5000 People at Vassar.

At 2:50 p.m. Saturday, promptly on schedule time, William Jennings Bryan's special pulled into the Michigan Central depot. A stand had been erected in a square near the depot and decorated with bunting in national colors. Fully five thousand people awaited his arrival, many of them comng from the northern part of the county. A special train from Caro brought fully a thousand who were neaded by the Caro band. It is said that there is one, and only one, work extant written in the language in which the Savior commonly spoke. The authority for this statement is Doctor Meyer of the University of Bonn, who has made a special study of the question. The work is known as the "Jerusalem Talmud." and it was written in Tiberias in the third century after Christ. According to this authority, Jesus spoke a Galilean dialect of the Aramaic tongue. The Aramaic is that it was necessary to swear Lena one of the Semitic family of languages, a sister tongue of the Hebrew. Aramaic was at one period the language of business intercourse between Syria and the countries farther east.

Edinger, a grocer at 1141/2 street, southwest, was headed straight for the realms of matrimonial Being smothered in the perfume of bliss one day recently and making reca radiant smile as he bounded into the clerk's office. It was all right-he was 28 and Lena was 18; he was quite sure she was 18 and would be 19 in December. He was a citizen of the United States, he told the clerk, and then the clerk said:

"Is Lena a citizen, too?" That struck the applicant as rather a good joke, and he laughed and said he would tell Lena when he went home, but the clerk finally convinced Franklin that he was thoroughly in earnest; was a citizen. Well, the man who was trying to become a benedict said he did not know. Lena had been brought to the United States by her parents when she was 2 years old. Was her father naturalized? Didn't know that, either; the father was dead and they could not ask him. "Well, that settles it," the clerk observed. "I am afraid we can't do anything for you. The law, enacted by the last congress, says:

"No license for any marriage shall hereafter be issued to which any citizen of a foreign country shall be a party until a minister or a consul representing such foreign country in the United States shall certify that the conditions to the validity of the marriage laws of such country shall have been complied with."

And that is why a certain wedding announced to take place in South Washington society has been declared off. It would, no doubt, puzzle a foreign minister or a consul to find out whether Lena Jobst complied fully with all the marriage laws of Germany and lived up to them strictly to the time she was 2 years old, so there is really nothing left for this couple to do but get married somewhere else. It was some time before the clerk could make Franklin believe that the law could in any way prevent his marrying Lena, but when he thoroughly grasped the situation he expressed an opinion of the whole law-making power in language almost strong enough to change the marriage regulations without the intervention of con-

telephone, introduced in San Francis co, may be called a kitchen telephone service. For fifty cents per month the local company will supply an instrument by which orders may be given to the butcher, grocer or other tradesmen, but through which no return answer can be received. A further concession is to allow communication with one other subscriber, but any other communication must be at the rate of five cents per call. The limit upon the service makes it improbable that any more than two calls a day will be made and these can be provided at the low rate. It is inferred that the service is introduced for the purpose of educating the householder as to the advantage and convenience of the telephone, with the expectation that the trial will lead to a demand for the un-

An Italian aeronaut, named Canazza has invented two balloon attachments, which are said to have fully realized the expectations formed of them. The one is an enormous parachute stretched over a balloon, and the other a folded, inverted parachute, which immediately acts as a huge air brake and effectually retards progress.

On the other hand should the air ves sel explode through expansion, fire or any other cause, the top parachute comes into action and a descent may be made without the slightest inconvenience.

A Weeping Tree.

The weeping tree of the Canary islands is one of the wonders of plant life. It is of the laurel family, and rains down a copious shower of water drops from its tufted foliage. This water is often collected at the foot of the tree and forms a kind of pond from which the inhabitants of the neighborhood can suply themselves with a beverage that is absolutely fresh and pure. The water comes out of the tree itself through innumerable little pores situated at the margin of the leaves. It issues from the plant as vapor during the daytime when the heat is sufficiently great to preserve it in that condition, but in the evening, when the temperature has lowered very much, a considerable quantity of it is exuded in the form of liquid drops that collect near the edges of the leaves until these members so bend down under their increasing weight as to pass, for them, the limit of the angle of repose, when the tears tumble off on the ground below in a veritable shower.-London Mail.

There is no rude, the plow turned up very rich reason why the ingenuity and art expended on all the other details of the and all kinds of grain came up at the table should not be extended to these cards. Many a time one sees a little scene or flower in water-colors which has all the appearance of being cribbed from a Christmas card. Pen-and-ink sketches are seldom noticed and yet there one has scope for originality. Some little bit taken from a funny paper, or, if clever enough, out of one's own head, has all the attraction of novelty. Cupids, flowers, love letters and slippers for women; pipes, horses and dogs for the men. A clever idea is to sketch in fanciful letters the words: "Who the (then draw a devil) sits here?" If the hostess desires to touch up the little vanities and weaknesses for her guests here is her opportunity. Upon the author's card may be drawn a figure writing in the book of fame; for the musician, a muse playing on the lyre; for the man who talks too much, a parrot, shrieking: "Words! Words! Words!" and for the college girl, Cupid, in cap and gown, etc. Another source of comfort to be derived from the artistic cards would be the final death of that most awkward pause when the women are removing their gloves and the weather and the opera have not yet become the subects of disinterested conversation. With these merry bits of pasteboard at each plate an occasion for laughter and jest would be given.

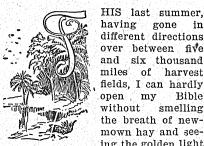

A Tree with a Story. A Norridgewock (Me.) farmer entertained 100 friends the other day, the table for the collation being set under a willow tree which has an interesting story. The day after President Lincoln was assassinated the farmer chanced to be three miles from home, and, to assist him in his walk across for a cane. As he climbed the fence the ground, top end down. It took root and grew, as willows often do, and today is a large tree, covering a space fifty-two feet in diameter.—New York Tribune.

TALMAGE'S SERMON.

'GOSPEL FARMING" SUBJECT OF SUNDAY'S DISCOURSE.

From the Text "I am the True Vine -John XV: 1-Plowing and Sowing that We May Reap the Good Things

having gone in different directions over between five and six thousand miles of harvest fields, I can hardly open my Bible without smelling the breath of newmown hay and see-my Bible to take my text, the Scripture leaf rustles like the tassels of the corn. We were nearly all of us born in the country. We dropped corn in the hill, and went on Saturday to the mill, tying the grist in the center of the sack so that the contents on either side the horse balanced each other; and drove the cattle afield, our bare feet wet with the dew, and rode the horses with the halter to the brook until we fell off, and hunted the mow for nests until the feathered occupants went cackling away. We were nearly all of us born in the country, and all would have stayed there had not some adventurous lad on his vacation come back with better clothes and softer hands. and set the whole village on fire with ambition for city life. So we all understand rustic allusions. The Bible is full of them. In Christ's sermon on the Mount you could see the fullblown lilies and the glossy back of the crow's wing as it flies over Mount Olivet. David and John, Paul and Isaiah find in country life a source of frequent illustration, while Christ in the text takes the responsibility of calling God a farmer, declaring, "My Father is the husbandman."

Noah was the first farmer. We say nothing about Cain, the tiller of the soil. Adam was a gardener on a large scale, but to Noah was given all the acres of the earth. Elisha was an agriculturist, not cultivating a ten-acre lot, for we find him plowing with twelve yoke of oxen. In Bible times the land was so plenty and the inhabitants so few that Noah was right when he gave to every inhabitant a certain portion of land; that land, if cultivaiod, ever after to be his own possession. Just as in Nebraska the United States Government on payment of $16 years ago gave pre-emption right to 160 acres to any man who would settle there and cultivate the soil.

All classes of people were expected to cultivate ground except ministers of religion. It was supposed that they would have their time entirely occupied with their own profession, although I am told that sometimes ministers do plunge so deeply into world-Thomas Fraser said in regard to a man in his day who preached very that drug; so virulent, so poisonous, well, but lived very ill: "When he is so fatal that one drop is enough to kill out of the pulpit, it is a pity he should the soul. ever go into it, and when he is in the out of it."

They were not small crops raised in those times, for though the arts were soil, and barley, and cotton, and flax, call of the harvesters. Pliny tells of one stalk of grain that had on it between three and four hundred ears. tificial channels, were brought down to of turning a river wherever it was 'The king's heart is in the hand of the Lord, and he turneth it as the rivers of water are turned, whithersoever he will.' The wild beasts were caught, and then a hook was put into their nose. and then they were led over the field and to that God refers when he says to wicked Sennacherib: "I will put a hook in thy nose and I will bring thee not converted. What is the reason? back by the way which thou camest." And God has a hook in every bad man's nose, whether it be Nebuchadnezzar or other end of the field. We kept our eye his life, or in the hour of his death, he will find that the Lord Almighty has a hook in his nose. This was the rule in regard to the culture of the ground: "Thou shalt not plow with an ox and an ass together," illustrating the folly of ever nutting intelligent and useful and pliable men in association with the stubborn and the unmanageable. The vast majority of troubles in the churches and in reformatory institutions comes from the disregard of this command of the Lord, "Thou shalt not plow with an ox and an ass together.'

There were large amounts of property invested in cattle. The Moabites raid 100,000 sheep as an annual tax. Job had 7,000 sheep, 3,000 camels, 500 yoke of oxen. The time of vintage was ushered in with mirth and music. The clusters of the vine were put into into his yard he stuck the "cane" into out the juice from the grape until their garments were saturated with the wine and had become the emblems of fixion, making use of this allusion when the question was asked: "Wherefore art thou red in thine apparel and thy garments like one who treadeth the wine vat?" He responded: "I have trodden the wine press alone."

dustrious yeomanry. So long ago as before the fall of Carthage, Strabo wrote twenty-eight books on agriculture; Hesiod wrote a poem on the same subject—"The Weeks and Days." Cato was prouder of his work on husbandry than of all his miltary conquests. But and My Father Is the Husbandman" I must not be tempted into a discussion of agricultural conquests. Standing amid the harvests and orchards and vineyards of the Bible, and standand vineyards of our own countrylarger harvests than have ever before been gathered-I want to run out the analogy between the production of crops and the growth of grace in the soul-all these sacred writers making use of that analogy.

In the first place, I remark, in grace as in the fields, there must be a plow. That which theologians call conviction is only the plow-share turning ing the golden light up the sins that have been rooted and of the wheat field. And when I open | matted in the soul. A farmer said to his indolent son: "There are a hundred dollars buried deep in that field." The son went to work and plowed the field from fence to fence, and he plowed it very deep, and then complained that he had not found the money; but when the crop had been gathered and sold for a hundred dollars more than any previous year, then the young man took the hint as to what his father meant when he said there were a hundred dollars buried down in that field. Deep plowing for a crop. Deep plowing for a soul. He who makes light of sin will never amount to anything in the church or in the though it were an inaccuracy or a mistake, instead of the loathesome, thing that God hates, that man will never yield a harvest of usefulness.

After awhile my father came along and said: "Why, this will never | plucked four-o'clocks out of the meaddo; this isn't plowed deep enough; there you have missed this and you triumph. What if the voice that made have missed that." And he plowed it over again. The difficulty with a great the eternal hosanna. Put a white rose many people is that they are only scratched with conviction when the hand, and a wreath of orange biossoms subsoil plow of God's truth ought to be put in up to the beam.

There are Twas not in cruelty, not in wrath quick poisons and slow poisons, but the liness that they remind one of what druggist could give you one drop that Twas an angel that visited the earth could kill the body. And sin is like Deep plowing for a crop. Deep plowing for a soul. Broken heart or no religion. Broken soil or no harvest. Why was it that David and the jailer and the publican and Paul made such ado about their sins? Had they lost their senses? No. The plow-share struck them. Conviction turned up a great many things that were forgotten. As a farmer plowing sometimes turns up the skeleton of a man or the an-The rivers and the brooks, through ar- atomy of a monster long ago buried, so the plow-share of conviction turns the roots of the corn, and to this habit up the ghastly skeletons of sins long ago entombed. Geologists never wanted, Solomon refers when he says: brought up from the depths of the mountain mightier ichthyosaurus or megatherium. But what means all this crooked plowing, these crooked furrows, the repentance that amounts to nothing, the repentance that ends in nothing? Men groan over their sins, but get no better. They weep, but their tears are not counted. They get convicted, but I remember that on the farm we set weeping will not bring you through. "Him hath God exalted to be a Prince and a Saviour to give repentance." Oh, plow up to the Cross!

Again, I remark, in grace as in the farm there must be a reaping. Many lots, cut a willow limb, which he used the wine press, and then five men Christians speak of religion as though would get into the press and trample it were a matter of economics or insurance. They expect to reap in the next world. Oh, no! Now is the time to reap. Gather up the joy of the Chrisslaughter. Christ himself, wounded tian religion this morning, this afteruntil covered with the blood of cruci- noon, this night. You say you have it so hard; you might have it worse. You wonder why this great cold trouble keeps revolving through your soul, turning and turning with a black hand on the crank. Ah, that trouble is the grindstone on which you are to sharpen your sickle. To the fields! Wake up! Take ing amid the harvests and orchards off your green spectacles, your blue spectacles, your black spectacles. Pull up the corners of your mouth as far as you pull them down. To the fields! Reap! reap!

Again, I remark, in grace as in farming there is a time for threshing. I tell you bluntly that is death. Just as the farmer with a flail beats the wheat out of the straw, so death beats the soul out of the body. Every sickness is a stroke of the flail, and the sick-bed is the threshing-floor. What, say you, is death to a good man only taking the wheat out of the straw? That is all. An aged man has fallen asleep. Only yesterday you saw him in the sunny porch playing with his grandchildren. Calmly he received the message to leave this world. He bade a pleasant good-bye to his old friends. The telegraph carries the tidings, and on swift rail-trains the kindred come, wanti once more to look on the face of dear old grandfather. I have spoken of the plowing, of the sowing, of the harrowing, of the reaping, of the threshing. I must now speak a moment of the garnering. Where is the garner? Need I tell you? Oh, no. So many have gone out from your own circles—yea, from your own family, that you have had your eyes on that garner for may a year. What a hard time some of them had? In Gethsemanes of suffering, they sweat great drops of blood. They took the "cup of trembling" and they put it to their hot lips and they cried, "If it be possible, let this cup pass from me." With tongues of hurning agony they cried, "O Lord, deliver my soul!" But they got over it. They all got over it. Garnered! Their tears wiped away; their battles all ended; their burdens lifted. Garnered! The Lord of the harvest will not allow those sheaves to perish in the equinox. Garnered! Some of us remember, on the farm, that the sheaves were put on a standard with a red flag at the the top of the rack which surmounted the wagon, and these sheaves were Ahab or Herod. He may think himself on that. We aimed at that. We plow- piled higher and higher, and after very independent, but some time in ed up to that. O my friends, our getting and made satisfaction. Crying and to heaven may be a pull, a hard pull, a very hard pull, but these sheaves are bound to go in. The Lord of the harvest has promised it. I see the load at last coming to the door of the heavenly garner. The sheaves of the Christian soul sway to and fro in the wind of death, and the old body creaks under the load, and as the load strikes the floor of the celestial garner, it seems as if it can go no farther. It is the last struggle, until the voices of angels and the voices of our departed kindred and the welcoming voice of God shall send the harvest rolling into the eternal triumph, while all up and down the sky the cry is heard: "Harvest home! harvest home!"

In these times when backs are lame, when almost every other one we meet has now and then, or all the time, a back that aches or pains—"a weak back," "a bad back," a back that makes their life a misery to bear—and still they go on day by day in pain and suffering. Here is a case from Battle Creek: Mr. Josiah M. Shoup lives at 51 Broad Street, he was a member of the Battle Creek police force for many years. As a member of the force he served the city well, but the rough weather he was often subjected to laid the foundation of kidney disorder, which has troubled him very much. Here is what he says about it:

"About three years ago, while on the police force, I contracted from exposure a kidney trouble, which has since given me no end of trouble. The pain was right through my kidneys and across the small of my back; if sitting down and I wanted to stand up, I had to arise very slowly and gently to avoid increasing the pain; I had such tired-out feelings all the time, and I was steadily getting worse. About two months ago, hearing of Doan's Kidney Pills, I got a box. Their action and effect was most complete, they removed the old aching pains for good. Prohibition Educators.

An interesting story is told in the Railroad Journal: I was seated in one of the elegant coaches of the famous 'Black Diamond Express," probably the finest train in the world, which runs between New York and Niagara Falls, on the Lehigh Valley railroad. The stops on this very fast train are few and far between. The conductor was an old friend of mine, and we entered into conversation about the railroading of the past and present. The conductor said: "Do you know that the railroads of to-day are among the greatest educators for temperance, morality and religion you can find Twenty-five years ago a man could step off his train and take a drink whenever he wished to. Can he do it to-day? Not much! At least, not on the Lehigh Valley. A temperance man better chance of getting a job and keeping it under this company than one who is even a moderate drinker. The officials look after the personal character of their men. and attribute the great success of the oad under the present administration and the general absence of railroad wrecks to this one thing. A drinking man is not wanted, and the result is that nearly every man in the employ of the Lehigh Valley is a strict total abstainer. As a rule, railroad accidents happen because of carelessness on the part of the men, and do you know that after a careful investigation it was found that in every case where such acclents occurred the Sugar from the Glass.

A story is told by Onward of a father who was in the habit of taking every light a glass of whisky and water. Sometimes he took a piece of sugar out of the liquid and gave it to his litle son, with the words, "Here, Jack, have a bit of sugar, boy." The boy cook it willingly, and though at first the taste of the whisky was unpleasant, he soon overcame this and began to like its flavor, till at last the father was persuaded by the boy to give him a sip out of the glass. One evening a BLADDER sister of the boy was standing by when the father offered her a piece of sugar from his glass. Fortunately at this moment the mother entered and said. 'No; stop. Whatever you give to the boy, I cannot allow you to give to the girl. She shall not learn the taste of Total Abstinence. I believe in total abstinence because as a wife and mother and mistress of : example I can before all—in my unself help, reproof, loving service, pleasure skirted the meadow, ere the dense and comfort. If I lean on lower strength than the strength of the Eter nal, I shall surely fail. My humble nightly prayer is that neither child not husband, maid nor any employe shal ever be the worse for my companion ship and my presence in their lives. I took alcohol, I should be making unguarded moments certain; I should be flinging away my power of self-control and the principles that govern the dea: little kingdom of home would be found to swerve, administered as they would be, by moody and changeful impulses Alcohol is the one arch-foe of the home How could I, who, being a mother, an the headquarters of the home garrison have one arm thrown lovingly round children, husband, maids, and the other stretched out to encircle their deadliest enemy? Liquor Ruins the Body.

"I am fully ready to affirm that mer who take no stimulating drinks enjoy the strongest health, can perform the fullest amount of labor, bear exposure the best, live the longest, and are, in every respect, equal to those who drink very moderately. From some diseases they enjoy almost an immunity, and these of a painful character. Then the important question arises, do the children of abstainers manifest as perfect and strong a condition of mental and under my observation, and conclude there is not a single condition or argument which can be brought against the abstainer, either as parent or child, but, contrariwise, much to commend it in both; and I would especially assert many fewer idiots and insane persons age gained by his huge strides. among them than among others, and among them."-Benjamin Townson A Hereditary Drunkenness.

Hereditary drunkenness has been the subject of special study by Professor Pellman, of Bonn University, Germany. He has selected cases of individual drunkards of some generations ago, and traced out the careers of all their descendants up to the present time. His latest subject of investigation is Frau Ada Jurke. She was born in 1740 and was a drunkard, a thief, and a tramp for forty years, dying in 1800. Local records supply the histories of 709 of her 834 descendants. Out of those traced 106 were of illegitimate birth, 142 were beggars, 64 others lived on charity, and 181 were women of disreputable living. The family has supplied 76 convicts, of whom 7 were sentenced for murder. It is estimated that during the seventy-five years this family cost Germany about $1,250,000 in appear." alms-houses, trial costs, prisons and correctional institutions.

A Pitiful Sight.

In a New York street a man lay helplessly intoxicated. Staring curiously at him was a group of children. A little girl suggested that the man's son should be told of his father's condition, "I told him," said a boy, "and he said he didn't care." It was the hardened san of a drunkard who spoke in that pitiable way—already, no doubt, in training to be a drunkard in his turn. And so the almost endless chain of wretchedness and sin stretches out.-Youth's Companion.

At the right was the thickly woven, undulating canopy of grand old trees, forming the Little Forest of which the Languedocs were so proud and chary -and far on to the left you caught the glitter of waves, where the Mediterranean reveled in of sunbeams last golden shine, and the bright reflection showed the spires and roofs of Frejus like some cloud city, ready to vanish at a

"But ghosts don't work, Jeannot," said Lady Felicie. "Why don't you get some of the men with you, and follow up the sounds till you find what makes them?"

"Haven't I tried it alone? Holy Mary! I've searched and searched the woods over, and never a trace can I find of the ground broken, or of a tree disturbed. I had wild ideas at first-I thought somebody was burying some guilty secret-a murdered body, or a stolen treasure, and I meant old Jeannot shoud have the glory of finding it all Oh, now, my lady, it's all beyond mortal finding out-that's my belief, and sure I won't be so bold as to bring upon myself the evil one's vengeance by prying into his doings. It was only because you reproved me, as an idle story teller, that I brought you here to see for yourself---"

He paused abruptly, shrank back un Terre Haute, Ind., Chief Arthur, of her hand, while he pointed to the open der the bushes, and frantically seized pathway beyond them.

Lady Felicie bent forward, not without a violent beating heart, it must be admitted.

Despite her best efforts, a cold chill crept over the girl, and she stood shivering until the mysterious figure vanished from sight.

Jeannot was muttering prayers, with vehement eagerness. Lady Felicie made a desperate exertion, seeing the old man's terror, and exclaimed resolutely: "Nonsense! It was a man, who is looks ready to swallow two people like you and me, why not ring the bell and order a nice little repast for us here! It would be so cosy, so home like, so extremely delightful."

The countess smiled still more brightly, and stretched out her hand oward the bell.

Felicie flew to reach it, and after the ecessary orders had been given, she threw off her mantle, playfully seated the countess again in the easy chair, and drew a cushion of emerald velvet to her feet.

ADAM'S HEIGHT. Figures Seem to Show That It Was Sixty-Five Feet.

At various times within the last few years assertions have been made by many thinkers that Adam and the antediluvian people were of extraordinary height, but many other thinkers (who have never thought much about the matter) have laughed at the assertion and cried "bosh," says an exchange. I, too, am of the opinion that there was something more about Adam that was extraordinary besides the number of his years. To prove the same by a course of mathematical reasoning we will take Noah, whose life was twenty years longer than Adam's and who is quite as well known for his generosity to the human and animal races. According to Genesis Noah lived 950 years and then died. It is a well-defined rule in nature that animals, bipeds and quadrupeds live about three and onehalf times the number of years required for their individual maturity. Thus man in this century matures in 20 and dies at the age of 70 years. Dividing the age of Noah by three and one-half. we find that he reached his maturity in about 270 years. The average man of to-day at maturity measures about five feet and weighs about 125 pounds, Five feet in twenty years is equivalent to three inches in one year. Applying the same rule to Noah's maturing years, we find that at his maturity ho was sixty-seven feet tall and weighed 1,375 pounds. It stands to reason that if Noah was so great in body that the originator of the race must have been equally as large.

EARLY SETTLERS.

From the Democrat, Grand Rapids Mich.

In the northern outskirts of the little town of Berlin, Ottawa County, Mich igan, there stands a cozy cottage; i is the home of Peter Miller, who with his wife, Mariette, settled there forty three years ago. Fortune never blessed this couple with children, but notwith standing this their lives have been with only one exception, one long with only one exception, one long bright day.

In speaking of this one exception Mrs. Miller said:

"I was only twenty-two years old when Feter and I settled here. At that time there were only two white families in Grand Rapids and one store. When we wanted to go shopping in those days the Indians used to row us across the river, for there was no bridge across Grand River then. We were the first white settlers around here and I guess I know nearly everybody in Kent and Ottawa Counties. We cleared this place right out of the woods, and during all our experience we scarcely ever had occasion to call a doctor. As for me I never believed much in doctors anyway, and it was after a good deal of objection on my part that Peter called one when I was sick five years ago. I cannot tell you sick five years ago. I cannot tell you what I suffered after that sickness. For two years I had to be assisted in and out of bed, and it was impossible for me to raise my foot a step from the floor. I had given up all hopes of ever recovering, for you see I am get-ting old.

"One day I read in the Democrat an "One day I read in the Democrat an account of a man in Chicago who had spent a fortune on the same disease and had given up, but as a last resort tried a box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. His cure was reported to have been almost instantancous. I thought it would not cost much to try it and I told Peter about it. 'You shall have that medicine,' he said, and hitching up he started at once for Grand Rapids, and that very night I took my first dose of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Do you believe it? said, and hitching up he started at once for Grand Rapids, and that very night I took my first dose of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Do you believe it? Before the next morning I felt a change. It was the first time in four years that I could say that I felt the least ease or anything approaching comfort. My delight cannot be imagined, when three days later the shooting pains had nearly all gone. It was again a pleasure to live and my husband was the happiest man in Ottawa County when he saw me get right up and walk around the house as free and easy as I ever did before. I continued the use of the pills until I had used six boxes, and I am glad to say that since the day I finished the last one—nine months ago—I have not felt the least pain or soreness in my joints, and can do my work just as easy and with as much comfort as I ever could in my life.

"I cannot say too much for this remedy. I often wish I knew those who are suffering now as I was then; I would tell them what the Pink Pills did for me and I know they would help them. Why, these pills not only cured my rheumatism, but they built up my system again. I was like a skeleton when I began the use of those pills and you see me now. I feel vexed sometimes when I think that remedy was so close at hand and I suffered so long without knowing it. I owe my life and all that I now enjoy to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and cannot say too much for them. And I will gladly make affidavit to all I have said about them if necessary."

A SCHOOL FOR CABMEN. Established in Paris for the Safety of the Public.

Those who have spent much time in Paris will be pleased to hear that cabmen are now compelled by law to take instruction in the art of driving. No. where in the world do they need it

Before they can obtain their licenses from the Prefect of Police the cabmen must pass an examination. They are required to prove that they are familiar with every street and monument in Paris, and to drive perfectly, and that they understand the elements of polite conduct

If they fail in any of these tests they are rejected and if they persist in their ambition they can obtain instruction at the newly established school for cabmen, near the Butte Montmartre.

MERE MENTION OF MICHIGAN MATTERS.

Ex-United States Senator Thomas White Ferry Died Very Suddenly at His Home at Grand Haven-Grand Chapter Order of the Eastern Star at Adrian.

Ex-Senator Ferry Dead. Ex-United States Senator Thomas White Ferry, once acting vice-president of the United States, and one of the most prominent figures in Michigan history, died very suddenly of apoplexy at Grand Haven. Mr. Ferry was born June 1, 1826, on Mackinac island where his father had established an Indian mission. After receiving a village school education at Grand Haven, the boy clerked in a store at Elgin, Ill., for several years, and then returned to Grand Haven, becoming a partner with his father and brother in the lumber firm of Ferry & Sons. There he laid the foundation for the big fortune which he subsequently lost. In 1847 he was elected clerk of Ottawa county. Six years later he was elected to the lower house of the legislature, and afterwards to the senate. He was vice-president for Michigan in the convention that nominated Lincoln. In 1863 he represented Michigan in the board of managers for the Gettysburg cemetery. He was first elected to congress in 1864, serving eight years. In 1871 he was elected United States senator and did valuable service on committees. From the death of Vice-President Wilson, Nov. 22, 1875, to March 4, 1877, Mr. Ferry was acting vice-president of the United States. After his re-election to the senate he was again made president pro tempore. Mr. Ferry was president of the joint meeting of the senate and house of representatives that seated President Hayes, and at his home is the pen used to sign the certificate of election. In 1882 Mr. Ferry lost the fortune he had made in the lumbering business, probably through neglecting his private affairs for the interests of his constituents. Since his retirement from politics Mr. Ferry has resided quietly at his home at Grand Haven. He took a deep interest in local affairs

jected and that nearly broke his heart. It was largely through the efforts of Mr. Ferry in the senate that Mackinae island, recently given to Michigan for park purposes, was set aside as a national park and Gov. Rich made him president of the board having charge of the park.

Order of the Eastern Star. Adrian entertained the thirtieth annual meeting of the Order of the Eastern Star, grand chapter of Michigan. Nearly 500 delegates were present. The grand chapter was opened by Grand Worthy Matron Lida H. Pratt, of Jack son, with Mrs. A. A. Matteson, of Middleville, secretary. Prayer was offered by the chaplain, Mrs. Lena Miller. Mrs. Elizabeth Barrett, worthy matron of Adrian chapter, delivered the address of welcome. The annual addresses of Grand Patron Chas. O. Connover, of Coldwater, and of Worthy Matron Pratt followed, slowing 33 new chapters instituted during the past year. The report of the secretary showed 143 chartered chapters and 33 under dispensation. The deaths during the year were 77, initiations 2,000, admitted 254, total membership 12,700. A reception was held in the Masonic temple and the secret work of the order exemplified. F. H. Hosford, of Detroit, was elected grand worthy patron, and Mrs. Lida Pratt was re-elected grand worthy matron. Detroit was selected as the place of meeting next year.

The Young Woman's Christian association met at Lansing in their twelfth annual convention. Miss Mary Stewart, of Detroit, opened the convention and Mrs. Harold P. Sayles, of Chicago, led the devotional services. The roll call showed nearly all of the 19 city and college associations represented. The following officers were elected: President, Mrs. A. N. Miller, of Bay City; vice-president, Mrs. Warner, of Jackson; secretary, Miss Keep, of Detroit; assistant secretary, Miss Siddall, of South Haven; press secretary, Mrs. Blanche H. Mason, of Lansing. A number of splendid papers were read and addresses made on various phases of women's influence in the home, in the church, and in affairs of state. Over $300 was pledged by the delegates for the state work.

Union Veterans' Legion. The Union Veterans' Legion convened in the eleventh convention at Washington. The first event after the formal welcome was a parade through the principal streets, which was reviewed by President Cleveland. The secretary of the legion reported the total membership to be 8,752, comprising 154 encampments. Col. John P. Donahue, of Wilmington, Del., was chosen commander. The legion meets at Columbus. That Atlantic Coast Storm. The first reports of the damage of story. For two days and a night the gale blew with ever increasing fury, and at Brighton Beach, Manhattan, Edgemere, Far Rockaway and at a dozen other points along the sea line on the Long Island and Jersey coasts the incoming waters swept under the very foundations of the buildings, and in some sections whole districts on the coast were swept clean of frame buildings. Jersey City was in places practically inundated. But Coney Island was the greatest sufferer. It is believed that several hundred thousand dollars would not cover the value of the places thus destroyed. Great damage was done at Atlantic City, Angelsea, Sea Isle City, and Holly Beach. The railroad companies will be the heaviest losers in Atlantic City, the damage to their roadbeds alone amounting to over $20,000, and the total loss will easily figure over $150,-000. Spanish Threatened to Fire on an American Vessel, but They Didn't Do It. An interesting account of a dramatic Dayton. episode which occurred at Havana has been received via Key West, Fla. The American schooner Vigilancia put into Havana to discharge a cargo and while there the Spanish authorities demanded that Capt. McIntosh surrender Senor Angel Fernandez to them on the claim that he was a subject of Spain. Fernandez said that he was a Mexican, and Capt. McIntosh refused to give him up. The Spanish authorities then told is an open secret that if Spain does not McIntosh that if the Vigilancia attempted to go to sea with Fernandez on board she would be sunk by the guns of Moro Castle. Capt. McIntosh mmediately laid the matter before U. S. Consul-General Lee, who complimented him on his bravery and told him to sail when he pleased. The consul was greatly enraged and said, "If the guns of Moro Castle sink your ship American warships will bombard Havana within a few days." Capt. Mc-Intosh returned to his ship and Consul Lee informed Weyler that the vessel was going to sea and that if an attempt was made to take off Fernandez or that if the vessel was fired upon Spain must take the consequences. The Vigilancia

then began to weigh anchor and prepared to put to sea. Spanish officials on board protested but Capt. McIntosh said in vigorous language: "D-n your objections; my ship has been cleared. My consul has told me to go to sea. I am going and I dare you to try to prevent me. Get off my ship." And with that the Yankee roughly shoved the Spaniards into the waiting boats and the Vigilancia, flying the stars and stripes, started for the mouth of the harbor, which is commanded by the guns of Moro Castle. All was excitement in Havana and the quays and housetops were lined with hundreds of persons who expected to see the Vigilancia fired upon. But she was not molested, and Yankee grit had won the day. The episode caused more excitement in Havana than anything since the beginning of the war and Gen. Weyler is almost wild with rage at Consul Lee's interference.

U. S. Warship to Force the Dardanelles In connection with the denials sent out from Washington to the effect that the government had no intention of trying to have the U.S. cruiser Bancroft force a passage through the Dardanelles in the face of the protest of Turkey, the following dispatches are interesting, to say the least.

Athens: The Asty publishes a dispatch from Constantinople which states that the United States guardship intends to force the Dardanelles, and that in consequence two Turkish torpedo boats have gone to the Dardanelles and two others to Smyrna.

Constantinople: It is stated here that U. S. Minister Terrell is going to Smyrna to consult Rear Admiral Thos. Selfridge, who is in command of the squadron of the United States war ships which have rendezvoused there. It is rumored that a passage of the Dardanelles will be attempted by one of the warships, soon.

Spaniards Threaten Against: Us.

Madrid: Commenting upon the state ment contained in a dispatch, from Washington that President Cleveland intends to intervene in Cuba in a manner tantamount to the recognition of the independence of the insurgents. the Imparcial, a semi-official newspaper of the Spanish government, declares that Spain ought to demand a full explanation from the Washington government. After denouncing the fictional neutrality" of the United States the Imparcial concludes as folows: "The conduct of the United States will arouse general indignation. If Spain should remain alone in a conflict with the United States, Spaniards, by their own efforts, will know how to mark the difference between the noble defenders of their own property and the vile traffic brokers at Washington.'

Steamer Burned in Mid Lake. The big wooden steamer Australasia coal laden from Lake Erie to Milwaukee burned in Lake Michigan and the wreck now lies sunk in Whitelish bay. The crew of the lost steamer, 17 men, were rescued from their burning boat by the life saving crew from Bailey's harbor, Wis. The cargo of the Australasia consisted of 2,200 tons of soft coal. The Australasia was built in 1884, and was at that time among the first of her class. She registered 1,829 tons and was 230 feet long and 39 feet beam. Her owner was James Corrigan, the iron mining man, of Cleveland, and her value was about $80,000.

California Town Swept into the Sea. The missing town of Altata, in southern California, has entirely disappeared from the face of the earth. During a ecent storm on the coast torrents rushed down from the hills back of Altata and met a tidal wave carred in from the sea and the town was obliterated. Many of the mines located inland were flooded by the cloudburst. Fortunately the loss of life was slight. and the Altatans are now camping in tents or rudely constructed huts a little back of where the town stood. The town of Mazalan had a somewhat similar experience, but not nearly so, severe.

REVIEW OF TRADE.

While the volume of general trade has not in While the volume of general trade has not unreased materially new conditions are favorable to an early improvement. Notwithstanding many interior mechants prefer to wait intil after election, before placing orders. Wheat advanced 4½c the past, week and corn 2c. Confidence as to the future makes trouble in some industries because speculation in materials raises prices soft and domaid for finished products is checked. While wool is no higher, holders have sold enough to render them indifferent to immediate business, and are holding stocks for full figures. New orders for iron and steel products are not being placed as treely as they would be if makers would accept current quotations for 1897 delivery. The one commercial change which more than any other ensures better, business in the near future is the excess of menchandise exports over imports—in September exports were $85,098,594, and imports only $50,825.795, and the excess of exports was 31,272,889, in payment for which net imports of gold were $34,249,183. Last year the excess of merchandise imports was in September and net exports of gold $16,506.558 The heavy movement of grain is the corner stone. It is a very important fact is that all available grain freights have been engaged for months ahead both east and on the Pacific coast. The minister of agriculture in India stated in council that distress was expected in a large part of India as the result of frought. stated in council that distress was expected in large part of India as the result of drought, but importations of wheat from California would help to prevent actual famine. A high official of Russia now in this country confirms accounts of shortness in the Russian yield. Amestimate that Europe will fall 100,000 bu short of last year in supply of wheat is strongly supported, and while department estimates of yield in this country are not credited there is every reason to expect a remarkable foreign demand.

By Mrs. Bland B. Huddleston.

HE fearful war times so changed the quiet, unfettered life of our southern town that even little tots like myself went about wondering and questioning. Food and raiment gave me no concern-I was somehow provided for, and I had forgotten the sight and taste of luxuries before I grew old enough to discriminate between the old days of plenty and our later poverty. It was my unreplenished store of playthings that most troubled me: it diminished gradually, day by day, and there was no visible source of a new supply. At my seventh birthday I would have given a fortune, had I boasted one, for knife, and I had never owned one. In fishing, in shooting, in countless emergencies, my one crying need was for a knife. Zeke, one of the negroes, gloated over the possession of a broken case-knife, ground sharp and pointed, and this I sometimes succeeded in borrowing; but Zeke handled it lovingly and guarded it with a vigilant eye, so that I dared take no liberties with it. To insure a continuance of his favors I always adhered strictly to the terms of the loan and never cut a ramrod beyond the stipulated number.

Peace came at last and brought home my father, and two of the three brothers who had gone to the war, and for a time I was fully satisfied. Soon the stores were filled with bright and pretty things, but they were costly and we

Thus I came to be 11 years old, with the same hunger still keen in my heart. No later happiness has ever surpassed that of the eventful day when my heart's desire came to me, and my father laid in my palm the prettiest knife I had ever seen. When next I went to school I had advanced much in my own esteem; I had my brand new knife in one pocket, nine true and tried marbles in the other and in my booksack a long elder pop-gun for shooting china-berries or hog-haws.

From time immemorial the pop-gun has been the favorite summer toy of the southern boy, and no commercial ammunition could be invented to supnly that weapon so fittingly and so efficaciously as the berry of the chinatree, everywhere so plentiful here. I was expert at making and using the weapon. Given a human target, I could insure a blister for every berry.

Alas, I soon discovered that the heart of even a boy is rarely satisfied. Joe Cooper, a boy four years older than myself, had come by five large marbles; they were ringmen-two "buck-eyes" and three "stripes," and they appealed powerfully to my covetous little soul. The luster of my nine tried old friends paled beside them—their glory had departed forever.

Doubtless he sympathized more heartily than we knew.

Learning from the Chinese. The instinct of the plain people has been right in not calling our oriental visitor "Lee," for, acting out his name as popularly pronounced, this wily diplomat has, in England as well as here, required English to be translated to him, whereas it now appears that for years past he has spoken it fluently. This Chinese device of a needless interpreter is a "first-che" one to gain time for giving answers without causing the delay to be noticed; the mandarin has the time taken in translation for reflection, and, if further reflection is desired, ambiguity in interpretation may be pretended and a new form of the question required. And you men tell us that nothing can be learned from the Chinese.—Time and the Hour.

BRYAN AFTER TRUSTS THE FARMER'S REAL GRIEVANCE Not a Lack of Money in the Country, but of Banking Facilities. Why has Canada no currency question, no cry for cheap money and no campaign against gold? These are questions which Mr. Thomas G. Shearman answers very effectively in the London Times of Sept. 11. Briefly summarized, Mr. Shearman's explanation of the discontent among farmers, which has lead to the ridiculous demand for free silver, is that most farmers in the west and south are deprived of the benefits of banking facilities. They seldom see or use a check and are unacquainted with the benefits of banks and bank credits. For this reason there is a great scarcity of currency in most rural districts. The 'country store" supplies in part and in a crude and costly way the credits which tide many farmers over from one season to another. Because of the great risk involved the storekeeper, by charging high prices for his goods and by paying low prices for farm products, really gets from 25 to 40 per cent interest on the credits given to the farmers. Of course such interest eats up all of the profits of a large class of farmers. The country storekeeper really does a banking business in a clumsy and costly way. Local banks, such as exist in Canada, would furnish the farmers with credits at about one-fourth the cost of store credits. With such banks the farmers could sell their crops for checks, deposit them in banks and take up their discounted notes in this way. The farmer knows nothing of this method of conducting transactions and thinks that his needs can be supplied only by making more moneycheaper money if necessary.

The farmers, therefore, make no efforts to obtain better banking facilities. Instead they work and vote against banks and bankers at every opportunity. They tax money and other loanable capital at 2 or 21/2 per cent while demanding that interest be reduced to 2 per cent. They thus drive away the very money they are so eager to get. In some sections of the south it is 50 or 75 miles to the nearest bank. They prohibit branch banks, such as exist, in Canada and Scotland to the great advantage of remote country districts.

The farmers themselves are the greatest enemies to what is most needed in their communities-first class banks of deposit and discount. Mr. Shearman makes this point clear. He says that Canadian farmers "have suffered from the fall of prices and from every other alleged result of the single gold standard to the same extent as the farmers south of them. Yet there is no bitmetallic league in Canada, and the cry for cheaper money is not heard. Canada has not only enough money to supply all of her own wants, but also lends such great amounts in the United States that jealous American bankers sometimes try to shut Canadian money

Mr. Shearman sees what too few seem to see—that the farmers have a something positive. That the farmers are not willing to take the only remedy for their ills and prefer the quack free silver and cheap money remedies only prolongs their sufferings and makes a rational solution of the money question more difficult and uncertain.

For Probate Judge

At the head of the Republican tick et for Tuscola County appears the name of Hon. J. C. Laing, who has so efficiently filled this office for the past four years that his re-election is not only hoped for by those of his own political faith but by many others who have learned his sterling worth and capabilities. Realizing that he is one of our best and most highly respected citizens, we take this opportunity of informing our readers as best we can regarding something of his career in various official capacities.

The subject of this brief sketch was born in Sussex County, New Jersey, on the 17th of October, 1833, and his parents were natives of the same state His father was in early life a farmer and was of Scotch descent. A common school education and one year at the academy at Newton, constituted the scholastic advantages offered to our subject, and he completed his studies at the age of twenty. In the fall of 1853, John Laing began life for himself by school teaching in Oakland County, Mich,, whither he had come with his mother, his father having died previously. He followed teaching several years, locating in Flint in the spring of 1857, but removed to Tuscola County is the fall of the following year and took ur a farm in Elmwood township, a few miles wast of Cass City. He followed farming until 1869, when he came to Cass City and opened a general store, having as partners P. R. and W. Weydemeyer. In 1877 he purchased the interests of his partners and since that time has conducted the business alone until some four years ago, when O. K. Janes was received as a partner. Mr. Laing was also interested in our flouring mills for a number of years. He was united in marriage in 1857 to Miss Sarah E. Weydemeyer, also a native of New Jersey, who has ever been held in high esteem by those who were so fortunate as to form her acquaintance. Mr. Laing has always been closely affiliated with the Republican party, and his personal popularity has brought him prominently before the people. For a number of years he held the office of township clerk, and indeed was the first man who filled that office in his township. He was also supervisor in Elmwood township when it was known as Waterloo. For thirteen years he was treasurer of Elkland township. Four years ago he was elected as Probate Judge of the county and has discharged his duties so faithfully and with justice to all concerned that he is certainly deserving of re election. The office for which he is candidate is probably the most important of all as more property rights and equities are determined and adjudicated in the probate court every year than in all of the other courts of the county combined. Justice must be done to the widow and orphan or other lawful heirs to the many estates that are brought to this court for settlement, and Judge Laing is one of the few men who possess the particular judicial qualities necessary to a proper discharge of the functions imposed together with impartial judgment and unquestioned integrity. Much more could be said regarding his faithfulness and fitness but we deem it unneccessary as he is so widely known and we join his host of friends in hoping

He has ever been zealous and watchful of the interests of the village, and municipal affairs have received an impetus at his hands, which we trust will not diminish in force."

We considerable Mr. McDougall as both deserving and competent to fill the office of Register of Deeds and recommend him to the voters of Tuscola county. The fact that his campaign is particularly free from bluster is making friends and votes for him and judging from conversations we have heard in other parts of the county he will poll a large vote, and, we trust, win the plum, Although the Union Silver candidate he is not rabid or biased in his views but is liberal minded and if elected will give general satissaction.

For Prosecuting Attorney.

Another candidate in whom the people of this vicinity are interested to a considerable extent, although not at present a resident of our village, is in the race for prosecuting attorney. This is none other than Walter J. Gamble, of the firm of Quinn & Gamble, Caro, who is the Union Silver candi date. Walter was a resident of Cass City until he attained his majority and since that time has made Caro his home. He grew np with our boys and was a general favorite with all He was associated with Mack M. Wick-Ware, late proprietor of the ENTER-PRISE, in the publication of the Cass City Times, when both of them were still attending school. Although Mr. Gamble has been away from this section a number of years, our citizens still remember him kindly and have watched his progress with keen inour town he has received the kindliest Walter when they come to cast their mistake but that if he is fortunate sponsible office will receive proper tinually been under the doctor's care. and competent attention.

A GREAT HISTORIC TABLET.

Professor Petris Finds a Record of the Crushing of Israel by Egypt. I was permitted to excavate along a part of the ruin strewn desert at Thebes and to examine the sites of temples which stand there. On these few furlongs I found that there had been seven temples of the kings of the eighteenth and nineteenth dynasties, about 1450-1150 B. C. Most of these I entirely cleared out, the largest piece of allthe great buildings around the Rameseum—being the clearance of the Egyptian research account worked by Mr. Quibell. Each site gave us some return in information or objects, but the most valuable of the sites, as it proved, was one of the least inviting. A field of Andrew Armstrong came here from stone chips showed where the funeral temple of Merenptah had stood, and, left in the ruins, I found the great granite tablet bearing the long inscription of Merenptah about his Libyan war and his Syrian war and naming Israel. This tablet is over 10 feet high, over

5 feet wide and over a foot thick, of one flawless block of very fine grained granite, or rather syenite. It was first cut by one of the most sumptuous kings of Egypt, Amenhotep III, brilliantly polished as flat and glassy as a mirror and engraved with a scene of the king offering to Amen, the god of Thebes, and an inscription of about 3,000 hieroglyphs recording his offerings and glorifying the god. His son Akhenaten, who strove after a higher faith, erased all figures and inscriptions of Amen, and so offaced most of his father's fine carving on this great tablet. This, however, was all re-engraved by Seti I, about 50 years later, as a restoration. Then, some two centuries after it had been erected in the temple of Amenhotep III, Merenptah cast an envious gaze on the splendid stone and stole it for his own purpose. Not taking the trouble to rework it he simply built the face of it into his own wall and engraved on the comparatively rough back of the block. At the top he figured a scene of the king offering to Amen, and below an inscription very nearly as large as that of Amenhotep III on the other side. The painting of the sculptored figures still remains as fresh as on the day it was done, for, as so anxious to see Mr. Bryan, or the car the tablet fell face forward when the ing to Merenptah lay downward, while that of Amenhotep III was uppermost.

In the runis, then, amid the fragments of columns and foundations, heaped over with a foot or two of stone chips, this grand block had lain since about the time of the Trojan war. All Greek history, Roman and mediævalthe prophets, Christianity and Islamhave swept along while this was waiting unsuspected, with its story of the wars of Pharaoh of the Hard Heart and his crushing of Israel.—Professor Flinders Petrie in Century.

When Cod Become Blind.

Several large cod are kept in one of the tanks of the Amsterdam aquarium, necessarily near to the surface, and therefore exposed to a strong light from Now, the cod, though "deep sea" fish, is not a surface swimmer and lives at depths where the sunlight must be very much modified by passage through the water. It lives in what to us would be semidarkness. The cod, in fact, are blind. The most interesting feature in this rays has overdeveloped the organ for its use. It has taken place, not by slow degrees from individual to individual, but in a course of time to be measured by months and in every individual in the take place among fish, the adaptation of those creatures which have migrated from the shallow waters to the deep seas, shown by the total loss of enormous development of their eyes and the growth of illuminating organs to light the abyss, may have been as rapid as it is marvelous.—London Spectator.

A Dog's Patience.

In The Ladies' Kennel Journal there is printed a story of George Eliot's favorite spaniel, which Mr. Robert Buchanan tells. One day when the novelist, George Lowes, and Mr. Buchanan were engaged in earnest conversation they were disturbed by a sudden yelp of pain from beneath the table. Examination revealed the fact that a child of 3 years of age or so had been amusing himself by snipping at the animal's ears with a pair of scissors, and the mangled condition of the dog showed how much torture he had borne before giving way or uttering a sound of protest. George Eliot was, naturally, violently angry, and was about to punish the child, but the dog, divining her intention, licked his little persecutor's face and mutely begged him off the whipping he had richly deserved.

They Fear Nothing.

The followers of Menelek, king of Ena, while not so large as the ficree Zulus of the south, are about the toughest warriors in the world. They do not know physical fear. I have seen a man jab a burnt stick several inches in his flesh without wincing, declares a writer in the New York Press. This apparent insensibility to pain is accompanied with a religious, frenzy in battle that renders the soldiers unconscious of bodily harm. They have no fear of death, and their happiness is to kill.

Men spend their lives in anticipations in determining to be vastly happy at some period or other when they have time. But the present time has one advantage over every other. It is our own.—Colton.
