Liquid siccative has always to be added to the colors, too much time being otherwise required by the drying; after the latter has been accomplished, the paper is varnished on both sides, for which purpose a well-covering, quickly drying, colorless, and not too thick varnish has to be used, the most important requisite of this article being a sufficient elasticity to insure against cracking or breaking when bent.

Electrical Hair-Dressing Machines, The French are said to be equipping their shaving and hair-cutting saloons with complete sets of electrical appliances. In a Paris shop, recently fitted up, hot water is obtained by passing the stream of a hydrant through a German-silver tube in a soapstone case. The tubing is electrically heated, so that the water is nearly boiling when it passes out of the spigot. The old heating-irons, which often burned the hair, are no longer used for curling. The electric curling irons which have taken their place are safe and sure, as they can be brought to any temperature, which they will retain indefinitely. Scissors are out of date, and the cutting of hair is now done by clipping machines, the speed of which can be regulated to a nicety by the operator. Where it is desired to singe the hair, the clipping machine gives place to the electrically-heated platinum wire, which is passed across the teeth of a metallic comb. The comb takes up a certain quantity of the hair, holding it for an instant; the barber's man presses a tiny button at the end of the comb, and there is an influx of current which heats the wire. As the wire approaches red heat the

SERMON.

(Copyright 1899 by Louis Klopsch.) It seems as if the insectile world were determined to extirpate the human race. It bombards the grain fields and the orchards and the vineyards. 'The Colorado beetle, the Nebraska grasshopper, the New Jersey locust, the universal potato-beetle, seem to carry on the work which was begun ages ago when the insects buzzed out of Noah's Ark as the door was opened. In my text, the hornet flies out on its mission. It is a species of wasp, swift in its motion and violent in its sting. Its touch is torture to man or beast. We have all seen the cattle run bellowing under the cut of its lancet. In boyhood we used to stand cautiously looking at the globular to make a picture. In the design the carbon, instead of nest hung from the tree-branch, and being simply a loop, is made to coil while we were looking at the wonderaround a vertical tube in the center of | ful covering, we were struck with

But, alas for these insectile annoyances of life-these foes too small to shoot-these things without any avoirdupois weight-the gnats and the midges and the flies and the wasps and the hornets! In other words, it is the small stinging annoyances of our life which drive us out and use us up. In the best-conditioned life, for some grand and glorious purpose God has sent the hornet.

I remark, in the first place, that these small stinging annovances may come in the shape of a nervous organization. People who are prostrated under typhoid fevers or with broken bones get plenty of sympathy; but who pities anybody that is nervous? The doctors say, and the family say, and everybody says, "Oh, she's only a little nervous; that's all!" Belleves That a Million Men Can Ef. fectually Deal with the Barrooms-Says That Liquor Rules in Nearly All of Our Large Cities.

Miss Eva M. Shontz of Chicago is coming to the front as an energetic and persistent advocate of the prohibition cause. She has recently set out to secure the pledge of 1,000,000 votes to the political party which will explicitly declare in favor of the abolition of barrooms. She believes that this is the only effective way to prevent the spread of drunkenness, and she has no doubt of her eventual success in the work which she has undertaken. Miss Shontz is president of the Young People's Christian Temperance union of Chicago. On account of her wide-awake enthusiasm in behalf of and his enemies. So far Miss Shontz has secured pledges from A Horse Palace. It is evident that the emperor of Germany does not expect the "horseless age" to arrive very soon. He has under construction, in the outskirts of Berlin, what is to be, probably, the most splendid stable in the world. Outwardly it looks like a palace, and inwardly it has many of the appointments and characteristics of one. Certainly horses were never more palaof a trolley car to get off, after having tially lodged than they will be here The stable is being erected by the imperial architect, Herr Ihne. Only those can sing in the dark who have a light in the heart.

The best way of avenging thyself is per cent. not to become like the wrong-doer. We should treat our friends as we do ourselves: for a friend is another kind is precluded. As indicating label Defeat is one of the hardest things to bear, even in trifles; but we have to be defeated in order to succeed.

There are few things impossible in themselves, and the application necessary to make them succeed is more often wanting than the means.

Severity carried to the highest pitch breaks the mind; and then, in the place of a disorderly young fellow, you have a low-spirited, moped creature.

An ounce of essence is worth a gallon of fluid. A wise saw may be more valuable than a whole book and a plain truth is better than an argument.

If we desire to reduce mental activity, it stands to reason that we must attend to nothing. We must let the mind drift. We must not attempt to exercise any control whatever, but let the thoughts stray as they will and follow any line of association that is a line of least resistance.

The vulgar do not often recognize their own earmarks. These are as many as the manifestations of temperlis, which entirely eliminates the eleament; indications of vulgarity are not confined to speech and manners. One may be vulgar in one's house and furniture, one's dress, and in many other matters that are apt to be overlooked when a self-scrutiny is undertaken.

Members of the engineering corps of the United States army have cleared the Pasig river of a number of stoneladen canoes which were sunk to close the channel. The total value of the property recovered by the engineers is estimated at $750,000. Maps and topographical sketches of the country around Manila were made for the use of the army commanders, and the surveys were frequently made under fire. A waterfall on the Platte river, west of Fremont, Neb., will probably be thirty-five miles distant. The waterfall is 130 feet high and is sufficient to operate a 25,000 horse power electric plant. It is proposed to make a canal

A STRANGE AFFAIR. THAT TROUT AFFAIR.

GIRL FORSOOK OLD LOVER FOR NEW.

An Elopement Followed by a Chain of jected One Came to the Front as Best Man.

There is a Detroiter who was principal in one of the queerest elopements on record, declares the Free Press of that city. He was at a resort in the upper-lake regions. Among the guests was a beautiful girl from the south, educated in a convent and unsophistocated as to the ways of the world. The Detroiter found her one day vainly trying to cast a fly and taught her the trick. It took time; he did not believe in crowding her education, and they became very friendly. A natural result followed, and when he presented his case to her father, the old gentleman, metaphorically speaking, tore up the sod. His daughter was engaged. this new lover knew it, and if he didn't drop the matter just where it was he would either be thrown into the lake or pumped full of lead. The maiden thought a good deal of the man she had left behind, but the new infatuation was stronger, so an elopement was planned. When they went stealthily to the boathouse at night every craft was securely locked up except an Indian canoe. He was not an artist in propelling such a boat, but they "sailed" away. They kept close to the shore, but he grew overconfident, leaned suddenly toward her to renew some of his vows, and over they went. He managed to keep her afloat and shouted so lustily that the guide at a near-by camp rowed to the rescue. She was soon stowed away between blankets, and he made the acquaintance of a lot of southerners who had just arrived for hunting and fishing. He told his story, all were sympathetic and a messenger was hurried off into the country for a parson, as it was thought best to put an insuperable barrier in the way of the wrathy father. When the bride stepped forth for the ceremony one of the southerners, pale and excited, rushed to her. She hesitated but a moment before falling into his arms. The parson did the work, but her first love was the bridegroom. The Detroiter admits that he made up his mind in a flash that he would rather be a bachelor than food for fishes. HE WASN'T MISSED.

And It Hurt His Feelings When He

Realized It. This man of Detroit is far from being an unimportant citizen, declares the Free Press of that city. He does a large volume of business in a year and is thrown in contact with a good many people. Last fall he left his affairs in the hands of trusted employes, went abroad and has just returned. "I feel smaller than a postage stamp that's been used," he declared angrily, yesterday. "I'm of no importance at all in this community. If I'd disappear I don't believe more than half a dozen people would miss me, unless their attention was called to the fact. The first day after my return I walked downtown so as to meet old friends and have a chat with them. A fellow feels rather important, you know, after living for months in Europe. 'Good morning,' said the first man I met below the park. 'Nice day,' and he hustled along without noticing that I stopped and extended my hand. I was mad enough to fight. 'Hello,' shouted the next one, 'haven't seen you for a day or two. Been under the weather?' and he was gone before I could knock him 'What do you think about this down. gan the third one, in just the same tone look and left him muttering as I hurried along. A dozen men bowed and smiled as they had always done, and have them for supper." not one of them suspected that I had murder in my heart. The cap-sheaf came when my next door business neighbor hurried into the office and did nothing but ask to use my telephone because his was out of order. He told me that he had been out of town for a couple of days and asked if there was any news. I'm glad I carry no weapons."

Crimsby said that he was perfectly delighted when Johnson told him over the telephone that if he would send down his office boy he would present to him a box of brook trout. John-Remarkable Circumstances-The Re- son had just returned the day before

"What do you mean?" demanded Grimsby.

The office boy said nothing, but sniffed rather suggestively in ne direction of the trout.

"What nonsense!" exclaimed Grimsby, angrily. "They were caught only porch. yesterday." And he thought what a delightful surprise they would be for his wife. They would have some for supper.

Grimsby lives in New Jersey, and is one of that sad-looking band of commuters that press to the front of the fish balls."" ferryboat and stand each night, wan and weary, under the rays of the setting sun. But tonight Grimsby noticed that the crowd around him was thin. In fact, it formed a fairly respectable circle, and some people made ill-natured remarks about "giving it air." Grimsby was indignant. It was perfectly absurd to suppose that trout caught only yesterday could begin to spoil so soon. Besides, Johnson had told him that the fish were packed in grass, as they would carry much better that way than in ice.

All the same, it was an unpleasant coincidence, soon after he sat down. in the train and placed the box under his seat, that two or three old men near him should rise, make testy remarks of "how close it was," and throw the car windows up with a bang. When Grimsby stepped off the train

National Character. The fluctuations and history of the taste for flower gardening in England are more closely connected with the changes in national character than THOUGHTmost of the decorative and creative arts, says the Spectator. There is clear LESS evidence that when in the days of Elizabeth and James I. every one was building fine houses and "all England Women was a stone-cutter's yard" flowers were sought for beauty's sake-flowers which, as Gerarde quaintly says of the sweet-william, "though not good for the belly, were meet to deck the breast of beauty." The building of the more purely renaissance houses in the days of Charles I. and Charles II. gave us much that was best in the Italian gardens-terraces and balustrades of perfect proportions, good statues, exquisite gates, fine old lead work. This still remains, and if some complain of them as of the architecture of St. Peter's, that it is "too rational, far too earthly." others will never cease to eniov the intellectual pleasure of seeing these fine forms, the terraces, the tripods and the sundials, and the winged horses and tritons by the lakes which we borrowed from Italian brains. But the Italian garden is not a flower garden. The only thing which we borrowed from them on and under which flowers grow is the pergola. Their gardens meant shade, level walks in a country which was all hills, water and marble work, adorned with statues. Even the Spanish gardens of the Alcazar, though full of orange and citron, have few flowers. We now add to this the brilliant carpet bedding in the formal parts, and the modern "wilderness" with the intermediate herbaceous garden. The latter has not in the least killed the admiration for the outdoor architectural arts. At the present moment wrought iron gates, railings, statues of bronze, vases of lead and marble, are being imported from the ancient chateaus of France and the villas of Italy into England to be sold to owners of gardens, old and new.

"It has occurred to me," said Grimsby, when he came down to the table somewhat mollified by seeing some of his precious trout ready for him, "that it would be a nice thing to give Robinson and his new wife a few of the trout. They get so little in the way of the season's delicacies." And Grimsby sat | the pipes 10,560 carats, valued at £8,down bravely before his fish. "My dear," he said finally to his wife, "do you know these trout are perfectly splendid; but I never cared for the flavor of brook trout. It is a taste that everyone says has to be cultivated. Robinson, though, I am sure, appreciates trout. How would it do to send him over the whole boxful? I believe in being neighborly, and they would be a real treat for Robinson and his wife."

Right after supper Mrs. Grimsby sent Katie over to the Robinsons with the box of trout, and a cordial message from Mr. Grimsby to Robinson.

"My gosh!" exclaimed Robinson, the moment that the Grimsby cook was beyond hearing, "what trick is Grimsby trying to play on me now! When he starts to send me diseased animals, I begin to object."

Now, Robinson's wife had a great admiration for Grimsby, and protested vehemently that the gift was a most generous and gracious one. "Of course, the trout are fresh, and a great rarity," she declared, and began carefully to remove the cover of the box.

The largest stone found in 1898 was thirty-eight and one-half carats. Although the diamond industry is not developing with abnormal rapidity, there is every cause for satisfaction, the first stone having been discovered at Reitfontein only in August, 1897. The average value of stones found in this district is 61 shillings ($3.98) per carat, the average value of Kimberly diamonds 26 shillings ($6.33) per carat, and those found at Jagersfontein, in the Orange Free State, 34 shillings ($8.27) per carat. The diamonds in the Pretoria district are found in pipes, as on Schuller's mine and on Montrose. If you contemplate a hotbed next spring, it is well to make some provis-ion ahead, as early as this fall. One provision is to collect soil of good loamy quality-decayed turf well en-riched is the best. It should be covered to prevent deep freeziug, although if the outer part be frozen it will be a benefit. Another is, see that you have a site that is well drained and well pro-tected. CONCISE AND INTERESTING.

A Kalamazoo Woman has Two Husbands Much to Her Dissatisfaction - Supposed She was Legally Divorced From Husband No. 1.

A Sad Family Mixup. Several years ago, Mrs. Anna T. Wrisley, of Kalamazoo, sued for divorce from her husband, Frank Wrisley, in the Kalamazoo county court. It was proven that he was negligent and cruel, and Judge Buck complied. In this instance, it was the duty of the solicitor, so Judge Buck says, for the complainant, to notify the defendant but he never received such notification, although he was living in Charlevoix at the time. Mrs. Wrisley, thinking herself free, married Wm. T. Doyle and had two children by him. Mr. Wrisley recently appeared on the scene and demanded possession of Gladys, a daughter. A squabble ensued and the matter was again brought before the circuit court of Kalamazoo county. After hearing Mr. Wrisley's tale, the court set aside the former decree, leaving Mrs. Doyle, the legal wife of her first husband, and sadly entangling their domestic ties. Judge Buck says that he did the best he could under the circumstances and states that fault lies with the solicitor of the complainant in not complying with the law in serving a subpoena upon Wrisley in the proper manner.

2.733 Deaths in September.

There were 2,733 deaths reported to the secretary of state for September. This number is 12 less than the number reported for September, 1898. The death rate for the month was 14.0 per 1,000 population. There were 683 deaths of infants under 1 year of age, 248 of children aged 1 to 4 years, and 660 persons aged 65 and over. Important causes of death were as follows: Pulmonary consumption, 135; other forms of tuberculosis. 55 typhoid fever, 72; diphtheria and croup. 32; scarlet fever, 8; measles, 3: whoop ing cough, 19; pneumonia, 87; diarrheal diseases of children, 522; cerebro-spinal meningitis, 47, cancer, 116; accidents and violence, 188. An increase in the number of deaths is shown for typhoid fever and diphtheria. The number of deaths from diarrheal diseases of children was only slightly in excess of the number reported for August, and a very marked decrease from this cause may be expected in next month's report.

Weekly Crop Bulletin. In the Michigan crop report for Oc tober, issued by Secretary of State Stearns on the 9th, the statement is made that the September weather was peculiar in many respects. Frequent showers early in the month aided materially in preparing the ground for seeding to wheat. They also promised to help potatoes, but the killing frosts of the middle of the month put a stop to all growth. A notable feature of the month was a snow storm. The most important feature of the report is the final estimate of this year's wheat crop in Michigan. The total number of acres of wheat on the ground last April, as returned by the supervisors, was 1,914,941. Of this, 1,443,344 acres were in the southern counties, 342,474 in the central, and 129,123 in the northern. According to reports received from crop correspondents, 77 per cent of these acres were harvested. The per cent in the southern counties was 79, in the central 66, and in the northern 86. This would indicate that the total number of acres harvested was 1,408,131 for the entire state. The final estimated yield per acre for the number of acres harvested is eight bushels in the southern counties, six in the central, nine in the northern and eight for the state. This would make the total estimated yield for the state, 12,000,000 bushels. The acreage of wheat sown this fall, as compared with an average is 90 per cent in the southern counties. 81 in the central, 88 in the northern and 88 in the state. The average date of sowing wheat was Sept. 20. The estimated yield of oats per acre is 33 bushels; corn, 31; potatoes, 68, and beans 12. The total acreage of buckwheat is 24,591, and the average yield per acre is 11 bushels for the state. The total number of bushels of wheat reported marketed by farmers in September at the flouring mills is 417,882, and at the elevators, 412,489, a total of 820.371. The total number of bushels reported marketed in the two months ending Oct. 1, was 2.334,247, or 1.533,-034 more bushels than for the same two months of last year. The total amount of wheat shipped by railroads from the various stations for the month was 471.671 bushels.

Tragedy at Delray.

Ferdinand Rehan, aged 20, a son of Ernest Rehan, the Delray tailor, was accompanying Mrs. Patrick Drouillard to the home of her parents about midnight on the 12th, when as they neared the house, he suddenly bid her goodnight. A shot immediately followed the words and young Rehan fell to the ground with a bullet in his right temple. In a little over half an hour he was dead. When he was picked up a revolver with one chamber empty was found by his side. The young woman can give no account of the matter other than to say that they were joking and laughing all the way from where they had been calling.

Armored Train Captured.

The London war office has received the following dispatch from the general commanding the Cape forces: "An armored train from Mefeking, escorting two seven-pounder guns sent from Cape Town to Mefeking, was attacked on the 12th at Kraaipan. Apparently a rail had been removed. The train left the track and the Boers fired into it with artillery for a half hour and captured it. Telegraphic communication with Mefeking is interrupted at Kraaipan. The women and children have been sent to Cape Town. The two guns referred to belonged to the Colony, and are light and of old pattern. We have no details as to casualties. the Boers."

WAR NOTES,

Gen. Schwan's expedition having accomplished its object, the troops have all returned to their former positions, abandoning the towns taken. The movement of United States troops was a fine display of American generalship and energy, while the Filipinos adopted what Gen. Alejandrino terms "our peculiar method of warfare." The whole country is an immense swamp and the Filipinos never expected that the Americans could or would attempt to invade it during the wet season. Moreover, the line of march furnished a succession of surprises, the advancing troops being generally attacked from unexpected points. In Cavite province, the scene of the hottest fights and their greatest successes over the Spaniards, the Filipinos might have been expected to make a resolute stand, if anywhere, but, after their whippings at Cavite, Viejo and Noleleta, their tactics consisted chiefly in a continuous exhibition of their agility and their transformation from warriors to amigos.

Gen. Schwan's column, in appraching the town of San Francisco de Malabon on the 10th, marched through a country so muddy that the mules all collapsed. He occupied the town without fighting. Later, reconnoitering southward, Gen. Schwan came on trenches where hidden insurgents poured several volleys on himself and staff. The rebels resisted stubbornly. The reconnoiterers drove the insurgents a distance of two miles, fighting all the way. They found a field piece and several wounded and sick Filipinos flying red flags and captured 25 insurgents, including three officers. Many dead Filipinos were strew along the fields. The total American loss was one officer and seven men wounded. A general advance along the American lines in Luzon has begun and the war department expects reports of some heavy fighting within the next few days. Both Lawton and Mac-Arthur are moving with their forces to get control of the railroad and important towns as far north as possible. Eventually it is intended to send an expedition by water to Lingayen, near the north terminus of the railway, to flank the enemy. This expedition, however, will not start until additional troops arrive. This advance is to be made permanent. There are to be no more towns taken and then abandoned. This movement probably accounts for recent activity of insurgents south of Manila. Gen. Otis has informed the war de partment of his adoption of a compre hensive scheme of local government for all cities and towns in Luzon occupied by American forces. He has issued instructions directing that the system be put in force and placing senior officers of the occupying troops in charge of the formation of governments. In each town there will be a municipal council, composed of a president and as many representatives of headmen as there may be wards in the town, which shall be charged with the main-

Difficult to Say.

The lecturer was expatiating on the late discoveries in chemical science. "It seems inconceivable, but yet snow has ever been found to possess a considerable degree of heat." An Irishman present, evidently anxious that pair of horses bring up the rear of the long line of carriages, became frightened at a locomotive which was standing on the tracks near the street and puffing. The driver lost control of the animals and they started on a mad race through the procession. Other horses became stampeded and began running in every direction. A dozen carriages were overturned and wrecked and their occupants thrown to the ground. All were more or less injured. When the panic finally sub sided there were only three carriages left in the procession. A dozen pairs of horses ran away, and the street presented a sight, the wreckage being distributed over several blocks.

Pandemonium at Farmington.

A jubilant crowd at Farmington on the evening of the 10th took it into their heads to have a Hallowe'en celebration. They started in by taking the sign of a traveling dentist and painting a rude caricature of the doctor on one side, printing the following beneath it: "I am strictly a ladies, man and the only dentist who extracts teeth with great pain." They then placed the sign over the store of one of the leading merchants, and it remained there all the following day, causing much amusement for the people and mortification for the doctor An undertaker's sign was placed over a millinery store, a buggy on top of a carpenter's shop and "hub" raised generally.

Shot Herself With Her Lover's Pistol. Miss Ellen Myers shot and killed herself at her father's home just west of Shepherd on the 9th. Anderson Lawrence, who has been paving attentions to Miss Myers for some time was a visitor at the house, and when supper was announced, Miss Myers asked Lawrence for his revolver, telling him she wished to try her luck shooting cats. A few minutes later a shot was heard, and as the girl did not return to the house, her father stepped outside to see what had happened, and found that the girl was dead. She had shot herself through the brain. The cause of her act is not known.

Charles Olson, who has a 50-acre farm at Cadillac, advertised for a wife. Lottie Summers, of Boyne City, answered the advertisement, and the two began corresponding in February. Three weeks ago they met and Miss Summers agreed to marry Olson on condition that he give her $500 with which to start in the milinery business. He agreed, and the two went to Chicago and stopped at separate hotels. Olsen says he gave her $500, representing all his savings, and the two agreed that they should be married on the 11th, but Miss Summers disappeared the night before.

Must Report Communicable Diseases. Attorney-General Oren says: "The opinion given by me regarding Christian Scientists had no reference to the Chandler bill. It referred to section 4453, compiled laws of 1897, and was to the effect that Christian Science healers come under the terms of that section as persons acting as physicians who are required to report the extent of dangerous and communicable diseases under certain penalties. I have given no opinion as to the status of Christian Scientist under the new medical act."

Lee Rifles for State Troops

Quartermaster-General White has received a consignment of the new Lee rifles for the use of the state troops. The new gun is a very handsome affair, and looks something like the Blake rifle which the authorities were not able to get. It is lighter than the Krag-Jorgensen or Mauser, and is of the 9th. The Finlanders are supnicely trimmed in blue steel with walnut stock extending nearly the entire length of the barrel.

We moved away from the window of the staircase and went downstairs together.

"You don't mind my laughing, dear?" Meg questioned, still with gentleness. "I didn't mean it. In my heart I like John very much-all except-well, all except the speckled beard. If I laugh at him sometimes, you won't mind, will you? It's my way-I laugh at everything-when one doesn't laugh one's spirits get so low! Shall I tell you what mamma is doing in the drawing-room? She is secretly whispering the good news to every one. Every one has come, and every one is duly impressed by your good fortune, Kitty. Now for the congratulations! Oh, poor dear, I pity you for the next few hours!"

But the next few hours, bad as they were, were over at length. The piano was silent again; the gas in the drawing-room was turned frugally low behind the last of the departing guests. Only John Mortimer remained behind. He drew me close to him where he stood, and looked at me with a questioning, very gentle glance.

"You do not regret what you promised me this evening?" he queried. "Do you regret what you asked me?" I said. Neither question was answered. But we were looking eagerly at one another, and presently our eyes smiled, and that seemed all the answer we required.

"Good night, Kitty," said John. "Good night," I answered; and he bent and kissed me.

John was gone, Aunt Jane was looking round at the disorder of the drawing-room, smoothing away the creases in an antimacassar that had suffered in the revelry. "So we're going to lose you, Kitty,"

and gone, Kitty. I won't have it. I By Blowing Up the Pumping Works Kruger Could Cut Off the Supply

"Blow up the gold mines? Why, it's | even richness throughout, no matter the simplest thing in the world." The engineer officer-one of the bestknown men in that corps of the army, who has made explosives a special study-scratched a match and lighted his pipe, writes a Washington correspondent under date of Oct. 1.

"It's as easy as that," he said, throwing away the match. "Of course, you know, it isn't necessary for the Boers, if they carry out their threat, to interfere with the excavations. All they have to do is to attack the machinery, and it will only be requisite for them to blow up the pumping works. A few hundred pounds of dynamite will do the business." "The pumping works, then, are the vulnerable point?" queried your correspondent

"Decidedly so. Once the pumping machinery is ruined, the mines are destroyed. The shafts will fill up with water, and to empty them after that has happened is practically out of the question. It would cost less to dig new shafts.

"The wonderful gold-bearing deposits of the Rand in the Transvaal form a single reef about thirty miles in length-a narrow strip only a few feet wide, but running down into the earth slantwise, for miles, apparently. On the very edge of this reef is situated the city of Johannesburg, and along it added, after a moment, resignedly, yet are scattered more than sixty mines, owned by different companies, representing British capital chiefly. The peril to these 'outlander' investments which run up into hundreds of millions of dollars, is very great just now in view of the menace offered by the Boers "Necessarily, gigantic sums of money have been sunk in the digging of these great holes. Think for yourself what a loss would be occasioned if they should all be permitted to fill up with water-a disaster which, as I have said, would be to all intents and purposes irremediable. The gold deposits would remain intact, of course, but, after the war is finished, all the work of getting at them would have to be done over again. It should be remem bered, incidentally, that British investments in the mines of the Rand do not represent the aggregated millions of capitalists merely, but the small savings of tens of thousands of Eng lish people, who have put their little all into shares of stock, hitherto regarded as admirable security. Widespread ruin, involving the widow and the orphan, as well as the rich shareholders, would follow the destruction

"Naturally, the choicest locations for the mines are directly upon the outBridges, necessarily, are the most vulnerable points in a line of railway communication, and it is a simple matter to render them impassable by the use of a few pounds of a high explosive. It is something of an art to know just where to put the dynamite, and army engineers are especially instructed in from what part of the reef it is taken. it. "The question of destroying a bridge and every ton may be counted on to give up $14 worth of gold. About 10,is often a delicate one in military overerations. You remember, perhaps, the 000.000 tons were crushed in 1898.

President McKinley Talks on Territorial Fxpansion.

UNITED STATES' GREAT TRUST

In His Speech to the Returning Volum teers the Chief Executive Points Out That Opponents of the Louisiana Purchase Shouted "Imperialism."

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 15.-President McKinley and party arrived In this city at 11 o'clock this morning. An immense crowd assembled at the depot to greet the chief executive. As he emerged from the train tremendous cheering began and was taken up by the waiting crowds and carried down the line for blocks. Carriages in waiting conveyed the president and cabinet to the home of Thomas Lowry. Here a light luncheon was served. Meanwhile the train bearing home the Thirteenth Minnesota volunteers from the Philippines arrived. The regiment formed in line at the head of Nicollet avenue. Carriages bearing President McKinley and his cabinet drew up and took their positions at the head of the column. The procession moved shortly after 1 o'clock, passing down Nicollet avenue to the center of the city. At Tenth street the president entered the reviewing stand and the Philippine veterans passed before him at "report arms." As the rear guard passed the reviewing stand the president entered his carriage and drove by a shorter route to the Exposition building. Here the principal events of the day took place. Within the building where the republican convention of 1892 nominated Benjamin Harrison for president of the United States, under the chairmanship of William McKinley, was spread a feast for the returned Minnesota volunteers.

At the conclusion of the banquet President McKinley was introduced by President Cyrus Northrup of the University of Minnesota, and was greeted with prolonged applause.

The president's speech was devoted to the questions of territorial expansion and "imperialism." He said:

"The increase of our territory has added vastly to our strength and prosperity without changing our republican character. It has given wider scope to democratic principles and enlarged the area for republican institutes.

"I sometimes think we do not real. ize what we have and the mighty trust we have committed to our keeping. The study of geography and history have now more than a passing interest to the American people. It is worth reading that when the federal Union was formed we held 909.765 square miles of territory, and in less than one hundred years we have grown to 3,845,515 square miles. The first acisition, in 1803, known as th purchase,' embraced 883,072 iana square miles, exclusive of the area west of the Rocky mountains. Its vastness and value will be best understood when I say that it comprises the entire states of Arkansas, Missouri, Nebraska, North and South Dakota and parts of the states of Minnesota, Kansas, Colorado, Montana, Wyoming, Louisiana, all of Indian Territory and part of Oklahoma Territory. "It would seem almost incredible to the present generation that this rich addition to the federal domain should have been opposed; and yet it was resisted in every form and by every kind of assault. The ceded territory was characterized as 'malarial swamp," its prairies destitute of trees or vegetation. It was commonly charged that we had been cheated by giving $15,000,-000 for a territory so worthless and pestilential that it could never be inhabited or put to use; and it was also gravely asserted that the purchase would lead to complications and wars with European powers. "In the debate in the senate over the treaty, imperialism had a chief place in the catalogue of disasters which would follow its ratification, and it was alleged that this was the first and sure step to the creation of an empire and the subversion of the constitution. The phrase which is now employed by some critics, 'planetary policy,' so far as I have been able to discover, first appeared here. The opponents, however, were in the minority, and the star of the republic did not set, and the mighty west was brought under the flag of justice, freedom and opportu-"In 1819 we added 69,749 square miles, which now comprise Florida and parts of Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana. In 1845 we received the cession of Texas. It contained 376,931 square miles, and embraced the state of Texas and parts of Oklahoma, Kansas, Colorado, Wyoming and New Mexico. The next cession was under the treaty of 1848, containing 522,568 square miles, embracing the states of California, Nevada, Utah and parts of Colorado and Wyoming and of the territories of Arizona and New Mexico. In 1853 we acquired by the Gadsen purchase 45,533 square miles, which embrace parts of Louisiana and New Mexico.'

"John's a good fellow, Kitty," said Uncle Richard, 'in a hasty but kindly way. "I hope you'll be happy, dear." "Thank you," I said hurriedly, and disappeared.

Meg had left a novel in the drawingroom, and sweetly besought me to return and fetch it. I descended, therefore, after a minute, to the drawingroom again.

Aunt Jane was speaking. She did not see me; she was too busy arranging the displaced furniture.

"Waiting is nonsense, Richard, and especially in this case. There shall be no waiting in the matter. If we wait until the winter, Madame Arnaud will be in London. If we wait till then we may wait forever."

I had stood for a minute in the doorway; now I quickly retraced my steps, Meg's novel unfound, my errand, indeed, forgotten. Aunt Jane's words were enigmatical; but they left me with a heartache.

CHAPTER VIII.

Aunt Jane had her way. When, indeed, was Aunt Jane ever known to renounce a plan she had set her heart on? She had determined that John and I should be married without delay, and the weightiest reasons weighed as nothing against her resolute desire. The plan for summer holidays in Cornwall was forthwith abandoned; John's visit to Brittany was given upsome one else undertook the business

Adolph Pohlmann, an electrician on the North German Lloyd steamer Willehad, was married to a young woman of this city. The second morning after his marriage Pohlmann rose early, bade his bride farewell and joined his steamer, which sailed that day for Bremen. The wife, after he started, returned to bed. That was the last seen of her alive. She was found dead, suffocated by gas. It is supposed that in turning off the gas after her husband's departure the sleeve of her night dress touched several bits of bric-a-brac hanging on the gas fixtures, moving them over the stopcock and opening it again. Opened with a Parade.

Alexandria, Va., Oct. 13 .- The elaborate preparations for the celebration of Alexandria's sesqui-centennial were completed last evening, and at sunrise this morning the festivities began with the booming of cannon, the ringing of bells and the screeching of factory whistles. The feature of the day was a great military and industrial parade. which included United States troops. the state militia, secret orders and numerous trade organizations

On Friday evening last, over one hundred members and friends of the M. E. Church assembled at the church to give a hearty welcome to Rev. and Mrs. C. H. Morgan. The occasion was a very pleasing one indeed. Prof. Weaver was to have given the address of welcome, but was unexpectedly summoned to Caro that evening, and A. A. P. McDowell acted as proxy. Rev. Morgan made a happy response and it was clearly evident that between pastor and people the greatest harmony existed. A few recitations and musical selections were given, after which light refreshments were served in the basement.

The Bible circle had its first meeting at the M. E. church on Monday evening, with an attendance of about two un dred, making it necessary to go into the audience room. The several numbers on the program and especially Dick S. Landon's talk on Japan were much enjoyed, and the plan of Bible study to be taken up was fully explained. Miss Lillie Schenck was elected secretary and I. A. Fritz treasurer, and as program committee for the next meeting, Monday evening, Oct. 30, Miss Myrtis Howard, Miss Della Pugsley and Miss Nellie Palmer. About twenty new members were added to the circle.

On Tuesday evening, a good sized audiecce listened to a temperance address at the M. E. Church, by Rev. John Russell, widely known as "father of the Prohibitionists." He is now seventy-eight years of age and has been associated with the temperance reform movements the greater part of his life, thus being placed in a position to give historical facts concerning the progress of the movement which are not generally known. He did so in an exceedingly logical manner, showing conclusively that neither of the old parties can grapple with the question, basing his argument on a recognized political principal of all parties. His address could not do otherwise than please all earnest temperance workers and strike conviction to the hearts of the wavering. It is not his style to hurl scathing anathemas, at liquid dealers, but rather to present solid facts and by so doing convince voters that it is their duty to "vote it out." More such education would hasten the millenium. Mr. Russell spoke at Deford last evening and is re-called to Kingston for to night, having spoken there Monday night of this week.
