Princess Chimay and the gypsy Rigo, it is now announced, will be the next "European sensation" of the vaudeville stage. American vaudeville houses are not the proper place for people of the Chimay-Rigo type to be exhibited. A Bowery concert hall or State street "musical saloon" would be nearer their level, but the plain fact remains that there should be no room at all in America for this "romantic" pair.

August Peters, recently of Chicago, but now of New York, has caused something of a sensation by an invention by which he claims he can supply air and power in inexhaustible quantities. As air and power are popularly supposed, at least at New York, to be Chicago specialties, there seems to be good reason that Mr. Peters, availing himself of his knowledge of Chicago, has tapped its resources in some way by his new apparatus.

Marriage is a solemn undertaking at any time, though so many enter on it with a light heart, but it is questionable if any marriage ever gave rise to more speculation as to its possible effect on American politics than the union of Admiral Dewey and Mrs. Hazen. It is astounding how many people can be found who can scent important political changes as the result of the famous admiral's very natural desire for a congenial partner in his new Washington home. It is by no means probable that this interesting match was made up so suddenly as has been represented. More likely, as sailors say, the lasses at home had hold of the Olympia's tow rope through all her wanderings.

Piet Joubert, commander-in-chief of the Boer forces, is sixty-eight years old, and in the Transvaal's history he has borne a part scarcely less conspicuous than that of President Kruger himself. He has long been the military head of the nation-its most noted fighter and tactician-and his career in the field has been distinguished by many successes. While commanderin-chief, as has been stated, he is still subordinate to the Volksraad and the president. When the Jameson raiders were rushing upon Pretoria, Joubert proposed to advance against them with artillery. "Oh no, Piet," said Oom Paul. "Don't you think that two hundred of our farmers with their rifles can stop two thousand ruineks (red necks)?" The outcome justified his confidence in the "farmers."

In the current number of the Geographical Journal Dr. Moreno gives an account of Patagonia, which is a portion of that vast area in South America still unknown to geography, and interesting because of the rich products, which it probably contains, and its charming landscapes. It seems that Patagonia does not merit the bad reputation as regards scenery which it has had since Darwin and Fitzroy received a disagreeable impression from the portion they explored. The plateaus of Arizona find their analogy in the table lands of Patagonia, and "the picturesque fjords and white mountains of Alaska seem to be a copy of the fjords and mountains of Patagonia." The analogy might be pushed ever further, for it seems there is a strange similarity between the ancient customs and industries of the Alaskan and Patagonian Indians.

Married Women's Carelessness. Philadelphia Times: A man would infinitely prefer to be disappointed in his wife's intellect than in her personal appearance, if he has to be disillusioned on either one point or the other after marriage, and yet how many women take chances with their marital happiness by drifting into slovenly or careless ways, which are sure to disgust a man, no matter how much in love he may be. Do we not all of us know some such instance in our own circle of acquaintances where a pretty, attractive girl has degenerated into an unattractive, untidy woman within a few short years of the time when she stood at the altar, radiant in the freshness of her youthful beauty, the delight of her husband's eye and the joy of his heart? The first step downward generally takes the form of curl papers. Ah, how many divorces can be traced directly to the baleful influences of these unsightly knobs to which a woman so soon endeavors to accustom her husband, but when, if she only knew, are the thin edge of the wedge that opens the gap between them. Then she acquires the wrapper habit and thinks nothing of wearing this same nondescript and unbecoming garment from morning until night. Little by little she neglects to take her hair out of papers, reserving this process for specially important occasions, until her husband hardly recognizes her in her holiday hair, minus the disfiguring paper wads that have produced the waves and curls, which he, poor, deluded mortal, once thought were natural. Her footwear resolves itself into chronic slippers, as a rule badly run down at the heel, and before she is aware of the fact herself, she has become absolutely unsightly rather than the attractive woman a little care would make her. Do not think that men fail to appreciate all the little personal graces of the toilet as much after marriage as before it. The money that is expended on delicate sachet powder, pretty shoes and dainty stockings, a fetching little house costume or for the services of manicure or hair-dresser may be condemned as awful extravagances, but they are condoned much more quickly than the neglect of personal appearbest possession of a married womanthe sincere admiration of her own husband.

in a lady's room at all times. The Correct Figure. The fashionable figure seems to be as silhouette as ever, and waist lines are disregarded in the effort to get a general slender effect. Corsets are beginning to be an expensive necessity, and women who have hitherto contented ance that may save expenditure of both | themselves with a ready made article time and money, but which wastes that of moderate price are now rushing to the high-priced places, for only there can they get a corset fit to wear under the new gowns. There is some justice in the big prices that are charged, for the best whalebone has to be used, and the most careful fitting and workmanship are required. The latest corsets now have two garter straps, one in front and one on the side, more to keep the corset well down in place than to hold the stocking up. The chemise is, of course, tabooed, and a well fitting corset cover protects the corset. A dainty little garment for this purpose is made of strips of colored silk and white lace entredeux, says the New York Tribune. An elaborate petticoat is also an impossibility. It is doubtful if many petticoats, beyond a short, thin underskirt, are worn now, but with the autumn, thicker underskirts will be a necessity. At a place on the rue de la Paix, they are making these of satin, as close as possible to the figure, and trimmed with one shaped ruffle, narrow in front and quite deep in the back. Over these the skirts hang beautifully, and, as it is not the fashion to lift the dress now, the plainness of a petticoat makes no difference. At this shop they also show "knickers" of satin, made dainty with silk ruffles.

A Housewife's Soft Hands.

A certain little housekeeper who does all her own work and yet has the lily-white hand that one reads about, tells thus how she keeps her hands in such good condition: "Tomatoes will take off any stain. You know paring apples makes your hands frightfully black. I discovered that the tomato can be used to take off this stain, and since I have found it out I keep one on my kitchen table and apply it always after paring fruit. In winter I use canned tomatoes. Rather a queer cosmetic, isn't it? Then I am careful to wear gloves whenever it is possible -the rubber kind when I am washing glass with soft folds of pure white. dishes, and loose old kid gloves when I sweep. I think, with proper care. ance. A draped mirror always gives # | work."

Color Schemes.

The study of colors and their effects in combination is a very curious one, which many women would do well to give some heed to, especially when the house is being thoroughly renovated. There are some colors that are cheerful, refreshing, that give an expansive effect. Others are depressing and give a cramped-up appearance to a room. If a room be large and it is desired to make it appear smaller and more cozy it can be done by having the ceiling and walls decorated in a dark shade and the draperies in harmony. If blue be the predominating tone of a room it will have the effect of making the room look larger than it is and it can be introduced in some degree in a small room for that purpose. It must be used judiciously, however, for if it be in excess or of a wrong shade it will give a room a cold, cheerless appearance. Red makes no difference in regard to size, but it always gives the idea of warmth and comfort. It will always accentuate any tint of green that lurks in the other colors employed. Red in some tone or another might be used to advantage in a room that was not lighted from without, or in one that had a north light. On the other hand green should never be used under such conditions, but only where a room is powerfully lighted or a flood of sunshine penetrates. This serves to light up the yellow tint that in the accuracy of that calculation. He got rid of his spiritual melancholy; would be otherwise inappreciable and gives a cheerful color tone. Much can be done to promote health and a happy, cheerful disposition by a proper regard to the tone in which the rooms of a house are furnished.

Simplicity of Food.

A "sick headache" is often caused by eating too much and too often rich Substitute a simple, plain meal and a dessert of fruit for too much meat and too many rich dishes, and earn what you eat "by the sweat of your brow." Nature abhors lazy folks, and still more laziness accompanied by gourmandizing.

'MANY ROOMS IN HEAVEN," SUNDAY'S SUBJECT.

From John Chapter XIV, Verse 2, as Follows:-"In My Father's House Ara Many Rooms"—A Bottle of Medicine That Is a Cure-All.

(Copyright 1899 by Louis Klopsch.) Here is a bottle of medicine that is a cure-all. The disciples were sad, and Christ offered heaven as an alterative, a stimulant and a tonic. He shows them that their sorrows are only a dark background of a bright picture cr coming felicity. He lets them know that though now they live on the low-I am not positive that in all heaven there is a literal crown or harp or pearly gate or throne or chariot. They may be only used to illustrate the glories of the place, but how well they do it! The favorite symbol by which the Bible presents celestial happiness is a house. Paul, who never owned a house, although he hired one for two years in Italy, speaks of heaven as a Christ in our text, the translation of which is a little changed, so as to give the more accurate meaning, says: 'In my Father's house are many rooms."

This divinely authorized comparison of heaven to a great homestead of large accommodations I propose to carry out. In some healthy neighborhood a man builds a very commodious habitation. He must have room for all his children. The rooms come to be called after the different members of the family. That is mother's room; that is George's room: that is Henry's room; that is Flora's room; that is Mary's room, and the house is all occupied. But time goes by, and the sons go out into the world, and build their own homes; and the daughters are married, or have talents enough singly to go out and do a good work in the world. After a while the father and mother are almost alone in the big house, and seated by the evening stand, they say: "Well, our family is no larger now than when we started together forty years ago." But time goes still further by, and some of the children are unfortunate, and return to the old homestead to live, and the grandchildren come with them, and perhaps great-grandchildren, and again the house is full. Millennia ago God built on the hills of heaven a great homestead for a family innumerable, yet to be. At first he lived alone in that great house, but after awhile it was occupied by a very large family, cherubic, seraphic, angelic. The eternities passed on, and many of the inhabitants became wayward and left, never to return, and fred and George Cookman, the mysmany of the apartments were vacated. I refer to the fallen angels. Now Luther and Magdalene, the daughter these apartments are filling up again. he bemoaned; John Howard and the There are arrivals at the old homestead of God's children every day, and the day will come when there will so weary and so sad, parted on earth be no unoccupied room in all the house.

As you and I expect to enter it and make there eternal residence, I thought | than that reception room. "In my you would like to get some more particulars about the many-roomed homestead. Carrying out still further the symbolism of the text, let us join hands and go up to this majestic homestead and see for ourselves. As we ascend the golden steps an invisible guardsman swings open the front door, and we are ushered to the right into the reception room of the old homestead. That is the place where we first meet be a place where the departed spirit in the family room they all gather, enters and a place in which it confronts the inhabitants celestial. The reception room of the newly arrived from this world-what scenes it must have witnessed since the first guest arrived, the victim of the first fratricide, pious Abel! In that room Christ lovingly greets all new-comers. He redeemed them, and he has the right to the first embrace on arrival. What a minute when the ascended spirit first sees the Lord! Better than all we ever read about him, or talked about him, or sang about him in all the churches and through all our earthly lifetimes, will it be, just for one second to see him. The most rapturous idea we ever had of him on sacramental days or at the height of some great lands, they shall yet have a house on revival, or under the uplifted baton of the uplands. Nearly all the Bible de- | an oratorio are a bankruptcy of scriptions of heaven may be figurative. | thought compared with the first flash of his appearance in that reception room. At that moment when you confront each other, Christ looking upon you, and you looking upon Christ, there will be an ecstatic thrill and surging of emotion that beggars all description. Look! They need no introduction. Long ago Christ chose that repentant sinner, and that repentant sinner chose Christ. > But now into that reception room pour the glorified kinsfolk. Enough of earthly retention to let you know them, but without their wounds or their sickness or their troubles. See what heaven has done for them! So radiant, so gleeful, so transportingly lovely! They call you by name; they greet you with an ardor proportioned to the anguish of your parting and the length of your separation. Father! Mother! That is your child. Sisters! Brothers! Friends! I wish you joy. For years apart, together again in the reception room of the old Homestead. You see, they will know you are coming. There are so many immortals filling all the spaces between here and heaven that news like that flies like lightning. They will be there in an instant, though they were in some other world on errand from God, a signal would be thrown that would fetch them. Though you might at first feel dazed and overawed at their supernal splendor, all that feeling will be gone at their first touch of heavenly salutation, and we will say, "Oh, my lost boy!" "Oh, my lost companion!" my lost friend, are we here together? What scenes in that reception room of the old homestead have been witnessed! There met Joseph and Jacob, finding it a brighter room than anything they saw in Pharaoh's palace; David and the little child for whom he once fasted and wept; Mary and Lazarus after the heartbreak of Bethany; Timothy and grandmother Lois; Isabella Graham and her sailor son; Altery of the sea at last made manifest; prisoners whom he gospelized; and multitudes without number who, once but gloriously met in heaven. Among all the rooms of that house there is no one that more enraptures my soul Father's house are many rooms?

Another room in our Father's house is the music room. St. John and other

Bible-writers talk so much about the music of heaven that there must be there are some very good people whom earth was thrummed from trembling we would not want to live with in the string or evoked by touch of ivory we are, but they are of a divergent better. There are so many Christian temperament. We would like to meet | harpists and Christian composers and with them on the golden streets, and Christian organists and Christian worship with them in the temple, and choristers and Christian hymnologists walk with them on the river banks, but | that have gone up from earth, there different apartments. "In my Father's pecial delectation. Shall we have music in this world of discords, and no wants an entire room to himself or mony? I cannot give you the notes of the first bar of the new song that is An ingenious statistician, taking the sung in heaven. I cannot imagine statement made in Revelation, twenty- either the solo or the doxology. But first chapter, that the heavenly Jeru- heaven means music, and can mean salem was measured and found to be nothing else. Occasionally that music twelve thousand furlongs, and that the has escaped the gate. Dr. Fuller, dylength and height and breadth of it ing at Beaufort, S. C., said: "Do you are equal, says that would make heaven not hear?" "Hear what?" exclaimed in size 948 sextillion, 988 quintillion the bystanders. "The music! Lift me up! Open the windows?" In that tain portion for the court of heaven music room of our Father's house, you and the streets, and estimating that will some day meet the old masters, the world may last a hundred thousand | Mozart and Handel and Mendelssohn years, he ciphers out that there are and Beethoven and Doddridge, whose over five trillion rooms, each room sacred poetry was as remarkable as seventeen feet long, sixteen feet wide, his sacred prose; and James Montfifteen feet high. But I have no faith gomery, and William Cowper, at last makes the rooms too small. From all and Bishop Heber, who sang of "Greenland's icy mountains and India's coral strand;" and Dr. Raffles, room in this world will have plenty of who wrote of "High in yonder realms room at the last. The fact is, that of light;" and Isaac Watts, who went most people in this world are crowded, to visit Sir Thomas Abney and wife and though out on a vast prairie or in for a week, but proved himself so a mountain district people may have agreeable a guest that they made him more room than they want, in most stay thirty-six years; and side by side cases it is house built close to house. Augustus Toplady, who has got over his dislikes for Methodists, and Charles Wesley, freed from his dislike for Calvinists; and George W. Bethune, as sweet as a song maker as he was great as a preacher and the of this world will be the gaining of author of The Village Hymns; and unhindered and uncramped room. And many who wrote in verse or song, in Hill in Spuyten Duyvil. Certain it is church or by eventide cradle; and many who were passionately fond of music but could make none themselves. The poorest singer there more than any eartaly prima donna, and the poorest players there more than any earthly Gottschalk. Oh, that music room, the headquarters of cadence and rhythm, symphony and chant, psalm and antiphon! Another room in our Father's house will be the family room. It may correspond somewhat with the family room on earth. At morning and evening, you know; that is the place we now meet. Though every member of

and joys and sorrows and experiences of all styles are there rehearsed. Sacred room in all our dwellings! whether it be luxurious with ottomans and divans, and books in Russian lids standing in mahogany case, or there be only a few plain chairs and 2 cracle. So the family room on high will be the place where the kins-folk assemble and talk over the family experiences of earth, the weddings the births, the burials, the festal days of Christmas and Thanksgiving reunion. Will the children departed remain children there? Will the aged remain aged there? Oh no; everything is perfect there. The child will go ahead to glorified maturity, and the aged will go back to glorified maturity. The rising sun of the one will rise to merician, and the descending sun of the other will return to meridian. However much we love our children on earth we would consider it a domestic disaster if they stayed children, and so we rejoice at their growth here. And when we meet in the family room of our Father's house, we will be glad that they have grandly and gloriously matured; while our parents, who were aged and infirm here, we shall be glad to find restored to the most agile and vigorous immortality there. If forty or forty-five or fifty years be the apex of physical and mental life on earth, then the heavenly childhood will advance to that, and the heavenly old age will retreat to that. When we join them in that family room we shall have much to tell them. We shall want to know of them right away, such things as these: Did you see us in this or that or the other struggle? Did you know when we lost our property, and sympathize with us? Did you know we had that awful sickness? Were you hovering anywhere around us when we plunged into that memorable accident? Did you know of our backsliding? Did you know of that moral victory? Were you pleased when we started for heaven? Did you celebrate the hour of our conversion? And then, whether they know it or not, we will tell them all. But they will have more to tell us than we to tell them. Ten years on earth may be very eventful, but what must be the biography of ten years in heaven? They will have to tell us the story of coronations, story of news from all immensity, story of conquerors and hierarchs, story of wrecked or ransomed planets, story of angelic victory over diabolic revolts, of extinguished suns, of obliterated constellations, of new galaxies kindled and swung, of stranded comets, of worlds on fire, and story of Jehovah's majestic reign. If in that family room of our Father's house we have so much to tell them of what we have passed through since we parted, how much more thrilling and arousing that which they have to tell us of what they have passed through since we parted. Surely that family room will be one of the most favored rooms in all our Father's house. What long lingering there, for we shall again be in a hurry! 'Let me open a window," said an humble Christian self up in a dark room, and refused of the death of her child, had shut herservant to Lady Raffies, who, because to see anyone. "You have been many days in this dark room. Are you not ashamed to grieve in this manner. when you ought to be thanking God for having given you the most beautiful child that ever was seen, and instead of leaving him in this world till he should be worn with trouble, has not God taken him to heaven in all his beauty! Leave off weeping, and let me open a window." So today I am trying to open upon the darkness of earthly separation the windows and doors and rooms of the heavenly

Gun Fighting as a Science. "Gun fighting used to be an expert science in the West," said a visitor from Texas, "and men became skilled in it, just as they might in any of the handicrafts. The great point was to get 'quick action,' and the fellow who drew and fired first generally won the fight. That fact led to all sorts of schemes for pulling a gun with the least possible delay. One of the easiest was the 'shoulder holster,' which consisted of a strap suspending the pistol just over the left breast. Carrying a derringer in the pocket of a sack coat and firing through the cloth without drawing was a trick that cost many a man his life. At last it became difficult for a man with his hands in his coat pocket to get near enough to a victim to make sure of hitting him, and a frontier genius invented a variation. He simply cut the right pocket out of an alpaca coat and carried his gun in a holster at his hip. Another trick was to carry the pistol up the sleeve. with the end of the barrel resting against the half-bent palm."-New Or-

There are still thousands of acres of government lands in the states of Washington and Oregon, also prairie and timber lands near tailroad and water communication that can be bought for $3.00 peracre; and there are no cyclones, blizzards, long winters or real hot summers, no failure of crops, but always good markets.

If you wish to raise grain, principally, or fruit, or the finest stock on earth, you can find locations in these two states where you can do this to perfection. ABOUT PROPOSALS.

"It's jolly hard lines," Bailey Junior said, flinging himself down in Jack's

"What's hard lines?" I asked, thinking at the same time that although he had been Jack's best man when we were married he need not be quite so familiar with Jack's own particular armchair. I never like to see any one at home in Jack's chair, because, if I am left a widow, I mean to keep it sacred to Jack's memory.

"A fellow isn't allowed to see Baby Jones alone for five minutes."

"Why do you want to see her alone?" asked, for the fifth Jones girl, to my mind, was still a child. Perhaps this was due to the fact that she is called "Baby," but Jack says it's because she's not allowed to have her 17th birthday until the two eldest girls are "off." Mamma Jones may be right; more than four girls out at one time is a great responsibility.

Bailey Junior, who had retained the suffix "Junior" ever since he went to school with his eldest brother, looked at me in surprise. "Why do I want to see her alone?" he replied; "because I want to propose, of course! a fellow can't propose with an audience."

"You propose!" I echoed. Propose to Baby Jones!" "And pray why shouldn't I?" he "Anything the matter with He pulled down his coat and stuck out his brown riding boots on my new hearth rug. Bailey Junior prided himself on his bootmaker. "I can afford to keep a wife; Jack's mar-

"Oh, but Jack's quite different," said. "Any one can see in a moment that Jack's different. Besides, you'll never get the chance," I continued, remembering Mamma Jones' theory.

'Why the deuce not?" "Because the four others have to go off first, and they must go in proper order. Jack says so."

"What's Jack got to do with it?" "Oh, nothing," I answered; "but get. Jack's so clever; he always sees through things."

"Why have the others got to go 'off' first?" Bailey Junior asked. "Baby's marriage hasn't anything to do with the others."

"Oh, yes it has; you don't under-"No, I don't; and I'm hanged if any one else does. Why can't they begin marrying from the other end?" "Because if the county knows that Baby's old enough to marry, that would make the others just too old, don't you see? It's a point of honor with the Baby to remain under 17 till the eldest girl's off." "Phew!" said Bailey Junior, "now see; that's why she's so closely guard-

"DON'T YOU LIKE HIM, BABY?" hrown in my way; but I won't have her, I tell you. No Mamma Jones in the world will make me marry the eldest; none of your serving for Rachel business for me."

"That's right," I said, "but you'll have to wait for Baby until some other fellow does want the others."

"O, Lord!" he exclaimed, in a tone of voice which was scarcely complimentary to the eldest Miss Jones: "and sail for India this day week."

"I'm awfully sorry," I said; "but that's the principle and code of honor in the Jones family. You can't pick out the best and leave Mamma Jones saddled for life with the plain ones."

Bailey Junior was silent, and I tried my best to think of some plan to help him out of his difficulty. It was of no use to suggest asking Baby Jones to spend the day with me and letting Bailey Junior meet her here, for the Jones girls never went about singly; they hadn't enough friends to go all around, so that if you asked one to tea two always came. They were such a devoted family. "Dear little girl," he said, "sacrificed to her elder sisters. She'll be 30 before she gets her hair up at that rate. I wonder what her age really is?" "She's probably got mixed herself,"

I said; "but isn't it up yet? It will be getting quite worn out." "It's in a sort of maidenly plait." Bailey Junior said, reflectively, "awfully becoming, don't you know, but---"But it's time she wore quite long dresses, and put it right up, isn't it? A big girl old enough to be married in short skirts. Jack thinks it horrid." "I think they're lovely." Bailey Junior answered, "so arched and slender: just think of the eldest girl's." "Oh, no one does," I said: "she was nut into long skirts before she left the nursery, and she was never allowed to had had a letter from him asking her to marry him. She seemed much astonished that he should want to marry her and not herseldest sister. The Joneses are not an imaginative family, and such an unconventional proceeding had not suggested itself to the youngest of the family. "Poor old Bailey!" I said. "He sat for an hour and a half talking to Bella"—that is the eldest girl's name— "the day he went to say good-by, hoping that you would come in; he was determined to propose to you before he

Baby Jones opened her big eyes wide. "Did he really? But he ought to have known that mamma said he was to marry Bella. I was sent out to do some shopping, and the others staid in their rooms and said they were out. I wonder why he didn't propose to Bella?"

"Because he was in love with you," I said. "Don't you like him, Baby?" "Oh, yes," she said slowly; "he's nicely sunburned, and" (with a little sigh) "I do like his boots. But it's Bella's turn first."

She took Bailey Junior's letter and opened it. "I must ask mamma," she said, "for the poor fellow seems quite anxious, and he's in such a hurry. He wants me to wire back yes or no. He needn't be so impatient when it's only me he wants. "Baby," I said, coaxingly, "don't ask your mother until you have sent the stand these things." Then I turned and left her reading the letter slowly to herself. "Bella will be awfully cross," I heard wire. Mothers don't always under-her murmur; "perhaps he has an elder brother who wouldn't mind marrying Bella." By the same post next evening I received two letters. The one was from Bailey Junior, asking me to plead his cause with Baby Jones. It was an ardent, romantic letter, showing a vast imagination and a limited understanding of the character of his future wife, and the other was from Baby Jones. It was not so romantic, but, Jack says, it is full of common sense, and characteristic of the Jones family. It ran thus: "Wired back yes. But it cost me 30 shillings."-Westminster Bud-

SAMOAN GIRL.

She Was a Born Coquette, Usually with Many Suitors.

The Samoan girl is not only an athlete, she is a born coquette, says Woman's Life. From the time she is 10 years old she begins to make eyes from behind a beautifully carved fan. She is without sincerity, but romantic to the extreme. Yet, in spite of her romantic nature, the Samoan girl when angered is a match for a Samoan warrior in activity and strength. It has been said that the Samoan women and girls are even harder to deal with than the men. They are absolutely without feeling and are cruel to their captives. If a Samoan is fortunate she will wear necklace of shark's teeth and earrings made of some metal. That is her costume. The shark's teeth are usually the present of the favored suitor, and it often is the case that a girl hardly in her teens will have many girl possesses the more admirers she has, and, therefore, the more is envied by her less fortunate sisters. The Samoan girl is not only skilled in the use of the native arms, but she is taught to carve, to embroider and sew. The hairpins worn by the Samoan girl are beautiful in their workmanship. They are made out of the wood of a cocoanut tree and are carved with a dead cocoanut leaf. This is most delicate work. The Samoans are a great people for dancing, and during holiday season dancing is in order day and night. The girls take to dancing as naturally as they do to swimming, and a girl is taught to swim before she is taught to walk. They are graceful and readily learn any dance. The Samoan girl has no choice of husbands. Her marriage is always arranged by her parents, and she accepts the inevitable. However, marriage does not prevent a woman from having ad-

Cost of Moving Trains. The rates charged for transportation of passengers by rail are being criticised and questioned in many quarters of the country. This has been stimulated by the fact that the government roads of Austria-Hungary in 1889 reduced rates of fare from one-half to one-sixth, and yet the traffic so greatly increased that the gain in receipts was over $2,000,000 in two years. Prof. Parsons cites the cases of many eastern railroads that sell season tickets at a little more than half a cent a mile, and declares that they would not uo so if it was not a fact that that sum more than covered the cost of transportation. He says that some companies, which he names, sell commutation tickets at seven-tenths of a cent a mile, and admit a profit of 50 per cent in the business. Prof. Parsons estimates that the average cost of moving a passenger train is 80 cents a mile, or about 14 cents a car, as is shown by the railway reports. "A moderate train of ordinary coaches will carry 400 or 600 persons, so that with well-filled trains the cost is not more than one-fifth of a cent a passenger a mile. All the expenses of railway traffic are taken into account in figuring the eighty-cent cost per train mile." Under government ownersnip he claims that "these expenses will be reduced at least a third, the cost per train mile will fall to 60 cents, and the cost of carrying a

To say that Dr. Chase's Ointment is an absolute cure for blind, itching, bleeding or protruding piles is but to sum up the evidence of the scores of letters which daily come to these offices. Mr. M. A. Crossman, who represents Messis. Vosburgh and Whiting, Buffalo, N.Y., writes: "I was troubled with protruding, itching piles for ten years, and tried all known remedies to no availnot even relief. Before using all of one box of Dr. Chase's Ointment I was entirely cured, and cheerfully recommend the ointment to any one suffering with piles, for my case was as bad as any one could be and live." Dr. Chase's Ointment is endorsed by the best physicians, and has a record of cures unparalleled in the history of medicine. It is a positive cure for piles, and is guaranteed as such. It is the only remedy which has never been known to fail to cure the most serious case of blind, itching, bleeding or protruding piles. BATTLE WITH SHARKS.

Desperate Encounter In Which Two Man Eaters Were Slain. Probably the most desperate fight which has ever been witnessed between a couple of sharks and a human being took place at Havana some time ago. Several fruit peddlers had boarded a large mailboat, and among them was a swarthy, bare legged young chap noted among his comrades as a clever swimmer. The purser of the vessel was standing by the gangway, holding his child in his arms, watching a couple of sharks that were hanging about the ship. Accidentally the child fell out of its father's grasp into the water. The father immediately jumped overboard and seized his child, and in a moment the sharks were making for the pair.

Seeing the predicament, the bare legged young buccaneer dropped his fruit basket and went over the rail like a

As the first shark turned on its back -the invariable prelude to biting its victim-the young fruit seller rose to the surface, and, with a long, keen edged knife, fairly disemboweled it. The other was not nearly so easily disposed of. The shark seemed to real ize that in the fruit seller he had a dangerous foe and apparently sparred for an opening. Several men on board the vessel blazed away at the monster with revolvers, but the young fellow begged the men to desist, being unnerved by the firing. Fish and man dived alternately, and when the fish did make for its foe the plucky boy dived and plunged the knife in its side.

The water was crimson with blood when the three were hauled safe and sound to the deck of the vessel, and a handsome sum of money was collected for the victor.

THE "NECESSARY" MAGAZINE

The best-informed men and women in the world use the AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS to keep well informed, and call it the "necessary" and "indispensable" magazine. In the busy rush of to-day ambitious men and women must know about the important questions of the month, and not only this, they want to know about them at the right time. When the whole country is puzzled over the gigantic combination of trusts, a well-informed article is printed in the AMERICAN MONTHLY, giving the facts, and its editor discusses the theory; when the Dreyfus affair is in everyone's mouth, the best story of Dreyfus and the great case comes out in this magazine.

Every month, in "The Progress of the World," Dr. Albert Shaw gives a comprehensive picture of the world's history during the previous thirty days. In the departments, the valuable articles and books that have been published during the past month are reviewed and quoted from, so that the readers of the AMERICAN MONTHLY can get the gist of them. In every issue nearly a hundred pictures are printed, including the portraits of the men and women who are making the

The State Tax Commission is Now After Timber Owners and Propose to Make Them Pay Their Just Share of the State and County Taves.

Man's Ghost Causes a Confession. A sensation was created at Onaway on the 6th by the reported confession of Mrs. Anna Bowen that she, and not Frank Morgan, did the shooting which killed Donald Gillis at Mrs. Bowen's farm in Forest township on the night of April 29 last. Morgan who was living at the Bowen farm at the time of the tragedy, confessed to doing the shooting and was convicted at the Sept. term of the circuit court in Cheboygan of murder in the second degree and is still in the county jail awaiting a decision of the supreme court upon a motion for a new trial. It is believed that Morgan confessed in order to save the woman he loved. Mrs. Bowen declares that she had been without rest since the crime was committed and was haunted by the dead man, who has repeatedly appeared to her, and she claims has censured her for her injustice to the innocent, hence her con-

Tax Commission After Timber Owners. The state tax commissioners believe that the lumber interests have failed to pay the state millions of dollars in the past in the shape of taxes, because the property has not been properly reported and placed on the assessment rolls. The commission will endeavor to ascertain what is left and has sent for the following information, all supervisors getting a copy of the following questions: 1. The names and residences (if known) of all persons owning or occupying lands in your township, covered or partly covered with standing timber, the kinds thereof, number of acres, estimated value of same, and such other information as you may be able to and will furnish. 2. What, if any, manufactories of lumber, lath, timber, pickets, shingles, posts or railroad ties there may be in your township or assessing district.

A Warning About Smallpox. The fact that smallpox in a mild form, but unmistakable, exists in 10 places in Michigan, has induced the the state board of health to issue a warning to the people of the state. The board states that when the cold weather arrives it is to be expected that the disease will be more dangerous, and, unless greater care is taken, more widespread. In order to prevent an epidemic of smallpox in the state, it is urged that all citizens and physicians co-operate with the health authorities at Lansing in acting promptly when they have reason to believe that a case under their observation is or may be smallpox. The protection of the public health is best served when physicians and citizens give to the public health the benefit of any doubt which they may entertain as to whether a given case is or is not smallpox.

Capital Invested in Street Railways. Labor Commissioner Cox has been making an investigation of the street railway systems of Michigan. He finds there are 19 systems in the state, the three Detroit roads being classed as one system. The total aggregate capital invested is $14,045,000, an average of $739,210 for each road. The Detroit system is the largest in the state, with a capital of $7,000,000, and the Adrian system the smallest, with a capital of $20,000. The aggregate miles of road operated is 448, and the aggregate number of cars operated 456. The total number of employes is 1,692 and the pay roll for one month aggregated $87,789, an average of $4,625. The labor commissioner is now making a canvass of the employes of the street

Investigation shows that the Houghton county soldiers who are kicking because their relief money has not been paid, have no one but themselves and their county relief commission to blame for the delay. The claims received by the auditor-general were in the worst possible shape; none of them were accompanied by receipted vouchers of original claimants, as required by law, and in the majority of cases there were no items or dates whatever. The fear that lower Michigan soldiers will exhaust the relief fund before others got a whack at it is groundless, fully half of the total already paid having gone to upper peninsula men.

New Law on Delinquent Taxes Legal. A decision which will greatly encourage the payment of taxes and relieve the work of the auditor general's department, was filed in the supreme court on the 7th in the mandamus case of Webster vs. The Auditor General. The court holds that the new law fixing the rate of interests on delinquent taxes at 12 per cent applies to all taxes returned as delinquent, and not alone to the taxes assessed subsequent to the passage of the new law, increasing the rate from 8 to 12 per cent, as held by the attorney general. The effect of the decision will be to enforce the payment of delinquent taxes in order to avoid the high rate of interest charged Admiral Dewey and Mrs. Hazon Made One Admiral George Dewey and Mrs. Mildred Hazen were married quietly at the rectory of St. Paul's Catholic church in Washington on the morning of the 9th. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Jas. F. Mackin, pastor of the church, assisted by Rev. Jos. H. Foley, assistant pastor, and the Rev. Sidney Hurlbut. The ceremony was of the simplest character, according to the rites of the Roman Catholic church, and the only witnesses besides the officiating clergymen were Mrs. Washington McLean and Mrs. Ludlow, wife of Admiral Ludlow, mother and sister respectively of the bride, and Lieut. Caldwell, Admiral Dewey's secretary. The arrangements for the wedding were made with all the secrecy which has attended the whole affair. As Admiral Dewey is not a Roman Catholic, a special dispensation was required for the performance of the ceremony, and this was procured by Fr. Mackin from Bishop Curtis, vicar general of the diocese of Baltimore, who granted it in the absence of Cardinal Gibbons, who is at present in New Orleans. The Admiral and Mrs. Dewey will spend their honeymoon in New York city.

The official crop report for October says that although the weather during the month was exceptionally fine, it was too warm and dry for wheat to make a good growth. It was admirable for husking corn, except where the latter was in the shock, it being too dry at times to secure the fodder in good shape. Potatoes, sugar beets and other root crops were dug and secured as fast as possible.

The condition of wheat, as compared with an average, is 87 for the state, 85 in the southern, 88 in the central and 92 in the northern counties. Fields that were sowed early made a fairly good growth, but in most parts of the state these fields of early sown wheat are thoroughly infested with the Hessian fly. The complaint of this is general, many correspondents reporting that the pest is worse than in many years. Many fields could not be prepared on account of dry weather. These were necessarily sowed late and while the plant on them is small, it is reasonably free from the fly and may eventually yield the best crop. Some fields are spotted, while others upon up lands have been badly washed.

The estimated yield of shelled corn in bushels is 29 for the state. It is evident that the dry weather last summer hurt the corn to a considerable extent. as correspondents report that it is not yielding as was expected. Numerous correspondents report nubbins and much soft corn. The per cent cut up for fodder is 30 for the state. Some correspondents report that they are using fodder for feed and are selling their hay to shippers.

The acreage of clover seed harvested as compared with average years is 37 for the state. The average yield per $701.936 to be Distributed.

The law provides for a semi-annual distribution of primary school interest money among the 84 counties of the state, these apportionments to be made on May 10 and Nov. 10. The superintendent completed the preliminaries for the second apportionment for the current year, which was made on the 10th. The rate this fall is $1 for each child of school age in the state, making the total for the year $1.50 per capita, 50 cents having been paid last May. The school age is between 5 and 20 years. The total amount to be divided among the several counties of the state is $701,936.

WAR NOTES.

Two columns of Gen. MacArthur's division on the 5th took Magalang, about Smith, with two battalions of the 17th and a body of engineers advanced from Angeles. Maj. O'Brien with a battalion of the 17th infantry and two troops of the 4th cavalry moved from Calalut. Col. Smith killed 11 insurgents, wounded 128 and captured 50, as well as taking a lot of insurgent transpor tation. Maj. O'Brien killed 40 insurgents, wounded many and took 28 prisoners. The Americans had 11 men wounded.

Smith, governor of the island of Negros, administered the oath of office to the judge of the supreme court, who, in turn, swore in the governor, three udges, 12 councilmen, the auditor and secretary of the interior. The natives of the entire island attended the cerenony. The officers from Iloilo were also present. Three days' feasting will follow, in celebration of the new gov-

TRANSVAAL WAR ITEMS.

In describing the engagement at Nicholson's Nek, a correspondent of the Lendon Daily Mail says: "The Boers shot magnificently. The moment a Britisher raised his head to see where the enemy were he instantly fell back with a bullet in it. On the other hand, after the engagement the Boers acted with the greatest kindness to wounded and unwounded. They spent the afternoon singing doleful hymns under the ing that it wasn't worth harvesting he trees and they had reason to be doleful, for they had lost many men." Britain will hurry the Woolwich howitzer brigade to South Africa. The brigade has 10,000 rounds of lyyite shells awaiting it. A single shell, it is said, will kill 300 men when dropped into a compact body. This was demonstrated at Omdurman.

Official roll call showed 843 British missing after the engagement at Forquhar's farm, near Ladysmith. Nearly all belonged to the Gloucestershire regiment and the Royal Irish Fusiliers. Queen Victoria has contributed $5,000 and the prince of Wales $1,310 to the Transvaal war fund for the relief of widows and orphans of British killed. The Boers were still engaged in shelling Ladysmith on the 6th. It is reported that the Britishers' aim is now

"There's a queer story connected with that chair," said an old caterer of this city, pointing to a substantial piece of furniture in his private office. 'I had it originally in my bar, for my own use, but I never got a chance. It was always occupied by some visitor or other who couldn't resist the temptation to sit down, it looked so comfortable. I got exasperated about the thing, and one day I was expressing myself pretty freely when a tramp wandered in to beg a drink. 'What'll you give me if I fix that chair so nobody'll use it but you?' he asked. 'Five dollars,' I replied, never supposing he was in earnest. He went down to the telegraph office, stole a small piece of isulated wire and wrapped it around the arm of the chair. 'There you are,' said he, 'now watch what happens.' In a few moments a customer sauntered in, edged over to the chair and was about to sit down, when he saw the wire. 'N, you don't!' he exclaimed, backing away. 'You can't catch me!' He got his drink and went out, chuckling over his cleverness. In half an hour five or six others approached the chair, with the evident intention of camping there, but noticed the wire and beat a retreat. In the course of the day only one man really seated himself. He was a fat old fellow, and didn't observe the attachment until he had settled down. Instantly he began to struggle to his feet. 'Don't you turn on that current!' he velled: 'don't you dare do it. or I'll have you arrested!' As soon as he could get up he shot out. I gave the tramp his $5 and enjoyed undisputed possession as long as the chair remained in the bar. Everybody supposed it was rigged up for a practical joke."-New Orleans Times-Democrat.

The Farm Beats the Mortgage. There is a story from Buffalo County going the rounds that illustrates the resources of a Nebraska farm: A farmer up there from Missouri got discour-

$700 on his farm, was about ready to jump the whole business, but determined to make one more effort and sowed eighty acres in wheat. It hap pened to be a poor year for wheat and the stand was not very good. Concludpulled up his stakes and moseved back to Missouri, leaving the farm to fight the mortgage all by itself. The farm was equal to the occasion.

The wheat ripened, fell down and deposited the seed in the soil again. Next spring the wheat began to grow lustily. Some of the neighbors were honest enough to write about it down to the fugitive in Missouri, and he got interested enough to come back and take a look. Then he stopped and harvested his voluntary crop. He sold it for enough to pay off the mortgage and the rest of his debts and had a tidy little surplus over, with which he moved his family back and now declares there is no state like Nebraska.-Lincoln (Neb.) CHAPTER XII.—(Continued.)

They were walking still, but I heard another. no more. I rose quickly, and began to move away mechanically toward home. I put back my veil and bared my face to the keen October air: I felt stifled: the October evening night might have been a sultry August noonday; there seemed to be no air at all; I could not breathe.

They had re-kindled the fire in my absence, and made the room look home-like. Its home-like air seemed like bitterest satire. I sat in the warm, bright light and waited for John to

It was late before he came. I had not thought how I should meet him. I had sat for two hours waiting for him, and had thought of nothing. Even when John came toward me and spoke to me, I had no thought in my mind of what I was to say. My heart was sick with despair. Out of my passionate despair I should speak presently. And my passionate words were not likely to be wise words.

"Why did you wait up for me, Kitty?" he said gently, in a tired tone. "I am late. You shouldn't have waited for me.'

I looked at him without a word. then rose and moved across the room, away from him. Parting the curtains before the window, I stood looking out into the dimmer light of the outer world. Still standing so, my face turned away, I spoke to him. My voice startled even me-it was so passionless, so cold and steady.

"John, I want to go away from you. I said.

John crossed the room without answering a word. He took my two cold hands in his, and I let them rest there passively. He looked down at me gravely with a glance that was at first a little stern, but almost at once grew very gentle.

BROKEN TROLLEY WIRE.

Danger to Passers-by Removed by

New Invention. A Chicago electrician has invented a device by which a trolley wire becomes dead as soon as it breaks. The device is intended to make the so-called live wire perfectly harmless. The invention consists of an automatic circuit-breaker, and its application will require no change in the present generating and feeding machinery. The current is led from the dynamo through the new circuit-breaker, which is a simple automatic switch, and thence out along the worth, which he had seen a thousand trolley wire. The current will run the same course as before—from the dynamo along the wire through the propelling mechanism of the car, into the ground rail and returning to the ground pole of the generator. A small auxiliary wire, which leads a constant threepence for admission here," and current back from the overhead wire and makes a completely conducted circuit, is the second feature of the invention. This side current, the voltage of which is insignificant and does not weaken the feeder, keeps the switch closed and the line is charged. The moment a break occurs on the feeding or power line the auxiliary current is breeding to save a guest from expense, broken. The switch opens instantly and not a single ampere goes out on the circuit until the main line is again repaired.-Buffalo Express.

CHRONIC LOSER OF TICKETS. A Profitable Scheme Worked by an Indigent Old Woman.

A respectably dressed old woman apparently in deep distress was noticed standing at the foot of the steps of an elevated railroad station the other day just at the hour when the rush was at its height. The woman had apparently lost something of value. She searched her pockets, shook out her skirts and scanned the ground on every side. Of course it was not long before her distress attracted the notice of passersby. "I have lost my ticket." she said in answer to the query of a man who stopped for a moment in his rush for the train. "I don't know what to do, for I have not a nickel with me and I live away uptown." The man pulled a string of tickets from his pocket, tore off one, handed it to the woman and resumed his rush without waiting for her thanks. But the woman did not follow. There seems to be no good reason why this country should not become noted for its production of dates. The date palm in Africa is a wonderful tree. It is wonderful because it seems particularly adapted to grow in a region where the conditions are such that most other valuable trees refuse to live at all. It will stand torrid heat and thrive in it. It will feed on alkali water and bring forth rich harvests.

We have the torrid heat in some of our southern valleys, particularly in Arizona. There is also the condition of moisture supply. The alkali water has been a thing that has prevented us from availing ourselves of the farming regions in that part of the country. In Africa the Arabs frequently dig a pit 20 or 30 feet deep and plant their date palms in the bottom, so that their trees can "dip their feet in the waters of the earth and warm their heads in the fires of heaven." On our western plains both of these conditions may be found. The date palm doubtless be a factor in the case. The question of tree protection in the winter is one that is largely unsolved. At every horticultural convention that the writer attends it is a live subject, and a great variety of opinions are brought to the surface. The discussion runs along the line of experience, that is, each man argues by reporting his own experience in protecting trees. This shows that the subject is not fully understood, that the laws that control the effectiveness of winter protection are not yet understood. Recently it has been recorted that during the last winter many trees suffered that had been protected by wood veneering. The bark died under the covering. Now savants are asking why. Some suggest that it may have been due to the space filling up with water that froze and remained so till spring. Others think that it might have been due to the non-ripening of the wood under the veneering. Evidently it will take a long course of experimentation scientifically conducted to arrive at the cause of success and failure in protecting trees.

One of the most remarkable features of Japanese gardening is the way in which every plant and tree in a famous garden will be reproduced in miniature by a system of dwarfing which has been handed down from many generations back. Every characteristic of a large tree will be preserved, the foilage, the color and the texture of the branches, and yet the miniature copy will often be not more than from one to three feet high. Prof. C. E. Bessey tells of a case in this country in which nature has eclipsed the art of the Japanese. While climbing Green mountains, near Boulder, Col., Prof. Bessey found growing from a crevice in one of the rocks at the summit a small pine tree about five inches and a quarter high and barely a quarter of an inch in diameter. It was unbranched and bore a single terminal tuft of leaves. The tiny tree had made a good fight for existence amid the inclemencies of its exposed situation, for when it was carefully examined twenty-five distinct annual rings were discovered. Such a case of natural dwarfing is almost unprecedented.

Conserving Soil Moisture. - Some careful experiments by the Kansas station to test the relative efficiency of different kinds of culture in conserving soil moisture showed that simple plowing while the soil was in good condition was as efficacious as plowing followed by planking, rolling, harrowing or sub-surface packing. Disking was found to be a good means of saving moisture, but was not equal to plowing. The importance of plowing stubble ground as early as possible, while moisture is still in the soil, was shown by experiment in two years. Early plowing left the ground in good condition, as regards soil moisture, for wheat seeding, while late plowing was dangerously dry. The efficiency of the dry soil or dust mulch and its superiority in the long run over a straw mulch were strikingly shown.

moment I could find no more words at

"It was my fault," I returned, speaking steadily in the same dull, passionless, even way. "Perhaps it was your fault, too. You shouldn't have married me. You knew-you must have known-that I should be wretched."

"Kitty! Kitty!" "It was a mistake. Only a mistake! You thought you would make me happy. You did it for the best. Why did you, John-why did you?"

My eyes were tearless as they looked up into his. All the tears I had had to shed I had shed hours ago. Never, I felt, as long as I lived, should I cry again. I felt numb and still. Even my reproach came in a stony voice that seemed to have no emotion in it. "Yes, we have made a mistake.

Kitty," said John, sighing deeply. "I. as you say, should have known. But I did not know! Well, we have faced the mistake; perhaps it was wiser faced. Now let us begin anew. Life cannot be what it might have been; but let us make the best of it, Kittyby-and-by, dear, love may come."

I drew my hands away with a sharp, sudden gesture. He spoke of love, not as though it had been weak and had failed him, but as though it had never

"It will not come," I cried, "Love does not come with bidding, only weariness."

He stood in silence looking gravely at me, with a gravity far more stern than gentle. I knew that he agreed with me; he urged no word of protest, no word of hope. For one long opinion, I only ask you one question

Then suddenly he sighed, and his tone grew gentle again.

"I will not let you go, Kitty," he added, "for your sake, not for mine. You do not know what a young wife, who leaves her home, has to bear-how she is spoken of, what is thought of her. Though our marriage may have been a not escape from it. I regret it, Kitty, as deeply as you do. But, regret as we may, you are still my wife. And I will not have my wife misjudged, lightly spoken of."

Even at that moment, though I had pleaded to be allowed to go, pleaded passionately to be set free, I was glad that he refused my prayer. Even though he did not love me, even though it was only torture to be with him and to know that his love was not mine, still I was glad that he kept me

"Everything else that you ask me," he said slowly and steadily, "I will grant, I will do what you will. You shall live your own life; you shall be as free as though you had carried out your own wild wish and had escaped from me."

I was silent. "I will not see you more than I can help," he continued in the same cold steady tone. "You shall be free, as free as I can make you. I promise. Are you satisfied?"

"Yes," I said faintly. And he turned without another word Treated His Guest Well, but Made Him Pay His Way. I was constantly struck, says Col. T. W. Higginson, in the October Atlantic, with the genuine spirit of hospitality among Englishmen toward Americans, as such, even those with whose pursuits they might have almost nothing in common, and for whom they had not the slightest reason to put themselves out. I liked this none the less for its having its definite limitations as to pecuniary obligations, and the like, including everything in the nature of "treating," all this being in my opinion a weak point in our more gushing or more self-conscious habit. I remember to have once been taken by a gentleman, on whom I had but the slightest claim, to the country house of another, on whom I had no claim whatever. The latter was not at all literary, and had not even the usual vague English interest in American affairs; yet he gave up his whole afternoon to drive me to Keniltimes. But that for which I liked him best, and which afforded me a wholly new experience, was that as we entered the outer doorway, he, going first, looked back over his shoulder and said simply: "They make you pay then added, speaking to the attendant, "Here is my three pence." After all the time and trouble he had given to his stranger guest, he yet left him to pay his own threepence-a thing which most Americans would not have dreamed of doing. It would have been the American notion of good as it was the English impulse to save him from the sense of obligation. I confess that I prefer the latter method.
