News From Manilla.

Letter from Our Soldier Boy—Dick S. Landon.

ARMY QUARTERS, MANILLA, Aug. 21, '98. Dear Mother and Father:-You are undoubtedly uselessly worrying over me for I am all right. We have taken Manilla, and have no more fighting to do. I will try and tell you my experence during the last month. When we left Frisco we were not given anything to eat for two days and, by that time I was so sick I could not eat. I was in hopes the gol darn boat would sink. From that time until we arrived at Honolulu I did not eat enough to make one good meal. It took us eight days to make the entire trip, When we arrived a Honolulu we marched ashore and the people there gave us the greatest reception we ever had. The people of the United States are not in it with those for pleasing soldiers; they gave us money, fruit of every kind, all the tobacco we could carry; they would not take pay for anything. After leaving there I got all right, and arrived at Cavete safe and healthy; then we camped for a few days for recreation; then we marched within three miles of Manilla, where we encamped at what is known as Camp Dewey; here we were issued our hard tack and coffee. We then marched up within about 40 rods of the Spanish intrenchments; we ditional history of each locality has could often see them at work; they been briefly and interestingly chronheads through them. We took turns about, there was about 8,000 men going out and staying in the mud and water for one day and night, then go back to camp and rest one day. At dark we always commenced to shoot and kept it up for about two hours sometimes some would get hurt and sometimes not; at last the Spaniards got tired of that for they lost about 100 to our 1 and on the 12th of August the Priest blessed them and told them to make an early attack the next day and charge over our breast works, go into our camp, and surprise us, and take us all prisioners. It happened to be our day in the ditch; we sat down in the morning to breakfast and I had just got my mouth full of hard tack, when bang went one single gan; then commenced the most infernal racket 1 ever heard or ever expect to hear; we did not eat any more I had to spit out what I had in my mouth. We crowded up close to the wall, and let them slide, at last we got reckless, and began to move about. The rifle bullets played a lively tune, but we did not care for them, but at last they commenced to throw bomb shells. I do not mind rifle bullets, but darn those big 10 inch bomb shells. I guess there were at least 20 bushels inside our camp and yet only one man was killed; but we could not stand those things and were ordered to charge their works, and the Spaniards took us to Manilla on the jump. We had to jump along quite lively, in order to keep in sight of the villians, for they

An official Directory, showing briefly but strikingly the advantages of the numerous summer and health resorts, the mineral springs and the excellent sanitaria in Michigan, is soon to be distributed by the State Board of Health. In accordance with a resolution of the legislature, the Board has caused to be made a thorough inquiry into the subject of Michigan's resorts, and has collected information that will be of great interest and value to future tourists to this State, including increasing numbers of persons resident in other States who in every hot summer seek healthful and pleasant surroundings further north; and the publication presents the Great-Lake State's immense resort capacity iu very favorable light. Beginning at the southeastern cor ner of the State, making Detroit the initial point, in a series of short dephlet follows the lake shore up to Mackinac Island, treats of the Upper resorts on the Lake Michigan shore, following southward to the southwestern corner of the State. The inland resorts are next taken up, then the mineral springs, and then the sanitaria. The pretty Indian legends and traicled, the information is accurately tersely and impartially stated, and facts presented in such a readable manner as to make the work worthy of great commendation. Among the prominent features of the directory are the numerous picof the beautiful places so plentiful in of the household. this State, making an attractive and very interesting publication. Michigan a Summer-Resort You Are Interested Of Course.

Of course you are interested in the coming lecture course. The course given last winter was such a good one and gave such good satisfaction that we should be able to have even a better course the coming winter. Just think of four such numbers as we had last winter for a total of fifty cents by the purchase of a season ticket. It was not to be wondered at that there was a balance on hand after expenses were paid, especially so as the committee was very careful in the transaction of the business.

Now, it is desirous to secure for the coming season some of the very best talent, and in fact nothing but the best, which requires more outlay than last year. Notwithstanding this the committee would prefer to make the price for season's tickets the same as before-fifty cents-so that in order to give the numbers anticipated it will be necessary to sell at least four hundred season tickets. That means that your scriptive articles, the text of the pam- individual co-operation is needed to secure that end.

We might just hint that the talent in Peninsula, and then deals with the view is Dewitt Miller, Col. Copeland, Col. Bayle, and a first class colored jubilee troupe of singers. CONCISE AND INTERESTING.

An Incorrigible Convict Murderously Attacks a Marquette Prison Guard-Big Decrease in the State Tax Levy-Pottawatomie Indians in Luck.

Attempt to Murder Prison Guards. As the Marquette state prison guards were watching the prisoners at breakfast, Convict Dick Huntley arose from his seat, ran the length of the hall and lunged at Guard E. D. Mosher with a knife. Mosher clinched with Huntley, but the latter succeeded in stabbing the deputy in the abdomen, back and arm. The alarm was immediately sounded, and the entire prison force was soon in the mess room. The warden gave a command to the prisoners to march to their cell corridors. They obeyed sullenly, and when the order was given to get inside the cells, six or eight refused to move. Warden Freeman ordered the nearest guard to shoot. Huntley jumped for his cell door, but the bullet took off his thumb. The rest were cowed.

Huntley is incorrigible and was transferred from Jackson prison. He is serving 30 years, 10 of which is for the attempted murder of Deputy Northrop, of Jackson prison. Mosher, who was then guard at Jackson, shot him. It is believed this latest outbreak was part of a plot which included the murder of Warden Freeman.

Detroit Soldier Boys Welcomed Home. A right royal welcome did Detroit give soldiers of the first battalion of the 32d Michigan Volunteer infantry, who returned to their home after five months in the service of their country. If the soldiers boys had any idea that, while they were encamped in the fever holes of the south, their friends had forgotten them, that idea must have been dispelled, for the streets were filled with cheering thousands. After a parade through the principal streets a formal welcome was given in the auditorium where Brig.-Gen. Henry M. Duffield, who commanded the 33d and 34th Michigan regiments at Santiago, and Mayor Maybury made rousing addresses. The various companies then marched to their own armories where their relatives and friends had tables loaded with good things waiting for them.

Young Banker Fatally Shot by Burglars. Samuel Rothfuss, aged 18, clerk in the Blissfield State bank, was shot down in the street in front of the postoffice at Blissfield by one of a gang, of six engaged in an attempt to crack the postoffice safe, and his condition is critical. Rothfuss was returning home from a call on his best girl when he caught the burglars at their work. Although Rothfuss was armed, one of the fellows, who appeared to be on guard, shot him in the abdomen before he could defend himself. The robber fired three shots and Rothfuss fired two, but without effect. The fusilade aroused the neighborhood, but the villains escaped with a horse and surrey stolen from the barn of Gus Barnholtz, west of town. Rothfuss will probably Disastrous Bank Failure. The failure of the Parsons bank at Burr Oak has completely paralyzed the business of the place. There is due depositors $81,000. The last week the bank did business about $15,000 was deposited. President Parsons has conducted a bank at Burr Oak for 35 years and was said to be one of the wealthiest men in southwest Michigan. His downfall is due to poor investments in property and speculation. Michigan Indians Own Part of Chicago. Chief Simon Pokagon, of the Pottawatomie Indians of Western Michigan has been informed that the secretary of the interior has decided that the Indians have a title to 130 acres of Chicago land, the only point against the reds being that they have not had possession for many years. Pokagon is in hopes of effecting a compromise with present occupants of the property.

Five Drowned While They Slept. Five longshoremen met a sudden death at Waiskai bay near the Soo, by the sinking of the lighter Monitor. The dead are: Joseph Prior, William Corbiere, John Robeare and Emmanuel Robeare, of Sault Ste. Marie, and John Foley, of West Bay City. The lighter was in command of Capt. W. R. Smith, of Marine City, and he and five others of the crew were rescued from the rigging in which they had sought refuge. The drowned men were asleep in their bunks when the vessel suddenly went down. The Monitor had on board a large load of iron ore taken from grounded schooner Carrington aground at Point Iroquois. It is supposed a shifting of the cargo opened a hole in the hull of the Monitor.

Ten Michigan Masons Honored. The election of officers resulted: Grand sire, Alfred S. Pinkerton, of Massachusetts; deputy grand sire, A. C. Cable, of Ohio; grand secretary, J. Frank Grant, of Baltimore; grand treasurer, Richard Muckle, of Philadelphia. The sovereign grand lodge voted unanimously to meet in Detroit in 1899.

To Muster Out 50,000 More Volunteers. Another reduction of the volunteer army is under consideration and it is believed that by Oct. 15 about 50,000 more of the volunteers will be ordered mustered out. The army now consists of about 150,000 men, including regulars and volunteers, and after the armies of occupation leave for Cuba, Porto Rico and the Philippines 65,000 will be left to garrison the forts of the United States. This is far in excess of the number required.

Aguinaldo Wants to be Bought Off. Aguinaldo is reported to have told Gen. Merritt that if the United States would hold the Philippines permanently or declare a protectorate over them, his followers would lay down arms, but otherwise it would not be safe for them to do so. The opinion is general among English-speaking people at Manila that the rebels, especially Aguinaldo, are only holding out in order to be bought.

SERIOUS TROUBLE IN CHINA.

Conflicting Interests of Great Britain and Russia Causing Complications.

Shanghai: A local rumor is current here to the effect that the emperor of China is dead. No details obtainable. Pekin: An imperial edict just issued definitely announces that the emperor of China has resigned his power to the empress (dowager empress), who has ordered the ministers to deliver to her in future their official reports.

It is said the recent reformatory edicts of the emperor probably caused the change. While the emperor was subservient and a mere figurehead, the dowager empress permitted him to remain in peace, but as soon as he attempted to act on his own initiative his practical deposition followed. The effect of the change will be great. Li Hung Chang will be reinstated in power and Russian influence will increase. The new order of things will undoubtedly prejudice British interests throughout China and will prevent the proposed alliance between China and Japan.

Wei-Hai-Wei: The British battleship Centurion, flagship of Vice-Admiral Sir Edward H. Seymour, the commander of the British fleet in Chinese waters, sailed suddenly under sealed orders, accompanied, from Che Foo, by the battleship Victorious, the cruisers Narcissus and Hermione, the torpedo destroyers Fame and Hart, and the dispatch boat Alacrity. to Get Them Free. The demand for the handsome game plaques which have been given away to purchasers of Elastic Starch this season has surpassed all expectations and has kept the manufacturers, J. C. Hubinger Bros. Co., busier than at any time in the history of their business. Their offer to give these handsome plaques away to their customers will remain open only a short time longer, and those who have not already availed themselves of this opportunity should do so at once. Not for years has anything as handsome in this line been seen. The subjects represented by these plaques are American wild ducks, American pheasants, American quall and English snipe. They are hand-some paintings and are especially designed for hanging on dining room walls, though their richness and beauty entitles them to a place in the par-

Only until October 10 do Messrs. J. C. Hubinger Bros. Co. propose to distribute these plaques free to their customers. Every purchaser of three tencent packages of Elastic Starch, flatiron brand, manufactured by J. C. Hubinger Bros. Co., is entitled to receive one of these handsome plaques free from their grocer. Old and new customers alike are entitled to the henefits of this offer. These plaques will not be sent through the mail, the only way to obtain them being from your grocer. Every grocery store in the country has Elastic Starch for sale. It is the oldest and best laundry starch on the market and is the most perfect cold process starch ever invented. It is the only starch made by men who thoroughly understand the laundry business, and the only starch that will not injure the finest fabric. It has been the standard for a quarter of a century, and as an evidence of how good it is twenty-two million packages were sold last year. Ask your dealer to show you the plaques and tell you about Elastic Starch. Accept no substitute. Bear in mind that this offer holds good a short time only and should be taken advantage of without delay.

All of this recalls to mind the few treaties which have at various times been made by the United States, and the excellent results which have always inured to this country from the rare diplomatic tact of its commissioners. As a matter of fact, we have in the government archives at Washington but three treaties of peace with foreign nations. The first was that which terminated the war of independence, the second was that which ended the war of 1812, and the last was the treaty with Mexico in 1848. In the latter the diplomat whose talents were applied to the new problems of that period was Nicholas P. Twist, and it is to him we owe the very valuable treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo. This was the one signed at Guadalupe in Mexico, on February 2, 1848. The war had been caused by the annexation of Texas in 1845, and the conflicting claims about Texas' southwestern boundary, Texas putting it at the Rio Grande, and Mexico to the United States and England, and contending it was at the Nueces, a the United States was to have equal and in the treaty of peace the Rio ground and finishing the transaction. For half a century before the purchase Louisiana had been bought and sold in turn by France and Spain. The French settled it in 1700. In 1762, France, finding that if she tried to hold Louisiana, it might be seized by England, transferred it by secret treaty to Spain. This cession, the treaty said, was "from the pure impulse of his Majesty's heart." Spain was surprised, and the Spanish minister with whom the treaty was made only accepted Louis the expressed condition that it should not be considered until his King ap proved the acceptance. Thus Louisiana and the territory west of the Mississippi actually went begging as a gift 133 years ago. The French people who formed the colony objected

Another famous American treaty made in Paris, and of which the centennial will soon be at hand, was that which gave us the territory west of the Mississippi for something like 60, 000,000 francs or a little over eleven million dollars.

The commissioners who brought about the transaction were Robert R. Livingston and James Monroe, for the United States, and Napoleon Bonaparte and Francis Barbe Wanbois, for the French.

Geese for Profit.

Written for the FANCIER'S PRESS by V. I Josenhans, Owosso, Mich.

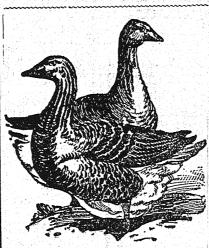

Among the most profitable fowls which a farmer cau keep are geese. say farmers because they generally have some low land or marsh, where the geese can be kept, but any one who has yards enough, so the geese may get plenty of grass at all seasons of the year, may raise geeee at a profit. The Toulouse variety does not need very much water, except for drinking. Where kept on a farm they are excellent foragers and are especially useful to drive on the wheat and oat stubble, as they will be sure to pick up all the grain that would otherwise be wasted, while the geese will do well and the young ones will grow like weeds. Where there is a large number it is only necessary to keep them from the fresh pasture in the spring as they nip the grass closer than any animal and pull up quite a lot. It has been frequently stated that cattle will not feed on pasturage that has been overrun with geese, but the writer has had geese ten or twelve years and has never seen any bad results from geese running on the same pasture with cattle.

geese can be kept for a mere nothing and as they bring a good price in the markets during the later months in the year they will well pay for what little trouble they are when young, as I will show farther on in this paper. While there are several varieties of the goose, it will be sufficent for my purpose to name only those two breeds which are found to be most servicefor profitable purposes, namely, the Toulouse and the Embden, each of which have some good qualities, although I think there are more Toulouse geese kept than any other three vari-

The wing-flights are a very dark shaded self-colored gray. I have seen in the different poultry journals, quite a number of writers state that Toulouse geese are, as a rule, non-setters but wonderfully good layers and also good their other qualities, the goslings are decided improvement. I continued their very strong and grow very fast, and if a good place is handy and plenty of robbed the grave of another victim. No grass they do not need any feed what-ever but of course will do better if fed cents per bottle at T. H. Fritz's Drug ever, but of course will do better if fed well. As an example I will give my experience for last season. I had a Toulouse goose come off the first week in July with five little ones. Being very busy just then I thought it would not pay me to spend much time with them, and they were left to look out for themselves. The mother and goslings started off to water and stayed around the water and in the swamps, sometimes in the wheat stubble, but she succeeded in raising the five goslings. On the third of December we killed three of them, and the three weighed, with feathers off, 19 lbs. each or the three 57 lbs. which I do not think is a bad showing for geese which weeks before killing. If the same geese had had the care and feed they should have had they would have weighed close to 30 lbs. each, live weight, For the geese I sold I got weight.

eight cents per pound so the three brought me $4.56, or $1.50 each. So, dear reader, you can tell something of the profits in goose raising, and let me say right here that the above weights and prices are true.

THE EMBDEN GEESE. This variety is entirely white in plumage, with flesh colored bill and orange colored legs and feet. It is not quite so squatty in appearance as the Toulouse, and somewhat more erect, but in other respects is very similar. In consequence of the color of the plumage it is necessary to give the Embden more water than is required by the Toulouse-that is to keep the plumage clean. Otherwise they do not require any more that the Toulouse. The Embden does not attain the same weight as its rival by several pounds. The writer, while advising anyone to keep only thoroughbred geese, which ever variety it may be, is of the opinion that if one wishes to raise geese entirely for market, he will have better luck by crossing a Toulouse gander on a common goose. By this cross the young are generally as large as the parents but of the color of the Toulouse If the breeder wishes white geese I should advise a cross of an Embden On waste ground or swampy land gander on a Toulouse goose. This will give a large percentage of white

The treaty to be drawn by them, if accepted by their respective governments, will doubtless be known as the treaty of Paris. Several agreements in settlement of international difficulties have borne the same title. One of the most important of the treaties was that of 1763, between Great Britain on the one side, and France, Spain and Portugal on the other. It involved the cession of Havana to Spain by Great Britain, which had taken it in the previous year. Thus, after the lapse of a century and a third, Havana is again at the disposal of a Paris gathering of peacemakers.

There is no word more frequently in the mouths of men than that of conscience. The word conscience properly signifies that knowledge which a man hath within himself of his own thought and actions by comparing them with the law of God, his mind will either approve or condemn him, according as he hath done good or evil: therefore this knowledge or conscience may properly be called both an accuser and a judge. So that whenever our conscience accuseth us, we are certainly guilty; but we are not always innocent when it doth not accuse us: for very often through the hardness of our hearts, or the fondness and favor we bear ourselves, or through ignorance or neglect, we do not suffer our conscence to take any cognizance of several sins we commit.

We can have in old age only as we have acquired in youth and middle life. The condition of the soil, and the season of 1897, have been great finanif they study the conditions carefully, it may, in the future, be of advantage Gen. Shafter casually refers to the to them. In the first place the winter was more open than usual, and the ground did not freeze as much as usual, and the cattle that grazed the corn No fool is greater than he who would stalk fields all winter punched up the fresh soil in great shape, and the complaint against the cloddy condition of the soil is general and louder than usual. All this complaint results because the cattle sink a little deeper than usual into the soil. Not a single year passes but what the cattle will make the same amount of clods, only we do not see them, and we are unaware of their presence. The coming intensive farmer will never allow any stock, except sheep, to run in his stalk fields-in fact, there will be no stalk fields, as the fodder will be all cut up and hauled off to be fed. The farmer intends to go on the stage to support who thinks he is a careful man, much more careful than his neighbor, will not allow his cattle in his stalk field. except when the soil is dry, while his neighbor will not allow them in the field every day, wet or dry, and farmer No. 1 thinks he is much wiser than farmer No. 2, and he has a great pity for his ignorant neighbor who feeds his stalks wet or dry, alike. When the soil is wet the cattle slump down deep into the soil, and a clod is made below the bottom of the hoofprint, just the same as a clod of wood is formed in front of the square point of a cut nail that is being driven into a board. As this clod is punched down

The great remedy for this evil is to not allow cattle to graze the stalk fields, but when they are grazed the surface of the soil should be thoroughly torn up by a cutaway harrow, or repeated disking, before the plow is used, so that the soil that is turned down to make the root zone will be perfectly free from clods. If the careless farmer is satisfied he has a clod reducing machine that will thoroughly reduce any and all surface clods when properly used, he is not so careless a farmer as our neighbors may, in their ignorance, have called him, while, on the other hand, the man who thinks he is careful, who plows clods down deep into the soil and leaves them there for a year, is really a very slovenly farmer, and is yearly cutting off the plant food from the root zone, and it would be better if he never plowed his land at all. To Grow Violets Successfully. One all-important item in the culture of violets is ventilation. They must have fresh air and plenty of it at all times. Good ventilation is easily secured by placing blocks under the ends of the sash. They will require careful watching during the bright sunny days, to prevent the temperature from rising too high. The nearer it can be kept at from fifty-five to sixty degrees during the blooming season the better. Cooler temperature before time for blooming will be necessary. During severe winter weather it will be necessary to cover the sash with manure, strawy litter or old carpets to keep out the cold. These coverings should not remain on during the daytime, unless it seems necessary. As to watering the grower will have to use some judgment. Violets must never be allowed to dry out, and require considerable water. Allow plenty of water, but avoid daily soaking, whether needed or not. It is rather a difficult matter to grow violets in the house, the hot dry heat of the ordinary living-room being disastrous to the health of the plant.-Woman's factory. In 1882 two shipments of frozen meat were mad from New Zealand, comprising about 9,000 carcasses, which reached their destination in good condition. A small quantity of beef and about 130,000 carcasses of mutton were shipped to England from New Zealand. while only one-half that amount was shipped from Australia. In 1882 the entire shipment of meats amounted to 1.707.328. This amount had increased in 1896 to 123,576,544 pounds.

This whole business depends on the cooling or freezing plants that have been invented during the last two decades. By means of these machines the air is reduced to, say, 70 degrees below zero, and at this temperature the meat is quickly frozen. The steamers that carry the meats also have cooling plants that enable them to keep down the temperature of the air in the holds of the vessels to a point where the meat remains permanently frozen. The possibilities of these plants are so great that a cargo of meats could be carried several times around the world without detriment to its quality. It will thus be seen that the frozen meat trade of the countries in the southern hemisphere is bound to develop. The hope is that the ratio of consumption of meats in the European markets will continue to increase as rapidly as the supplies.

Horticulture in Public Schools.

It seems that the time has come when the agricultural press of the country should begin to systemmatically agitate the question of teaching the elements of agriculture and horticulture in the country schools. The time was when the principles of agriculture were not well understood, by even the best farmers, and no textbook was available for use in such schools. But the past few years have completely revolutionized the subject, and now there are several excellent elementary works on that subject well adapted to country school work. It is safe to say that twothirds of the pupils who attend our country schools will stay upon the farm, and such being the case, it is right that the course in such schools the soil just as soon as the soil is once told that you are overfeeding; be so shaped as to be best adapted to their needs. Chairn an of the state central committee—Gen. Arthur F. Marsh, of Allegun.

It was Pingree's convention from beginning to end which gathered in the new Light Guard Armory at Detroit, under the call for a Republican state convention. The district caucuses resulted in Gov. Pingree securing a majority of two in the state central committee. There were no contesting delegations save in Marquette county, where Congressman Shelden and S. M. Stephenson headed rival factions, and even this was settled in committee without going before the convention, Shelden's men winning out.

The convention was called to order by State Committee Chairman D. M. Ferry, who asked Rev. Nehemiah Boynton to offer prayer. After Committee Secretary Alward had read the formal call for the convention Chairman Ferry read a speech, in which he outlined the duties of the convention. His reference to the war governor was greeted with an enthusiastic outburst of cheering. This was repeated when he scored papers and persons who are criticising the war department. In concluding his address, Mr. Ferry sprung a surprise by declaring that he was in no sense a candidate for reelection to the chairmanship of the state central committee and that circumstances made it impossible for him to continue; to serve in that capacity. He did not say whether or not the fact that the Pingreettes had secured control of the committee were a part of the "circumstances."

Grant Fellows, of Hudson, the temporary chairman of the convention, was cordially received when introduced by Mr. Ferry. Mr. Fellows made a speech which was liberally applauded, particularly when he touched up the critics of the war department by saying: "We of Michigan who know the secretary of war have confidence in the honesty and the ability and the integrity of Russell A. Alger. We are glad that he courts investigation and we know that he will come out clean and spotless, and that Michigan will be prouder of him than she has ever been before." Mr. Fellows hade now the war for him the mintroduced by p convention, and he was chosen without opposition. The chairman then introduced the president of the Michigan club. "Gen. Duffield, of Santiago," and, amid wild cheering, the general stepped forward. He did not make a speech, but thanked the convention for the cordial reception accorded him and invited the delegates to visit the Michigan club rooms during their stay in the city.

After a recess for dinner the committees were not ready to report, so speeches were in order to fill the time. Webster Davis, assistant secretary of the interior, was first called upon and made an eloquent presentation of the blessings of Republican rule.

3. We reaffirm the principles of the St. Louis platform and piedge them our support as a sure guarantee of national prosperity and honor. We stand upon the existing gone standard and condemn the proposition to admit silver free and unlimited coinage at the ratio o', 16 to 1 by this country alone, believing that such a proposition would irreparably disturb business already recovering from the shock of Democratic rule.

4. We congratulate the country upon the gradual return of business prosperity since the return of the Republican party to power, and point with satisfaction to the successful operation of the Dingley bill, that is now producing ample revenue for all the ordinary expenditures of the government. We congratulate the country upon the restoration of protection and the return of prosperity as evidenced by the reopening of mills, factories and shops and the re-employment of idle men and women.

5. We offer our deepest honor and devotion to the men of Michigan who offered their services in the cause of freedom; and we hold in loving memory all who have given up their lives on the battle-field or in camp and extend our sympathies to the families of the dead.

6. We congratulate the nation upon the victories recently won on land and sea and offer our tribute of praise to the heroes of Manila and Santiago, whose deeds have broadened our national horizon and won the respect and admiration of the civilized nations of the world.

8. We indorse the administration of Gov. Hazen S. Pingree, and commend his patriotism and energy displayed in his efforts to equip and send to the front Michigan's volunteers; and especially do we commend his unselfish and fatherly devotion to the interests of the sick and dying soldiers of Michigan and the bereaved families of the dead.

9. We commend the present state administration for its earnest efforts in favor of the equal and just taxation of the property of railroads, telegraph, telephone and express companies. We favor the immediate repeal of the tax upon the gross earnings of railroad companies and favor a tax to be levied upon the true value of railroad, telegraph, telephone and express companies property; this value to be determined by a state board. The taxes collected therefrom shall be paid into the primciples of the Atkinson bill and pledge the support of the Republican party thereto.

It was now near supper time and many of the delegates thought enough work had not been done to warrant the convention taking a recess, but the majority yelled down all motions to adjourn, so Charles Flowers, of Detroit, took the platform to place H. S. Pingree in nomination for governor. The delegates did not seem to appreciate Flower's address. They wanted to yell for Ping and go to supper, and began to interrupt the speech with their cries of "Name the man." When Flowers a whoop of approval, and Pingree was a whoop of approval, and Pingree was unanimously nominated for a second term for governor.

did finally name his candidate, there was a whoop of approval, and Pingree was unanimously nominated for a second term for governor.

In concluding his nominating speech Mr. Flowers said: "And as we have no new principles, nor new doctrines, nor new platform, so we have no new leader. The old one is good enough for us. We are proud to be enrolled under the banner of one whose bravery, courage and hones; by have never been doubted, and whose love of justice and truth compel him, in a rugged and honely and honest way, to be in favor of that which is eternally right, and opposed to that which is everlastingly wrong. Mere can be said of no man. We therefore ask you to name as with one voice, Hazen S. Pingree as the next governor of Michigan." And he didn't have to make the request a second time, for scarcely had the magic name passed his lips than the deed was done. A committee was named to bring the governor before the convention. While the convention waited for his excellency it was proposed that nominations for lieutenant-covernor be deferred until Gov. Pingree had spoken. The delegates, however, wanted to rush things, and nominations were called for at once, speeches to be limited to five minutes. George A. Farr, of Grand Haven, placed Gerrit J. Diekema, of Holland, in nomination. He declared that Diekema was a master of parliamentary law, which would be valuable to him as president of the state senate. O. W. Robinson, of Houghton, county, was nominated by George Rentley, of Houghton. Seconds for Diekema came from various districts, but the Pingree sympathy with Robinson was shown when Labor Commissioner Cox, gave Calhoun county's support to Robinson. When the calling of the roll began and Robinson showed strength, his sympathizers began to yell, but the vote most of the time was so close that the delegates remained quiet. When Chairman McLeod announced Wayne's 122 votes for Robinson began to yell, but the vote most of the time was so close that the delegates remained quiet. When Chairman McLeod announced Wayne's 132 votes for Robinson there was a tremendous whoop. The roll-call showed Robinson's nomination by a vote of 577 to 337. This shows that if Wayne's 132 votes had been divided evenly, Diekema would have won.

Pingree Makes a Pingree Speech.

As soon as the counties had anno heir votes for lieutenant-governor, lingree was seen at the rear of the Pingree was seen at the rear of the hall. He was vociferously cheered as he walked down the left aisle to the platform, escorted by Charles Flowers, and other members of the committee that had been appointed to wait upon him. Hats were thrown in the air and nearly every delegate rose in his seat and cheered. Gov. Pingree said:

"I hardly know what to say; but I'll say this, that I'm just the same old baldheaded Pingree. I am just the same kind of Republican I was four years ago. If a man is nominated who will misrepresent the people, he is not a good Republican that will not show him up. I am a Republican because the Republican party was organized not only by but for the common people. I have no speech to make.

'Possibly you may not think I apprepublican because the Republican party was organized not only by but for the common people. I have no speech to make.

"Possibly you may not think I appreciate what you've been doing for me. I have to do some things some people don't like, but I do them for the interests of the whole people. As I've said before, I haven't any new ideas. Sorry. (Laughter.) Somebody has to stand and see that the people have fair play. That is all we want in Michigan—fair play. We have a good many state institutions and of some—most of them—the state can well feel-proud. Our great institutions must be supported. Competition never was so keen. Taxes have been a burden in many counties in Michigan to even support their schools. I am sure only about one-half the property in the state is on the tax rolls, and I am in favor of putting it all on. Our institutions need more money. Taxes: have been a burden, and I say our only way is to get all the property on the tax rolls. I am going to fight right along on that line. If there should be any bad man in our state-senate or house of representatives, I am going to keep right after him.

"Now, regarding the Michigan soldiers, I haven't done a thing for the soldiers, that most of you haven't done, I guess. Perhaps I've put in a few more hours, michigan was the only state that had more than one regiment down in that hell-hole—that's what I call it. When some old widow, whose only son has gone to war and lies down south sick in a hospital, wants to go to see him and nurse him I have said Michigan should pay her expenses. I had a little scrap the other day with a man who said it was not according to Hoyle to do so. This woman had been taking, in washing to support herself while her boy was away fighting; and I worte on her transportation that, in my opinion, she had contributed more to the war than any millionaire in the state of Michigan. Our expenses on account of the war must be heavy because we have had two regiments down in Cuba, and their pay would go on, and told it with eloquence, there w uded the army and navy's achievement the recent war, presented the name of

After the delegates had announced their votes, it was apparent that there would be no choice on the first ballot, when suddenly a landslide set in in favor of Oren. Some smaller delegations started the ball rolling, but when Kent announced that Some smaller delegations started the ball rolling, but when Kent announced that her sixty-three votes must to go to Oren and Wayne three wher 132 the same way, instead of dividing them equally among the three candidates, it was evident that Oren was the chosen man. A delegate moved that the vote be made unanimous and the secretary instructed to cast the ballot for him. The motion was carried quickly. This change in the situation is credited by most delegates to the activity, influence and stirring speech of Chase S. Osborn.

The upper per insula now had two places on the ticket, and when nominations were called for for state treasurer and only Geo. A. Steel, of St. Johns, the present treasurer, and E. D. The vote showed that Mr. French had been renominated by the following vote: French, 742; Skeels, 193; Ely 170; Spencer, 10.

Secretary Frank Lodge, acting in accordance with the instructions of the convention, cast the total ballot of the convention for Jason E. According to the report of the order of business the incmination of the chairman of the state central committee was the last on the list. It was nearly 12 o'clock when Chase S. Osborn, of Sault Ste. Marie, came upon the platform and placed Gen. Arthur F. Marsh, of Allegan, in nomination for chairman of the state central committee. "Gen. March is in touch with the leaders and he'll successfully lead the Republican hosts up the San Juan hill of Democracy," said Mr. Osborn. The nomination was quickly seconded and, without another name being mentioned, was made unanimous by acclamation.

These war times have tried men's souls in many unexpected ways, but like a shaft of sunshine and good cheer out of the cloud of privation and en-durance has been the work that The American Tobacco Co. has done among the U.S. Soldiers and Sailors ever since the war began—for when they discovered that the camps and hospitals were not supplied with tobacco they decided to provide them, free of cost, with enough for every man, and have already given outright to our Soldiers and Sailors over one hundred thousand pounds of "Battle Ax Plug" and "Duke's Mixture" Smoking Tobacco, and have bought and distributed fifty thousand briar wood pipes, at a total cost of between fifty and sixty thousand dollars.

This work has been done quietly and thoroughly, by establishing headquarters in each camp, so that every camp and every hospital of the United States Army has been supplied with enough tobacco for every man and the sailors on thirty United States Ships in Cuban waters have shared with the soldiers

SHORT STORY

"Just send me a few strong doses of quinine, doctor, and order me some milk and some coals, and I sall be able to get along by myself, as I have often done before and will often again. A few days will pull me round all right without troubling any one."

"I'm afraid it may be a more serious matter this time," said the doctor, 'but have your own way for the present. I'll see that you have some milk, and if I have a spare rug or blanket I'll send it a swell to throw over you. Now, good-by, and see that you keep yourself as warm and comfortable as you can under the difficult circumstances you have chosen for yourself."

"I oughtn't to have listened to him," he went on to himself as he walked home through the driving snow, which had been falling thickly for some time; "but there's that old Ulundi rug of mine he can have tonight. It looks as if he would need it badly.'

The ensuing night proved keen and frosty and Falconer's thoughts reverted more than once to the miserable shelter in which he had left his patient and the still more miserable shakedown on which the fever-stricken wretch was lying. At a comparatively early hour the next morning he was again at the door, waiting in some impatience until it was again unchained and unlocked, and revealed the solitary inmate shivering and moaning in agonies of neuralgia. "So this is the result of leaving you to your own devices!" he exclaimed as he strode in; but come there is no time to be lost now. Get on your clothes, and anything you want to take with you, and I will have a fly at the door in five minutes. But sit down first and let morphia to quiet your pain. Is there any water in the house?"

"You can get it at the tap, and here is a cup. But I tell you plainly, I'm not going out of this house. Do anything you can for me without removing me. and I will thank you and repay you when I can. I do thank you a hundred times for the rug you sent me last night. But go to infirmary or hospital will not; understand that clearly.

"Well, well!" said the doctor, wishing to humor him for the moment; "lie down there and get under the rug then. Hold out your arm. There, you'll feel better in a minute. A deal open, and the doctor, raising the lids proud old Italian aristocrats look down better," he muttered to himself as he drove home a full dose; "it will be easier to get him away so. Now lie still and keep yourself warm for half an hour. I have another case to see in the next street, and I will be back here in that time." So saying, he walked quickly to the door, from which he withdrew the key and put it in his pocket. It was several minutes' walk to the nearest cab stand and nearly half an hour had elapsed before he was again at the door with a four-wheeler. To his chagrin he found it fastened by the chain, but with a powerful push of his shoulder he burst it open and entered. His patient was lying on the floor of the front room on his face, having apparently succumbed to the influence of the morphia as he was returning from putting the chain on the door. "What a monomaniac!" exclaimed the doctor as he stooped to lift him. "Hallo! What have we here? those tumors again?" In a moment he had laid the insensible figure on the bed and was hastily undoing his clothing. Under the man's shirt, and next his skin, was fastened a broad canvas belt, furnished with six large leathern pouches widely distending and bulging prominently. "Ha! this explains the mystery! Vacuus cantabit indeed! What a weight! These are malignant tumors with a vengeance! Come, my friend, let go" this to the patient, who was feebly and half unconsciously clutching at the belt as he withdrew it-"I must make a thorough examination of these tumors, since I have discovered them at

Placing the belt on the floor-for there was no table in the room—he unloosed the strap of one of the pouches with fingers that trembled with excitement. A yellow gleam caught his eye, and for a moment his hands shook so violently and uncontrollably that a small avalanche of gold coins rolled out upon the bare boards with a jingling crash, and spread over the floor. His head swam, flashes of fire seemed to dance before his eyes, a thunderous reverberation filled his ears, and before he was able to control his own movements he was down on his knees wildly clutching at the coins with both hands, thrusting them into his pockets as fast as he could gather them up. Recovering himself with a sense of shame and amazement such as he had never felt before, he was conscious of shuddering so violently that his teeth chattered, and the gold dropped again and again from his fingers. "For shame, Richard Falconer!" he heard himself saying aloud, "is this your contempt for filthy lucre, your boasted indifference to gold? Get up at once, put back that money and see to your patient as you ought! What is all this to you?" With a great effort he pulled himself

He estimated, however that the contents of the first bag must be worth at least two hundred pounds; a second and a third were opened with a similar result; but the last three contained not coins, but jewels, mostly unset and many uncut; rubies, emeralds and diamonds, some of them of great size and evidently of enormous value. He was still engaged in counting and examining these last, oblivious of the lapse of time when he was startled by hearing the outer door and footsteps cross the floor towards the door of the inner room. Almost before he was conscious of moving he found himself at the door and in the act of turning the key in the lock. "Good Heavens!" he muttered, "I must be under the spell of the gold-flend myself. This will never do!" Nevertheless he opened the door only wide enough to

"I'm afraid I did forget you," said the doctor. "The fact is, I have seen reason to change my mind about removing the patient. You need not wait any longer. Here is a shilling for the time you have lost.

"Not quite a case for the Union Infirmary," he said to himself after the cab had departed. "I must get a nurse for him and order some proper food. He will be able to pay for them," he added with a laugh. "And now I think me give you a hypodermic dose of of it, I had better take charge of his money myself."

So saying, he returned the jewels to their respective pouches, fastened them securely, and again locking the door, took off his coat and waistcoat and waist. Its weight surprised him, but kneeled down beside his patient and and a marquis for $3,000. American examined him minutely. The man lay amateurs should take note of this fact. in a death-like stupor, with eyes half It is hardly necessary to add that the successively with his thumb, noted with keen professional glance that the pupils were contracted to less than half their natural size. "Good heavens!" was his first thought; "can I have given him an overdose?"

The next ten minutes were spent in efforts to awake and arouse the sleeping man. He shouted in his ears, dipped the corner of his handkerchief in water and slapped his face, raised him to his feet only to find his legs collapse, helplessly under him. Then he put his hand to the hip-pocket in which he carried his hypodermic case. The bulky pouches of the belt delayed him for a moment, but it was enough to change the current of his thoughts. The thought of the wealth now within his grasp rushed over him like an irresistible flood, sweeping everything before it. "Don't be a Quixotic fool, Richard Falconer! You have done all you can for him; let him go now, and take the good that has fallen into your hands. Here is what will pay all your debts, solve all your difficulties, launch you on a new and full career, brighten your wife's lot, and give your boy a proper chance in the world. Think how much more good it will do in your hands than in those of this useless miser. Now you will have some chance of pursuing your scientific studies to advantage and doing some service to humanity in your day. Just leave the case to nature. Go back to your house, make your evening visit in due course. find him dead, and certify the real cause-malarial fever. And if there be an inquest, there are the contracted liver and enlarged spleen ready to your hand as a sufficient explanation, and, what is better, a perfectly true one." He strode up and down the room in a fever of excitement, his lips muttering, his head whirling. How it ended he could never clearly recollect; he had a confused remembrance of rushing from the house, of passing through the streets, even of stopping to speak with some acquaintances. He found afterwards that he had made more than one parish visit, through which habit and the automatic force of perfect training had carried him without any blunder. After a time he seemed to himself to wake as if from a dream. His wife's voice, sounding at first as if coming from a great distance, recalled him to himself. "Richard, Richard, what is the matter? What has happened to you?" He was seated in his own chair in his consulting-room, his wife kneeling on the floor holding his hands. "Oh, you are ill, you ate nothing at breakfast this morning-I saw you, though you thought I didn't notice. Oh, Richard, you musn't go on like that; if you were to break down what would become of us? He is a discharged sold?er, and appears to have been a gentleman once, and he seems to be as proud as Lucifer." (To be Continued.)

TITLES CHEAP FOR GASH.

If You Want to Be a Prince Buy th Honor in Italy.

Throughout Europe Italian titles of nobility do not enjoy a very high reputation; so much so that, as a general rule, a mere Australian baron is more highly considered than an Italian marquis, says the London Mail. One explanation of this fact is that many of these Italian nobles with high-sounding handles to their names are not in a very enviable financial situation. Many astounding instances may be cited of Italian dukes and counts who occupy the strangest positions abroad. Some are coachmen, others hotel porters, one is an interpreter in a railway station, another is butler in the family of an American millionaire. In New York there is a well known Italian count who has run an elevator for several years past. In southern Italy, where poverty is greater than in other portions of the peninsula, the great noble families are compelled to resort to the most extraordinary strategems to save appearances. In Naples poor families have adopted a system of mutual carriages and horses, which is somewhat curious. Five or six families agree to pay the expenses of a luxurious establishment, generally a fourin-hand, with coachman and footman. The carriage door, with the various coats of arms of the different families, is alone changed, according to the family which uses the carriage. On great occasions these families draw lots to see which shall use the carriage and horses. But a strange fact is that now, when so many noble families have become impoverished, the Italian government is about to increase the price of titles. In future the man who wishes to bear a prince's crown must pay $8,000 to the government: to become a duke $6,000 is sufficient for $5,000 one may be a marquis, and for $4,000 a count: $2,400 is sufficient to become a baron, and $1,000 for the simple prefix "de." These figures apply only to the titles conferred by the king. Besides these royal titles are buckled the heavy belt around his own | the dignities conferred by the pope, with which several American merwhen he had adjusted it in its place | chants and business men have been and rearranged his clothes over it, he | honored. These papal titles are somewas astonished to find how easily it what cheaper than those conferred by fitted and how little external evidence the king. At the Vatican a brand there was of its presence. Then he new count may be created for $2,400

Constantinople. The notion of Germany possessing the cradle of human civilization in Assyria, as well as the holy places of Christianity, might easily attract a less enthusiastic mind than that of the emperor, says the Spectator. To make matters easier, Germany has become the patron and almost the protector of the sultan. No influence is so powerful at Constantinople as that of Ger-She can obtain concessions many. which are refused to every other power. Her officers drill the Turkish troops. her manufacturers supply the Turks with cannon, rifles and ammunition, and in a number of ways the sultan has come to be dependent upon his brother autocrat. Originally, no doubt, the sultan leaned upon Germany because Germany seemed the one great power which wanted nothing from Turkey which it would weaken the independence and integrity of Turkey to give. We can hardly suppose that this is still the view entertained at the Porte, but Turkey is now too much beholden to Germany to be able to withdraw. She cannot shake off her formerly disinterested and yet helpful friend, even though it now seems probable that this friend will ultimately follow the example of the others, and will want to 'concentrate, and so strengthen," the power of Turkey by slicing off a few outlying provinces. But in all probability the emperor's dream does not really stop at slicing off provinces. The world has been hesitating long and wearily as to who is to have Constantinople, and there seems no possibility of agreement among the rival claimants. Under such circumstances, what could be more natural than that it should ultimately fall to Germany? That, however, is a piece of German

Eight Men Killed, Eight Fatally Burned and Others Seriously Injured.

Spontaneous combustion of dust caused a fire in the big grain elevator owned by Paddock, Hughes & Co., at Toledo, which completely destroyed the structure, which was seven stories high, and of the 20 persons employed in the building eight were cremated. eight were fatally burned and the others were all seriously injured. Besides the men at work the three children of Supt. Parks were visiting him at the time. One of these may recover from his burns, but Grace, a 17-yearold girl, was burned almost beyond recognition, and Harold, the third child, was either blown to atoms or cremated.

There was about 600,000 tons of grain in storage in the elevator which was an entire loss and will make the total loss about $450,000. The insurance amounts to $258,000

Garcia Visits Santiago. One of the most important events at Santiago since the surrender of the city was the first visit of Gen. Calixto Garcia since he left there in a bad temper on July 17. The insurgent leader was accompanied by his staff and 200 Cuban cavalrymen, besides a number of Cuban officers. They were met just outside the city by Gen. Wood and other American officers. At the plaza Gen. Lawton, American military commander at Santiago, greeted Gen. Garcia, whose entrance to the city had been through streets thronged with cheering thousands. The Americans tendered Gen. Garcia a reception at the palace.

O Miners Entombed by an Explosion. By an explosion of gas in the Umpire mine os Snowden, Gould & Co., near Brownsville, Pa., 70 miners were entombed in the passages. Rescuers at once began work and within an hour eight dead bodies were taken out. After five hours 43 of the entombed miners returned to town, having escaped by traversing two miles of underground passages. All were badly burned. Nineteen miners are still unaccounted for. It is feared that none of them will be taken out alive. There were 140 men in the mine at the time of the explosion. Later.—The 19 men who were missing have been rescued.

Porto Rico No Place for Fortune Hunters. Everything regarding the evacuation of Porto Rico is proceeding satisfactorily. The Spaniards are acting in perfect good faith. Preparations are being made for an elaborate ceremony when the American flag is raised over San Juan. U. S. Consul Hanna is flooded with letters from fortune hunters. He strongly advises them to remain at home until the Americans are in complete control.

Spanish Must Leave Cuba Quickly. The administration has sent a peremptory message of instruction to the Cuban military commission to the ef fect that the United States will not be satisfied with any further delay in the evacuation of Cuba and that Spanish sovereignty must be relinquished. The American commissioners have informed the Spanish commissioners that the evacuation of Cuba cannot be delayed.

MANY FEMALE ILLS RESULT FROM NEGLECT.

Mrs. Pinkham Tells How Ordinary Tasks May Produce Displacements That Threaten Women's Health.

Apparently trifling incidents in women's daily life frequently produce displacements of the womb. A slipon the stairs, lifting during menstruction, standing at a counter, running a sewing machine, or attending to the most ordinary tasks. may result in displacement, and a train of serious evils is started. The first indication of such trouble should be the signal for quick action. Don't let the condition become chronic through neglect or a mistaken idea that you can overcome it by exercise or leaving it alone.

More than a million women have regained health by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. If the slightest trouble appears which you do not understand, write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn. Mass., for her advice, and a few timely words from her will show you the right thing to do. This advice costs you nothing, but it may mean life or happiness or both. Mrs. MARY BENNETT, 314 Annie St., Bay City, Mich., writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"I can hardly find words with which to thank you for the good your remedies have done me. For nearly four years I suffered with weakness of the generative organs, continual backache, headache, sideache, and all the pains that accompany female weakness. A friend told my husband about your Vegetable Compound and he brought me home two bottles. After taking these I felt much better, but thought that I would write to you in regard to my case, and you do not know how thankful I am to you for your advice and for the benefit I have received from the use of your medicine. I write this letter for the good of my suffering sisters. The above letter from Mrs. Bennett is the history of many women who have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

LIQUOR IN TRAINING.

ALCOHOLIC STIMULANTS BAD FOR

Coach Woodruff Describes Its Effects or Football Players-Use of Wine and Ale Disastrous-Abstinence Brought Succes Secret of Samson's Strength

Mr. G. W. Woodruff, coach of the University of Pennsylvania football team, has the following to say regarding the use of alcoholic stimulants at the training table:

I have been maintaining for years that the use of artificial stimulants in training should be discountenanced. At the risk of being considered narrow lic auction at her residence, four miles minded on the subject I will confess north of Gagetown, at one o'clock on that I am opposed on general principles to drinking at any time. I do not mean that I look with abhorrence on a man who drinks. That would be absurd. Charles Youse, living northeast of And yet, by carefully observing my many friends and acquaintances who do drink I have come to the conclusion rack with a bag of grain. He struck that some are harmed by what seems to the side of the rack in such a manner them a moderate indulgence. A great majority receive no beneficial return for the danger of a similar harm, except a certain amount of indifferent pleasure, while it is an open question whether the few who claim actual benefit are really helped at all. I make this confession in order to put aside at once any claim by those who believe in artificial stimulants that I have not taken into account my own tendency to be prejudiced against liquor in training for other reasons than merely its good or bad effect toward athletic

This article, however, is not a temperance lecture, but intended to carefully put forward my reasons for believing that nature will take proper care of her own robust, healthy children, provided that they live, eat and exercise in a natural way. I am strongly moved, as the Friends say, to talk upon this subject because of my belief that the late football season has done much to foster the idea that liquor is often a good thing in training and because I am confident that artificial stimulants are in the long run and in a majority of cases very bad for the athlete and for athletics. I have reached this conclusion not by theoretical reasoning alone, but from much observation and one disastrous experience. In 1893 I was prevailed upon to transfer to another the authority with regard to the training table for the Pennsylvania football team. To my regret and chagrin, I discovered, after three or four weeks of the season had passed, that the trainer had begun to permit the use of both ale and wine as part of the training diet. This had been' going on for such a length of time when I found it out that the damage was already done and the players were already suspicious of each other with regard to the keeping of training rules. There was great lack of spirit in games, and he majority of the ually all the signs of being overtrained, in return for which they received from the trainer, as they confidently expected, an increased allowance of ale and wine. I rightfully concluded that to interfere at this stage of proceedings would do harm rather than good, and therefore permitted the training to remain in the same hands until the end of an exceedingly disastrous season. coach another football team unless at the same time I should have autocratic control of the diet. Many Pennsylvanians thought that I was cruel to the teams of 1894 and 1895, because I would not listen to the general outcry that these teams were overtrained and because I would not allow them liquor in any form in order to overcome this supposed staleness. It was generally conceded that no teams ever came through a season in such continual good condition and showed so much spirit and endurance in the final games as these. This was partly due to good fortune in that very few of the men received even slight injuries, but it surely cannot be denied that these teams, together with those of 1896 and 1897 at Pennsylvania, have proved by four consecutive years of success and good condition that the use of liquor is not necessary for keeping athletes in good condition. Some may think that I am old fashioned in my opposition to the use of liquor and compare me to the man who will read a newspaper by the light of a near the ceiling striking on the side of tallow candle when the incandescent the forge and on the anvil. He was bulb is within reach of his hand, but it incapacitated for labor and still walks is not true that those who believe in leaving men's condition to nature are old fashioned. Liquor was much more generally used many years ago in all the James J. Wallace, one of our most undertakings of life than it is now. When Dewey was first lieutenant of one of the gunboats which Farragut used as a dispatch boat the admiral used often to come aboard and steam up near the levee to reconnoiter. The southerners had a way of rushing a fieldpiece to the top of the high bank, firing point blank at the gunboat and then backing down again. Upon one such occasion Farragut saw Dewey dodge shot.

"Why don't you stand firm, lieuten ant?" said he. "Don't you know you can't jump quick enough?"

A day or so after the admiral dodged a shot. The lieutenant smiled and held his tongue, but the admiral had a guilty conscience. He cleared his throat once or twice, shifted his attitude and finally declared:

"Why, sir, you can't help it, sir. It's human nature, and there's an end to
