-black. He has over sixty specimens, which shows that he has averaged a new "steady" every two months during the time he has been gathering his collection.

Some of his specimens have faded oadly, showing that the hair had been dved. One specimen has changed from a deep black to red and gray. He prizes his collection very highly and keeps it locked up for fear some one will steal it.

Whenever he sees a girl with a shade of hair which is different from anything he has in his collection, he immediately goes after her and she becomes his "steady" until he gets a lock of hair. Then he goes after another girl with a new shade of hair. He has heard of girls who had blue hair and s now looking for one. He claims to have seen a girl with a little blue musache but was afraid to ask for a specimen.-Atchison Globe.

335 Days Ahead of Them All.

Wm. B. O. Sands, of Sands & Maxwell, was nearing his home at Pentwater at 9 o'clock in evening when an unknown person fired five shots at him. Two produced flesh wounds, and one shattered the bone of his right arm above the elbow. Amputation was resorted to, and Mr. Sands died within a few hours. Suspicion was turned to S. B. Minshall, an attorney and insurance agent, who recently had a quarrel with Sands, he alleging that Sands had broken faith with him in refusing to give him the full amount of the firm's insurance business. When a call was made at Minshall's home soon after the tragedy the house was locked, and getting no response, the door was forced open. Minshall, his wife and three children were found dead. They had been shot by the husband and father, who afterward killed himself. No motive could be found for the terrible crimes until a letter, signed by Minshall, was discovered, which said that he was unable to provide for his family in the manner they deserved, owing to Sands withholding one-third of the money due him, and he thought them better off if they

was shot was a 38-calibre rifle, borrowed of S. W. Fincher, druggist; but Minshall killed himself and family with a revolver.

Minshall was a lay reader in the Episcopal church and was regarded as a devout man, but was often quarrel-some. He was 45 years old. His wife, a pure, sweet woman, was 40; the oldest child, Ruby, aged 16, was a loveable girl and a splendid musician; the two boys were aged 4 and 3 years. Wm. B. O. Warm Rains Needed for Crops. The Michigan crop report for April says that wheat in the fall made small growth, but the winter was more favorable, and it suffered little injury previous to about March 20. From that date to the end of the month there was no covering of snow, and the freezing and thawing, usual in March, caused the fields to look brown and did some considerable damage. Correspondents, however, about April 1, were hopeful that warm rains would give the plants a start and show them to be not greatly damaged. But the warm rains do not come. Since the first of April the weather has been continuously dry, with cold winds from the north and northwest. Such weather cannot continue much longer without serious consequences. condition of wheat now is more critical than at any previous time since

OUR LAWMAKERS AT WORK,

SENATE-Ninety-seventh day-Most of the day was given to the Indian appropriation bill, which was not completed. Mr. Turple's speech on Cuba was the event of the day and in many respects it was the most vehement utterance heard on that subject. While arguing for radical action on Cuba, even to the extent of sending a fleet to Cuban waters, much of Mr. Turpie's speech was given to sarcasm and ridicule of the course of Mr. Sherman and Mr. Lodge in managing the Cuban resolutions. Mr. Allen introduced a bill providing for the restoration of the names of widows of soldiers to the pension rolls, after the death of the second husbands. HOUSE—The bill to adopt the metric system of weights and measures was sent back which was not completed. Mr. Turpie's speech bands. HOUSE—The bill to adopt the metric system of weights and measures was sent back to the committee on coinage, weights and measures for further reconsideration. The remainder of the day was devoted to debate on the bill to exempt sailing vessels engaged in the coastwise trade from compulsory pilotage laws. SENATE-Ninety-eighth day-After being in bill was brought forward as a text for a speech bill was brought forward as a text for a speech by Mr. Mantel. of Montana, one of the five Re-publican Senators who voted against consider-ing the tariff bill. A sharp tariff colloquy fol-lowed between Senators Mills, Hoar, Hawley and Mitchell, as to the effect of the Wilson bill on wool. Some progress was made on the lowed between Senators Mills, Hoar, Hawley and Mitchell, as to the effect of the Wilson bill on wool. Some progress was made on the Indian appropriation bill, but the sectarian school question went over. The calendar was cleared of all private pension bills. Mr. Gallinger, of New Hampshire, introduced a bill for the creation of a United States commission to treat with commissions from other Christian mations "for the correction of the intolerable evil so persistently and still continuing in the Ottoman empire." House—The bill to abolish compulsory pilotage on salling vessels engaged in the constwise trade was defeated. The district of Columbia appropriation bill, which was recommitted early in March after a protracted fight against appropriations for private and sectarian charitable institutions, was again reported with the specific appropriations stricken out and containing in lieu thereof an appropriation of a lump sum for charities, to be expended under the direction of the district commissioners, with the proviso that no part of the appropriation should go the institutions in ecclesiastical or sectarian control. The feature of the debate was a vigorous attack on the A. P. A. by Mr. Fitzgerald, of Massachusetts. Mr. Hull reported the joint resolution to revive the grade of lieutenant-general of the army for the purpose of conferring that grade upon Maj.-Gen. Miles.

SENATE-Ninety-ninth day-The Senate took Senate—Ninety-ninth day—The Senate took up the question of sectarian Indian schools, but did not complete it. The debate was very temperate. A bill was passed providing for a trans-Mississippi and international exposition at Omaha in 1898. House—The House spent the entire day in general debate on the filled cheese bill. The principal objection seems to be raised to the tax features of the bill, $400 on the manufacturer and $40 on the ortalier, while there appears general unanimity in favor of a bill to compel the branding of filled cheese. At the night session an attack was made on the pension committee for recommending larger pensions than the law allowed to the widows of officers.

Spain Expects to Fight Us.

Madrid: Admiral Sanchez Ocana reports that he has completed prepara tions for sending to sea a Spanis squadron of 14 vessels, carrying crews numbering nearly 6,000 men. This fleet will cruise along the northwes' coast of Spain, ready to start for Havana just as soon as the cabinet con siders that circumstances require its trans-Atlantic steamships have been turned into 20-gun fast cruisers. They will be ready for service by the end

The Madrid press plainly says the movement of the fleet will depend upon the vote of congress on the belligerency resolutions and that Spain must be prepared for all the consequences of the vindication of the Spanish right to repel any interference in the struggle between the mother country and the Cuban insurgents. Between the lines it is easy to see that the newspapers are ready for another outbreak

f popular excitement. All the papers hotly condemn the American congress for the belligerency resolutions, which they consider an act of hostility and insult to the Spanish people which must be met by resolute. ective preparations for resisting all kinds of intervention. Affairs look so serious again that American tourists are hurrying away. The feeling is prevalent that a crisis is near and that rouble might break out at any time;

A dispatch from Cairo says: It cannot be denied that there exists in Cairo a strong apprehension that disaster will soon overtake the head of the British-Egyptian Dongola expedition. The news of the movement southward of the troops has spread with that wonderful rapidity which has frequently been noticed as one of the features of campaigning in the Soudan and as a consequence the khaifa is calling upon his warriors to muster to the standard, and that the holy war which he recently proclaimed is to be pushed with the desperate energy of the dervish leaders. He expects to muster an army of 50,000 men, composed of the best fighting men of the Soudan, at Omdurman, by eptember. There is also a report that the emperor Menelik, Italy's late successful antagonist, at Adowa, has sent a delegate to negotiate with the dervishes. An alliance between the Abyssinians and the dervishes would upset many calculations.

The British troops, which will take part in the advance on Dongola, will, it is expected, number about 5,000 men, and in addition, there will be about 15,000 Egyptian troops, led by British officers. The preliminary skirmishing so far has given some con fidence to the Egyptian troops. The policy of the Soudanese is evidently to draw the invading army as far from its base this summer as possible so that when the main assault is delivered retreat for it will mean slaughter. The dervish forces, under command of Osman Digma, continue to hover in the neighborhood of Suakim, watch ing their opportunity to do mischief. It is now stated that he has a force numbering 3,000 troops. It is well known that large numbers of Arabs who have been accounted friendly to the British are deserting to the enemy. Later reports from Cairo say: From indications it is thought that the plan of pushing the Anglo-Egyptian army to Dongola has been suddenly aban doned. The purchase of camels and horses has been stopped. It has been found, it is thought, that the force up the Nile is too weak to cope with the hordes of dervishes now in the field, and gathering to the Kalifa's flag between Akasheh and Dongola. It is not probable now that any attempt will be made to advance beyond the former point at present.

Powers Aroused by Turkey's Threats. London: There is much indigna-tion throughout England over the intention of the sultan of Turkey to exclude Christian missionaries from Asia Minor. A special meeting of the Armenian relief committee was held to give expression of opinions on the subect. The duke of Argyle presided, and he stated that the duke of Westminster had received information that the course of President Cleveland after hostile measures against the Christian missionaries were contemplated by the sultan.

Paris: Considerable irritation against Turkey has been aroused here by the reports from Constantinople and London of the sultan's decision regarding missionaries. Constantinople: The steps taken in behalf of the missionaries in Asia Minor have had a beneficial effect. The Turkish government replying to the renewed representation on the subect made by the British ambassador, Sir Philip Curry, and the U.S. charge d'affaires, Mr. John W. Riddle, assured the diplomats that the missionaries in Asia Minor would not be molested "so long as they form with the laws of the country.' The publicity given to the matter in the press dispatches has certainly caused a hesitation at the palace, and it is now thought likely that the irade expelling missionaries will be withheld at least until Russia has been further consulted on the subject. London: The Chronicle has dispatches from Constantinople which say that the palace party is thwarting the pledges which the porte has given the British ambassador, and the United States charge d'affaires. It is feared that another organized massacre will occur in the Cilician provinces.

Buluwayo, Matabeland: Capt. Gifford, in command of a British expeditionary corps, who has been burning kraals in the Shiloh district, has been seriously wounded in an engagement with the natives. Reinforcements had to be dispatched to his assistance, as is reported that King Lobengula is alive, and that it is he and not his son who is the principal leader of the Matabeles, who are now in arms against the British authorities. The rebellious natives are much better armed than had been supposed, and if it is true that they are commanded by King Lobengula, serious whose loss is estimated at 250 killed.

REVIEW OF TRADE. The volume of business has not on the whole

The volume of business has not on the whole increased, nor have prices appreciably advanced since April 1. when the range for all commodities was the lowest ever known in this country. Breadsturs and iron products have risen slightly, but some other articles have decined, and the root of the matter is that demand for consumption is still below expectations. The weather has not-favored active distribution of spring goods and uncertainty as to continued employment affects the purchases by hands in a large number of establishmens. The injury done to winter wheat by storms and frosts at the west would appear from reports of state officers to have been considerable. Remarkably low estimates of conditions are published by some state authorities, and while this may be the customary exaggeration, there has evidently been much actual loss which tends at present to lessen purchases of farmers and the dealers in farming districts. The billet pool and other combinations have raised et pool and other combinations have raised prices of pig iron and stee, but as yet finished products have gained scarcely anything, no weaker with sales for the week, only 2,232.60 pounds at the three chief markets, the smallest for many years. It is true she went North on the same train as I did, but I did not know it until the journey was ended. Previous to that time I had not seen her for more than a fortnight, and I did not know she was near me, until in Boston my attention was attracted by a crowd of 'roughs' gathered around a lady and a greyhound. The lady had lost her portmonnaie, and the crowd made some insulting remarks which I took the liberty of resenting, and when I saw the lady's face, to my amazement I recognized Margaret Harrison!"

Neither Kate nor Cora saw Roy again hat evening. He went home and spent the most miserable night of his life. As the minutes passed and Roy did not appear to claim the remaining dances she had promised him, Kate's heart grew heavier. With a supreme effort she concealed her unhappiness; with witty repartee and merry laugh-

privacy of her own room she gave way to her grief.

"Oh, why did I let him look into my eyes and read my secret?" she cried, in an agony of shame. And the poor girl burst into a passion of tears. A few days later she heard that Roy had gone away for some time.

The season was drawing to a close and she rejoiced at the prospect of leaving a city where she had suffered so much.

The rooms were crowded when she entered, and in the moving mass of humanity she failed to see Roy Palmer, whose eyes never left her face.

Poor Roy! He had trained his heart for weeks, and it rose in rebellion the moment he saw the girl. He started like one shot as he noticed a young man push his way to Kate's side.

It was Stanley. He bowed over Kate's hand with a great empressement and she welcomed him warmly. With compressed lips Roy turned away, sick at heart.

Later in the evening he met tSanley in the dressing room. In some way Kate's name was introduced, and Stanley spoke of her in terms of great admi-

"She is an old acquaintance, is she not?" Roy asked. "No; quite the contrary. I have only known her a few weeks.' "Do you mean to tell me you were not acquainted with Miss Neville two winters ago?" demanded Roy.

A crimson flush spread from Stanley's collar to the roots of his hair. "I expect you refer to a distant relative of this Miss Neville, who was here two winters ago and who is a very different kind of a girl. Good night.' Stanley quickly disappeared, without noticing how his information had af fected Roy

The floor and ceiling seemed to meet before the eyes of that young man, and the things in the room chased each other in the wildest way. Giving himself a shake to restore his scattered senses, he turned and went swiftly downstairs. In a few minutes he wa beside Kate.

"Miss Neville, this is our waltz!" With a gasp Kate turned at the sound of the voice that four weeks be fore had addressed her in almost the same words. The suddenness of the attack was too much for her; unresisting she allowed him to lead her to a small reception room.

He closed the door and then all the man's self-control forsook him. "Oh, Kate, can you ever forgive me?

Can I ever make you love me? Believe me, I have been mad!" He certainly gave her good cause to think he was still in that unhappy condition. Keeping her hands clasped in
