Miss Louise A. Smith, daughter of Rev. Geo. F. Smith, of the Grant M. E. Circuit, has just returned from Albion College, where she has been studying music for some time, and contemplates organizing a class here in town. She has in her possession a testimonial as to her abilities from Prof. O. Sand, which says: "This is to certify that Miss Louisa Smith has been a student in the conservatory of music, Albion College, nearly three years, doing very conscientious work in both piano and harmony, and we have aimed in her work to prepare her particularly for teaching." As we have very few teachers in town at present, Miss Smith should have little difficulty in forming a good sized class. Miss Jessie L. McBurney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John McBurney, northwest of town, was taken sick about two weeks ago, and in spite of all that loving friends and medical assistance could do, she died on Saturday evening last. -Two Soldiers of the 14th Regiment Drowned-Other News. The Death of Miss Eberstein.

Dr. Roy W. Griswold, a prominent local physician, and Edwin T. Bennett. former owner of the Bay City Tribune, were arrested Thursday afternoon on warrants charging them with manslaughter in connection with the death of Agnes Eberstein, or May Morris, as she registered at the Fraser house. Both were released on bail of $1,000 each.

The charges grow out of the death of the woman, who came here sick on March 19, and was attended by Dr. Griswold. The woman gradually grew worse and died Tuesday morning, the body being at once removed from the hotel and shipped to Battle Creek for buria!

Dr. Griswold says the woman came ing medical expert in the treatment to his office suffering from the effects had been performed in Detroit. She said she had had the same operation performed seven times, and admitted Prince Henry wishes to come back that she had led a fast life for ten incognito, perhaps for the purpose of years, but said that her family was respectable, and she wished to protect them. The doctor did what he could for her, but did not perform the operation. Three years ago he had attended the woman at Harper hospital in Detroit.

The girl is very well known about Battle Creek, where she is best remembered through her daring horsemanship. She always drove superb animals and sported a natty rig. She left here only a short time ago, going to Detroit. Her parents are also well known, living a few miles south of this city. She was 25 years old and very attractive.

She has two sisters, Miss Lillian, a principal of one of the local ward schools, and a married sister in Kalanazoo. There are two brothers living in Battle Creek, Charles and George, besides the heartbroken mother. They are highly respected and have the leepest sympathy of their friends in this part of the state. The men who accompanied the remains gave their name as Fred Anger and Rev. Chas. T. Patchell. They were letected trying to tear the card off the coffin box after it had arrived here

Shocking Tragedy. One of the most shocking tragedies ever recorded in Mecosta county took place Wednesday morning near Borland settlement, a flag station on the G. R. & I., a few miles north of Morley. Eugene Richards, a well-to-dofarmer, shot and instantly killed his wife, as she lay ill in bed, and then ards had been sick for some time, and the necessary care for her and anxiety concerning her condition, probably unbalanced his mind.

The tragedy was discovered by Edvard Andrews, who was employed by Richardson, on the adjoining farm. A girl employed to care for the sick woman, while on her way to Rich-A Tennessee judge has declined a ards' home, heard two gunshots, and returned to where Andrews was at work, saying that she was afraid to go to the house. Andrews went to investigate, and on entering the bedroom found Mrs. Richards lying in bed with an ugly hole in her breast, and Richards himself kneeling at the bedside. A touch showed that he was dead, also shot in the breast.

The deed was committed with a single-barreled shotgun, and the murderer was forced to reload before he could kill himself.

Mr. and Mrs Richards were each about 40 years of age and had always ived together happily. They had been married about 12 years, but had no children.

After the Beet Sugar Factories. It is understood that the sugar refining trust, or parties closely allied thereto, have made overtures to the six Kilby sugar beet plants in the Saginaw Valley, the proposition being to take over 51 per cent of the stock, the remainder to be held by the local people. President Benoyar, of the Saginaw Sugar Co., in a general conversa-tion, said that "something is going on but I am not at liberty just now to give any information." The Church-hill factory in Bay City is included in the list, as is the Alma factory. R. Burt, a large stockholder in the Alma factory, says that there has been talk of this kind but he is not aware that it has yet reached the point of consummation. Much apprehension is felt here that the passing of the local factories into the hands of the trust means the destruction of the industry. but Mr. Penoyar and other local stockholders in sugar companies laugh at the proposition. They say that it will be to the advantage of the owners of the factories to operate them, since they will be as profitable as any other form of business in the country and there will be no incentive for the trust to shut them down. Mr. Rood's Death.

Arthur R. Rood, Republican candidate for mayor of Grand Rapids, died at Butterworth hospital of typhoid fever, shortly before 4 o'clock Saturday morning, after an illness of three weeks. The death of Mr. Rood has fallen as a great calamity on the Republicans of Grand Rapids. The city committee met and after making a thorough canvass of the situation appointed W. Millard Palmer as candidate for mayor, to fill the vacancy on the ticket. Although Mr. Rood had been confined in the hospital ever since the campaign opened, and Mayor George R. Perry, Democratic candidate for re-election, had been making a personal canvass and speaking in wards every night, it was conceded that Rood would have been elected by 1,000 majority, but the turn affairs have taken makes the result one of great uncertainty. The anti-Perry men, however, have not lost hope and they still believe the people will place their disapproval upon the present administration, owing to the notorious water schemes of the past two years, by electing Mr. Palmer. Arthur R. Rood was born in Lapeer, Mich., in 1858, and had lived in Grand Rapids ince 1883, in which year he graudated from the law department of the University of Michigan. He was unmarried. The funeral was held in Grand Rapids Sunday and the remains taken to Lapeer Monday for burial, where his aged parents still reside.

Escape Taxation. Assessors in Lansing and in many of the cities of the state report a great falling off in the amount of personal property subject to assessment this year, the efforts of the tax commission to reach the personal belongings of citizens for taxation having resulted in the discovery of new methods of evading the law. This is not done by making false statements but by transferring title to personal property to persons outside the state or to those who, having ne realty, are not discovered by the assessors.

A Cadetship Offered.

Senator McMillan has decided that his appointment to a cadetship at West Point shall be determined by a competitive examination, which will be held at University school, Detroit, April 25 and 26. Any young man living in Michigan who thinks that he can pass the subsequent physical ex-amination will be eligible by presenting himself. The successful candidate will not be obliged to undergo another examination for admittance to West

A Great Jail.

Marshal William Tells, of Fife Lake, the worst sufferers. went to Traverse City Saturday to secure warrants for two woodsmen who broke into the Fife Lake jail to obtain a sleeping place. A Fife Lake man confined there over night went by an alarm clock, set to ring at 5 home in the morning, but his family the officials, who found him sitting in | clock saved their lives. a wide-open jail.

Railroad Earnings.

Railroad Commissioner Osborn rerailroad companies for February were $2,985,975, an increase of $179,707 over February, 1901. The aggregate iff Shipman. Gardner will recover. Michigan earnings for the first two months of the present year were $6,-341,243, an increase of $572,744, or 9.92 per cent over the same months of last year.

A Game Report.

The fine weather of March resulted n an unusually large number of violaions of the fish laws, says Game and Fish Warden Morse in his monthly report. There were 68 prosecutions. of which only six were for violation of the game laws. The birds and deer have wintered well, it is reported, save that the latter have suffered severely from wolves.

Will Be Elind.

It is alleged that in a quarrel durng a baseball game Charles and Max Curtis and Raymond Powell, of Niles, aged about 16 years, stoned 11-year-old Harold Letcher.

The latter's condition is very serious and the physician says that if he recovers he probably will be blind. The three alleged assailants have been arrested.

AROUND THE STATE.

Twenty-three robberies have been committed in Muskegon in three months.

The whole town of Martin is under quarantine, an old gentleman, who was exposed in California, came to the village and was stricken with smallpox soon after his arrival.

Although the strike of the Saginaw Valley coal miners is but a few days old, both miners and operators are awaking to the realization of the tre mendous losses which will result to ooth sides in the prolongation of the difficulty and a compromise is expected.

parted for California for the benefit of his health. The three-year-old daughter of Theodore Seiloff, of Stark, while playing around the house, found a bottle of carbolic acid and drank part of the contents. She is in a precarious condition, but may pull through. Under the shadow of the wall of the Tackson prison where he had previously served five years for a similar offense, Charles Mallet, attempted a crime against a 9-year-old girl Sunday morning. He was arrested. As a result of the frequent burglaries in Kalamazoo, Battle Creek and Grand Rapids, the work of the same gang, the police representatives of the three cities held a consultation Monday to effect a capture of the criminals.

John Somerville, Jr., of Adrian, aged 17. who drank in a saloon, became unconscious and was revived by a physician with difficulty, says he lost $35 in the place. The bartender was arraigned for selling liquor to a minor.

President Churchill, of the Bay City Sugar Co., denied the rumor that the trust had obtained a controlling interest in his company. He says only small blocks were on the market, and these will not affect control of the company. Miss MacCornish, of Ishpeming, jilted by her lover, attempted suicide by drinking carbolic acid. The girl and lover attended a ball, and upon returning to her home at 4 o'clock Tuesday morning she took the poison. She will recover. The Niles Board & Paper Co. has ncreased the wages of its 200 cmployes 15 per cent as the result of a threatened strike. The employes of the other local paper mills are also dissatisfied, and may formally object to the long hours. The Michigan earnings of railroads

Snow Bound. Passengers arriving in St. Paul Wednesday on a Great Northern train, due Friday of last week, tell of being snow bound for five days and five nights on the prairies of North Dakota, in the midst of the worst blizzard the northwest has seen in many years meals a day, and with such a small amount of fuel that the ladies had to wrap themselves in blankets and the men to wear their overcoats day and was completely lost to the world. Late Thursday afternoon it picked its precarious way out of Williston, in the hope of being able to reach Minot, some 14 miles to the east, before night. Almost midway, at a little stopping place called Ray where there is only a siding, a water tank and a coal shed, the train was stalled. The engineer thought he could run the engine back to Williston and get aid, and taking the conductor with him, started on the trip. The lone engine was stuck in a drift in a cut a short distance out of the town and had to be abandoned. This left the tmin of eight coaches and about 250 passengers alone on the siding and with all communication cut off. Then began the long siege, during which the cold had to be borne and hunger stifled. There was much suffering. Monday evening, Prof. Colgrove, of the University of Washington, who had been despondent and morose, attempted suicide by cutting his throat with a razor. There was a physician on the train, but he had no facilities for performing the necessary opera tion. In their desperation the passen gers broke open everything in the train's chests, and in the conductor's box found a telegraph instrument. A young man, an electrician, faced the blizzard and tapped one of the wires and attached the instrument. He notified the operators at both Minot and Williston of what had occurred. From each place a snow plow was started in front of an engine bearing a surgeon. The one from Minot, after a hard night's work, reached the siding early the following morning, and the injured man was removed or the first train to St. Paul, where he was cared for at the city hospital. The almost famished passengers who had suffered from the cold and exposure were given food and warm berths in the first train pushed through the drifts. The rotary snow plow made one trip through the drift hetween Ray and Minot, but the snow ids Superior Court, as anticipated piled in so rapidly that it was neces-Tuesday, denied the request of T. Twelve Hotels Burned The most disastrous conflagration that has ever visited Atlantic City, N. J. raged along the beach front for a distance of more than three blocks, destroying twelve hotels and adjoining buildings. A strong southwest wind was blowing and the local firemen were unable to cope with the flames Assistance was asked from Philadelphia and Camden and each city sent three engines. The loss will aggregate more than $750,000. No lives were lost. The fire originated in Brady's bath house, adjoining the Boardwalk between New York and Illinois avenues, and burned rapidly. The hotels destroyed are: The Windsor, the Berkeley, the Stratford, the Stickney, the Luray, the Tarlton, the Everard and the New Holland. Practically all of the property destroyed was attached to the board walk, a frame structure 40 feet wide skirting the edge of the ocean and consisted mainly of flimsy wooden stores and bath houses. For tunately the wind carried the flames away from the section of the city in which the most valuable hotels and cottages are located. Among the other buildings destroyed are the Marine hall on Young's ocean pier, and the pier it-self; Fralinger's Academy of Music, and half a dozen stores located on the board walk between New York and Kentucky avenues, and half a dozen cottages on Westminster avenue. The The Rochester & Pittsburg railroad board walk for the distance of three blocks also burned.

Judge Morris, of Minnesota, who is a member of the beet sugar steering committee, says that when the Cuban reciprocity bill is taken up in the house next week he will offer an amendment to remove the differential between raw and refined sugar. The amenament will probably also include the removal of the Dutch standard, in which is said to lie the strength of the sugar trust. This will raise the direct issue, and places the balance of power in the hands of the Democrats, if the beet sugarites do not lose their Over the Falls.

Della Tansey, of Buffalo, went over the American falls at 6 o'clock Thursday evening. It was the most sensational cataract suicide in years. The woman jumped over the railing of Goat Island bridge about ten feet from shore. William Connors, of Liverpool, Eng., who was on the bridge at the time, ran down the shore and waded into the river. A rake was passed to him, which he succeeded in fastening in her clothes. Miss Tansey begged piteously to be saved. He tried to draw the woman toward the shore, but her clothing tore and she was carried over the brink of the falls. Two hundred people saw the woman go to her death.

The Boer Peace Conference. It is said that if the Cuban reciprocity bill becomes law its effects will be to force the different islands of the West Indies into bankruptcy or under the American flag. The republic of Santo Domingo, for example, depends with only food enough for two frugal largely upon the sale of its sugar to the United States for a living. If the Cuban sugar pays less duty it will practically put the sugar from Santo Domingo out of business. The plantanight to keep from freezing. The train | tions of this country are in the hands of about 50 owners, many of them Americans. The government is very unstable, and if there is a reciprocal trade relation with Cuba it is considered likely that the shaky republic will go to pieces and that the commercial element will seek the protection of the United States.

Patrick Found Guilty. New York, March 26,-Albert T. Patrick, lawyer, was convicted of the murder on September 23, 1900, of the iged millionaire recluse, William

Marsh Rice. The penalty under the statute is death in the electric chair. A scant three hours of deliberation at the close of a trial prolonged for nine weeks and replete with sensational interest, sufficed to enable the jury to reach their verdict. The issue of the trial established the charge that Patrick conspired with Mr. Rice's valet, Charles F. Jones, to obtain possession of the aged Texan's estate, estimated at $7,000,000, and that Jones killed his employer by the administration of chloroform at the direct insti-

In presenting to the house the report of the ways and means committee on the Cuban reciprocity bill, Chairman Payne said that it could work no injury to the American sugar industry if the small reduction on Cuban sugar was made. He asserted that the planters and not the refineries would be the beneficiaries of the reduction, and that Cuba did not come as a mendicant, but was prepared to offer a good trade in return. It is expected that at least 30 Republicans will oppose the bill on the floor of the house.

In the busy industrial state of Ohio is to be found a little town where the English language is never heard. where the vandal hand of modern improvement has not yet been laid and where the faintest echo of up-to-date rush and scurry has yet to be heard. This is the little German village of Glandorf in Putnam county, Ohio, where 600 frugal and industrious inhabitants have lived for years in a contented and idyllic simplicity. In the building of the town, as in everything else about it, the people have held very closely to the customs of Germany, from where its founders came.

A Remarkable Story of Love, Gold and Adventure.

CHAPTER XXI.—(Continued.) "Where is the gentleman?" he asked. "In one of the small private parlors, sir. I will show you the way, if you desperate situation that faced them, please."

The marquis glanced again at the card which he held, and read:

"Maurice Stanton Livermore: "Give me a private interview imme

"Lead me to the gentlemen," he said quietly, though there was a tumult in As he reached the door of the bijou parlor he saw a man pacing restlessly to and fro, much as caged tigers are wont to exercise. It was Captain Livermore, but his friends would have been shocked at his appearance, for his hair was sadly lacking in order, his face flushed, as though whole aspect like that of a man who has been on a spree.

The marquis was disturbed; he anticipated bad news, but had not a glimmer of what shape it would take until the captain, seeing him enter, advanced to meet him.

"Captain Livermore, what can I do for you?" the marquis asked, coldly. "Sir, I have come for my wife!"

The marquis started as if some one had fired a pistol shot close to his ear. Even the most collected individual might be a trifle rattled by such an answer. Still this did not prevent him, while he was whipping his wits into line, from excaliming:

"Then I will explain further. My first intention was to shoot you down sister to bring you to me. Come imon sight, but I could not forget that once you refused to avail yourself of the privilege of taking my forfeited life, and I swore that the man who had been that generous should have at least a chance to defend himself before I killed him."

"Still I am in the dark. The first in her heart. thing I grasp is that she has told you

"I was a blind fool never to have suspected it. You ruined me, marquis, but surely that should have satisfied your desire for revenge. All that I had might go and welcome, so long as I still call my wife and babies mine. Again I say, I have come to you to demand my wife."

"And I reply, sir, that I have not seen your wife since last evening, when I left her in your own house, together with her children."

Eye looked into eye. It was as though the captain's whole existence depended upon what he read there, his manner that of a distracted man holding his passions in check only through the most desperate effort.

"Jack Overton, do you swear to that?" he demanded, hoarsely.

"I do, on my life." Again the captain met his gaze and seemed to read his very soul through those open windows.

After all, these were two men built pretty much upon the same modelboth brave and frank by nature—such individuals can understand each other through the mysterious realm of tele-

I returned later in the evening, just as speedily as a cab could bring me from the Victoria, to find her gone and my little darlings motherless. This note was left behind."

He handed the other a crumpled sheet of paper, upon which had been written in a peculiar chirography, a long, running hand, such as is taught in Spanish schools:

"To balance accounts. "Guerre a mort."

When he looked up his face was ashen gray. Those eager, bloodshot eyes saw that the miserable and tragic little paper.

By degrees he began to realize what a desperate woman they had to cope with, and new fears for his wife's safety assailed him. It was hardly to be wondered at that the husband, who had faced many a deadly peril himself unflinchingly, trembled and turned to his companion for strength in this moment of terrible distress, when the woman he loved better than his life was in danger.

"Come, we must go to your house without delay. The start must be made from there. On the way we can coltion for the work." This was his way of starting in, and as they left the hotel the marquis beckoned to a gentlemanly looking young fellow who, while appearing to be somewhat of a swell, was in reality a detective serving as his bodyguard. A four-wheeler was next in order. and thus they reached the captain's house. The marquis asked a few question and then allowed the man from Scotland Yard to take charge of the case. He drove at once to the railway station and made inquiries at the booking office. Luckily the captain had a photograph of his wife along with him. snatched from the mantel at home by suggestion of his one-time deadly en emy, but now devoted friend. The clerk recollected the party well It consisted of two ladies, who appeared sick or suffering in some way, a couple of attendants, honest-looking fellows, and the woman who seemed to have charge of them all-he had supposed her to be a housekeeper or companion.

Thus they knew those they sought had gone on to Dover. It was a great triumph for the detective, and their faith in him arose accordingly. Still the situation was lugubrious enough, since there was no train until morning.

That meant four or five hours wasted.

The captain grew red in the face with congested anger and threatened to have an apoplectic fit, but the marquis, upon learning that only a question of pounds, shillings and pence kept them from reaching Dover, put his hand into his pocket and made immediate arrangements for a motor and one firstclass carriage.

In ten minutes they were leaving the station, and long ere the city limits had been reached found themselves whirling along at a furious speed.

It was agreed by all that Fedora while in the cab must have been drugged in some way, to prevent her calling for help-doubtless her cruel captor had made all preparations for this and had no difficulty in stupefying her mind while she still retained the use of her limbs.

The booking agent had noticed the vacant expression on her face and delicately hinted that at the time he had a vague suspicion the two ladies might he affected in their minds and were being taken to some private sanitarium near the coast.

A strange, cold shiver went through the marquis as a dreadful thought flashed home. He remembered how he had met Juanita on the stairs; how she had questioned him about the demure miniature painter; how she had bitterly exclaimed that the little girl of his former acquaintance had now grown up into a charming little woman. Good heavens! Could it be possible that her terrible Spanish hatred had extended to Mazette, and that, having laid all her plans to accomplish a certain purpose, she set out to kill two birds with teeth and swearing that if heaven would forgive him and spare her he would devote his fortune to make people happy, the special gave several sharp whistles and plunged into Dover.

CHAPTER XXII.

"O'er Land and Sea." Again the man from Scotland Yard was put in charge, and bent his energies to discovering what had become of those they sought. The trail finally led them to the water, and then they knew the crisis was near. In all his life Jack Overton never suffered such wretched pangs of remorse and despair as came upon him while they looked out upon the dark waters where the stars were reflected upon myriads of little wavelets, and considered what a trackless waste the sea might be.

The detective at last secured positive

Those they sought had gone to sea in a small steamer that had evidently been awaiting their arrival.

There was only one thing to do-Given a feverish anxiety to be afloat, and unlimited capital, in a seaport one need not search very long for the craft. The detective soon had them aboard a little craft that was used in the coasting trade, a stanch and speedy boat, admirably. Out of the harbor and away.

About daybreak of the second day the wind blew great guns, and they found themselves in a storm such as would answer their purpose

The storm was at its height about noon, and as they had been blown far out of their course, no one might say when the port of Santander would be reached, although the captain made some sort of a prophecy the under certain conditions they would bring up there by the second night.

At sundown the storm still raged and the gallant little steamer struggled desperately to hold her own.

During the night, between the cat naps he secured, the marquis was impressed with the belief that the vessel did not pitch and toss so violently and upon making an observation found that the clouds had parted, leaving a clear sky overhead.

Upon reaching deck he found everything lovely. The sea had subsided almost entirely and a fresh morning breeze was commencing to stir its surface into myriads of laughing wavelets.

About noon the captain called their attention by means of the glass to far distant land to the south, which he declared to be the northern coast of Spain, showing that they were now traversing the romantic Bay of Biscay. known to the natives as the Gulf of

But all things must end, and finally they entered the harbor, where other vessels lay at anchor, and the captain soon had their mudhook fastened in Spanish soil.

It was perhaps ten minutes later when the marquis appeared at Livermore's elbow as the latter stood at the rail surveying the lights of the town, and said in a hoarse whisper: "Make no outcry, my friend; control yourself and listen. Our captain is ready to take his oath that the steamer

DOG WAS TOO SWIFT FOR TRAIN. Proof of Intelligence Possessed by Ou Canine Friends.

Passengers on yesterday's Great Northern train from Helena witnessed a novel sight after Basin had been passed. A passenger boarded the train at that camp and his dog seemed to be much concerned about his master's departure. After the train pulled out of the station the dog took up the scent, put his ears back, let the muscles of his legs out full length, and after the cars he went. He rounded curves with the rapidity of a roulette ball, and when he struck a straight stretch of roadway he lengthened his strides and poked his nose into the wind and fairly whizzed, keeping about seventy-five or one hundred vards behind the cars.

The train moved up the heavy grade at a slower rate of speed, so that there was not so very much for the dog to do but get down and hustle. But after Bernie had been passed the engineer pulled the throttle open and the train bowled along across Elk Park at a pretty lively clip. Then doggie was lost sight of for awhile. At Woodville a short stop was made, and before the train pulled out the dog was there. panting, but comparatively fresh, considering his long run. No more was seen of the dog until the train pulled into the depot at Butte.

There the dog lay upon the platform waiting for the train and his master, who was a passenger. He had been resting there for five minutes. Instead of following the train on its long, circuitous route from Woodville to Butte, fourteen miles, he took the old stage road and made the run of four miles in a short time.—Anaconda

I was suffering from general paraly-sis as a result of appatheria. I had treated with the best physicians of Tuscola Co., with no benefit; in fact I grew worse under their treatment. I was entirely incapacitated for work, when I consulted the Detroit Clinic at Vassar, on March 13th; two months treatment has completedly cured me, and I am able to do my work. I advise any one suffering from chronic diseases

Mrs. Grant McConnell, of Casa City, Mich., had a large growth of a cancer-ous nature growing on the inside of the mouth. It had been removed several times, but always returned. She had it removed by the surgeon of the Detroit Clinic, and without the use of a knife and with no pain, it was permanently removed in less than 30 days.

on the Prince

On Monday evening last, before a fair audience, the Rev. R. Weaver delivered the second of the course announced, on the above subject. The lecturer, once a student of the famous Pastor's College and well known to the great preacher, gaye a discription of his life and work, commencing with his birth. The great preacher's life was fully delineated in its several parts; his early life under the Godly influence of his mother, followed by his residence with his grandfather Spurgeon, at the manse at Stambourne, where he learned much by personal contact with the good man, who aided in the development of his life. The prediction of the sainted Rev. R. Knill, that the child would one day become a great preacher was referred to and the promise that the child made, that should he ever become a preacher and preach in Rowland Hill's chapel, he would announce the hymn, "God Moves in a Mysterious way." His school days, conversion, baptism, the boy preacher, first pastorate, his wonderful success therein, his escape from going to college, his call to London, the sensation of his youthful appearance and new style of preaching, newspaper critics amazed at his phenominal power and success, the severity of criticisms and caricatures as "Brimstone and Treacle," and "Catch 'em alive O," enlargement of church in New Park Street, Exeter Hall, Surrey Gardens, Music Hall, Crystal Palace, and the Agricultural Hall, where he preached to more than 50,000 persons, the building of the tabernacle at a cost of $155,000, his orphanage for 500, College, almshouses, were all described with a master hand. Numerous humorous stories by Spurgeon from lecturer's own notes were given, his marvelous use of wit when attacked by madmen, his puns on the names of persons and places, his maryelous preaching, his literary work, the publication of a weekly sermon of 25,000 copies, his tenderness and kindness of heart, his spells of sickness, the Dome grade contoversy, his last journey to the south of France and death, his burial in London, were all graphically described. For over one hour and a half the speaker held his audience in laughter and at times in breathless attention. The lecturer exhibited the last photo of the celebrated preacher and also the exterior and interior views of the celebrated building known as the Metropolitan Tabernacle, London, with a seating capacity of over 6,000 persons. Mr. Weaver's final lecture A little daughter came to make its will be given on the 21st inst. Subject,

> Washington, April 6.-In the following discourse, prepared by Dr. Talmage before his illness, a vivid glimpse of the splendors and glories of heavenly life is presented; text, Revelation viii., 1. "There was silence in heaven about the space of half an hour."

> The busiest place in the universe is heaven. It is the center from which all good influences start; it is the goal at which all good results arrive. The Bible represents it as active with wheels and wings and orchestras and processions mounted or charioted. But my text describes a space when the wheels ceased to roll and the trumpets to sound and the voices to chant. The riders on the white horses reined in their chargers. The doxologies were hushed and processions halted. The hand of arrest was upon all the splendors. "Stop, heaven!" cried an omnipotent voice, and it stopped. For thirty minutes everything celestial stood still. "There was silence in heaven about the space of half an hour."

From all we can learn it is the only time heaven ever stopped. It does not stop as other cities for the night, for lars,' said he. I may get it back for there is no night there. It does not you, I told him, only asking that he stop for a plague, for the inhabitant never says, "I am sick." It does not quired of me. Meanwhile the papers stop for bankruptcies, for its inhabitants never fail. It does not stop for roasting the police in general and me impassable streets, for there are no in particular for not catching the fallen snows or sweeping freshets. burglar and murderer. I got the keys What, then, stopped it for thirty minutes? Grotius and Professor Stuart tion of Jerusalem. Mr. Lord thinks it was in the year 311, between the close of the Diocletian persecution and the beginning of the wars by which Constantine gained the throne. I do not know when it was, and I do not care when it was, but of the fact that such an interregnum of sound took place I am certain. "There was silence in heaven about the space of half an hour." If geologists are right—and I believe they are—there has not been a moment of silence since this world began its travels, and the crashing and the splitting and the uproar and the hubbub are ever in progress. But when among the supernals a voice cried, "Hush! and for half an hour heaven was still silence was honored. The full power of silence many of us have yet to learn. We are told that when Christ was arraigned "he answered not a word." That silence was louder than any thunder that ever shook the world. Oftentimes when we are assailed and misrepresented the mightiest thing to say is to say nothing and the mightiest thing to do is to do nothing. Silence Do right and leave the results with God. Among the grandest lessons the world has ever learned are the lessons of patience taught by those who endured uncomplainingly personal or domestic or political injustice. Stronger than any bitter or sarcastic or revengeful answer is the patient silence.

Learn also from my text that heaven from the fact that it could afford only thirty minutes of recess. There have final and fatal rejection of the full been events on earth and in heaven that seemed to demand a whole day or whole week or whole year for celestial consideration. If Grotius was right and this silence occurred at the time of the destruction of Jerusalem, that scene was so awful and so prolonged that the inhabitants of heaven could not have done justice to it in many and he pointed to a place on the globe weeks. Six hundred priests were detemple being gone, there was nothing for them to do. Six thousand people in one cloister were consumed. There were 1.100,000 dead according to Josephus. Grotius thinks that this was the cause of silence in heaven for half an hour. If Mr. Lord was right, and this silence was during the Diocletian persecutions, by which 844,000 Christians suffered death from sword and fire and banishment and exposure, why did not heaven listen throughout at least one of these awful years? No! Thirty minutes! The fact is that the celestial program is so crowded with spectacle that it can afford only one recess in all eternity, and that for a one minute. In worship in earthly churches where there are many to take part we have to counsel brevidly enough to let one hundred and forty-four thousand get through each with his own story and then one hundred and forty-four million and then one hundred and forty-four billion and then one hundred and forty-four but what we will know of him after everlasting study of the deific. If my text had said there was silence in heaven for thirty days, I would not have been startled at the announcement, but it indicates thirty minutes. Why, there will be so many friends to hunt up, so many of the greatly good and useful that we will want to see, so many of the inscrutable things of earth we will need explained, so many exciting earthly experiences we will want to talk over, and all the other spirits and all the ages will want the same, that there will be no more opportunity for cessation. The multitudes of men and women who got no crown on earth we will want to see them when they get their crown in heaven. I tell you heaven will have no more half hours to spare.

Besides that, heaven is full of children. They are in the vast majority. No child on earth who amounts to anything can be kept guiet half an hour, and how are you going to keep five hundred million of them quiet half an hour? You know heaven is much more of a place than it was when that recess of thirty minutes occurred. Its population has quadrupled, sextupled, centupled. Heaven has more on hand, more of rapture, more of knowledge, more of intercommunication, more of wor ship. The most thrilling place we have ever been in is stupid compared with that, and, if we now have no time to spare, we will then have no eternity to spare. Silence in heaven only half an hour! My subject also impresses me with the immortality of a half hour. That half hour mentioned in my text is more widely known than any other period in the calendar of heaven. The only part of eternity that was ever measured by earthly timepiece was measured by the minute hand of my text. Oh, the half hours! They decide everything. I am not asking what you will do with the years or months or days of your life, but what of the half hours? Tell me the history of your half hours and I will tell you the story of your whole life on earth and the story of your whole life in eternity. The right or wrong things you can think in thirty minutes, the right or wrong things you can say in thirty minutes, the right or wrong things you can do in thirty minutes are glorious or baleful, inspiring or desper-

They are pieces of eternity. The half hour a day for good books or bad books, the half hour a day for prayer or indolence, the half hour a day for helping others or blasting others, the half hour before you go to business and the half hour after you return from business-that makes the difference between the scholar and the ignoramus, between the Christian and the infidel, between the saint and the demon, between triumph and catastrophe, between heaven and hell. The most tremendous things of your life and mine were certain half hours. The half hour when in the parsonage of a country minister I resolved to become a Christian then and there, the half hour when I decided to become a preacher of the gospel, the half hour when I first realized that my son was dead, the half hour when I stood on the top of my house in Oxford street and saw our church burn, the half hour in which I entered Jerusalem, the half hour in which I never sin, where they never suffer, stopped on Mount Calvary, the half hour in which I stood on Mars hill | time is short, our thirty minutes are and about ten or fifteen other half almost gone. Come on! We must get hours are the chief times of my life. back to earth before this half hour of You may forget the name of the exact years or most of the important events of your existence, but those half hours, like the half hour of my text will be immortal. I do not query what you will do with the twentieth century, I do not query what you will do with this year, but what will you do with the next half hour? Upon that hinges your destiny, and during that some of you will receive the gospel and make complete surrender, and during that others of you will make and free and urgent and impassioned offer of life eternal. Oh, that the next half hour might be the most glorious thirty minutes of your earthly existence!

Far back in history a great geographer stood with a sailor looking at a globe that represented our planet, where he thought there was an undiscovered continent. The undiscovered continent was America. The geographer who pointed where he thought there was a new world was Martin Behaim and the sailor to whom he showed it was Columbus. This last was not satisfied until he had picked that gem out of the sea and set it in the crown of the world's geography. O ye who have been sailing up and down the rough seas of sorrow and sin, let me point out to you another continent-yea, another world—that you may yourself find, a rapturous world, and that is the world a half hour of which we now study! Oh, set sail for it! Here is the ship and here are the compasses. In other words, make this half hour the grandest half hour of your life and become a Christian. Pray for a regenerated spirit. I say to you, my hearers, only God by his convicting and converting grace can make a Christian, but he is ready this very half hour to accomplish it. Again, my text suggests a way of studying heaven so that we can better understand it. The word "eternity" that we can handle so much is an immeasurable world. Knowing that we could not understand that word, the Bible uses it only once. We say "forever and ever." But how long is "forever and ever?" I am glad that my text puts under our eye heaven for thirty minutes. As when you see a great picture, you put a sheet of paper into a scroll and look through it or join your forefinger to your thumb and look through the circle between, and the picture becomes more intense, so this masterpiece of heaven by St. John is more impressive when we take only thirty minutes of it at a time. Now, we have something that we can come nearer to grasping, and it is a quiet heaven. When we discourse about the multitude of heaven, it must be also a nervous shock to those who have all their lives been crowded by many people and who want a quiet heaven. For the last thirty-five years I have been much of the time in crowds and under public scrutiny and amid excitements, and I have sometimes thought for a few weeks after I reach heaven I would like to go down in some quiet part of the realm, with a few friends, and for a little while try comparative solitude.

take only a glimpse, for we have only thirty minutes for all heaven. "Is that Jesus?" "Yes." Just under the hair along his forehead is the mark of a wound made by a bunch of twisted brambles, and his foot on the throne has on the round of his instep another mark of a wound made by a spike, and a scar on the palm of the right hand and a scar on the palm of the left hand. But what a countenance! What a smile! What a grandeur! What a loveliness! What an overwhelming look of kindness and grace! Why, he looks as if he had redeemed a world! But come on, for our time is short. Do you see that row of palaces? That is the Apostolic row. Do you see that long reach of architectural glories? That is Martyr row. Do you see that immense structure? That is the biggest house in heaven; that is "the house of many mansions." Do you see that wall? Shade your eyes against its burning splendor, for that is the wall of heaven, jasper at the bottom and amethyst at the top. See this river rolling through the heart of the great metropolis? That is the river concerning which those who once lived on the banks of the Hudson or the Alabama or the Rhine or the Shannon say, "We never saw the like of this for clarity and sheen." That is the chief river of heaven-so bright, so wide, so deep. But you ask, "Where are the asylums for the old?" I answer, "The inhabitants are all young." "Where are the hospitals for the lame?" "They are all agile." "Where are the infirmaries for the blind and deaf?" "They all see and hear." "Where are the almshouses for the "They are all multimillion-"Where are the inebriate asylums?" "Why, there are no saloons."

with earthly sickness, now look rubicund with immortal health. "Oh, let me go in and see them!" you say. No, you cannot go in. There are those who would never consent to let you come out again. You say, "Let me stay here in this place where they where they never part." No, no! Our heavenly silence breaks up, for in your see heaven in full blast, but not now. celestial appearance which makes me think that the half hour of silence will soon be over. Remember we are mortal yet and cannot endure the full roll of heavenly harmonies and cannot endure even the silent heaven for more than half an hour. Hark! The clock in the tower of heaven begins to strike, and the half hour is ended. Descend! Come back! Come down till your work is done. Shoulder a little longer your burdens. Fight a little longer your battles. Weep a little longer your griefs. And then take heaven not in its dullest half hour, but in its mightiest pomp, and, instead of taking it for thirty minutes, take it world without end.

After your prostration before the throne in worship of him who made it possible for you to get there at all I think the rest of your first half hour in heaven will be passed in receiving your reward if you have been faithful. I have a strangely beautiful book containing the pictures of the medals struck by the English government in honor of great battles. These medals are pinned over the heart of the returned heroes of the army on great occasions, the royal family present and the royal bands playing-the Crimean medal, the medal of the mutiny, the Victoria cross, the Waterloo medal. In your first half hour in heaven in some way you will be honored for the earthly struggles in which you won the day. Stand up before all the royal house of heaven and receive the insignia while you are announced as victor over the drafts and freshets of the farm field, victor over the temptations of the Stock Exchange, victor over professional allurements, victor over domestic infelicities, victor over mechanic's shop, victor over the storehouse, victor over home worriments, victor over physical distresses, victor over hereditary depressions, victor over sin and death and hell. Take the badge that celebrates those victories through our Lord Jesus Christ. Take it in the presence of all the galleries, saintly, angelic and divine, while all heaven chants. "These are they who came out of great tribulation and had their robes washed and made white in the blood of the Lamb."

Spent $85,000 to "Get Even." The extremes to which some people will go for revenge have seldom been better demonstrated than in the case of two rival shipowners in the north of England some years ago. The manager of a local colliery invited tenders for the conveyance of large quantities of coal to America, and when the contract was given to one shipowner the other immediately set to work to wreak vengeance.

He first approached the owners of the colliery and offered to carry the coal across the Atlantic for a shilling a ton less than cost price, and as this effected considerable saving to the colliery, the proprietors countermanded the former contract and closed with the second over. The shipowner was content to suffer a loss for five years in order to spite his rival, and at the end of that time he capitulated, for his revenge had cost him $85,000.

Mothers of growing sons were glad that he had forever disappeared from the village. Good men who had known his stepfather before that hapless man had married Mrs.

Niles agreed that Tom's disagreeable conduct had driven his mother's young husband to despondency and drink. When Mrs. Baxter, Tom's mother, came to death's door after six years of uncomplaining disappointment, pinching poverty and unspoken yearning for her absent son, the women said that it was Tom's disgrace and desertion that had brought her gray hairs in sorrow to the grave. Nobody knew just what she really thought of Tom's treatment of herself. They knew that she would not telerate abuse of him, and so his name was never mentioned in her presence. If she regretted having given the boy a stepfather almost as young as himself, she never said so. If she yet believed that under better conditions Tom might have grown into goodly manhood, she made no sign. It was too late. The boy had run away, first, to escape the holier-than-thou tyranny of his model stepfather, and second, to get away from the warrant which charged him with complicity in robbing the village bank. In the old days, just after the wedding, his mother had sided with Mr. Eaxter against Tom, and then-

A striking feature of the isle is the fact that no mice can live there; and on this, mice have been caught and slipped on the isle, but so uncongenial did its soil prove to their existence that in a short time they were dead. There are instances of crofters on the mainland, when troubled with mice, going the length of fetching earth from this isle and sprinkling it on the ground before building their stacks. This is said to have the desired effect in all cases.—Liverpool Daily Post.

"GLORY" OF A TITLE.

Americans Love the Distinction as Much as Any Foreigner. It is interesting to note how the title that any member of an American family may acquire sheds its luster over the whole family. They all bask in its radiance—assuming that a title sheds radiance and in spite of the fact that it only too often does not. A title's a title for a' that seems to be the paraphrase among some of Uncle Sam's citizens, says the New York Sun. The fact that a Philadelphia girl who married the other day had beauty, money and position seemed to be of small moment. Her parents, even, were scarcely mentioned in the newspaper reports of the wedding. All other considerations were eclipsed by the other fact that her sister had married a titled foreigner, and not a very big title at that. In every published account the bride was described not as "daughter of Mr. and Mrs. —," but as the "sister of the Countess ---." The fact that the marriage of this same countess' sister turned out most unhappily, and that, finding it impossible to live with her husband she was some years ago obliged to get a legal separation. counts for nothing. The title's the thing.

TESTIMONIAL.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir:-F r several years I have been troubled with deafness, roaring in my head and all the symptoms of Chronic Catarrh. I believed that my case was incurable, but upon the urgent request of a friend I consulted Dr. Morrison of the Detroit Clinic. After a careful examination he said he could cure me in two months. I commenced treatment and in two months I was cured; could hear as well as ever; no more pain or roaring in the head. I was afraid it would return but I have had a severe cold since I was cured and there has been no return of the trouble so I know I am cured. I want all your readers to know of my wondeeful cure.
