Rev. Irl R. Hicks is not Dead.

Notwithstanding a widely current rumor that the Rev. Irl R. Hicks was dead, he never was in better health, and never did a harder and more successful year's work than that just closing. He has just completed his large and splendid Almanac for 1902 and. with his staff of able helpers, has brought his journal, Word and Works, justly forward into international repuation. For a quarter of a century Mr. Hicks has grown in reputation and usefulness as the people's astronomer, and forecaster of storms and the character of coming seasons. Never were his weather forecasts so sought after as now, his timely warning of a serious drouth this year having saved the people from loss and suffering. Millions of bushels of wheat were harvested through his advice to plant crops that would mature early. The American people will certainly stand by Prof. Hicks, when it costs them so little and the benefits are so great. His fine Almanac of 200 pages is only 25c, and his splendid family journal is only one dollar a year including the Almanac. Send to Word and Works Pub. Co. 2201 Locust St., St. Louis, Mo., or to this office.

The Rev. Mr. Babcock of Converse, Ind., whose wife had been blind for ten years, brought her to a specialist in Kokomo for treatment. He left her there for a few days, but on his return his wife was absent. He went to an auction sale of lots in the suburbs, in which one lot was given free. Mr. Bahcock won the free lot. When he went back to the doctor's home he joyfully learned that his wife's sight had been completely restored.

The Loss of Life By Storm In Great Britain.

THE ENGLISH CABINET ROW.

Rumors From All Parts of the World of More or Less Interest to all Read-

It Was Terrific.

It is still impossible to estimate with any exactitude the total loss of life and property resulting from the protracted gale, which swept England, Ireland and Wales, and probably the full extent of the damage will never be known. Altogether it is known ed along the British coast, and 34 of these have been absolute wrecks, involving, it is believed, a loss of more than 150 drowned. The Yarmouth lifeboat disaster alone leaves 44 fatherless children. The lifeboat was on her way to a distressed vessel, when she capsized and 11 men were drowned. A winter snap has succeeded the gale, while a severe blizzard which is raging over Scandinavia, is expected to strike the shores of Great Britain. Thursday there was a heavy snowstorm in Scotland and a fall of snow dom, especially in the hilly districts munitions of war.

The rumors that there is much discussion in the British cabinet are confirmed and it is said the disagreement was responsible for the protracted session. What really happened was an onslaught upon Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, the chancellor of the exchequer, by nearly all his associates. Balfour joined Chamberlain and Lord Salisbury, while Lord Devonshire supported both in condemning the speech which had sent down the price of consols with a rush. The Hicks-Beach financial administration and general proposals for carrying the additional burdens of the Boer war were harshly criticised and he was other children, Lavinia Clesterman, left almost alone, with all the strongest men against him. Lord Londenderry, Hicks-Beach's closest friend, intervened as a peacemaker over night,

The Shining Jewels. Preparations for King Edward's coronation are already taking definite and costly shape. Mrs. Bradley-Martin is having a tiara made in Paris, it is reported, at a cost of £250,000. Princess Chimny Dying. Princess Chimay, formerly Clara Ward, of Detroit, is lying seriously ill at a hotel in Paris. It is feared she is dying. James Rigo, the fiddler, is with her. In speaking of the princess' illness he said: "Three physicians are attending the princess. Her condition is critical. The nature of her disease is uncertain. Her throat is swollen to twice its normal size." She has been living fairly quietly for some weeks. Her apartments are elegant and luxurious, and she does not want for money. To-night the physician in charge declared an operation was necessary; but that the princess' condition prevented it Attempted Train Robbery. Officials of the Burlington admit that since the first of the week their night trains leaving Lincoln, Neb., have gone out with a guard armed with Winchester rifles. This precaution was taken following the discovery last Sunday of 24 sticks of dynamite together with a number of masks hidden under a bridge just outside the city. Sunday night three men attempted to board the express car as a train pulled out of Lincoln for the east but they were driven off. Monday the same three men were at Ashland and an effort was made to arrest them, but they disappeared.

Mrs. Elizabeth B. Vermilye told the Reformed church in New York that "the danger of Mormonism is underrated, not overrated. It was predicted that in 50 years the Mormons would control a belt of states cutting the country in two from northeast to southwest. The prediction has been verified in 20 years instead of 50. They own land from the Rocky Mountains to the Sierras and are spreading east, as I have told you. They control four western states and at their present rate of progression in number of others will soon have supremacy in them."

Kruger's Gold. An Austrian merchant just from South Africa tells London that the Boer war will not last longer than June. He believes the Boers would be glad to make peace if they tained substantial autonomy. He says the British should not allow the burghers to retain the gold mine region, which should be permanently un-der British rule. This observer also declares that Kruger kept up the Afrikander bund by wealth derived from the gold industry. He says if Kruger loses his money he will soon lose his friends.

Miss Stone's Ransom.

The brigands who captured Miss Ellen M. Stone and Mme. Tsilka have reduced the amount of ransom they demand to £20,000, Turkish. Coincident with this intelligence is the information that the leaders of the band, if convinced that this is more than Mr. Dickinson will give, would accept yond the cash at Mr. Dickinson's disposal. Therefore, unless the captors of the missionary further abate their demands, there is no hope of an immediate settlement.

Mysterious Murders

Two murders near Evansville, Ind., Tuesday, are a mystery baffling solution. The fact that both of the victims were women, that both were killed in the same manner and evidently by the same person adds to the mystery. The body of Mrs. Georgia Railey was found near the city beside a public highway. There were finger marks on the throat. The neck was broken. The supposition is that the woman was choked to death by someone in a buggy and then when she fell out her neck was broken. There were evidences of the body having been dragged some distance and thrown into a ditch. A mile outside the city, but in an opposite direction, the body of Miss Lena Renner was discovered by searchers. Her throat also bore finger marks, showing the nanner of her death to be similar to that of Mrs. Railey. Neither woman was known to have an enemy and nothing is known to link the two of them in any affair likely to furnish an excuse for one man to attack both. In April, 1898, Mrs. Mary Stork went buggy riding with a stranger.

The next morning her dead body was found in a ditch. The man who took her life was never discovered. Mrs. Stork was a prominent young woman and a great sensation followed her death. In April of the following year Miss Nora Kifer, of Elberfeld, Ind., while visiting here, suddenly disappeared.

Her body was found weighed down in a creek the following month. Joseph D. Keith, a wealthy farmer, will be langed next Friday for the crime.

T've b'en countin' up my plessin's. I've be'n summin' up my woes But I ain't got th' conclusion sum would nat'rally suppose. Why I quit a countin' troubles 'fore I had half a score. While th' more I count my blessin's I keep findin' more an' more.

There's been things that wa'n't exactly as I thought they'd ought t' be, And I've often growled at Providence fer not a pettin' me; I it I hadn't stopped t' reckon what th' other side had be'n, So I guess it wa'n't correct, the way I calkerlated then.

Fer there's be'n a gift o' sunshine after every shower o' tears, And I've found a load o' laughter scattered all along th' years, If th' thorns have pricked me sometimes, I've good reasons to suppose Love has hid 'em often from me 'neath the rapture of th' rose.

So I'm goin' t' still be thankful fer th' sunshine and th' rain, Fer th' joy that's made me happy; fer th' purgin' done by pain; Fer th' love of little children; fer the friends that have be'n true; Fer th' guidin' Hand that's led me ev'ry threat'nin' danger through.

I'm rejoicin' in th' mercy that can take my sins away, In th' Love that gives me courage in th' thickest of the fray. I am thankful fer th' goodness that from heaven follers me O! how happy and how thankful I for ever ought t' be.

So jest let us count our blessin's as we're journeyin' along. Then we'll find less time fer growlin', and more fer mirth and song When you lift your eyes t' heaven earthly shadows flee away-Let us learn this lovin' lesson as we keep Thanksgivin' Day.

Cooking the Turkey.

To prepare the turkey for the oven, split the skin at the back of the neck. take out the neck bone, cut it close to the body. Draw the crop and the intestines: clean and wash thoroughly; fill both crop and stomach cavities with stuffing. Turn the neck skin down under the back: tie a string round and bring the two ends of the string over the wings and tie on the breast. When ready to bake put the bird in the roasting pan; add a little water, small quantities of chopped celery, carrots and onions, two cloves and a small bunch of parsley. Baste with the gravy every fifteen minutes. Cook in a moderately hot oven for about two and a half or three hours. The pressure of the thumb behind the second joint of the wing will readily break the flesh when it is sufficiently cooked. Take off strings used in dressing before serving on table. After the turkey Thas been taken out add a little water and flour to gravy left in pan; boil for a few minutes: strain and remove all grease that comes to the top. Serve in sauceboat.

There is danger that the religious significance of Thank giving day may be forgotten. We so soon grow accusstomed to our blessings that we accept them as a part of the general order of wthings and naturally become ungratefulful by pure forgetfulness or indifference. In fact, many people thought Walter Baker & Co., Ltd., Dorchester, that Canada had what might be called Mass. a native breed, like the so-called natives of the United States, made up by crossing the progeny of early importations until it would be difficult to tell what blood predominates. The Massachusetts Ploughman quotes from a pamphlet sent out by Dr. J. A. Couture, D. V. S., of Quebec, secretary of the French-Canadian Cattle Breeders' association, in which he gives the history of the breed, and the claims made for it. He says the French settlers who first came to Canada were natives of Brittany and Normandy, France. The first cattle in Quebec, in 1620 or thereabouts, were brought, no doubt, from those two districts. No importations of other breeds worth mentioning are reported in the history of the province until about 1800 or a little before. Between 1776 and 1850 a few herds of English cattle, mostly Ayrshire and Shorthorns, were brought into the province, but they were bought by wealthy Englishmen living near Montreal and Quebec, where they are still to be found. They found but little favor with the French inhabitants in the poorer region and in the remote parts along the Laurentides and the lower part of the St. Lawrence, both north and south, as they were loth to cross their hardy little cows with the larger breeds, fearing, with good reason, that they could not feed sufficiently to keep the larger animals alive, to say nothing of profit, during the seven months of the winter. Thus they have been kept nearly distinct for over 250 years, and in-and-in breeding has been resorted to that Rheumatism and Kidney Trouble to fix in a sure manner the characteristics of the breed. A Hesitating Acceptance. Not very long ago Mr. and Mrs. Phil May were entertaining a large party of friends, distinguished in the worlds of literature, art and fashion, and during the evening there called a visitor who made a very diffident entry. The great caricaturist was standing near the head of the stairs talking to Lord Mountmorres and Lady Edith Franklin, when his man intimated that "Mr. Brown" had called. "Show him in," said Mr. May. "He won't come, sir: he's not in evening dress, and he's standing in the lobby," replied the servant. Mr. May, who often cannot fix the identity of people he knows pretty well showed no gleam or recognition on the mention of "Mr. Brown's" name but in his usual kind way he went to the top of the staircase and ushered in the reluctant visitor, who vainly endeavored to excuse himself. Addressing two or three distinguished friends who were standing near, Mr. May determined to place the new arrival at his ease and in the heartiest way said: "Let me introduce my old friend, Mr. Brown." The introduction had been made when Mrs. May hurried to her husband's side and, almost convulsed with laughter and embarrassment. whispered: "Why, Phil, that man is your tailor; he has called about your riding breeches, and the bill!"

will generally correct this difficulty.

If you will put from onefourth to half a teaspoonful in baby's bottle three or four times a day you will soon see a marked improvement. For larger children, from half to a teaspoonful, according to age, dissolved in their milk, if you so desire, will very soon show its great nourishing power. If the mother's milk does not nourish the baby, she needs the emulsion. It will show an effect at once both upon mother and child.

The business men of this town can attract out-of-town trade as readily as the big establishments of the cities attract it.

It is simply a matter of advertising.

This paper goes into the homes not only of those who live in the thickly settled community, but it is a welcome guest in almost every farm house for miles around. It reaches the homes in all near-by villages and some that are far removed. It will draw trade from wherever it circulates if its advertising columns are intelligently used.

The actual height at which the last stone of that famous structure, the Tower of Babel, rested cannot, on account of the remoteness of the times at which it is said to have existed, ever become more than a matter of merest conjecture. Herodotus, who lived about 1,700 years after that "great spiral way to heaven" is said to have been attempted, says that he saw at Babylor a structure consisting of eight towers raised one above another, each 75 feet in height, but whether this ruin was the remains of the Tower of Babel it was even then impossible to ascertain. Herodotus, usually minutely exact in his writing, leaves us in ignorance as to how the upper level of each of these 75 foot towers was reached from the level below. As might be expected, even in tradition, a wide difference of opinion exists as to the height of the tower. Most ori entalists maintain that God did not pu a stop to the work until the tower had reached a height of 10,000 fathoms, or about 12 miles. In Ceylonese tradition it is said to have been as high as 20,000 elephants, each standing one above the other. St. Jerome asserts on the au thority of persons who had examined the ruins that it did not reach a heigh exceeding four miles. Other state ments are still more extravagant.

Bill Nye on Life Insurance. The late Bill Nye's indorsement of life insurance is probably the mos characteristic paragraph to be quoted from his writings: "In these days of dynamite and swif changing presidential administrations and dark tunnels through which an en gineer goes groping his way at 25 miles per hour, these days of tumbling signs of the times and tipsy telegraph poles, days when the politician and the dead ly bridge policeman with his pull lie down together under the influence of the same stimulant; these days when death lurks in the air we breathe, the Carth we tread, the food we eat, the water-the water we bathe in-I say it behooves us to look well to our insurance and our future state, and I take pleasure in certifying and saying to whom these presents may come that since I became fully insured my health has improved so much that it is a sub-Messrs. Gibson and Slack, of Ubly, ject for profound congratulation on my own part and the deepest disgust on the part of those who would naturally inherit my vast wealth."

Keeping the Head Clean.

Keeping the head perfectly clean is a great aid to health. An exchange tells of a distinguished physician who, hav ing spent much of his time at quarantine, said that a person whose head was thoroughly washed every day rarely took contagious diseases, but when S. W. Striffler did business in Port | the hair was allowed to become dirty and matted it was hardly possible to escape infection. Many persons find speedy relief for nervous headache by washing the head thoroughly in weak soda water. We have known cases alis certain, thorough and gentle. Mustn't | most wholly cured in ten minutes by gripe. DeWitt's Liftle Early Risers fill this simple remedy. A friend finds it the bill. Purely vegetable. Do not the greatest relief in case of "rose the greatest relief in case of "rose cold," the cold symptoms entirely leav ing the eyes after one thorough washing of the hair. The head should be thoroughly dried afterward, and drafts of nir should be avoided for a little

A few days more, and back she came -this time in deadly fear of a tiger. "Nonsense," said the magician. "You have only the heart of a mouse, and afraid you will always be. It is the heart that tells!"

Use Hard Beds.

A German doctor advises the adoption of a hard bed and that children should be trained from the beginning to sleep upon no other kind. It is certainly true that as a rule the hard bed conwith a very painful accident one day duces to the most refreshing kind of last week. While out hunting he had sleep, the feather bed, so dearly loved one eye shot out but it is thought he by our grandmothers, being enervating in the extreme and encouraging weak ness of mind in the matter of getting up in the morning.

Cleanliness In Cooking. Says a Chinese writer of the eight eenth century: "Don't cut bamboo shoots (the Chinese equivalent of as paragus) with an oniony knife. A good cook frequently wipes his knife, fre quently changes his cloth, frequently scrapes his board and frequently washes his hands. PACTS FOR SICK PEOPLE.

MAY 11., 1901. I was suffering from general paralysis as a result of dipatheria. I had treated with the best physicians of Tuscola Co., with no benefit; in fact I grew worse under their treatment. I was entirely incapacitated for work, when I consulted the Detroit Clinic at Vassar, on March 13th; two months treatment has completedly cured me and I am able to do my work. I advise any one suffering from chronic diseases to consult this clinic. JOHN F. ALLEN. (Signed) Vassar, Mich.

Mrs. Grant McConnell, of Cass City, Mich., had a large growth of a cancer-ous nature growing on the inside of the mouth. It had been removed several times, but always returned. She had it removed by the surgeon of the Detroit Clinic, and without the use of a knife and with no pain, it was permanently removed in less than 30 days.

I have been growing deaf in both ears for the past six years s a result of La Grippe. I consulted the Detroit Clinic during their month, y visit to Cass City in January, and one month's treatment restored my hearing so that I could hear a watch tick five inches from my ear.

JOHN HORNER,

For 10 years I was a terrible sufferer from chronic rheumatism. I did every thing possible, but found no relief until I commenced treatment with the Detroit Clinic. Three months of their treatment cured me. C. C. Jones, Mrs. L. C. Smith, of Detroit, was cured of Epilepsy (or fits) after having had this terrible disease for seven years.

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS is commended by Statesmen, Professional men and thousands of others prominent in the world's activities, for its fine discrimination in sifting the actual news from conflicting report and the presentation of current events in their just proportion. They comment on its freedom from daily-paper sensationalism. All men and women who want to know what the world is doing find it an intellectual necessity, to judge from the letters received from hundreds. Its editorials are comprehensive, and labor saving to the busy man or woman. Its timely contributions on important topics are by the best-informed writers. Its reviews of other magazines give the best of their best work. It is profusely illustrated.

These letters will enable all thoughtful men and women to judge of its value to them:

A Thanksgiving Story.

"Trust in the Lord with all thy heart He shall direct thy path." Old Martha Brent, murmuring snatches of her day's verses, little realized that a challenge to her faith was close at hand. She was dusting some books on a she'f in her sitting room, and just then she accidentally knocked one of them to the floor.

The books had belonged to Martha's

ACCIDENTALLY KNOCKED ONE TO THE FLOOR.

She dusted them daily, but she never had opened them since his death, ten years before. Above the book shelf hung a bronze medal her husband had won for bravery in battle. Stooping to get the fallen book, Martha also picked up a paper that had tumbled out of it. It was a deed conferring a small piece of property below the town to one Frederick Willis.

"Well, now, to think; I never knew James deeded that away!" thought Martha.

She had just laid the paper aside, when the door burst open and a little boy came flying in. "Granny!" he whispered, hurriedly,

"you won't let him take me from you will you?" "Why, Jacky!" said Martha. The boy's beautiful, flushed face was upturned to hers full of eager en-"Promise, you won't, Granny!"

"No, no, Jacky," she said, patting his head; "you never shall leave Granny unwillingly." Morning, Martha," said a large,

"I was going to burn this paper, but maybe I'd better not," she muttered. INTERESTING CHAPTERS FOR OUR She sat down again, quite spent from the day's perplexities. She did not coherently plan what she should do. She let matters drift for the next few days.

Then one morning Mr. Crell came to her house with a notary and a deed all drawn up for her to sign. He gave her the deed to sign. She trembled and before she could write her name the pen fell to the floor. She would not pick it up. "I won't sell the land," she said. "Let this place go if it will, and Jacky and I are going to live on the shack on the river land."

Nothing the perplexed lawyer could say would alter this decision, and at last he took the notary away.

However, sincerely desirous of saving the old woman from the consequences of what seemed a strange vagary, Mr. Crell came to her another day, saying that he had arranged by telegraph to postpone the time of paying the mortgage.

But Martha stubbornly refused to alter her plans. She put a little furniture into the two-roomed log shack on the river property, and moved there with Jacky

"There won't be any crime in just the man who had married Martha's borrowing the land while I live," she told herself.

One evening, when they had been in the shack some weeks, as he sat visit. He had come to town from his studying the depressed lines that had come into her face, an idea occurred to Jacky.

"Granny," he broke out. "the reason we're not very cheerful here is just because we haven't enough honorableness. Then, as Martha caught her breath, she glanced at him sharply. "We ought to have grandfather's medal hanging up as it was at the cottage," he explained, "You see, Granny, we're always so proud and happy when we look at it and remember what a brave soldier he was. It makes us wish to be all honorable and right ourselves. Why Granny!"

Martha had suddenly dropped her face in her hands, and was swaying her poor old body to and fro. "Jacky! Jacky!" she cried out, get the medal, quickly!" He flew for it, quite distracted at the remarkable effect of his words. He heard from Mr. Ford, but I'm sorry to had merely repeated things she had often said to him.

Martha had controlled her agitation when he came back to her side after a few minutes. She was sitting up very straight and calm, and there was a brightness in her eyes, as if the spirit behind them was working strongly. Her mouth had dropped from the set look it had recently worn.

and now it seemed impossible to prove that he and Sergeant Clay were the "Jacky," she said, "stand before me, my man. Jacky, you say that think-His widow mortgaged the home to ing of grandfather ought to make us brave and honorable. Do you mean

"Ye-es, Granny." "Then, Jacky, we shall. I'll do mine and you'll do yours, little lad, even though it's the hardest trial that could come for us to be parted."

The next morning Martha carried the deed to Mr. Crell and told him the story of how she had found it and of her resolve to restore the land to Willis.

RURAL READERS.

How Successful Farmers Operate This Department of the Farm-A Few Hints as to the Care of Live Stock and Poultry.

The detection of lameness in horses is often attended with so much difficulty that a few hints along this line must prove instructive to many who have not received the benefits of a veterinary education. In the first place a horseman should make himself perfectly familiar with the natural gaits of horses in normal condition. He should know exactly how horses stand and walk under all circumstances and conditions and will then he the better able to discover departures from the normal. When a horse is known to be lame he should be examined after he has been rested in the stable. Watch him as he backs out of his stall. If he jerks one hind leg up a little one suspects "crampiness" (chorea). If on being made to "stand over" he jerks his leg the lameness is most likely to be due to spavin. If when standing still he "points" one forefoot the seat of the lameness is in the foot and he is afraid to put the heel to the ground. If he stands with the toe resting upon the ground and the ankle flexed forward the seat of the lameness is likely to be in the shoulder or elbow. As a rule, however, a horse suffering from deep-seated shoulder lameness does not stand in this position, but stands normally with foot square upon the ground. Having watched the horse before and just at time of removal from stall it is important to start him off at a trot at once as some forms of lameness disappear when the horse is walked for a short distance, and such lameness is not apparent when the animal is walking. Have the horse trotted away and back. It is difficult to tell whether the lameness is "fore" or "hind" unless this is done. When the lameness is in front and the animal is trotted away from the observer lameness may appear to be in a hind leg, which is not the case. If the lameness is in a nigh fore leg, for instance, the off hind quarter rises and falls as he goes away. On trotting him towards the observer the reason for this will be found in the fact that the weight of adds so greatly to the heat in the run the body is thrown upon the off foreleg, with a corresponding drop of the on quite cold days, and this usability nigh leg. This should be remembered in telling which fore limb is affected. The bob of the head and ear is towards the side opposite to the one which is sore and lame. Bob your head with the horse while he is trotting and it becomes an easy matter to decide which leg is the lame one. When the lameness is not in the foot we must look higher for it. A close examination should be made for causes of lameness above the foot. If the anmal is under six years of age we may expect splints to cause the lameness if the history is that he gets lame when used for a time, but recovers when rested. Splints are found just under the knee on either side of the bone of the leg. The nearer the splint is to the knee the worse will the lameness be. If splints are not present then examine the tendons for thickening and "bowed" condition. If the lameness is in the shoulder and very severe the foot is apt to be trailed behind, with knee flexed, for the horse is unable to bring it forward without great effort when he was through reading it, and pain. If the shoulder is the seat of lameness and horse stands down even trot him and the leg will be seen to roll outwards. Further, he is worse when trotted down hill and cannot lift the foot easily over an elevation. If the elbow is affected it drops when trotting and this is also a symptom of injury located underneath the shoulder blade, as where a horse has almost fallen, but very suddenly and wrenchingly" recovers himself. The hind leg is "rolled" outward in hip lameness; dropped very markedly in atrophy of the muscles of the space between stifle and hip; held backwards in dislocation of the patella (knee pan); thrust forward when walking in ring bone lameness: held from the ground in severe pain at any point, but notably the ankle and hock joints, and nail pricks cause the animal to walk painfully upon the toe. In founder the fore feet are stuck out in front of the body and the hind ones thrust forward under the body. In sprain of the psoas muscles or muscles of the loins the hind legs are carried stiffly and the animal wabbles from side to side or walks sidewise. Where lameness is due to rheumatism the animal lies down most of the time. and soreness and lameness are apt to

Et. Jacobs Oil for Chest-Colds, Bronchitis, Croup and Pleurisy,

An outward application for bronchial difficulties is many times far more effective than syrups, cough mixture, cod liver oil; &c., simply because it penetrates through to the direct cause, which is, as a rule, an accumulation of matter or growth tightly adhered to the bronchial tubes.

St. Jacobs Oil, possessing as it does those wonderful penetrating powers, enables it to loosen these adhesions and to induce free expectoration. Cases have been known where expectorations have been examined after St. Jacobs Oil has been applied, and the exact formation was clearly shown, where the adhesions had been removed or pulled off the bronchial tubes. All irritation of the delicate mucous membrane of the bronchæ is quickly removed by the healing and soothing properties of St. Jacobs Oil, In cases of croop and whooping cough in children St. Jacobs Oil will be found superior to any other remedy.

St. Jacobs Oil is for sale throughout the world. It is clean to use-not at all greasy or oily, as its name might imply. For rheumatism, gout, sciatica, neuralgia, cramp, pleurisy, lumbago, sore throat, bronchitis, soreness, stiffness, bruises, toothache, headache, backache, feetache, pains in the chest, pains in the back, pains in the shoulders, pains in the limbs, and all bodily aches and pains it has no equal. It acts like magic. Safe, sure, and never failing.

"It is the truth, on my sacred word of honor," he replied, looking at her agitated face and wondering at her words. "Why else should I say it? Good-by, Alice, I can't stay another moment, for here's somebody coming I don't care to meet."

So there he was, waiting for his return in impatient expectation, and occasionally halting before the window to look out on the busy London world. The officer at length came and was introduced. The Colonel's wife, Lady Sarah, joined him then, and they proceeded to give him the outlines of the case. A valuable diamond bracelet, recently presented to Lady Sarah by her husband, had disappeared in a singular manner. Miss Seaton, the companion to Lady Sarah, had temporary charge of the jewel box, and had brought it down the previous evening, Thursday, this being Friday. to the back of the drawing room, and laid several pairs of bracelets out on the table ready for Lady Sarah, who was going to the opera, to choose which she would wear when she came up from dinner. Lady Sarah chose a pair, and put, herself, the rest back into the box, which Miss Seaton then locked and carried to its place upstairs. In the few minutes that the bracelets lay on the table the most valuable one, a diamond, disappeared

"I did not want this to be officially investigated; at least, not so quickly," observed Lady Sarah to the officer. "The Colonel wrote for you quite against my wish."

"And so have let the thief get clear off, and put up with the loss!" cried the Colonel. "Very fine, my lady."

"You see," added her ladyship, explaining to the officer "Miss Seaton is a young lady of good family, not a common companion; a friend of mine, I may say. She is of feeble constitution, and this affair has so completely upset her that I fear she will be laid on a sick bed."

"It won't be my fault if she is," retorted the Colonel. "The loss of a diamond bracelet, worth two or three hundred guineas, is not to be hushed up. They are not to be bought every day, Lady Sarah!"

The officer was taken to the room whence the bracelet disappeared. It was a back drawing room, the folding doors between it and the front standing open, and the back window, a large one looking out upon some flat leads—as did all the row of houses. The officer seemed to take in the points of the double room at a glance: the door of communication, its two doors opening to the corridor outside. and its windows. He looked at the latches of the two entrance doors, and he leaned from the front windows, and her eyes assumed a beseeching look of he leaned from the one at the back. He next requested to see Miss Seaton, and Lady Sarah fetched her-a delicate girl with transparent skin and looking almost too weak to walk. She was in a visible tremor, and shook as

"Will you assure me, on your sacred word, that no person did enter the room?" he repeated, in a low, firm tone, which somehow carried her to the terrible belief that he believed that she was trifling with him.

She looked at him, gasped, and looked again; and then she raised her handkerchief in her hand and wiped her damp and ashy face.

"I think some one did come in," whispered the officer in her ear; "try and recollect." And Alice fell back in hysterics. Lady Sarah led her from the room, herself speedily returning to it. "You see how weak and nervous Miss Seaton is," was her remark to the officer, but glancing at her husband. "She has been an invalid for years, and is not strong like other people. I felt sure we should have a scene of some kind: that is why I wished the investigation not to be gone into hurriedly."

"Don't you think there are good grounds for an investigation, sir?" testily asked Colonel Hope of the officer. "I must confess I do think so," was the reply. "Of course, you hear, my lady. The difficulty is, how can we obtain the first

She bowed her head, wondering

"What's the good of standing upon ceremony?" peevishly put in Colonel Hope. "Her ladyship will be as glad as we shall be to get back her bracelet; more glad, one would think. A clue to the thief! Who can it have een?"

The detective smiled. When men are as high in the police force as he, they have learned to give every word its due significance. "I did not say a clue to the thief, Colonel; I said a clue to the mystery.'

"Where's the difference?" "Pardon me, it is indisputably perceptible. That the bracelet is gone, is a papable fact: but by whose hands it went, is as vet a mystery." "What do you suspect?" "I suspect," returned the officer, lowering his voice, "that Miss Seaton knows how it went." There was a silence of surprise: or Lady Sarah's part, of indignation. "Is it possible that you suspect her?" uttered Colonel Hope. "No," said the officer, "I do not suspect herself; she appears not to be a suspicious person in any way; but I believe she knows who the delinquent is, and that fear, or some other motive, terms with any of the servants?"

"But you cannot know what you are saying!" interrupted Lady Sarah. "Familiar with the servants! Miss Seaton is a gentlewoman, and has always moved in high society. Her family is little inferior to mine, and betterbetter than the Colonel's," concluded her ladyship, determined to speak out.

The war in South Africa has fur- ported that in his experience not more than 20 amputations have occurred in 3,000 cases, which he attributed to the conservative spirit of present-day surgery. Dr. Sterling Ryerson relates that he saw at Kimberly 147 wounded Boers in a roller rink which had been converted into a temporary hospital. They were of all ages, from 15 to 65. They had been wounded at Paardeburg, and undressed for from 15 to 17 days. He tells of one man who had been shot through the elbow joint and whose only treatment had been the universal Boer remedy, tobacco juice. The arm was enormously swollen and almost erysipelatous in appearance. A civil surgeon, however, took the case in hand with modern methods, with the result that the man made an excellent recovery, retaining even the power to move his arm at the joint.

Mary had a WATCHES Little Watch.

Mary had a little watch,
She wound it at the stem,
And everywhere that Mary went,
She took the little gem. She took it to the school each day,

That she might not be late.

And that she might know when to use
Her copy-book and slate. And when the teacher saw her watch.

He wished that every scholar had A watch like Mary's too. What is the name of your fine watch?
The children asked with glee;
"Why, don't you know?" she sweetly said,
"It is the Eigin, with a guarantee!" "A watch like that," the teacher said,
"So very good and cheap;
For any lady, man or child,
Is better than a sheep."
